THE OLD SWIMMING HOLE WAS NEVER LIKE THIS ONE, WAS IT? Shown here is a number of our student body enjoying an afternoon at the college pool. The pool offers another leisure time of activity, and serves as one of the few places open to sun-basking. All students should patronize the pool, and even if there are non-swimmers on campus, it would be fun to learn.

GTC Political Campaign Launched by Larry Hyde

With Student Council elections slated for Thursday, May 22, political interest is taking on a pace not seen on this campus for some time, according to people who have been here for the past few years.

Giving the traditional procedure a new twist, Larry Hyde has already begun campaigning for the presidency rather than waiting to be nominated in chapel Monday.

While stating that, "I am not making any campaign promises because I feel that the same conditions may not prevail next year," he did list some major points that he would try to get enacted with council approval.

Among these, he said, "At present time there is nothing that the present Student Council has brought forth that I want to change personally." He also expressed his desire to cooperate with everyone on campus.

Turning to another angle, he said, "I feel that the Hungarian scholarship is very good and should be continued in the future if possible. I will actively try to make it a success."

As to the telephone system, he thinks it is an "acute problem," and that a solution can be found.

As to assembly programs, he stated, "There is a strong feeling among members of the student body that lack of planning is responsible for the dull assembly programs that we now have. This can be overcome through a committee of students who have initiative and imagination to put together programs that will be enjoyable and entertaining for all concerned."

Among other points, he feels that Student Council should make bi-weekly progress reports to the student body. He is also planning to organize a student-faculty committee to work on problems that are concerned with both groups. Along the line of social activities, Hyde feels that there is a downward trend in social activities on campus at present and says we need more imagination and originality in our programs. He mentioned that there is a good possibility of having more than one movie a week on campus next year.

Tippins Chosen As May Queen

Mary Tippins, accompanied by her maid of honor, Rose Watkins, was crowned Queen of May Saturday night at the annual May Day Dance sponsored by the senior class.

Other representatives of the Queen's Court leading the royal procession were: freshmen, Sue Chance and Ramona Wall; sophomores, Martha Brantley and Ann Fulmer; juniors, Diana Bair and Uldine Shumann; and seniors, Janis Miller and Ruth Bennet.

Immediately following the coronation, entertainment was provided by Jan Futch, Bobby Godwin and Danny and Kitty Kelly.

Ralph Walton, president of the senior class, wishes to thank Diana Bair, Bob Byrd, Fred Fagnant, and others who helped decorate for the dance.

The crown was presented by president Ralph Walton, and roses were presented by Bob Byrd.

'Dixie Frolics' Beauty Pageant Entered by Bair

Diana Bair, "Miss TC of 1955," will represent Georgia Teachers College in a statewide beauty contest, the "Dixie Frolics," at Daytona Beach July 4. During the pageant a queen, "Miss Dixie, Queen of the South," will be crowned.

All contestants in the contest must have won a previous beauty contest, or at least have been a runner-up in one. Diana's name was first submitted to the chairmen for the event, along with the letter of recommendation, without her knowledge. The entries committee then sent her a formal invitation to enter.

Winner of the contest will receive, in addition to the crown, a $1,000 scholarship to any col-

Honorary Education Frat To Holds Installation Sat.

Kappa Phi Kappa, new honorary education fraternity for men, will hold its installation banquet tomorrow night, May 11, at Mrs. Bryant's Kitchen. A group from Atlanta will conduct the installation ceremonies.

The fraternity is one of the new organizations that has been formed on campus this quarter. The purpose of the club is to select outstanding young men in the field of education and using these men to further interest in this expanding field. According to a spokesman for the organization the club will be ready to begin a full program next year. Already many ideas have been discussed as possible club projects.

Dean Paul aCroll and Parish Blitch, assistant professor of business education, will act as advisors for the group. Charter members that will be installed tomorrow night are Bob Byrd, Bernie Palmer, Harry Cowart, Emory Giles, Tom Bryson, Peter O'Millian, Bob Mitchell, James Johnston, Solon Wishan, Charles Musselwhite, James "Snappy" Brown and Jacob Carlton.

Smead Awards Watkins Prize For Leadership

Rose Watkins has been chosen by the GTC division of business education to receive the UBEA Smead Award for outstanding achievement in business education.

