Campaign Planned

Tyson, Council Plan For NAIA Broadcast

Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students, spoke to the Student Council at their Monday afternoon meeting. The main discussion centered on the broadcast for the Kansas City basketball game Monday night.

At the meeting Dr. Tyson assigned one hundred students as team captains with ten names apiece for the purpose of raising enough money so that the Monday night broadcast might be a reality. The broadcast will originate from the new gym where the score board will be operating throughout the game. The cheerleaders will be present to help cheer us to victory. A concession stand will operate at cost.

If the game should terminate late in the evening, the planned sock hop will precede the game. Otherwise the dance will follow the game. The dance will be sponsored by the Student Council and social committee.

A committee was also appointed to nominate officers for the Student Council elections to be held spring quarter. Members on the committee are: Vila Brown, Peggy Cowart, Phyllis Hall and Guy Weatherly.

It was also announced that the Thursday night matinee dances will continue to be square dances.

The first annual outdoor student art exhibit will be held at Georgia Teachers College on Tuesday, March 11, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Under the sponsorship of Alpha Rho Tau and the art department, the exhibition will give G.T.C. students the opportunity to display their creative works.

WAKE UP AND READ

National Library Week, which falls the week of spring holidays, will be observed here during exam week. The library will be open without a break from 7:45 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. Students are urged to use the library as a place to study and cram for exams. Posters all over the library will carry out the theme "Wake Up and Read." Bookmarks will be given to students in the library to further carry out this theme. A surprise for industrious library inhabitants has been planned. It's rumored that this would be a welcomed study break.

Sophomores aren't supposed to win championships, but District 25 N.A.I.A. champion, Georgia Teachers College has been sparked by three of them on their way toward earning a berth in this week's national tournament at Kansas City.

Forward Whitey Verstraete, guard Chester Curry, and center Joe Waters have combined with freshman John Akins and senior George McLeod to win seven out of their last ten games and salvage a season that bordered on the pathetic two months ago.

Verstraete, a recent pick on the Atlanta Constitution all-state team, has furnished a 17.4 point per game average and more than 18 rebounds per game to the G.T.C. attack which is running at a slowed-down 70.2 point per game pace. At 6-3 no giant as college rebounders go, the Moline, Illinois forward has a knack of being where the ball is coming down, and in the recent two-game District 25 tournament, he snared 42 of his specialties as G.T.C. defeated Mercer and Stetson.

Curry is averaging 18.2 on the scoreboard, and has been the play-maker and ace defensive man in the Professor picture. If he scores nine points in the first tournament test, he'll become the fourth Prof player in history to reach the 500 mark for one season. Last year as a freshman, Curry scored 351 points for a new first-year man record on the varsity. Against Stetson Curry had eight assists along with 15 points and nine rebounds.

Joe Waters, a 6-7 Statesboro product, has been improving with each game and in the last regular season game he took 25 rebounds against Belmont Abbey. Against the powerful Quantico Marines Joe scored 15 points and swept 13 balls off the boards.

Portal's John Akins, a freshman and at 5-8 the smallest man to start for a G.T.C. team in 10 seasons, has contributed eight points per game and sterling defensive work since taking over as a regular 15 games back.

The unsung workhorse of the team has been George McLeod, a burly 6-4, 220-pound senior forward from Reidsville who is playing his first year of senior college basketball. When Stetson ganged up on Curry and Verstraete defensively, they loosened up on McLeod, who scored 15 points with 11 rebounds and in the words of Stetson coach Glenn Wilkes, "McLeod was the difference. We knew we couldn't let Verstraete and Curry run loose, but we didn't expect McLeod to play the game he did—he was the difference." Verstraete scored 20, Curry and McLeod 15 each, as G.T.C. edged the Hatters in the District 25 final, 67-63.

First substitute Cary Moore, a 6-2 junior transfer from Mercer University, played his best game of the season against Stetson in getting 10 important points and passing for two more baskets in the closing minutes of the game. The LaCenter, Kentucky product has had his troubles adjusting to the ball-possession style of play featured this year by G.T.C., but definitely found himself in the tournament.

