Starlight Queen To Be Crowned At Nov. 19 Ball

The annual Starlight Ball, sponsored by Alpha Rho Tau, will be held this year on November 19 in the Alumni Gym, as was announced by APT president Pam Williams. The Starlight Ball will be centered around the Miss Starlight Ball contest. This year's winner will be crowned by Miss Starlight Ball of 1965, Miss Sandra Fleming, who is presently attending Augusta College.

"The time for the dance is eight o'clock to midnight, but we are hoping to get it chanced to nine o'clock to one," stated Miss Williams.

Dress for the Ball is formal; contestants will wear long formal. Choice of a band is indefinite, and the theme is yet unannounced. Admission is $1.75 stag, and $3.50 per couple.

The regulations by which Miss Starlight Ball will be chosen are:

1. Each club or organization will donate or lend to Alpha Rho Tau a photograph of their contestant. They shall be delivered to the club no later than November 11, 1966.

2. The club or organization which decides to sponsor a girl will have sent to APT the enclosed statement, stating that they will agree to the ruling of the campus as a whole, and will name their contestant and the escort who will accompany her on November 19, 1966, the night of the Starlight Ball.

3. An entry blank and a fee of $3.00 per contestant must be delivered to APT by November 11, 1966.

Carswell Addresses Pol. Sci., Ec. Clubs

Republican First District Congressional Candidate Porter Carswell addressed a joint meeting of the Political Science Club and the Economics Club Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Williams Center.

Speaking mainly on foreign policy and domestic inflation, the Waynesboro farmer and businessman bitterly denounced the Johnson administration for inflationary deficit spending, and debasing U. S. coinage.

"The main solution to inflation is to eliminate deficit spending," replied Carswell to a question posed by a student.

Holding a quarter in his hand the candidate answered another student question first by stating that the last thing the Roman emperors did before the fall of the empire was to debase the coinage, then drawing a parallel to United States monetary policy.

He also questioned paying France gold on U. S. paper cur-

Calloway Wins Straw Elections

Republican Howard "Bo" Calloway, candidate for governor, polled 403 out of 489 votes for 82 percent in the straw ballot held on campus by the Young Republicans Tuesday. Lester Maddox, Democratic candidate, received 64 votes, comprising 11 percent of the total.

Ellis Arnall, who is being supported over the state in an attempted write-in campaign, received 15 votes. Jimmy Carter and Hoke O'Kelley, two other never-say-die losers in the Democratic primary, polled 5 votes and 1 vote, respectively.

Dr. J. P. Cochran received one write-in vote as a candidate of the Populist party, in the mock election.

Voters also indicated their choice in the contested Congressional race for their home district. In the First District race, Republican Porter Carswell polled 85 votes to 46 for Democrat Elliot Hagan.

Voting in the other districts was as follows: Third district, Republican Nixon 25 votes, Democrat Brinkley 23; fourth, Republican Blackburn 6, Democrat Machey 12; fifth, Thompson 10, Lindsay 17; sixth, Jones 29, Flint 30; seventh, Chapin 6, Davis 12; eighth, Mattingly 25, Stuckey 30; tenth, Simpley 26, Stephens, 18.

The contest will be conducted in the following manner: 1. On the date of November 17, before the Ball on the 19th, we shall place in the Student Center a table containing the photograph of each contestant. Each photograph will be numbered, and a corresponding number will be located on a suitable container in which the votes will be placed.

2. Ballots will be cast by each person, writing the choice on a ballot sheet and depositing it in one ballot box. Each person is allowed only one vote. The voting will last until 7:00 p.m. The votes will be counted at that time. The contestant with the most votes will be the winner. In case of a tie, a run-off will be held on Saturday morning in the Student Center from 9:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. The election will be done by controlled voting. The queen will be crowned on November 19, 1966.

... Carswell

Turning to foreign policy Carswell then suggested that the U. S. threaten an economic boycott of all nations that refuse to break off trade with North Vietnam. He questioned giving aid to India when that nation refused to send soldiers to help with the war in Vietnam.

He further advocated cutting off financial aid to and the sale of wheat to Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union. Questioned further about this he replied that he could not support these policies toward countries that pose a direct threat to U. S. security.

When asked to elaborate in a later interview Carswell commented that although Yugoslavia might not pose an immediate military threat to the United States it was still part of the communist block, like Russia and Red China. "They may disagree on some things but they're all Communists and we might as well lump them all together," he said.

After the meeting the candidate remained for approximately 30 minutes, answering individual questions of interested students.

The address you furnish to your family, friends, and publishers while you are at Ga. Southern must be a MAILING ADDRESS and not a dormitory address.

Your Box number is a specific address, and is the ONLY WAY you can be reached through the mail channels while you are living on Campus.

