New IBM Data System Initiated

New IBM Data Processor Making Registrar's Records Standard
Card Punch System Eliminates Slower Filing Procedures

New Registration System Aids The Registrar - Not The Student

By BILL MULLER

Georgia Southern has joined the ranks of the automated. With the beginning of the fall quarter the registration process will be carried out with the use of IBM cards which will replace the large yellow cards familiar to former students of this institution.

Lloyd Joyner, registrar of Georgia Southern, described the manner of registration to this reporter.

Students will begin registration by seeing their advisors and making up a tentative schedule for the year. This schedule will be described on a white card. This card, along with the student's permit to register will be necessary to get into the gymnasium to register. Any student wishing to take an overload or underload will get permission to do so before obtaining class cards.

After being cleared at the registration desk, the student will proceed to the course card section of the registration complex. Here the student will pick up cards that will enable him to get into the classes of his choice. There will be two cards issued for each class. One card will be a record of the student being in the class which will be kept by the registrar's office. The other card, orange colored to distinguish it from the other cards will be kept by the student.

If for any reason a student can not get into the classes he had planned, he will go back to station "B" where there will be representatives of the various divisions who will get the student into another class. This eliminates the necessity of the student having to leave the gym, a problem met by many in the past years.

When the student has gotten all his cards together, he will then go to a series of counter height tables where he will fill out the cards.

Information demanded on the registration cards is no different than that asked on the old cards. The difference between the new cards and the old is that much of the information will only have to be given one time in an academic year.

Masquers Make Big Plans For Upcoming Year

By RON MAYHEW

The Masquers, Georgia Southern dramatics organization, will begin tryouts for their first presentation of the year during the first week of classes.

"The Tragedy of Tragedies, or the Life and Death of Tom Thumb the Great," by Henry Fielding, will be the first presentation and is scheduled to open during the month of October.

It is a light sassy play in which the hero is a dwarf and one of the heroines is a giant. Because of the physical limitation of such a cast, the play will be presented as a series of dramatic readings rather than on the stage.

"The play has a large cast and everyone is welcome to come and try out for parts," stated Robert Overstreet, Assistant Professor of Speech and coordinator of the masquers.

Mr. Overstreet also revealed that the Masquers will sponsor two appearances of the National Shakespearean Theater in November. This nationally famous group will present "Macbeth" on Sat., Nov. 13, and "As You Like It" on Monday, Nov. 15. The series will be presented under the auspices of the Masquers' Fine Arts Series. This group sponsored the presentation of "Spoon River" last year. Tickets for the performances will cost $1.50 each.

In January the Masquers will present the "Book of Job" as a play. The performance will

Freshman Orientation Begins This Morning

By TOM KING

An estimated 1,100 freshmen will officially launch their college careers this morning with the beginning of orientation in the W. S. Hanner Building by simply "becoming acquainted" with Georgia Southern.

The annual orientation activities will get underway with a freshmen assembly slated for 9 a.m. in the Hanner Building. The assembly will be followed with the frosh meeting their student advisors at 10 a.m.

An orientation program concerning registration by the freshmen will be conducted at 11 a.m. There will be a break for lunch with the frosh scheduled to meet with the student advisors for a review of registration, library orientation, rat caps, and a tour of the campus.

Academic orientation dealing with elementary majors, secondary majors, junior high majors will begin at 4:30 p.m. The elementary majors will meet in the Marvin Pittman Auditorium while the secondary majors will gather in McCroan Auditorium.

The day will be climaxed with a "Welcome to Southern" sponsored by Buford W. Knight. The festivities will include dancing and refreshments at the newly constructed Varsity.

Tuesday the freshmen meet their faculty advisors at 8 a.m. Registration gets underway at 9 a.m. in the Hanner Gym and will end promptly at noon for lunch. It will be resumed at 1 p.m. and will draw to a close at 5 p.m.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. will be a transfer student orientation program with Dean Ralph K. Tyson acting as coordinator for the activities.

Tomorrow's activities will be highlighted with the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce sponsoring a "Welcome to Statesboro Dance" at Brannen's Tobacco Warehouse beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday the freshmen will be divided into two sections, Alpha and Beta. At 8:30 p.m. the Alpha section will become familiar with the campus regulations, safety and security, college athletics, and student health by means of a panel discussion.

At the same time the Beta section will meet with the student advisors for a tour of the campus.

Following lunch the combined sections will assemble in McCroan Auditorium for a panel discussion concerning various campus organizations and academic regulations. The evening will consist of a free movie in McCroan Auditorium with a dance also scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Thursday will be kicked off with a meeting between the freshmen and their student advisors. The Beta section of the freshmen will be orientated with campus regulations, safety and security, college athletics, and health.

The afternoon hours will be centered around the religious functions of the college. Students will become better informed with the area churches and the activities of the churches. Thursday evening has been designated as "Open House" with all freshmen dormitories open for inspection.

Miss LuLane McBride, dean of women, stated that "freshmen orientation week will be a crowded one, but I believe that the freshmen will welcome a full schedule. Orientation week is a good opportunity for freshmen to become acquainted with classmates, college customs, traditions, and regulations."

