Dogs, the Library, and Finding Sources

Write out your research question or questions here:

Next find two different sources that will help you answer your question(s). Include all the information you would use in a bibliography entry for each source. In addition, write the call number (how you would find it in the Library of Congress system) if it’s a book or periodical. Try to find unusual sources (documentaries online, television shows, instructional websites) that will offer unique information. Be sure to be able to defend your sources: why is this the best or one of the best sources to help with your research?

Once you’ve gathered this information, post in on the GAView discussion with the today’s date (Sept 23) and the “Dogs” title. This entry by end of class will serve as your attendance today in the library.
