Profs Enter District 25 NAIA Tourney

ANN MANRY

At The Editor's Desk

Gleaming white columns on a white two-story house, a small dirt road meandering up to the home, graceful trees flanked by large camellia bushes—these were my first impressions of Turnwold Plantation. Turnwold Plantation was the former home of Joel Chandler Harris, the creator of Uncle Remus.

During the depression the Harris family was forced to sell the plantation so the Mike Dunns purchased it. The house has been restored to its original splendor. The grounds and the house attract visitors who want to know where the famous Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox tales were composed.

As you enter the living room, your eyes are immediately drawn to a huge picture of Harris hanging over the fireplace. Then your attention is captivated by the long red velvet drapes hanging from the high windows. Lying on the piano are copies of the "Countryman," a newspaper dating back to 1861 and 1862. Framed on the wall are newspaper clippings, photos, and postcards. The collection recalls the 1948 celebration of the centennial of Joel Chandler Harris's birth. A card postmarked 1948 reads "To my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Dunn and their lovely children, Jenks and Nancy, who now grace Turnwold plantation..."

Mrs. Dunn remarked that although they now are the owners of the plantation and many years have passed since Harris lived there, visitors still keep coming. Spending the weekend in Eatonton proved most enlightening and enjoyable. You could almost picture life as it was during the Civil War. The pages of history were rolled back for one short weekend.

MEETING HELD HERE

At a meeting of 50 school superintendents was held in McCroan Auditorium, Tuesday, February 24. At this meeting Title 3 of the National Defense Act dealing with financial assistance for science, math, and foreign language majors was discussed.

Bloodmobile Slated for Annual Visit Tuesday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on the GTC campus Tuesday, March 3, from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.; blood donors may feel free to come to the alumni building (old gym) and donate this valuable "life saver" to those people who are in need of it.

All boys who pledge blood will have a chance to win an all-expense-paid date with Sibbie Hogan, "Miss GTC of 1959." Names will be placed in a glass container, and the name drawn will be the lucky person to go out for an evening of dining and movie with this beautiful, young miss from Augusta.

Girls Win $5.00

Girls will have a chance to win $5.00. One of the leading Statesboro merchants is to give the winner a gift certificate whose face value is $5.00.

This year's drive will enable the dormitory that has the most students, percentage wise, contributing to the drive, win $5.00. Campus clubs and organizations are not in competition for a monetary prize this year. Dormitories will be the only campus participants to receive this $5.00 award.

Student Council Directs

This year's drive is under the direction of the Student Council. A poll is presently being conducted to see how many students are willing to donate blood. Charles McLendon, president of the Student Council, Jerry Brown, Student Council vice president, Phyllis Hall, Student Council secretary, and Ann Manry, editor of the George-Anne, are leading this year's drive.

Refreshments will be served to those who donate blood. Miss Ruth Bolton, associate professor of Home Economics, and her meal planning and table service class will serve the refreshments.

During the drive, trained personnel will be on hand to take care of extracting the blood.

All students are again urged to give blood when the Bloodmobile comes to GTC, Tuesday, March 3, 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Concert Band Will Begin Tour Monday

The Georgia Teachers College concert band will leave Statesboro early Monday morning, March 2, for its annual three-day tour throughout South Georgia. The band is under the direction of Mr. Fred K. Grumley, assistant professor of music.

Three concerts will be presented on Monday—in Swainsboro, Macon and Warner Robins. On Tuesday, March 3, performances will be given in Warner Robins, Cordele, and Valdosta. On Wednesday, March 4, the band will play in Douglas.

"Trumpet Trio" Featured

Featured with the band will be the excellent instrumentation of the "Trumpet Trio" and Bobby Godwin, Omega, as clarinet as soloist. The "Trumpet Trio," composed of Tommy Singletary, Statesboro; Mary Ann Harrell, Macon; and Tommy Rogers, Buena Vista, will play Leroy Anderson's "Bugler's Holiday."

