One Nation; One People; We Endorse LBJ

In less than one month from now, Americans will go to the polls to elect a President of the United States. The choice voters will have is not simply one between a "liberal" or a "conservative" or a Democrat or Republican. It is much more significant than that.

American voters on November 3 will determine whether this country will improve on the efforts of past administrations and continue forward with new ideas, new goals, and new solutions to increasing problems of government; or whether this country will repudiate the efforts of the past four years and endorse certain policies which are outdated and unrealistic.

With this much said, The George-Anne endorses the Democratic ticket of President Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey. We feel this choice will better enable America to move ahead, to serve the needs of its people, to establish peace throughout the world.

States Rights

One of the major issues is states rights. This, of course, is nothing new. It has been an issue in election campaigns since 1896 and will probably be an issue for years to come.

Without a strong central government, America would never have survived the crises of two world wars and a nation-wide depression. Without a strong central government, America would never have attained her status as a world power. Without a strong central government, America will not be able to maintain world leadership.

Supreme Court

We also question Senator Goldwater's attack on the United States Supreme Court's reapportionment decision. We feel the court acted in the best interest of states rights and the rights of individuals to be represented in their state legislatures by "one person, one vote."

Though a strong central government is necessary, we feel that strong state governments serve a similarly important need and cannot afford to be malapportioned hindered by bickering between rural and urban legislators.

Foreign Policy

With two conflicting ideologies confronting the people of the world, the establishment of peace in a nuclear age will require sound intelligence, clear vision, and a realistic outlook.

Senator Goldwater has been skeptical of summit meetings with leaders of East and West. He voted against the nuclear test-ban, opposed disarmament talks, cultural exchanges, wheat dealings with Russia, and aid to Poland and Yugoslavia.

To battle the advance of communism, Americans must display a patriotism that will show the world the success of our system of government. This can be achieved by educating ourselves to and understanding conflicting ideologies, by maintaining an unquestionable faith in American democracy, and by possessing the strength to wage war and the prudence to avoid it.

With this in mind, we must also remain one nation and one people united in a common purpose stronger than all our differences and prejudices.

Georgia Governor Set For GSC Address On Monday

Governor Carl Sanders will visit Georgia Southern for the second time during his administration when he addresses the study body Monday night in McCroan Auditorium.

SANDERS

the GSC Democrats.

The Georgia Governor will arrive at the Bulloch County Municipal Airport at 6:30 p.m. Monday, and will be welcomed by "all students who wish to attend," according to Bob Flanders, president of Flanders expressed hope that a large number of GSC students would be on hand to meet the governor at the airport and termed Sanders' visit "the biggest political event on campus."

"Regardless of our political views," Flanders stated, "we must remember that more has been done for GSC under the Sanders Administration than under that of any other governor."

"He (Sanders) has made possible our academic and physical growth of the past few years. He is a friend of this college and its students," Flanders added.

The governor's address to student body is scheduled for 7 p.m. The national anthem will open the program, and the invocation will be given by the Rev. Henry Louttit, pastor of the Trinity Episcopal Church in Statesboro.

Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of GSC, will give a brief welcome speech for the governor, and Flanders will introduce him to the student body.

The Young Democrats will give Gov. Sanders a reception afterwards in the Frank I. Williams Center.

Flanders urged student body support of this event "regardless of political affiliation. I think we owe it to the college and to the governor," he said.

Gov. Sanders' last visit to Georgia Southern was in the fall of 1963 when he and Mrs. Sanders dedicated Brannen and Hendricks Halls.

40 Candidates Vie For Class Offices; Election Tuesday

Georgia Southern students will have an opportunity Tuesday, to elect 12 class officers and ratify a constitutional revision submitted by the Student Congress.

Approximately 40 candidates are competing for the 12 class positions. They were either selected by a nominating committee from their respective classes or received nomination in open class meetings held earlier this week.

The proposed changes in the Student Congress constitution up for approval Tuesday, appear on page four of the George-Anne. The ratification of the constitution must be approved by two-thirds of the student body, providing 51 per cent of the student body votes.

Polls will be set up in the various on-campus and off-campus dormitories for students living in these residence halls. Regular day students will vote in the lobby of the Student center. Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

SENIOR CLASS

Candidates for senior class officers include: President, James Rainwater, Jerry Gordon, Robert Stephens, Rand Bowden.

Vice-President: Billy Shepard and Allen Hunt.

Fluid Technology Adding To Industrial Arts Curriculum

The Industrial Arts and Technology department of Georgia Southern has expanded its offerings to include the area of Fluid Power, a new technological field.

H. M. Carmichael, assistant professor of industrial education, is directing the new fluid power program at Georgia Southern. He recently completed a comprehensive training program at Wayne State University in Detroit. Twenty college teachers were selected from the various geographic areas of the United States and Canada for this program.

Carmichael was involved with six weeks of intensive study of the basic laws, components, circuits and systems of hydraulics and pneumatics. He spent two weeks in training with practical experience in supervised study, disassembly and testing of fluid power components.

Fluid power is the science of generating, controlling and applying the energy of pumped or compressed fluids to push, pull, rotate, regulate or drive the mechanisms of modern life, Carmichael said.

He stated that a recent nationwide survey of industry, conducted by the National Fluid Power Association, revealed widespread shortages of personnel trained in fluid power on three levels: (1) skilled worker, (2) the engineering technician and (3) the graduate engineer.

Of 164 companies participating in the study, 43 per cent reported shortages in skilled workers trained in the operation of fluid power equipment; 56 percent reported shortages of fluid power maintenance personnel; and 60 percent reported shortages of technicians with a background in installation tion of fluid power systems and components.

Carmichael stated that the fluid power industry in the United States is expected to continue a growth twice that of the national economy for the next ten years. He said that a college student with a fluid power background and the ability to apply it can expect better-than-average opportunities for advancement.

Fluid power systems are used in practically every segment of American industry, he continued. Young people with fluid power training can expect to enjoy almost unlimited employment opportunities.

