AMERICAN FOLK BALLET
Troupe to Appear Here Oct. 31, Sponsored by CLEC

Curtain Raises on American Folk Ballet Monday Night

By ANN VAUGHAN

The American Folk Ballet, under the direction of Miss Burch Mann, opens in McCroan Auditorium Monday night at 8:15, presenting "Winter At Deep Creek."

Presented as the first in the 1966-67 Campus Life Enrichment Series, this dance company has 45 dancers and musicians. Tickets may be picked up at the office of the Director of Student Activities in room 107 of the Williams Center. There is no charge for all students.

The group has four full length ballets in its repertoire at this time, each of which represents a segment of the pioneer spirit that moulded America.

Miss Mann, who formed the company in Los Angeles, sought an art form which would fully express the vigor and exuberance of America. To do this, she undertook extensive research in American literature, history and music, as well as a full exploration of the world's dance forms. The result is not simply a new way of dancing—but an entire revolution in the concept of theatrical presentation—a musical drama that is a blending of art expressions, and which, above all, never loses sight of the primary purposes of theatre—enriching entertainment.

The American Folk Ballet is a product of nine years of strict technical training and dedication. To assure continuous and serious study, Miss Mann maintains a studio in Pasadena where she develops dancers who can master the broad techniques and interpretative powers which her diversified and exciting choreography demands.

The West, says Miss Mann, was that part of America least touched by European influence. It was on that prairie that she was born, and after many years as a ballet dancer, teacher and choreographer, she returned to the prairie for the seed from which a true American dance form could be created. "I realized," said Miss Mann, "that European ballet, created in the baroque courts of kings, could never hope to express an open society that spread free as the tall grass over the endless plains. European ballet did, and still does, draw its life blood from the great cities of the world. The roots of America lie in the land. From this land the American dance must draw its strength."

Gov. Sanders Due Saturday To Open Tribute Banquet

Plans are completed and tickets nearly sold out for tomorrow's "Carl Sanders Appreciation Night" banquet, according to the coordinators of the event.

Governor Sanders is presently slated to arrive via plane sometime Saturday morning.

He will be met by a welcoming committee of College Young Democrats.

The banquet, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will open with Academic Dean Paul F. Carroll delivering the invocation. After dinner various testimonials will be given by faculty, townspeople and students.

Overstreet Set For T.V. Series

The first of a video taped series on Georgia literary figures, presented by Robert Overstreet, assistant professor of speech, appears on educational television Thursday.

The first 15-minute program features Carson McCullers. It will be shown on Channels 8&9 at 7:45 p.m.

The series will be approximately 15 shows long, according to Overstreet. The second program also features Carson McCullers. The format for all the shows includes a short introduction with a biographical sketch of the author, followed by readings from the author's works.

The first show will feature "The Jockey" by Miss McCullers. It is illustrated with photographs taken by Ric Mandes, director of public relations. Posing for the pictures were Roy Powell, assistant professor of English; Don Davis, English instructor; Gary Stough, and Vernon Jones, Statesboro citizen.

The second program, which will be shown Dec. 3, will feature "The Ballad of the Sad Cafe." Overstreet is reading the gift scene and the conclusion, "Twelve Mortal Men." This program is illustrated by Larry Gordon, former GSC art student. The music was created by Mike Mortsoff.

President Zach S. Henderson will then officiate at a special tribute to the Governor for his service to the college during his four-year administration.

Although it was previously planned for the governor's entire family to accompany him, his children will be unable to attend due to school schedules. In addition to his wife, the former Betty Byrd Foy of Statesboro, Doug Barnard, an executive secretary, and Larry Loyd, a special aide, will accompany Governor Sanders on the trip. Mrs. J. P. Foy, the governor's mother-in-law and wife of Jesse Ponita Foy for whom the new art building will be named, will also be present for the festivities.

At 2:30 p.m. ceremonies Sunday, Governor Sanders will dedicate five campus buildings either begun or completed during his administration. For the dedication program he will stand in front of Winburn Hall, within sight of the five buildings.

Immediately following the program, a tea will be held in the Olliff Hall lobby. Guests will be able to personally inspect the new buildings with each holding Open House during the afternoon.

Congress Grants Masquers $600

Student Congress has voted to give the Masquers $600 to purchase lighting equipment. The motion was passed at the Oct. 13, regular meeting.

The measure was a modification of a similar earlier proposal which would have allotted the dramatic group $1000 to be used in any way they desired.

Congress also received student nominations for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Among other items of business at the meeting were discussion of use of the Alumni Gymnasium for social activities, assigning of responsibility for placing a trash can on the campus golf course, and naming of the 1967 homecoming committee.

UMOC Contest Begins Monday

Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity will sponsor the annual Ugly Man on Campus contest, Oct. 31 - Nov. 3, according to Ronnie Brazier, first vice president of the fraternity and coordinator of the event. An entry fee of $1 must be turned into Brazier by noon, Oct. 28.

Any Student Congress approved organization, dormitories included, are eligible to enter candidates. The participants will be permitted to campaign in any area they choose, collecting money which will count one cent per vote. The entrant with the largest number of votes will be crowned as the winner at the Sigma Epsilon Chi dance Friday, Nov. 4.

Brazier added that all proceeds from the event will go to the March of Dimes. Money must be turned into him in 210 E. Dorman Hall by 6 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 4.

All candidates are requested to dress "very ugly" on the last day of the contest.

"During the past years the Ugly Man Contest has been a highlight during fall quarter," said Brazier. "We hope students will actively support this worthwhile project which will not only be fun for candidates and students, but will also help the March of Dimes."

Dear Garfunkel

Dear Garfunkel,
My father tried to get a job as manager of the Frank I. Williams Center. He was turned down. Could you tell me why?

B. A. Ounce

Dear B.A.,
Maybe your father smiles too much for the job.

Dear Garfunkel,
Last year, everything I tried to do fell through. What can I do to improve myself?

Essie Ekks

Dear Essie,
Why don't you try joining a club? You know that divided you may fall, but united you fall together.

Dear Garfunkel,

Someone told me that there is to be an observatory, equipped with a telescope, in the back of the new fine arts building. Is this true?

I. C. Ewe

Dear I.C.,

I don't know where you got your facts, but why else would they have built Winburn Hall behind the fine arts building? Many celestial bodies can be viewed through Winburn's windows.

Dear Garfunkel,

What can I do to avoid obscene, harrasing, and threatening phone calls

I. M. Skeert

Dear I.M.,

Come by the office, and I won't bother you anymore.

Dear Garfunkel,

I heard that Georgia Southern had the friendliest people in the world. So I came here, and no one speaks. Why is this?

