Coach Searce

Coach Searce Begins 11th Year As Head Coach

A native of Kentucky, born at Frankfort April 10, 1914, Coach James Boyd Searce Jr., is beginning his eleventh year as athletic director and head basketball coach at GTC. As a member of the Eastern Kentucky State College quintet, 1934-1936, he was the smallest basketball player in the South. He received his B.S. degree there in 1936 and began his coaching career the next year at Jenkins (Ky.) High School. The following year he moved to Georgia as physical education and athletic director at Norman College.

In 1941 he was appointed head coach and athletic director at North Georgia College, where he remained until he entered the Navy as ensign in 1944. Following his discharge from service in 1946, "J. B." went to Cumberland College as athletic director and coach. That year his Cumberland team won the southeastern junior college tournament at Milledgeville, Georgia.

Coach Searce came to G.T.C. in 1947, after receiving his M.A. degree at Eastern Kentucky. As chairman of the division of health and physical education, he has raised it up to the status of a major sequence in the college curriculum.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE December 13-18, 1957

The place of the examination is the regular meeting place of the class unless otherwise announced by the instructor.

Friday, Dec. 13—2:30, all 2:30 classes.

Monday, Dec. 16—8:00, all 8 o'clock classes; 10:30, psychology 201 and art 100; 1:30, all 9 o'clock classes, and 3:30 education 205 (Watson).

Tuesday, Dec. 17—8:00, all 10:30 o'clock classes; 10:30, history 102 (all sections) and biology 306 (Boole); 1:30, all 11:30 o'clock classes, and 3:30, English 102 (Johnson) and speech 201 (Farries).

Wednesday, Dec. 18—8:00, all 12:30 o'clock classes, and 10:30, all 1:30 o'clock classes.

No changes in the schedule may be made without the approval of the Dean.

Friday, Dec. 13, classes will meet as usual until 1:30.

Registration for the winter quarter will be held in the old gym on January 2 from 10 to 12 o'clock and from 2 to 4:30.

Pre-registration will not be held this quarter.

Will Play Rollins, Stetson and Mercer Professors Will Open 1957-58 Season With Three Road Games This Week

A rebuilding Georgia Teachers College Professor basketball team will open their 1957-58 season with three road games in four days over the coming weekend.

G.T.C. will play Rollins at Winter Park, Fla. on Friday, December 6; Stetson at Deland, Fla. on Saturday, Dec. 7; and Mercer at Macon on Monday, Dec. 9. The first home game will come against Johnny Renfro's Pikeville-College team on Wednesday, Dec. 11.

One Returning Regular

Old man graduation has removed the last of the starters who made it to the second round of the NAIA tournament at Kansas City two years ago. Only four lettermen return and only one was a fulltime regular last year.

Chester Curry, the bombsight sump shooter from Wheelwright, Kentucky, is the returning starter. The 6-2 sophomore counted 351 points last year for a new GTC freshman record, or 13 more points than Chester Webb scored as a freshman in 1953.

Ronnie Rush, the 6-6 center captain-elect from Savannah, shared the pivot post with two others last year, and in his previous lettering year ran second strong to Webb.

Other monogram winners are Walker Cook, Pineview forward, and Bob Belton, Eustis, Florida, forward. Belton earned his letter two years ago.

Tougher Schedule

A tougher schedule makes it highly unlikely that Coach J. B. Searce's squad will equal last year's record of 18 wins and seven losses. The slate calls for 14 of the 26 games to be played on the road, and road games are always tough to win. Last year's team has a 14-1 record at home, but could win but four of 10 away from home.

Two newcomers to the squad are currently holding down first string berths following a month and a half of practice. They are Don (Whitey) Verstraete, a Moline, Ill. sophomore transfer from the University of Iowa, and Cary Moore, LaCenter, Ky., junior transfer from Mercer.

Verstraete, a 6-3 left-handed forward, made every Illinois all-state team in 1955. Moore, as a sophomore at Mercer two years ago, scored 27 and 26 points in two games against GTC, and when he indicated his intentions to transfer to GTC after Mercer dropped their physical education major, Coach Searce was particularly receptive.

Starting Five

The probable starting five of 6-2 Belton, 6-3 Verstraete, 6-6 Rush, 6-2 Moore, and 6-2 Curry averages 6-3, or about the average of college teams today.

Others in the reserve picture beside Cook are LeWayne Anderson and Joe Waters, Statesboro; John Akins, Portal; Bill Criscillis, Loyall, Ky.; George McLeod, Reidsville; and Carl Peaster, Montezuma.

Coach Searce has been looking for a long time for a Bulloch County boy capable of playing college basketball, and this year he's hit the jackpot.

Bulloch Comes Through

Waters, at 6-7, the tallest boy on the squad, will understudy Rush at center. Anderson has been looking like the third guard, and Akins, a little red-headed ball of fire from last year's class C state runner-ups, is the class of the freshman varsity members.

This season marks the 11th for Coach Searce at GTC, which makes him the dean of Georgia college coaches.