Be sure your correspondents are cautioned that your PROPER BOX NUMBER must be placed on every piece of mail addressed to you, for prompt delivery to be assured.

"Just write me at Ga. Southern" is not sufficient. Tell them your box number, and write it down for them.

DIRECTORY SERVICE is not available for ordinary mail, even first class letter mail, unless a special services fee is prepaid in addition to the 5 cents per ounce postage. Special service includes Registered, certified, Special Delivery, and Insured mail.

Local Churches report that letters are frequently returned to them because students have failed to give their box number in the address they have given to their Church. Don't let this happen to your mail.

We appreciate our many patrons who are already cooperat-

Your immediate attention to this matter of your mail is appreciated. Forms are available where you rent your PO box to notify your family, friends and publishers of your box number mailing address. This action will be most helpful to your Postman, your friends, and yourself.

Dear Editor:

With few exceptions, students at some time during their stay at Georgia Southern ask a business which they often patronize to cash a small personal check. Tuesday evening I was astounded when after patronizing a local restaurant for four years, such a request was refused.

The stated reason for the refusal was the fact that I did not possess a Georgia Southern College student identification card. I explained that I had registered late and was unable to have my picture taken for an ID card. I further explained that the comptroller's office had instructed me to forget the ID card since I was a graduate student and a former student at Georgia Southern.

In any case it seems hardly reasonable that an ID card is more important than four years patronage. No doubt, few other concerns in Statesboro hold continued patronage in such low esteem.

Apparently, it takes longer to establish one's integrity with a restaurant that it does to earn a degree from Georgia Southern.

New aspects of The Lord's Supper will be discussed.

Trophy To Be Awarded For Blood Donations

The Student Congress, in conjunction with the Red Cross, will sponsor blood donations in the Alumni Gym on November 17. Donations can be made from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. and from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. A trophy will be awarded to the fraternity, club, organization, or house council which secures the largest number of donations in its name.

Unlike previous years, the donations will not be counted on a percentage basis. Don McDougald will award the trophy during Homecoming weekend.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Administration Building, followed by a general assembly in McCroan Auditorium. At this session, Dean Boger and other college officials will give talks on the various facets of life on a college campus and how Georgia Southern handles each facet. These talks will center on religious life, athletics, and other phases of student life. This part of the program is designed to give the prospective students an overall formal introduction to Georgia Southern.

Local Chapter To Host District GHEA Meeting

The division of Home Economics will host the Georgia Home Economics Association First District Meeting on Nov. 12.

The program will be "Emphasis for Action." Mrs. Carlyn Winge and Miss Sandra Kicklighter will present a portion of the program on "Families of America — Variations on a Theme." Mrs. Morris and her Family Economics class will present "Consumer Information and its dissemination."

Following the general assembly, the students, with their parents, will be divided into various interest groups according to their prospective majors. A

Gamma Sig member or another student from each major division will be present at the interest groups to discuss the opportunities and requirements in the major areas offered at Georgia Southern, and to try to answer any questions from the students or parents concerning any phase of life at Georgia Southern. The purpose of these small groups is to give the students a close-up view of the college through the eyes of students who are majoring in their field of interest.

These groups will also give the high school students some idea of how to go about choosing their profession. While still in the groups, the students will be taken on a tour of the campus with emphasis on the field of interest of the group.

After lunch in the cafeteria, the high school students will be given a pre-season exhibition by the Georgia Southern gymnastic team.

PURGE, PURGE

It has recently been brought to our attention that the administration is planning to review the constitutions of all campus organizations in an effort to determine whether the individual groups are truly fulfilling the objectives which permitted their formation.

Doubtless such an investigation, or purge as the case may be, will step on many toes and bring to light a large number of touchy questions.

We support this effort with the hope that the result will be a general house-cleaning in the area of campus organizations. Any group which is discovered not serving its proper purpose should be immediately and impartially disbanded.

Further inquiries might be made into already existing constitutions to determine whether they are, in fact, aimed at serving the campus instead of the organizations themselves.

Not only would this investigation reveal possible faults with many organizations, but it might also serve as a step in the right direction to review the original stated purposes of many existing clubs.

HAWKINS DAY WASHED OUT

A drop of almost twenty degrees frightened many potential Dog Patch citizens out of their dungarees and cotton shirts and into wollens and heavy coats. The wind and rain prevented any enthusiastic chasing around Sweetheart Circle.

Other elements prevented the success of Sadie Hawkin's day. Many students decided not to "dress up" because their classes were so scattered that they did not have time to change clothes. Others were discouraged when first told that they could wear their costumes to classes then informed that they could not. The reason that sports dress could not be worn to classes for one day during the year has not been given to the students.

