Alumni Luncheon At Mrs. Bryant's Kitchen

Dr. Robert M. Strozier, newly inaugurated president of Florida State University, will deliver the convocation address commemorating the 50th anniversary of Georgia Teachers College, Friday, February 7, at 1:30 a. m. in McCroan Auditorium. The faculty will participate in an academic procession.

Formal invitations to state and school officials and former faculty members have been issued, and graduates, former G.T.C. students, and the public are cordially invited to attend.

Dr. Strozier came to Florida State after 12 years at the University of Chicago where he had been dean of students and professor of romance languages.

The 51-year-old educator, son of a Georgian who for 20 years around the turn of the century was president of South Georgia College, was born in the town of McRae on July 20, 1906.

Well Known in Georgia

Several members of the Strozier family, which is well known in Georgia, have been in education. His father, who died when the son was 11, had served as superintendent of schools at various Georgia places as well as serving as a college administrator.

At Emory his academic specialty was in language and he began a mastery of French. Later, early in the 30s, he studied at Sorbonne, and last spring he returned to Sorbonne, to deliver a series of lectures. He expects to offer a seminar of course here in Balzac or in 17th Century French drama in addition to performing his administrative duties. Dr. Strozier also has studied Spanish, German and Italian.

After getting his bachelor's degree in 1929 and his master's in 1930 he went on later to the University of Chicago where he got his Ph. D. in 1945. Meanwhile he had begun his professional career as professor of romance languages at Georgia

State College for Men at Tifton.

At West Georgia College

He was there from 1930 to 1933, when he went to West Georgia College at Carrollton for seven years as professor of French and dean of men. From 1940 to 1945 he was on the faculty of the University of Georgia as associate dean of students, associate professor of romance languages and director of the Army Specialized Training Program unit.

In May, 1945, he joined the University of Chicago faculty as associate director of the International House and in 1946 he became dean of students.

While there he became consultant to the State Department on education exchange of students, including the Fulbright program. He also became a member of the board of International House at Chicago and now serves as president of the International House Association.

At 1 p. m. a luncheon will be given by the city of Statesboro and Bulloch County at Mrs.

'Visions of Venus'

Alpha Rho Tau Has Unusual Revue Theme

On February 7, 1958, the Alpha Rho Tau will present an entirely different, intriguing Beauty Revue.

The theme of the twelfth annual Beauty Revue is to be called "Visions of Venus." There are three sets, which portray "Visions of Venus." As is suggested, the theme deals with outer space. The sets will be extremely unusual, very interesting and spectacular.

The lighting will be one of the most unusual and most beautiful attractions of the affair (besides the contestants).

Another feature of the Revue will be the presentation of the former Miss G.T.C.'s, who are being invited here as guests of the Alpha Rho Tau.

The Beauty Revue is going to be shorter this year than in previous presentations, with each contestant being allowed only one and one-half to two minutes on stage. With this shorter time limit, the Revue is expected to be much more interesting.

The producer of the Beauty Revue is Charlie Harper; the directors are Miss Freida Gernant and Martha Tinker.

Bill Sanders and Bob Spell are stage managers; the house manager is Cathy Simmons.

Peggy Cowart is chairman of decorations; Harry Cowart and Irma Roach are co-chairmen of programs. Linda Rowell is in charge of tickets, and Joe Brewer is in charge of flowers and gifts.

Verla Garrett is usher chairman, with Ric Mandes supplying the script. Billy Sanders will furnish the music, which will also be rather spectacular.

Rehearsals will begin on January 27, and the big event will begin at 8 p. m. February 7, 1958, in McCroan Auditorium.

Registration For Winter Quarter Shows Decrease

Enrollment figures released this week by Miss Viola Perry, registrar, show that there has been a decrease in the number of students this quarter, as compared with the all-time record of 914 fall quarter.

Eighty new students registered this quarter to not quite fill the vacancies left by fall quarter students lost by graduation, withdrawal, and scholastic deficiency.

There is a total of 876 students, including 455 men and 421 women.