His Professors have won 200 and lost 65 over that span for a 72 per cent winning record.

STUDENTS CAN OBTAIN TICKETS FOR MERCER BUS

Plans are being made to secure three buses to make the trip to Mercer this Monday night for the GTC-Mercer game. The Presbyterian Church bus has already been obtained, but the other two are not certain. Tickets for transportation on one of the buses may be purchased in the ad building the following days: Friday, 4 to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 11 to 12 a. m., and Monday, 10:30 to 11 a. m. The price for a ticket will be 75cents. Women students will have to have permission from the Dean of Women. Chaperones for the buses will be Miss Shealy, Miss Bell, Miss Stephans, and Miss Taylor. Girls must return by bus.

This Studebaker sedan, driven by Kay McCormick, and a Nash Rambler, driven by Bill Vandarford, a Statesboro High student, were involved in a head-on collision in front of Sanford Hall before the Thanksgiving holidays.

Inter-Dormitory Council Set For GTC Campus On November 26

An Inter-Dormitory Council was officially formed for the GTC campus on Tuesday night, November 26.

Fifteen Members

This new council of 15 members met in the dean of student's conference room with these purposes in mind:

1. To serve as a co-ordinating body for all phases of dormitory life.
2. To consider matters affecting physical and social welfare and mental health of dormitory residents.
3. To recommend to the proper authorities matters needing attention.
4. To discuss and resolve mutual problems of dormitory life.
5. To serve as a channel of communication between students and faculty in matters of mutual interest of welfare for the campus and community.
6. To establish codes of conduct and manners for campus life and activities.
7. To co-ordinate efforts of each dormitory in participation in such activities as Christmas, homecoming, etc.
8. To be aware at all times of the present regulations and the need for revision of these or the establishment of new ones.
9. To establish a judicial committee—a sub-committee of the inter-dorm council—to review certain disciplinary cases in the dormitory and to make recommendations and/or take action.

The council consists of three members from each dormitory. These are the House Council presidents and vice presidents and a third member from each dormitory which was elected by the House Council.

Charter Members

The charter members of the Inter-Dormitory Council are:

Advisors

The Inter-Dormitory Council's advisors are Dean of Men, Ralph K. Tyson, and Dean of Women, Helen S. Duncan.

Dean Duncan and Dean Tyson worked with the presidents and vice presidents from each dormitory for two weeks before the council was officially organized, setting up the standards for it to follow.

As soon as members at large from each dormitory were elected by the house councils the new council held its first official organized meeting.

Upon organization a chairman, and a secretary were elected from the group.

Herbert Houston was chosen chairman of the council, Ramona Wall co-chairman, and Jane Jackson, secretary.

With chairman Houston presiding, a definite meeting time was arranged. The group voted to meet the first Tuesday in every month at 6:30 p. m. Other meetings may be called when necessary.

Two Problems

Two pressing problems the council dealt with were regulation of heat in dorms, and the age-old problem of poor telephone service.

Committees were appointed to investigate these situations and see if a possible solution for the problems could be found.

The heating committee consists of Ralph Turner, chairman; Barbara Mills and Gene Ragsdale.

Members of the telephone committee are:

Mary Carol Bowers, chairman; Vila Browne, Helen Tanner, Joan Lindsey, and Travis Doss.

Reports from these committees will be given at the next meeting.

This council does not in any way take the place of the Student Council, but will work side by side with it in setting campus standards and solving various problems.

Editorials

Center Line Would Help

A few days before Thanksgiving, there was a smashup between two cars on the front campus in front of Sanford Hall. The cars were going in opposite directions and met head on. Both cars were smashed up a bit, but luckily no one was injured.

For years the circle drive around the front campus was one way and there was no danger of such a collision. At that time parking was allowed on only one side of the street. Some months ago the street was widened, two-way traffic instigated, and parking allowed on both sides of the street. Measurements were made to make sure that the street was wide enough for two-way traffic with cars parked on both sides of the street.

But that does not eliminate the danger of a collision by two speeding cars meeting each other. The circle was designed to take care of two cars going a MODERATE speed. Two speeding cars will most surely crash.

There is no center line on the circle drive. One improvement that would probably assist drivers in staying on the right side of the road would be a center line.

Driving safely on campus is just as important as safe driving on the highway. So do your part.

King Basketball is Back

"Welcome back, King Basketball."

All over our campus, there is a boost of school spirit as the topic of basketball is discussed. It has been a long hard winter, shall we say, with only the spring and an excellent baseball season to look back on.

Our campus has been deprived of its number one sport for nine long months now, and a return is welcomed.

There is something about basketball that fascinates multitudes, which is shown in the fact that more persons see basketball each year than any other type athletic contest. This is certainly true here, as we see fans turn out in excellent fashion to watch the Professors each season.

Three things are said to be necessary for a good basketball team, and they are: adequate facilities, good personnel, and loyal supporters.

Georgia Teachers College can be proud of the facilities provided here, the "Professors" are a group not to be compared with any near by, and the fans, are a big question mark from year to year.