A very interesting program, which combines the classical and semi-classical with the popular will be presented. The program will include:

"Burst of Flame" (Concert

March), "If Thou Be Near" (Chorale by Bach), "Bugler's Holiday," by Leroy Anderson; trumpet trio; Occasional Suite by Handel, "American Folk Suite" collected by Harold Waters, "Across the Wide Missouri," "Erie Canal," "Black is the Color of My True Love's Hair," and "Get Along Little Dogie."

Renown Composers Included

Following the intermission the GTC band will offer:

"From Heaven Above," by Bach; "Concertino" by Van Weber, Clarinet Solo; "Ballet Paresienne" by Offenbach; "Rhumba Syncopata"; and "Oklahoma Selections" by Richard Rogers.

Mr. Grumley came to Georgia Teachers College last September with a lengthy background in band direction. He graduated from Capital University Conservatory in Ohio with a bachelor's degree and earned his master's degree from Florida State University. Before coming to GTC, he served as supervisor of music in the Anna (Ohio) local schools.

Veterans Club to Sponsor Talent Revue on March 5

The second annual Talent Review, which is sponsored by the Veterans Club, will be held in McCroan Auditorium at 8 p. m. on March 5. This is a contest open to almost any high school or college student who desires to enter.

Persons that are interested in entering the contest are asked by Ed Bailey, president, to enter by contacting him or "Pop" McKenzie on or before Saturday of this week.

Big cash prizes will be given to the winners of the top three places. First place is worthy of $25, second place, $15, and third $10.

Last year's Talent Review was won by the "Sporters." The members of this group were Jerry and LaWayne Studdard,

"Chuck" Hutchinson, Early Sammons, and Eddie Lane.

After the Sporters were named as the winners, they were called back to play several songs.

This type of group will be on the program, along with singers, dancers, and speakers. Of course, the Veterans Club will also try to have a little humor spread throughout the show for the enjoyment of the audience.

Monday evening at 6:30 there will be an audition held in the Music Building for all persons entering the contest. Judges will be on hand to select the ones who will compete for the prize money.

Admission price is 35 cents for everybody.

The Georgia Teachers College Professors will play the Mercer Bears at Macon on Friday night in the first round of the District 25 NAIA playoffs. Radio Station WWNS will broadcast the game.

Music Festival To Be on Campus Friday, Saturday

The annual First District Music Festival will be held on the Georgia Teachers College campus Friday and Saturday, February 27 and 28 from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m., according to Dr. Ronald Neil, chairman of the GTC music division.

High school bands, choruses, small instrumental and vocal ensembles, elementary school choruses, and elementary school piano solos will be presented.

The bands and choruses will give their presentations on Friday in McCroan Auditorium and Marvin Pittman School auditorium respectively.

The high school bands and the time they will perform are as follows: Statesboro High School, 9:30 a. m.; Jenkins County High, 10 a. m.; Swainsboro High School, 10:30 a. m.; Groves High School, 11 a. m.; Treutlen County Elementary School, 11:30; Claxton High, 1 p. m.; Wrens High School, 1:30; Lyons County High, 2 p. m.; Burke County High, 2:30; Jeff County High, 3 p. m.; H. V. Jenkins High, 3:30; and Savannah High School, 4 p. m.

The schools and the times of the choruses are as follows: Southeast Bulloch Girls' Choir, 9:30 a. m.; Effingham County High School Glee Club, 10 a. m.; Screven County High School Girls' Chorus, 10:30; Glennville Junior High School Glee Club, 11 a. m.; and Langford Junior High School Glee Club, 11:30. In the afternoon, Glennville High School Glee Club, 1 p. m.; Wrens Elementary Chorus, 1:30 p. m.; Joseph R. Lamar Chorus, 2 p. m.; Flemming Elementary Chorus, 2:30; and Newington Elementary Chorus, 3 p. m. Vocal solos will also be heard in room 6 of the Marvin Pittman School and elementary piano schools will be held in the recital hall of the Music Building.

On Saturday the brass solos and ensembles will be heard in the music building and the woodwinds in Cone Hall lounge. Twirling solos, ensembles and high school piano solos will also be presented.

