Maddox Praises Teachers; Denounces Aid Cutbacks

By RANDY HARBER
Managing Editor

Taking advantage of the absence of Sen. Richard Russell, Gov. Lester Maddox yesterday chastised the 1969 Georgia General Assembly for not approving his 70 million dollar aid program for public and higher education.

Maddox spoke as part of the inaugural convocation of Dr. John O. Eidson as president of the college yesterday in the Hanner Gymnasium.

Beginning his remarks, Maddox praised the educators of the state for the progress they have made in higher education; however, he stated, "this progress is in jeopardy."

The governor was particularly caustic in denouncing the General Assembly's rejection of 35 million dollars earmarked for building expansion on college campuses and another 35 million dollars slated for aid to elementary and high schools in the state. Maddox termed the action as "in my opinion stupid."

"Many of the legislators feel that we have gone far enough with education and now we should just coast or stand still," Maddox stated that unless the actions of the General Assembly were reversed, Georgia's pacesetting leadership and progress in education would "come to a screeching halt."

The governor stated that all of Bulloch County's legislators had supported him totally in his education program.

Continuing, the governor said that with enrollment in Georgia's colleges expected to reach 90,000 by 1970, "for us to say stop building is false economy and the delay will only cost the taxpayers in the long run."

"The cost of delay could be billions of dollars in the next few years. Inflation could cost 7 million dollars in construction cost alone. This delay must not prevail."

The governor then asked the educators and private citizens to act with him.

"If this money were approved then your building program here would not be halted next year and faculty salaries could be raised," Maddox concluded.

Sen. Richard Russell, who was to give the keynote address at the convocation, was not able to attend due to aircraft breakdowns in Washington. Among the speakers on the platform were Dr. George Simpson, Chancellor of the University System; W.A. Bowen, Mayor of Statesboro and John W. Langdale, Chairman of the Board of Regents.

Health Committee Created March 11

A Health Service Committee was formed here March 11, 1969. The members, chosen from the student body and faculty are: DPope Duncan, Dr. Martha Cain, Dr. John Lindsey, Mrs. Diane Wadley, Wally Henderson, David Hicks, Dr. Ralph Tyson, and Dr. Bird Daniels, college physician.

A request for the formation of such a committee was made by Dr. Daniels after the recent flu epidemic. The Health Services Committee will serve as an advisory board for adopting new policies as well as a sounding board for student complaints, according to Wally Henderson, board member.

The procedure for emergency medical care was the major topic discussed at the first meeting, Henderson stated. The problem of communication in case of an emergency and a location for an emergency sick ward were the main problems discussed. As an increase in the health services such topics as free x-rays, a more elaborate student counseling program, and free flu shots for faculty and students, Henderson said.

ACEI Sponsors Conference In Houston, Texas, April 6-11

The Annual International Study Conference, sponsored by the Association for Childhood Education International, will be held in Houston, Texas, April 6-11. Dr. Mary Ellen Goodman, Professor of Anthropology and Sociology at Rice University, will speak at the opening general session on the theme, "The Impact of Change." The conference will conclude with a banquet on Thursday evening at which Dr. John W. McFarland, Dean of the School of Education, The University of Texas, will challenge the participants with the topic, "Dare to Be."

The students and faculty participating from Georgia Southern are Nancy Willcoxin, president; Cheryl Mills, vice-president; Carol Culpepper, secretary; Lyn Gregory, projects chairman; and Linda Sue Munro. Miss Gladys Waller is the faculty advisor, and John R. Nunnally has served as an associate faculty advisor for the past four years. During the recent G.E.A. Convention in Atlanta, Mr. Nunnally was installed as president-elect of the State Association for Childhood Education International.

The 1970 ACEI Study Conference will be held in Atlanta next spring, and the Georgia Southern branch has been asked to be responsible for planning the student activities for this conference. They will present their tentative plans to the executive committee during the Houston Conference.

PARKING ON A CROSY MORNING

Whose lot, this is I think I know,
My student tickets tell me so.
Someone condemns my parking lot,
Beyond the student's view.

My little car must think it's good
To be so parked in legal good,
Between the ones which edge the lot,
The golden morning of the year.

The sun is on his window and shakes.
He asks if there may be mistakes.
The only other sound is of class bells
And whispering voices at their desks.

The lot is lovely, full of the song,
But I have warnings to my conscience:
And time to go before I'm pleasing
And find myself in a parking zone.

