Campus Faces Busy Schedule Next Week

With the Religious Emphasis Program, three important basketball games, a community concert, and numerous other campus activities, GTC students face a busy schedule for the next week.

Religious Emphasis Week provides morning and evening services Monday through Friday next week with special assembly programs at 10 a. m. Wednesday and Friday.

The "Profs" face Belmont-Abbey, the Quantico Marines, and Kentucky Wesleyan in that order beginning with the North Carolinians this Saturday night. They meet the Marines Thursday night and the fabulous Kentucky team next Saturday.

The social committee sponsors a record dance in the old gym Saturday night after the Belmont-Abbey game; but next Saturday night, after the Kentucky Wesleyan game, the George-Anne joins with the English Club in sponsoring a dance featuring the college combo.

Morning watch services will be held in the dorm at 6:30 a. m. each morning next week and twilight services are slated each evening at 6:15 in the auditorium.

Elder Charles C. Corrin, pastor of the Decatur Glademore Primitive Baptist Church, is the special Religious Emphasis Week speaker for assembly programs Wednesday and Friday.

The Rev. James H. McQuaig, a GTC student, will be in charge of the twilight service Monday evening.

Elder Corrin will be available for personal conferences with students in the guidance office Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.

John McColum, noted young tenor, appears for the first of the Statesboro Community Concert programs of the season in the auditorium Tuesday night at 8:15. Students will be admitted on their identification cards.

The college will be host Wednesday and Thursday next week to a special study committee on art education. Miss Freida Gernant and Miss Roxie Remley are both members of the committee. The group is studying art programs and results of the programs in Georgia schools, elementary to college level.

Not since the opening of fall quarter has the campus schedule been so crowded. And after the next week there will be only a small respite until the Homecoming Weekend activities February 10-11. Highlights of that weekend include the Beauty Revue, the Homecoming Parade, and the Mercer basketball game.

The "Professors" hope to continue their successful season, but they face tough tests on the home court. The latest scuttle from the Fizz Ed boys is that the Kentucky Wesleyan game should be a real lu-lu.

With such a full week facing the campus, the dean's office would like to advise students not to overlook the fact that classes will go on as usual.

GTC Art Department is Host Next Week to Visiting Group

Georgia Teachers College is playing host to a special study committee on Art Education in Georgia on January 25-26. The committee is being sent out by the Georgia Council on Teacher Education.

Composed of people from many different phases of art education throughout the state, the committee includes a consultant from the State Department of Education, a county art supervisor, and several instructors from different colleges and universities in the state. Georgia Teachers College is being represented on the committee by Miss Freida Gernant and Miss Roxie Remley, instructors in the GTC art department.

The two-day study here at GTC is part of a long range program that is to include examination of the methods employed and results obtained from art programs in the entire school system of Georgia, from the elementary grades on up through college.

The representatives will arrive Thursday evening and will be guests of the college at the basketball game between the GTC Profs and the Quantico Marines that night. They will spend much of their time Friday observing classes in the Marvin Pittman Laboratory School, the industrial arts department, the nursery school, and of course the art department. Some time will also be spent in conference, presumably to discuss the results shown in the most recent studies made.

FRESHMAN TESTS

New freshmen are being given the opportunity to take the same tests given the students who come in the fall. These tests are free and are used in consultation with the student to help him plan his college program. New freshmen are urged to consult the bulletin board for test schedules and to arrange to take the tests during the test time.

Freshmen Agree Orientation Ok

The freshmen who took part in our planned orientation program were unanimous in agreement that the program is well-worthwhile and should become a part of the GTC program for freshmen.

Constructive suggestions were made as to how the program could be strengthened next year. The orientation faculty committee is now studying student suggestions for improvement of the orientation course.

Faculty members who taught the orientation sections volunteered their time for this important activity.

Men Now Hold Upper Hand For 'Normal' Year

For the first time in the "normal" history of Georgia Teachers College, men students outnumber the women!

The latest and final enrollment figures released by the office of Miss Viola Perry, registrar, list 378 men and 368 women, for a total of 746.

Only during the post-war years of 1946-50, described by administrative officials as "not normal" years, were there more men than women students at GTC.

The man-woman ratio has gradually reversed itself in the past five years. Last quarter, for instance, there were 10 more women than men, a situation which is exactly reversed this quarter.

Social Committee Names Members

Five new members were appointed to the social committee replacing old members who are off campus in a meeting of the Student Council Monday night.

Rick Mandes, freshman representative to the Student Council was named co-chairman of the social committee, and Nini-vois Croft, Jeff Davis, Ellen Elizzard, and Billie Kinchen were appointed as general committee members.

Campus Groups Go "All Out" In Homecoming Preparations

Bears riding to the moon on a rocket. Bears everywhere. What does it mean? Well, don't be alarmed for it is only the GTC students getting ready for Homecoming.

The Alumni Association has gone all out to make this the best homecoming ever by making all sorts of changes. The most important one being in the form of awards for the best float and dormitory display. Instead of giving cash, this year, for the first time, gold loving cups will be awarded. When these cups have been won twice by the same group, that group will be entitled to keep the cup. As in the

Here is the "improved" Georgia Teachers College Band which is looking forward to one of the most successful years in the school's history. The 60-piece aggregation, under the direction of Dana M. King, will present a concert in Washington, Ga., Feb. 3, as part of the Washington Community Concert series. This concert will feature Prof. Jack Broucek, piano soloist, with the band doing "Rhapsody in Blue." The band gives a GTC assembly concert earlier in February and will play this year at the GEA convention March 15 in Atlanta. Next Friday the group plays during assembly period at Statesboro High and will feature Don Flanders, tympani soloist, in "Tympanium."

Webb Featured in Magazine

GTC's All American center, Chester Webb, will make the national headlines Sunday, in a featured story in the Atlanta Constitution-Journal Magazine.

Constitution Sports Editor Furman Bisher visited the campus during fall quarter to gather this material for the story. Sunday editions of the paper are expected to "go like hot cakes" in Statesboro this week.