A breakdown by classes shows 92 freshmen men, 123 women; 118 sophomore men, 106 women; 118 junior men, 98 women; 127 senior men, and 94 women.

Russell Is Optimistic; Field Not In Doldrums

"English teaching is not a dying art," says Dr. Fielding Russell, chairman of the division of languages at Georgia Teachers College.

Speaking with reference to statistics recently released by the Georgia State Department of Education which said that Georgia Teachers College graduated only four English teachers in 1957, Dr. Russell said, "I am certainly optimistic about the future of G.T.C.'s English division, and the success of our English teaching preparation program."

"During the current school year, there are 15 English majors doing their practice teaching, and in addition there are 54 more students enrolled who have specifically signified their intention to obtain their degrees with a major in English," added Dr. Russell.

"Potential English teachers have definitely not 'all but disappeared from Georgia Teachers College' as the article stated, and as a matter of fact we expect to maintain our post war average of about 15 graduates per year who plan to teach English in Georgia," he said. (See Joyce Kirkland's column on page two.)

MOVIE TONIGHT

"23 Paces to Baker Street," starring Van Johnson is the movie that will be shown in McCroan Auditorium Friday, January 17 at 7 o'clock. The movie has been filmed in cinemascope and technicolor. There will be no admission charge for students and faculty members.

From Florida University

Wallace Will Be Guest Speaker

Dr. H. K. Wallace, head of the Biology Department of the University of Florida, will be the guest speaker of the G.T.C. Science Club on Friday evening, January 24, at 7:30 p. m. in the audio visual room of the G.T.C. library. Dr. Wallace has been a member of the University faculty since 1932.

He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Florida in 1929, the master of science degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1932, and the doctor of philosophy from the University of Florida in 1938.

Dr. Wallace is president of the Association of Southern Biologists and is a member of Sigma Xi.

For four summers he worked

at the University of Virginia's biological station and he spent three summers at the Edwin S. George Reserve of the University of Michigan. While in these areas he collected and studied spiders.

His research is concerned mainly in the taxonomy, geographic and habitat distribution of two families of spiders: the wolf and jumping spiders. Dr. Wallace's collection contains between four and five hundred Kodachrome slides of spiders.

The meeting will be open and all students and faculty members are invited.

Dr. Wallace has a brother, Fred Wallace, who teaches in the G.T.C. science department. Mr. Wallace teaches biology and chemistry.

Editorials

Don't Cuss, Sit 'n' Stew

Sportsmanship! Innumerable articles, admonitions, and editorials have been written on this subject. Yet, bad conduct and vulgar language still persists in being noticed at some of our basketball games.

Few things reflect so unfavorably on an entire student body as the choice of words and behavior of a few. Cheering for the team is expected and natural and should be encouraged, and it is not difficult for enthusiasm at a game to get out of hand.

A visiting team isn't on the campus very long and often the only impression they have of the school is the one they form in the gym. Students owe the courtesy of being quiet as the members of the visiting team are introduced. Such a display of "boos" and "calls" as has been made in the past is completely uncalled for and is inexcusable.

It is not only the players on the court who have the responsibility of sportsmanlike conduct, but those on the sidelines as well. Those among the ones who aren't content just to cheer, should stop and consider how they look and sound to the others around them. When they realize just how others regard such a habit of childishness and poor conduct, it shouldn't be long before they learn to restrain themselves and enjoy the game in the best possible way.

Student Support?

Just before the Christmas holidays this paper praised the efforts of the F.B.L.A. Club in publishing a student directory. Several articles appeared in The George-Anne and an announcement was made in chapel giving details concerning the directory. In other words, ample publicity was awarded to the project.

However, the business club experienced what many other clubs have experienced in the past. No student support. Why? We wish we knew the answer. Maybe a firecracker should be set under the deadheads on campus.

Remember, this is your school, your activities, and most of all, part of your life. Wake up. Some students work hard to create convenience for you. Take advantage of them. You may find them pleasant.