Dr. Eidson

Dr. John Olin Eidson is now officially and formally the seventh president of the college. The six presidents and three principals which he succeeds were all dedicated to the progress and improvement of the school and its educational processes.

We believe that Dr. Eidson will be a president who can and will expound the tradition of service and leadership set forth by his predecessors. It is not enough to merely grow with the times; to be an outstanding center of education, the school must plan and grow ahead to the times. The present rate of expansion, almost adequate for the present, will not be fast enough to accommodate future growth.

For this reason, radical modification of all phases of the college's programs is necessary. Dr. Eidson is an administrator who should be able to guide the college in this critical phase of its growth; he has had the experience of seeing the University of Georgia enlarge to mammoth proportions while his career as an educator and administrator progressed also.

We congratulate Dr. John O. Eidson on his many and varied achievements; we hope that the peak of his educational career will be the peak period of growth and expansion at the college.

Vandals Again

During the past week vandals set fire to debris in the trash chute of Brannen Hall. Flames were extensive and the upper floors of the building were filled with smoke.

Alert students poured trashcans of water down the chute before any serious damage was done to the building. No property was destroyed, however, residents of the dorm are now having to put up with their clothes smelling like burned trash.

The chute is equipped with a sprinkler which, in theory, will extinguish the flames; however, this device did not work this time or on a previous occasion when the chute was set ablaze.

Such activity as setting a trash chute afire is obviously deplorable and immature; since vandalism can never really be stopped we ask the maintenance department to take one of the following courses of action. Either fix the sprinkler system so that the trash fires will not be allowed to grow to the proportion of last week's fire or close the trash chute altogether.

Certainly the possessions and lives of the students in this dorm are too important for the present dangerous situation to continue.

Spring Fever

Spring quarter has at last made the scene. After a dull, cold winter quarter, students find the warm weather a welcome change. Cool spring clothes are now replacing those heavy winter woolens.

With finals out of the way and no pressing exams to worry about, everyone is enjoying a short period of slacking off.

Campus migrations to places such as Hilton Head, Jekyll Island and Daytona Beach have replaced the Friday afternoon departures for home. For those of you who cannot make it to the beach, there is always that "beach" behind the dorm or the campus pool. It is usually well populated by others just like you.

Spring quarter also offers entertainment such as Spring Swing Week with its various activities and Greek weekend.

The Broadway hit "Funny Girl" was sponsored March 25, by CLES. Other cultural entertainment will be furnished for the quarter by the Masquers who will present "The Death of a Salesman."

For those interested in sports, outdoor intramurals draw crowds of students each afternoon. Also the GSC Eagles have now begun their baseball season with many of their games being played at night. This enables students who would otherwise be in classes to attend the games.

The George-Anne encourages each student to attend and participate in the many activities planned for the quarter.

Styles Changes Aid College Readership

Undoubtedly, the special inaugural edition of the George-Anne sparked some comment and probably some criticism from various individuals on campus. The somewhat radical change in style and make-up was not made for the sheer pleasure of changing and re-doing the campus newspaper.

For several years the George-Anne has been tabloid in size only; we of the editorial board felt that the paper could better serve the campus by a complete and thorough change-over to a tabloid newspaper-tabloid in size as well as lay out and make-up. The primary function of any newspaper is to report and record all events which arouse the interest of its readers. Reader interest is further increased by deft use of available means of photography and typography. Typography and photography are important items in a true tabloid paper; for this reason, this and succeeding George-Anne's will use large pictures and more of them and larger, darker headlines.

A hackneyed cliché says that one picture is worth a thousand words—the accuracy of this statement is immeasurable, but a picture is often the best method of expressing a particular story or event. By our change to tabloid format, we can better serve the school and student body, and give a more accurate graphic account of the events occurring here this quarter.

Spring quarter at any school is perhaps the most lively and active of any season; this college is no exception. The upcoming schedule of events planned for this quarter here will offer an excellent opportunity for the development and growth of a picture oriented newspaper.

The change in the paper is an experiment which we believe will greatly aid the reader by giving him an instant classification of the news; it will also increase the enjoyment for the hurried student readily by giving him the news through pictures.

Deaths Rise

In Biafra

Says Udunka

Students in college are constantly involved in that living cliché, the race against the clock. A typical day, in a student's life might begin at 6:30 and proceed through a series of washing, shaving, combing, eating, complaining and running, all of which are involved, at least ostensibly, in helping him arrive at his 7:30 class. Yet, between the time he wakes up and before he can take his seat in class, almost 1,000 people will have starved to death in Biafra.