A surprise construction project also hampered the plans. Since the floor of the Alumni Gym is being refinished, all activities in the gym have been canceled. The dance had to be taken to the streets, a day late, again because of the rain and cold weather.

Of course, as in all events on campus, a number of people do not participate for personal reasons. They are not interested, do not have time, feel that the project is beneath them or just forget about it.

Perhaps next year with more support from the students, administration, faculty and weathermen, Sadie Hawkin's day will be something to make even the people of Dog Patch proud.

STUDENTS GO Highbrow

The Campus Life Enrichment Committee has sponsored a "sell-out" performance for the first time in its four years existence.

When the tickets were taken from the Student Activities office at 3:30 only 30 unclaimed tickets remained. By half an hour before performance time, all the tickets had been purchased.

This proves that the student body is interested in cultural activities and that it is willing to take advantage of the opportunities afforded them.

Tickets holders were rewarded for their generous expectations when they witnessed a superb performance. The attitude of the artists was conveyed to the apt audience, and the troupers were called back for 10 curtain calls with a standing ovation.

The committee should be congratulated on its selection of this cultural entertainment and choosing one that significance for the student.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"WELL, WHAT HAVE YOU DECIDED TO DO ABOUT ALL THE BACK WORK YOU OWE ME?"

More Dormitory 'Open Houses' Would Spark Pride, Competition

By CINDY CARSON

The governor's appreciation reception in Olliff Hall and open house held by the new dorms this past Sunday can certainly be considered a success if one can judge by the response given by students, faculty, administration, and Statesboro residents. Students who live in the dorms open for inspection seemed to enjoy "showing off" their rooms and guiding visitors through their college "homes."

Since this program was such a success, it would seem desirable to make such occasions appear more frequently on the college's social scene. Perhaps a plan could be devised whereby each dorm on campus would hold a reception and open house for two hours on Sunday of one week out of each quarter. The eleven dorms on campus would be able to take care of every week in the quarter without too much inconvenience for any one particular house mother. A guest speaker could be brought to the campus each week to visit the dorms and impart some "words of wisdom" from his field, whether it be science, the arts, religion, or politics.

This type of activity fills several student needs which the routine social activities already being held at night cannot fill. It helps to encourage the student's pride in his room, thus fostering originality and perhaps even competition for room decoration.

One of the greatest advantages an open house would have is to provide an incentive for students to stay at the college on the weekends in order to help with the open house or to visit in another dorm. This kind of activity promotes student spirit by helping to bring students together and by bringing them into closer contact with faculty and administration.

Perhaps the greatest appeal of a weekly open house would be the guest speaker. The college could certainly benefit from visits by such distinguished persons, both in promotion of the college and in the widening of student horizons in experience.

Another advantage of open house in dormitories would be an increase in opportunities for visits from students' families and from Statesboro residents who may wish to become better acquainted with students and take a more active part in the life of the college. Preparing for and hosting these visits would foster pride in the college and give students experience in entertaining and in learning to associate with ease with people from areas of life outside the college campus.

Finally, since the reception and open house would be held in only one dorm each week during the quarter, those students who do not wish to participate would not be inconvenienced more than one Sunday per quarter.

Freshmen Shun Novelty Labels, Crush Tradition

By PAT GROOVER

What has happened to the rat hats? Was it just a rumor that freshmen were to wear identification of their classification until Thanksgiving or was the order completely disobeyed by people who did not care?

The announcement was made at the freshman assembly by Dean Tyson that all freshmen would wear their caps until Thanksgiving. Provisions were made for these cute symbols of novelty to be left in dormitories during rat day, so they would not be mutilated. Coach Charles Exley released plans for the freshman - sophomore field day. To increase school spirit and interest, a challenge was offered. If the younger class Freshmen would have exhibited their power as a class, thus earning the right to be full-fledged members of the college.

Unlike the year-long initiation of North Georgia Military College or the ordeals at other colleges, the proposal was not lengthy, humiliating or unfair. Members of the faculty asked the class to wear their hats to show their professors that they were new to the college. Of course, some members of the student body teased and embarrassed a few students, especially the cute girls, but soon they tired of this entertainment. Many would even be especially kind. Freshmen could recognize their fellow classmates, a fact which is surprisingly reassuring in the midst of a William's Center mob or in the drop-add line when all their courses went wrong.

Not all of the blame goes to the freshmen. Traditions and spirit are handed down from class to class. The veterans of the college know the feeling of cheering a winning basketball team to victory and the awe of the alma mater at graduation. Only people with these experiences can make GSC traditions mean something to the next classes. The students who influencing the frosh to disobey rules and encouraging them to "skip" the initiation practices of the school are failing their college and their younger friends. Too many upper classmen have bragged about not wearing rat caps in the past. Are they just encouraging someone to miss an experience because they did?