"I don't know how far we'll go in the tournament, we depend an awful lot on the scoring of Verstraete and Curry," says Coach J. B. Searce of G.T.C., "But this team has already gone nine miles further than I thought they would, and I never enjoyed working with a team more than I have this one. And it will be great experience for the team."

Chicago Opera Ballet

The Statesboro Community Concert Association will present the Chicago Opera Ballet in the McCroan Auditorium at Georgia Teachers College at 8:15 p. m. on March 12.

Ruth Page's group will combine the two operas, "Revenge" and "The Merry Widow" on stage with a cast of sixty and a pit orchestra.

Mia Slavensky and Oleg Briansky, well-known to ballet lovers, will dance in the starring roles, and the orchestra will be conducted by Neal Keyan.

This is the last program of the three community concerts for this year, according to Dana M. King, president of the Statesboro Association.

Congratulations, Team

Last Saturday night the G.T.C. Professors turned a somewhat mediocre season into a successful one. The team's overall record now stands at 12 wins and 13 losses, a decided improvement over the lowly 2 and 8 record of early January.

In every tournament it is hard to single out one particular player as being the most outstanding. Yet the performance of Don "Whitey" Verstraete seems to overshadow all of the other fine performances that were turned in by members of the four teams. Verstraete made it known to opponents that the boards belonged to him and his point getting contributed greatly to the Profs' victories.

We hope that the rejuvenated play of the Professors will continue in the national tournament at Kansas City. A few wins there would make everyone forget the earlier mediocre showing of the team. Of course, a few wins would make the little man with the booming voice happier than all the students.

Our sincere congratulations to the team. All we ask is for you to do your best and be the G.T.C. ambassadors of good will.

Students Respond

In chapel on Monday morning the students of G.T.C. were asked if they would be willing to contribute funds to help broadcast the basketball games from Kansas City. They responded with wholehearted enthusiasm and answered yes. Dean of Students Ralph K. Tyson and the Student Council have spearheaded the drive to help collect the funds. The students are to be congratulated for their response and Dean Tyson and the Student Council are to be commended for their efforts.

Movies Better Than Ever

Movies are better than ever! This slogan, true of commercial theaters also holds true for Friday night campus movies. This year G.T.C. has been fortunate in having outstanding movies. There have been a variety of films ranging from dramas to musicals. Not only have some of the latest movies been presented, but movie greats of the past as well.

Something new has been added this year, cinemascopes! Thus the college students are able to see shows as they are presented at modern theatres.

The Student Council is to be congratulated for its diligent efforts in securing this form of entertainment for the students.

Is the library having open house or is everyone planning to become a hermit? No, the question for the Inquiring Reporter this week only one of novel curiosity.

Think about it! What one book would you like to have if you were alone on a desert island?

Sue Kiser — Complete volume of Shakespeare's work and spend my time attempting to understand it.

My Stay in the Hospital; I Gave the Staff Fits

As some of you may have accidentally noticed, I didn't have a column in last week's paper. The reason was this. I was flat on my back counting fly specks on the ceiling in room 306 in Bulloch County Hospital.

When I wasn't counting fly specks, I was driving some poor unfortunate nurse nuts. Nurse, may I please have a glass of orange juice?

Have you ever heard of of Guavocado juice? No? Funny, none of the nurses had either.

I was in a ward, and I met the most interesting people! One lady had a baby, another had a baby, and another had a wreck.

Then there was the night I decided that I was strong enough to go get out of bed and walk around a little. I couldn't sleep, so I got up and started walking down the hall.

I wasn't as strong as I thought I was.

It was fun until all the nurses finally learned me, then none of them came down on that end of the hall. The nurses hated me. Everybody hated me. Even I hated me.

Then there was the food. Did you know that they don't put salt or pepper or any seasoning in food in the hospital? I didn't until about the third meal. It was sort of dark in the room, and I couldn't see whether it was seasoned or not.