In announcing the forthcoming publication of the Webb story, the Constitution earlier this week said: "...Bisher writes about one of the nation's top-ranking basketball players. He's Chester Webb, of Elberton, who plays for GTC ... Webb didn't even expect to play first string when he went to college and now he's Georgia's first basketball All-American."

GTC Observes Religious Week

Final plans for Religious Emphasis Week were announced this week. A schedule of services has been set up for the student body and for the individual dormitories.

The schedule is as follows:

Morning watch each morning Monday through Friday at 6:30 a. m. rotating among the dormitories in the following order: Lewis, Sanford, West, Cone, and East; assembly, Wednesday and Friday at the usual assembly period; twilight, Monday through Thursday at 6:15 p. m.; evening watch Monday through Thursday at a time to be set by the individual dormitories.

Rev. James H. McQuaig, a GTC student, will be in charge of the twilight service on Monday. The Tuesday service will be a special song service. Elder Charles C. Carrin will speak at the services on Wednesday and Thursday.

The dormitory services will be under the supervision of the following persons:

Beauty Revue Contestants Chosen By Organizations

Twenty-one girls representing twenty-one campus clubs will compete for the title of "Miss GTC of 1956" in the 10 annual Beauty Revue February 10.

The production staff will be composed of the following people in the positions named: Bob Byrd, producer; Lilli Douberly, stage manager; Mickie Webb, Stanley Brobston, and Martha Tinker, sets; Jimmy Harper, advertising; Shirley Scott, tickets; Merinda Barbee, scripts; Shirley Eunice, programs; Don Haimovitz, lighting; Mimi Saba, presentation.

The theme for the revue will be "pearls of the Sea." There will be three acts with background music rendered by Jack Broucek, associate professor of music, at the organ. The combo will provide intermission music.

The girls competing, in order of appearance in the first act, are as follows: Dahlia Evans, representing the English Club escorted by Herbert Houston; Shirley Rountree, Alpha Psi Omega, Tab Smith; Ann Cason, Alpha Rho Tau, James Brannen; Cathy Holt, Music Educators Club, Heyward Gnan; Martha Tinker, Vet Club, Bob Byrd; Mickey Webb, FBIA, Windell Marsh; Mary Tippins, Science Club, Bud Denham.

Joan Hurst, German Club, "Bee" Carroll; Carolyn Pierce, Kappa Delta Pi, Ric Mandes; Sis Heys, Home Economics Club, Emory Clements; Sara Cunnard, Dance Band, James Jones; Pat Fletcher, Concert Band, Jimmy Myers; Angel Sauls, Phi Mu Alpha, Leonard Lokey.

Sandra Hanson, Press Club, Skeeter Griffin; Lilli Douberly, Association of Childhood Education, Jeff Davis; Virginia Sikes, Phi Beta Lambda, Felton Young; Anne Kennedy, Sanford Hall, Billy Jackson; Mary Henderson, Masquers, Billy Hobbs; Joyce Kirkland, French Club, Wallis DeWitt; Nancy McIntosh, Future Teachers of America.

Concert Series Features Tenor John McColum

John McColum, nationally-known tenor, will be presented in concert Tuesday night at 8:15 in McCroan Auditorium by the Statesboro Community Concert Association.

He takes the stage in the first program of the season by the association and is a last-minute replacement for Wesley Dalton who had previously been scheduled to fill the first date. A recurrent wartime back injury forced the cancellation of Mr. Dalton's tour.

Mr. McColum has appeared as soloist with the NBC Symphony and the New York Philharmonic. He also has been on Town Hall and such popular programs as the Firestone Hour. The young tenor recently won the American Theater Wing Award.

Students will be admitted on their ID cards.

Baptist is Top Student Choice

GTC students are Baptist by an overwhelming majority, according to a survey made this week by Miss Kirbylene Stephens, secretary to President Henderson.

Checking the student applications for admissions, filed in the Dean's office, she compiled the following list of "preferences" indicated by students:

Baptist, 364; Methodist, 223; Primitive Baptist, 35; Presbyterian, 25; Episcopal, 18; Catholic, nine; Christian, six; Lutheran, 6; Church of God, three; Church of Christ, two; and Jewish, one. One person listed his preference as Salvation Army, and 42 said they had no preference.

Religious Emphasis Week

Beginning Monday, and continuing through next week, Religious Emphasis Week will be observed on campus. This observance will be accomplished through Morning Watch

Race Menu—Ugh!

It's disgusting! Every page of the current issues of all state newspapers has at least one store (and sometimes more) beginning: Attorney General Eugene Cook states . . . or, the president of the NAACP retaliated with . . . ; or, Governor Griffin states that no Negroes . . . ; the list of statements is inexhaustible.

The "Battle of the Races," offensively led by such champions as the aforesaid Messrs. Cook and Griffin, and ably supported by Roy Harris and former Governor Talmadge, has obtained a prominence almost approaching a monopoly in state news.

Now, it is understood that any true blooded, aristocratic Southerner has a special place reserved in a prominent part of his mind for this subject; but newspaper reports on the subject have almost reached the point of recurring themes written on a monotonous scale.

If our state leaders want to completely occupy themselves in warding off an infringement on their egos, that's all right; they are only elected officials sworn to supervise the state's affairs to the best of their abilities.

But when the public servants like newspapers charge citizens five cents a copy for their services and then unbiddingly and regularly cram our state champions' opinions down our throats, something needs to be done.

The segregation issue, surpassing even Princess Margaret and Grace Kelly, has been commercialized too long, and at least some Georgians have become satiated to the point of headiness on the Race Menu.

Exit Margaret—Enter Grace . . .

A couple of months ago Princess Margaret was dominating the international "boudoir" scene with her now almost forgotten-romance with commoner Capt. Peter Townsend. After her momentous decision to drop Peter, things have gotten kind of dull.

But the situation was not to remain that way for long.

Another slam-bang commoner royalty romance is in the spotlight. It's Prince Rainier of Monaco and Grace Kelly, the golden haired girl of Hollywood. This one offers to be a hum-dinger with plenty of fireworks and a happy ending.