Dining Hall Problems Grow With The School---Pound

By PAUL HALPERN
Managing Editor

"We're trying as best we can to allow the students to straighten out the dining hall situation in their own way and in fairness to each other," stated C. R. Pound, Director of the Frank I. Williams Student Center, in answer to a question put to him concerning the meal service problem at Georgia Southern.

The main problem facing students who eat on campus is the long lines which form before each meal. "We've extended the time in an effort to ease the situation," added Pound.

According to the figures given by Pound for the first two weeks of school, the dining hall is being used by approximately 850 students for breakfast, 1750 for the noon day meal and 1550 for supper.

"We open the hall at 6:45 each morning for those students who have 7:30 classes to eat breakfast," said Pound. "By seven, the line has caught up and the hall is held open until 8 a.m. for those students with an 8:30 class."

"We could serve approximately 1,000 an hour if the line moved along at a regulated pace. We feel it would take an average student about 20 minutes to eat a meal if he didn't have to wait in line," Pound added.

The dining hall, which originally seated 500, now has the capacity to seat 600 at each meal. According to Pound, the new places were set up so a student would never have the problem of trying to find an empty chair.

"The problem of having to wait in line at each meal could be solved," stated Pound, "if everyone didn't try to eat as soon as he got out of class, but would come at different intervals."

"For instance," Pound explained, "if the students would stagger their eating times at ten minute intervals, the lines would never be long. This would not only ease the students' complaint about having to wait in line, but our staff would be able to serve more students in less time."

Pound was careful to point out that special permission is granted those who absolutely cannot eat at 11:30, 12:30 or 1:30 because of classes and they are allowed to eat as soon as the mid-day line is opened. Their cards are specially stamped.

"Because of some students thoughtlessness about breaking in line, disciplinary action has had to be taken several times. This would be unnecessary if the lines could be shortened," Pound said, "because there would be no use to break into line. All we can do at the present time, however, is ask for the students' co-operation."

Faculty members are the only people allowed to get in the line without having to wait along with the student body. "I think this is the only 'legal' line-breaking we could permit," said Pound. "We feel as though the members of the faculty would feel awkward standing in line with the student body and that the students themselves would rather not have faculty to join the line at the cash register as they come in through the faculty lounge."

In anticipation of the increased enrollment at the college, the dining hall has installed some new equipment and repaired much of the old equipment in order to give better service to the students.

The staff of the dining hall numbers about 35 in addition to the students who work in the lines.

Extensive Damage

As a result of last week's fire in the Marvin Pittman Laboratory School, extensive damage was done to building, books and school supplies. Discovered by a campus security officer Wednesday night, October 7, the fire was believed to have started in or above a closet in one of the school offices. Approximately 50-75 GSC students worked with the Statesboro Fire Department in extinguishing the blaze.

Women's Dormitory Will Continue Building Program

Georgia Southern's $6 million building program, which is beginning with a 300 student women's dormitory on Georgia Avenue, is currently being hampered by wet grounds due to the downpour of rain that fell two weeks ago.

Official ground-breaking ceremonies are planned for the immediate future, but the exact date has not been set.

The new residence hall will be located on Georgia Avenue. It will be of contemporary architecture and completely air-conditioned.

Bids for another women's dormitory, housing 250 students, and a men's dormitory, also to house 250, will be let by the first of the year. Bids on the new dining hall will be let around February or March, while the remaining structures (Fine Arts Building and an annex to the W. S. Hanner Building) will be bid on by June of 1965.

These five new buildings and the building addition are scheduled to be built on the Georgia Southern campus by the 1966-67 school year at a cost between $6 and $7 million.

The first women's dorm is scheduled to be completed by next fall and the other buildings are scheduled to be finished by 1966-67.

By next year, according to Dr. Henderson, GSC will have all the classroom space it will need for the forthcoming school year. A problem faced by every college in the United States is that of getting enough qualified instructors, Henderson added.

SMALL PORTION

Dr. Henderson said that only a small portion of Georgia Southern's 380 acre campus is being put to use at this time.

Future plans between now and 1970 call for a building program in the neighborhood of $10 and $12 million. These figures do not include the amount being spent on the current building program.

In mapping out future plans, Dr. Henderson was careful to point out that while Georgia Southern will expand its facilities greatly in the future, all of this will take time and at the current growth rate, the extent of the final building pro-

GSC Again Selected To Offer In-Service Science Institute

Georgia Southern has again been selected by the National Science Foundation to offer an In-Service Institute for secondary school science teachers.

The topic of the first course, which began Sept. 22 and will end Jan. 26, is Cytology-Cytogenetics and is taught by Dr. Leo Weeks, director of the institute. The instruction includes seventeen four-hour periods, which meet every Tuesday from 6-10 p.m.

Cellular Physiology, taught by Dr. Martha Tootle Cain will be the subject of the second course which will begin on Feb. 2, 1965 and end on May 25.

The graduate work done at the institute carries five quarter hours credit for each of the two courses. This credit may go toward the Master of Education degree or towards the Sixth-Year Certificate.

Courses to be offered during the next two years in In-Service Institutes include histology, histochemistry, developmental anatomy and biochemistry.

The National Science Foundation, which is a branch of the federal government, has granted the 1964-65 Institute $6,682 for its work.

Intercollegiate Debating Squad Meets Tuesday

Those interested in participating on the intercollegiate debate squad are invited to the first meeting to be held on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Administration Building.

Intercollegiate debate is not course. Interested students who have taken a speech course. Interested students who are unable to attend the meeting should contact Clarence McCord in his office between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. or between 1:30 and 3:00 p.m.

The national topic for intercollegiate debate is Resolved: That the Federal Government should establish a national program of public work for the Unemployed.

Plans are also being made for an intramural debate tournament on campus.

Campus Security Ready To Take Enforcing Steps

Georgia Southern students and faculty members will be up against genuine traffic summons beginning tomorrow if they persist in illegal parking.

Approximately 2634 car registration decals have been issued. There are 272 faculty cars and 1172 student cars registered on campus.

Decals for the use of two cars were issued to 40 students and to 30 staff members.