Ura Snob

Dear Ura,

Last year we did have the friendliest people in the world here, but both of them have transferred.

Dear Garfunkel,

I heard that some of the students are planning to go trick or treating at the cafeteria. Do they really observe Halloween in the cafeteria?

N. Dye Gestion

Dear Ache,

Certainly, as you can see, there are witches there who treat you with tricks every day.

Dear Garfunkel,

I have heard a rumor about a club which meets weekly; its members drink and have orgies. What does this mean? How can I find out more about it?

Dear Look E.

An orgy is a conglomeration of excited people; they are trying to get permission to pull off a display in the Student Center next weekend to begin their membership drive.

... Ballet

Miss Mann contends that America has failed to produce any distinctive style in ballet because it continues to imitate. Any American dance form, she says, must not be copied from the English, the French, or the Russian, but must be born of our own heritabe. "In attempting to recapture the spirit of pioneer America," she says, "I've tried to remember that art is not an elegant spectacle but the simple record of man's journey across the earth. In my case, the record of those men and women who made the journey across America and 'hammered a nation out of a wilderness.'"

Letter To The Editor:

Dear Editor,

Referring to an article appearing on the Sports Page two weeks ago: The suggestion that college freshmen should "put away highschool letter sweaters and jackets" is silly and impractical, not to mention dictatorial.

These garments not only cost money and serve as outer coverings, but they are a security device which helps the student make the transition to college. (You know, like Linus's blanket.)

I am highly indignant that someone wants to prevent students from wearing these high school honors.

Robert Sessions

Dear Editor:

May I take this opportunity to express my distress at the Board of Regents' decision to name the new fine arts building after J. P. Foy. Nowhere in the biographical sketch given in last week's paper was there any mention of a contribution to the college.

Dean of Men Elected

Youth Camp Trustee

Walton Gibbs, the new assistant Dean of Men, has been elected to the board of trustees of the Georgia Primitive Baptist Youth Camp, Inc. Gibbs will serve on the committee with eight other men from this community.

The youth camp, which is located near Collins, Georgia, serves as a summer camp and also as a religious meeting center. The Primitive Baptist Church has an active summer program for its younger members and also encourages youth of other faiths to participate in its various programs.

The purpose of the board of trustees is to assume total responsibility for supervision of the youth camp. Gibbs, who was elected to the position earlier this fall, is anticipating a most successful year for the camp.

Your article said that he was a planter, a naval stores farmer and a cotton gin owner. Wow. If this is all the qualification one needs, in addition to being a member of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of a local church, to be memorialized with a building named after you, then it is a sad state of affairs.

After some checking I find that J. P. Foy is the father-in-law of Governor Carl E. Sanders. Certainly no one in his right mind can criticize the governor for bad policy toward GSC. It might be better, however, to name the building for him rather than a local farmer who has apparently contributed nothing to the school. I understand that buildings cannot be named for living persons. This is no excuse for such procedure though.

Not even Gov. Sanders has made as many contributions as President Henderson. I don't notice any buildings being named for any of his relatives.

It is a despicable situation when politics must play such a significant role in college memorials, especially involving such a fine man as Gov. Sanders.

The note he paused to make as fellow students went ahead to inspect Hatshepsut's Tomb in the Valley of the Kings near Luxor, he used to complete an assignment for his Comparative World Cultures professor.

Russ transferred the 12 units earned during the study-travel semester at sea to his record at the University of California at Irvine where he continues studies toward a teaching career in life sciences.

As you read this, 450 other students have begun the fall semester voyage of discovery with Chapman aboard the s.s. RYNDAM, for which Holland-America Line acts as General Passenger Agents.

In February still another 450 will embark from Los Angeles for the spring 1967 semester, this time bound for the Panama Canal, Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Nigeria, Senegal, Morocco, Spain, Portugal, The Netherlands, Denmark, Great Britain and New York.

Twirp! Get This Boys: Girls Will Pay Your Way

By CINDY CARSON

Twirp Week and Sadie Hawkins Day are firsts in the life of Georgia Southern. Students have complained about the dull life led by a student of this college, and now they are being given the chance to make this alleged dull life a bit more lively.

As an interesting turn-about, women students will be given the chance to ask for dates with the men of their choice, for whom they will foot the bill for entertainment. Girls will call for their dates at the men's dorms, where the boys will sign out on date cards. Girls must be sure to have their dates in by 11:00 unless they have late permits which will allow them to stay out until 11:30.

The only part of the dating whirl that will remain the same is the regulation that female students, alas, must also be in the dorms by 11:00 on week nights and 12:00 on weekends.

The Steps of Rhythm To Play for Mat Dance

The Twirp Week activity scheduled for Wednesday night, November 2, is a mat dance to be sponsored by Student Congress. The dance will be held in the Alumni Gym from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Entertainment for the dance will be provided by the Steps of Rhythm, a nationally known dance group. There will be no charge for admission to this dance.

All organizations wishing to buy pages in the Reflector, school annual, are requested to contact Gordon Turner immediately.

Schedule for Twirp Week

Monday, Oct. 31	American Folk Ballet, McCroan Auditorium - 8:15 p.m.
Tuesday, Nov. 1	Open
Wednesday, Nov. 2	Sadie Hawkins Day Mat Dance - Alumni Gym - 8:00 p.m.
Thursday, Nov. 3	Open

Dogpatch Ceremony Gives Girls Chance

As part of the Twirp Week festivities, Wednesday, November 2, has been designated as Sadie Hawkins Day. This day will be an opportunity for the Students of Georgia Southern to "go grub" and wear "country-style" clothing for the celebration of the female field day.

Sadie Hawkins day originated as the invention of Alfred Gerald Capline, the cartoonist, for his comic strip L'il Abner. He introduced the day in 1938 as an occasion upon which the maidens and spinsters of the mythical town of Dogpatch might lawfully pursue the unattached males of the community in a free-for-all race, the males being obliged to "marry-up" with the females who caught them.

Mr. Caplin did not realize that he was filling a gap in the American cultural pattern, but such was the case since the day has subsequently been observed in many localities throughout the United States, particularly on large numbers of college campuses where the Dogpatch ceremony, humorously reenacted, in an annual occurrence on November 9. Most Old World countries have a similar day where, as the lack in America was presumably felt leading to the enthusiastic adoption of Sadie Hawkins Day by the marriageable young people.

In France, St. Catherine's Day supplies the desired opportunity to unmarried females for acquiring a mate, although what must have begun as a serious custom, intended to solve a social problem has degenerated there and everywhere into mere game or hilarious ceremony without actual matrimony resulting.