Take the question mark from the fan section, and turn out in mass to see the Professors in action.

Scientists Discuss Sputnik

Since the launching of the Russian satellites a few weeks ago, the world has been buzzing with opinions and speculations.

Ex-president Harry S. Truman stated:

"We had a terrific attack on the scientists of the United States who were working on the adaptation of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. These scientists were so much abused we lost a great many of them. They retired and went into schools and other places, and that is one of the main reasons why we are behind the Russians on this satellite proposition."

Harvey Stine, a rocket expert who works on the U. S. Missile program has said:

"We have known in the rocket business for a long time that the Russians were pretty sharp. We lost five years between 1945 and 1950 because nobody would listen to the rocket men. We have to catch up those five years fast or we're dead."

Dr. Wernher von Braun, an ex-German Rocket authority, now head of the Army missile program at Redstone Arsenal, had this to say:

"The main reason is that the United States had no ballistic missile program worth mentioning between 1945 and 1951. These six years, during which the Russians obviously laid the groundwork for their large rocket program, are irretrievably lost."

Arkansas Traveler Spoofs Timeluces

Editor's note: Some weeks ago Time Magazine did what we called a "Timelike job" on Orval Faubus, the Governor of Arkansas, a piece of writing that was so lacking in fairness and objectivity in placing the Governor in a bad light that it has produced a rash of satirical thrusts at the Luce publications. The following article, a "Timestyle" profile of publisher Luce and his wife, appeared in the Arkansas Traveler, a student daily of the University of Arkansas. It also appeared in the Greenville News, Greenville, South Carolina.

By BUDDY PORTIS

Everyone by now, I suppose, read the Time cover story on the strange case of Orval Faubus vs. the United States. If you haven't you ought to because it is a milestone in interpretive reporting. Orval is taken to task for being from Greasy Creek, among other things, and in a currently running story in Life, some of his relatives are shown who look amazingly like the Joad family. Let's take a look at Time, the Weekly News-Magazine:

Look at Time

Time editor is Henry Robinson Luce (rhymes with Beus), a man who goes to great lengths to avoid having his picture taken, possibly because he is ugly. He is perhaps best known by his skinny and snappish wife, Clare Boothe (rhymes with couth) a clever and opportunistic woman who married well. Henry is just one year short of 60 and although Clare refrains from divulging her date of birth in Who's Who, it is readily apparent that she is a close contemporary of hubby's.

Both Henry and Clare have led blameless lives insofar as milk-dribbling, gusty belching, and snuff-dipping are concerned. The recurrent story, however, that Henry Luce can walk on water like his friend Ike is without basis in fact.

Luce's magazines are house organs for the Republican party and bear such pretentious titles as Time, Life, and Fortune. For getting him elected president, Dwight Eisenhower rewarded Henry by sending Clare to Italy as ambassador. This was the big time for Clare, a woman whose delusions of greatness are paralleled only by those of Orval Faubus.

"Feminine As a Meat-Axe"

Sometimes she thinks she is being poisoned and she is continually going about posturing as a Great Lady in the Eleanor Roosevelt tradition. Unfortunately, no one has told her she is not in the same league. "She's about as feminine as a meat-axe," writer, Irvin Shaw has said of her.

Also in the Luce stable besides Time, the magazine for people who can't think, is Life, the magazine for people who can't read. Life is composed of picture stories(Clare Boothe Luce Goes Skin-Diving, Life Goes to a Lynching, etc.) which are interchangeable from year to year plus one compensatory page of type devoted to pious, turgid editorials which nobody reads.

Hoodlum and Huddled Masses

Time, the Weekly News-magazine, emanates from New York, a city just slightly dirtier than Yong-Dong-Po, Korea. New York, part Wall Street, part hoodlum, but mostly huddled masses, where people call each other "Daddy-O" and have the strange affliction of talking from the side of the mouth, is a state given to such place names as Bulkhead, Butts Corner, Chili Center, Coonsville, Elbow, Fink's Corner, Flatbush, Fruitland, Kabob, Neversink, Slab City, Throop, Tip Top, and Uneeda Rest.

Time, the Weekly News-magazine, is published near the banks of the beautiful East River, a stream shimmering with all the nameless putrescence and effluvium of a city of eight million persons.

Cry In the Night

There the night fog wisps early and the silence is broken only by the screaming of teenage gangs as they beat each other to death with short pieces of pipe or the occasional cry in the night of a man who has been hit full in the face with a little concentrated sulphuric acid.

A source not at all close to the President summed up the situation in New York this way: "The whole damned place ought to be plowed up and planted in turnip greens."

LETTER TO EDITOR

The Veterans Club wishes to express its appreciation to the judges who gave their time for the talent contest and also to all the wonderful acts participating in the show. Our only regret is that everyone could not win: all the talent was outstanding.

And too, we'd like to say we think we had the best audience in the world, you were really good to us, accepting the mistakes we made and the length of the show, with good grace. To all of you from all of us, thank you, and we'd like to have you with us in future Veterans Club productions.