Perhaps the sophomore class should work more closely with the freshmen during the entire quarter. But this cooperation does not mean "policing." Such an act would ruin the effectiveness of the proposal. The desire must come from within the student, but the sophomore class can turn the "condemnation" hat into a sign that the freshman class have left old loyalties at home and are ready to accept the trials and honors of their new school.

Inquiring Reporter

This week was a trial period to see if a Twirp Week would be welcomed and participated in annually. Our Student Congress has worked hard to find suitable activities to make our college experience more tolerable and enjoyable. How many students appreciate such activities? In cooperation with Student Congress this week, the inquiring reporter asked this question: What do you think of the initiation of Twirp Week at GSC?

Kathy Harrington, Frosh, Atlanta, I think it's a good idea. It shows the girls the boy's feelings in asking us out.

Wayne Gilbert, Soph., Hawkinsville, I don't know, no one has asked me yet. It sounds all right, you know variety is the spice of life!

Alberto Cudemus, Venezuela, Jr. It's a great idea. Now the girls will know how we feel when we get the brush-off.

Elaine Lucas, Jr., Warner Robins, Do the girls get to make the passes too?

Derrill Moore, Soph., Augusta. I like it—it gives us desperate boys a chance for some lucky girls to go out.

Terry Hollon, Soph., Atlanta. It ought to be like that all the time.

Mrs. Lane, House director, Winborn. Good. All the girls will be going out for a change. It will give the girls' house directors a rest.

Walley Flogger, Jr. 4F, Pembroke. It will confirm to me the idea that no girls around here like me.

Jo Ann Womble, Jr. Cairo, It's a great idea! You never can tell what romances may get started around here.

Jimmy Auld, Sr. Savannah, It's fine if the girls will do what they are supposed to.

Mrs. Bates, House Director, Brannen. I'm going to treat the girls just as good as the girl's House Directors treat my boys. I'm going to raise Cain if any of those girls stomp out cigarette butts on the lobby floor. They also have to dress nice and not loiter around on the porch. I always anticipate something new and this certainly sounds like fun. It would be good any week except this week—all my boys have tests.

Rod Harrell, Soph, 1A, Jonesboro, I think it's a good time for some bad looking girls to go out with some of us good looking boys.

Ginny Sarver, Jr. East Point. It should certainly be an annual affair. It could have been a little more organized and we should be allowed to wear our hill-billy clothes to classes.

Harry Mason, Jr. New York, N. Y. It helps to induce the gyroscopic effect of co-option, thereby relating to the growing tendency of conservatism on this campus.

'Off-Campus' Trend Growing at Clemson

"There are many reasons why students seek off-campus living," he said, "including the principal one given by most students that study conditions are quieter and better. A prime contributing factor to the search for off-campus housing," Cox added, "is Clemson's increasing graduate school enrollment."

"Graduate students by their very nature and educational commitment search for living accommodations with a minimum of distractions and maximum of good study conditions. Most graduate students seek privacy and freedom of activity that off-campus housing offers."

Clemson's climbing enrollment and the amount of off-campus living that goes with it has prompted the private construction of eight or ten small apartment buildings here in the last two years.

"The factor of off-campus living is one with which colleges and universities all across the land are having to deal," Cox said. "Here, as on virtually every other campus in the land, some students will always insist upon living in non-university accommodations."

Gov. Sanders Visit

Governor Carl E. Sanders visited the college last weekend as the honored guest at "Carl Sanders Appreciation Night" and was the main speaker at the dedication of five campus buildings, either planned, begun, or completed during his administration.

The Saturday appreciation program consisted of a series of testimonials by various students, faculty members and townspeople. The lights were then dimmed and a graphic presentation of the Sanders years was shown in spotlighted renderings of the various buildings, taped interviews from GSC students, and a tribute from President Zach S. Henderson.

Sunday the governor spoke briefly and to the point, emphasizing the stress which his administration has placed on educational advancement in Georgia. Sharply condemning "academic country clubs" Sanders expressed his satisfaction that Georgia Southern is not an will not be that kind of educational institution.

After the address the governor and his family visited in the three new dormitories, Winburn, Olliff, and Dorman Halls.

Perhaps the visit, the dedication, were expressed most graphically by Dr. Ronald J. Neil, music division chairman, in his testimonial Saturday night:

Everyone who is affected by the arts appreciated it when the Kennedys came into the White House with their love and appreciation of beauty and everything that represented the fine arts: Likewise when Carl Sanders and his lovely wife Betty moved into the governor's mansion in Atlanta, we were all influenced by their appreciation of beauty and art.