Simeon Udunka, a Biafran student studying at Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga. spoke last Sunday at Trinity Episcopal Church to a group of interested students, faculty, and local residents. He spoke of the Biafran war with Nigeria that has raged for nearly two years and is now at a virtual stalemate. "Children are the victims," Udunka said, "of something beyond their control... after the war is over, there will be a new generation of Biafrans, one that will have to learn all over again—how to eat."

The situation in Biafra today is almost unimaginable. It seems to be almost hopeless to try to even explain, by means of an impersonal newspaper, the situation in the African nation of Biafra. It is equally difficult to realize, that the time it has taken you to finish reading this column has cost almost 100 persons their lives. Biafra is a reality, an entity that can be ignored into oblivion, an entity in which nearly every child between the ages of one and five has already suffered permanent brain damage and an entity in which half the children between the ages of one and ten have already starved to death.

Udunka insists that aid is not the long range answer in the Biafran struggle. Although food, money and supplies are available, the means for using them to aid Biafra are not accessible. "Negotiation (between Biafra and Nigeria) is the answer," Udunka believes that United States intervention, not a through military backing, but political persuasion can help bring about a solution to this problem. At present the U.S. is neutral in this matter.

The plan outlined by Udunka calls for student petitions from colleges throughout the nation to be used to bring pressure on congress for immediate action. Students interested should write Southern States Aid for Biafra, Inc., Box 179, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga., 30314.

The race against the clock for survival in Biafra is rapidly drawing to a close. When the allies invaded Europe in 1944 and saw atrocities such as Auschwitz, the world was shocked, "we didn't know." But, in 1969 looking at Biafra, you do know.

The constitution will also establish a freshman council which will be made up of the executive council of the freshman class and the vice-presidents of freshman dorms. This council will serve as a link of communication between the executive officers, the Student Association of Governing Councils, the administration, and the freshman student body as a whole.

This constitution is now going through the proper channels, and hopefully will be submitted to the freshman class for ratification soon. The executive council is composed of Mike Norton, president; Tom McElheny, vice-president, and Wayne Buffington, secretary-treasurer.

Kappa Delta held an Easter Egg Hunt for underprivileged children from the Statesboro area on the afternoon of April 1, by the campus lake.

Rotary Foundation Gives 243 Grants

For 243 young men and women throughout the world, the words "international study" will mean more than another textbook phrase or a hazy dream during the 1969-70 academic year. The words will become a real part of their lives, since they have been selected as recipients of Rotary Foundation Awards for International Understanding.

The 243 winners were selected late in August by a committee of trustees of The Rotary Foundation, formed by Rotary International for the furthering of understanding and friendly relations between people of different nations.

Grants made by the foundation trustees during the 1968-69 year provide $1.25 million for four different types of educational awards for study abroad to accomplish this task. Since 1947, the foundation has enabled more than 3,400 young men and women to study and travel abroad at an approximate cost of $7 million.

Accounting for about two-thirds of all past award recipients are the one-year graduate fellowships, which cover travel, living and educational expenses of the student during his stay in another country. A total of 145 students have been selected to receive graduate fellowships for study during the 1969-70 school year.

Rotary Foundation award recipients are charged with dual responsibilities: to maintain a standard of excellence in the pursuit of their studies and to serve as a bridge of friendship and understanding between the peoples of their home and host countries.

Rotarians and their dependents or relatives are not eligible to receive foundation awards. However, these awards offer Rotarians everywhere the opportunity of working in a personal way to promote international understanding. In addition to their financial support, Rotarians have the responsibility of seeking out and endorsing qualified candidates. Host Rotarians have the opportunity to welcome the awardees to their communities and to assist them in many ways during their stay.

Columbia Choir to Perform

The Columbia College Choir and Columbia College Handbell Choir began a tour of South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida with a performance at the Fine Arts Building April 7 at 8:00 p.m.

The choir, under the direction of Guthrie Darr, was chosen to record the "Hymn of the Month" album for the Board of Education of the Methodist Church. In December the group performed Debussy's "La Damselle Blue" with the Columbia Philharmonic Orchestra.

Selections for the current tour include works by Baroque composers Schutz, Scheidt, and Bach; a Magnificat by Niccolò Porpora; Pablo Casals; Britten; and Houston Bright.