The Innocent Years

The innocent years were only yesterday. That is the period in American history from the turn of the century to the beginning of the first great war. The years of Teddy Roosevelt and the tin lizzie. The years of comparative peace and quiet when picnics and a leisurely afternoon of boating were the vogue. There was no such thing as an atomic bomb, a guided missile, or a sputnik. Movies were a reality and the coming thing, but television was only a dream.

Lockridge's Philosopher Speaks

Ross Lockridge wrote a book entitled "Raintree County," which he had published in 1947 after seven years of arduous labor. The book was a smashing success, and Lockridge couldn't take it. He committed suicide. And America lost a great author. One of the most alive characters in a book full of alive characters is one Jerusalem Webster Stiles, eccentric teacher and philosopher. The professor made some pertinent observations on the past and the future—"Time was when a man's life had a kind of sweet vagueness. Back in the thirteenth century a man lived in the bosom of the ages, even if he couldn't flush the toilet. He never dreamed he wouldn't go on living, although of course it might be in Dante's Inferno. Since then we've come a long way...Man will conquer the air, too, in something faster than a balloon, and the earth will shrink. Nellie Bly's globe-circling antics will look pale by comparison. Jules Verne will be a quaint antiquity. Some day, no doubt, man will blow himself right up to the moon."

The professor made these observations on a hot summer afternoon in 1892. Now on a cold wintry day in December, 1957, these things, for the most part, have come to pass. We need only to "blow" ourselves to the moon to complete his prophesy.

Tranquilizers and H-Bombs

The innocent years, if they were innocent, are gone forever. The pressure is on. This is the era of High-pressure and tranquilizers, hydrogen bombs and possible world destruction. And Teddy Roosevelt would be as out of place in the White House as a tin lizzie in the modern-day garage.

If they could, the old-timers wouldn't trade today's brave new world for yesterday's innocent years, but it's nice to look back and remember a time when life wasn't so fast and nerves weren't so jangled. The innocent years were only yesterday—but they are gone forever.

Have You Ever Panicked?

You May on Final Exams

By IRMA ROACH

Well, the quarter is nearly over, finished, done for, wiped out, and you know that means finals are just around the proverbial corner. So let's take the straight and narrow path—no corners to turn, you know. But you may as well face it (you've no other choice, anyway) finals are a-comin'.

All quarter you've been expecting the end of the quarter to come around with finals, but somehow when it does come, you don't expect it.

For the past two or three months, you've been dragging yourself through class after weary class, occasionally scribbling down a few scraggy sentences for notes so the professor will think you're awake, then sticking them somewhere in that mass confusion of useless misinformation known as a notebook.

So the quarter rushes on, and one day you hear, through a fog of drowsiness, the professor saying something about a final exam. Your eyes bulge out, your throat becomes dry. Your third toe on the left foot begins to jerk. You can't breathe. Your breath comes in gasps and wheezes. Your heart stops beating. Rigor mortis sets in. You know, in one sickening moment, that this is PANIC!

You stagger back to your dormitory room after the bell finally rings, and in desperation, you sack the joint, looking for the conglomeration of data you stuck somewhere.

But even after a harem-scarem wild rewarding search, the notes you finally found don't do you an iota of good.

You see, they go something like this:

A. Crusades—battles fought in Old World. King John the Lion-Hearted—Frederick something from Germany. Most important battle of entire wars fought at (here you can't make out the work; there's a picture of your professor drawn there).

So you nearly go into hysterics; you can't think clearly, but suddenly the thought strikes you that your good friend has a nice little stock of history notes. So you bribe the good old guy into lending them to you.

But these, even, are useless. Seems this friend took short-hand and Latin along the way; you didn't.

So after hectic, hectic, hectic hours of cramming, cramming, CRAMMING, you walk into the room for your final test, rested, calm, and cool.

You receive the test paper, and with a confident feeling, you reach out and take it. You turn it over and glance down at the first page of questions. Your eyes bulge out, your throat becomes dry, your third toe on the left foot begins to jerk... PANIC!!!

Pres. Henderson Appoints Council

A Georgia Teachers College Graduate Council has been appointed by Dr. Zach S. Henderson, GTC president.

Members include Dean Paul F. Carroll, chairman; Dr. J. D. Park, education; Dr. Fielding D. Russell, languages; Mr. J. B. Scarce Jr., health and physical education; Mr. William S. Hanner, exact science; Dr. Jack N. Averitt, social science; Dr. Ronald J. Neil, music; and Dr. Donald F. Hackett, arts.

The council will study the problems and various aspects of the new program and make recommendations to President Henderson.

Graduate classwork will begin in June, 1958.

Campus Column

By JOYCE JACKSON

Now that Thanksgiving holidays are over and the Christmas holidays are almost here, it is suddenly dawning on some of us that term papers, book reports, observations and outside reading are almost due, so there is quite a hustle on campus trying to do the ten weeks work in two weeks. Good luck to you—I hope we all make it.

