Hot Docker: JD Stanford
April 18, 2011
The Multicultural Student Center (MSC) presented the Eagles in Diversity Volunteer of the Year Award on April 6, 2011. This award is given to the candidate who gives their time selflessly and donates said time often. A candidate for the award must exhibit initiative in completion of tasks. Volunteer opportunities for the MSC can range from helping out in the office, to academic tutoring, to developing programs for students, and even to grilling food for events. The GSU volunteer of the year award is a great honor and the Government Documents Department of Henderson Library is proud to announce that one of its student assistants, JD Stanford, received this prestigious award for 2011.

More ScienceDirect collections added
April 18, 2011
We are pleased to announce that year-end funding from President Brooks Keel has enabled the addition of two more collections of e-journals have been added to our ScienceDirect subscription. The new collections are “Social Sciences” (196 e-journals, including Elsevier’s education journals) and “Immunology and Microbiology” (97 e-journals).
All of these can be accessed, along with our other ScienceDirect collections (Environmental Science; Health Sciences; Mathematics; Psychology; Energy; Economics, Econometrics & Finance; Business, Management & Accounting), with a single search interface at http://www.galileo.usg.edu/express?