If you failed to purchase a directory, there are many more available in the business building. The F.B.L.A. club will be glad to be of service to you.

False Alarm Fire

Last Sunday night a fire alarm was sounded in Cone Hall. This alarm was not part of a scheduled drill. It appears that someone spilled lighter fluid under the door of one of the rooms and ignited it. The occupant of the room promptly sounded the alarm. In our opinion, such pranks as these reflect poor judgement on the part of all concerned. A false fire alarm lessens the effectiveness of the alarm system. In the event of a real fire the personnel of the building might well consider it just another joke and not take action. This could result in loss of life. Such jokes as these should not be condoned, and steps should be taken to eliminate future occurrences of this sort.

Red Cross Comes to G.T.C.

For the first time the Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit the G.T.C. campus, under the auspices of the Student Council and the Interdormitory Council.

All of the students are urged to give to this worthy cause as they did to the Jaycees' drive for "Spirit of Christmas" toys.

After Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students, announced that the Bloodmobile would visit the campus, the Student Council deliberated for only a few minutes before deciding to make the donation as a group.

Won't you follow these students' example?

English Still Has Bright Outlook, Despite Article

Dr. F. D. Russell, head of the department of languages, came into his English 401 class on Tuesday of this week in a state of non compos mentis.

By straining every auditory nerve, the students on the front rows could decipher from the gibberish something like:

"Prospective English teachers all but disappeared from Georgia Teachers in 1957..."

The information that proved so upsetting to the English professor was discovered in the Sunday issue of the Savannah Morning News, furnished by the State Department of Education.

J. J. Medlin had reported that though Georgia Teachers College had, at least for the four years previous to 1957, supplied the state with more English teachers than any other teachers' college in the state, in 1957 only four received majors in English there.

The disconcerting point about the article, according to Dr. Russell, was the use of the past tense in the lead paragraph, "all but disappeared."

His statement, "I may be called pedantic in my objection, but such an assertion could lose English students for the school."

Giving statistics for the preceding graduating classes—23 English teachers in 1953, 26 in 1954, 13 in 1955, and 16 in 1956—made an alarming appearance.

However, the state department failed to release this year's statistics, which will be reassuring to anyone who has contracted insomnia since Sunday morning.

Fifteen students are practice teaching in English this year, and besides them, 54 undergraduates will major in English.

Night Firebug Upsets Cone Hall Equilibrium

About 11:30 Sunday night the weirdest sound man has yet devised jarred the men in Cone Hall out of their dreamy wanderings. It seems that some prankster with halitosis of intellect decided to have fun at the expense of his fellow inmates. This ingrate set a minor fire which caused a second-floor student to turn in the fire alarm.

Some men were groping in the dark for alarm clocks, others (how they did it I don't know) slept through it all, and some of our shell-shocked veterans dived for the closets.

When I looked in the hall, people were running and saying "What?", "Whom?", "When?", "Where?". Mrs. Hartley had obviously retired for the night because her hair had been put to bed with curlers. She threatened to deal with the culprit in a manner similar to Ilse Koch, the Witch of Buchenwald.

All in all it was something of a hilarious affair but a serious question remains. If it had been a major fire, how many Cone Hall residents would have been roasted like pigs on a spit?

Someone has suggested that the alarm may be set off every morning at 6:30 a. m. to announce breakfast but this does not seem to be the consensus of opinion as Mose does an excellent job.

Let us hope that these acts of vandalism will not be repeated again, at least not at midnight.

Iconoclasm in America

America has abounded with iconoclasts of all types. Probably the best remembered of them all was the terrible tongued Baltimorean H. L. Mencken, editor of the now defunct "Smart Set" and author of numerous books. Mencken was the epitome of pessimism.

But it was an honest pessimism. Old friend Ben Hecht best described it when he said, "No pessimism was ever more thorough and serene than Mencken's. His soul had made its peace early with the fact that the human race was a hopeless tangle of in-anities; and that the only good in life was the derision and laughter one could bring to it. There was no secret piety tucked away in this pessimism.