SAI Sends Five To Convention

Last Saturday five members of Sigma Alpha Iota represented Georgia Teachers College's chapter at a convention at the University of Georgia in Athens. The meeting was a "State Day" for all members of Sigma Alpha Iota, an honorary music fraternity for women. Those representing the Gamma Theta chapter were: Martha Sheffield, JoAnn Wilson, Ruth Odom, Mary Ann Harrell, and Jean Fitzgerald.

The SAI's were welcomed to the University by the president of the Georgia chapter, the dean of women and the head of the division of music. Progress re-

The GTC-Mercer game will start at 9 p. m. at Porter Gym, the home of the Bears. Tickets cost $1.50 per night on the main floor, and $1.00 general admission in the balcony.

Stetson University and the University of Tampa meet in the other bracket at 7:30 p. m. on Friday. The winners meet on Saturday night at 8 p. m. There will be no consolation game.

Stetson, Georgia Teachers, Mercer, and Tampa are seeded in that order. The tournament winner will represent Georgia-Florida at the national tournament in Kansas City from March 9-14.

Stetson defeated Tampa and Mercer twice each during the regular season, and split with Georgia Teachers. The Hatters edged GTC 62-60 at Deland, Florida and lost 78-72 at GTC.

GTC mobbed Mercer 98 to 62 at Statesboro, but dropped the Porter Gym game 82 to 71. The Profs are defending champions of District 25.

Coach J. B. Searce's Profs ended their regular season with 15 wins and 11 losses. On Saturday night they rolled up their highest total of the season in defeating Pembroke (N. C.) State 113 to 52. Whitey Verstraete and Chester Curry scored 28 points apiece to lead GTC. Eleven players cracked the scoring column.

Verstraete ended the regular season with 533 points for an average of 20.5 points per game. Curry was next with 521 for 20.0. Verstraete is the fifth Prof in history to pass the 500 mark. Others have been Chester Webb (three times), Scotty Perkins (twice), Curry (twice), and Garland Campbell.

Verstraete also leads GTC in rebounding with 327, and in assists with 117. He is second in field goal accuracy (39 per cent) and in free throw accuracy (83 per cent).

Curry, a junior like Verstraete, leads the team in field goal accuracy (41 per cent), is second in assists (97), and third in free throw accuracy (79 per cent).

Senior Cary Moore leads the free throw shooters (84 per cent), and freshman Carlton Gill is second in rebounds (248).

The 113 points against Pembroke State raised the Profs' points per game average to 79.2, against their opponents' 71.8.

The Profs have had their troubles on the road this year, despite the great start with a 72-64 win over Georgia Tech. The only other road wins this year were over Rollins and Erskine. The overall road record was 3-8, against 12-3 at home.

The traveling squad includes: Verstraete, Curry, Moore, Gill, Eddie Owens, Denny Burau, Connie Lewis, Robert Hobbs, Walker Cook, Ray Hassett, Adrian Winters, and David Patton.

ports were given by each of the chapters. The members of the GTC chapter were very encouraged by the progress they had made in comparison to the other chapters in the state. Following the business sessions, students from each chapter performed for the musical. Jean Fitzgerald was the only student from GTC who performed at the Musicales.

Donate Blood

Students again will have the opportunity to contribute to the Bloodmobile at the old gym Tuesday, March 3, from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

It is unnecessary to again extol the merits of giving blood—they are well known by all. Without blood there can be no life, and without a large amount of blood being contributed by GTC students there will be no membership for Bulloch County in the American Red Cross Blood Bank. Everyone knows what having this membership for Bulloch County means to each GTC student as far as getting blood quickly is concerned.

As added encouragement for the male students, whose who give blood, will win a chance to date Sibbie Hogan—Miss GTC herself—for an evening of dining and a movie all expenses paid. So boys this is your chance, it might not come again!

The Student Council, the sponsor of this year's drive, has set the goal for GTC at 300 pints. This goal should be easily reached by a student body the size of GTC's. Giving blood takes only a few minutes—minutes that might be very important to someone in dire need of blood.