In the United States, he Sadie Hawkins Day observance is also incorporated in various promotional and publicity programs. When the day is celebrated on the campuses or elsewhere the captured male is simply the private property of his captor, the enforced partner at a dance or some mock ceremony and is spared the permanent bond of marriage.

Four Groups Featured At Twirp Week Dance

On Friday night, November 4, Sigma Epsilon Chi service fraternity will sponsor a dance in the National Guard Armory on Highway 301. The dance will feature Booker T. and the MG's, Barbara Lewis, Rufus Thomas, and The Ambassadors.

Tickets may be purchased from the brothers of Sigma Epsilon Chi for $1.25 per person.

The pledges of Gamma Sigma Upsilon sorority will hold a car wash on Saturday, October 29, from 8:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. The car wash will be held at Mac's Standard Service Station, located at South Main Street.

Gamma Sigma Upsilon is a service sorority and is engaged in various activities which are of service to the college. The members are currently working with Student Congress in publicizing Twirp Week; and later this quarter, they will assist in sponsoring the bloodmobile when it is on campus.

NO SMOKING

Smoking has become a serious problem at dances held in the Alumni Gymnasium this year. Those attending have been repeatedly warned about the fire regulations. More often than not the warnings have been met with rude defiance.

The fire marshal has officially stated that smoking shall not be permitted in the facility due to the potential fire hazard. It is not difficult to picture the calamity which could be caused by people rushing for exits to escape a fire.

Although they are not directly responsible, fraternities holding dances must accept responsibility for whatever smoking occurs during their activity. One member of Sigma Epsilon Chi had to make several vain appeals for the smoking to stop during Wednesday night's dance.

At an earlier dance a dean threatened to stop the dance if the smoking did not cease. Again open defiance met the request.

Possibly organizations might be forbidden use of the Alumni Gym unless the situation improves. It would certainly be unfortunate if such extreme measures were necessary to demonstrate that fire regulations must be enforced.

While not advocating such procedure we see little else than may be done to make students accept their responsibilities as adults and comply with state law and college regulations.

WHO'S A THIEF?

There is a thief loose on this campus. He is robbing you, the college student, of the right to have lovely and valuable items in the new dormitories. Must the new dorms be built like jails because they are filled with thieves?

It all started this summer. Two ashtrays were stolen from Olliff Hall. Since that time three more have been stolen as well as a personal possession of the dorm mother, Mrs. Morgan, who reports that an onyx bird was taken from the lobby.

Mrs. Morgan has made a special effort to match and buy items to beautify the dormitory, yet thoughtless people are ignoring the rights and feelings of other people.

Complaints are heard because the new dormitories, as well as the old, lack some of the luxuries of nice hotels. Now that we have dormitories that are nice, someone is trying to prove that the students of GSC are not old enough to realize that these accessories are in their respective places for the benefit of all. To ensure the purchase of other fine things for our campus, we must find this thief on campus. Is it you?

RUN, BOYS!

TWIR-R-R-R-R-P!!

Twirp Week is coming. Next week will be a new experience for Georgia Southern students, and they should participate. Students should be eager to support their school by taking part in activities planned by and for them.

Next week should prove to be very enjoyable for all students if they take an active part in the celebration of Sadie Hawkins Day on Wednesday as well as in the numerous nightly events which are both cultural and strictly fun in nature.

Students should try to make Twirp Week a success so that other new events will be planned for the future. Many long hours of hard work and time have been spent already by Mrs. Hudgins, Director of Student Activities, and by Student Congress. Try to make their efforts seem worthwhile.

Death Of 'Relations' Committee Continues as Unsolved Problem

By RON MAYHEW

Last fall about this time the "George-Anne" carried a banner headline at the top of page one. It read "Civic Leaders Form 'Relations' Committee."

The story accompanying this boldly printed statement told of a committee which was being formed to alleviate many of the problems incurred in relations between the college and the City of Statesboro.

It sounded like utopia. The president's office was enthusiastic, the public relations office was happy, the dean of students' office was rejoicing, the office of placement and aid was on Cloud Nine, and the town of Statesboro held its breath with anticipation.

The idea had been presented by Statesboro Rotarians Lewis Hook and Lowell Akins, representing a committee appointed to study the advantages of such a relations group.

Here, at last, were the answers to everybody's problems, all wrapped up into everybody's committee. Its purpose was to "furnish an avenue of communications between all college personnel and local citizens to result in promoting GSC and Statesboro and improving the happiness and well-being of students, faculty, and Statesboro citizens," indeed a noble objective.

Prospective membership was to include presidents of Statesboro Civic Clubs and representatives from city government, chamber of commerce, and the Statesboro Ministerial Association. College representation was to include President Z. S. Henderson, Dean Ralph K. Tyson, Dean Paul F. Carroll, Dr. Jack N. Averitt, Dr. Fielding D. Russell, Ben G. Waller, the student congress president and the "George-Anne" editor.

A letter appeared in the next issue of the aforementioned "George-Anne," praising the committee. The last sentence read, "Don't let this idea die in the planning stage."

Unfortunately this is precisely what happened. The committee met once and that's all anyone ever heard of it. Or at least all they're willing to admit.

When this writer tried to ascertain the reason for the new committee's death, he encountered an intricate maze of pass-the-buck advocates. Everybody could place the blame on someone else, or at least lift it from his own shoulders.

Even the most naive of us must admit that many problems exist which certainly necessitate this type of committee. If difficulties were encountered in the formative stages they should have been hashed out. Discontinuance certainly could not have been a solution.

Student Raters: 'Giftie's' Boon To Professors

By ANN VAUGHAN

Although college teachers perform many functions besides teaching, such as administration, research, counseling and public and professional services, the teaching function is considered to be the most important by faculty in most colleges. If it isn't, it should be.

Though I have no statistics at my fingertips, it seems that college instructors often feel that "teaching" is not what they are hired to do. After all, by the time a student reaches that "ivy-covered hall called college" he should be able to "get it himself." Most all would agree, however, that their job is to impart knowledge; what else is teaching, if not imparting knowledge and, sometimes, a little wisdom.

Although research effectiveness can be estimated in terms of publications, papers, patents, consultative demand, or other tangible evidence, the essential products of a good teacher are the knowledge and inspiration gained by his students.

It would seem that, more than any other person, the student can judge teaching ability, for he views the teacher in his Robert Burns said, in his "To A Louse,"

"Oh wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as ithers see us!"

Surely the feedback a teacher would receive from anonymous ratings by his students would be such a "giftie's" boon.