Students Have Much Available To Them In Southern Library

By BILL MULLER

The Georgia Southern Library is located on Sweetheart Circle next to Anderson Hall. An open shelf system is used thus allowing students to find their own material. A short guide to the library will help the new student in finding his way around this most important and necessary study aid.

Hours for the library are 7:45 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Friday night closing hour is 9 p.m. The library is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday and closed on Sunday.

Location of the different types of materials is by floors. The first floor houses the reference materials. On the second floor are the special materials such as microfilms and special collections. In the east wing of the third floor are the books coded 000 through 600. The 700's are in the south wing and the 800's and the fiction collection in the west wing.

The basement contains the Library Science department along with lounges and specially equipped rooms.

Loans are made to students and faculty members. In order to check out a book, the student must present his I.D. card. The signature on the check out card must correspond with that on the I.D. card.

Reserve books circulate on a restricted basis according to the status of the book. Fines are levied on the schedule of from 5 cents per day to 5 cents per hour of overdue time according to the status of the book.

Special services such as duplicating documents and a listening room are provided by the library. Smoking is permitted only in the student lounge. A signal bell sounds 15 minutes before closing time.

Newly Appointed Security Director Reveals Policies

By RON MAYHEW

"Georgia Southern College will return to the zone system in traffic and parking control this year," revealed Harold Howell, newly appointed director of Georgia Southern campus security.

Mr. Howell explained the following system for parking zones to be used on the GSC campus for the school year 1965-66.

All on-campus male students living in Brannen, Cone, and Sanford Halls will be issued the parking sticker with the letter A to place on the left rear bumper of their cars. Between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 9 a.m. and noon on Saturdays these cars will be restricted to the parking lot bounded by the three dormitories.

Women residing in Anderson and Deal will use the parking lot in front of the Marvin Pittman school and will be issued decals with the letter B.

Women living in Lewis, Hendricks, and Veazey will use the parking lot between Veazey and Lewis and will have the letter C to accompany their regular parking sticker.

Off-campus students will have different colored stickers than on-campus students and will be permitted to park in the lot in front of the Marvin Pittman school and around Sweetheart Circle. "All automobiles must be off the circle by midnight," emphasized Mr. Howell.

GSC staff parking will be in the lots beside the administration building, in front of the Alumni gymnasium, behind the music building, and along the Hollis building side of Herty Drive.

College faculty and staff will be issued complimentary stickers for parking and will not be required to pay a fee.

All students wishing to bring automobiles on campus will be required to register them during orientation week with campus security and pay a five dollar fee for the school year. Students registering automobiles will also be required to show proof of liability insurance covering their cars.

There will be two days designated during orientation week to register automobiles. After that time automobiles may only be registered from 11 a.m.

until noon and from 3 to 4 p.m. each weekday.

Howell also stressed that the stickers would not be valid if placed on any part of an automobile other than the left side of the rear bumper. If any student loses his decal or has it mutilated in any way so as to make it unreadable, he must secure a duplicate decal upon payment of one dollar.

Mr. Howell expressed hope for rapid completion of the new parking lot presently being constructed beside and behind the health cottage. "This lot will be only for off campus students," he explained.

In the event of failure to comply with parking regulations, speed limits, and other traffic rules, tickets will be issued to violators. The tickets will explain the offense, state the amount of the fine and explain payment procedure.

When a ticket is issued it must either be appealed within 24 hours in the security office located at the east end of the alumni building or must be paid within 3 days.

Mr. Howell also explained the new procedure to be followed when women arrive at their dorms after the closing hour.

The dormitories will be locked at the closing hour and after that time no one is authorized to open the doors except the campus security officers. If a coed arrives after the dormitory has been locked, she must go immediately to the security office, fill out a form and an officer will accompany her to the dorm and unlock the door for her. The following morning the form will be turned into the dean of students and the young lady will be requested to appear in the office to explain her tardiness.

Due to the fact that there will be no dean of men during fall quarter the security force will fill this function in the men's dormitories. If any disturbance occurs that cannot be handled by the house director, the security officers will be called in to take whatever action is necessary.

Ad Building Undergoing Change

With the divisions of social science and languages having been moved to the new Hollis Building, a reshuffling of locations is being undertaken in the Administration Building.

In a recent interview, Georgia Southern president Zach S. Henderson revealed the changes that will be made in the building.

The Registrar, Dean of Students, Dean of Men, Dean of Women, and all personnel connected with student services, and the Director of Admissions will be located on the lower floor of the building.

The student bank, president's office, comptroller's office, and Academic Dean will remain on the main floor in their present locations, with the office of public relations being moved into the complex of offices formerly used by the Dean of Students.

The division of education will occupy the upper floor of the building.

Dr. Henderson added that he hoped the moving would be completed as early in the school year as possible.

Delay Slows Completion Of GSC Residence Halls

"Construction on three new dormitories for Georgia Southern, although progressing more slowly than first anticipated, is moving steadily along," revealed Zach S. Henderson, president of Georgia Southern College.

Olliff Hall, named for Charlie Olliff, local businessman and civic leader, was originally scheduled to be completed in time for Fall quarter 1965. Present completion date is set for the first of next year. It will house 300 women.

As a result of this unanticipated delay, there will be three girls in each room of all on-campus women's dormitories except Deal Hall.

The new men's dormitory is slated for completion by spring quarter of 1966. It will house 250 and be located between Georgia Avenue and Pembroke Highway.