The operetta "Erminie" was presented Tuesday and Thursday nights and enjoyed by a number of the students. It was something different and quite an accomplishment for all those participating. If you did not attend, you missed a wonderful performance.

Plans for the Christmas formal are underway and the faculty members are hustling around putting their ideas into action. The theme this year will be "Golden Jubilee," which will be the beginning of the 50th anniversary celebration. So it is time you boys popped the question to that special girl that you've had your eye on all quarter. Ask her if she'll go to the Christmas formal with you.

If you have noticed an extra special glow in the speech room and around campus this week, it may have been due to the sparkling diamond on the third finger of Miss Dorothy Few's left hand. Her smile seems to be a little broader now. I wonder if it could be the fact that she will become Mrs. Lee at Christmas that put that special twinkle in her eye? The students wish you much happiness, Miss Few, for we feel you really deserve it.

The students are marriage minded as well as the faculty. Danice Hinson and Cary Moore are planning to be married right after this quarter is over. The 19th, to be exact.

Carolyn Moore is wearing a beautiful diamond given her by Garry Blocker. Earline Wilkerson is now Mrs. Skippy Sizemore, but is planning to continue her education here and see her new husband on weekends. Patsy Colvin, a 1957 graduate, is planning a Christmas wedding with Harold Brown, a brother of our own Ed Brown.

From marriage to engagements we now come to the milder forms of ramancing, that of going steady. I notice that Charlotte Owens is wearing the class ring of Franklin Pierce and Wanda Broome and Phillip Gresham are going steady.

Unis Abdulla, the student from Baghdad, who attended GTC last quarter, was on campus this week visiting Wallace Tanner. I hear he is planning to come back to school here next quarter.

There is great anticipation in the air while Joy Rogers awaits this weekend, when she will journey to ABAC to attend the Christmas formal with her fiancé, Clayton Garner.

The Home Ec. Club is sponsoring the dance Saturday night. The theme planned is "Winter Wonderland," and it should be great fun. Come on out and let's see.

HOME EC CLUB SPONSORS SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE

The Home Economics Club will be hostess at the dance on Saturday night of this week. The theme will be built around an old-fashioned Christmas, and the Combo will provide the music. All students are urged to attend.

DR. ROGERS' HISTORY CLASS VISITS EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Dr. George Arthur Rogers' advanced history 308 class is planning to attend the Episcopal Church December 8, 1957. This is one of the several churches that they planned to visit during the quarter. Their other visits to the different churches have broadened their knowledge of the different types of religions and how they worship.

Abstract Nativity Scene

Peggy Cowart's Design Chosen for Quarterly

By JANE JACKSON

"Oh I won, I won," Peg shouted as someone told her that her Christmas design had been picked for the cover of the Alumni Quarterly.

The 204 designing class was asked to visualize and design Christmas scenes from the geometric shapes and forms they had been drawing, and submit them to Joe Axelson, editor of the Alumni Quarterly, for judging.

A panel of nine judged the drawings and unanimously chose Peggy Cowart's as the best. The designs were judged for their representation of Christmas, neatness, and originality in design.

Peg's prize winner was an abstract design symbolizing the nativity scene with a group of angels built up from geometric shapes.

"Harry and I are going to use my design for Christmas cards since we will get the cut from the Quarterly," Peg said. The prize for having the best design was the cut for personalized cards.

Peggy's having the best design was really significant since she is the first person to win the scholarship for art education majors.

This scholarship pays Peg's full tuition. It is an annual award and only sophomores are eligible for application.

Peg is quite a versatile person, not only is she talented in art and active in the Art Club, serving as its secretary, but she also designs the costumes for Masquers, is sophomore women's Student Council representative, first vice president of Pi Beta Lambda, president of Y.W.A.'s and served as a student advisor the first week of school.

Eleven Tie in November 23 Contest; Parsons Winner for This Week

By BILLY JACKSON

Southeastern Conference teams are constantly disappointing student contest entries, as upsets bring about an unbalance in guessing skills. Very few people can guess an upset, as well as a tie ball game, therefore making it very difficult for any person to win the $10 cash prize from the contest.

The contest for the week of November 23 brought many cries of woe from local contest enthusiasts, as muddy fields throughout the nation caused a turn of the tables against perennial favorites.

In this contest, winning entries showed three games wrong out of eleven in the contest. Missing three were: Roger Parsons, Ann Bowen, Ralph Turner, Travis Doss, Curtis Browning, Don Avery, Don Crump, Carol Jones, Barnham Thomas, Norma Martin, Charles McLendon, and Winfred Bell. These twelve persons will receive forty-one cents each.

Sixteen Fall Short

Sixteen persons fell short with four incorrect guesses, fifteen with five wrong, four with six wrong, and three with seven wrong.

In this contest, the first tie of the year to be correctly chosen was the Georgia Tech-Florida, tie, and the lucky person was Norma Young. This entry receives no prize, but can be considered the George-Anne football contest entrant of the week.