It is argued that the students aren't mature enough; they don't know what makes a good teacher, or, it's just a chance for revenge.

But studies made so far have failed to support these contentions. They show: that if 25 or more student ratings are averaged, they are as reliable as the better educational and mental tests presently available; grades of students have little relation to their ratings of instructor who assigned the grades; little, if any, relationship, between students' ratings of the teacher and difficulty of the course, and there is little relationship between sex and the student's rating of the teacher.

Students may be given rating scales, multiple-choice responses, or forced-choice responses to questions which seek their appraisal of a particular teacher's effectiveness. Questions may cover teacher's appearance and habits, his knowledge of the field, his methods of presentation, his ability to motivate, and his fairness and attitude toward the individual student.

These evaluations could prove to be the "giftie's" boon for professors. Instructors using them need not feel threatened for rarely have such evaluations been used as the basis for promotion. They would help teachers to make course improvements and self evaluations, which would aid him in imparting his particular knowledge to his students.

Campus Telephones Going PBX Starting on Nov. 15

By RON MAYHEW

GSC is going PBX on Nov. 15, according to C. J. Matthews, president of the Statesboro Telephone Company.

The announcement was made during a recent interview in which the local executive outlined the basic structure and operation as well as the extended capabilities of the college's new PBX telephone system.

When the system goes into operation, all calls into the campus will be routed through a single master switchboard, manned by a staff of fulltime operators. If the caller knows the extension number he wishes to contact, he merely tells the operator who will in turn ring the designated telephone.

If, however, the exchange number is not known the operator will have a complete information file at her fingertips which will list the residences and addresses of all students in addition to a master directory of every campus phone. Matthews remarked that he hoped such an arrangement would greatly facilitate locating students when long-distance calls are received.

On-campus phones will be set up in two categories, Matthews continued. Restricted phones will be able to dial direct to any other campus phone either by dialing the extension number or through the main switchboard. Non-restricted phones will dial inter-campus calls the same way but may dial outside by preceding the desired number with "9".

The telephone company hopes to have several phones of each type in all dormitories. Individual need will dictate which campus phones are restricted and which are not.

"Flexibility is the greatest asset of this new system," commented Matthews. "Engineered by Stromberg Carlson, it is the most modern and up-to-date system available."

"There are many changes we can make or devices we can add at a later date once we are able to determine the need," he added.

The period of adjustment will be a difficult time for everyone, he stressed. "We hope students, faculty, and the new operators will all become accustomed to the system quickly, but we realize there will be many problems at first."

Adaptive construction for the new branch exchange began several months ago. Two main tangible results are in evidence. First, a housing block for the relay equipment has been walled off at the end of the Administration Building, adjacent to the campus swimming pool. Second, all wiring for the new system is underground with the exception of a few main incoming trunk lines. "This means we'll be taking down a lot of wires," Matthews said.

The system's main switchboard will be located in a small room off the main hall of the Administration Building. This area was formerly used as an office for student personnel graduate assistants.

Once the system is installed all phones on campus will have a three-digit extension number. Thus instead of calling 764-3231 for President Henderson's office as is presently the procedure, one will dial 136 (or whatever the number might be).

Matthews pointed out that although the college's exchange system will be the largest of its kind in Statesboro, it will not be the first. Similar setups have been installed at Rockwell Manufacturing Co. and in a local bank.

"With each of the other systems we had problems which took time to iron out," he said. "The byword will be 'cooperation' while we work together to establish a system which will be of maximum benefit to everyone concerned."

Inquiring Reporter

By BECKY SWINDELL

Why do so many students of GSC go home on weekends? There must be an explanation of this Friday "migration" every week. Are the students lacking the maturity necessary to stand up on their own two feet without seeing Mommy and Daddy so often? Is it the school's fault? Are our activities adequate? These questions have puzzled the inquiring reporter long enough. This week's question was: "Why do you think so many students go home on weekends, and do you have any suggestions to remedy this situation?"

Kenneth Stanley, Frosh, Ft. Gaines - I think we have enough activities; freshmen usually want to go home to see familiar faces. When they get to know a lot of people here it won't be so bad. People will stay a lot more when basketball season begins.

Menzanna Mathis, Sophomore, Brunswick - We should have lots more dances with big name bands - make it a weekend affair. Also extend girls' hours because they usually don't start until 9:00. By the way, I'm going home this weekend.

Ronnie White, Junior, Columbus, N. C. - I transferred from a junior college where we didn't have half as many activities - especially dances. I believe if we had a football team the school spirit would be better this time of the year. Looks like we'll have to wait for the basketball games to start.

Jim Kicklighter, Junior, Screven - They should sell beer on campus.

Robert Hawk, Senior, Atlanta - We should bring the undergraduates' parents down here to see their babies.

Maxine Daves, Senior, Riddleville - The usual reason is because of interests still at home - mainly male and female. I certainly think the activities on the weekends are adequate.

Pat Cates, Sophomore, Atlanta - There isn't anything to do on weekends, there should be more concerts, etc., to get people to stay.

Jo Ann Smith, Frosh, Springfield - A lot of people go home to get their clothes washed or to see their parents.

Floyd Moody, Sophomore, Albany - If they had something big to do, people would stay. Most of these people live close by and they have things to do there.

Ribbon Calloway, Ty Ty, janitor - Have closed weekends per quarter - if that doesn't work take their cars away.

Circle K's Name Changed to KDX

The college chapter of Circle K International has officially changed its chapter name to Kappa Delta Chi, Danny Hagan, president of the organization, announced this week.

Hagan stated that the club was still affiliated with Circle K International and still embraced the principles and objectives of that organization, but that the recent action was part of the group's new campus image. The group will be chartered with Student Congress as an international service fraternity.

The Greek letters of the new name, KDX, represent Education, Service, and Cooperation.

In the near future, plans for the club's activity are to sponsor a pep rally, bonfire, and free dance on Dec. 8. KDX will also sponsor the Homecoming Parade, and a dance during homecoming weekend.

Officers of the club are: Danny Hagan, president; Carolus Daniel, vice-president; Wilson Woodard, secretary; John Thornton, treasurer. Directors are: John Eden, Harold Hadden, David Dunn, and Gordon Turner.

President Zach Henderson and Ben G. Waller are college advisors of the fraternity, and C. Roger Carter is the Kiwanis advisor.

Federal Employment Team To Visit School Next Week

Representatives of various Government agencies will conduct a Federal Employment Outlook Program on campus Wednesday.

Representatives will meet with various classes and will be available for individual consultation throughout the day to furnish information, brochures, applications and specific answers to personal questions.