Unlike the romance of Margaret, this one will have the sanction of both the church and state. As a matter of fact, everyone in the small (population 5,000) state of Monoco from the first minister down thru the Parish Priest to the last citizen would like to see the Prince married as soon as possible.

The reason is very obvious; if he dies without an heir the citizens of Monoco will become a province of France and will be subject to French taxes. At the present the citizens of Monoco do not pay personal income taxes.

With both the approval of Miss Kelly's family and the state of Monoco, the proposed marriage should come off without any trouble.

We sincerely hope it does, because if it doesn't there is going to be an awful lot of disappointed Hollywood press agents.

services held in the dormitories, special assembly meetings, and Twilight Services held each evening.

These programs will be held for the purpose of reviving religious awareness in the minds and hearts of college students. All too often, college students, upon leaving home, fail to take an active interest in the religious aspect of their life; next week's activities are aimed at reminding students of their spiritual needs and duties.

For this program to be a success, each student must pledge himself to enter into the activities with an open mind and heart, determined to reap benefit from his endeavors.

With this in mind, the editors of THE GEORGE-ANNE urge all students to attend these special services and make next week, truly, a week of emphasis on religion—an emphasis that will not wane and die with the passing of time.

Jarring Jack . . .

By BRITT FAYSSOUX

And in this corner it's Jarring Jack the giant killer, that 230 pound pug-nacious pugilist (disguised as a basketball referee) from Atlanta, Ga. In the other corner we have the FSU Seminoles.

The scene is the mammoth new Georgia Teachers gym. Jarring Jack is no stranger here. He's fought many a ferocious battle and the fans love him. There is no doubt about it, Jarring Jack is a real crowd pleaser. Not too pretty to look at, but then how many battle scarred veterans of this manly art are.

Jack has a special score to settle tonight. The last time he tangled with the seminoles they brought along a handy supply of Coke bottles. This was way back when Jack was only a tad, but he hasn't forgotten it. He's looking extra ferocious tonight. You can tell there is going to be some real fireworks. Things move along slowly at first, and then, bang. Jack, ever so lightly, shoves one of the Seminoles. That does it. The Seminole turns around swinging. This is all Jack has been waiting for. Jack is after him with both fists flying. The fans howl with glee. But alas, three other Seminoles rush to the rescue and partially halt Jack. Now J. I. Clements, the official referee of this bout rushes out and it is all over. It was a good battle while it lasted.

The victory is all Jack's. He didn't actually scalp any Seminoles, but he sure did throw a scare into one of them.

It's after the contest and Jack is resting in his dressing room. "Why did you go after that man like you did, Jack?" Jack replies, "I have me reputation to uphold, don't I. Some people say I slugged dat bum, but it ain't so. If I had, he wouldn't never got up."

Yeah, ole Jack sure is tough. There will be another contest coming up soon. You can bet Jack will be there. We are looking forward to it. Who knows, Jack may really get to his man next time.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"THIS IS A POOR CLASS TO TAKE FIRST PERIOD—SO NOISY YA CAN'T SLEEP."

Editor
GEORGE-ANNE
Dear Sir:

In last week's issue of the GEORGE-ANNE there was an editorial about the proposed signs down on 301. Since the Industrial Arts Club was the only name mentioned, it implied to me and other students that the IA Club is the main reason for the project not being completed.

As I understood it, the sign contest was sponsored by the IA Club for the purpose of securing ideas for these signs and not necessarily one idea for the finished project. A sign committee was supposed to have been selected from the faculty to compile ideas and data for the signs such as building materials, lettering, specifications, etc. This was nearly a year ago and the IA Club has been waiting for this necessary data to complete these two signs.

Here's hoping that the GEORGE-ANNE's editorial and this letter will start some brains and bodys to moving so this worthwhile project will be completed for the campus of GTC.

Respectfully yours,
Edward A. Abercrombie

Dear Editor:

The many socialistic trends of modern society seem to be enveloping us with a furious and full-throated capacity. These trends have disgusted to such a degree that it is indeed a pleasure and joy to see some good old honest-to-goodness free enterprise such as the PE department displays with such abandon.

I ask you, have you ever seen ole' enterprise interpreted as well in the name of Strict Construction of Free Enterprise as the PE department's practice of spreading three Cokes over five cups and charging 10 cents for each?

I truly wish to take this opportunity to thank said department from the depths of my ever grateful heart for rejuvenating my faith in the good-going American system of economics my great-grandfathers knew and worshiped.

To charge moderate prices is indeed Marxism to its heart and origin and this we must prevent at any COST.

Sincerely,
A Questioning Student
(Name on File)

GEORGE-ANNE
Dear Sir:

I would like to offer a suggestion through the GEORGE-ANNE to the Student Council. Next fall when it comes time for the Student Council to set up plans for the freshmen orientation classes, I think that it would be a good idea if they had a few classes on "How to properly chew gum."

Emily Post's Book of Etiquette states that it is very improper to chew gum in public. It isn't that I don't like to see girls chewing gum but do they have to make so darn much noise. Some girls sound like the Fourth of July when all 32 molars get warmed up.

This is not just for the freshmen but I don't see how those upperclassmen can be cured. Let's work on those that still have a chance to be saved.

Name on File

Dear Editor:

There's just never anything to do on this campus, is there? Everybody says there is supposed to be planned activity every weekend, but I haven't noticed any lately.

'Course, there was the basketball game with FSU Saturday night, but who wants to sit up and watch our boys slaughter the other team? A dance afterwards, but there was no orchestra to speak of. A dance is never a dance without an orchestra like—maybe Les Elgart.

Then on some Fridays there were films on campus. I didn't get to see the picture when it was in town, but who wants to look at some Academy Award-winning star replay an old role.

And during the week! The bulletin sent to prospective students spoke of the many different organizations you could join, but I haven't noticed any spectacular ones.

I'll admit there's a choir and band, but I must have gotten left out along the line somewhere. I just never got around to trying out for them.

Then, for those who write, there is the GEORGE-ANNE, which is being put out by the student body. I tried that one week, but they expect you to write a story at least once a month, and I don't get in the mood that often.