Let's all give blood Wednesday and get a Red Cross Blood Entitlement Card; it may be needed.

Congratulations Profs

When during the course of human activities some one person or group of persons perform in a commendable manner, it is proper and in order for those who witness the performance to extend congratulations.

The Georgia Teachers College basketball team last Saturday night completed its regularly scheduled games with its usual commendable performance, winning over the Pembroke State cagers, 113-52. The Professors have just completed a season which must, by any standard, be considered successful. They didn't win all of their games even though they did play well above .500 ball against some of the toughest teams GTC has ever faced.

But the won-lost column or percentage doesn't really determine whether or not a season was successful. Sure, everyone wants to win, that's human nature; but when a team can lose in a gentlemanly manner—then they're really demonstrating the kind of behavior characterized by great teams—GTC's included. Something could be said about the Great Scorer and his writing against a name, but that really isn't necessary.

Tonight, as everyone knows, the Professors will meet Mercer in the District 25 Tournament. A recent survey of the student body at GTC indicated that the majority of the students feel that the Professors will win tonight. But regardless of the outcome of the game and possible tomorrow night, the team has performed in a commendable manner this year and we offer our congratulations not only to the team but to the coaches as well. As for tonight, professors do your best—and forget the rest!

Growing Pains

When a college or university doubles its enrollment in the short space of four years, dozens of growing pains come to the forefront. GTC has jumped from a quiet college of 500 students, to a bustling institution of 1,100 students since 1955.

One of the growing pains experienced by GTC is a growingly inadequate health program.

Each student pays a health fee of $4 per quarter, which amounts to more than $12,000 per year paid by the student body.

Our present health cottage is staffed by only a practical nurse. The flu epidemic the past two years often proved these facilities and small staff not adequate.

It is known that the administration is investigating improvement and expansion possibilities, and we're glad to hear it. The GTC student body deserves the best medical attention possible.

Psychotic Columnist On Rampage Again

By IRMA ROACH

Now that the welcome mat has been well stomped on, we'll go on with our little story.

My three fans asked me to take up my stilled pen and once more publish some written examples of my idiocy, so here I am, BACK.

Perhaps at least I like to think so, some of you have been wondering why my column hasn't been in the paper last quarter. Have you seen my roommate? If you have, do you still wonder? If you haven't, look her up sometime—she's enough reason for anything. She could reduce a genius to sheer idiocy, let alone me. Besides that, my mother kinda rocks me. Everyone else's mothers write them nice, sweet letters about how much they miss them, and love them, how proud of them they are. My mother has written me one letter this quarter consisting of:

Dear Irma,
You said for me to write and I have no news so here is your letter.
Ain't this fun!
Lots of love,
Mama.
P. S. Will come for you Friday.

Dear Irma,
You said for me to write and I have no news so here is your letter.

Ain't this fun!
Lots of love,
Mama.
P. S. Will come for you Friday.

day. Tell the gang hi.

No kidding, that was it. Four precious cents for that masterpiece of misconfiguration. By the way, my roommate invented that word, and if you have any original words you think sound pretty good, send them to me, Chairman of the Unusualities Words, Headquarters Room 302, West Hall. I'm compiling a dictionary.

Sometime I get the feeling that someone in our dorm hates me. Have you ever walked into your room and trip all over yourself and look up from your prone position and see, from the ceiling, from the bed, from the closet, from the desk, from the dresser, from the radiator, from everywhere, paper that used to be in a neat roll, all unrolled? Have you ever been calmly sitting at your desk playing canasta with your roommate and suddenly have the oddest sensation that you, your roommate, the desk, as a matter of fact, everything, is being covered with Bab-O, and then when the cloud settles, realize you HAVE been covered with Bab-O?

Besides all this, I'm taking psychology this quarter, and I'm convinced I've got every psychotic disorder in the text. You know that things that bother you in childhood are repressed into the subconscious mind and later come out in warped expressions. I must have had an interesting childhood, all 18 years, three months, and thirteen days of it.

Oh, I had a great honor bestowed on me the other night. I was voted "Girl Most Likely to Have a Mental Crackup."

ray's way...