It was the pessimism of a surgeon with a steady hand who could not be seduced into admiring the disease he was attending—humanity."

But like most rebels and non-conformists Mencken softened toward the end. Just before his death Mencken's fanaticism was thoroughly toned down. Although he was still the iconoclast, his criticisms were tempered with old age and were not quite so stinging. He even insinuated that maybe "Babbit" wasn't so bad after all.

Mencken was probably the most famous American iconoclast, but there have been others. They were not as well known as Mencken, but were equally vitriolic.

The life of one of these little known debunkers of sacred institutions is recorded in a book just off the press entitled "Brann and the Iconoclast." It deals with the life of Texas editor, William Cowper Brann, and his short-lived, but long-remembered paper, "Iconoclast." The reviewer of the book for "Time" magazine called the "Iconoclast," "A Potpourri of flamboyant comment on all things, laced with spleen, belly laughs, erudition, ribaldry, and scorpion satire."

Often intemperate, rarely constructive, Brann could be—and was—accused of doing more harm than good."

After reading this description of the paper, it is no wonder to us that Brann was finally, after three years of publishing his paper, shot down on the main street of Waco, Texas, in broad daylight by an irate subscriber. The "Iconoclast" could easily be termed the height of irresponsible journalism.

Mencken was a little less volatile and a little luckier than Brann. He managed to die in bed without his boots on.

Columnist Recounts Life; Psychologists Stumped

For the benefit of my three most avid fans (names withheld because I haven't thought of any) who would like to know the story of my life, here is an account as told by the person who knows it best—me:

I was born—surprisingly enough, most people are—on November 4, 1940. (You may send all birthday cards and gifts as soon as you get them. My favorite color is green, thank you.)

The first two years of my life were spent with my parents trying to teach me to talk. They've spent the rest of it trying to shut me up. Finally, at the age of two and one-half, I said my first two words: ... censored ... because that's what Mother and Daddy said every time they looked at me. For the longest time, I thought it was my name.

At the age of four, I sneaked into school, and somehow or other, I got stuck there, since it was a small school. For the next several years I augmented my vocabulary, and put it into full-time use, because I flunked deportment every six weeks that came around.

As time wore on, I slowly changed from the sweet, innocent little child that I had been to the demented, miserable conglomeration of psychopathic humanity that I now am. Not that I'm an abnormal individual, but just that I suffer from 27 phobias, 99 complexes, and 43 obsessions.

In high school, I was like most other high school people: awkward, asinine; with a tendency to giggle, and with all the other traits that make up a high school person. I participated in the usual clubs and organizations, like the Ku Klux Klan, and such.

Then, after twelve hard laboring years which I shudder to think about at times, came graduation, and I was through, finished, done for, wiped out.

For years, I had wanted to go to G.S.C.W. to college, and indeed had nearly decided to take off to Milledgeville, but I changed my mind pronto for reasons which are obvious.

So now, after seventeen years of living, I'm here. Although I've often been accused of not being ALL HERE. Nevertheless, this is the "hearts and flowers" of my life, for those three fans. I know what triskaidekaphobia is. Do you?

Footprints

Walking on the lonely beach,
Along the stretching sand,
I wandered far, and lost my way,
And found no trace of man.
I wandered aimlessly about,
Not knowing where to go.
But then I saw the footprints,

And knew just where to go.
I followed them around the bend,
And I encountered there
A loving friend, with glowing heart,
Who took me in his care.

What is the greatest challenge to student teachers? How do they feel when they stand before their first class to teach?

Here are the answers given by students who are doing their student teaching this quarter at the Marvin Pittman School:

Dave Wilson — My greatest challenge was the first time my supervising teacher left me alone in the room and the class "Tried me out."

Jan Epps—My challenge has been to be a real help to the students.

Wylene Fowler—To get the students interested in social studies.

Marion Porter—How I could learn the students so that I may have a more personal contact with them.

Dorothy Doak — Finding different ways to get and hold their attention.

These, then, are some of the problems and challenges that face the student teachers. They are to be commended for doing their jobs as well as they are.

