Officials Attend NEA Convention In New York City

Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of the Georgia Education Association and president of Georgia Southern College, and Dr. Starr Miller, chairman of the GSC Education Division, are among 10,000 teachers and administrators attending the National Education Association convention in New York City. Madison Square Garden is the center for all meetings of the 103rd Convention, whose theme is "Education for World Responsibility."

Delegates to the Convention are being kept busy for four days attending the representative assemblies, state delegations, opening hearings, and electing new officers.

In keeping with the theme for the convention, delegates and visitors will have an opportunity to meet with representatives of various international groups at an international center in the New York Hilton Hotel.

Kenneth Westcott Simons

Simons named new assistant college registrar

Kenneth Westcott Simons has been named assistant registrar of Georgia Southern. Mr. Simons began his work here yesterday, according to Lloyd Joiner, Registrar.

Born in Detroit, Mich., Mr. Simons graduated from Byram High School in Jackson, Miss., and obtained his B.A. degree from Millsaps College in 1953. He is now a candidate for the M.A. degree from Florida State University.

Besides serving with the U.S. Army, Mr. Simons has served as director of the records section, University of Southern Mississippi, accountant at Auburn University, and as games manager at Florida State University.

Miss Penny Allen, retiring assistant dietician, was the guest of honor at a dinner party last Friday evening. Given by the staff of the Frank I. Williams Center, the party was held in the guest dining room of the Center. After a brief review of the growth of the college and projection of plans for the future, Dr. Henderson presented Miss Allen with a watch as token of appreciation from her co-workers for her years of service.

Former BC Sheriff Joins Security Force; Department Reorganized

With the appointment of former Bulloch County Sheriff Harold Howell as security officer, Dean Ralph Tyson announces a major reorganization in the Campus Security and Safety Office. Mr. Howell will head an administrative unit which is an adjunct of the Office of Student Personnel Services.

Harold Howell

Working with him are Deputy Security Officers, Howard Merriman, Cordell Cowart and James Ray Akins.

Mr. Howell is a veteran law enforcement officer, having served for six years with the Georgia Highway Patrol, one year as deputy sheriff of Bulloch County, and eight years as sheriff. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia school on Traffic and Criminal Investigation, the Georgia Peace Officers' school on General Law Enforcement, and the FBI school on Riot Control and Court Procedure.

"I'd like," said Mr. Howell, "for students and faculty that have problems on which I might be of help, to contact me at my office in the old gym." The primary responsibility of the Security Office is to promote, enforce and suggest safety and security measures for the campus, and to work and cooperate with other offices and administrative officers of the college in promoting a campus climate favorable to the purposes of the college, Tyson pointed out.

Two plays planned for summer term

Two summer one-act plays will be presented this quarter, directed by Ken Robbins and Wendell Ramage and under the general supervision of Robert Overstreet, assistant professor of speech. Production dates for the two shows are August 4 and 5, 1965, in McCroan Auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

Ken Robbins will direct "Miss Julie," a play by August Strindberg, a modern dramatist and author of "The Father," which was presented recently by the Masquers. Wendell Ramage will direct the play, "Darkness Falls On Laughter," the love story of Cassandra and Apollo.

Try-outs for the casts were held last week and the casts will be announced later. Russell Dasher will act as stage manager. Crew members are needed and if anyone is interested, they may contact Mr. Overstreet.

Faculty members will do advanced study next year

At least seven Georgia Southern faculty members will be on leave next year to work on further degrees. Working toward their Ph.D.'s will be Miss Mary Heltsley, assistant professor of Home Economics, who will go to Ohio State University; Miss Martha Emma Holmes, assistant professor of Business Administration, who will go to the University of Georgia; Thomas A. Singletary, assistant professor of Industrial Education, who will attend the University of Missouri; Richard Spicer, assistant professor of Social Science, who will attend the University of Wisconsin; Charlton Moseley, instructor of Social Science, who will begin his second year at the University of Georgia; and Jay Norman Wells, instructor in Mathematics, who will also begin his second year at Florida State University. Dr. Bill E. Weaver, professor of Education, will begin post-doctoral work at the University of Georgia.