Examinations Defeat Purpose of Education

(ACP) — Do tests really contribute anything to education? asks the Campus Chat, North Texas State University.

They are not an infallible measure of a student's academic ability, nor do they prompt the student to develop his talents and interests to the fullest.

But because professors place such great emphasis on the outcome of exams, the student begins to play a giant guessing game — what will the professor have on his test?

Two students converse. One says, "Don't read chapter nine. George had Professor X last semester and he said there are no questions from that chapter."

"Thanks," the other says. "By the way, I heard he asks only detailed questions, so don't bother with the big stuff."

Meanwhile, a third student might be busy selling copies of tests.

Like computers, these students tend to spit back memorized knowledge while their own ideas decay. They don't have time to develop their own ideas because they're too busy playing the guessing game. Such a system defeats the purpose of higher education.

How could students be evaluated? Give them passing or failing grades based on the amount of work they do? Let them do research papers and use their own ideas instead of memorizing someone else's. The elimination of tests would make courses more enjoyable, more interesting and more meaningful for both teacher and student.

Subjective Tests Better Measure Of Student Sense

SEATTLE, WASH. — (I.P.) — A University of Washington professor believes he has the answer to testing the "depth of knowledge" of students, even in large classes. Dr. P. E. Fields, professor of Psychology, reported the results of his research on the improvement of student testing at a recent session of the American Psychological Assn. convention.

The tests are the result of many years of research on the psychology of learning by Dr. Fields. He has used them in introductory Psychology classes for nearly two years. "In large classes, there has been a trend toward fewer examinations and toward unrelated true - false or multiple choice questions which may catch students with trick questions," Dr. Fields said. "That type of examination is not a true test of a student's usable knowledge."

The approach he has developed, known as the Fields Serial Multiple Discrimination Teaching Examinations, is based on radically different principles, he reported. Although the Fields System uses true - false and multiple - choice questions, they are combined in a manner that tests a student's "in depth" knowledge more effectively than other objective examinations and also removes the "guessing" factor.

To get credit for his answer, the student must correctly answer a true-false statement and also four close true associations, one each from four lists of five associations. "With this system, absolute knowledge in depth is necessary and guessing just won't work," Dr. Fields said. "The probability of getting a correct answer by chance alone is 1 in 3,125 as compared with a 1 to 2 chance in a true-false exam and a 1 to 4 chance in the multiple choice variety."

The Fields tests can be hand-scored by student labor easily, quickly and objectively by keyed answer sheets. He gives 12 one-hour exams during a 10-week quarter to as many as 450 students. At the beginning of the quarter, all students in the class are given a 400-page manual with examples of test questions for the entire quarter.

"I am not worried about the student's rote memorizing of all the parts," he explained. "It is a simple matter to change the order of the part answers or change the statements from true to false. The student who does not answer or understand the material would make a zero score because all five parts of each question must be correctly answered to score one point."

"These tests are actually a teaching device. They are designed to emphasize the important concepts of the course, so the student knows what to concentrate on. The tests also assist the student in learning and understanding by requiring him to organize isolated bits of information as he takes the examination."

The tests utilize the principles inherent in a 5 x 5 "Latin Square." Every fifth part of each question is determined, as are all five parts of every fifth question. Thus the student can check his own errors and learn while taking the exam.

American Folk Ballet Troupe Draws Praise from 'George-Anne' Staffers

By ANN VAUGHAN
and CINDY CARSON

From the moment the lights were dimmed and the resonant bass-baritone voice of Bill Callaway rumbled into the hushed audience, more than 800 people sat enthralled, watching an exuberant portrait of early America.

Bill Callaway's voice did much to set the stage for the forthcoming drama and he always returned to pull the sections together. For an actor-singer who has only been with the American Folk Ballet Company for two months, he played an immeasurable part in transporting the audience to the rough prairie communities of the early West. The strength and depth of his voice reminded one much of the character that meant have been required to forge into the wilderness.

The youthful enthusiasm of the entire company marked them as superior actors and as persons who really loved their work. So rare is the communication that existed between the spectators who sat on the edge of their seats beating on the seat before them and the dancers and singers who so completely gave themselves to the music that they were living it instead of acting it.

Frequent applause was the only thing the audience did to break the tempo of the moment and, yet, so enthusiastic was this that it served as an incentive to push the troupe the "extra mile." For a troupe that is so young, the singers and dancers did a magnificent job of depicting pathos and happiness.

One got the impression from watching that the performers were really young and not just made up that way. A visit backstage revealed that the two youngest dancers were 13 and 14 years, the two lead female dancers were 17 and the average age of the dancers was about 18, with the oldest dancer being 23.