The recognition, bestowed by the Smead Manufacturing Company of Hastings, Minnesota, includes a certificate and a year's subscription to the "Business Education Forum," plus a bound leather volume of the past year's copies of the magazine with her name on the outside.

The company, a manufacturer of office equipment, originated the award to give recognition to students who were most outstanding in leadership, scholarship, and general excellence throughout their college career in business.

Cowart Gets First Art Award

Mrs. Peggy Cowart has every right to be a happy girl, having been awarded the first annual Alpha Rho Tau art scholarship at the Honors Day Program last Monday. The scholarship provides tuition for the coming year to a freshman majoring in art education. Peggy, as she is popularly known to all students on campus, was thrilled about receiving the award. "I couldn't believe it at first," she said, "but I'm mighty happy about it!"

A native of Camilla, Peggy utilized her artistic talent in many ways throughout her high school career. "I never was very interested in drawing and art until I entered high school, but then I began to enjoy that sort

MARDI GRAS DANCE

"Come to the Mardi Gras," will be the theme of the dance sponsored by Alpha Rho Tau Saturday, May 11, at 8:15 p. m. in Cone Hall Recreation Lounge. The dance will be an informal record dance.

Committee chairmen in charge of the dance are: Decorations, Charlie Harper; refreshments, Shirley Gann; music, Fred Fagnant.

Concert Band Returns Home

The GTC concert band returns from its annual spring tour tonight after a three-day jaunt that included a record number of concerts for that length of time.

Rather than feature just one or two major soloists this year, the program was geared to bring out the best talents in some eleven band members during the program.

The program included "The Southern Four," by Louis Palange, which featured a dixieland combo made up of Jack Willis, trumpet; Ralph Bailey, sax; James Jones, trombone; Bobby Godwin, clarinet; Jimmy Tidwell, drums; and Earl Smith, string bass. Also scheduled were two selections from "Kiddie Ballet," by Ralph Hermann, which featured Tommy Singletary, trumpet and Earl Smith, clarinet.

Adding a Spanish flavor to the air were four numbers from "Impressions of Seville," by Harry Simeone. A singing trio took the spotlight here, including Cecile Woodard, Shirley Jones and Kitty Kelly.

A novelty number telling the story of a Peck-horn player was given during the tour. This was "The Peck-Horn's Revenge," with David Powers serving as narrator.

The 50-piece outfit's tour covered south Georgia towns including Hazelhurst, Douglas,

Freeman Directs Labjoy Review

Today's television program, the final one in this year's series, features the Marvin Pittman School's out-door education program at Camp Labjoy. The 30-minute program was scheduled at 2:30 p. m. on WTOC-TV channel 11 from Savannah.

Miss Bertha Freeman, of the education faculty, directed the program. J. A. Pafford, principal of Marvin Pittman School, Miss Marjorie Crouch, Pittman teacher, and Ina Jones, Janis Miller, and Wendell Marsh, student teachers and camp counselors, were to appear on the program evaluating the Pittman Camp Labjoy experiences. The seventh and eighth grades at Pittman spent last week at Camp Labjoy, about 10 miles west of Claxton.

Players Install New Officers, Hold Banquet

Harris West, Poulon, freshman, was elected president of Masquers for the school year of 1957-58, succeeding Diana Bair, who will take over the office of parliamentarian. The other officers at the meeting May 6 were vice president, Bill Sanders; secretary, Ellen Sumner; treasurer, Ann Waters; and historian, Molly Williams.

At the meeting, Miss Dorothy Few, assistant professor of speech, acknowledged some of the many contributions put into the production of "The Tea-house of the August Moon."

The award for the best acting of the year will be announced at a banquet at the Oglethorpe Hotel, Wilmington Island, Friday, May 24, at which time four backstage awards will be given also. Following the banquet, Masquers will spend a weekend house party at Savannah Beach.

Officers chosen for Alpha Phi Omega, National Honorary Dramatic Fraternity, were president, Bill Sanders and secretary or stage manager, Molly Williams.

Blackshear, Valdosta, Quitman, Tifton and Cordele. It was the group's latest chance to show off their new uniforms, and was a highlight of the work done by the band during the year.