On-campus students operate 283 cars and commuters operate 889. Maintenance personnel use 18 vehicles.

All students bringing cars to the campus must have them registered, Merriman said. Visitors may register cars for the week-end in the Administration Building from 11 to 12 a.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m. on Fridays.

The administration of the college issues liability insurance for the protection of both cars and pedestrians. An area near the Hanner Building is provided for the parking of cars that do not have liability insurance.

Proposed Changes In Student Congress Constitution

Georgia Southern students will have an opportunity to vote next Tuesday on the Student Congress Constitutional revision. The George-Anne publishes these changes below in order that GSC students can have access to the changes before voting on them.

Proposed Changes in Constitution

- (1) Abolish the Finance Committee. Expenditures could be handled by the treasurer and the Executive Committee of the Student Congress.
- (2) Name editors of the George-Anne and Reflector as ex-officio members of Congress.
- (3) Abolish the Ways and Means Committee. The constitution does not define duties nor state the purpose of such a committee.
- (4) Article X. The Dean of Students along with the Executive Committee of the Student Congress shall determine the faculty advisor at the Spring Retreat.
- (5) Communications Committee should be abolished.

Committee of Campus Organizations

The purpose of this committee shall be to promote leadership among campus organizations and to encourage a variation of activities from these organizations to add to the cultural, social, and academic tone of the college.

- (1) The Committee of Campus Organizations shall meet bi-monthly and shall consist of the following: Student Congress Second Vice-president, Organizations Editors of the George-Anne and Reflector, and the presidents of all officially recognized campus organizations.
- (2) Specific objectives:
  - (a.) To promote a variety of interest-centered activities by campus organizations.
  - (b.) To develop policies designed to strengthen campus organizations.
  - (c.) To recognize campus organizations in good standing in official family of college-recognized organizations.
  - (d.) To improve the level of operation of campus organizations.
  - (e.) To promote individual student leadership through active participation.
  - (f.) To evaluate and recommend to Student Congress the probation, removal or addition of campus organizations.
  - (g.) To establish criteria and select campus organizations to be selected by the Congress as Outstanding Organizations on Honors Day.

One In A Thousand

It is true that one voice cannot be heard above the thousands — but it is also true that one voice helps make up the thousands. And so it will be Tuesday, October 20, when students of Georgia Southern College will have their chance to voice their opinion in the upcoming elections and the ratification to the Student Congress constitution.

A total of 40 candidates will be running for nine offices and it will be up to the students of GSC, as the qualified voters in this election, to choose the persons they think are best suited for the offices being sought.

Georgia Southern students will also have an opportunity to vote for a ratification to the Student Congress constitution when they go to the polls Tuesday.

Student turnout at class nominating meetings was extremely poor for potential leaders. If this is evident of the same interest that will be shown in our national election, it is, at the most, uncomplimentary.

The George-Anne will not take a stand for or against any person seeking an office on campus, but we are whole-heartedly in favor of the proposed ratification to the Student Congress constitution. The specific changes are listed in another editorial on this page.

The class elections will be held in the dormitories for on-campus students from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The off-campus students will follow their normal procedure and vote in the lobby of the Student Center.

Vote October 20. Let your voice be one of the thousands.

After people read my column of last week, I thought the South (at least the Georgia Southern College segment) was about to "rise again."

Southern patriotism ran high as letters poured into my office with all types of messages written on them. (Several printed below.) Of course, this was no surprise to me for I had realized when I wrote my column that I'd probably receive the Benedict Arnold Award.

Many people even began doubting I was a southerner. I was born and raised in Georgia. And I live in a small town, a straggling small town, one which goes by the name of Hahira - - - and I love it. But let's face it: the South's not infallible. Many people are attached to lines of Southern tradition that are outdated for the time in which we live.

I love the South and plan to live here, but I cannot support a selfish South - - - a South that refuses to give way to changing times and a changing society. The South that I want to look to in the future is one that recognizes the needs of every race and level of society; it's not too much to ask for a south that can honestly act on national problems without involving racial or sectional prejudice. This is what I want for the South. This is what I want for the Southerner.

PEOPLE READ

It's good to know that people read my column. Contrary to popular belief, I consider it even better to have people disagree with me openly. After all, a college newspaper should present an outlet for controversial opinions, and not exist solely as a bulletin board for campus activities.

I would like to present here a few excerpts from letters received last week as a result of my column. Each is accompanied with a reply.

LETTER:

"So the fellow who is for Goldwater is an ignorant Southerner . . . you should have a great deal of respect for your fellow student . . . you demonstrate no respect at all for those who differ with your own personal opinion."

REPLY:

Pardon me, but even now I'm unaware of any anti-Goldwater sentiments expressed in my column. Furthermore, I never placed, or meant to insinuate, the southerner as "ignorant." The way you read between the lines indicates some weakness on your own part. I have a great deal of respect for my fellow students, but I do not have to write on subjects agreeable to them to demonstrate this respect.

LETTER:

"We live south of the Mason-Dixon Line and North of Cuba . . . we have a bad habit of yelling Communism (insertion by Editor: Amen) and NAACP every time someone does something to make a change in this country . . . being it's against our wishes, no Communist will attend GSC. COMMUNIST! (Editor's insertion: See what I mean) . . . the Communist Supreme Court has over stepped their bounds, and onto our rights . . . a well-organized group disbelieves most highly in each word you write."

REPLY:

So you are the great deterrent to Communism. People who refuse to sign names to letters have a lot of room to talk about being proud. It's indicative that you don't want people to know who you are. People who shout Communism so fanatically are often the ones who turn a bad thing into a disaster. You show your lack of intelligence when you say "a well organized group disbelieves most highly in each word you write." Let's face it - - - there's a difference from night and day.

LETTER:

. . . your editorial page was a ludicrous imitation of THE ATLANTA JOURNAL . . . you seem to think that there is some dishonor in being a Southerner . . . you should apologize."