Language Minor Program Offered

G.T.C. has a language program whereby any student interested in foreign languages may get courses equivalent to a minor in either French or German. Last year Dewayne Dutton and Curtis Walker minored in German. Dewayne Dutton fulfilled all German requirements for a Ph.D. in history at Duke University.

French 301 is now offered for the first time since Dr. Zoltan Farkas has been here. The following students are now taking French 301 and should receive a minor in French spring quarter: Joyce Kirkland, Mary Elizabeth Williams, Joe Daniel Brewer, Mary Ellen Callan and Kerstin Monica Pihl.

Radio Club Will Resume Campus Series Sunday

The newly organized Radio Club on the G.T.C. campus has been operating for a quarter as the originators and producers of the "On Campus" series of radio programs every Sunday afternoon over WWNS in Statesboro.

Charles McClendon, president of the group, is backed by a list of officers whose nominal duties far underestimate their actual duties.

The other officers at present are Albert Burke, vice president; Jean Holmes, secretary-treasurer; Ann Waters, historian; and Bill Sanders, parliamentarian.

Jean Fulford, another of the charter members, served for one quarter as vice president and program chairman, but turned in her resignation Tuesday night at the club's regular meeting.

Committees on membership and point system were appointed by the president, headed by Bill Sanders and Albert Burke.

Clyde Faries, speech professor, is faculty advisor for this organization.

TESSIE JONES, freshman biology major, comes to the Georgia Teachers College band from Savannah High School, and many G.T.C. students will recognize her as one of Weita Wall's "babies." Weita Wall, a graduate of 1956, began her teaching in Savannah the following year. Tessie, who is one of the majorettes in the marching band, also plays bass clarinet in the concert band.

Archeological Society May Be Formed at G.T.C.

By MARILYN DURRENCE

Have you ever wanted to know more about your community, your country and state? Have you ever stopped to wonder just what kind of people or animals roamed the area where your home now stands? Would you be interested in finding out how to locate and examine historic sites?

These are a few of the questions asked by Dr. Clark S. Knowlton in connection with the forming of a new society, either locally, or somewhere in the vicinity. Dr. Knowlton has been in contact with Dr. A. R. Kelly, Department of Archeology at the University of Georgia, who is very interested in preservation of Georgia history.

Both of these men are hopeful of forming an Archeological Society in this area. No definite plans can be made until it can be determined just how many students, faculty members or residents would be interested in forming such an organization locally, or how many would join if a group should be formed in Savannah.

Anyone who is interested is asked to contact Dr. Knowlton and let him know what you think.

It is difficult to imagine what life was like in Georgia five or six thousand years ago, or even longer, but much additional information is being obtained through the discovery of new sites.

Archeologists believe there is a wealth of unwritten history records to be found in this immediate area. In fact, there are evidences of life which date back nine thousand years. Pieces of flint which are estimated to be six thousand years old have been unearthed in Bulloch County.

Expanding industry, cultivation of new land, and unobscured building have destroyed countless sites which, perhaps, would have supplied us with a missing link in the chain of heritage.

The purpose of this Archeological Society would be to discover and preserve such sites and to train amateur archeologists. You do not have to be a

Inventions, Quotations Legacy of Ben Franklin

By ROBERTA HALPERN

Many times in our rather rapid pace of daily living, we tend to be forgetful of the many valuable contributions made in the past, which are responsible for some of our advances in philosophy, science, journalism, and politics. These were but a few of the numerous outstanding achievements made by one of America's foremost intellectuals, Benjamin Franklin. Today, we celebrate the notable occasion of his birth.

There would not be adequate space in this George-Anne to enumerate upon the many profitable reflections contained in Poor Richard's Almanac alone. One well known group of ideas found in the almanac and still held today states, "God helps them that help themselves," and it goes on to say, "Sloth, like Rust consumes faster than labour wears, while the used key is always bright. But dust thou love Life, then do not squander Time, for that's the stuff Life's made of. Lost time is never found again." These thoughts, so true, are typical of the almanac in its entirety.