Upon completing college, she plans to teach art and later to enter the field of designing. "I'll also try to devote some time to cooking for my constantly-starved husband and perhaps some day manage to have a few 'little artists' running around!" Peg laughingly added.

This talented young lady is an example of what a freshman can do for campus life at GTC. She will certainly make her mark in the field of art during the coming years.

Pools and Rules

Last week from the Division of Health and Physical Education, there was handed down a set of rules regarding the use of the swimming pool here on campus. These rules, contrary to the beliefs of many, were set by the department with the thought in mind to make the swimming pool a place of safe relaxation and recreation. These rules were not written to be broken as many people seem to think.

The first two rules concern items that were suggested as rules for keeping the pool clean for swimming. The other rules, listed in last week's George-Anne, concern those things that tend to make the pool safer.

Special life guards are provided for the safety of all pool patrons, and their job is strictly to safeguard the well being of those people who choose the water sport here. These guards are not special attractions as would be listed at the local theaters, and should not be distracted from their work as long as they are on duty. No doubt, those persons who are serving as guards are very friendly persons, that is one reason why they were chosen, but still this doesn't call for relaxed interpretation of the rules to the point that anyone, who wishes to debate or even to indulge in a slight amount of social conversation, can dominate the working day of the life guard by keeping him from his duties while others are depending on him to keep a close watch on their lives.

The George-Anne urges each of you to watch closely these rules, obey them at all times, so that if there should ever come an emergency the life guards will be in a responsible frame of mind to react to the situation; it may save a life. Maybe, even your own.

Cuss and Discuss

This year, there has been a good bit of discussion over the fact that very few people other than those who are participating actively are attending the intramural softball games each afternoon.

In order to have good attendance, there must be a definite drawing card for the games. On campus though, rather than a drawing card, there seems to be an element existing that is slowly but surely causing a lag in attendance at these matinee contests. This element is none other than the way the ball players use their knowledge of obscene language. The other afternoon, a young lady was overheard to say, "I almost didn't come down here, because the language is terrible."