REPLY:

Thanks for the compliment. I greatly admire THE ATLANTA JOURNAL. I feel that the freshmen are capable of deciding their own political feelings. The editorial was aimed at questioning political inheritance from the family. I am proud to be a Southerner. Because I look inwardly and refuse to hang on to much outdated southern tradition, it doesn't make me wrong.

Students Express Opinions

Dear Editor:

Mr. Sable's statements are, for the most part, humorous but it is distressing to think that they might actually be taken seriously.

His use of the term "indecision" in describing the Kennedy-Johnson administration is quite interesting. Apparently Mr. Sable doesn't consider Barry Goldwater's voting record in the United States Senate indecisive . . . Barry Goldwater voted for the '57 Civil Rights Bill but against the 1964 Civil Rights Bill. He voted for tax relief for parents of college students but against federal aid to schools and colleges.

He voted for empowering the president to use force in Formosa and the Middle East but against the Trade Acts of 1962 empowering the president to cut tariffs. He voted for increased pay for government workers but against raising the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour.

This sort of voting record is not by idea of consistent, clear-cut leadership but the lobster that changes color when put in hot water. Mr. Sable is, in short, accusing the Democratic administration of the very thing that Sen. Goldwater is most guilty of.

Mr. Sable concludes his column by stating that Barry Goldwater "offers effective leadership which will not falter in the face of any communist threat." Speaking from the standpoint of past actions, Senator Goldwater's type of leadership faltered many months ago . . .

Ronald K. Mayhew

Dear Editor:

The College Young Democrats have been working diligently on a get-out-the-vote campaign. They have not made any moves to get people to vote for a particular candidate. They are simply trying to get the students of GSC to exercise their rights and to accept their civic responsibility. I think it was a person of extremely bad taste who placed the Goldwater bumper sticker on the window of the Student Center lobby.

Whoever placed that sticker on the window was breaking school regulations as well as exhibiting extremely bad taste and crudity. I believe that such an act speaks eloquently of the type of people who are supporting Mr. Goldwater.

Claudia Burkett

Dear Editor:

. . . your editorial page was a ludicrous imitation of THE ATLANTA JOURNAL . . . you accuse our Freshman class of being unable to think for themselves and yet you imply that you are qualified to tell them, ignoring such issues as our depleted gold reserve and the rising tide of inflation that devours 67 per cent of ever dollar. . . as for "Mr. Southerner, I am directly opposed to each and every opinion expressed therein . . . you say we live on a "below the average salary," and that we live in straggling small towns . . . we (family) live in a straggling small town of 2,500 people . . . its economy is largely agricultural but this is no vice.

. . . you seem to think that there is some dishonor in being a southerner and that we should all apologize for our origin . . . we southerners can be stubborn, especially when we know we are right.

Civil War Disagreement Is Still Election Debate Issue

By BRYANT YOUNANS

In reality, the Civil War ended forever the states' rights doctrine even though it had to be done by means of brutal combat. This does not mean to imply that this was the only issue in the Civil War. Nevertheless, this controversy has remained a factor in the politics of this nation.

It has been like a smoldering fire that loses its vitality for awhile, but flares up again in different periods of our history. Today, that flame has been renewed by Sen. Goldwater, who has maintained that "states rights" is an issue in the campaign.

Historically speaking, there have been two state nullification attempts to override the power of the national government. First of these was the Virginia and Kentucky Resolutions of 1798 and the other was South Carolina's attempt to nullify a tariff law passed by Congress. Both attempts were unsuccessful.

NO BASIS

The central theme of this paper is to show that there is no constitutional basis for this doctrine of "States' Rights," of John C. Calhoun in the 1830's and now advocated by Mr. Goldwater.

The national government is supreme and no state may constitutionally nullify or obstruct the acts of Congress. What if each state did this? How long could we possibly sustain our national security and welfare?

A states' rights advocate of today will expound the theory that the states have been stripped of all powers and individual rights. How could this be possible when the Tenth Amendment of the Constitution prevents this? It reads: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

In other words, the states are independent from the "monster" in Washington and cannot be deprived of their right to make policy in areas reserved to them by the Constitution.

Politicians have always played on the motions of people and Sen. Goldwater is no exception. In fact, his entire campaign has been based on emotionalism. He would have the people believe that he could literally free the state and local governments from the hand of the federal government.

A CLOSE LOOK

Sen. Goldwater advocates cutting taxes 25 per cent and reducing the federal budget. Adhering to the theory that facts speak for themselves, let us examine the federal government domestic expenditures from 1949 to 1957 as compared to the amount the states received.

In 1949 the federal government spent $25,000,000 on domestic expenditures and in 1957, $50,000,000. In 1949 the states spent $130,000,000 on domestic expenditures and in 1957, $225,000,000. Yet, cries in the night can be heard that all the money is spent in Washington and the states are left to perish.

Moreover, there are those who question the amount of Federal regulation that comes along with the gifts from Washington such as grants-in-aid. Certainly one must concede to the fact that certain conditions must be met by the states. One reason is that many times people would not obtain these grants for projects such as highways and airports due to the irresponsibility and unrepresentativeness of state and local governments.

Another reason is that many of the states do not have the specialized personnel to inspect these conditions. An important reason for the trend in increased federal expenditures from 1927 to 1957 has been much the result of World War I and II and the prevention of World War III.

In conclusion, let it be known that this writer does not believe in state powers and rights but in the sense of national-state cooperation basis. In essence, a nation must sustain itself with a supreme national government with cooperating regional governments.

The Goldwater position of "states' rights" does not hold water as the old saying goes—"the gold is artificial in them thar hills."

'Spoon River Anthology'--- Most Salient Among Works

By ALTIMON DOY BECK
Graduate Assistant English Department

Masters, Edgar Lee. Spoon River Anthology. New York: Collier Books. 318 pages. $95 (Will be on sale in the Frank I. Williams Center bookstore soon.)

BECK

Anthology has gone through more than seventy printings and editions in almost as many languages.

In his autobiography, Across Spoon River (1924), Masters revealed that Spoon River Anthology had originally been intended for the medium of prose. Masters was, however, influenced by the compression of style in the poetry of Epigrams from the Greek Anthology which he had read in 1913.