I was admitted to the hospital on Wednesday (they didn't know then what they were getting into) but by Thursday they did. A couple of people tried to bribe me into leaving. Finally, on Saturday morning, I was ejected—er, released.

By Tuesday, I was back in school again, ready to infuriate an dexasperate everyone around here.

Eligible for the Draft? Get Student Deferment

Attention all boys! Would you like to get a deferment from Uncle Sam? Now is your chance. The Selective Service College Qualification Test will be offered to college men May 1, 1958. Lt. General Lewis B. Hersey, director of Selective Service, announced today.

Scores made on the tests are used by local boards as one guide in considering requests for deferment from Military service to continue studies.

Application cards and instructional materials may be obtained from Selective Service local boards after Monday, March 10. Men planning to take the test were urged by General Hershey to make early application at the nearest local board office for fuller information and necessary forms and materials.

General Hershey urged every student to take the test if he believes the test score will aid the local board in determining his status. He pointed out that such information, like other information registrants are required to supply to local boards, is important to both the individual and the nation. The Selective Service System long has been aware of the need to add to our trained manpower in all fields, and has done something about it, the general added, through such programs as that for student deferments in which the test score plays a part.

In previous years, two regular and one make-up tests have been given. But with fewer men applying to take the test, the draft chief announced last summer that only one test would be offered this school year.

Applications for the test must be postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, April 11, 1958. The test will be administered by Science Research Associates, Inc., of Chicago, Illinois.

So boys if you want a student deferment, be sure and visit your for "information without obligation."

The Last Roundup

This, my last column for The George-Anne, will be a hodge-podge of random thoughts. As... this institution is growing at a rapid pace now and the next ten years should be G.T.C.'s most productive ones... The Profs are on the way to Kansas City after finishing a Cinderella season. It was a masterful job of coaching. Verstraete and Curry looked great and both should be candidates for Helms Foundation All-American next year... The Red and Black, student newspaper of the University of Georgia, like The George-Anne, has a long record of presenting divergent opinions on its editorial page.

Only on occasion have bigoted editors, either liberal or conservative, denied this right—Harry Murphy, present managing editor of The Red and Black is now fighting a courageous battle to maintain this freedom.

William White of the New York Times in a talk at the Georgia Press Institute said the Democrats will win in a landslide in '58 and '60... Ralph McGill, Constitution editor, concurs—unless President Eisenhower learns the value of playing politics... The Masquers under the direction of Mrs. Winfield Lee scored another hit this week with their production "Dear Charles." G.T.C. is fortunate to have such a fine theatrical group. Diana Bair, Molly Williams and Bill Sanders have continually turned in fine performances for this group... Jo Ann Parker, former George-Anne staff member, is doing a fine job as a member of the Red and Black staff.

After witnessing the Jai-Alai games in Florida, Public Relations Director Joe Axelson, allows as how those guys would make great shortstops on a baseball team. It takes speed, coordination and an eagle eye to corner that little ball that travels up to 130 miles per hour... Comptroller Don McDougald has said that G.T.C. will receive some more telephones from the Statesboro Telephone Company in the near future. This is a sign of real progress. For the past three years the telephone situation here on campus has been very unsatisfactory. The person responsible for this much-needed reform deserves a pat on the back... Working on The George-Anne has been one of my most satisfying experiences while at G.T.C. The George-Anne has been a free college newspaper because the students here have been willing to assume the responsibility that goes along with freedom. If the students wish for the paper to remain free they must continue to be willing to assume this responsibility... FINIS.

Editor Leaves Behind Three Fruitful Years

Britt Fayssoux, three-time editor of The George-Anne, is leaving us this quarter, and his leaving will be lamented by at least 22 persons on the Georgia Teachers College campus—the staff, of course.

But these 22 staff members haven't all been around to witness the accomplishments that Mr. Fayssoux has become respected for.

There are only three people working in publications who were on The George-Anne staff at the time Britt Fayssoux joined the group. That is, with the exception of Joseph Axelson, editor at the time, and present director of public relations. Mr. Axelson says, "We couldn't get him interested in newspaper work. At first, he just did it because we asked him to—not because he wanted to."