The handbell choir, known also as the Columbia Belles, was formed this year. Under the direction of Richard E. Veal, the Belles have appeared on television and before church, civic, school and social groups throughout South Carolina.

Their selections will be divided into three groups—sacred, secular and popular—and will include works by Bach, Lorenze, Laughlin, Preven and Wright.

A popular folk group, the Lady Bugs, composed of members of the choir, will also provide entertainment.

Columbia College is a four year liberal arts college offering a Bachelor of Arts degree with concentration in music in four major areas: Music Education, Church Music, Piano Pedagogy, and Applied Music. The predominately women's school is affiliated with the United Methodist Church.

An Open Letter

Dear Editor,

In 1967 I stepped off the bus and rode to the campus which I had never seen. To speak frankly, I was a lost person. But it did not last long because I soon met some of the nicest people I have ever come across. In this letter I would like to express thanks to those people who have made my stay at GSC a most memorable experience which I will never forget.

First of all, I would like to express my thanks and deepest appreciation to Mrs. Goudelocke, "Mom." She was always there to encourage me and relieve the tensions of college life by her jokes, etc.

Since I am a sociology major, Dr. Harris Mobley has given me his time when I needed to be encouraged not to give up. During my last quarter, he showed an interest in me that very few people have shown by making sure that when I get out of school I would have a good job. Thank you, Dr. Mobley.

In my junior year I had the opportunity to write for the "George-Ann" as a sports writer. In this manner I have met many athletes who later have become good friends. If I had not written sports, I would have missed out on a lot of school things as well as friends. I thank Coach Frank Radovich. When his team had a so-so year in 1968 he was willing to be interviewed to explain what went wrong under the trying conditions of the game.

Dr. Thomas and Dr. Moseley showed no favoritism in their course. This was invaluable in as much as I knew that I had to make the grade on my own merit and not be given the grade. I especially want to thank Dr. Thomas for her interest in my behalf by suggesting that I write people for a job; she was constantly worrying about the outcome. Thank you, Dr. Thomas.

The students at the Williams Center who play bridge accepted me as a fellow player. Everyone wanted me to be his partner. Instead of calling me by name, they called me "Rookie." I would never have met so many wonderful friends had it not been for the "gang" at the Williams center.

Dean Harold McGuire has had so much influence on me; he gave me so much confidence that I ran for Senior class president. Although I was defeated, I gained a lot of respect of those students who were interested in school politics and met many new people. Any time that I had a problem, I had confidence that Dean McGuire could give me some good advice.

To the men of Dorman Hall, I cannot say enough for their attitude and encouragement during good and disappointing times. They were the core of what I tried to obtain and live up to while living in Dorman.

The girls on campus, especially those of Olliff Hall, were most helpful during the last year or so. They accepted me for what I was and not what I wasn't. I salute the mature, young ladies of Olliff Hall. During the last three quarters, a young lady of whom I eventually became fond seemed to have the extra know-how of instilling the idea that if I worked harder that I had I would graduate. Many thanks to her.

During my first year, Sister Mary Paul Schweitzer gave me a lot of inspiration as well as tutoring me in school and religious training. She was more of a friend than she was a member of the church. I shall never forget her.

Mr. Ben Waller made sure that I remained in school by helping me obtain an NDEA loan. He is presently busy assisting me in finding a job with vocational rehabilitation. His help, as well as others mentioned, has made my stay here at Georgia Southern a meaningful experience.

There are numerous others who were not specifically mentioned. I appreciate their assistance and will always be grateful to them. Thank you, students and everyone at Georgia Southern.

Sincerely,
Gilbert J. Wermuth

IBM Used On Open Shop Basis

Starkville, Miss.-(I.P.)—In one of the nation's leading student computer programs, Mississippi State University uses an IBM System/360 Model 40. About 2,000 students—including freshmen—take courses involving the use of the computer.

One of the more unusual features permits the students to use the computer on an "open shop" basis, giving them hands-on experience from 1 thru 10 p.m. each school day.

"And, we have students clamoring for more time," states Dr. Fred Davis, head of the Division of Computer Sciences. "Our goal is to break down any myths or misunderstanding about the computer, to let our students learn to use one of the greatest learning tools ever devised," Dr. Davis said.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes Started

The Fellowship of Christian athletes, a nation-wide sports organization, has become an entity at Georgia Southern.