INSPIRED

It was, therefore, The Greek Anthology that inspired Masters and dictated the form that his book should assume. On the other hand, however, Masters' hatred of small town hypocrisy and deadly existence, his dedication to justice and his belief in agrarianism (he hated industrialization and urbanization) lent themselves as suitable arguments to imbed in the dialogue of his more than 244 characters, who speak from the darkness of their graves in a cemetery near Petersburg and Lewiston, Illinois, Masters' boyhood home.

MASTERS WROTE

"The Genesis of Spoon River," written for H. L. Mencken's American Mirror (1924), Masters wrote:

"... there are nineteen stories developed by interrelated portraits... Practically every ordinary human occupation is covered... When the book was put together in its definitive order, the fools, the drunkards, and the failures came first, the people of one-birth got second place, and the heroes and the enlightened spirits came last, a sore of Divine Comedy.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"SURE I READ YOUR TEXT BOOK ASSIGNMENTS, IT'S THE ONLY WAY I CAN FALL ASLEEP!"

... The names I drew from the Spoon River and Sangamon there, and taking some also River cemeteries, combining first names here with surnames from the constitutions and State papers of Illinois."

ORIGINALITY

Masters' fame and that of Spoon River Anthology can be attributed not only to his originality of form and his brave dogmatic stance on the unpopular side of important issues of the day, but also to the scandal perpetrated by living individuals who believed that Masters was attacking their ostentatious adherence to puritanical and Victorian moral codes for the purpose of social advancement. Master's purpose, however, had been misinterpreted, for he was acutely aware of tragic weaknesses in human beings.

Masters, moreover, was seeking to revive and give expression to the ideals of the Greeks, rather than inviting malicious scandal from persons to provincial in thought to perceive anything in Spoon River Anthology beyond his inveighing against "Personal" weaknesses.

Interviewed by Robert van Gelder of the New York Times (1942), Masters said: "I am a Hellenist... The great marvel of the world is Greek civilization. They thought in universals, as did the Elizabethans. We are provincial in our thoughts..."

AFTER GOING TO PRESS

Soon after Spoon River Anthology went to press, its author, (remarked Horace Gregory in A History of American Poetry 1900-40) "collapsed and was dangerously ill. Harriet Monroe of Poetry read and corrected the final proofs..."

Master's epitaph was taken from a poem of his called "Tomorrow Is My Birthday." It can be found in Whit Burnett's This Is My Best Dial, (1942).

In her introduction to Spoon River Anthology, which is (or will be on sale in our Frank I. Williams Center bookstore), May Swenson concludes:

"In Spoon River, Masters borrowed the mouths of the dead to give vent to all his grudges, beliefs, indignations, insights, prophecies, discoveries of glaring injustice, revelations of life's mysteries and paradoxes—his own eccentric philosophy. Miraculously he also created and bequeathed to us a world in microcosm, new in form, timeless in essence."

More Letters

Dear Editor:

Mr. Sable, in his article in support of the Goldwater candidacy, has led one to believe that since January 20, 1961, the prestige of the U. S. has been considerably lowered.

In the eight years of the Eisenhower administration, one should be able to recall: the 1958 disaster of the Nixon Good Will trip to the Americas. This needs to be compared to the Kennedy visit to the Americas in 1961 or his Mexican trip which received such acclaim from the Mexican people.

Does anyone remember the first Sputnik which was also under the Eisenhower years as compared to the John Glenn flight of January 1962?

To continue, I would like to remind those concerned with our prestige to think back to the last year of the Eisenhower administration when the protest to his visit to Japan was so strong, the visit was cancelled.

I am sure that the point has been made that the prestige of the U. S. is at an all-time high due to the policies of the present administration which have brought to us and our allies such dynamic efforts as the Peace Corps and the Alliance for Progress.

Economic Methods Must Be Replaced

By LEO SABLE

Federal inefficiency and waste must be replaced by sound economic methods of management if the United States is to continue as the world's economic barometer.

Government must have a long range fiscal policy which will insure momentary stability and encourage the growth of the free enterprise system. The eradication of short range economic policies of the Johnson Administration indicates disregard for the future and inability or unwillingness to instigate economic policies which will bring an end to deficit spending.

It is quite obvious that the Administration is concerned only with its present political position and is not the least concerned with the future growth of the nation. What ever economic policy seems politically advantageous at a particular time is the policy taken by the Administration with flagrant disregard for long range economic effects.

Barry Goldwater has proposed the establishment of a permanent commission which will continually investigate inefficiency and waste in government. A continuous evaluation of government spending is necessary to create and maintain efficiency.

No short range tax cut or spree of moment policies will produce continued economic growth, but rather will cause a spasmodic and cyclic growth pattern characterized by unpredictable inflationary periods.

An intensive study of the United States tax structure should be undertaken so that effective tax reform could be initiated. Goldwater supports reduction of personal income taxes but also supports tax reform and the procurement of additional revenue.

CUTTING TAXES

Cutting taxes without developing some source to offset revenue loss and also increasing total government expenditures is clearly unsound fiscal policy.

Individual incentive has been weakened by inflationary measures and instability of Federal fiscal policy. Many projects undertaken by the Federal Government could be done by individual business men or larger firms.

APO To Honor Governor; 25 Pledged To Circle K

By LOUISE COX

Gov. Carl Sanders will become an honorary member of the Nu Epsilon Chapter of APO when he visits the campus Monday.

Leroy Delionback APO President said the Georgia governor will receive the fraternity shingle when he speaks to the student body.

Twenty-five pledges were added to the GSC Circle K chapter. The new pledge class will be led by Gordon Turner as president.

Other officers are Carl Turner Secretary-treasurer and Jimmy Rawlins public relations.

Monday night the chapter met to discuss projects for the oncoming pledge season. Details of these activities will be released later according to Turner.

The Delta Pi Alpha's are busy behind closed doors. They seem to be very active but are most secretive about their incoming pledge class and new chapter sweetheart.