Exam Schedule

Final examinations for summer quarter will be as follows:

Monday, August 16—

1:30—All 7th period classes.
3:30—All 8th period classes.

Tuesday, August 17—

7:30—All 1st period classes.

9:30—All 6th period classes.

Tom Martin, manager of the Statesboro Office of the Georgia Power Company, presents a check to Dr. Zach S. Henderson, President of Georgia Southern College on behalf of the Georgia Power Company. The check is a contribution to the GSC Foundation and will serve in providing a one-ninth matching fund for the National Defense Student Loan Fund Agency at Georgia Southern.

New scoreboard expected here during month

The brothers of Alpha Phi Omega are awaiting the arrival of the new baseball scoreboard they are purchasing for the GSC baseball team. Eighteen feet long and eight feet high, the scoreboard will light up across the top to record hits, runs, and errors. The runs will be recorded manually.

APO has sponsored several projects to raise money for the scoreboard. Coca-Cola Company aided the fraternity by donating Cokes for them to sell in the community.

The new scoreboard will go into operation next spring.

Former Marvin Pittman faculty member taking trip around the world

Miss Marie Woods, recently retired teacher from Marvin Pittman School after 41 years of service, left two weeks ago on a trip around the world. Miss Woods made her first stop in Honolulu last weekend. From there, she is making stops in countries all around the world. Some of the cities she will visit include: Tokyo, Hongkong, Singapore, Calcutta, Bombay, Cairo, Jerusalem, Athens, Moscow, Stockholm, and Copenhagen.

Pool Hours Announced

Pool hours have been announced for students on the GSC campus. They are: 1:30 - 5:30 p.m. Sunday through Friday; 9:30 - 12:00 a.m. and 1:30 - 5:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Rising costs in nation's colleges will climb higher

By WINFRED L. GODWIN
Director, Southern
Regional Education Board

The Dow - Jones average may have been tumbling of late, but not the price of sheepskins.

Parents, already worried about college costs, will find little comfort in the fact that tuition for both resident and non-resident students continues its steady increase — an average of 5 percent at Southern state universities in the past school year.

An analysis of U. S. Office of Education figures reveals the increases are comparable to national increases and range from no increase at some institutions to 33 percent at Auburn for state residents. The largest increase for non-residents was at Georgia Tech where costs leaped from $699 to $990. The reason? College spokesmen explain that Georgia Tech, with its large percentage of out-of-state students, has to place more of the burden of college costs on the non-Georgia student.

In addition to Georgia Tech, other Southern institutions—Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia—were among the 15 colleges and universities which raised non-resident tuition last year by $100 or more. And this spring, the South Carolina Legislature voted to add $250 a year to non-resident student charges at Clemson, the University of South Carolina and South Carolina State for the coming year.

Both regionally and nationally, room rates increased an average of 7 percent. They now range from $120 to $372 at Southern state universities. But on the brighter side, there was a very slight decrease in board rates at Southern institutions.

Basic student charges at Southern institutions are about 18 percent below national charges, but the per capita income in the region is about 20 percent below the national level, which tends to cancel the difference.

Compared to 1961-62, when they were freshmen, today's college seniors are paying about 17 percent more tuition and fees at public institutions if they are state residents, and 15 percent more if they are non-residents.

During the seven-year period in which the Office of Education has kept statistics on student charges throughout the nation, tuition at public institutions has increased by 45 percent and there has been a 54 percent increase at private institutions. Yet the cost of living has increased only 13 percent over this same period of time.

The average $495 for tuition in a private institution in 1957 represented 23 percent of per capita income that year. But today's average private tuition of $760 is 30 percent of this year's per capita income.

Behind the spiraling costs of a college education is the population increase which has forced institutions of higher learning to undertake programs of rapid expansion, the long overdue increases in faculty and staff salaries and the wide spectrum of specialized programs necessary to meet the knowledge explosion.

It still doesn't cost $13,000 to get a son through most Southern Universities, as it does at Harvard. However, tuition hikes are already being announced by many institutions in the region, and the American Council on Education, surveying the national picture, predicts that tuition at both private and public institutions will increase 50 percent in the next ten years.