Having been overcome with visions of Thanksgiving turkeys, and the necessity of giving the home team in most cases an edge in voting, many of our local contest entries were found wanting in the aftermath of another muddy afternoon of college football.

Bulldogs Beat Tech

And now the cries from many students are that Mississippi State had no right to tie Ole

Miss., that Virginia had no right to defeat North Carolina, and TCU had no right to plaster SMU, and that the Bulldogs from Athens had no authority in outplaying the Grant Field Engineers. Though you would not think so, each of these victorious elevens had a right to win in the fashion that they did. Though the game ended in a tie, Mississippi State Outclassed and outplayed the Rebels of Ole Miss. until the closing minutes of the game, thus giving them a victory by virtue of the experts picking Ole Miss by thirteen points. Virginia was just tired of losing, and didn't tell the Tarheels before the game began. Virginia's fast backfield was too much for Jim Tatum's crew on that muddy gridiron. TCU, always a threat to any of their opponents, proved to S.M.U. that though they lost their Jim Swink last year that football could still be played by the spirited Horned Toads. I don't know what to tell you concerning the Tech-Georgia game, though it was plain to see that the Bulldogs outdid the Jackets for the first time since 1948. This game each year is one that is always difficult to cite because either team whether favored or not is always victory minded.

Roger Parsons, teacher of physical education in the Marvin Pittman School, and former GTC basketball great, was the lone winner this week as he missed but two of the eleven games.

Eight persons missed three games, fourteen persons missed four games, twelve persons missed five games, two persons missed six games, and only one student missed seven games. Roger is entitled to the $5 cash prize for this week.

Since college football has ended except for the bowl and all-star contests, next week's contest will involve basketball.

THE GTC GYMNASIUM, constructed in 1954 at a cost of $325,000. This building replaced the too small alumni gymnasium used for many years by the "Professors." Outstanding features of the structure are the increased seating capacity, the fourway scoreboard, a wide area separating the playing floor from the stands, light movable stands, and glass backboards. Housing the division of health and physical education and office of athletic director, as well as classrooms and spacious dressing and locker rooms, this building is one of the most frequently visited buildings on campus.

Hugh's Who in SPORTS

By HUGH BELCHER

This is the final in a series of articles introducing this year's basketball team.

Our first profile is Carl Peaster, 6', 163-pounder and a junior hails from Montezuma, Georgia. Carl played four years of basketball and two years of track in high school. He was all-state his last three years.

Carl is a transfer from Georgia Southwestern where he played basketball in 1955-57. He is a physical education major, is married, and plans to teach and coach after graduation. Carl is one of the front line reserves and has shown up well in scrimmage sessions thus far this season.

Next is Lawayne Anderson, known to the students as "Porky." He is 6 ft., weighs 170 pounds, a senior, and is from Statesboro, Georgia. He is also a physical education major and was a member of the 1952-53 Professor club.

He played basketball at Nevils in 1948-50, then entered college at Brewton Parker for the 1950-51, 1951-52 season as guard on the Barons' club; before transferring to GTC. "Porky" made all-state in high school and all-state junior college. He is married and plans to coach after graduation.

Our third profile is John Akins, a 5-8, 159-pounder from Portal, Georgia. Akins played four years of basketball (guard) and baseball (catcher) in high school where he made all-state in 1955 and again in 1957. He was a member of the district champs in the same year. Akins is a freshman, majoring in physical education, and is the smallest man on the squad. His nickname is "Willie" and he is single. (So look out girls.)

Last but by no means least are the trainer and managers. This year's trainer is George Rahn, a senior from Springfield, Georgia. He played two years of baseball (catcher) for Coach Clements' nine and has been manager of the Professors' for three and one-half years and has done an outstanding job in this field.

Assisting George is Robert Gressette from Tifton, Georgia. Robert is a transfer from Abraham Baldwin and is a junior majoring in physical education.

The team manager is Ray Mims, freshman from Augusta, Georgia. He played two years of baseball at Richmond Academy. Ray was a pitcher on last year's baseball team. He is majoring in physical education also.

Coach J. B. Searce would like to remind the students who plan to attend the first two games before Christmas that they must have their I.D. cards in order to be admitted to the games.

QUARTER FINALS OF MEN'S INTRAMURALS

In the quarter finals of the men's intramural table tennis, Ray Davis, John Sommers, Preston Sizemore, and "Skeeter" Griffin were victorious over Briggs Tyler, John Clark, Robert Vaughn, and Richard Smith respectively. "Skeeter" Griffin defeated Preston Sizemore in one of the semi-final matches to put him in the finals with the winner of the Davis-Somers Match.

OPEN LETTER FROM MR. JESS WHITE

The attendance and participation at play-nite has certainly been a success. Approximately 100 men and women have been attending regularly. Next quarter remember play-nite and help to make it as successful as it has been thus far. Remember to bring a friend to play table tennis, shuffleboard, paddle tennis, badminton and volleyball. These activities are being offered for your enjoyment. Next quarter a number of physical education majors who have taken rhythms and gymnastics (physical education 341) will be available to teach ballroom dancing for those students who are interested.