Tonight's "Sounds from Southern" will feature GSC students giving their own interpretations of jazz classical, or folk music. Participating on the program will be Harry Shore, Mitchell Dedge, Bob Seapherman, Danny Broucek, Nell McBride, Shelia Waters and Cheryl Bartley.

APO installed fifteen new pledges Tuesday night. They are: Bob Witcher, Calvin Ward, Carl Shirk, Bob Evans, Ed Salter, Jake Rawl, Tony Mitchum, Frank Parker, Donnie Powell, Woody Ward, Russ Bachman, Ronine Braziel, Wilnot Shealy, and William Campbell.

The Delta Sig dance with James Brown last week-end proved how much a large enrollment can mean to the social life at GSC. There was the usual exodus Friday afternoon as so many students went home for the week-end. Yet at the dance that night the Armory floor was comfortably crowded, showing that the Delta Sig's didn't lack student support. Just goes to show that even with so many leaving for the week-end we still have a student body large enough to carry on here at the campus.

NOTICE

Presidents of campus organizations are urged to return letters concerning club pictures to the Reflector office by Friday. Presidents who have not received a letter should contact Mike Martin in the Reflector office.

German Student Comments On Music, Southern Charms

By AGNAS FARKAS
Staff Writer

Lutz Seidel, Rotary student from Germany, is amazed at America's country music, grits, and southern friendliness.

Seidel, a recent graduate of the gymnasium (comparable to our junior college) is interested in literature, especially modern drama, as well as music. He is a classical music fan and has taperecorded scores from operettas played on the radio so he could "play them all day."

On the other hand he says, "I like very much your country and western music." Country and western music has been popularized in Germany through the armed forces radio network since the audience is usually 70 to 80% German, according to Seidel. He commented that he would enjoy a visit to Nashville, Tenn., home of the "Grand Old Opry."

Seidel stated that people in the South are "friendlier and warmer" than those in the states of Minnesota, Illinois, and Wisconsin where he recently visited.

He is very much interested in languages. "Many Americans touring Europe would have more personal profit from their tour if they knew a foreign language," he says. He speaks English and French, as well as some Italian, Spanish and Russian.

He feels Russian is "important to the future as well as Chinese" as language is a key to understanding. Since he is considering a military career as an interpreter, languages are especially important to him.

Seidel confesses that he misses the famous German beer. "It was kind of strange when they refused me in a bar here just because I was 20. You can join the army when you're 18, but you can't drink beer," he says.

He misses German food also, especially fish. His home town near Bremen which is so small he says "you wouldn't find it on the map" is noted for its fishing industry. He also commented that Germans do not eat sour kraut as often as Americans seem to think. As to southern food his comment was, "I think you have to be born a Southerner to like grits."

Seidel will probably have to enter the service when he returns home as many of his former classmates have already had to do so. Other classmates are enrolled in universities, but that is not always an excuse for deferment.

Seidel commented that from viewing his friends who are university students, he concludes that European students have more freedom.

Athletes' Feats

By LAMAR HARRIS

Many times we read different articles written by sports writers about team spirit. They usually praise the spirited but offer a challenge to them to do better. Few schools have what you would call tremendous spirit, either on the part of the team or their supporters. Even more unusual is a spirited team supported by a cheering throng of spectators. Allow me to illustrate.

My "alma mater", Willingham High School, is currently tied for the league lead in Region 1-AAA with a 5-0 worksheet. The team, as well as the students, is loaded with spirit. Willingham doesn't have an outstanding team, talent-wise, but because of intestinal fortitude, a desire to win and spirit they are presently undefeated.

The student body has a sign which reads "We're No. 1." They may not be number one, but as of yet, no one has proven otherwise. The most important factor is that the team and the spectators sincerely believe they are number one!

EAGLES ARE SAME

The Georgia Southern Eagles are no different from any other athletic team. They love to win; they hate to lose; they love to be praised; they hate to be criticized, non-constructively.

I am at GSC now. No longer am I a Willingham Ram, but a Georgia Southern Eagle. First, last, and always I'll remain an Eagle. That's the way it should be.

People come to GSC from all over the place. Small town, big city, out-of-stater, and foreign student all come to GSC. And whether they are from Rome, Georgia or Rome, Italy; Athens, Georgia or Athens, Greece; Jacksonville, Georgia or Jacksonville, Florida; they are all Eagles. Loyalty should be to Georgia Southern, and not to some prep school somewhere. Certainly that prep school will always occupy a place in your heart. But first loyalty belongs to GSC.

THREE SPORTS

Teams representing the three major sports at GSC participated in national tournaments. The gymnastics team, coached by Pat Yeager, lost to Western Illinois in the National championship by one-half point. The basketball team, coached by J. B. Scarce, went to the second round of the national NAIA tournament before losing to High Point College of High Point, North Carolina. The baseball team finished third in the nation in NAIA, under the leadership of J. I. Clements. The Eagle tennis and golf teams fared well against intercollegiate competition, but neither team went to national tournament.

It all boils down to this. We, as a student body, should support athletics at GSC.

But, then, anyone can support a winning team. Look at the New York Mets. Attendance and support skyrocketed this year and the Mets still finished about 13 games out of ninth place, that is. But let's bring this idea closer to us at GSC. Last winter the Eagles lost several games over the Christmas holidays. But they returned to Statesboro on January 3 and, cheered on by a packed house, started a winning streak which led to a winning season for the basketballers.

DESIRE TO WIN

Athletes can sense a desire to win on the part of the spectators. Therefore, they try to better represent GSC, not only for themselves, but for the entire student body. To quote the gymnasts of David Lipscomb, "We try harder." Athletes do try harder! They exert their best when they know someone is behind them.

To sum up what I have tried to say, let me close with three points which I hope will give you a better understanding of my call for unity. First, believe in your team. Have faith in your team. Believing is half of achieving!

Second, have an understanding and knowledge of the ability of your team. Third, support your team with all your heart and spirit. This policy is not restricted to use in the athletic realm. It is a fairly good policy on which to base your life.