The speakers will be lecturing in the business classes in the Hollis Building. They will be interviewing in rooms 111 and 114 of the Williams Center from 8:30 to 5:30 Tuesday. Phi Beta Lambda and Society for the Advancement of Management are sponsoring a banquet at the Le Chateau Restaurant Monday at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are being sold by the members of the two organizations.

About half of the positions for which the Government recruits college graduates each year are filled through the Federal Service Entrance Examination. This program is used to fill entrance - level positions in about 60 occupational fields—ranging from electronic data processing and personnel management to social security administration and tax collection—in Federal offices throughout the United States and overseas. As in previous years, the FSEE will provide the opportunity for several thousand graduates to find their careers in Government. College seniors who will complete degree requirements within nine months, as well as all graduates are eligible to compete in the FSEE, regardless of academic majors.

Applicants normally take a general test of verbal abilities and quantitative reasoning. The test will require about 2 1-2 hours. Sample questions generally are sent to all applicants. The starting salary for positions filled through the Federal Service Entrance Examination is usually $5,331 a year, but outstanding candidates can be paid a beginning salary of $6,451. Candidates for Management Intern will take an additional test on administrative problems and public affairs — this test will require an additional 1 1/2 hours.

'Papa Hemingway' Review

By CHARLES WELSH

A. E. Hotchner, author of Papa Hemingway, met Ernest Hemingway while trying to get him to do an article for Cosmopolitan magazine. Hotchner missed the article. Instead he became friends with Hemingway. Hemingway gave Hotchner permission to take notes and later to use a tape recorder for their conversations that covered everything from bull fights to story ideas.

Hotchner and Hemingway were together, were friends for thirteen years. Havana to Paris, the Riviera to Madrid, Ketchikan to Venice; Hemingway traveled and talked. Hotchner followed and listened. It seems that Hemingway talked about everything that had ever interested him; his own work, the 20's, his contemporaries and anything that held any interest for him. Hotchner put these things down on paper and in the final work, Papa Hemingway, it seems that Hemingway might have written some of these sentences and paragraphs. Hotchner's picture of Hemingway is complete. It is not a simple thing dealing only with the bull fight circuit or hunting and fishing. It is a complete picture of Hemingway the man. Hotchner shows Hemingway the quarreller, the bullv.

The time of the biography is thirteen years before Hemingway's death. As Hemingway told Hotchner much of his earlier life, these events are woven together with those of the final thirteen years adding to the completeness and accuracy of this biography.

In any interesting piece of writing there is a meeting between two opposing forces and the two opposing forces in Papa Hemingway are Ernest Hemingway and life itself. The result of the meeting is clear, as is Hotchner's account of it.

Shortly before his death Hemingway said to Hotchner, "What does a man care about? Staying healthy. Working good. Eating and drinking with his friends. I haven't any of them. None of them."

So the man who had always hunted and fished as much as he wanted, drank, traveled, been to all the wars, won the Nobel Prize for fiction, could not do any of the things that were part of his life — that made up his life. Ernest Hemingway, the man who wrote stories that hunters and woodsmen truckdrivers and farmers could understand without having a concordance, had reached the point where life was not for him to live as he had lived it or as he wished to continue. Hotchner's affection for Hemingway is clear throughout the book.

'Blasphemous' Beatles Sing Guitar Alleluia

By MEREDITH EIKER
The Collegiate Press Service

The period of public mourning over the death of God seems to have passed; a big thing in religious symbols is now a Yellow Submarine, the Holy Trinity has become a quartet, and the Alleluia Chorus requires an electric guitar.

Needless to say this is the Year of Our Lord — 1966, B.C. — b.c. being, of course, Beatle Century. The Western world is hearing the first cries of worship this week: "John not Jesus." And as is true of most deities, the popularity of the current idols is suddenly dubious.

Obviously when John Lennon — the Beatle sitting highest on Mount Olympus — announced some weeks ago that "the Beatles are more popular than Jesus," he undoubtedly thought that he was merely stating fact. It seems, however, that at that point he had initiated a cult.

Long worshipped but never officially sanctified, the Beatles began somewhat unobtrusively in a place called the Cavern in Liverpool, Eng. The whole set-up was not much unlike the manger scene where Christ made his first appearance 2,000 years before. People came and kind of stared — both at the infant Christ and later at the singers.

Other similarities cannot be easily overlooked either. Both Christ and the Beatles were fated for destinies with the stars, both performed miracles (the Beatles being able to turn docile, apathetic, teenage girls into screaming beasts), both experienced surging popularity and large followings only to find themselves eventually called blasphemers.

Both Christ and the Beatles knew they were doomed . . .

rock and roll and religion are fickle. The Beatles have been waiting for "their downfall" for several months now. Both have witnessed angry mobs. It may not be long before fanatics are throwing rocks at the Beatles instead of kisses.

Significantly, the Beatles even have a gospel of their own.

Twentieth century communication has enabled the singers to reach thousands without the aid of loaves and fishes. Their words are immortality inscribed on discs . . . Lyrics such as those of Nowhere Man and Eleanor Rigby are as didactical and thought-provoking as the sermons of Christ.

And why shouldn't the Beatles become the successors to Christ? They're alive, enthusiastic, current, and palatable. Besides it's just as easy to say "John, Paul, George and Ringo" as it is to say "Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

Washington, D. C. (CPS) — A rule prohibiting drinking in dormitories has been unexpectedly reversed by Georgetown University.

Officials said the new policy, which allows all men to keep both beer and hard liquor in their rooms, was designed to help students develop personal responsibility.

According to the Reverend Anthony J. Zeits, director of who have studied the campus drinking issue have concluded that "the formation of young men is facilitated when they are given the freedom to choose whether to use or not to use alcoholic beverages."

Georgetown officials also said the move was made to end the pretense of enforcing an unenforceable rule — a primary consideration, according to several students.

Studies of other colleges which allow liquor on campus have shown that "most students do not over-indulge when allowed to have alcoholic beverages in their dormitories," Father Zeits emphasized.

The step taken by Georgetown is a surprising one, according to Gerry McCullough, news editor of the student paper.

McCullough said the drinking decision was handled quietly. The Student Council discussed the issue with administration officials last year. The newspaper knew nothing of the proceedings until the matter was settled, McCullough said.

No one circulated petitions or flyers in support of campus drinking.

For the past four years, McCullough added, student leaders have been trying to liberalize Georgetown's policies. Dormitory curfew regulations have also been relaxed this semester, he said.

With the lifting of the ban on campus drinking, Georgetown, a medium-sized Roman Catholic institution, has become the second college in Washington to allow the privilege. The other is George Washington University.