Not only do the romping, frolicking scenes stand out in memory, but also the working scenes of their everyday life. The scene of the cottonfields of Louisiana was backbreakingly accurate. Persons who had never seen a cottonfield or carried a 100 pound sack of cotton slung on their back could understand the drudgery of the long rows and the elation when the end was in sight.

Sunday morning over on deep creek, movingly portrayed, illustrated an artist's interpretation of the effect that religion had on the life of the early settlers. When relating this scene to the conservative nature of religion today, and unthinking spectator might think the scene was overdone. Deeper thought would have led the same observer to the realization that true artists had done an accurate interpretation of prairie religion.

In choreographing "Winter at Deep Creek," Burch Mann built a broad framework and left her dancers the privilege of interpreting their dance as they chose. The dancers used classical ballet steps, but built on these were unique variations in movement and expression. Their technique was not only a series of expressive movements, but was built on an extensive technical knowledge of the theory and technique of classical ballet. Their task was made more difficult because of the use of practice slippers rather than the usual toe shoes worn in most classical ballets. The dancers thus had to rely on grace of movement rather than on precision steps on pointed toes.

The audience returned to twentieth century McCroan slowly. Seemingly reluctant to leave the early prairie, the spectators repeatedly called the troupe back for curtain calls with a standing ovation.

The American Folk Ballet recaptured the vigor and vitality of the hardy settlers who made their homes in the rolling prairies.

Cage Scrimmage Held

The Blue team built up an 18-point halftime lead, but then had to fight off a second half rally by the Red team for a 68-64 victory Saturday at the Hanner Gym in the Eagles' first varsity scrimmage game of the season.

"It was a good practice for us," said Head Coach J. B. Searce Jr., who is starting his 20th year at the Eagle helm. "However, some of the players we were expecting a lot out of didn't come through for us."

"We have elevated two freshmen up to the varsity," continued the veteran coach. "At least they will practice with the varsity because we think they will be able to help us. They are Scott Waters and Darrell Wise."

"We are interested in playing the best men we have. If a freshman boy is doing a better job in December than one of our more experienced boys, we'll play the best ball player we have in December," continued Coach Searce.

Robert Jordan paced the Blue team in scoring with 18 points, followed by Jim Seeley's 11 and Charles Bobe's 10. Jimmy Rose, the Eagles' two-year All-American guard, was the scrimmage's top scorer with 20 points for the Red team. Scott Waters added 10 for the Reds.

"Jordan looked good for us," commented Searce. "He threw up a lot of shots and he rebounded well. Rose and Seeley also looked real good out there."

The two teams battled on even terms during the game, which was played in 10 minute quarters rather than 20 minute halves, and the basketball candidates were evenly divided on the two squads. Searce substituted freely on both teams.

Seeley was the game's outstanding rebounder, doing yeoman duty on both the offensive and defensive boards.

Scoring breakdown:
BLUE — Seeley 10, Bobe 10, Prichard 5, Sztokiewicz 2, Wise 4, Jordan 18, Bergbohm 8, Fountain, Gregory 4, Abel 6, Lawrence, James, O'Leary.

RED—Waters 10, Carmichael 6, Christiansen 4, Rose 20, Roberts 3, Bohman 8, Gladson 2, Johnson 3, Helm, Meybohm 7, McDuffie, Grooms, Hodges, Schemer.

Gym Team Practices

By JOE CRINE
Sports Writer

The gymnastics team concluded their weight training program last week and moved to the apparatus, according to Ron Oertley, gymnastics coach.

The team has spent fifteen minutes daily on tumbling, on back hand springs, and on front and back somersaults.

Oertley said that Gary Barnett, freshman all state champion, is showing successful form in the back full twist and on the apparatus. "We have made great progress on the sidehorse, which has been one of our weakest events," said Oertley. "Great strides have been made with such men as Danny Harrison, Gary Barnett, and Danny Davis," he continued.

"Danny Harrison, state still rings champion, is showing progress on the rings, especially on strength moves, and is gradually working toward swinging movements," said Oertley.

Second Year Man Danny Davis, has improved his front and back giants on the high bar. Danny Godfrey could become a free exercise performer with mastery of off the floor tumbling stunts.

IM Council Meets

For First Time

Intramural Director Charles Exley, speaking at the first meeting of the Intramural Council Wednesday night in Winburn Hall, emphasized that the intramural program is the voice and program of the students.

The men's cross country race is held on November 21 over a course 1.18 miles long.

The next meeting of the council will be held Thursday, November 17, in the lobby of Winburn Hall.

Hall Satisfied with Team Effort

The Eagle netters got a good Golf Club, 6-4, in the first of two fall practice meets Saturday in Savannah.