There are some religious organizations on campus, too, but since I'm going home every weekend anyway, I won't have time to get into any of these.

So you see, there isn't anything for me to do except meet classes and study. And what kind of college life is that?

—A Disgusted Freshman

Inquiring Reporter

By ELLEN BLIZZARD

All of us who attended the FSU game Saturday night were shocked, to say the least, at the little incident second half. Not quite sure what my own reaction was to the disagreement between the Seminole and the referee, I have inquired of a number of other people what their opinion was. Reactions of those who were asked are as follows:

Harriet Woodward—I was a little flabbergasted, to say the least, at what happened and I hope it doesn't ever occur again because of the talk that will result at other colleges and places about what happened on the GTC basketball court.

Paul Carr—From where I was sitting, I couldn't see what was happening too well and so I do not really know who was at fault. I have heard two entirely different sides of the story, but still under no circumstances should a referee display a show of temper in a competition where he is supposed to be an unbiased judge.

Carolyn Pierce—I certainly do not think it was good advertising for the college, but from where I was sitting, I could not see how it could have been prevented at that time. I do not think the referee should have pursued the matter, but I feel that he was justified in defending himself. I was rather amused at all the fans standing around to see what was going to happen rather than rushing out the door as usual after the game. However, I think this was perfectly natural for several reasons. One is the closeness of the ball game. Another was the tenseness of the crowd because of what had already happened. Another was the usual crowd reaction to an unusual event. I just hope it does not happen again.

Ted Woods—I think the official should keep a cool head at all times during a ball game and to stop unnecessary roughness and to put the players out of the game, not knock them out.

Mary Tippins—I think that the referee in his position and with his experience, should not have let his temper flare. I think the crowd reaction was good, particularly in the student section and for something of that type to happen.

Ric Mandes: I think it happened so quickly that people should not judge as to who was at fault. No matter how clean the slate is towards sportsmanship, the inevitable sometimes happens.

Joan Lindsey—It just scared me, that is all I know.

Clarence Miller—I feel that the incident was unrevoked by the referee and entirely the fault of the FSU student. I think any disciplinary action taken should be against the FSU student if any is taken. I think that any man when struck by another should have the privilege of striking back. I think any incident as such as this is bad for the game of basketball.

A Freshman's Creed

Years of research by Georgia Teachers' psych department has shown that every campus group is plagued with its own superstitions and popular beliefs. The freshman class—an unusual bit of collegiate life—is no exception. It has been indisputably proven that every freshman at Georgia Teachers is firmly convinced:

That college life is not as simple as explained in the student handbook.

That there is basically very little difference between a freshman and a senior.

That basketball really matters.

That anybody can make the Dean's List if he studies at all.

That GTC's basketball team could beat Georgia any time.

That Georgia grade and high school teachers are paid with eggs, potatoes, and grits instead of money.

That the Statesboro police harbor a deep hatred for all GTC students.

That any student who flunks out at GTC can get in Brewton Parker.

That if you don't pay your bills within 10 days your connection with the college will be severed.

That there are at least three student suicides each year which are suppressed by the college authorities.

That the opposite sex is keen.

That upstairs southeast in the Ad Building is the southeastern headquarters for the Communist party.

That GTC's basketball team could beat Tech any time.

That students in the English department seldom see daylight.

That veterans on campus are made of money.

That the GTC library is located somewhere back of the lab school.

That the Who's Who list is chosen by Mose Bass.

That the juniors talk only to seniors, and the seniors talk only to God.

That Tennessee Ernie is smarter than any three college presidents.

That one could starve to death waiting for service at the Grill.

That the State Theater's movies are shot on location at Dover.

That everybody except me is on scholarship.

That most college men are "smooth."

That GTC coeds are basically women.

That all the English profs are frustrated novelists.

That all beauty contests are either fixed or crooked.

That the Chemistry curve is slightly warped.

That the GEORGE-ANNE editorials dictate the policy of the university.

That GTC's basketball team could probably beat Kentucky.

That all PE majors are on a double scholarship.

That although an occasional student flunks out of school, life must go on.

That the Masquers split up the play profits and hold mad parties.

That gaining social poise is far more important than storing away vast reservoirs of knowledge.

—Third Year Freshman

FRANCES BELLE MCGIRT, a junior elementary education major, has been chosen to represent GTC's Elementary Education Club at the annual National Elementary Education Conference in Washington, D. C., in April.

College Library Has Received Set of Books

The Georgia Teachers College library has been selected to receive one of the 1,600 sets of Great Books of the Western World being distributed by a grant from the Old Dominion Foundation. The recipients were chosen by a selection committee of the American Library Association. There were approximately 30,000 applications for the sets from all over the United States.

The set contains 54 volumes encompassing 443 works by 74 authors... spanning Western thought from Homer and the Bible to the 20th Century. The set contains whole works, not excerpts, and for 21 of the 74 authors, ALL their works. It represents the only publication in English, or the only edition aside from rare or expensive printings, or key works by Aristotle, Hippocrates, Galen, and many another such well-known philosopher. It comprises an "idea index" through which it is possible to trace 102 fundamental "Great Ideas" and their subordinate topics through all the writings in the set.

Students Enjoy Quarter They Practice Teach

By ELLEN BRANDON
George-Anne Feature Editor

One of the most important features of an education major's senior year at Georgia Teachers College is the quarter they spend practice teaching. The seniors first observe actual classroom methods and then later take over the teaching themselves. This quarter there are 41 of them practicing teaching both on and off campus.

This week THE GEORGE-ANNE interviewed four seniors who had their quarter of practice teaching last fall. We found out that most of them liked it very well and felt it taught them some valuable lessons. Marilyn Kent from Glenwood, who taught six home economic classes at Statesboro High School, said she really enjoyed it. Her only criticism was that there were too many faculty meetings. She also said the equipment in the department needed improvement.

Abrupt Change

Tab Smith from Daisy taught English at the Marvin Pittman High School. He thinks that "Practice teaching is a culmination of all your college experiences." His only dislike about it was the abrupt change made from student to teacher.