The men's dorm will be named for Alfred Dorman, former mayor of Statesboro and highly respected businessman and community leader.

The second new women's dormitory is also scheduled to be completed spring quarter. It will house 250. It is to be named in memory of Robert Winburn, former comptroller of Georgia Teachers College who died last January.

Dr. Henderson also revealed that bids on the new fine arts classroom building will be opened on October 15. Henderson added that a name for the fine arts building had not been decided upon. The structure will be erected on the present parking lot beside the Industrial Arts Building.

Statement of Policy

The purpose of the George-Anne is to present an accurate and truthful account of the activities and events taking place at Georgia Southern College and to present and encourage student and faculty opinion concerning these events through editorials, and letters to the editor.

Authority and responsibility for the contents of the George-Anne rests with the editorial board. Final decisions concerning the editing of copy and the withholding of material will lie with the majority vote of the editorial board.

Letters to the editor should be an expression of student opinion and interest. Only letters signed by the writer will be accepted for publication. If requested, the name of the writer will be withheld by the paper.

Advertising in the George-Anne must meet standards of good newspaper style and is open to all legitimate business interests and must be submitted to the paper's business manager prior to the advertising deadline.

Athletics are a major part of Georgia Southern College and the George-Anne firmly supports all phases of athletics, both intercollegiate and intramural. We also stand behind the promotion of athletics at Southern and hope for their continued growth.

With the accompanying realization that it is impossible to please everyone with a newspaper, the George-Anne will strive to offer a wide variety of news coverage to accommodate any interest.

We hope our efforts provide something for all rather than all for some.

Dr. Guy Wells

July of the past summer saw the passing of a long time friend of Georgia Southern College.

Guy Wells came to Georgia Southern, then Georgia Normal School, a two year institution, as dean in June of 1926 and assumed the presidency in September of the same year. During his eight years as president of the institution Wells saw Georgia Normal School change to four-year South Georgia Teachers College. Its enrollment mushroomed from 125 in 1926 to over 400 in 1934.

During his years at South Georgia Teachers College Wells also served as president of the Georgia Education Association.

After leaving SGTC in 1934 he assumed the presidency of Georgia State College for Women, presently Women's College of Georgia. Wells served in this capacity for 19 years until his retirement in 1953.

Although formally retired, he then worked with the United States Government in underdeveloped countries trying to improve educational standards. Wells also worked for the peace corps during its early years.

Guy Wells was a dreamer. His active mind always sought to make education better than before. During his years in Statesboro he never went anywhere without making a speech to sell South Georgia Teachers College. He brought many of the country's great educators in for lectures and special seminars and was one of the earliest promoters of the summer school program at SGTC.

Guy Wells was a man ahead of his time. He liked new ideas and new things. He was, above all, a progressive. He was constantly at work to improve and to advance the cause of education. His memory and inspiration will serve as a high standard for his followers.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"THOSE OF YOU WITHOUT CLASS CARDS OR SEATS OR THOSE STANDING IN BACK WILL PLEASE FOLLOW MR. LUCIANO, HERE, WHO HAS BEEN HIRED TO TAKE CARE OF OUR CLASS OVERFLOW."

Tom KING

"Look at the boy over there. Isn't he cute?" murmured the newly arrived college coed to her roommate. At the same moment the boy being admired was cutting frequent glances toward his admirer.

The above are the exact thoughts that will pass through the minds of the college freshman who is tingling with excitement as he begins his college career. He never imagined he would encounter anything like this, yet he did anticipate the butterflies that are fluttering around in his stomach.

When settled nice and snug in his dormitory the butterflies wing their merry way from the frosh's mind and the blood begins to rise. He is in the midst of a new world, a world he never knew existed.

Each new face reminds him of the days ahead when he will come into contact with these future companions. With these thoughts in mind, the basis is formed for the upcoming moments that will make his days seem as though he is entering a new world every day.

As the days roll on the problems begin to pop up concerning various aspects of his first college days. Along with the problems excitement mounts as the student becomes accustomed to the ordeal of college life.

With classes beginning the freshman has a tendency to become nervous. Butterflies return, not in a mood of excitement, but a mood of doubt and possibly a bit of uneasiness due to a lack of confidence possessed by the average freshman.

Confidence! A ten letter word, a trait that every college freshman should possess. Confidence is a necessity. Why? Without confidence the newcomer would be lost. He has to repeat over and over to himself that just because he is a freshman he will not let the routine of college life get him down.

There will be times that the freshman will experience so called "hard times." Actually the freshman is feeling sorry for himself.

With the loss of confidence he is off to a freshman year on the wrong foot. To get down in the dumps during the initial days of his college activity would be a disaster which would be difficult to overcome.

When the last drop of confidence has been drained from the freshman the next hurdle he has to jump is the tremendous amount of pressure put on the newcomer by himself and his fellow students.

If the college freshman allows the pressure to antagonize him to an extent where he has to seek professional advice he will inevitably become a member to the "dropout gang."

Will the problems and pressures get YOU down?

Bill Muller

Freshmen in college have taken a great step in shaping their future. Though this step is not one that can be physically sensed, the change will soon be apparent to you of this the largest freshman class ever to enter Georgia Southern.