Thanks also to Mr. Franklin's kite experiments, great strides have been made to control lightning. These experiments proved conclusively to him and us that lightning and electricity are one in the same. His invention of the iron stove held his family and friends in amazement for weeks. He also established the first U. S. post offices and fire houses.

His versatility also led him into the fields of printing, editing and politics, which played a major role in his life. Many of his writing experiences were gained during his apprenticeship to his brother on The New England Current, and with his purchase of the Pennsylvania Gazette, he boosted annual circulation to 10,000. Among his many political activities, he was the first American diplomat to be accepted abroad in Europe's courts. He is also accredited with the formation of the Albany Plan of Union.

Indeed a truly great American is celebrated today! Let's not forget him!

history expert to be interested, and to be interested and willing to work and learn is what it will take to get such a group organized in Statesboro.

When I Stand Alone

When I stand alone and look to the skies above,
Behold, I am wrapped in the warmth of God's great love.
I lift up my face to the breezes that blow

And think of the time that's to come when I shall go
To the Kingdom above where all is fair and bright,
Where ever is it sunny day and never is it night.

When I stand alone on the crest of the hill,
And list to the sound of the whip-poor-will;

When I stand alone in the red-ding dawn,
And lean upon God's great spiritual brawn,
When I stand alone, and the sun sets 'neath the rich black sod,
I am filled with great joy for I am at peace with God.

Hyde AND Seek

By LARRY HYDE

"Hyde and Seek" returns to the sports page of The George-Anne this quarter. I will try to keep you informed on the athletic activities taking place on campus plus little tid bits of news that I think you might be interested in pertaining to physical education, intramurals, etc. This column originated two years ago on this same page and I have Mr. Leodel Coleman, editor and publisher of The Bulloch Herald, to thank for the appropriate heading.

George Rahn, Benny Potts and myself are Student Teaching in the Marvin Pittman School under the guidance of Coach Roger Parsons. All three of us agree there is nothing like it. We are having experiences every day with students of the high school age that surpasses any course ever taken in college. Some people may think student teaching is a waste of time but we are learning new things each day.

Since returning from the Christmas holidays the Marvin Pittman basketballers have played two games, losing to the Savannah County Day School 44-31 in Savannah and winning from Claxton Monday night 50 to 36. The girls did even better, winning from the Savannah school 30-28, and they topped Claxton 41-32.

The leading scorer for the boys has been "Boots" Brannen, who has a total of 90 points in the five games played giving him an average of 19 points a game. Evelyn Chester has scored a total of 77 points for a 15 plus average to lead the girls in the scoring department.

Marvin Pittman will play Oak Park here on Tuesday, January 23, and the college student body is invited.

The familiar ring of victory was present last Saturday night as the Professors downed East Tennessee State for their third victory of the season. The most pleasant surprise of the evening was the outstanding play of John Donald Akins, the freshman guard from Portal. Akins, the smallest member of this year's squad, was a steady performer throughout the game and gave signs of becoming an outstanding basketball player before he leaves G.T.C.

Georgia Teachers has a new addition to its basketball family this year. Plans are underway to organize a women's basketball team and play other college teams. Personally I think girl's basketball is for the "birds," but the calibre of girls we have at G.T.C. makes me think that they will have a good ball club... SELAH.

Profs Meet Quantico Marines Tomorrow

Bobby Webb Will Fight in Georgia Golden Gloves Next Week

By HUGH L. BELCHER

Bobby Webb will fight in the Georgia Golden Gloves boxing tournament which will be held January 22, 23, and 24 at Marietta, Georgia. There will be a total of eight weight divisions such as the novice division which is for boys who are just beginning boxing. The open division is for any boy from 16-28 years of age and this includes those who have won some sort of regional or higher tournament.

The winners of each of the eight weight divisions will go to Nashville, Tennessee for the Southern Tournament. After winning at Nashville, the winners go on to New York for the national finals.