By RAY WILSON

The future world will be a better one. A profound statement. No, it is not. Regardless of doubt, ignorance, political battles, wars, and pessimistic attitude our planet will be a better place to live in the future.

On what basis can such a statement be made? Man does not want to stand still. His unending efforts to see, with even better clarity and in increasing detail, the material world in which he lives and forms a minute part, will produce even greater advances than those of past history.

Each person lives consciously according to a fabric of ideas that has as its background a picture of ourselves and the world about us. Such a concept is the interpretation gradually built up over centuries of man's interaction with his perception of the world. It has never been static but has grown with his experience.

As new concepts and devices come into being man becomes increasingly aware of the new ways and means for advancement. Why do we want to advance when doing so only seems to bring more problems of living in a complexity of civilization.

Because man is a thinking creature he can see perfection and an ideal world in which all would have a wonderful life. But perhaps even more fundamental than that is he wants to know.

Our scientists are never satisfied and continually spend countless hours in every conceivable kind of research, experimentation, and thinking with two questions always in the foreground. These two questions are: Why does this happen and how does this happen?

We will never cease in this struggle for knowledge and understanding. This is why we place such emphasis on education and the educative process of our children. We want them to have the creative, understanding, seeking mind.

Some have asked why does one dedicate oneself to education and seeking out the unknown. The answer is not because of direct material gain. That is secondary. A person of dedication, in this manner, is a person with restless, unsatisfied mind that reaches out and gropes for the unknown in order to have a better understanding and thus a better tomorrow.

Music Potpourri

by KITTY KELLY

Hello you people—missed you last week. Guess I'll have to fill you in on two weeks of music activity.

On February 14, members of GTC's Gamma Theta chapter of SAI attended State Day on campus at the University of Georgia. Jean Fitzgerald, president of the local chapter, performed on an open Musicales which highlighted the day's events. Attending from GTC were: Jean Fitzgerald, Ruth Odom, Mary Ann Harrell, Jo Ann Wilson, and Mot Sheffield. Also represented were the Atlanta Alumni chapter, Beta Rho of GSCW, and the University chapter.

Senior recitals are close at hand for several Senior music students. To be featured this quarter are: on March 1 at 3 p. m.—Jo Ann Wilson, piano, and Bobby Godwin, clarinet; on March 1 at 3 p. m., Jo Ann Wilson, piano, and Bobby Godwin, clarinet; on March 8 at 3 p. m., Jean Fitzgerald, piano, and Billy Sanders, voice; and finally on March 9 at 7:15 p. m., Kitty Kelly, piano, and Ralph Bailey, saxophone. Students and faculty are cordially invited to attend these recitals.

Dr. Neil is scheduled to be vocal adjudicator for the District 8 Music Festival to be held in Waycross on March 13. His spring holidays will be spent adjudicating vocal events in festivals all over S. C. I told you the life of a college professor was hectic!

Dr. Dan Hooley is another who has been mighty busy lately, what with collaborating on a recently published music series, and composing script and music for several children's recordings. Watch for a feature on his doings in the next issue. Gotta leave now, so see you next time around.

--- Moore Or Less

By WILLIS MOORE

This tail-end of a conversation was caught in the Grill recently: Mr. Hodges to a student, "I like your face too, but I can't put it in the cash register."

A student was standing in the chow line the other day watching the workers on the new dining hall under construction. After a few moments gazing, he turned to his friend and said: "...and just think, they all are graduates of Georgia Tech."

Many times it pays for one to read the small print. We are aware that many contracts have small print that appears to be unimportant; yet it can pack a powerful punch. We live in a day of many contests of various and sundry descriptions. Having had association with these, we are conscious that the fine print carries significant information.

Have you ever read the small print on a chewing gum wrapper? Usually it reads: "Save this wrapper for the disposal of your gum." That is some valuable information. There is, without a doubt, a large number of persons who hold as their pet peeve, to step on discarded chewing gum. Aside from the fact that it is uncomfortable, it is harmful to shoes and clothing.