But continuing increases in tuition could hamper the South's efforts to overcome its traditional lag in college enrollments. Also, there is a point at which high charges to non-residents makes it difficult for any institution to have a cosmopolitan student body.

Georgia Southern news show scheduled for Friday evening at 9

Georgia Southern News can be seen this Friday evening, July 2, at 9 p.m. on Channel 9, WVAN, an evening programming service of the University of Georgia, owned and operated by the Georgia State Board of Education. Featured stories on the GS News include the summer institutes and Creative Dramatics. Spot news covers the various happenings of faculty interest.

Can you spot the traffic hazards in this photo quiz?

Going to "hit the road" soon for a summer holiday? Fine, but traffic danger never takes a day off. In fact, it works overtime during peak holiday and vacation periods when more cars are on the highway. Any one of the potential hazards that multiply with heavy traffic could spell trouble for the unwary motorist, warn the Aetna Life Affiliated Companies, whose driver education specialists filmed major portions of a recent TV news special, "The National Drivers Test." To help you sharpen your "danger perception" for your trip, the Aetna Life companies have prepared the accompanying pictorial quiz containing hidden hazards like those featured in the television test. Study the above photos. See if you can spot the hazard lurking in each picture. Then, remember that more are awaiting you on the road. The answers to this photo quiz will be found on Page 4.

Summer school and Dr. Henderson's watermelons are becoming a Georgia Southern custom. An annual project of the GSC president, he invites all summer school students to enjoy a big slice of watermelon each Tuesday and Thursday morning behind the Alumni Building. Although he will be out of town next week, Dr. Henderson is usually present to cut the watermelons. The first cutting was held last Wednesday morning. There will be a watermelon cutting behind the Alumni Building on Tuesdays and Thursdays between 10 and 11 a.m.

Dr. Clyde Vedder delivers speech at conference

Dr. Clyde B. Vedder, visiting professor of sociology at Georgia Southern College for the year 1964-65, was a speaker at the twenty-ninth meeting of The Southern States Probation and Parole Conference held recently in Richmond, Va. The topic of his speech was "The Problem of Homosexuality in Corrections."

Dr. Vedder is now at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, Ill., on a continuous lecture program at that institution.

Creative Drama Will Be Offered During Summer

A Creative Dramatics program will be offered this summer by Robert Overstreet, assistant professor of speech at Georgia Southern College. This will be a three-week program, beginning on June 28. The daily sessions will be held in the backstage classroom of McCroan Auditorium on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, 3-4 p.m. These sessions will serve as a lab for the graduate course in Creative Dramatics.

Mr. Overstreet stated that the fee is $3 per week. Enrollment in the class will not exceed fifteen children, ages nine through twelve.

Creative dramatics is spontaneous playmaking which involves developing characters and creating dialogues and plots from stories.

Anyone wishing more information on this summer session may contact Overstreet.

FREE MOVIES

Free movies are being held in McCroan Auditorium for all GSC summer school students. The movies will be shown at 8 p.m. on the following dates:

Larry E. Price, an assistant professor at Georgia Southern, was one of five U. S. professors of business chosen to attend a graduate session in banking at the Stonier Graduate School, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J. Mr. Price was awarded an Ayers Fellowship, which is made to professors of finance at American colleges and universities and which gives them an opportunity to exchange views with bank officers on an informal basis while observing work done at the Stonier Graduate School during the annual resident sessions. The fellowships were established in honor of the late Brigadier General Leonard P. Ayers, who was a vice president and economist of the Cleveland Trust Company and for many years a member of the Stonier Graduate School faculty.

Lloyd Joyner, Registrar, announced last week that anyone expecting to graduate in August should apply immediately for graduation. Degree candidates should make an appointment now to see Mr. Joyner before the deadline for application, which has been set for July 10.

Southern registrar attends College Night at Wesleyan College

Georgia Southern College was represented by its Registrar, Lloyd Joyner, at a College Night on June 30 at Wesleyan College. The program was sponsored by the Counseling Staff of the Governor's Honors Program to acquaint outstanding students with the offerings of various colleges. The program included a film, "Getting into College," followed by a panel discussion and group meetings for the students to meet with the college representatives.

