Workshop Practice Annotated Bibliography

This article is a good source because it showed research where dogs actually helped autistic children. The study shows how service dogs make it safer for families with autistic children and I think the article will be a good source.

This source provides specific breeds of dogs and diseases they help cure.

This source is a good source because it shows actual results from people who have received service dogs. It comes with charts that the dependants themselves filled out. It also shows how important that the service dogs became to the elderly.

This source includes bibliographical references, and it also examines dogs on how they are helping people detect medical problems.