There must be a realization on the part of the new member of the college community. As a collegiate, you are no longer a pupil, but a student. Facts, figures, and assignments will no longer be forced upon you. They will be presented for you to either absorb or reject. Your use and retention of materials presented in the classroom will be pivotal in your college career.

For most of you, the classroom will be only a small part of the learning process. Much time will be spent searching for information in the library and the laboratory. The information gained in these research sessions will build a solid structure of knowledge upon the framework set up in the classroom.

Making use of materials outside those presented in the lecture and the text mark the difference between a pupil and a student. College pupils are rare specimens and have a short life cycle in the body of the college.

Outside activities on the campus are many and varied. They will be timed so as to interfere with the study of some subject or to be presented the night before someone's examination. No one will be there to tell you, as a mature college freshman, that there is work to be done and you are not permitted to attend this activity. You must decide for yourself if grades will fall if that particular night of study is missed.

Attendance at concerts is a facet of college life and should not be excluded from the activities of the student. In order to be a fully rounded student, there must be an exposure by the person to all the different sorts of entertainment presented to the student body.

No difficulty is foreseen in persuading the new freshman to attend a concert by a popular recording artist, but what about a recital by a concert violinist? The person who truly wishes to take full advantage of college life will expose himself to all the entertainment on the campus and not just to one sort.

Participation in the life of the campus is another responsibility that is presented to the college student. Just as a citizen who does not vote is depriving himself of a part in his government, the student who does not participate in the activities of the campus is depriving himself of the full advantages of the college life.

Sheer numbers will overwhelm the new freshman. A place must be found in the college community for each new member. The niche will not be prepared, it must be carved by the person who wishes to occupy and use it.

Only the serious and industrious person will make a distinctive addition to the growing prestige of this institution. There is room for all of us, but only if we want to remain.

Remember, new student, and old students can keep it in mind also, college wants you only as long as you want college.

Women Have Different Methods For Achieving Academic Goals

By DEAN POLLARD

During the next few weeks, freshmen on the Georgia Southern campus will be hurled into a program of study totally unfamiliar to them. Orientation despite its atmosphere, attempts to prepare the students for the first confrontation with the learning experience.

There are speeches by members of administration and faculty, warning, encouraging, opening up new vistas. There are various degrees. Tours of classroom and library facilities will be in the offing. Finally there will begin the long hours in the classroom, organizing, interpreting, applying the fact and figures.

How will the young woman in the freshman class be affected by this approach, seemingly so impersonal to individual needs? Will she find herself bogged down by this first impression of too much scheduling?

In reality, the schedules, the set patterns of these first few weeks can be perfectly adaptable to the female method of study. The coed provides herself with what may seem to her male counterpart a plethora of notebooks, lists, schedules for courses, and schedules for study. And, indeed, this is an integral part of her approach to the academic disciplines. The lists may never be used, but they serve as a preparation for her later study in depth.

The process of initial organization of thoughts is a difficult one for women. Her first reaction to the new opportunity for intellectual pursuit is to jump in, wholeheartedly and enthusiastically, neglecting the introduction and the foundation.

The writing and rewriting of schedules for every moment of study is an art of self discipline, and often is somewhat defensive. It seems to the coed that the male on campus is organized before he starts, and that he is in this position through little or no effort. The coed feels that she must emulate this method. Is this spirit of competition necessary?

The woman's approach to learning is equally valid, and for her, equally effective. By means of her intuition, a woman can find points of identification in even the most technical points of study. This same intuition provides the spark for the enthusiasm which is so much a part of the intellectual character of the woman.

Her study will never be spread over a large area. The information which she discovers and remembers may never be equal to that which the young man retains and is able to put to good use. The points of identification which she immediately grasps may well limit her scope. However, it is this very identification with some aspect of every subject which enables her to obtain an understanding of the complexities of an historical problem, a character in a novel, or a mathematical formula.

Her study will be staggered because her enthusiasm will come in brief flashes. The schedule which she conscientiously made for herself will be pushed aside, and she will often worry that her approach is not systematic enough. There will be days when she finds it difficult to even open a book and she will often suffer for this forced procrastination. But when the book is finally opened, when the vital interest through identification is finally gained, she will discover a fulfillment which no scheduling of events can ever provide. When the first weeks are over, when social life has calmed, the freshmen will begin in earnest their individual program of study and learning. Some will undoubtedly find in these years only drudgery, only a plodding through the classes and a frantic wait for the weekend when they can escape the unpleasant duties of a college campus.

Hopefully, most will seek out and discover with eagerness the absolute joys in the pursuit of knowledge. For these students, each day will become an adventure, each hour in the classroom, each book to read, each moment of independent study, a glowing experience of self understanding through learning.

Indications point to the fact that our enrollment this year

President Henderson Sees Year Of Adjustment Ahead

It is a pleasure to have the opportunity to write a letter of welcome to the Freshman Class of 1965. For many young people the opportunity of going to college is a thrilling experience. Our society in this era encourages a college education. It seems that for many of us, in order to really live and enjoy living in a rapidly changing world, education is essential. I am glad that you have decided to be a member of the student body at Georgia Southern College.

