Parents . . .

An Invaluable Link to Student Success!

Why is Parent Involvement Important for Student Success?

- It is the single most critical factor influencing student achievement.
- Education must continue “outside” the building.
- A parent’s involvement in their child’s education sends a strong message that they “value” education.
- Parents who demonstrate support and high aspirations for their child will increase their child’s commitment to succeed.

“It has been found that as parent involvement increases, students’ attitudes toward schoolwork improve.”

(Kellaghan, Sloan, and Alvarez, 1993, p.72)

PTA's National Standards for Family-School Partnerships

Standard 1: Welcoming all families into the school community—Families are active participants in the life of the school, and feel welcomed, valued, and connected to each other, to school staff, and to what students are learning and doing in class.

Standard 2: Communicating effectively—Families and school staff engage in regular, meaningful communication about student learning.

Standard 3: Supporting student success—Families and school staff continuously collaborate to support students' learning and healthy development both at home and at school, and have regular opportunities to strengthen their knowledge and skills to do so effectively.

Standard 4: Speaking up for every child—Families are empowered to be advocates for their own and other children, to ensure that students are treated fairly and have access to learning opportunities that will support their success.

Standard 5: Sharing power—Families and school staff are equal partners in decisions that affect children and families and together inform, influence, and create policies, practices, and programs.

Standard 6: Collaborating with community—Families and school staff collaborate with community members to connect students, families, and staff to expanded learning opportunities, community services, and civic participation.

Challenges . . . many!

“A common comment of teachers is that the parents they most want to see (those with lower achieving children) seldom enter the school door.”

(Karther and Lowden, 1997, pg.4)

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

1. Parents don't know how to contribute

- Seek parents out, don't wait for them to volunteer
- Create a list of specific jobs or events for volunteers
- Distribute a simple parent handbook listing opportunities with names and contact information

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

2. Parents without adequate resources

- Provide information on health/social services in the community
- Work agreements with agencies to provide services at school
- Provide opportunities to listen and discuss their situation with a professional

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

3. Childcare

- Provide childcare at site
- Use high school or college students from Child Development classes to babysit
- Involve PTA, community members, or social services to assist with childcare
- Follow state regulations to provide safe child care

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

4. Language Barriers

- Provide materials in their native language
- Have an interpreter present at meetings/events
- Hold pre-events with similar ethnic groups, culminate with large group

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

5. Transportation

- Hold in a community location instead of the school
- Provide bus transportation for special events
- Provide “Visitor” parking at the school

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

6. Special Needs

- Make sure that your building is accessible for parents with disabilities
- Provide someone to “sign”, if requested

What are the Challenges?

How do we tackle them?

7. Lack of Knowledge

- Provide Parent Informational Sessions on topics of interest
- Survey parents as to interested topics for sessions
- Hold the sessions at different times of the day
- Involve various groups at the school to provide a light meal
- Get community leaders, health/social service professionals to present