The net squad leaves South, ern tomorrow for Macon and a battle against the Tennis Center there at 2 p.m. Jim Berry, the Macon tennis pro, has his team ready for the meet. Probable number one man for Macon is Landon Brent, the state top junior veteran.

George Wickham topped the Southern team, but lost in three sets to Bob Miller of Savannah. Eddie Russell also had to bend his back losing to Charles Brooks on the number two spot.

Dan Stiles, who last year had the best Southern record, 14-3, is going towards his best season. He beat Pete Steward.

Jonny Roundtree who played the first third of last season, has far to go to reach top form. He now had difficulties winning over Sam Carn as the number four man.

Last year Captain Mack Poss fought well for a victory, while Newcomer James Jackson lost. Jackson is something to build on for the future, though.

The Southern doubles teams managed extremely well. They won three out of four matches. Joe McDaniel and Tom King played for the very first time. Although losing their doubles match they showed promising form.

Southern Coach David Hall was satisfied. Hall pointed out that the doubles teams look better as a whole than they did last year and that the team as a whole is playing better than it was last year.

Bjorn Kjerfve had to go to a Student Congress convention in Atlanta, and could not play against Savannah. When Southern plays Macon Jonny Roundtree has to go to his home in Florida.

RESULTS

Bob Miller, S, defeated George Wickham 4-6, 6-1, 6-4. Charles Brooks, S, defeated Eddie Russell 6-1, 6-4. Dan Stiles defeated Pete Steward, S, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

POSS CONCENTRATES

Mack Poss Waits For Ball

Jonny Roundtree defeated Sam Carn, S, 6-3, 4-6, 9-7. Mack Poss defeated Larry Austin, A, 6-4, 6-4. Walter Beasley, S, defeated James Jackson, S, 2, 8-6.

Wickham-Roundtree defeated Miller-Brooks, S, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. David Hall - Stiles defeated Freedman-Oustin, S, 6-4, 6-3. Poss-Russell defeated Ongel-Doremus, S, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Dunn-Guthrie, S, defeated Joe McDaniel-Tom King 6-2, 8-6.

B. J. ON SPORTS

By BJÖRN KJERFVE
Sports Editor

Do you know what a student center is? If you think of the Frank I. Williams Center as a student center you are far off the right track. If you refer to any building or area on campus as a student center, you don't know what you are talking about. You see, we don't have a student center at Southern.

What about the new dining hall and student center they are building across the street from Olliff and Winburn Halls? Can that be the solution to the students' leisure time problems?

Hardly. That building is going to be nothing but a dining hall with space given to 4,000 mail boxes and a 6,000 square foot book store nearly ten times as big as the one now found downstairs in the Williams Center.

"I was real disappointed to find that the new center is not going to be a student center, either," said Mrs. Adyle P. Hudgins, director of student activities. "I'm real concerned about it," she continued.

"I would like to see that whole room changed to an activity room with ping-pong and pool tables," she said, referring to the large student lounge downstairs in the Williams Center.

"We have expanding plans for the snack bar, so we can serve à-la-carte meals," said C. R. Pound, director of the Williams Center. The old post office will be redesigned for snack bar facilities. The book store will become a faculty lounge. And the student lounge will remain untouched. In other words, an activity room is not planned for there or anywhere else. At least this is what Pound thinks at present.

I would like to change this. Why not put a couple of tennis and pool tables in the Western half of the lounge, dividing the room by a glass wall keeping the Eastern half as it is now. According to Pound the air-conditioning would then present a serious problem, but is it unsolvable? Or perhaps the book store could be used as an activity room moving the faculty lounge to the post office space.

They once tried to keep a pool table in the lounge, but that was discontinued after nine months, Pound told. The school purchased two regulation table-tennis tables that have never been used. They are propped up against a wall in a storage room. "They have been there almost six years," Pound said.

"We don't have anywhere to put them."

Pound continued: "The enrollment has grown beyond the space we have." This is no exaggeration. Still when the Southern administration makes the final decision how to use the Williams Center I would be happy, and so would many students, if an activity room was planned. We need one.

Most administrators and student government representatives at the S.U.S.G.A. Swap Shop in Atlanta last weekend smiled ridiculing, when they were told that Southern did not have a student center. This can't be good for our reputation.

Mickey Guthrie Is Top Wrestler

By BJÖRN KJERFVE

"All it takes is a little pride," incited Mickey Guthrie. "Go on! get 'im boy! Take 'em on down, take 'em down! Turn 'em over! Go right on over! Well done. Very well done, my boy."

Guthrie's voice rattled to every corner of the Hanner gym. The boys on the wrestling mat showed their pride. They gave everything in the fight. You were hypnotized by the furious battles, hypnotized by that soporific voice.