Indications point to the fact that our enrollment this year will be larger than ever and that the freshman class will be considerably larger than any we have had. This will mean that the students will necessarily work a little harder to make adjustments to college life. The young ladies will be living three in a room until at least the beginning of winter quarter. This is not a new experience on our campus and we know we will have the same fine spirit of cooperation that we have had in the past when this situation existed. There will be many other areas in which each person will have to make adjustments from the ones of high school.

Usually we think that a person going to college is interested in growing in many aspects. Some of the areas in which you will mature while you are here are: being away from home, meeting new people, finding that more is required in the classrooms, making decisions about continuing to attend church, trying to decide on new friends, making a definite decision about your vacation, and in many cases your choice of a mate.

There has been a general feeling on the campus that Georgia Southern is a friendly place. It is my hope that during the year you will become a part of a larger group, interested in trying to find better ways of living together.

Automobile Wrecks Draw Huge Gate From Friendly Passersby

By RON MAYHEW

The car was following too close behind another as both whizzed down the freeway at 70 miles per hour. The driver ahead hit his brakes as he approached a congested group of cars.

The driver behind was going too fast to stop in time. His automobile skidded into the front car, jumped over the median into the congested opposite lane and collided with six other autos.

This was the way it was explained on the TV news last August 15. The news broadcaster continued saying that it had been one of the best attended wrecks in the short history of the new East Atlanta Freeway.

MARVELING

Marveling, I thought of wreck attendance figures that often exceed the wildest limits of the imagination.

I remembered a wreck I had witnessed several months ago. My first impulse after getting a physician was to call the police. As I returned to the scene I saw a father scurrying down the sidewalk dragging his protesting son to view the two twisted masses of metal. It suddenly dawned on me that this enterprising father was taking Junior to his first wreck. This was a big day for Junior, perhaps as big as his first pair of shoes, his first time at the barber, maybe even as important as his first day at school.

CONTEMPT

I noted with increasing contempt that this father and many others like him were greatly offended when the police tactfully requested them to clear the way for ambulance personnel. These spectators were actually insulted at the thought of being herded to a point some 20 feet from the injured persons.

If such is to be the case when the general public wants to see all the gory details of a traffic accident, why not let the state benefit financially from the situation?

TICKETS

To accommodate a curious public, the State Patrol could first erect carefully manned ticket stands before investigating or calling for medical aid. Tickets could be sold in all price ranges to suit the tastes of the individual spectators.

Twenty five cents would admit one and give him the privilege of obstructing police as they attempt to investigate the accident. For an additional two bits he would be allowed to block the arrival of doctors and ambulance attendants.

The top price range would accommodate the patron who seeks to gain the ultimate satisfaction for his sadistic urges. For a mere dollar this spectator would be given the privilege of kneeling beside the injured persons and "comforting" them with glowingly descriptive tidbits. He could talk about the estimated automobile damage, hospital bills, the crowd attendance at the wreck, and many of the other reassuring things that injured persons enjoy hearing about.

THOUSANDS EACH YEAR

It is appalling to think of the thousands of dollars that the state is losing each year having not yet adopted a program of this sort. If a boxing match can gross over a million dollars, it stands to reason that the same motivated whims would apply on a smaller scale.

We must all hurry though, next time we hear that sickening crunch at the end of a long shriek of skidding tires. After all, we'll have to be early to get those front row seats.

be supported by the brass choir of the college band. Overstreet and Mr. Roy Powell, associate professor of English, are jointly working on the adaption of the biblical text into dramatic form.

In March the dramatic group will present Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie."

"Due to such a heavy load of presentations during fall and winter quarters, there will be only a series of student directed one-act plays during Spring quarter. These will probably be presented over a period of a week," said Overstreet.

Mr. Overstreet also revealed that the Campus Life Enrichment series will have one dramatic presentation during the year. They will present the Kaleidoscope Players in "Under Milkwood." The play, written by Dylan Thomas, depicts characters in a small town in Wales.

"Whenever we hold tryouts for plays, we always encourage everyone who is interested to come and participate," Overstreet added.

Schedule For Williams Center Facilities Announced By Pound

C. R. Pound, director of the F. I. Williams Student Center, has announced the schedules for the facilities in the center, and the general policies concerning the operation of these services.

The schedule for the dining hall during orientation week will be: Monday, September 20 - Breakfast, 7 a.m. to 8 a.m.; Lunch, 12 noon to 1 p.m.; Dinner, 5 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. — Tuesday, September 21 - Breakfast, 7 a.m. to 8 a.m.; Lunch, 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.; Dinner, 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. — Wednesday, September 22 - Breakfast, 6:45 a.m. to 8:30 a.m.; Lunch, 12 noon to 2 p.m.; Dinner, 5 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. — Thursday, September 23 - Breakfast, 6:45 a.m. to 8:30 a.m.; Lunch, 12 noon to 2 p.m.; Dinner, 5 p.m. to 6:45 p.m.

On Friday, the dining hall will begin operating on what is tentatively considered the regular schedule. Director Pound stated, "We are constantly watching the needs of the students and will adapt our schedules so that we can best serve the student body."

A temporary meal ticket will be issued to all on-campus dormitory students until they have paid their fees. Off-campus students may purchase meals at the dining hall for the standard prices, breakfast 50 cents, lunch 65 cents, and dinner 85 cents, or they may purchase the punch ticket, available in the Comptroller's office, which cost $20 for the $22 value ticket.