9. Name the national basketball scoring champion of major colleges of the 1956-57 season.

Coach Clements

Coach Clements Assists Searce

One of the quietest men around the athletic office, yet one who has triple duties, is J. I. Clements Jr. He is the assistant basketball coach, the head baseball coach, and the athletic business manager. Coach Clements is a native of Ray City and is a former Georgia elementary school principal, teacher, and coach. He was an all-state basketball and baseball player under Coach Searce at Norman College in 1940-41. After serving in the army paratroopers from 1944-46, he completed his M.A. degree at Eastern Kentucky and followed his former coach to Georgia Teachers College to become baseball coach and assistant professor of health and physical education.

IM Semi-finals Are Underway

The semi-finals for women's paddle tennis and mixed doubles Shuffleboard, are now underway. The match between Lane Hartley and the Panthers and Louise Westbrook for the Tigers has already been played putting Louise in the finals. Mary Ann Gignilliat goes into the finals against Louise as a result of a forfeit in the semi-finals. One of the semi-final matches between Billy Jackson and Paula Jackson of the Cougars and Wyline Safely-Tommy O'Neal has already been completed. Jackson and Jackson will enter the finals. Benny Potts and Lane Hartley of the Panthers are to play Bobbie Butler and Robert Vaughn to decide the other half of the finals. Final results of the women's paddle tennis and mixed shuffleboard will be in next week's issue.

Profs to Face Pikesville Bears In Home Opener

The old coach versus pupil bromide will be dusted off again here next Wednesday night when Georgia Teachers College opposes the Pikeville College Bears in the home opener.

Pikesville is coached by John Renfro, a GTC graduate of 1951, and he played at GTC under the incumbent, J. B. Searce.

Winner of six of their first seven games this season, the Bears figure to be strong opposition for the Profs. The Bears have already played in and won a college tournament this season. They beat Alderson-Broadus, 96-74 and Beckley, 108-84 to win the interstate tournament at Logan, W. V. last week. Their only loss came at the hands of West Virginia Tech, 99-85. The Bears are averaging 102 points per game, and are led by the fabulous John Lee Butcher.

A 5-10 guard, Butcher bombarded the nets with his jump shot last season to the tune of 32.4 points per game, or 2.1 more points than Chester Webb averaged in his great season two years ago. This placed Butcher second among the nation's small college scorers. This season he has picked up just where he left off, averaging better than 30 a game for the first seven games. The probable starting lineups:

Pikeville
Smallwood, F, 6-4; Frazier, F, 6-2; L. Mullins, C, 6-7; Bevins, G, 5-10; and Butcher, G, 5-10.

GTC
Belton, F, 6-2; Verstraete, F, 6-3; Rush, C, 6-6; Moore, G, 6-2; and Curry, G, 6-2.
Game time, 8 p. m.

PEP CLUB PLANNED

There will be a meeting of all students interested in organizing a PEP club on campus immediately after assembly Monday in the auditorium. All interested students please plan to attend.

After many windy days of play, Billie Jean Barrow and Norman (Skeeter) Griffin emerge as tennis singles champions of GTC's intramurals.

After having to make a quick and low return to Kay Jones' fast and hard serve, Billie Jean took the match, 6-4, 7-5. It was close all the way with one game for Billie Jean and one for Kay but finally was decided by a two-game lead taken by Billie Jean.

Billie Jean is a business major from Cordele, Ga. She entered GTC last quarter and has not decided whether to go ahead for a full four-year course.

"Lions" Team
She is a member of the Lions team. Among her other activities besides intramurals, she is secretary of house council of West Hall and member of Pi Beta Lambda.

"Skeeter" Griffin met Gordon Stallings in the boys' finals to go three sets for the determination of the match winner. The scores were 6-0, 1-6, and 6-4. Gordon played a good defense but the strong forehand of "Skeeter" seemed to always put the ball in the right place.

Baseball Lettermen
"Skeeter" is a senior premed student from Augusta. After graduation he plans to attend Georgia Medical College in Augusta.

He lettered his first year in baseball where he has played second base for all four years. He played basketball during his freshman year, has participated in many intramural sports and is secretary-treasurer of the "T" Club. He plays for the Leopard team.

Runner-ups
Runner-up in the girls' finals was Kay Jones, a sophomore from Florida. Gordon Stallings, a sophomore from Cordele, Georgia was runner-up for boys. Kay was on the Bobcats' team, and Gordon played for the Tigers. Participants in the semi-finals were John Scarborough, Clyde Poppel, Ann Henry, and Judy McCloy.

All entrees participated well in the matches and we now have two champions to reign until next year's intramural matches.

Since Russia launched Sputnik I there has been a great deal of criticism of the American system of education. This criticism has come from top level scientists, defense department officials, educators, members of Congress, and other Sundry sources.

While it is true that Russia is producing more scientists and is leading in the ballistic-missile race, it must be remembered that her program to develop the missile was launched shortly after the end of World War II, whereas the U. S. program was not started until some time later.