However, just because one puts discarded chewing gum in the old wrapper, does not justify his throwing it on the ground. The maintenance department has placed many waste paper cans about the campus and provides a trash pick-up service to these cans. Now, there is no reason why we should litter the campus with unsightly bits of trash.

Some while ago, one of the clubs on campus sponsored a "clean-up" drive. It is bad for someone to have to ask us to keep the place we live and work in clean. We are all old enough and should be mature enough to accept the responsibility of not throwing trash onto the ground.

We can keep our campus beautiful by exerting very little effort. All it takes on our part is to put the bits of trash into our pockets until we reach a trash can. A person can accept this duty and also set a good example for others.

Campus Capers

By MARY ANN HARRELL

I do believe that Spring has finally sprung. Of course by the time this paper gets to you, it will probably be six degrees below zero.

Early next Monday morning the GTC band will leave for a three day tour to several south Georgia cities. They plan to visit Swainsboro, Macon, Warner Robbins, Cordele, Valdosta, Douglas, and possibly Lyons. Sunday evening, the band will have a party at the home of the director, Mr. Fred Grumley, in order to get them off to a good start the next day.

There was general excitement throughout Lewis Hall last Sunday night when a "peeping tom" was spied out the back window. I don't know who the young man was, but I would like to tell him that if you are ever trying to hide, you certainly don't hide against a white door.

Last Monday night after the Richard Cass piano concert, West Hall and the Social Committee sponsored a reception for Mr. Cass in the lobby of West Hall. The recital and the reception were equally delightful and I only wish that more of you had attended.

The dance last Saturday night was sponsored by the senior class. It was a good dance and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

If you see any tiny looking creatures with funny looking objects in their hands running around the campus Friday and Saturday—don't be alarmed. They will be high school and elementary students here for the First District Music Festival.

Here's something funny! Last Monday night during the piano concert, Mr. Cass was playing a very dreamy, romantic, soft composition. There was not a sound from the audience—they were all ears until suddenly—someone sitting in the balcony fell completely down the entire flight of stairs, I think. Talking about destroying a mood.

The Masquers production of "The Little Foxes" was one of the best I've seen since I have been at this college. We certainly want to congratulate Mrs. Lee, the cast and all those who worked so hard backstage.

I hope all of you talented folk, will plan to appear in the Vet's Club Talent Revue. I understand that there are several cash prizes, and that sounds good to us all, doesn't it?

That's about it for this week—be good and have fun this week-end.

March 12 to Be Contest Deadline

At the Honors Day Program in May, Dr. Allen Hamilton Bunce of Statesboro, will present a silver tray to the Georgia Teachers College student who writes the best essay on some phase of Georgia history. Dr. Jack Averitt, chairman and professor of the social science division here at GTC, wishes to remind all students that March 12 is the deadline for registering their topics for the contest.

Dr. Averitt encourages majors from all fields to enter the contest. Winners for the past four years and their winning topics are: 1955, Clarence Miller, math major, "Reconstruction in Georgia"; 1956, Cecil Usher, social science major, "Georgia Loyalist Claims in the American Revolution"; 1957, Ralph Walton, science major, "The Nullification Movement in Georgia"; and 1958, Charlton Mosley, social science major, "The March to the Sea."

Dr. Bunce makes this annual presentation as a memorial to his father, James Allen Bunce.

GTC'S CO-ED OF THE WEEK is Sandra Mobley from Augusta, Georgia. Sandra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Mobley, 1909 Elizabeth Drive, Augusta. This is her first year at GTC, and she plans to major in math and minor in French. Her hobbies are dancing, collecting records and sewing. When she finishes at GTC, she plans to be a teacher.

Inquiring Reporter

By VIRGINIA KIRKLAND

"Mommy, Mommy, sister's on fire!"

"Shut-up and go get the marshmallows!"

This is only one of the so-called "cruelty" jokes being told around the campus lately. Most of the students have already formulated some sort of opinion about this type of humor. This prompted the Inquiring Reporter to find out the general opinion, so this week's question is, "What do you think of cruelty jokes?" Here are some of the answers given in reply.