Library Schedule

The GSC Library announces the following schedule for the weekend:

Friday, July 2 — Regular Schedule.

Saturday, July 3 — 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 Noon.

Monday, July 5 — 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

A. The alighting passengers you don't see are the biggest threat. When you see people leaving the rear of a bus, remember that others leaving from the front are hidden from view and may dart suddenly into your path.

B. Driver in car parking at curb at right may thoughtlessly open car door as you approach.

C. With his car's trunk lid up, the driver ahead has blinded not only his vision, but his mind to traffic moving behind him. Here he is stopping short, unaware of your car.

D. Man unloading parked truck at right is a special danger because his vision of your car will be blocked by object he is carrying if he turns to cross the street.

E. The truck double parked at left hides in its shadows a car emerging onto the road with its driver's vision blocked. Unless you spot this car before it enters your lane, a collision may result.

F. Ball rolling into street might be followed by a running youngster.

She shakes, swims and crawls on belly

(ACP)—Her name is Pamela. She shimmies, she shakes and she crawls on her belly. She's a 4-foot, 9-inch boa constrictor.

The Maine Campus, University of Maine, told about her this way:

Steve Seabury, junior in chemical engineering, and Miller White, sophomore in wildlife management, wanted a snake for a pet. White had had snakes for pets before and had intended to bring one back from Texas next fall. But they decided they could not wait that long and ordered a Columbian boa constrictor from a supply house in Florida.

But they didn't tell their Tau Kappa Epsilon brothers what they had done. So when the curvaceous, brown-eyed beauty arrived at the TKE house she wasn't greeted with open arms. In fact, White and Seabury were besieged by requests not to open the snake's box.

As soon as the boys opened her traveling case, however, Pamela charmed the brothers into letting her stay. After all, they thought, she is perfectly harmless and only two years old.

Since Pam arrived she has borne the brunt of much rude gossip. Rumors have circulated that a 20-foot python had moved into TKE and as a result one of the brothers has been missing for five days.

A frantic University Park mother called TKE and said her children would not walk past the house because they heard there was a man-eating snake there.

So to clam visitors' fears, Pamela is kept under lock and key most of the day. Seabury said she has cured most of the brothers' fear of snakes and some have actually picked her up (the housemother was unavailable for comment).

"We have all found her quite fascinating to watch, especially when she slithers up the stairs and around pipes," he said.

Still, someone always checks her cage before going to bed—but just to make sure she is comfortable.

Visual grant given Education Division

The Education Division of Georgia Southern College has recently received a $2,000 grant from the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company for visual communication equipment to assist in the preparation of teachers.

This grant is a part of a plan involving the distribution of individual grants to each of the education units of approximately 700 accredited teacher education colleges in the United States. These grants are intended to enable the education divisions of these colleges to expose future teachers to modern teaching techniques that will help them cover more material more effectively in the classroom.

The grant consists of a complete teacher training unit in visual classrooms communications. Included is a unit of instruction in the use of visual aids, reference books, transparencies, illustrative materials in seventy different subjects, transparency making equipment, and classroom and portable overhead projectors and supplies.

R. H. Herzog, Group Vice-President of the 3M Company, said that his company feels strongly that private industry has a responsibility to support teacher preparation and that the new program seeks to do this through better prepared teachers. "By improving our education system at its roots—where teachers are prepared—we would hope to ultimately help improve the students. Thus, all American free enterprise profits from these same people, who through their education and motivation will move our great corporate enterprises forward in the future. We must recognize our stake in education," he said.

Averitt named national Rotary Foundation trustee

Dr. Jack N. Averitt, chairman of the Georgia Southern College Social Science Division, has been named a Trustee of Rotary Foundation. He was informed of his appointment by a telegram from C. P. H. Teestra, president of Rotary International, which consists of 500,000 members in 12,000 clubs throughout the world.