Certainly he was adept at writing news stories, doing makeup, and all the mechanics of newspaper work during his first year on The George-Anne staff—1955-56, but he was also well-versed on current events.

At the time he was majoring in political science, and such a field offered worlds of opportunity in gaining the knowledge of government, and how to understand why certain people in positions of importance made the decisions they did.

Soon he was editor of the George-Anne, and at the same time he took the only course in journalism offered at Georgia

Teachers College. Roy F. Powell, former director of public relations and advisor for the newspaper, was the teacher, and he stated that Britt Fayssoux definitely deserved the grade he received—A-plus.

The following year he married a student, Sara Cunnard, and they moved to Statesboro. Throughout the year he acted as a sort of guiding light for The George-Anne staff, since few members knew even the rudiments of makeup. During the year his daughter, Maria Teresa, was born.

In the spring of 1956, Honors Day saw Britt being awarded the Leodel Coleman Cup for outstanding journalism at Georgia Teachers College—an award which any student who had labored under him would not have contested had it been at gunpoint.

Again being the only journalistically inclined student with the needed ability, Britt was asked to become editor of The George-Anne in fall quarter of 1957, and has been serving in that capacity since that time.

Since his advent on the staff, The George-Anne has taken on a new look, and has received compliments in places where they were least expected. College newspapers all over the state have made known the fact that they view this paper with respect.

Having known Britt since he joined The George-Anne staff three years ago, and having been impressed with his abilities since that time, I myself believe that he is one of whom Georgia Teachers College students can be proud—and for whom they may become known.

By JOYCE JACKSON

It looks like things are really getting started on the student center at last. We have been waiting long for work to begin and are eagerly anticipating the completion. It doesn't look like the same place with all the trees torn down.

Kansas City and the N.A.I.A. tournament are very much in the minds of all the students now. We are very proud of our Professors and wish them the best of luck in "foreign territory." Today is the last day to contribute toward the broadcasting. As an added feature, plans are being made to have the broadcast set up over the loud speaker at the new gym, with the score board working. Concessions will be sold and the cheerleaders will participate. We will have everything set up like the real game, except for the players. For lack of another name, I am calling it a "Phantom Ball Game."

Much planning is being done for the beginning of the honorary educational sorority Kappa Delta Epsilon to function in conjunction with the fraternity Kappa Phi Kappa. Fifteen charter members have been chosen and Miss Helen Taylor has been elected as sponsor.

There are definite signs of spring in the air. The signs I'm speaking have appeared in the form of diamonds on girls' fingers. Carolyn Branch received a beautiful ring from John Mann of Garden City. The wedding is planned for this summer. Gloria Bedenbaugh is wearing a lovely solitaire given her by Wayne Greene of Americus. Tomorrow night Bobby Manley and Judy Rittenhouse will become man and wife. March 14 is the date set for the wedding of David Wilson and Susan Sandborn, who attends G.S.C.W. This being the last paper this quarter, and my last quarter on campus (I'll be student teaching next quarter), this is the last column I'll write for The George-Anne. I have thoroughly enjoyed writing for you and trying to collect little bits of gossip during these three years. With reluctance I tell you goodbye.

quantities of the earliest pottery found in the Southeast, a fibre-tempered ware, very thick and poorly fired, which at the Mosely Farm site exhibits a gradual change in tempering from fibre-tempered to coarse grit and tempered varieties.

Minority pottery represents a more recent occupation of the site after a long hiatus from the fibre-tempered settlement, marked by cord-marked, some check stamped varieties, and a thinner, smoother plain grit series. These latter are allocated to the Savannah complex first found at Irene Mound, Savannah, Georgia.

The site is important as one of several Ogeechee drainage occupations indicative of a transition from prepottery to early pottery sequences in northeast Georgia.

Remember?

By ANN MANRY

Remember all those nights we've come to work late on The George-Anne? And who was always there or came in shortly? Britt, of course. Sometimes he was engulfed by a cloud of cigar smoke but he was always there.