An interesting sideline, McCullough noted, "business is really booming at the corner liquor store."

Student Beats Parking Ticket Rap at M.S.U.

Mississippi (CPS) — Millions of university - issued parking tickets across the country may now be worthless. In a precedent - setting case, the prosecution of a Mississippi State University student for refusing to pay his campus tickets has been dismissed.

Leslie C. Cohen, a Canadian political science student at M-SU, balked when the academic institution imposed $20 in parking fines without a hearing.

When the University threatened him with dismissal and state court action unless fines were paid, Cohen went to the Lawyers Constitutional Defense Committee of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The LCDC secured a restraining order to prevent MSU officials from impeding Cohen's efforts to gain admission to a Canadian law school. Cohen feared that the University would delay sending his records, would note the parking violations on his record or would not allow him to take a necessary summer session course at Mississippi State.

The LCDC subsequently challenged the constitutionality of which the University justified its regulations. The statute granted to the State Board of Institutions of Higher Learning the power to create regulations which are municipal in effect, the LCDC charged.

While the case was before the U. S. District Court, the State Attorney General, representing the University, conceded that the regulations which were promulgated by MSU and their manner of enforcement were null and void.

The University dropped its charged against Cohen and the Mississippi statute came under the consideration of a three-judge federal court.

Although the law was eventually ruled constitutional, LCDC chief counsel Alvin Bronstein said that this does not affect the due process precedent that had been raised over the tickets themselves.

Bronstein said he has already received requests for particulars on the case from legal departments of several universities.

Foreign Students Make Diversity

By ELAINE THOMAS

When the initial activities and anxieties of fall quarter cease, students begin to grow accustomed to seeing the same faces in the same places. However, there are certain faces that always remain an interest to most students; these are the faces of the foreign students. Georgia Southern is fortunate to have numerous foreign students, all of whom are counted as assets to the campus. This quarter Georgia Southern has four new foreign students: Eliana Nemer, Cristina Veraguas, Ralph Goldstein, and Alberto Cudemus. They have come to join the ranks of seven other undergraduate students who have been on campus a year or more.

A native of Sao Paulo, Brazil, Eliana Nemer previously attended Dante Alighieri and Pontificia Universidade De Catolica de Sao Paulo. Elina came to Georgia Southern as a Georgia Rotary Student Fund student; she is an unclassified political science major. Students who are struggling with a foreign language will be dismayed to learn that she speaks Portuguese, English, French and Italian.

Eliana compared Georgia Southern campus life to that of her home by saying, "The universities in my home don't have dorms and extra-curricular activities. We just go there to attend classes. We don't have specific textbooks, either. We have to make researches, give lectures, and prepare seminars. We also have the semester system, instead of the quarter system. To get into the university, we must take examinations."

Swimming, horseback riding, soccer, theatre, music, dancing, reading, and bridge are some of the activities she enjoys. Eliana also claims that she likes GSC because the people here are very friendly.

Cristina Veraguas hails from La Ligua, Chile, and is also on a Georgia Rotary Student Fund scholarship. A graduate student from the Teachers' College of the University of Chile, Cristina is an English major. She stated that she wants to know more about the methods and techniques of teaching English as a foreign language. Cristina's native language is Spanish; she also speaks English, German and French.

In explaining the differences between Georgia Southern and Chilean campuses, Cristina said, "Universities in Chile are generally day colleges. The schools are scattered in different sections of big cities; they seldom constitute a university campus. Due to this characteristic, student life is reduced to activities concerning a small number of students. Chilean students don't join clubs as they do here. They concentrate their interests on their political parties. The methods of teaching drive Chilean students toward group work. There's a great sense of unity among students belonging to a single class, for they take the same courses from the very beginning to the end of the school year."

Cristina also stated that she likes Southern because she is interested in knowing different ways to approach professional careers, even though she likes the University of Chile system best. Students will be delighted to hear that aside from reading novels, Cristina enjoys basketball competition. This fact is sure to make her one of the Eagles' favorites.

Two of the busiest fellows on campus are from Caracas, Venezuela. Alberto Cudemus and Ralph Goldstein have already attracted feminine interest because they are both, not only handsome, but athletic as well. Cudemus is a junior math major; Goldstein is a freshman banking and finance major. Both have participated in gymnastics, track and wrestling in their own schools; they plan to try out for the Eagles' gymnastics team. Goldstein and Cudemus came to Georgia Southern because it has a higher scholastic standing than other schools they applied to. Cudemus has previously attended Birdwood and West Georgia Colleges.

Both displayed a sense of humor, whether they speak in flawless English, or in Spanish, which is bewildering to listeners.

Since the two have much apparent appeal as far as girls are concerned, they were asked their opinion of the girls here. With politeness they agreed, "The girls here think they're special—they probably are—but they don't have to advertise it. We find we're not the only ones who feel this way; most other boys do, too."

However, it seems that neither Goldstein nor Cudemus is having difficulty attracting girls. Both boys have perfect manners and much Latin American charm. When asked, in conclusion, what they liked best about Georgia Southern, Cudemus said, "I like the ducks here."

While some students may go home every weekend, these foreign students cannot. During their stay here, they learn much of the American way of life. It is hoped that Georgia Southern students will learn about some of the different cultures represented on the campus. Southern is indeed fortunate to be composed of so many different faces. Students should make the most of the opportunities of an education, including ideas of those who are welcome visitors from another country.

Six Students Go To SGEA Meet At Rock Eagle

Six officers of the SGEA, assisted by Dr. Starr Miller, chairman of the Education Division, presented a panel on the Committee on Problems of the Education Student at the SGEA Leadership Conference at Rock Eagle, 4-H Center.

The panel members were Genny Sarver, secretary; Joan Adams, president; Hazel Smith, 1st vice-president; Ed James, 2nd vice-president; Pat Groover, publicity chairman, and Jimmy Grier, projects chairman and moderator of the panel.

The committee demonstrated a planning session for organizing COPES. The problem chosen for this year was the lack of communication between the SNEA and education majors, education majors and the Education Division, and the SNEA and its members. Suggestions for resolving the problem were discussed.

The purpose of the panel was to interest other colleges in COPES and to show the procedure used to initiate the program. COPES was established to involve the education students in activities of a professional nature.

Other highlights of the conference were addresses by Clyde W. Kimball Jr., president of GEA; Mrs. Lilla Carlton, Future Teacher - SGEA consultant; Frank M. Hughes, GEA executive secretary, and Ray Cleere, director of recruitment and of Education.

The Woman's College of Georgia presented a GEA Centennial Review of the fashions a teacher would wear during the past century.