Richard and Larry (employees of the little store)—All cruelty jokes about the little store are true!

Albert Burke—I like jokes that require thought. Those kind really aren't funny. A good joke, in my opinion, has some sense to it, and also, some logical thought behind it.

Jeanie Garrard—I tell them, but I feel like I shouldn't. I really don't think they should be told, because they are cruel.

Vernon Hearn—A cruelty joke is all right as long as it doesn't direct an insult toward anyone.

Greta Watson—I like them as long as they are not to the extreme.

Marianne DeLoach—Some of them are O. K. but some of them—ugh!

Nan Crosby—I don't like them. Some of them are all right but some of them aren't.

Billy Mock—Some of them are all right. All depends on how people take them.

Lane Hartley—I think some of them are cute, but some are pretty cruel.

"Shaky" Chivers—I like them. I think they are funny, but they shouldn't be told where they would hurt anybody.

Randy Everett—The more cruel they are, the better they are.

Joyce Muirhead—They are all right if you don't take them seriously.

Sandra Morton—I think some of them are funny, but some of them are downright cruel!

Denny Burau—They are definitely out of place if directed at some physical handicap or at religion.

Franklin Attends Athens Meeting

Rose Franklin, Home Economics Club president, will go to the University of Georgia, Athens, to attend the Executive Council meeting of the college club section of the Georgia Home Economics Association.

One item of business will be the selection of nominees for state officers for 1959-60. Amanda Tanner, Gayle Veldink, and Rose Franklin have been nominated by the local chapter as possible state nominees.

Miss Betty Lane, acting chairman of the division of Home Economics, has submitted an article for the magazine, "What's New in Home Economics?" The article deals with outdoor cookery and is scheduled to appear in the May issue.

Industrial Education Is Martin's Business

By JANE JACKSON

One of the new faculty additions to Marvin Pittman School is John S. Martin, industrial arts instructor.

Mr. Martin came to the GTC campus from Glennville, his hometown, where he taught industrial arts for six years. One year prior to these six he taught the same course of study in Sylvania.

Uncle Sam's navy claimed claimed four years of Mr. Martin's time from 1942-46.

When discharged from the navy he entered GTC and received his diploma in 1950 with a major in industrial arts.

He attended summer school here last year and is continuing his graduate work in education during Saturday classes.

Mr. Martin has completely re-organized the physical appearance of his shop and is working on a complete re-organization of the course of study.

"I'm hoping to put in an exploratory industrial arts course for the eighth grade, a composite general shop course for the ninth grade, and specialized courses for the top three grades in mechanical drawing, wood and metal work, the latter three being new courses for this school system," Mr. Martin stated.

He added, "My student teachers are a big help in this re-organization."

His student teachers are very much of the same opinion, too. I ran into one of them one day, literally dragging out of the shop.

"Workin' hard?", I asked. He said, "Man, I never get out of that shop before 5:00 p.m."

It's a known fact that Mr. Martin is a worker, because when student teachers are assigned to him, they are dismissed to their field with these words, "And may the Good Lord have mercy on your poor soul!"

Phi Delta Kappa Is Newest Club On GTC Campus

Phi Delta Kappa Club is the newest organization on the GTC campus. This club is designed for the promotion and improvement of free public education through a continuing interpretation of the ideals of research, service, and leadership.

This club is not at present associated with the national fraternity of Phi Delta Kappa. It is in the developmental stages, and plans are made for its becoming a part of the national organization in August of this year.

The members, at present, are Dr. Herbert Bice, of the math department; Dean Paul Carroll; Dr. Donald F. Hackett, Arts; Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of GTC; Mr. Tully S. Pennington, biology; Dr. Bill Weaver, education; and Mr. John Lindsey, education. Dean Ralph K. Tyson, director of student affairs, is serving as presiding officer. Mr. Edward Davidson, of the business department, holds the position of secretary.

Other members of the national fraternity living in the First District will be contacted, and extended an invitation to join this club. When a complete roll can be compiled formal application for membership in the national fraternity will be requested.