The College Bookstore in the student center will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays. Textbooks will be available upstairs in rooms 104 and 106, and supplies and non-required reading material will be on sale in the book store downstairs. Used books which will be in use fall quarter will be purchased upstairs until October 4. After this date, any used book will be purchased at a wholesale salvage price if a market exists for the book.

The Georgia Southern College post office opened at 8:30 this morning on its permanent schedule for the school year. The addition of a new automatic stamp dispenser is an added feature this year.

The post office schedule for the school year is posted above the clerk's window. The office opens at 8:30 a.m. and closes at 5:00 p.m. on Monday through Friday and is open from 8:30 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

"As usual there is a shortage of boxes," remarked post office branch superintendant Harold Tillman. "We are encouraging students to share their boxes with two others," he said.

Ken Bennett, postal employee also emphasized several important things for post office patrons to remember.

Mail addressed anywhere except Georgia Southern College is out of town.

Mail addressed to Buford, Lynne, and Cooper Halls should be marked for Route 6 - Box 153, Statesboro, Ga. This mail should not be marked for Georgia Southern College.

200 VACANCIES — Only 200 Post Office Boxes Are Available For Rental.

Students desiring to receive their mail through general delivery should check at the window twice daily at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. "Checking general delivery more than twice daily is only wasted time on the part of postal personnel," Bennett added.

Asked what was the biggest problem with new students, Bennett said, "Our biggest problem is with people giving incorrect addresses. This can delay mail delivery as much as 24 hours, depending on address errors."

If a student finds a letter placed in his box by error, he is asked to replace it in the mail box marked LOCAL if the office window is not open.

Send the S & H Green Stamps Home To Mother

The Press Box

By JOHN EDEN

The freshmen have arrived and the Georgia Southern Eagles have 1,100 new fans. Welcome to the campus freshmen, and we're expecting all the support that the largest-yet incoming class should be able to give. School spirit is something that you hear a lot about. But school spirit is not something that can be talked up, in a sports column or anywhere else. It's got to come naturally, from the inside. We know this group will have it, and with their large number, we should be able to make GSC a school that is heralded for enthusiastic school spirit.

Past experience shows, however, that a word must be said about good sportsmanship in the stands. Sometimes spirit, in the heat of competition, becomes spiteful criticism. This kind of thing can earn the unwanted reputation of "poor sports" for a school very quickly, so let's keep our spirit channeled in the right direction — wholehearted support for our team without running down the other team.

As this new school year begins, the freshmen and everyone else are anxiously looking forward to the excitement and color of the many sports events on campus during the year. The agonizing tension of a close game, the sweet taste of victory, the bitter pill of defeat, the sad words "It might have been." . . . all a part of the great world of athletic competition. There will be basketball games, baseball games, gymnastic meets, tennis matches, golf tournaments, and bowling competition. Something to catch the interest of everyone on campus.

On these pages of the George-Anne, the sports staff will present each week an accurate and interesting account of the Georgia Southern sports panorama. This column, though it will at times venture out into the world of sports beyond the GSC campus, will mainly deal with the events and personalities involved in the athletic program of Georgia Southern College.

"To put it in a nutshell, if everybody that's supposed to show up shows up, and if everybody that shows up stays eligible, we could have a good basketball club."

So spoke J. B. Searce, basketball coach, Georgia Southern College. The emphasis was slightly too much on the "if" to justify painting a glowing picture of the prospects for the Eagles accomplishments during the 1965-66 cage season. At this time of year, however, with practice still a month away, basketball coaches tend to be cautious and not go overboard on the optimism.

The way it looks from here, "if", as Coach Searce said, everything goes as anticipated, the Georgia Southern Eagles should come on strong with fine veteran strength in the Adler, Rose, Pickens, Seely, Rickard style . . . backed up by some new depth from last year's freshman team and two promising junior college transfers.

If (again) everybody will come on out and support the team, this will just have to be another great season.

WELCOME STUDENTS!

Jimmy Rose Named To NAIA All-American First Cage Team

Jimmy Rose, high-scoring Georgia Southern Eagle from Hi Hat, Ky., was chosen for the first team of the NAIA All-American Basketball squad at the close of last school year. Rose was the only sophomore on the team, and was the first GSC player to make the All-American first team since 1956, when Chester Webb was selected.

Rose's game statistics stack up like a basketball coach's dream. He hit on 51.1 percent of his field goal attempts and shot 82.4 percent from the foul line. The 6 ft. 2 in. guard scored 490 points in 27 games, for a 18.1 per-game average, the highest on the team.

He also held the high game record of 35 points against Stetson University. He ranked high in assists with 94, and worked the boards well for 108 rebounds to his credit. Rose was low man on the team in the personal foul department with a total of 48 for the season.

GSC Cagers Face Tough Schedule With Little Depth

By JOHN EDEN

The 1965-66 basketball season is fast approaching. Practice is slated to begin October 15, and according to Eagle coach J. B. Searce, the roster for the new season will be plenty healthy. Searce summed it up this way, "If everybody that is supposed to show up shows up, and if everybody that shows up stays eligible, we could have a good basketball club."