The aim of the Fellowship is to "confront athletes and coaches, and through them the youth of the nation, with the challenge and adventure of following Christ in the fellowship of the church."

Membership is open to any athlete who participates in sport sponsored by Georgia Southern, including both intercollegiate and intramural activities, or anyone who was a member of an athletic squad at high school.

The organization is also open to any adult who is interested in the promotion and success of the F.C.A.

It is a non-profit, inclusive organization financed by tax-free gifts from persons, foundations, churches, businesses, industry and other interested groups.

The F.C.A. meets on Monday nights in Room 10 in the Hollis Building at 7 p.m.

The president of the GSC branch is Mike Pack, Vice-President Buddy Davis, Secretary Ray Cameron and Bulletin chairman Randy Kirkland.

The organization will be holding a car wash on Saturday, April 12 at the Pure Oil Station on Fair Road.

Right: A little guy with a football under his arm and his heart full of dreams. He's looking for a hero to follow and awaiting his chance to play. Then he's in the game and, years later, he looks up and there's a little guy watching him with eyes sparkling with excitement and a football under his arm - and a dream in his heart. A man has his influence; a boy has his heroes and his dreams. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes believes that every young fellow should be able to find the proper hero and become the best man, physically, mentally, and spiritually, that he can be.

INTRAMURAL PROGRESS REPORT

Men's intramural spring sports are in their second week this week and women's sports are just about to get under way.

The men are playing a round-robin tournament system in softball and baseball. Softball will play one round and basketball two.

The competitions are divided into two leagues, fraternity and non-fraternity, and they will combined for a double elimination tournament in each sport about three-quarters of the way through the quarter.

Other sports the men will compete in will be cross-country, tennis, bowling and possibly golf, though golf is posing some problems as to the availability of a course.

The women will compete in softball and volleyball.

"We are working with the Student Union Board to produce as broad a spectrum of leisure time activities for the students as possible," Mr. Tom Martin, the Director of Intramurals, told the George-Anne.