The eleven-man board to which he was named will administer funds of Rotary International to the International Fellowship Program and establish policies for international exchange of students. The committee is responsible for administering approximately six million dollars.

Dr. Averitt, whose two-year term began July 1, 1965, is a Fulbright Scholar. He received his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina History Department and served as a special lecturer at the University of London for one year.

Serving with Dr. Averitt will be six past presidents of Rotary International, a past vice-president, a director, and the chairman of the Fellowship Selection Committee.

Reacting to this appointment, Dr. Averitt stated: "I deem it a real privilege to serve as an integral part of Rotary's commitment to the promotion of international understanding as implemented by the Foundation Program. The Foundation provides young scholars from 121 countries an opportunity to promote international understanding through a year's study in academic institutions throughout the world. International understanding can come only through international communication. The fellowship program of the Rotary Foundation has been a major force in establishing this international communication for a quarter of a century."

Dr. Walter B. Mathews works with committees on school accreditation

Dr. Walter B. Mathews, professor of education at Georgia Southern College, was in Atlanta yesterday and today, July 8 and 9, working with the committees of the State Department of Education and the Georgia Elementary Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools on problems relating to accreditation and affiliation of Georgia Elementary Schools in the Southern Association.

NOTICE TO IN-SERVICE TEACHERS

In-service teachers who will change certificates at the end of this summer should obtain the necessary forms and instructions in the Education Division Office.

Dr. Hayden Bryant will be on GSC Campus

Dr. Hayden Bryant, director of teacher education and certification with the State Department of Education and Miss Mary Ellen Perkins, coordinator of teacher education, will be on the Georgia Southern College campus July 13 and 14. They will visit the practicum in Student Teaching and confer with the college administration.

Counselor clinic scheduled here

A Career Counseling Clinic for high school juniors and seniors of this area is being offered by the Counselor Education Office of Georgia Southern College.

Counselors will be available to work with students on vocational-educational and personal-social concerns until August 6. There is no charge for participation in the clinic. The time involved will be approximately two hours per day for three separate days in most cases.

Students who are interested may be enrolled by contacting the Counselor Education Office in the Education Division.

Music division is recipient of gift

Dr. Ronald J. Neil, chairman of the Division of Music, announced last week that Georgia Southern College, along with many other institutions, is being presented a gift from Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who is honoring one of the great names in twentieth century art.

Mrs. Rockefeller was a pupil of Artur Schnabel (1882-1951), who was celebrated as a master pianist, a leading composer, a venerated teacher, and an inspiring talker. He gained his greatest popular fame in association with the music of Beethoven, which he played and taught and expounded for many years.

Ardently hoping that the present and succeeding generations of young musicians may benefit as much as possible from Artur Schnabel's principles, Mrs. Rockefeller has arranged that libraries (public, conservatory, college and university) having a phonograph record collection may receive, at no cost to themselves, the following "package" of material: Beethoven—The thirty-two piano sonatas, complete. Recorded by A. Schnabel. (13 LP discs) Beethoven—The thirty-two piano sonatas (piano scores). Edited by A. Schnabel; Schabel—"My Life and Music." Twelve talks by Mr. Schnabel (with questions and answers) at the University of Chicago, 1945.

"Georgia Southern's music library has a collection of records and is equipped with listening facilities, and so, is entitled to receive the gift," Neil

Waller elected to national post

Ben G. Waller, recently named Director of Placement and Student Aid at Georgia Southern College, was elected to the National Committee on Platform and Resolutions for the National Education Association at the NEA Convention in New York City last week. This committee sets the platform for NEA and draws resolutions under which officers and personnel of the organization must operate each year. The resolutions are passed on by the Delegate Assembly of NEA.

Mr. Waller is one of the two Georgia members of the committee. Only sixteen of the fifty states and Puerto Rico have two members selected on the basis of a membership of 20,000.

$56,000 Institute in progress here

The U. S. Office of Education, with funds provided by the National Defense Education Act, has awarded the history department of Georgia Southern College a $56,000 summer institute for the study of history. The summer program, dealing with "conflicting ideologies," is one of four such programs to be offered in the United States during the current summer. Dr. Jack N. Averitt, GSC history department chairman, has been named director of the institute.