Strickland Ranked Tops In National Women's Putt-Putt

Miss Evelyn Strickland, a freshman Physical Education major from Macon, is the bearer of the title of 1964 National Women's Putt-Putt Champion by virtue of a hole-in-one in a sudden death play-off.

Miss Strickland shot a 200 series for a total of 108 holes, or 13 under par.

Her putt-putt career began in Macon where in 1961 and 1962 she was City Putt-Putt Champion. Both years she neatly disposed of male competitors to win the championship. Not being completely invulnerable, she lost the 1963 championship to one of her male challengers.

Her brother, Carl, and her father finished in a tie for ninth place in the men's division of the National Championship.

Miss Strickland's exceptional ability was not limited to the putting world during her high school years. She was Senior Class Superlative, Treasurer of the Beta Club, Classes Editor for the Senior Class on her high school yearbook, Senior Class President, Best Citizen, and Honor Graduate.

The McEvoy Scholarship, presented annually to a leading senior at McEvoy High School, was awarded Miss Strickland last spring.

Other awards received by Miss Strickland include the Middle Georgia Phi Beta Kappa Certificate, the DAR Good Citizen Certificate, and the University of Georgia Certificate of Merit.

Proving putting can be not only enjoyable, but also quite profitable, Miss Strickland won $500 in the National tournament and $200 in a tournament in Fayetteville.

Miss Strickland said her lowest score in organized play was 25. That means at least 11 of the 18 holes must have been aced.

Basketballers Strong With Five Returning Lettermen

By TOM KING
Sports Writer

Georgia Southern's basketball Eagles will be supported by five returning lettermen, several outstanding transfers, and some promising freshmen.

Returning to pace the Eagles' attack is Don Adler, six-foot junior guard from Princeton, Indiana. David Owens, 6-2 senior center from Pavo, will be back to bolster the rebounding department. Also returning are Raymond Reynolds, 6-4 senior forward from Winder, Mike Rickard, 6-2 junior forward from Evansville, Indiana.

Dave Christiansen, 6-6 sophomore center from Louisville, Kentucky, will be back with a year of experience under his belt. Along with him will be Jim Seeley, sophomore from Molen, Illinois.

Bill Pickens, who was the starting center for Stetson last year, will return to GSC after a years absence to strengthen the Eagles' squad this season.

The freshmen class offers several prospects. Among these is Bootie Ethridge, of Auburn-dale, Florida. Etheridge, who was unanimously selected captain of the Florida Southern Conference All-Stars, was picked by Coach & Athlete magazine as honorable mention High School All-American.

Mike Davis, 6-3 freshman from Warner Robins, and Frank Waters of South Cobb both played in the North-South All-Star game.

Fran Florian and John Burton are lost from last year's squad. Florian set an all time scoring record for Georgia Southern last year when he basketed 60 points against Jacksonville. John Burton, last year's co-captain, will also be missed from the squad.

Coach Searce announced that practice began today and anyone interested in trying out for the team should contact him at the earliest possible date.

EXPLANATION — The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin relative to index of opposition, and is weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: A 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of equal strength. It was originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel

Brown Rolls Outstanding Series To Pace Bowling League Action

By PAUL ALLEN
Sports Writer

Tuesday evening the Eagle Ten Pinners League saw Cliff Lowden roll the high game of the night with a 227 while Barbara (Babs) Brown had high game for the women with a 181.

Bob Armento and Babs Brown took over high individual average in the league with 172 and 169 respectively.

The Kingpinners had the high team game, 662, and the high team series, 1940. This team is in first place as they remain undefeated.

A team is given two points for each game won and an additional two points for winning the three game series. If a team ties with another team, they each receive one point instead of one-half point.

This week's honor roll includes Cliff Lowden, 534; Bob Armento, 528; Barbara (Babs) Brown, 508; Nancy Cook, 416; Carol Frankum, 414; and Ellen Smith, 409.

Brown's 508 total not only pushed her into the women's individual lead, but also set a new women's series mark which other women bowlers will now have to shoot for as their goal.

Paul Allen holds the men's series total with a 539.

Job Kettle

The Office of Student Personnel Services maintains a bulletin board in the Administration Building for the purpose of informing students of job opportunities. The board lists the dates and locations various representatives are on campus to view prospective employees. Assistant Dean John Cole serves as director and coordinator of the program.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

An annual membership drive is being conducted by the Georgia Southern College unit of the Georgia Education Association through Nov. 1, according to Dr. Harold T. Johnson, president.

ACE

The Association for Childhood Education will hold its first meeting Tuesday, Oct. 20, at 7 o'clock in the auditorium of Marvin Pittman School.

All elementary education majors, or anyone interested in children through age 12, are invited to attend.

VACCINE

A fair turnout of approximately one-half of the student body received flu shots, according to Nurse Eva Bryant of the Health Cottage.

Students from Cone Hall, Howard Hotel, and Wicaba Motel will receive shots tomorrow. This will conclude the health service schedule.

AGREEMENT

An agreement has been reached between the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans on campus as to the placement of presidential campaign stickers in the lobby of the Student Center.

The two organizations have also agreed to remove any campaign stickers placed on other school property.

SGEA

The Georgia Southern chapter of the Student Georgia Education Association was recently made an affiliate member of the Georgia Education Association, according to John Lindsey, advisor.

Freshman Class

Inquiring Reporter

With an increase in the number of students at GSC, there has also been a marked increase in the number of cars on campus. Consequently, the parking areas have become extremely crowded. Students were asked this week if prohibiting freshmen from having cars would solve the traffic problem. These opinions were expressed:

Mike Nix, McRae: It would solve the present problem, but would also create another — a lot of unhappy freshmen. A compromise could be made by restricting freshmen to the poorer parking areas, like over by the new tennis courts, and leaving the area in front of the Student Center for juniors and seniors.

Madeline Misfeldt, Marietta: No. I really don't think that many freshmen have cars. The main problem is that spaces aren't marked off, especially by Marvin Pittman School and the Carruth Building.