Russia is producing scientists at a faster rate than has been realized, but in the words of one American scientist, "Russian education is, of course, deplorably utilitarian and authoritarian." On the surface it would appear that the educational needs of the Russians are predetermined by top level planners who then implement the plan by a process much similar to the use of the IBM machine—

Social Committee Gains Member

Phyllis Hall, newly elected freshman woman's Student Council representative, was appointed to serve on the campus social committee Monday night, November 25.

Aubrey Highsmith, chairman of the committee, reported that the entire social committee now consists of Peggy Cowart, Harry Cowart, Billy Jackson, Diana Bair, Vila Browne, Fred Fagnant, Bob Byrd, Franklin Pierce, Herbert Houston, Phyllis Hall and Jane Jackson.

Highsmith also reported that the tentative social calendar for the year has been mapped out, and that the club or group in charge of the particular social function will be notified two weeks in advance.

weed out and sort those candidates for higher education who are best suited. The talents of these people are then used to the best advantage by the state. Thus Russian education stems from the top level authorities of the state and work down. The purpose of these scientists is to produce, produce, produce. These people are like cogs in a vast machine. While it seems to be an effective system in terms of production, is it or would it be effective in the United States? Is it an effective, concrete way to handle the situation? Is Russia using her potential in the most mature fashion? Certainly not! She is one sided. Russia was a vast, unwieldy, awkward giant, who for centuries has been split by a desire to follow and be a part of the West, whereas much of her culture was oriental. Her economic, social, and political system prevented this Westernization for many years. This great time lag created a feeling of mass inferiority which she is now trying to overcome by massive material production to prove to the rest of the world that she too is strong. If you will she is like a child showing off her new toy—Sputnik—to the grown folks, or she might be compared to the tough little high school brat who, with a chip on the shoulder, flexes his muscles and dares anyone to knock off the chip. Is this maturity?

School Taxes Defeated

The means which she has used to accomplish the end are beside the point, for from what was practically in ruin, has become a very successful education system. As this is the case, the system which is now being employed in the U. S. must be revamped. Many American communities are now attempting this. Money is one of the basic problems, as it is necessary to build new physical plants and to pay for teachers' salaries, such as they are. Recently, the city of Savannah attempted to raise additional taxes for the support of education. The voters turned down the proposal. This indicates two things. First, it shows use of a popular means of solving problems rather than authoritarian. Call it what you will, but the people are using a democratic process to solve a problem. In this instance, the people were against this method of raising additional funds and not against the additional support of education. Second, tax structures should be revised. In this instance the property holders of Savannah refused to increase the tax burden for education. This indicates that a more equally proportionate structure of taxation is necessary. Those who receive, should make a direct contribution for services gained.

Serious Student

In addition to a need for more money for education, incentives must be provided for students to attain higher scholastic averages and more education (not degrees, but substance). Attitudes toward the professions should be changed for at the present time, the person involved in a serious course study is looked upon as a long hair or an egg head. Rather than ridicule the serious student, some merit should be awarded him according to his efforts and goals accomplished. In addition educational institutions should reconsider their plans and re-think their purpose. If universal education is the answer, then let's all go to college and have a ball. If a bona fied education is the goal, then let's build new science and class room buildings and uphold high academic standards rather than lower standards and place undue emphasis on the extracurricular activities which, if not properly balanced, tend to detract from the work at hand.

nine to sixteen years of age.

Boys Chorus is one of the many activities sponsored by the Tiger Athletic Club of Savannah. The Tiger Club is a private boys' club under the supervision of G. Fred Garis, director and founder of the club. This club is quite significant in that it is perhaps the only one of its kind in this part of the country.

The club offers the boys an outlet in football, bowling, and many other indoor and outdoor activities. The chorus plays a very important part in the life of the club in that it draws for its enrollment approximately sixty boys who work with the chorus. The chorus is under the direction of Thomas C. Anderson Jr. with Anthony Pappadakis and George Winders as pianists. The chorus has made many public appearances since its organization last winter. Among its appearances was that of a musical presented in April of last year.

The chorus touring program is underway for early in 1958 of which the GTC campus is at its head with the Christmas show scheduled for Thursday night.

The program will center around the old but favorite Christmas music. To add a variety to the program the chorus will feature piano solos, duo piano, vocal solos, dances, accordion duet, and a true Scotch boy in kilt and with bag pipes will play a medley of carols of Scotland.

Basketball Band Will Perform

On December 11, the GTC basketball band will present a pre-game show at the first game of the season. Cecil Woodard and Guy Thompson are in charge of the show. Cecile, a senior music major, is from Hazelhurst and has played alto saxophone in the GTC band for four years.

Guy, also a senior music major, is from Toombsboro and has played French horn in the band during his four years at GTC. Both Cecile and Guy are active in the various music organizations and activities. After graduation both are planning to become band directors.

During the basketball season, the basketball band will perform with pre-game and half-time shows and also play in the stands during the games. This band is composed of the instrumental music majors.