The six-week program will operate from July 12 through August 20. This institute will offer two courses to sixty history teachers to bring their formal training up to date. It will also include studies of the philosophy of political theory of totalitarianism and the history of American political philosophy and tradition. The program will be presented through lecturers, seminars, required readings, and field trips.

Working in the institute will be Dr. Otis Stephens and Dr. Elsworth Wu of the department. Visiting lecturers from Georgia State College will include Dr. Melvin Ecke, dean of graduate studies, who will also serve as associate director of this summer program, and Dr. Jack Blinksilver, professor of economics.

Some of the guest lecturers scheduled for seminar appearance will be Dr. William Ebenstein, professor of political science, University of California; and Dr. Richard L. Walker, University of South Carolina.

This is the fourth institute concerning "conflicting ideologies" offered by Georgia Southern since 1961.

Dr. John Codwell Speaks Here To to summer class

Dr. John E. Codwell, 1964 associate director of the Education Improvement Project, Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, presented the pattern of the project to selected summer school students of Georgia Southern College Tuesday, July 6. He told of the five-year program initiated by SACS for elementary and high schools and colleges.

Dr. Codwell also talked about the project opportunity and related programs such as college research programs.

A graduate of Howard University, Dr. Codwell received his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan. He has been principal of Jack Yates Senior High School, Houston, Texas, president of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and president of the Texas Principals Association.

Many of the current headline stories about student unrest on the campuses cite student complaints about the neglect of undergraduate teaching.

Some student demonstrations have damned "the publish or perish" doctrine, which they feel governs completely the hiring and promotion of professors, to the detriment of teaching.

There is no doubt that the rapid growth of research and public service obligations of most universities has had an impact on teaching. But perhaps the greatest threat to the quality of teaching today lies in the combination of spiraling enrollment figures and the swift enlargement of knowledge itself which is challenging the resources of every significant campus in America today.

To meet this challenge, the University of Kentucky has recently established some twenty Teaching Improvement Fellowships for faculty members who wish to improve their teaching skills. The response to this program has been "overwhelming," according to a university spokesman.

The fellowships will give faculty members extended periods of time to redesign courses, especially at the undergraduate level.

The faculty members who will go back to school this summer include a professor who wishes to develop visual aids for his courses in animal science, a Fellow who plans to work out a terminal program for engineering aids and one who intends to develop methods for evaluating student performance in freshman English. Each of them will be working on his own to meet what he believes to be the most pressing need in his own teaching field.

This special program is but one facet of a farsighted, long-range plan to improve the quality of teaching at the University of Kentucky. A report recently submitted to the Board of Trustees by University President John W. Oswald, calls for the development of an orientation program for graduate teaching fellows and new faculty members. It recognizes the importance of insuring that freshmen and sophomore students receive instruction from the most able professors in the university. It points out the necessity of finding more accurate ways to measure superior teaching. And it calls for the improvement of such student programs as orientation, advising and lecture and cultural series.

The University also will seek wider recognition for excellence in teaching by establishing more "outstanding teacher awards."

The University of Kentucky plan grew out of a thorough "academic analysis" and various faculty committee studies. It appears to be a determined effort to strengthen the education of undergraduates in a large university that also has many commitments in research and in advanced study. As such, it may prove of interest to many universities which recognize that the knowledge explosion and burgeoning classrooms have created real danger to teaching excellence.

Coaching Clinic Set For summer school program

An attempt is now being made to form an informal coaching clinic on the Georgia Southern campus. The plans are now for the clinic to be held one night a week for at least five weeks. According to the Physical Education Division, there are many top flight coaches attending summer school, and it is felt that this summer can be made a learning experience in the field of coaching also.

The clinic will be held from seven until nine o'clock each Tuesday night in the Hanner Building. There will be two separate meetings each night, one in basketball and one in football. Guest lecturers will be provided, with all speeches dealing with the high school level of coaching. Tentatively, the speakers will be Coach J. B. Searce, chairman of the Physical Education Division, George Roebuck, coach at Southeast Bulloch High School, Charlie Green, assistant coach under Wright Bazemore at Valdosta High School, and Richard Stebbins.