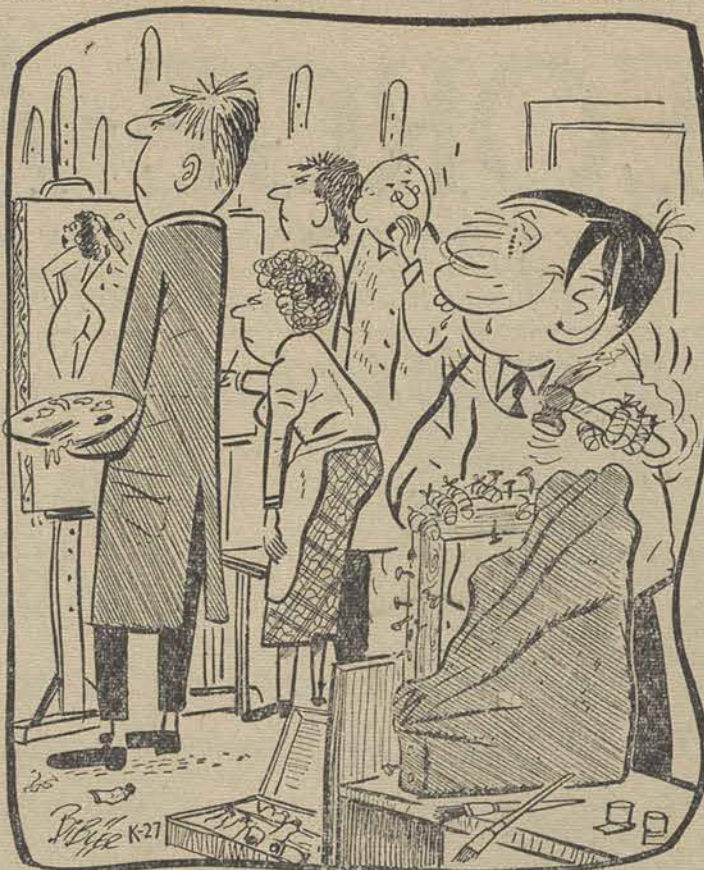

There is more to this than meets the eye, for it goes further than skin deep. Bad language results from a bad attitude, which in turn results in a lack of respect for those people around you. There seems to be in these friendly competitive contests, the attitude that if anything goes wrong, that everyone is against you, and the only thing that will heal the resulting wound is a string of vain and profane words measuring several feet and five minutes long. This is not only disrespect for those who are playing with you, but very often, even when ladies are in attendance, a person will very boldly and in bad taste shout the name of our Lord in vain. This carries the affair into a disrespect for Christianity, or any other religion that worships the Lord. This also tells those people who have to sit and hear in that those persons who use such language are illiterate and that they cannot think of any respectable adjectives to use in describing the rather irritating situation. It seems a shame that any person the age of college students is so limited in their command of the English language.

A suggested remedy for this grave situation would be for a mass enrollment of the freshman English courses to take place, or, for a complete change from the literature written by Spillane to that written by Webster, namely the DICTIONARY.

Take this, mull over it; think out the situation, and when you wonder that there is not more attendance at the games, consider those words you said that may have embarrassed someone. The only way to get the crowd is for no profanity to be allowed.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Eibler

Dear Editor: I was at the last home baseball game last Tuesday afternoon, and was pleased to see that the senior baseballers were being honored by the school. I have always been partial to baseball over all other sports, so I am prejudiced to a degree. I have been jealous before, to see the basketball players honored, and have to sit by and see the baseballers play their heart out merely for statistics and dear old GTC.

While on the subject of sports, here are some questions I would like to ask. First, why isn't there a sportsmanship trophy given to the outstanding sport among varsity participants.

There are many of the varsity athletes whom I think are outstanding in sportsmanship and I think that the one considered outstanding or the many considered outstanding should get some special recognition.

Well, Mr. Editor, I suppose I have said enough, and I really do think that GTC is tops as far as students and sports are concerned.

—JOHN L. DAVIS JR.

Dear Editor:

I could not help but become interested in the series of articles you ran on campus improvements especially those pertaining to the stink on front campus, and the ragged looking fence down there. I agreed with you wholeheartedly, and was pleasantly surprised to see the school react to the situation so promptly.

With the left side of front campus looking as pretty and neat as right, minus the stink of course, the campus here will be prettier than any of the other state schools.

Elaborate hedges and formal gardens don't make a campus beautiful, it is the natural look of the tall majestic pines and strong proud pecans that gives the campus the friendly look.

Congratulations, keep up the good work that is traditional with The George-Anne.

Hyde and Seek

By LARRY HYDE

Now that spring is here, there is hardly a day passes that you won't find the Tennis Courts full with students playing tennis.

Tennis is a wonderful game for both sexes. You have a chance to get plenty of exercise and sunshine at the same time. It is a great shame that our tennis courts cannot be cleaned off to prevent falling down and cutting yourself on the asphalt. There have been many students who carried "strawberries" on their leg or arm due to the sand that is on the courts. This could be avoided if some administrative official would issue a request for the courts to be cleaned. How about it?

That must have been some dance last Saturday night. Since there were only twelve couples, I'm sure they didn't find the floor crowded. I understand the senior class put forth much effort in preparing for this dance. Since attendance was very poor, this makes me wonder if it is a good idea to have a formal dance during spring quarter. Most of the students either go home or go to the beach for the weekend. This is one problem, the social committee for next year could work on.

Last Tuesday, Senior Day was observed for senior members of the baseball team. This is the first time that members of the baseball squad have been honored in any form. As you know, there is a senior day for the basketball squad. I feel that since we have two major sports on campus, one deserves as much as the other. This event for the athletes is one small way of recognizing them for their outstanding contribution to Georgia Teachers College.

Another first for the baseball squad will be added this year in the form of a trophy for the player that has the highest batting average at the end of the season. In order for a player to receive this award, he must have gone to bat not less than fifty times during the course of the season.

The player will receive the individual trophy, and his name and batting average will be engraved on a plaque that will be in the Physical Education Building.

Talking about the plaque that is in the Physical Education Building; when are we going to get a trophy case to show off all those beautiful trophies that GTC's athletic team have won. If a trophy is worth winning, then it is worth being put before the public's eye. How about it?

That was a very smart move by President Henderson Monday in assembly when he introduced the guest speaker at the beginning of the program rather than waiting until the end.

