Library Spotlight: Films on Demand Database

September 30, 2013

While the Zach S. Henderson Library continually looks for new resources to meet the needs of students, faculty, staff, and visitors, we also offer older resources that might be just as valuable to our patrons. One such resource is the Films on Demand Database.

Provided by GALILEO, the Films on Demand Database consists of 7,000 video titles (77,000 segments) in the Humanities, Social Sciences, Business, Economics, Health, and Sciences. It also includes the new collection of United Newsreels which includes an additional 260 titles (1,250 segments). This resource is produced by Infobase Publishing. You can access this database through GALILEO or directly with this link.