A symposium with the topic "Planning A Challenge" was presented by Dr. Starr Miller, chairman of TEPS, Teacher Education and Professional Standards; Miss Audrey Herod, chairman of PR and R, Professional Rights and Responsibilities, and Mrs. Grace Yancey, director of professional services.

Sandra Henderson, Ruthie Hendricks, Judy Hunnicutt, Sandy Palmer, Sandy Richardson and Gail Brazzell were elected varsity basketball cheerleaders Monday in the Alumni Gym.

At the same time Mary Ellen Coleman, Jennifer Duke, Kimberly Cibulski, Barbara Block, Pam Paxton and Ami Dumbach were chosen freshman basketball cheerleaders. In two weeks four of these will be appointed cheerleaders while the remaining two will be alternates.

Four Judges

Four persons, including Coach Ron Oertley, head gymnastics coach, judged the final try-outs event Monday. The judges agreed that all participated with great enthusiasm and proved to be confident. The freshmen girls surprised the judges with exceptional performance.

At the finals each contestant had to demonstrate a front hand spring, a cart wheel, a round-off, and three different cheers, together with various jumps and splits.

Good Turn Out

Mrs. Sue Oertley, cheerleader faculty adviser, said: "We had a very good turn out this year. The girls have been working very hard learning the cheers and the stunts."

Student Dislikes ...

Dear Sports Editor:

I emphatically disagree with the article dated two weeks ago regarding the wearing of high school award letters on the GSC campus.

Carried to the logical extreme it would be equally as simple to forbid the wearing of high school senior rings at college, the only difference being the degree of prominence. Indeed it be just as easy to say that students are forbidden to wear red shirts or long hair.

Granted, the wearing of high school letters may look immature or "Harry High School-ish" to many college students. If, however, a student wished to dress this way it should be his privilege. It is certainly not the place of any group on campus to dictate how students must dress.

Lynn L. Bradley

Since 1949 there has been a school rule stating that high school letters will be allowed on campus until Thanksgiving, but not thereafter. The rule has the approval of Dean Carroll.

Intramural Lead Held by Sig Eps

There has been no intramural flag football action this week due to mid term, according to Charles Exley, director of intramurals.

Sig Eps is continuing to lead the league with a 4-0-1 record. The Bulldogs are second with a 4-1-1 mark followed by the Rhodents with 4-1-0. Fourth place is being held down by Phi Epsilon Kappa with a record of 3-0-2. The Hawks and APO are fifth and sixth respectively. The Hawks are 3-1-1 and APO is 1-3-1. Delta Pi Alpha is seventh with a 1-4-0 mark. The Unexpected are last with a 0-6-0 record. The Rebels have forfeited all of their games due to the use of an ineligible player.

The women speedball tournament begins Monday at 5 p.m. All captains are reminded to turn in names of badminton players together with the speedball practice points and all-star lists. Girls wishing to play should see Coach Charles Exley or Brenda Mcphail.

Of course rules can be questioned. Isn't it true though, you wear a letter to be recognized as one of the few varsity athletes at your school. If persons here wore their high school letters you would find every fourth or fifth male student wearing letters. The Southern lettermen would disappear in the crowd. Now those that should be recognized, because of services they have done to this college through their sports, can be recognized.

Carol Faust Enjoys Board Skating

It was Friday night around 7 p.m. outside the South end of the student center. A loud, train like noise could be heard from the sloping sidewalk leading to the McCroan Auditorium. Suddenly a student girl with long, flying, red hair rounded the curve in high speed on a skate board stopping abruptly at the end of the pavement.

"I do it because it is fun," explained Carol Faust, Elem. Ed. '70, Atlanta, "and it's something to do."

Carol has been board skating a year and a half. She said it is quite a fad in Atlanta, and usually it is done by college students. The group she stays together with goes to different Atlanta shopping centers at night to practice.

Usually Carol and her friends skate about 100-150 yards. "You see, we have to walk back, so we don't want to make it too long," she said.

Board skating is closely related to surfing, according to Carol. She does not surf, but it quite interested in ice skating. Anybody can learn to board skate, Carol said, and it is also cheap; you can make your own board.

Carol said, that the girls in her dorm think she is "crazy" going out skating at night, but "that has never bothered me," she added.

Carol has many other interests. She wanted to take karate this quarter, but first "I must make good grades," she said and added: "I am interested in karate not as a matter of self defense but as an art." Besides she enjoys swimming and music, and "I hope to become a member of the Masquers."

That was what Carol told before returning to the top of the sidewalk for another skate run downhill, and another one, and another one . . .

For the first time in the history of Southern Mrs. Oertley plans to add some boy cheerleaders to the squad. "I've been thinking about it quite a while," she said. Five boys are going out for the squad, and in a couple of more weeks she will be able to decide whether or not to use any of the boys.

More Response

"Boys get more response from the spectators than girls," she said, "and other colleges have boys." She continued saying that since Southern has grown so large, we should get some boy cheerleaders, because "that seems to be the trend."

A Fine Group

Mrs. Oertley concluded saying: "I would like to express my appreciation to the boys gymnastics team for its help. I also want to thank the experienced cheerleaders for working with the new girls on cheers. I am looking forward to this year and I feel we will have a fine group of cheerleaders with much pep and enthusiasm."

House Directors Back Intramurals

The campus house directors voted unanimous support of the intramural sports program at a meeting Tuesday morning, according to Charles Exley, director of intramurals.

It was decided at the meeting that an intramural council consisting of one representative from each house council and one from each team will be formed to help formulate and interpret intramural policy. "The object of the council is to interpret the program to students in the hope of improving participation," said Exley.

The council holds its first meeting on Wednesday, November 2 at 10 p.m. in the lobby of Winburn Hall.

B. J. ON SPORTS

By BJÖRN KJERFVE
Sports Editor

It was Friday night. Tennis practice ended late as most days. I just managed to make it over to the dining hall in time, seconds before the personnel closed the doors. Of course I was hot and sweaty. What do you expect after two hours conditioning and play practice. My dress was appropriate, though, I thought.

I wore a Southern sweat shirt, a tennis jacket, tennis shoes, white socks and a pair of tennis shorts. Quite a normal dress for a tennis player; at least it is considered so the world over. I think it looks quite neat

She Only Did Her Job

When leaving the dining hall one of the women in charge came up and nicely asked me not to wear such short shorts in the dining hall. She said they were not decent looking. Bermuda shorts would have been acceptable, but these were too short.

The woman in the dining hall did not mean anything bad. She only did her job. It makes it hard on me and my fellow teammates, though. We don't have time to go back to our dorms, take a shower, get dressed and be in the dining hall before it closes. Instead we will now have to put on an old pair of trousers on top of our "too short shorts". You can imagine how that feels.