Bobby attended Griffin High School where he lettered in football and track. Then he entered West Georgia College for one year and then transferred to South Georgia College where he lettered in baseball. His team won the Georgia Junior College baseball championship.

While at West Georgia Bobby won the 1955 Western Georgia open championship. Then due to a shoulder injury he had to give up boxing until last year when he competed in the Jacksonville Golden Gloves winning one bout by a knockout and losing the second by a close decision.

Bobby transferred to Georgia Teachers College the first session of summer school last year. He is a junior and majoring in physical education and has been taking an active part in the intramural program on campus. Bobby won the cross-country out of a field of about 22 participants. Since then he has been running a mile and a half every other day plus sparring a few rounds with Paul Rufo and Billy Green. Both boys have helped him considerably in his training and Green may fight with Webb at Marietta.

Bobby has been running, sparring, jumping rope, shadow boxing and taking calisthenics trying to get into top physical condition for his bout.

The first bout is the nite of the 22nd and the fights will consist of three rounds (or less) of two minutes each. Bobby will be entered in the open division.

In regards to the fight next week Bobby says "I've come pretty close but have never won a state championship. I have trained very hard for this one and sure would like to come back to the campus with the crown."

The Georgia Teachers College Professors and the Quantico Marines meet Saturday night in Statesboro for the eighth straight year, and although the Marines will be rated heavy favorites as usual, the game has developed into the top home drawing card of the year.

The Marines won the first seven games in the series, but last year the Profs upset them 86-60. G.T.C. was paced by Bo Warren's 25 points and Chester Curry's 16. Curry is still on the scene and is currently leading the Profs in scoring with an average of 16.8 points per game.

Quantico, coached by Captain Harry Wood of Moorhead (Minn.) State College, has won 14 and lost four. Losses have come to Providence College College, Wabash, Duquesne, and Mitchell Air Force Base.

Quantico's best wins have been over Camp LeJeune, Baldwin-Wallace, and Ft. Belvoir. They handed Belmont Abbey their only loss of the year.

The Marines will have 16 players dressed out, all of whom have played college basketball. One of them, William Shuman, is from Savannah and the University of Alabama.

Leading visitors in the exhibition will be John Brewer, 6-4 forward from the Uni-

G.T.C. Profs Defeats Tenn.

Georgia Teachers College returned to its winning ways here Saturday night as they easily defeated East Tennessee State 78-58 to break a six-game losing streak.

Led by Chester Curry's 21 points, the Professors led 40-25 at halftime, and the issue was never again in doubt.

The Profs' victory was essentially a team affair. After three minutes, G.T.C. led 11 to 3, and every starter had a basket. Whitey Verstraete added 16 points and 10 rebounds to the Prof attack, but the leader as far as the fans were concerned was little John Akins, the 5-8 red-headed freshman, making his first start in college.

The Profs hit 49 per cent from the floor to the Buc's 31 per cent, and out-rebounded East Tennessee 46 to 30.

versity of Kentucky, and 6-5 center Robert Young of North Carolina.

Other starters are 6-1 Dave Smalley of the Naval Academy, 6-0 Jim Cary of Shurtleff (Ill.) College, and 6-1 Jim Smith of Villanova.

VET'S CORNER

By TOM BRYSON

Heretofore, we have never discussed sports in this column, not because of a lack of interest, but rather because of a lack of knowledge. However, this time we are going out on a limb just a bit and the following should be considered as a layman's opinion.

So many times someone who knows very little about a subject will have a whole lot to say in criticism about the persons, places, and things concerning that subject. And we're not talking about nouns either, but in this case basketball. In looking at the won-loss record of this year's ball team, one is not too readily impressed, because the loss column is a little on the large size. As a result of this many people on campus, including the writer, have been rather critical. This is to be expected in view of the fact that the college puts out a winning team year in and year out, and everybody likes to win.