Jewel Hart, from Statesboro, who taught home economics at Screven County High School in Sylvania, also enjoyed her practice teaching very much. She said she liked being with the students, the set-up of the school and all the teachers especially. Her only dislike was being the only girl there practicing teaching. Her only suggestion for improvement was that the practice teacher should spend more time taking part in the activities of the school as a whole rather than just those in their special field.

Survey Reveals Study Habits As Biggest Problem

A majority of freshman students think that their adjustment to college has been a successful one, and most of these attribute their adjustment to the help of a fellow student, possibly a roommate or a sweetheart. The rural students find it harder to adjust to college life than to city students.

This information was obtained in an adjustment survey of the freshmen attending GTC this year by Gene Meadows in a social science course. Only 80 per cent of the freshmen took the test, but most of the results can be applied to the whole class. Of 190 freshmen who answered the questions, 113 were females and 77 were males. The median age of the group was slightly above 19 since there were quite a few veterans listed.

Problems listed by freshmen as hardest to surmount include study habits (bad), relations with the opposite sex, and

Art Classes Contribute To Beauty Of Campus

By JO ANN PARKER

The Georgia Teachers College art classes seem to keep a perpetual paint brush handy to splash beauty on our campus and community. Although afforded little of the fanfare given other departments for special services, the art classes are "omnipresent" both directly and indirectly throughout the college.

Unlike most classes, the art students waste little time in putting their knowledge to use as they learn it. The most apparent examples are the number of eye-catching posters on display at various times. Posters are usually done in class at the request of any department or organization needing them. The only requirement is that they must fit in with something being studied at the time.

Miss Frieda Gernant and Miss Roxie Remley, GTC's two art instructors, point out that the classes are not "service classes," but are designed primarily to teach students new things about art. Much time is devoted to the study of how to create good art in everything from lettering to making an artistic room arrangement, depending on the type class. Both teachers feel, however, that practical use of this knowledge is worth taking class time for, since the experience creates an incentive for studying art in addition to helping the college.

During the winter quarter, a class in lettering and poster making is conducted by Miss Gernant, so many of the posters will naturally come from this group. However, in line with the art department's theory of practical experience and their requirement that projects must fit in with the phase of art being studied, the projects are usually divided among all the classes.

To Make Posters For Masquers

The lettering and poster making class is beginning work on 20 posters for the Masquer's coming production of "The Merchant of Venice." The class is just finishing a period of printing Old English lettering, and will employ some of it on the posters.

The winter season evokes some of the most spectacular displays of the year with Homecoming and the Beauty Revue in the spotlight. The Beauty Revue's theme this year, "Pearls of the Sea," is arousing homesickness. By far the most difficult obstacle to overcome with the acquisition of bad study habits in early high school. This is one problem that can be remedied.

Religious life is stronger at home for most of the freshmen; however, only four of them stated that their moral life has been lowered since entering GTC. More than just a few think that it has been strengthened here.

"Petting," by 99 per cent of those questioned, is thought to be more prevalent on the GTC campus than in their high school. The majority of these are from rural schools.

Twenty-two students definitely write that they would not attend GTC if they had their choice again. Nine were undecided about this question at the time of the survey.

high interest among the artists by the many imaginative ideas it suggests.

Show cards and designs for programs will be class projects, while students designing floats will be given individual advice, when needed, on how to combine materials and colors, and best carry out their themes.

Responsible for Alumni Quarterly

The influence of the art classes appears on many other occasions. At various times, the classes design program covers for banquets and for other things, such as May Day, Dames' Club activities. The cover and the homecoming page of the December issue of the Alumni Quarterly were done by Lilli Douberly and Nan Lee in the creative-design class. In each case, a contest was held in which the whole class drew designs, with the winners selected by a faculty committee. Cone Hall became the fortunate "adopted child" of Miss Remley's ceramics class last year. The class presented the men's dorm with a set of handmade ashtrays to go in the lounge.

In that same class, Bob Byrd came up with an impressive little ceramic rooster. Done in a bold, modern style, the figurine now stands in President Henderson's private office.

Advice Asked

Members of the art department are often called on for advice on anything connected with art. In line with this, students, along with their teachers, are regularly asked to judge art contests in grammar and high schools.

Although no art major is presently offered, the courses in this department are among the most popular taught. Students find that they can go out of these classes to find opportunities awaiting them in every field and activity. The department hopes to offer an art major soon, with only the imagination to limit its possibilities for the school and community.

FBLA Begins Campaign For New Members

At the first meeting of the FBLA Club for the winter quarter a membership drive was discussed and plans definitely settled as to how members could be gained. Two teams were set up headed by Joel Cooper and Aubrey Lee to compete against each other for the number of new members each could gain. The goal to be reached is the winning side goes to the FBLA Valentine Party which will be planned and carried out by the losing side.

Discussion was held as to idea of adopting a leadership degree to be presented to outstanding members of the club. The method for choosing members eligible for the degree is as follows: Letters will be written by anyone in the club who would like to see another member receive the degree stating why that member should be so honored.

A committee composed of Mr. Homick, Miss Martin, and Bob Fuqua will judge these letters. This degree was made retroactive to those members belonging fall quarter, but not with the club now for varying reasons.

Convention Date

The date for the FBLA State Convention was decided upon by the club; April 6 and 7. The convention was discussed at length with the chairmen giving reports.

Suggestions were called for as to the theme to be used for the club's scrapbook.

GTC Welcomes Cuban

By JOYCE KIRKLAND

"Why I came here? . . . To visit my mother!" The above statement was made by the only foreign student on the GTC campus shortly after he began his studies here at the beginning of the winter quarter.

Armando Hernandez, whose mother has been teaching Spanish in Statesboro High School for a year, and whose younger sister is a student in the Sallie Zetterow School, came to Statesboro from Havana, Cuba, during the Christmas holidays of 1955. Armando decided to enter Georgia Teachers College as an engineering student in his sophomore year, since courses at Georgia Tech had already begun.