Sometimes while writing stories we couldn't think of the right word or couldn't get a headline count. On whom did we always call? Our editor, of course. He was always ready to lend a hand and impart a little of his journalistic knowledge to us.

We started out with a bigger staff than we have now, but those really interested in paper work have remained. In fact we've become almost a clan now, a small group of people who have common interests—the paper being uppermost in our thoughts. We've had to work hard at times, and there were weeks when we wondered if we'd get the paper out on schedule. But somehow we've always come through. Along with our toil and labors have come ample rewards—we have the satisfaction of knowing we've done a good job. We've made lasting friendships and we've had loads of fun. What more can you ask?

Britt Fayssoux, you've been a great editor and we've enjoyed working with you.

Fayssoux Leaves The George-Anne; Marks an Era of Newspaper Work

By ROBERTA HALPERN and JOYCE K. HODGES

Britt Fayssoux, present editor of The George-Anne, has been a member of the newspaper staff since fall quarter of 1955, and has been editor three quarters of that time.

These three years have almost marked an era in George-Anne achievement. Britt insists that he himself was not the sole cause of the great improvement since the quarter that he became a member, and he might be right, but it will be rather hard to convince the present staff of the truth of that statement.

The truth is that Britt had the good fortune to join the staff at the same time that Joe Axelson was editor—the biggest jump in George-Anne appearance in the history of the school, according to various accounts of faculty members.

Fayssoux received his training in makeup—its balance and variety, news writing, and other important aspects of newspaper work.

As a result he was able to take over the paper the second quarter—as managing editor. At the time, however, the editor had other interests which allowed Britt to devote a great deal of his time to the makeup of the paper. The following quarter he accepted the position as editor.

During the following fall quarter, Britt was not assigned a paying position on The George-Anne staff, but he assumed the duties of teaching makeup to the administrative staff—a long, hard work. Throughout the whole year, he worked as the "associate editor," and for the accomplishments during 1956-57, he was awarded the Leodel Coleman Cup for Outstanding Journalism on Honors Day.

Fall quarter of 1957 found him looking for a job—that of editor of The George-Anne, for the last time he believed. But since those who were interested in newspaper work and whose ability would take months to develop, would have been incapable of such a demanding position, Britt has been editor for the past two quarters.

The present George-Anne staff has recognized that Britt is one of the most amiable editors under whom they have worked—and yet they feel that the obligations to have their "stories in on time" are even bigger than they would be for one who stormed and ranted.

We hope that the "When The George-Anne Was in Flower" period will not wane just because Britt Fayssoux is graduating, and that the training which the staff has received from him will be sufficient to uphold the standards he has set before us.

THE GEORGE-ANNE has improved a great deal during the past three years, since Britt Fayssoux has been a member of the staff. Since 1955, he has been the "guiding light" for all the subsequent editors. Having retaken over the job during the fall quarter of this year, he has even helped the newspaper to surpass the goals set for it last year. He has been supported on both The George-Anne staff and the Miscellany (literary quarterly) staff by Joyce K. Hodges, who will become editor upon his graduation this quarter.

Kelly, Knowlton Submit Paper To National Archeological Group

The following is an abstract of a transitional late archaic-early woodland site near Statesboro, Georgia, as submitted to a national archeological committee by Dr. A. R. Kelly of the University of Georgia and Dr. C. S. Knowlton of Georgia Teachers College:

"The Mosely Farm site is located near Statesboro, Georgia, on minor drainage of the Ogeechee River. The materials for this study represents largely surface collections by the owner over a period of years. The collections come from a plowed field of 2-3 acres. Human occupation of this area, as indicated by study of surface collections, indicate successive and multiple occupation by several recognized groups in the cultural chronology of northeast Georgia and the Savannah sub-region.

A good representative assortment of stone work, projectiles and cutting tools predominating, is reminiscent of the assemblage associated with the upper levels of the famous Stallings Island site, on the Savannah River below Augusta.