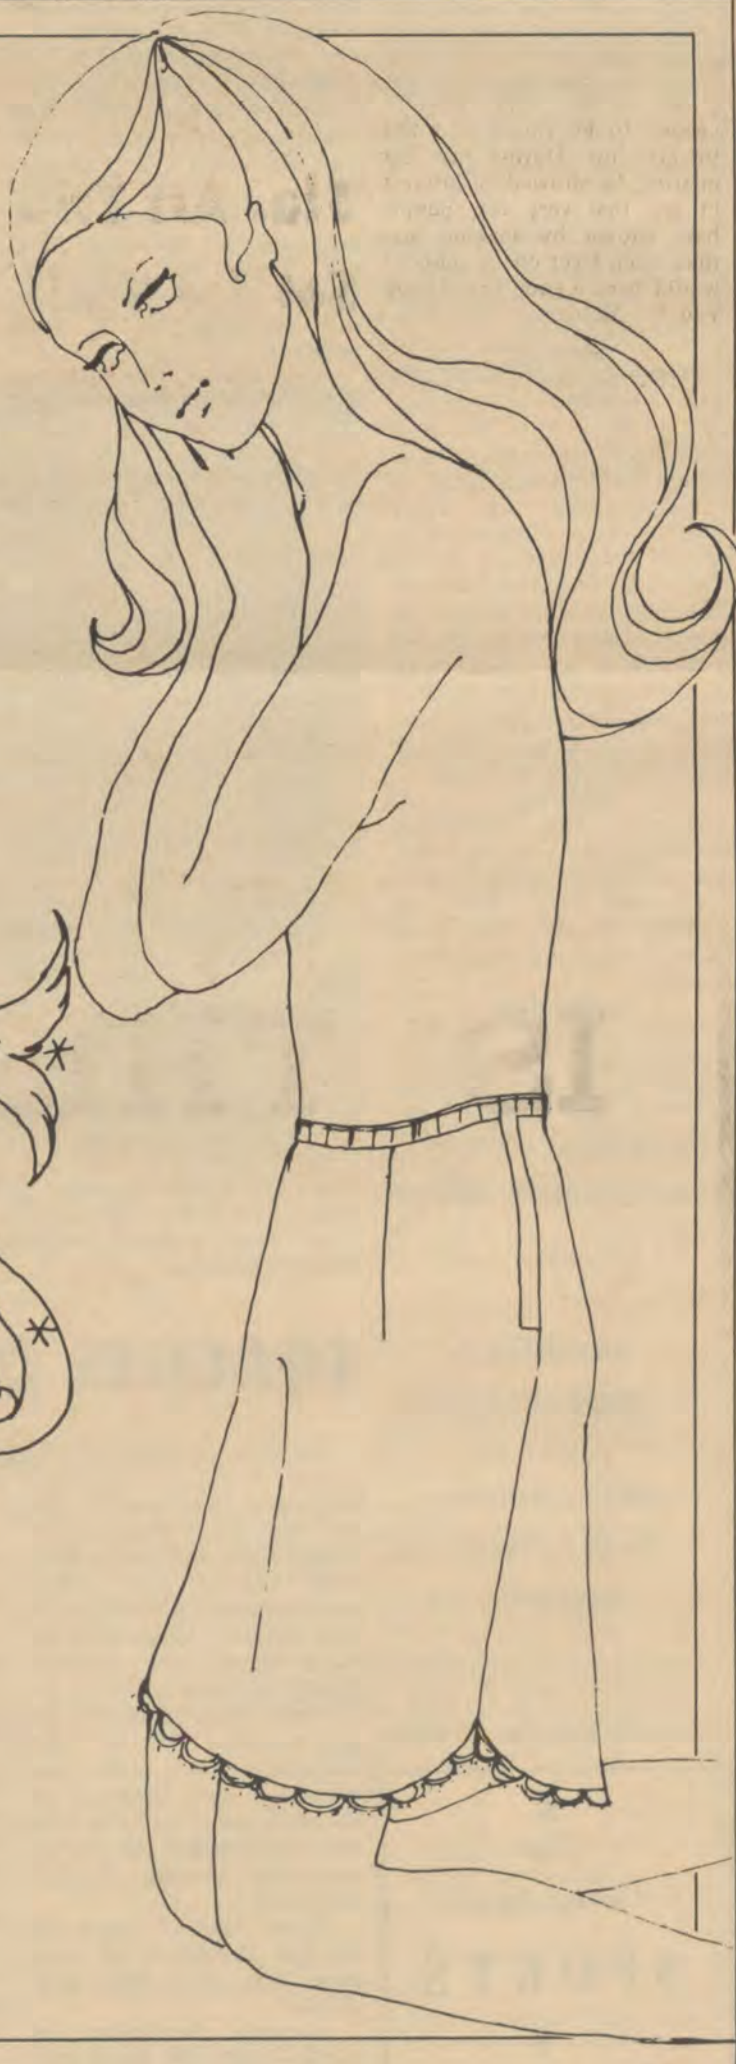

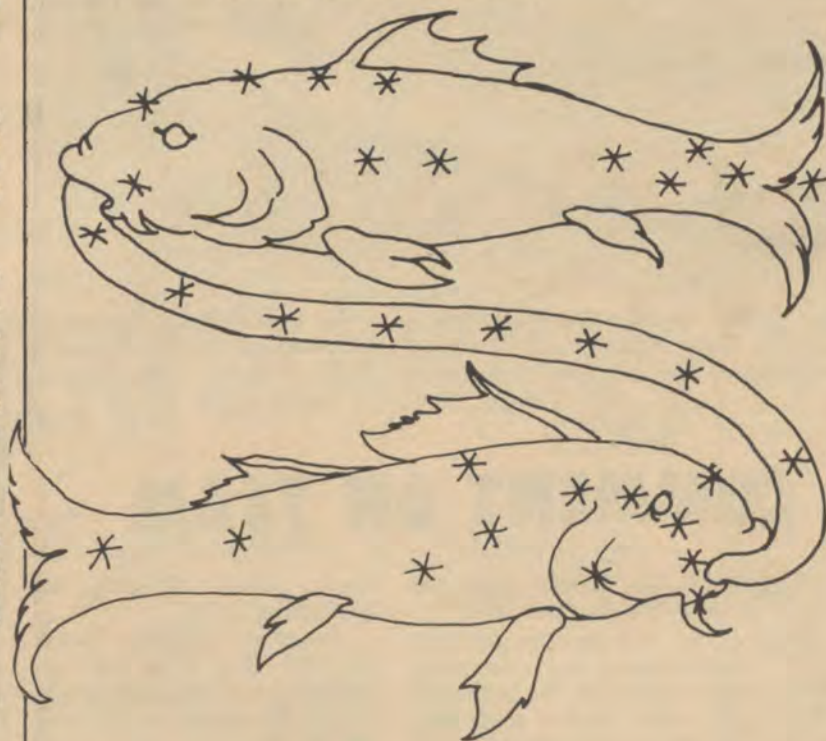

This quarter, four softball games are being played each afternoon between 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Seven basketball games are being played each night between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m.