Converted from the Catholic belief while in high school at Candler College, Armando likes being a Methodist. He says it's a less inhibiting life.

Engineering Student

He attended the University of Havana—where he studied engineering for two years. Then he decided to visit his mother in the United States. Unforeseen results of his visit find him neckdeep in math, physics, and speech.

Fishing for the "aguja" must undoubtedly be the favorite pastime of the Cubans, or so I gathered from my talk with said representative. This must be a form of sailfish, though it would require an expert to recognize it from Armando's description. However, squash is the name of one of the most popular of the games played in Havana.

Armando himself prefers baseball.

When asked what special talents he had, he said, "None!" But, as the saying goes, "Time will tell" if he is telling the truth.

Loves His Home

Armando studied the English language while he was attending high school, but he used it practically only once on a trip to Jamaica. Hence he has forgotten much of it. But to hear him speak of his island, even in his broken English, makes one realize how much he loves it.

Although we can never make him feel "at home" here, let's give him a reason for staying at GTC.

HYDE and SEEK

By LARRY HYDE

George-Anne Sports Editor

Georgia Teachers College defeated Florida State University last Saturday night and it will be a long time before a more exciting game will be played on the local hardwood.

I have never seen two more balanced teams play, although both played ragged at times. The expected scoring dual between FSU's Jim Oler and our own Chester Webb was supposed to be the highlight of the game, but the officials stole the show by never blowing their whistle at the same time. Officials are human and like the rest of us they make mistakes, but do they have to make so many?

Near the end of the game, a foul was called on an FSU player who undoubtedly thought the call was unfair and pushed the official. There is no doubt that the FSU player is to blame and he had no right in pushing the official, but the official had no right in pursuing the player. The outcome might have been different if Coach Clements had not stepped in and restrained the official.

As I see it, an official is on the court to control the game and enforce penalties when rules are broken. When it gets to the point that an official goes after a player that has lost his temper in the fury of a close ball game and other players have to restrain the official, then I think that it is time to stop and ask ourselves this question: Is this the kind of officials that we want to officiate our basketball games at GTC?

Nothing became of the incident, but stop and think of what might have happened if the official had gotten to the player. This is not good publicity for our school and I hope that we will not have to condone any more of this kind of officiating.

Individual professor scoring records for the season including the FSU game as follows:

Webb, Chester	123	147	397	30.5

IM Basketball To Start Monday

The intramural basketball program will be executed in the same manner that the fall quarter football program was run.

Each class will have a representative with some classes having more than one team. This will depend on the interest shown by the participants.

The games will be held two nights a week with two games being played each night. These will be played in the new physical education building. The games will be played two at a time on the cross courts in the buildings. After two games have been played two more will follow!

The games will begin at 6:15 and the night's activity will come to a close around 8:30.

"Skeeter" Griffin is in charge of securing the names of all who wish to play, and seeing that co-captains are appointed. He will work with the class presidents.

This program is expected to start on Monday, January 22.

Scearce Believes GTC Can Defeat Belmont

Can a team improve 26 points in 11 days? That's the assignment facing the Professors by tomorrow night when they face the powerful Belmont Abbey Crusaders.

On January 10, Belmont Abbey defeated GTC 92 to 67. Since that stunning defeat the Profs have whipped Florida State (90-81) and Florida Southern (104-58) to run their season mark to nine wins and four losses.

Coach J. B. Scearce believes that GTC can win this time, despite the defeat his charges suffered on January 10. "They shot better than 45 per cent that night, and we hit only 29 per cent, our worse shooting average of the year," reminds Scearce.

"It wasn't an exceptionally good defense that whipped us, either," adds Scearce, "because we got 96 shots and they were good ones, too. This is one time I don't have to worry about getting a team up for a game. They feel they're not as bad

Webb and Oler Both Score In Tough Contest

Chester Webb and Jim Oler fought to a 41-all standoff last Saturday night in a pre-advertised scoring battle, but the Professors managed to come out on top of the FSU Seminoles, 90-81.

In a game which found the score tied eight times, the Profs pulled away in the last three minutes to gain their first win over FSU in four years.

Webb made his first four free throws before missing to run his school record to 31 straight. His career point total is now 2,056, making him the 19th player in collegiate history to pass the 2,000 mark.

Webb was ably supported by a tremendous team effort led by Garland Campbell with 19 points and amazing ability on the boards. Wallen and Warren played their usual defensive game, set up countless plays, and contributed 20 points between them to the total.

Georgia Teachers College Campbell 19, Corry 8, Harley 8, Webb 41, Wallen 2, Warren 12, Ward 0, Clements 0.

Freshmen Lose To Florida, Stewart Teams

The freshmen basketball team dropped two games this week, losing to Jacksonville Jr. College Tuesday night and to Camp Stewart Wednesday night.

In Tuesday night's 103-84 loss to the Florida five, Howard Walls lead the Teacher attack with 30 and Bucky Thomas followed him with 28.

At the March of Dimes Benefit game at Camp Stewart, Howard Walls again led the Professors effort with 23 and Walker Cook sank 20, but this wasn't enough as the Army five edged out a 94-84 victory.

Humpy Campbell Is Teacher Mainstay

Garland LaVerne Campbell, better known to the students of GTC as "Humpy," is a transplanted Yankee that has found a home in the South. He is one of the mainstays of the "Profs" and for a short man, you won't find a better rebounder.

Campbell was born July 29, 1929 in the large metropolis of Windfall, Indiana, (population, 500) and like many average kids of that fair city, he learned to put a basketball through a hoop before his mother would give him his milk.

"Humpy" received his high school education at Windfall High School for eleven years and moved to Sheridan High School in Sheridan, Indiana, for his senior year.

Leading Scorer

While at Windfall High, he played three years on the varsity basketball team and was the team's leading scorer his junior year. His senior year at Sheridan was cut short due to his late arrival and he was only able to play 13 games but still managed to score 256 points.

Upon graduation from high school in 1950, Garland joined the Air Force and took his basic at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas. From there, he was assigned to Keasler AFB in Mississippi where he worked in the personnel office of the 3399th student squadron.