There is, of course, no official starting line-up yet, but the Southern basketball mentor indicated that on the basis of performance last year, he could name a few probable starters. Jimmy Rose, the sharp-shooting guard who was the only sophomore on the All-America squad last year, will be a very likely candidate for one of the guard spots on the Eagle court, along with senior Don Adler, who has started every year since joining the GSC cage team.

Probable starters at forward are junior Jim Seely and senior Mike Rickard, with Tommy Dial a likely prospect for one of these positions also. Virtually unrivaled at the center post is senior Bill Pickens.

There are four new varsity members who came up from the last year's freshman team, and two junior college transfers. The addition of these recruits to the previous varsity relief crew gives the Eagles a promising depth and possibility for next year.

Baseball Practice Begins Sept. 27

Baseball coach J. I. Clements has announced the beginning of fall baseball practice and invites all interested men to come out on September 27. The first practice session will be held at 3:30 p.m. behind the W. S. Haner Building.

Although it is too early to speculate on prospects for the team or the season, and the schedule dates are not yet complete, Coach Clements revealed the following list of teams as making up the Eagles baseball competition: University of Kentucky, University of Tennessee, Wake Forest, Davidson College, Amherst College, Hampden - Sidney College, The Citadel, Pembroke State College, East Kentucky College, Carson - Newman, South Carolina University, Florida State University, Jacksonville University, Mercer University, Erskine College.

Freshmen Cagers Slated To Open Season Nov. 20

The prospects for the GSC freshman basketball team are fairly good, according to Coach Ed Thompson. "I feel like we will have a fair freshman team," said Coach Thompson. "Of course, I realize that some of the boys will need lots of work - and I plan to give them this."

Practice will begin October 15 and Coach Thompson asks that all boys interested in trying out for the freshman team come by and talk to him before this date.

Eleven boys are already signed as members of the team. They are Bob Bohman 6 ft. 4 in., Ray Gregory 6 ft., John Helm, 6 ft. 2 in., Robert Johnson 6 ft. 5 in., Jay Hodges 6 ft., 8 in., Larry Pritchard 6 ft. 6 in., Tom Stout 6 ft. 1 in., Robert Hendren, Jimmy Plummer, Timothy o'Leary, and Doke Thomas.

The schedule is not yet complete but the following is a tentative list of the teams which the freshmen will play beginning on Nov. 20: Georgia Military College, Brunswick College, The Citadel Frosh, South Georgia College, Brewton-Parker College, Armstrong College, South Georgia Trade School, Southern Tech, Mercer Frosh, University of South Carolina Frosh, and Oglethorpe Frosh.

$100,000 In Aid Given To Students Of Journalism

3500 Predicted

According to information obtained from Don Coleman, assistant to the registrar, the enrollment of Georgia Southern will reach a new record high this fall. Figures are not yet complete, but Coleman estimates that there will be 3500 students attending this institution fall quarter.

The freshman class will be the largest with approximately 1000 in that class. Five hundred transfer students will be accepted along with 30 new graduate students.

This new record enrollment exceeds that of last fall by nearly 600 students.

NEW YORK (ACP)—Plans for a five-year, $100,000 scholarship program for the nation's top journalism students were revealed April 19, before representatives of accredited schools of journalism.

The program, sponsored by the Minneapolis Star and Minneapolis Tribune, was outlined by Joyce A. Swan, the newspapers' publisher, at a meeting of the American Association of Schools, and Departments of Journalism at Columbia University.

"Beginning in 1966, an award of $400 will go to the student in each of the nation's approximately 50 accredited journalism schools who is rated the outstanding journalism student at the end of his junior year," Swan said. This would account for about $20,000 in awards each year if all the schools accept them.

The scholarships will be granted to the schools for a minimum of five years.

"Since newspapers are a prime beneficiary of the talent supplied by our nation's schools of journalism, it behooves the newspaper business to give tangible support to the schools and to encourage top students," Swan said. "The management of the Star and Tribune is pleased to be able to offer a measure of such support and encouragement."

"We also believe it is signi-

GSC Beauty Places Third In Miss Georgia Pageant

Sandra Fleming, a bright and talented Georgia Southern sophomore, was selected as second runner-up in the annual Miss Georgia contest held in Columbus on July 10.

Sandra had previously won the title of Miss Columbia County which sent her to the Miss Georgia contest.

Sandra's talent routine was an acrobatic dance routine to the theme of Goldfinger.

Miss Fleming has had special training in speech, xylophone, piano, and organ.

The Miss Georgia Contest was only one of a long line of beauty contests for Sandra Fleming. She had previously won the titles of Miss Southeast Georgia FFA Queen, District Posture Queen, and Augusta Yankee Baseball Queen.

Business Office Hours Released

According to information obtained from the office of the Comptroller, the regular hours of the business office and the student bank are from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Students wishing to cash personal checks on other banks at the window must present college identification cards and are requested to give their college address below the signature on the check. There is a five dollar minimum on drafts on the student bank, and the minimum is suggested for personal checks.

For a period of about two weeks before the end of each quarter, the business office will not cash checks on other banks. Students will be notified in advance of this restriction.

Howell Assumes Security Position

Harold Howell, a native of Statesboro, has been appointed to the newly created post of Director of Campus Security for Georgia Southern College.