I think Monday was a good example of what might happen if assembly were not mandatory. There were many empty seats.

Seek Hyde

Larry Hyde has begun campaigning for the presidency of the Student Council.

Not only has he started printing pamphlets and making personal contacts, but he has begun the actual poster-making and other publicity preparations involved in the annual elections held on this campus.

About a month ago when word finally leaked through to me that Larry Hyde was going to run for this office, I was amazed to the point of exclaiming aloud (in my usual uncouth manner):

"What! Not Larry Hyde—president of the...Impossible!"

It was not until a week ago, the words almost constricting my throat as I spoke them, that I asked Larry to let me come to the meeting at which he presented his platform for campaign.

Even then the general trend of my thoughts followed the line of most resistance to anything Larry Hyde might suggest.

Ever since my entrance to GTC, I had heard of the young man from Walhalla, S. C., from various sources. There was, however, something quite strange about the manner in which his name was uttered. Never did one person have the same opinion of him twice consecutively, and those opinions expressed were always contradictory to each other.

However, the idea of Larry as Student Council president gnawed at the back of my subconscious until I was forced to take it out and view it objectively. Some of my running stream of thought:

"Who could do a better job of leading the GTC students than someone whom they have been unconsciously following for some time? Whose ideas were most avidly awaited by students both male and female on a number of subjects? To whom did the faculty turn when they wanted to decipher the general tone of student opinion?"

Tuesday morning I attended Larry's political rally and listened to his ideas of a good Student Council, its duties and opportunities for service. He said that he nor any of his political cohorts will make any campaign promises of high-sounding, impossible projects for next year.

By this time, the answers to all my questions concerning a president converged on Larry and his platform.

My support will be behind him for the presidency because, as I see it, students of this college need strong leadership for the organization of a bigger student body than ever before at GTC.

Whom will you support?

Congratulations to Mary Tippins, our new Queen of May, and what a lovely queen, too! Mary was crowned at the annual May dance sponsored by the senior class Saturday night.

Fifteen Methodists attended the Spring Retreat at the Methodist Camp, Epworth-by-the-Sea this weekend. They reported that they had a wonderful time except for the fact that they had Baptist weather—it rained.

Eight Future teacher members left at 4:30 Friday morning to attend the annual State Convention in Atlanta. I was one of the early birds, but I must report that it was worth it because I won one of the door prizes given by Rich's Department Store that afternoon.

The Baptist Students were rained out of their beach party Saturday, but they are going to make another attempt and another trip is planned for May 18.

The Honors Day Program was most impressive and inspiring. After Dr. Robert E. Lee spoke about the pitfalls of being a "middle-roader" we recognized more than 50 students who were not content to be "just average" but were willing to go that extra mile. The students who neglected to go to this program missed an experience that might have added much to their lives. Somehow, I felt that those who didn't attend were some of the "middle roaders."

Many of the Education classes have been visiting camp Lab-joy to observe the activities of the seventh and eighth graders of Marvin Pittman School who are camping there this week. Dr. Bill Weaver is the Camp Director and many of the Student Teachers are counselors.

Tuesday one of the largest crowds was present to see GTC defeat Mercer 10-0 in the last home game of the season. We hate to think that it is the last game and we are really going to miss them.

The brisk spring weather and the "pop concerts" seem to go together, is the opinion of all who attended the concert last Tuesday afternoon. James Jones and Stanley Brobston were directors of the band in this last concert.

Ruth Bennett was given a kitchen shower Tuesday night in Lewis Hall by Pat Harkleroad and Avonell Morris. Ruth and Dave Edmond are planning a wedding in June.

Although many students will go home for Mother's Day weekend, the Art Club is planning a dance Saturday night in the Cone Hall Recreation Room. If you're here, drop in.

lege in Dixie, or a savings bond to that amount if she so desires. Jewelry, wearing apparel and other prizes will also be given.

An entry fee of $25 plus $25 for transportation is being paid by the GTC Student Council. All other expenses during her stay will be born by the Daytona Beach Jaycees.

Festivities surrounding the contest will run for six days, and will include such things as a "Little Miss Dixie" contest, boat races, ski shows, sports events, band concerts, fireworks, and a parade.