"Humpy" played on the Keasler basketball team for three years and was a stand-out except in 1954 when injuries kept him on the sidelines most of the time. In 1951-52, he was captain and leading scorer on the team that won 24 and lost 9.

Scotty and Humpy Led

In 1952-53, Campbell and Scotty Perkins, the present GTC freshman coach, teamed up to give Keasler a one-two scoring punch that enabled them to win 44 out of 55 games played. That year Perkins was the team's leading scorer and "Humpy" was second.

That great day which all men look forward to who are in service came in October, 1952. Just as soon as he picked up that little piece of paper that said he was a free man, LaVerne headed for the murmuring pines and the rest is history.

Asked why he came to Georgia Teachers College, "Humpy" replied: "I was influenced by a good many former GTC students that told me if I wanted to get a good education, play on an outstanding basketball team, and associate with the friendliest students in the world, then GTC was the place for me." Well, I don't think that he has gone wrong on any of those, because he met and married a former GTC student, Joyce Mitchell.

Garland plans to coach after his graduation from college and you can bet your bottom dollar that his teams won't be outthrustled. That is, if they listen to their coach, who, during his college days, was really a "hustler" whenever the Profs took the hardwood.

GTC Runs Wild In Game With Fla. Southern

GTC ran to an easy 104-58 victory over Florida Southern College Monday night as 12 Profs saw action and 11 contributed to the final score.

The Professors managed to snow under Florida Southern's leading man, Frank DeSavino, allowing him only 12 points. Guard Spicuzza captured scoring honors for the losers with 16 points.

Webb bucketed 24 points while Bo Warren had 18 and Jim Harley scored 16 for the Profs. The regulars played only about half the game, with reserves finishing out the time.

Forward Doug Corry was held out of the game because of what Coach Scearce called "inflamed leg tendons." However, Jim Harley ably filled his position putting on quite a show of ball stealing from the outwitted Moccasin players.

GTC: Campbell (12), Harley (16), Webb (24), Wallen (9), Warren (18), Clements (6), Belton (2), Avery (7), Ward (6), Spurlock (2), Cook (2), Wall (0).

The Child's Five Lose to SHS

Statesboro High School defeated Blackshear 41-40, in a thrilling curtain raiser game Saturday night, thus ending one of the longest winning streaks to be posted in recent years. This was Blackshear's first setback in 39 games.

Joe Hines got Statesboro's winning goal with less than a half minute left to play. The lead had changed twice in the last minute and Blackshear led 40-39 when Hines sank the basket.

Joe Waters and Coley Cassidy led Statesboro with 14 points each. Hines followed with 13.

VET'S CORNER

By BODIE BOATRIGHT

The veterans held their first regular meeting of this quarter Monday night at 10:30 in the Cone Hall lounge.

A theme was voted upon and adopted for the Homecoming parade. Whit "Yogi" Reeves heads a committee of seven consisting of Britt Fayssoux, Al Norman, Bob Faudree, Jim Niblett, Lewis Strickland, and Alton Dews that is in charge of preparation of the veterans' float in the Homecoming parade.

Plans were also completed for the first big social event of this quarter. This is to be an oyster roast at Marsh's Pond to be held around the first of February. All the girls that participated in the Vet's Club Sweetheart Contest will be invited to attend this function.

Special Meeting

A special meeting was called for Monday night, January 23, at 10:30 in the Cone Hall lounge. President Fuqua urges all vets to attend this very important meeting.

The Vet's Club basketball team got off to a roaring start this season in the Bulloch County Mens Basketball League when they defeated the Statesboro National Guard last Wednesday night by a score of 61 to 55. The Vets led throughout the game except for a short time in the fourth quarter when the "Guards" tied the score and at one time had a five-point lead. At this time Rachels and Moore started hitting from all over the court, and the Vets went on to win by six points. James Moore paced the vets with 15 points.

Your reporter was lucky enough to get an exclusive interview with Alton "Dountless" Dews, fearless captain of a fighting team. The doughty Dews solemnly gazed into his crystal ball, inhaled a shot of tomato juice (straight), crammed his battle-worn campaign hat down over his eyes, and predicted that at the end of the season we will still have possession of the league trophy we won last year.

Join the Team

Incidentally, our next game will be against Portal at 8:30 p. m. on January 26th at the Statesboro High School gym. Any vet that wants to play can join the team with the assurance that he will get to play inasmuch as the emphasis is on sportsmanship and recreation rather than on the win column.

That's all for this round. Don't forget the special vets meeting Monday night, January 23, at 10:30 p. m. in the Cone Hall lounge. Pass the word around to all the Vets.

SSACA Plans

Meet January 28

A meeting for the southeastern section of the American Camping Association will be held Saturday, January 28, in Columbia, South Carolina.

Miss Catherine Hammett, member of the National Camping Staff of the Girl Scouts, who was once president of the American Camping Association, will present a lecture entitled "Trips in the Camp Program." In this talk, she will discuss types of trips: hikes, canoe, truck, riding, overnight, and extended trips. There will be a question box time during the afternoon session.

This is a wonderful opportunity for those who have been or those who would like to be camp counselors. Students or faculty members who are interested, may contact Miss Stanion or Mr. Pennington for further details.

District Debate Honors Won By Vidalia, Portal

Vidalia and Portal took first district debating honors in their respective classes in the annual district contests held at Marvin Pittman School Monday.

The Vidalia Class B team won over the team from Emanuel County Institute and Portal beat Bryan County High in the class C division.

Vidalia and Portal teams will compete in the statewide competition at Athens Jan. 27-28.

The same resolution was debated by all four teams. It was. Resolved that the federal government should guarantee through grants to colleges and universities.

AMC Veep Was Guest of MEC

The Music-Ed Club played host on January 16 to Dr. John Kendall, Vice-President of the American Music Conference.