"It's Hard To Draw a Line"

When I asked Mrs. Mae H. Webb, dietitian, if it would be permissible for us tennis players to wear our tennis outfit in the dining hall to supper she referred to page 26 in the Eagle-Eye, where it says that traditional male attire in the dining hall is not athletic shorts. Mrs. Webb added: "It's hard to draw a line, but tennis shorts are a little too short to be appropriate."

Let's get one thing straight, I do not criticize the personnel in the dining hall or Mrs. Webb for this. I do not direct my complaint to the administration. I merely argue - and argue in vain - against a stubborn, traditional, prudish, colonial type American society. A society that in some fields is extremely progressive but in others lives in the past.

What Is Decency?

This society can stand to see four inches of exposed male leg above the knee - bermuda shorts. But it cannot stand 10 inches - my tennis shorts. Or can it? I believe so, and I believe the rule is as the Eagle-Eye puts it: "traditional". People are afraid of changes. I agree that when you eat together with others, you should be neatly dressed. Still I do not think it matters whether you wear bermuda shorts or tennis shorts. Decency is not six inches of trouser leg. Your attitude and behavior are what count.

Baseballers

Still Practice

For the past month, about 40 persons have taken part in the fall baseball practice under guidance of baseball mentors J. I. Clements and Bill Spieth. The mild weather has allowed the team to put in work which the coaches call "invaluable to the success of the spring team."

Until last week, the group was working on fundamentals of the game.

According to coach Spieth the team looks strong defensively, but he also said that he could not comment on the hitting.

Spieth is mainly working on developing a strong pitching staff. He said that some of the pitchers have good stuff, but need work on mechanics to get the fine points which make the good pitchers.

Netters Play Twice

Tennis Team Wants Savannah, Macon Scalps

By TOM KING
Sports Writer

The Southern tennis team plays the first fall practice match Saturday in Savannah against a Savannah USLTA team and next weekend the Eagles go to Macon to battle the Macon Tennis Center in another practice meet.

Last fall was the first time Southern played a pre-season match. The netters visited Augusta and unexpectedly defeated the Tennis Center, 4-2.

Against Savannah the Eagles start six single players and five doubles teams. The reason for the unusual number of doubles matches is to give as many netters as possible a chance to play, according to Coach David Hall.

The Eagle netters, bolstered by the return of four lettermen, two promising prospects and a host of newcomers, will field what Tennis Mentor Hall calls the best GSC team ever.

Stiles Improved

Sixteen boys are currently trying for the team. Among these 16 are four lettermen: Danny Stiles, Eddie Russell, Mack Poss and Bjorn Kjerfve.

Danny Stiles, English, '68, Thomaston, returns from last year's squad. "Danny has improved over the summer and he will help us considerably," Hall commented. Eddie Russell, Psy., '69, Statesboro, will return as the only freshman from the '66 team. According to Hall, Russell is not quite as sharp as he was last year, but he will progress and play up to his potential.

Bjorn Kjerfve, Math, '67, Sweden, is one of two seniors who lettered last year. Being a Georgia Rotary Student Fund student, "B.J." played number one last season. "I think that B.J. is taking up where he left off last year. He played in a few summer tournaments and his tennis has improved," said Hall. "B.J." is treasurer of the Student Congress.

Mack Poss, P.E. '67, Lincoln, will return for his last year. Poss was captain of the '66 netters and recently was elected vice president of the senior class. "Mack is also taking up where he left off last year and seems to be improving," said Hall.

Wickham Is Hot

Two newcomers to the GSC tennis squad are Johnny Roundtree and George Wickham. Roundtree, Psy., '67, Orlando, Fla., played the first half of the '66 season but failed to letter. Wickham, history, '67, Orlando, Fla., will have a chance to play the number one position on the squad this year, according to Hall.

"Both of these boys are capable of playing number one for us. Both have played tournament tennis in Florida and should add a great deal to our team," Hall added.

Non-lettermen returning from last year's team include Joe Mercer, Phys. E., '67, Jeffersonville, and Robin Olmstead, Math '68, Pensacola, Fla. Mercer is the manager of the gymnastics and president of the senior class, while Olmstead is second vice-president of the Student Congress.

Newcomers to the squad include James Jackson, Joe McDaniel, Rodney Chandler, Danny Rice, Robin Ritter, Sam Nesbi and Jerry Poppoll.

Jerry Poppoll, a transfer student from Middle Georgia College, is the only one of the newcomers that has experience. He played for the MGC squad last year.

"Robin Ritter is coming along fast and by the spring he should be able to play some tennis for us," Hall said.

The team manager is Jake Paulk, '70 Clarkston.

Inter Squad Play

According to Hall, the team is currently engaged in an intersquad tournament. Each member of the team challenges the other players. The one with the best record will be seeded number one. "If we have boys with identical records, they will tie off and be seeded accordingly," said Hall.

Hall encourages anyone interested in tennis to come to practice at 4 p.m. on the courts beside the Hanner Gym. "We practice for about three or four more weeks and then resume practice in the spring," Hall concluded.

S-Club Meeting Set

The S Club meets for the first time in almost two years Thursday November 3 in the Hollis Building, room six, according to Coach Ron Oertley, faculty adviser.

"It will strictly be an information and orientation meeting," Oertley said. "We want to explain the reactivation of the club, elect officers and restate the purpose."

The S-Club is open to all men having received letters from Southern, and Oertley urges all lettermen to attend the meeting. It does not matter whether the lettermen are old members of the club from a couple of years ago, or if they are prospective members.

According to Oertley the club will be reactivated and new members initiated prior to the start of the basketball season.

Don't Forget Bob Johnson!

Bob Johnson, a 6-5 sophomore forward, was inadvertently omitted from last week's basketball sketches. Johnson was a spot starter for last year's freshman team which posted a 13-3 record, and Johnson finished the season with an average of six points a game. A rugged competitor, Johnson is at his best under the boards. He is from Indianapolis, Ind.

Southern Belle

Lynn Willey is unhappy with the parking situation on campus so she decided to investigate first hand, literally, through the eyes of a campus security officer. Only trouble was she wouldn't get off the phone. This senior psychology major is from Savannah and enjoys singing, modern dance, and swimming. She plans a career in clinical psychology after graduation. Lynn will play the female lead role of Nellie in the college's winter quarter production of "South Pacific." One of the songs she will sing is "One Hundred and One Pounds of Fun." Her own weight? You guessed it, exactly 101 pounds.