Character

Coach Charles Exley stood there watching. He was fascinated by Guthrie's teaching. "He is the finest basic skills instructor we have ever had here," Exley said. Just watch Guthrie teach; listen to his then you understand why.

Mickey Guthrie is quite a character. He came to Southern this fall on a graduate assistantship in the Division of Physical Education to work towards his Masters degree. He came here because of Coach Searce. "I had never seen the man, but heard a great deal about him," Guthrie said. He had one interview with Searce, and here he is.

Anchor-Man

In wrestling he was even more successful. He was anchor-man on the Georgia team, "the first one we had as a matter of fact."

He wrestled in the 177-pound class and got to go to the nationals in Louisville, Ky., in 1959.

There he almost became a national champion. In the finals, though, Tony Crell from Oklahoma State managed to defeat him. It was close, though. Crell won the match on a 7-6 decision.

Tracksters Set

Tuesday Meeting

All men interested in track and field should attend a meeting Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in the alumni gymnasium.

Track Coach Ron Oertley pointed out that this meeting is an organizational meeting. The purpose is to present interested men with a work out schedule. Three graduate assistants are in charge of the track program: Singletary, Guthrie and Baygents.

enough for Guthrie. "I plain couldn't beat them," he said, but "I managed to sneak pass a couple of them at Aspen."

At this point he decided to go back to school, "and now was the time to go." He coached football, wrestling and baseball three years at North Fulton High in Atlanta prior to coming to Southern. After getting his Masters and Doctors degrees he wants to coach golf.

Guthrie has an interest in and a knowledge of sports that is unbelievable. Although he said that "golf is my first love without a doubt" he lettered in another five sports during his undergraduate years at Georgia. "Football paid my way through college," he said, and two seasons Guthrie was found as a defensive linebacker on the Bulldog team.

Before graduating in 1960 he was an outfielder three years on the Bulldog baseball team batting a .292 average. He ran track three years. Hurdles was his speciality. His best time? 120-yards in 15.0 seconds!

Guthrie did a lot of boxing too. He went 54 light-heavy-weight fights winning 50 of them; 23 were knock out victories.

He Loves Golf

But golf is the number one sport for Guthrie. "My father started me when I was four or five," he said. "I went to the junior nationals when I was 13 and came in ninth," he continued. He made the quarterfinals of the National Publink at 17.

In 1958 he reached the quarterfinals of the Nationals for amateurs, where Jack Nicklaus eliminated him. "Jack played extremely well against me. That's the only time I've been bombed out," Guthrie said. During his four Georgia years he led the Georgia golf team.

So far Guthrie's golf days had only begun. "I joined the tour in the summer of '61," he said with the tour meaning the PGA. He stayed with it for 28 months. "I had my best finish in the Phoenix Open in '62," Guthrie said. He won a fourth place that time.

Wins PGA Stop

The next year, though, he won the Aspen Open, now wearing a golden ring with a black star sapphire as a proof of this. But Guthrie doesn't brag about it. "Aspen is only one of the smaller tour stops," he said.

Competing with top world golfers for two and half years was

Help From Palmer

He loves his golf. "In all sports there are characters and bombs, but in golf there just aren't any bombs," he reflected. Arnold Palmer is the player Guthrie thinks most of on the tour.

"Arnold made a greater contribution to me than any other on the tour. He taught me how to hit the sand wedge. He probably can hit it better than anybody else," Guthrie continued.

Skiis and Jumps

Guthrie is not limited to the mentioned sports. When spending a couple of winter months in Colorado in 1960 he picked up how to slalom ski. He is very modest about his skiing, but guess who taught him. Two-fold olympic gold medalist Stein Eriksen of Norway and three-fold olympic gold medalist Tony Sailer of Austria.

He has tried ski jumping too. "The only time I've won a medal in skiing was when I jumped 253 feet once in 1960," he said.

Thanks to Golf

Talking about board skating Guthrie turns out to be an expert in this sport too. A couple of years ago he finished sixth in the national championships in board skating in Los Angeles. "You should see . . ." he started.

Golf is still his number one, though. He practices every day several holes; hits at least 500 balls. "Golf has been very good to me," he said. "It gave me a chance to see many countries, the whole United States and compete with the best in the world." A little pride is not all it has taken Mickey Guthrie to get this far.

Southern Beau

Michael (Mike or Michelle) Maguire adorns the back page as our choice for Southern Beau during this week of reversals. He is a junior high education major from Statesboro and plans to enter the ministry upon graduation. He is truly a "G" man, his hobbies being guitars, girls, guns, glory, gabbing, golf and gospel music . . . (not necessarily in that order.)