Students Cited For Qualities On Honors Day

Sixty-one GTC students were cited for outstanding scholastic and leadership achievements here Monday, May 3. Also on the program, the Honors Day audience heard Dr. R. E. Lee warn against "the pitfalls of moderation" and of being a "Middle of the Road."

Eleven special awards were presented, fifteen leadership and service citations were made, and thirty-five scholastic achievement awards were given. Dr. Lee, president of Georgia State College for Women made the principal address. Joyce Ryan also added to the program with a special song.

The eleven special awards included the following: Britt Faysoux, former editor of the George-Anne walked off with the Bulloch Herald Journalism Award, while Ralph Walton took the James Allen Bunce Essay award for his paper, "From Men to Measures to Nullification in Georgia."

The Alpha Psi Omega award for drama was won by Diana Bair, who is president of Masquers and who recently starred in "Teahouse of the August Moon." Beverly Perkins took the Home Economics cup for her outstanding work in that field. Helen Tanner was the freshman representative in the special awards group, winning the Kappa Delta Pi award for outstanding freshman scholastic achievement.

Also in the line-up, Peggy Cowart took the Alpha Rho Tau art scholarship, the first of its kind to be presented at this school. The Statesboro Music Club Award went to Maralon Westbrook for her contributions in that field. German Awards, another "first on this campus, were made in the form of selected books in German sent by the German Consul in Atlanta. These were presented to Bob Allen, Curt Walker, and Dewayne Dutton. Dutton also topped this school's scholastic list with the sole six point average this year.

In his address, "The Middle of the Road," Dr. Lee spoke of the current vogue of "moderation in everything," and pointed out its main pitfalls as seeing to little, feeling to little, and doing too little.

"Some people," he stated,

Home Ec. Class Presents Luau In Tropic Style

One of the most outstanding occasions of the meal-planning class in Home Economics this quarter was Hawaiian Luau given by Joan Sharpe, Tuesday evening, May 7. This social was given in honor of the senior club members. There were 27 guests invited and Dr. Fielding Russell was the after-dinner speaker.

The meal was served outdoors on the lawn of the Home Management House. The guests were seated on pillows at small, knee-high tables. A background of palms, palmettas, magnolia leaves and tropical fruits enriched the Hawaiian atmosphere.

Carolyn Miller and Jean Fulford played soft Hawaiian music on ukeleles while Suzanne Futch danced the Hawaiian hula.

The meal consisted of a typical menu for the occasion; fruit cocktail, baked ham, candied yams, lima beans, and a pineapple sundae. Honolulu punch was served.

Those entertaining in the near future and their functions are: Alice Williams, formal dinner; Joyce Crosby, buffet supper;

"take the position that they want to see both sides before making a decision; however, the danger comes in the fact that the person may never choose. Fence straddlers," he said, "may find out in the end that they stand in with nobody."

Backing up his ideas with the Bible, he quoted a verse from Revelations which says, "Be ye hot or be ye cold, but be ye not lukewarm." Dr. Lee mentioned that the word "lukewarm" appears only once in the Bible, and then as something to be avoided.

Here Comes the Straight Scoop About 'It,' Alias One Kirkland

By JANE JACKSON

My roommate had just come in from the movie and was telling me how good it was, when all of a sudden we heard a delicate, faint knock on the door. (A knock on the door is most unusual in West Hall, but, if the person about to enter happens to be polite enough to knock, the door usually quivers from the impact of the blow.)

I said "Come in," naturally and slowly the door opened and there stood??? Well, "IT" had blond hair, and wore glasses. "IT" had on a white blouse and an orange skirt, the back of which was black. "ITS" hands and arms were black to the elbow and "ITS" legs were black to the knees.

Both my roommate and I stood, staring in amazement, when we recognized "IT" to be Joyce Kirkland!

Here's what happened! Our editor had sent Joyce to our room to get my feature story, which was a day late, so the dummy for the paper could be completed. Eager to do her job well and speed the output of The George-Anne, Joyce ran around the dimly lit path from the Public Relations Office to the dorm. Evidently she forgot that Mrs. Jackson had just had four huge piles of good fertile soil from the bottom of the lake piled around the flower beds, because Joyce ran into it, with full force and mired up to her knees. This startled her, and she jumped sideways in order to keep from falling on her face. This wise move kept her face clean, but she lost her balance and fell backward. Trying frantically to keep from falling flat, she caught on her hands, miring up to her elbows and sat down in the mire. The posterior region of her skirt was willed with mud. "IT" was a pitiful sight to behold.