Mr. Howell attended Gupton Jones College, the University of Georgia School on Traffic and Criminal Investigation, the Georgia Peace Officers School on General Law Enforcement, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation School on Riot Control and Court Procedure.

Mr. Howell has served as sheriff of Bulloch County and as a State Trooper for six years.

In a recent interview, Mr. Howell expressed a strong desire for the office of campus security to work as closely with the student body as possible.

"If somebody has a complaint, or if they feel one of our rules is unjust, I want them to come talk with me about it and not to feel as if they can't complain about a rule. Since the campus security force must work especially closely with the student body in the absence of a dean of men, it is important that the students and the campus security officers work together," Howell said.

The new campus security office is located in the east end of the Alumni Building.

Master Control Panel Overlooks Language Lab
Each Booth Has Individual Mike And Headset

Three Divisions Have Home; New Hollis Building Opens

The Earnest V. Hollis Building, which houses the divisions of language, social science, business, and part of the division of physical education, is the newest classroom building on the Georgia Southern campus.

The two story structure is named for Earnest V. Hollis, president of Georgia Normal School from 1918 to 1924. Hollis joined the faculty in 1918 as the principal of a high school and left as president of a two year junior college in 1924.

The Hollis Building is located on Herty Drive across from the W. S. Hanner Gymnasium. Construction on the building began in Spring of 1964. Technical delays prevented the use of the building for the entire summer session of 1965, however the building is now ready for full use during the fall quarter.

The building contains 33 classrooms, several conference rooms, and a fully equipped language laboratory. The lab will be used by the division of languages. It features booths with headsets and microphones for each student, and an elaborate master control panel, capable of feeding a variety of material into the headsets for oral comprehension.

The Eastern end of the lower floor of the building will be used by the physical education department for some of its classroom courses.

A scenic glassed in double patio forms the center of the building with a stairway forming the heart of the structure.

A decor of yellow and brown speckled block has been used for the walls.

All teachers' offices are furnished with executive desks.

Knight's Dormitories Open For Freshmen In Orientation Week

Two new privately owned dormitories opened their doors yesterday to accommodate 308 Georgia Southern students. The new dorms are a part of the massive Knight Housing Co. project located off Georgia Ave., southwest of the Georgia Southern College campus.

Cooper Hall, with a capacity of 154 women, houses only freshmen except for 12 upper classmen student advisors. Mrs. Sally Westbrook is the housing director.

Cooper has 77 rooms with two girls in each room. It is fully heated and air conditioned with individual thermostat controls in each room. The walls are walnut paneled and telephone extensions will be located on each wing.

The entire building is protected from fires by an automatic sprinkler system.

Construction of Cooper Hall began on June 1 of this year and terminated on Saturday, Sept. 18. The dorm is located adjacent to the Knight Village swimming pool and Lynne Hall.

Morgan Hall, which houses 154 boys, was also begun on June 1 and completed on Sept. 18. Like Cooper Hall it is fully heated and air conditioned with individual thermostats in each room. Walls are mahogany paneled. Each room will house two men.

Automatic sprinklers and telephone extensions will also be included in Morgan Hall.

Mr. Buford W. Knight, owner and developer of the Knight Housing project emphasized that all beds will be furnished with innerspring mattresses. "They will be twin bed style and not bunks. Bunks just aren't comfortable enough," Mr. Knight said.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Waters are the housing directors for Morgan Hall. Mr. Waters is also on the 24 hour security force maintained by Mr. Knight for his housing project.

New IBM System...

Including the packet received at the door of the gym, the student taking three courses will have to fill out approximately 14 cards. These will be two cards for each course, a general information card, a student personnel card, a home address card, a college address card, a library card, a scholarship information card, and for the men, a selective service information card. There is another card to be filled out, but this reporter has not seen it and cannot describe it.

After the cards are fully filled out, the student will proceed to the checkers at the exit door. The cards will be inspected by these checkers and all but the permit to register and the orange class cards will be kept by them.

When the registering student leaves the gym, the process will be about the same as it has been in the past. The next stop is the comptrollers office in the administration office and fee paying.

Before paying his fees, the student will turn in his registration permit. This permit will have been stamped in the gym and will be returned to the registrars office as a record of the student's completion of the registration process.

Many people are under the impression that the new registration system is based on a computer system. This is not the case according to Kenneth Simons, IBM operations man. The system is a data processing system and will probably save little or no time, according to Simons. The system makes the keeping of records easier and simpler.

With the advent of the IBM system, the designation of many courses will have to be changed. All courses will have to be given distinctive names and numbers. The first division to be revamped was music. All other divisions that have not already done so will be converted to a course numbering system that can be coded by the data processing equipment as soon as possible.

In order to facilitate the registration of freshmen, their student advisors will go through the registration process with them.

A new drop add system is being initiated this year along with the IBM system. Under the new system, the student who wishes to drop or add a course will first have to get the permission of his advisor. He will then go to the office of the registrar and obtain an IBM drop-add card. This card will be filled out by the student's advisor, signed by the instructors involved in the procedure and the student's advisor and returned to the registrar's office.

The registrar's office is aware that the present system is not perfect and Joyner has expressed a desire that students who have suggestions that might lead to an improved system submit these suggestions to the registrar's office in writing. Gripes and non-constructive criticism will only waste the time of the student and the registrar's office, Joyner said.