GYMNASTS 2ND IN NATION

Varied Success In Individual Events

By HUGH De LACY, Sports Editor

TWO COULD MAKE ALL - STARS

Free Exercises

The Eagles' free exercise expert Bill Godwin was the first out in this event for his routine - and eventuality that is always unsettling not only for the performer but also for the rest of the team.

Despite this disadvantage, Godwin turned on a sound exhibition which earned him fourth place in the preliminary ratings and thus qualified him for the finals.

Nerves got the better of him in the final, however, and, while he still turned on a good performance, he was unable to come off with the first placing it was hoped he might take.

All-rounders Tony Blasko and Danny Warbutten did well in this event but took a little time to settle down.

Side-horse

If the team had started off a little nervously in the free exercises, it seemed determined to redeem itself completely in the side-horse.

Number one man Terry Nelson got up determined to do well - and he did so, making it into the final 10 no trouble and ultimately finishing up third in the nation in this his special event.

Blasko and Bobby Woodall were also in grand form for this event, both of them reaching the finals along with Nelson.

Still rings

Blasko and Warbutten performed the best they have ever performed in this event.

Though they failed to graduate to the final, they looked most impressive in their routines.

Parallel bars

Similarly, Blasko, Warbutten and Bill Tollefson looked good on the parallel bars. This was Tollefson's pet event and he was well up for it.

Having three men take the final in this event, which is not one of the Eagles' strongest, was a good effort.

High bar

In the words of Assistant Coach Hutch Dvorak, the team "really blew it" in the high bar.

None of the four - Blasko, Warbutten, Woodall or George Hubbard - hit anything like good form in comparison to their performances in the dual meets earlier in the season.

Long horse vault

Warbutten wiped out any disappointment over his uninspiring performance in the high bar when he stepped out for the long horse vault and made that his best event of the championship, rocketing into the finals and ultimately winning the national title on this apparatus by a clear margin.

Climaxing the most successful season in the history of the sport at Georgia Southern, the Eagles gymnastics team, led by Coach Ron Oertley, finished second in the N.A.I.A. national championships at Macom, Illinois, on March 22.

But though the team should have felt might proud of its achievement, it returned more disappointed with having missed out on the national title itself rather than jubilant at finishing runner-up.

The general feeling of the team members was that the national title was within their reach when they went to Illinois, but they failed to match their finer performances of the dual-meet season, such as their great win over second-ranked nationally Northeastern of Louisiana, and their second placing was less of a triumph than a consolation.

However, despite the fact that both coaches and gymnasts alike cannot help feeling just a trifle disappointed at their performance, the fact remains that they have had a magnificent season, finishing it off in truly great style and putting Georgia Southern permanently on the map as a big power in college gymnastics.

Though the official listings have not yet come to hand, it is expected that Georgia Southern will have two of its gymnasts in the 1969 N.A.I.A. All-American team.

All-rounder Danny Warbutten should be named to the first team for his clear win in the long horse vault while Terry Nelson is expected to be named for the second team after his third placing in the side horse.

Both said they were pleased with the possibility of being named All-Americans, but, in Nelson's case anyway, there were reservations.

Though Nelson is hardly the type to indulge in wishful thinking, he came away slightly disappointed and, in feeling that way, reflected the general feeling of the whole team.

To be third was grand, but not when the efforts of the previous three months had been directed solely at being first.

However, the big thing in Nelson's - and the team's - favour is their youth. Godwin and Blasko are sophomores. The rest are freshmen. They've got years ahead of them and already they're only one step away from being national champions.

The actual winner of the championships was the powerful Northwestern State College of Louisiana - not to be confused with Northeastern which Georgia Southern beat earlier in the season.

The margin between Northwestern and Georgia Southern was a scant four points which, when compared with some of the 20 and 30-point margins that the Eagles won several of their dual meets by, is not much.

COACHES COMMENT ON TEAM

For their comments on the 1969 N.A.I.A. national gymnastics championships and the 1969 season in general, the George-Anne went to the three men behind the team's unprecedented success, Coach Ron Oertley, Assistant Coach Paul Mayer and Assistant Coach Hutch Dvorak.