After a good hot bath and a thorough washing of clothes and shoes, our roving reporter and news editor, redressed, this time in peddle pushers and sneakers, and walked slowly back to the office, WITHOUT the sought feature.

Just Frank About SPORTS

By FRANK TURNER
SPORTS EDITOR

Coaches Searce and Clements tell me that the chances of the Profs being selected for the NCAA Tournament depend on the strength of the schedule they have played, pitching and hitting strength, and overall balance as compared to all of the other teams at large of which (including the Profs) only one team will be selected. These teams at large are GTC, University of Miami, Stetson, Rollins, FSU, Loyola of the South, Spring Hill, Centenary, and all teams of the Ohio Valley Conference. It looks like FSU is the biggest obstacle in our path. We'll know around May 21 or 22 whether or not we made it.

George Morrell, the Profs left fielder, has an eight-game hitting streak going. He's also leading the club in batting with .333 followed by Skeeter Griffin with .310.

A batting trophy will be given to the team champ at the end of the season.

Tennis seems to be very popular around GTC, and its popularity should warrant some clean courts to play on. I've heard complaints about trashy courts from some players.

On the subject of tennis I hear also that there is the prospect of eight new courts being built next to the Physical Education Building for use next year. This will save many of the male racketeers from journeying to the other side of the campus and back every time they wish to play tennis.

The Profs split a two-game road series with Stetson in DeLand, Fla. last week and swept a doubleheader from Erskine in Due West, S. C. last Monday.

In the first game 6-2 victory over Erskine last Monday, Vondall Hall set down the opponents on four hits. His season record is now 4-2.

Bo Warren led the hit parade with three for three. George Morrell and Ralph Turner each had two for three.

Rebels, Colts Take Softball Lead With Tigers, Rams Closing In

All eyes are turned toward the finals of softball, tennis, and badminton, in the rapidly closing intramural season.

In a few days, an All-Intramural champion will be chosen to receive the first All-Intramural trophy in the history of the school. Going into this quarter, point getters were close with the of-campus Eagles leading the league, with the Cardinals, Wildcats, and Black Stallions following close behind in that order. All of this in Men's play.

In Women's play, the two teams from Lewis hall are fighting it out trying to determine their championship.

In Women's softball this week, the Rebels beat the Rockets 8-7, the Toppers topped the Blue Jays 29-4, and the Tigers were awarded two by forfeit, the first by the Rebels, and the second by the Redwings.

In Men's softball play this week, the Colts displaced the Wildcats 5-4, the Wildcats defeated the Rams 17-7, the Eagles beat the Stallions 9-4, the Rams took the Clodhoppers 11-2, the Eagles slipped by the Flyers 10-9, the Rams edged the Eagles 6-4, the Colts outscored the Clodhoppers 15-12, the Cardinals thrashed the Wildcats 12-6, and the Stallions beat the Colts 8-3.

White Chosen For Mound Duty

The Professors close out their regular season with the Mercer University Bears next Tuesday in Macon. The two teams' rivalry dates back to 1947 with each team having won nine of the 18-game series. The Profs just evened the series last Tuesday with their 10-0 victory.

Mercer Coach Claude Smith's probable starting line-up is as follows: Jack Ford leading off, playing left field; Bill Lee batting second, playing second base; Melvin Kinslow, third, catching; Jim Hannah, clean-up, playing third base; Sammy Leson, fifth, at shortstop; Doug Harris, sixth, at first base; Larry Painter, seventh, in centerfield; Dean Crane, eighth, in right-field; and ninth, Frank Worthy, again the probable starting pitcher with a 4-4 record through last Tuesday.

For the Profs, Coach Clements is sticking with the same line-up and Jimmy White with a record of 4-3 will be on the mound trying to keep the Profs atop the .667 mark. They carry a 16-8 slate into this final game and can't afford to drop another one what with a chance at the NCAA Tournament staring them in the face.