By ALBERT BURKE

Well, at this time of year there is lots of talk in the air about champion basketball teams and it is with reason. This year we have four champions in our locality.

One of these teams is of course our own Professors, who won the 12th annual District 25 (Georgia-Florida) N.A.I.A. Basketball Tournament. The Professors beat a very good Stetson five 67-63 to grab the championship for the second time in the last three years.

This victory proved that Coach Searce was justified in saying that this team worked together better than any previous one. The Professors got off to a slow start, but after they had worked together a few games they began playing a good brand of ball.

Next year's team will consist of four returnees to the starting line-up and will be backed by capable reserve strength. With a team like the present one returning in almost full strength we can expect another championship.

The Professors will play in the National N.A.I.A. Tournament in Kansas City, March 11-13. The only team from District 25 to win a game in the tournament was our own Georgia Teachers College Team in 1956. With the determination of this year's team they will go forth to Kansas City with high hopes of making a good showing.

The other teams of our area that are champions are: Statesboro, Sandersville, and Swainsboro high school teams. The Statesboro Blue Devils were the runner-up in the boys' Class A Basketball Tournament held at Macon. The girls from Sandersville and Swainsboro won first and second places respectively in the Class A Basketball Tournament also held at Macon.

I had almost forgotten to mention Jim Harley's Brewton-Parker Barons, who won this year's State Junior College Tournament.

Chosen on the all-N.A.I.A. District 25 tournament team are forwards Whitey Verstraete of Georgia Teachers College and Jim Kitchens of Stetson, center Dick Bezemer of Rollins and guards Chester Curry of G.T.C. and Gene Wells of Stetson.

* * *

Whitey Verstraete was picked on the Constitution's seventh all-college squad. Chester Curry was picked for second team and George McLeod received honorable mention.

* * *

With the coming of spring, young men's fancies turn toward baseball. The men on campus of G.T.C. are no different and one can see this for a fact in the afternoon down at the baseball field. Practice is in full swing now and is gradually giving an outline of what this year's team will be.

This Saturday the Profs will probably have their second intra-squad game. Last Saturday in the first intra-squad game the batters were showing lots of power and fair fielding was done by the fielders.

Professors Capture NAIA Title; Verstraete Paces 67-63 Victory

A partisan, fingernail-biting crowd sweated out a tense, heated battle here tonight to watch Georgia Teachers College edge Stetson, 67-63, for the N.A.I.A. District 25 championship. The win earned the Professors a berth in the national basketball tournament to be held in Kansas City, March 12-15.

In the end it was the vaunted one-two punch of Whitey Verstraete and Chester Curry that carried the Profs to victory. Verstraete, a 6-3 sophomore from Moline, Ill., netted 20 points and grabbed 21 rebounds for the second successive night. Curry, a 6-2 sophomore from Wheelwright, Ky., chipped in with 15 points and directed the Profs' late-game deliberate type play which stymied the Hatters' bid for victory.

Defending champion Stetson which fell behind at 5-4 in the opening minutes, again rallied to within a point at 4:46, then sailed ahead on a jump shot by Gene Wells, former Ludowici High star, who topped the Hatters' point parade with 19. Curry came back with a pair of free throws to give the Profs a 59-58 advantage. A foul shot by Ralph Miller deadlocked the count and Wells connected on a jump from the corner to give Stetson a 61-59 lead with 2:24 to go.

Verstraete, who scored 25 points Friday night in a semi-final win over Mercer, took charge to bring the Profs a second trip to the national. He hit a jump shot from the side to create a tie at 61, then calmly dropped in a pair of free throws to put the Profs ahead with 1:13 left. A pair of free throws by Curry and two more by Verstraete opened a six-point gap before Wells ended production on a jump shot with four seconds remaining.

This was the third time in as many years the Profs and Hatters have battled for the district title and the locals hung up Victory No. 2. They triumphed in 1956 and went on to win their opening game in the national tournament. Last year it was Stetson's turn. Tonight the cycle continued as the Profs displayed a rounded attack that placed men in double figures.