Bill Parry, Lake Wales, Fla.: I think it would solve part of the problem, but I don't think freshmen should be deprived of the privilege of having cars on campus.

Johnny Rountree, Orlando, Fla.: It's the school's fault that there isn't adequate parking space. Therefore, I don't think freshmen should be denied this privilege.

Partner Davis, Waycross: I think this would solve one parking problem, but other parking problems would be encountered by freshmen.

Judy Deal, Savannah: Yes, and it would be an advantage to freshmen because they would spend more time studying and would become better adjusted to the demands of college.

Martha Bell, Augusta: No. I think the cars are needed to give other people rides to classes and back. If freshmen have cars, they should be able to bring them.

Jack Donaldson, Columbus: The school is growing and the number of cars is increasing. If they take cars away from freshmen now, the problem will arise again next year, so why bother?

Nat Allen, Statesboro: I think freshmen shouldn't have cars because I can't find a parking place when I come to school. When they become sophomores, they earn the privilege of having cars.

Carole Gregory, Eatonton: I think if freshmen are lucky enough to have cars, they should be permitted to keep them on campus. Nobody enjoys walking that much!

Glada Hooks, Swainsboro: Due to the fact that the freshmen class is the largest on campus, I feel that the traffic problems would be reduced if they weren't allowed to have cars.

Actors Will Present Production In McCroan To GSC Students

"Spoon River," a former Broadway play and the only professional production which the Masquers Fine Arts Series will bring to the Georgia Southern campus this year, is scheduled for Saturday, October 24, at 8:15 p.m. in McCroan Auditorium, according to Robert Overstreet, director of the Masquers.

Georgia Southern students will see the play exactly as it was produced on Broadway. It will be presented by a touring group of New York actors. The cast includes Carl Esser, Linda Seff, William Severs and Barbara Gilbert. Two folksingers, Gil Turner and Marilyn Child, will also be featured.

Originating on the west coast, the play later had a successful run in New York during the 1963 season. It was called a "glowing theater experience" by the New York Times. Walter Kerr, critic for the New York Herald-Tribune, called it a "first rate" production.

The script of "Spoon River" was adapted by Charles Aidman from Edgar Lee Masters' classic, "Spoon River Anthology." Aidman, a veteran Broadway performer, also directed the production.

"A haunting, hilarious and heartwarming portrait of life in the American middle west at the turn of the century is represented," Overstreet said. "The citizens of Spoon River guffawed and chortled, suffered and sorrowed, schemed and aspired. They were made of the stuff of life and reveal the passions of man," Overstreet concluded.

All seats for "Spoon River" will be reserved. Tickets are priced at $3.00, $2.25 and $1.50 and may be secured from Overstreet backstage at McCroan Auditorium.

Interviews Set For Next Week

Students interested in jobs with the Red Cross or Sears Roebuck and Company will have an opportunity to discuss these matters with representatives from both organizations next week.

Miss Hazel Breland, assistant personnel director of the American Red Cross, Atlanta, will be at Georgia Southern Monday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. in room 115 of the Frank I. Williams Center.

Miss Breland said careers are open to both men and women with the following requirements: U. S. Citizenship, good health, and wide nobility.

L. A. Burkhard of Sears Roebuck and Company will talk to those interested in a management training program and other finance positions.

He will be in room 115 of the Frank I. Williams Center on October 23 from 9 A.M. until 5 P.M.

Student Writes On Parking Problem

Editor's Note: This article is not published as editorial opinion of the George-Anne, but it does emphasize facts which we feel should be given consideration).

By R. H. MATTOX

Immediate action should be taken to reduce the traffic on the Georgia Southern campus. Heavy traffic is a danger to students walking to and from their daily classes.

Due to the fast growth of the college there are over two thousand automobiles operating on 2.5 miles of streets, connecting seven parking lots containing twelve acres of parking space. This concentration of automobiles is much heavier than the downtown section of any city. With over 3,700 people in this same area the automobiles are a constant threat to the safety of pedestrians.

The 889 automobiles registered by day students make a trip to the campus daily. The faculty and service workers add another 300 automobile trips on and off the campus. The transportation of Marvin Pittman students by bus and private automobiles adds traffic during the morning and afternoon hours.

CONSTRUCTION

Construction of two large buildings on campus requires the use of a number of trucks and automobiles for the construction workers. The future schedule of construction will add more traffic for the next five years.

Of the 1000 student automobiles on campus, over half are used daily for trips off the campus. A number of students drive across campus to class! A lot of traffic is caused by students leaving campus immediately after class.

SERIOUS THREAT

Due to the large number of automobiles and trucks in continuous use throughout the day, Georgia Southern College's traffic is a serious threat to the life and safety of this college community.

There are excellent plans to provide the necessary traffic control on the drafting boards of the college master plan. The planning phase until 1970 contains these traffic plans.

ACTION REQUIRED

Due to the dangerous traffic conditions that have materialized the first week of this quarter, I feel that immediate action is required. The street plans from the 1970 master building plan should be started this week.

A street from the Marvin Pittman school to Highway 301 should be constructed this month. This street would serve the school maintenance service personnel, the women's dormitory parking lot, and the Carruth parking lot.

ENTRANCES CLOSED

All street entrances to Sweetheart Circle would be closed except the Highway 301 entrance. Only faculty and visitors would be allowed on the Circle. This would reduce the cross traffic on campus and provide suitable parking for visitors.

The parking lot behind Cone Hall should have a street due north to join Tillman Road. Cone Hall parking lot would only have this one entrance street. Adding these two entrance streets and closing off Sweetheart Circle would reduce the campus traffic by 70-80%. The 100 student cars would be in student parking lots and could not be used for on-campus driving.

DEMANDS ATTENTION

The campus traffic problem demands immediate action before some student loses his life on the way to class. Should this happen, it will cause the traffic measures as outlined to be placed in effect. Certainly no one wants traffic improvements motivated from this type of accident. But these deadly conditions do exist along 2.5 miles of our campus streets this day.

Today is the day control measures must be taken for the safety of our campus community.