Only Three Lettermen

After the game last Saturday night with East Tennessee State, we changed our opinion from one of adverse criticism to one which reflected a realization of the facts. The facts are these, and they can be found on the second page of the program which is put out at every game. This year's team, as of last Saturday night, has only three lettermen from last year. Of these three, only one is a starter this year. As for the other four starters this year, only one was on the team last year and even so, he only saw limited action as a sub. The other three men were not even on the 1956-57 ball team.

Earlier in the season, Coach Seacore was heard to say that this year's team was a sophomore team and that this year would be a rebuilding season. This is true in one respect. This is a rebuilding year, but in view of the fact that this year's starting five has never played as a unit before this year, it would appear that the team is a freshman rather than a sophomore team. Let's face it. It's next to impossible for a new unit such as this to play senior college ball and be expected to bring home the bacon everytime.

G.T.C. Doesn't Look Bad

In view of the above, the situation here at G.T.C. doesn't look so bad after all. This rebuilding business appears to be part of the game and happens to every team at one time or another. It happened to the Notre Dame football team in 1956 and to the Georgia Tech team of this past season.

Our prediction for the remainder of the season is that the Profs will no doubt lose a few more games, but if the game with East Tennessee State was any indication, they should continue to improve as the season moves along. In addition, this little man John Akins who is a new comer here this year, should prove to be a tough little customer to handle. As for next year, who knows? No doubt the Professors will sport a pretty fair ball club. Curry and Akins might well prove to be another fine combination of guards such as Warren and Wallin were. But as the old saying goes, "wait 'till next year."

Mrs. Evans now at Lewis Hall

Mrs. Mary Kate Evans of Soperton was named new house director of Lewis Hall, junior-senior girls dormitory at Georgia Teachers College, immediately after the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Evans was born and reared in Vidalia, graduated from Vidalia High School, and then attended Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville.

She has done substitute teaching and her job previous to the one she now holds was director of the nurses residence at the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta.

When asked if she liked her new job, Mrs. Evans replied, "Definitely, yes! I expected to, I do, and I shall. The people here are most friendly."

Band Officers Plan Annual Trip And 'Pop Concerts' for Spring

The newly elected officers and council of the G.T.C. band met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dana King. An informal business session was held at which various plans and projects for winter and spring quarters were discussed.

Of major importance was the forthcoming band tour. Mr. King told the group that arrangements had been completed for a new chartered bus to be used on tour. Ruth Odom, president, appointed Bernie Palmer, who is vice president of the band, to be in charge of publicity for the tour performances. This year the band will be performing in some of the larger Georgia towns. Among these are Macon, Dublin, Brunswick, and Waycross.

Those students who enjoyed the spring "pop concerts" last year will be interested to learn that plans are being made for more concerts this spring. This year it is possible that the entire concert band will perform. The vocal ensemble will also appear with band accompaniment. Tentative dates were set for future assembly programs and other on-campus appearances.

Freshman Co-eds Are Eligible For Membership in Honorary Society

By DIANA BAIR

"I just cried and cried; I was so happy."

This was the reaction of Sandra Tindol near the end of last quarter upon receiving an invitation to Kappa Delta Pi.

What is Kappa Delta Pi? This question is asked by many who aren't acquainted with this National Educational Honorary Society. A goal which students should set at the beginning of their college career is membership in Kappa Delta Pi, held to be one of the highest honors on the campus. Students are elected to this organization in their junior and senior years of college. Eligibility is on the basis of high scholastic average, number of educational courses, and leadership qualities.

Every year at Honors Day during the spring quarter, Kappa Delta Pi makes an award to the freshman having the highest scholastic average and at the same time exhibiting leadership qualities. Last year Helen Clyde Tanner, Twin City, received the award. The first year the award was offered, it was presented to Libby Ann Martin, Jesup. The next year, 1955, it went to Sue Ann Whaley, Statesboro, followed by Lucy Melton, Statesboro, in 1956, and finally Helen Tanner in 1957.

Last quarter the following students met requirements for membership in Kappa Delta Pi: Sandra Tindol, Claxton; Evelyn Jones, Statesboro; and Mary Salter.

Dr. Georgia Watson is president of the organization.