Verstraete was tops, followed by Curry, George McLeod with 14 and reserve Cary Moore with 10. Curry made seven of seven free throws to wind up 15-15 for the two-night tournament. Trailing Wells for Stetson were Mel Gregory and Jim Kitchens with 11 apiece and Bob Herrin with 10.

The score was tied a 2 and 4 before Curry sang a free throw to stake the Profs to a lead they held until the waning minutes. A basket by Verstraete and two by McLeod built an 11-4 cushion before Miller's free throw snapped the streak. After the Hatters narrowed the count to a point, at 16-15, the Profs got rolling again to move 11 points out front. Two free throws each by Moore and Verstraete, two baskets by Curry and another by McLeod made Stetson reel.

With Wells leading the way, the visitors battled back to within five points at halftime, 32-27.

Midway in the second half, the Profs owned a 10-point margin, 50-40, then the Hatters began the drive that had the spectators nervously edging forward in their seats. It was 57-52, G.T.C., with six minutes left. Then successive baskets by Bill Schneider, Miller and Wells lifted Stetson to the front, 58-57, with 4:14 to go. Then came ties at 59 and 61 before the Profs capitalized at the foul line.

COACH J. I. CLEMENTS

VET'S CORNER

By TOM BRYSON

In early January of this year, Harold MacMillan, Prime Minister of Great Britain, in a broadcast to the people of his country, stated that there are two ways in which to preserve world peace. The first is to maintain a strong military alliance between the members of the NATO organization. In addition, MacMillan stated, "I am certain that the great mass of responsible people in all NATO countries want to eliminate any differences between us. They want to work for the fullest mutual understanding. We must stand together or we shall fall together. It would be fatal if we allowed NATO or the other alliances to be broken up. It is not just a military alliance but it provides a moral basis for a large part of the free world. That is the first way then, keep the alliances together."

In this statement the Prime Minister was merely rephrasing one of nature's basic laws—self preservation. Man has used this type of approach, no doubt, since before the dawn of history. In other words, he who has the biggest club will be the victor. This is the law of the jungle.

However, MacMillan in speaking of a second way to peace, said, "But there is a second way that is just as important, the way of negotiation, of conciliation—and don't let us be dismayed by the failure up to date." No doubt the Prime Minister was here speaking of negotiation on the U. N. and summit levels. The former would certainly seem to be the logical point of mediation between the nations, just as is our own Congress the mediating organization for the various states. In such fashion various differences are made known and solved by discussion and majority vote.

In his treatise on Civil Government, John Locke, English political scientist of the 17th century says that man needs to form a political society, that is, "to join and unite into a community for their (man's) comfortable, safe, and peaceable living, one amongst another, in a secure enjoyment of their properties, and a greater security against any that are not of it." In such a community, it is necessary for each member to surrender a certain amount of authority or privilege to an elected leader, who should be governed by a contract and by will of the majority.

If such be the case, and assuming that the United Nations is such a community of nations, why then the discord in the world today? It would seem that there is a fallacy, and perhaps the fallacy is a lack of mutual faith and trust on the part of all concerned.

Indeed, one might well consider NATO and other such alliances a fulfillment of Locke's social contract, but does this contract or alliance or any other that is not world inclusive, the highest ideal for which we should strive. In order to obtain an optimum of unity and security, it is necessary that there be a maximum number of nations participating in the community of nations. In addition, it is only logical that such participation be wholehearted and in the best of faith.

Social Scientists Visit Institution

Last Wednesday, March 5, Dr. Clark Knowlton accompanied his psychology class on a field trip to the state mental institution at Milledgeville. The trip is an annual affair and the purpose is to give students an insight into the administration of such an institution and also to see different types of patients that have been studied.

The following students made the trip: Jackie Parks, Connie Veal, Maxie Johnson, Morris Kay, Elliott Hodges, Dillard Maxwell, Peggy Cowart, Harry Cowart, Mary Bowers, Ted Tucker, Hubert Manning, Earl Richardson, Joyce Ryan, Millie Bond, Bob Byrd, Frances Dixon, Kenny Giddens, Junior Odom, Perry Cobb, Christine Williams.