Any suggestions as to speakers, topics, or improvements may be directed to David Patton, who may be contacted in the Hanner Building. Anyone interested may attend the clinic. There will be no charge and attendance will determine continuation of the clinic.

Dr. Ralph Tyson Named to Post On Committee

Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students, Georgia Southern College, has been named to an advisory board which will direct the Robert and Selma Pou Counseling Service, a ministry of Wynnton Methodist Church in Columbus, Georgia.

The service is made possible by a grant from Mrs. Robert E. (Selma) Pou and by private contributions and seeks to offer personal counseling to those who want to confer with a minister about a personal matter, to make referrals to professional consultants, and to provide short-term educational workshops and seminars in family living and human relations.

During a special Youth week, July 19-23, Dr. Tyson will speak each night to youth and young adults at Wynnton. He will use the same subject in speaking to parents of youth, and time will be provided for discussion with both groups. His topics will include: "The Teen-Ager—What He Is," "Teen Age Maturity Symbols," "Attaining Mature Attitudes Towards Sex," "A Teen-Ager Looks At His Parents," and "Religion and Moral Maturity."

Cast for 'Miss Julie' selected for play

The cast for "Miss Julie," one of the summer one-act plays to be presented in August, has been named, according to Robert Overstreet. The play by August Strindberg, which is to be directed by Ken Robbins, features Janie Dotson as Miss Julie. Bill Gibson will play the part of Jean, and Marie All, that of Christine. The crew is as follows: Stage Manager - Russell Dasher; Sound Technician - Ervin Joslin; Make-up - Linda Beckworth and Laurie Haynes; Publicity - Libby Brannon, Carolyn Nentzer, Kathleen McDonald, and Ervin Joslin.

The cast for the other play, "Darkness Falls on Laughter," will be announced later.

Mr. Overstreet stated that he was glad the plays were being done and that students were doing the directing. He was especially pleased that the love story of Apollo and Cassandra, "Darkness Falls on Laughter," is being done. He displayed faith in the young directors and said that the plays should prove entertaining.

College begins Peace Corps Graduate Study

EAST LANSING, MICH.—Michigan State University has announced the establishment of a new graduate program, combining Peace Corps training and advanced study leading to a master's degree in education and teacher certification.

Volunteers in the 30-month pilot program will spend 24 months with the Peace Corps in Nigeria and 6 months on the MSU campus. It will begin on Sept. 25, and is open to any student attaining a bachelor's degree by that time.

The program is offered jointly by the Peace Corps and MSU's College of Education and Continuing Education Service.

Questionnaires and applications can be obtained by contacting the MSU-Peace Corps Masters in Education Program, 513 Erickson Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

The program is the first of its kind offered anywhere in the world. It comes in response to a request by the Government of Nigeria for additional professional secondary school teachers.

Students in the program will spend the first 12 weeks at Michigan State, followed by 2 weeks of additional training at an overseas site. MSU faculty members and returned Peace Corps volunteers will comprise the teaching faculty.

Free speech alley needed paper says

(ACP) - English instructor Calude Allen's five-hour, free-wheeling question and answer session has once again pointed out the need for a "free speech alley" at the University of Cincinnati, says the News Record.

The fact that Allen could attract over 500 students is sufficient proof that Cincinnati students would readily welcome the idea. Spontaneity was the key to Allen's tirade and spontaneity would be the key to a free speech alley.

The idea originated at Louisiana State University where space was provided one day a week for discussion on any topic. Once the plan caught on at LSU, more than 700 students Well, spring has arrived and it's about time to begin.

The area in front of the Union between Old Tech and Tanners Hall would make an ideal setting and Friday afternoon might be a good time. Add one soap box and a few vociferous and the free speech alley is a reality.

We initially suggested that the Union pick up the challenge and set up an open forum of this kind when warm weather came. were attending these no-holds-barred sessions.

Our letters to the editor show that there is no void at UC when it comes to sounding off and topics might range from integration to Vietnam.