Coach Ron Oertley: I'm very satisfied with the boys' performance. It's better than we've ever done before at the nationals and it has to be taken into account that this was the best, the hardest, N.A.I.A. meet ever.

There were 22 teams and the top 10 were a lot closer than I've ever seen them before.

Georgia Southern and Northwestern still stood out a long way above the rest, though. It looked like that even during the warm-ups.

This was the first year that Northwestern has ever really been challenged. We were only one point behind going into the evening session but then we lost three points in the free exercises.

Over all I'm very satisfied with the way things went.

Assistant Coach Paul Mayer: I think we expected too much at the nationals because we had had such a good dual-meet season - going through 9-0 - so we naturally felt a little disappointed.

But we did pretty well. The boys were suffering a bit from tension before the meet. But they did a good job.

I was really impressed with Danny's (Warbutten) vault and Blasko wound up having his best season by far.

Assistant Coach Hutch Dvorak: Our team of six freshmen and two sophomores competed against juniors and seniors who had much more competitive experience and did well.

Although it was a lackluster job and we were a bit disappointed, the pressure was on us because the others came to beat Georgia Southern.

The general climate of the meet was bad. There was very little crowd and it was hard to get psyched up.

I think our 9-0 dual-meet season, the GGA team championships and second place finish in the NAIA established Georgia Southern as an up-and-coming gymnastics team.

The Eagles baseball team has emerged from its first 12 games so far of the 1969 season with the reasonably good record of 7-5.

The team has yet to hit its best form, never being able to combine all the basic elements of good pitching, batting and fielding for a really good all-round effort.

There have been some excellent individual performances which gives promise of better to come.

The Eagles' pitching has been somewhat weakened by misfortune. Herbie Hutson, the number one pitcher tore ligaments in his pitching elbow last week. His game success at the time of his injury was 1-1.

The Eagles no. two pitcher Jim Goodwin has had to retire because of scholastic ineligibility. He stepped down during the spring break when he had a won-loss record of 2-0.

On the credit side, Richard Chard, a junior college transfer from Florida, is doing well on the mound and could fill the gap left by the loss of Goodwin.

Hitters Monty Tillman, Jimmy Fields, Terry Webb, Roddy Michele and Alton Griffin have been going great guns. According to statistician Allan Simmons, Griffin is presently hitting about .500 while Michele has two homers to his credit and Webb has one.

Fields has four doubles - he's leading the team in this respect - and three stolen bases.

The fielding has been pretty patchy - sometimes miserable, at other times brilliant.

Undoubtedly the highlight so far in the fielding department was the great triple play against Springfield March 27.

The result of the 12 games played through the end of March, with comments and line boxes on each game, are:

Vs Virginia Tech.,
March 19. Lost 4-3

Webb hit a two-run home-run in the third inning. Herbie Hutson struck out 11 in the seven-inning game but took the loss anyway.

TRACK INITIATED AT GSC

THE GEORGE-ANNE Friday, April 4, 1969 Page 12

By J. Ben Williams
Hugh de Lacy, who was the number one man on the Georgia Southern cross-country team, has brought track to GSC.
De Lacy represented

Georgia Southern in the Piedmont relays at Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina on Saturday, March 22.
He competed in the two-mile run which, according to de Lacy's travelling manager Mr. Joey Williams, was the featured event of the meet.

Such noted track teams as Navy, Florida State, Ohio and Yale were in full force.

Although de Lacy was recovering from an attack of the Hong Kong flu he represented Southern well in its debut.

The race was won in the world class time of 8:51 which shattered the meet record by 36 seconds. A weak-looking de Lacy finished in the middle of the field of over thirty runners.

JOHN HELM

JOHN HELM GOES IN THE RECORDS

John Helm, the sharp-shooting starting forward on the Eagles basketball team during the season just ended, has worked the first change for several years in the list of all-time Georgia Southern records.

Helm shot a magnificent 90.5 per cent of his free throws to shatter the record previously set by Whitey Verstraete way back in 1960.

Verstraete's average for that season was 86.1 per cent which pales considerably before Helm's effort.

Had Helm thrown enough free throws over the season to earn a rating by either the NAIA or the NCAA, he would have been rated about third in the nation.

However, he never quite managed to catch up to the minimum number of attempts required by either rating system.

Over the 23 games he played in during the season, he bucketed 67 of his 74 free throw attempts.