Margilu Watts, Chester Curry, Ramona Lee, Marquerite Bowen, Martha Kirby, Britt Fayssoux, Buddy Rabitsch, Bill Criscillis, Martha Parrish, Sara Norris, Hubert Clements, Daisy Gignilliant, Henrinel Middleton, Bob Mitchell.

Hanna Pope, A. R. Powell, Earleen Sizemore, Noel Vandercrft, Buddy Rainey, Wilton Reddick, George Winders, Charles Bennet, Carl Martin, Thomas Anderson, Choyce Jackson, Glenda Durrence, Sarita Shafe.

LARRY HYDE, editor of the 1958 Reflector, mails the final copy to the Taylor Publishing Company today. He and his staff have worked all week adding the finishing touches to the annual which will return and be ready for distribution by three weeks before graduation in June. Hyde says that this year's annual incorporates many innovations and, he hopes, improvements.

Spice, Complications Make Surprise Ending

At 8:00 Wednesday night the lights were dimmed once and then again as the curtain opened to reveal one of the loveliest scenes Masquers has erected. The scene was in the living room of the Darvels' house in Paris with the terrace seen in the background to the left.

Ed Ward did a wonderful job as the stage manager and technical director.

The entrance of Anne Waters as the maid set the mood of the play. Her dry wit added much to the humor. Ray Horne wonderfully portrayed the old doctor tottering around so realistically that one almost felt the strain in his back.

Could anyone find words to describe Molly Williams' performance? As Denise Darvel, Molly captured the interest of an informative speech concerning Longfellow's poetry. He spoke of the popularity of the poetry in England and in America at the time it was written.

He stated, however, that with the 1920's came the critics who berated any poetry with a moral or with the jingling rhyme Longfellow used in many of his most famous works. But, Mr. Keefer affirmed, Longfellow has remained high in the list of American major poets.

Dr. DeLoach, while presenting the engraving, stated that he acquired the work of art in Concord, Mass., at a price of $50 at an auction.

Miss Hassie McElveen, librarian of the college accepted the engraving on the part of the students and placed it on exhibit in the college library.

En Melodie Gets National Charter

En Melodie, the girls' music organization, received a letter granting a charter for a chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota. The group has been working for years in order to establish a chapter of this national professional sorority. There were certain requirements which had to be fulfilled and the petition had to be approved by each chapter in the sorority.

Officers of the sorority will be Mary Ann Harrell, president; Joyce Ryan, vice president; Joan Hamilton, secretary; and Ver-melle Pierce, treasurer.

Mrs. Jackie Clark and Mrs. Fielding Russell are sponsors for this organization. Early in next quarter national officers will be here for a formal installation. After this En Melodie will no longer exist. Instead, G.T.C. will have the newest chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota.

This past Monday evening, members of the Music Education Club attend the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra Concert in Savannah at the Municipal Auditorium.

This orchestra, listed as one of the top ten in the nation by leading authorities, under the direction of Walter Steinberg, presented a program of music from the Romantic Era.

Such compositions as: "Overture to Oberon," by Weber; "Symphonie No. 3 in D. Major," by Schubert; "Prelude" and "Liebeslied" from "Tristan and Isolde," by Wagner; and "Suite from Der Rosenkavalier," by R. Strauss gave the listener an evening of true musical enjoyment.

The students who attended were impressed from the beginning by Mr. Steinberg's superb control of the orchestra, and by the true musicianship of the individual player.

Longfellow Engraving Presented To College

Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, native of Bulloch County, and former member of the faculty at Georgia Teachers College, presented the college with a steel engraving of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow at a celebration of Longfellow's birthday on February 27.

Dr. DeLoach, who taught at the University of Georgia and received his master's degree there, was at one time the very close friend of Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison. He was also an agronomist at Armour and Company in Chicago, Ill., and owns a library valued at thousands of dollars.