The highlight of his one-day visit came Monday night when Dr. Kendall addressed the club in a talk about music in the life of the community. music teacher, city music supervisor, state superintendent of music, and at present vice-president of the Southwest Section of the Music Education National Conference, he entertained the audience with an informative, yet delightful witty charm, in which he pointed out the advantages of music in the life of everyone from young children on up.

Dr. Kendall presented a plan for developing music appreciation in the schools and community, and showed a film to help emphasize his points.

Earlier in the day, he spoke to the high school methods class on the subject of The Growth of Music in the Public Schools.

Dr. Kendall is on a speaking tour which will include colleges and universities in Florida, Georgia, and Alabama.

Rogers is Host To History Class

A social gathering of Dr. George Rogers history 309 class was held at Dr. Rogers' home last Tuesday night.

An informal program centered around the life and place in European History of Beethoven was presented. A brief biographical sketch of the German composer was given by Glen Coston. After this a film entitled, "Beethoven and Music" was shown.

The conclusion of the program was the playing of a record of his Fifth Symphony with an analysis of the symphony.

Those students attending were Richard Cates, Glen Coston, Ed Dukes, Heyward Gnan, Okie Hendrix, H. L. McCright, James McQuaig, Glen Thomas, and Paul Ward.

Bobby Coleman and Mrs. Betty Childs were unable to attend.

Dr. Rogers is hopeful that other such gatherings, which will be centered around 18th and 19th century composers, will be possible throughout the quarter.

Hendersons in Program

President Zach S. Henderson, with Mrs. Henderson and Ann, appeared in a special program on "Home" at the Home Demonstration Service annual achievement night in Sylvania Tuesday night.

Special Meeting Of Council Held

A special meeting of the GTC students council was called at 6:15 p. m. Monday, January 16, to discuss the fight song for GTC. Larry Hyde has submitted a song and was present to discuss it with the council. Hyde told the council, "I felt that a fine institution like ours needed a fight song so I wrote to the University of Southern California for music. When I received the music, all that was needed was to change a few words and add a few and that's all there was to it. I hope the student body likes it and will really sing for GTC to 'fight on'."

Campus Column

By STAR WOODARD

Last weekend was some weekend, wasn't it? An exciting ball game, a fine dance, and so many old-students visiting on campus.

Marilyn Coons and Lynford Hadwin, ex-students from Savannah, visited their many friends Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. "Ace" Little of Marietta came to GTC for the game. They both looked fine. It seems marriage agrees with them.

Curt Walker and Cliff O'Neal visited in Hazelhurst and Baxley Friday afternoon.

Two Professors had their wives down for that game. oJyce Mitchell Campbell and Mary Alice Jones Harley visited their husbands, "Humpty" and Jim.

Speaking of the ball game, wow! That was really what I call a game that could give a person ulcers. It was nip 'n tuck up until the last few minutes, when the men in blue and white started stripping the basket. Our varsity team won Saturday, but it seems that the "Baby" Professors did not have the same luck. The Georgia Tech freshmen beat them by only two points. We're sorry boys, best of luck in your next game. Ann Johnson was given a surprise birthday party by her friends last week. Hey, Annie, did you lose something Friday night?

Terry Smith of the University of Georgia visited Shirley Akins again this weekend. This is getting to be a habit, but a fine habit, isn't it, Shirley?

Carol Smith, who is teaching in Hinesville, visited that long, tall man that has been racking up points for GTC. I believe he goes by the name of Chester Webb.

Tissy Jordan accompanied Beverly O'Connor back to Savannah after the game Saturday night.

Carolyn Cochran, who was a student here last year and is now working in Atlanta, visited Barbara Williamson, Patsy Colvin, Barbara Prysock, and Barbara Burkhalter.

Phil Norton, who is responsible for the diamond on the third finger, left hand of Cathy Holt, was her visitor this weekend. Phil was the president of our Student Council last year and is now teaching in Savannah. Another teacher from Savannah was also on campus and that was Fayrene Sturgis who visited her many friends.

Shirley Brown was honored on her birthday by a surprise spaghetti supper at the home of her roommate, Barbara Hodges. Many of Shirley's friends attended and a fine time was had as well as a few pounds added.

The stars are really shining in Vila Browne's eyes this week as a result of her weekend visitor, Bobby Paulk, from the University of Georgia.

Now that the cast of this quarter's aMsquers production has been announced, I know that the hard work will soon begin in order to present to us a superb play. Best of luck to you, Miss Few, and to your cast.

Ruth Sutton Odum, Sandra Tindol, and Joyce Kirkland had visitors from their hometowns for the weekend.

Pat Harkleroad, Ruth Bennett, and Avonell Morris had as their guests this weekend a number of their friends from South Georgia College. I believe one of the guests was that "special one," wasn't he Avonell?

Joy Hatcher, who is practice teaching in Savannah spent four days on campus.

Well, that's about it for this week. See you at the ball game where we take our revenge on Belmont Abbey, right, team?

New Machines Are Added To Business Dept.

For a long time the problem of the business education division was a lack of merchandising practice in accounting, office management, and the general operation of business machines. To try to help the student obtain some background experience, the business education division has organized a machines course that is in the form of a small corporation. The class has named it the ABC Corporation. This mock corporation has the following departments: a cashier's section, a billing section, an accounts receivable section, an accounts payable section, a payroll section, a credit manager, and a stenographic and secretarial section.

Each student enrolled in the course has a particular job to do and at the end of a period is issued a check by the payroll section.

Mr. Homick hopes to be able to incorporate in the business department more of the actual business practices by having the students apply the business theories in actual job practices.

Through this course it is now possible to excel in the field of secretarial science in the business education division here at GTC.

Further assistance was given the department by Georgia Tech through their outright gift of five posting machines.

Hurst is Elected Pres. of WRA

Election of the officers of the WRA for the coming year was held at the last meeting on January 17. The two officers were Iris Hurst as President and Shirley Anne Jones as secretary and treasurer.

The second intramural volleyball game was played after Betty Lynn Cadle's team beat Carolyn Davis' team 50-26 at the last meeting. Next Tuesday night another game of the intramural tournament is being played, and the doors are open to spectators.

Plans for homecoming were also discussed during the meeting.
