ANNA RUTH JOHNSTON, a Sparta freshman who plans to teach home economics, won the title of "Miss Sweater Girl of Georgia Teachers College" at the "sweater and bobby sox" dance which was sponsored by the Industrial Arts and Home Economics Clubs last Saturday night.

Marvin Pittman Jr. Found Murdered By Native Bandits in Philippines

Last night, Dr. Marvin S. Pittman stated that arrangements are now being made for the funeral of his son, Marvin Pittman Jr., and that as soon as it is known when the ashes of his son will arrive from the Philippines the arrangements will be announced.

G.E.D. Tests

Students who are interested in taking the G. E. D. tests, which will be offered on Feb. 7 and 8, are asked to go by Dean Carroll's office at an early date for details concerning the tests.

Attention!

Students who plan to complete work for their degrees at the end of this quarter are asked to fill out applications for a degree in the office of Miss Perry, registrar, as soon as possible.

Dancing

After the ball game with North Georgia College tonight the senior class invites everyone to stay for the weekly dance. Mason Clements, class president, has announced that dancing will begin immediately after the game and continue until 11:30.

Snapshots Wanted For the 'Reflector'

Anyone who is interested in having their snapshots appear in The Reflector, is asked to turn them in to I. E. Thigpen and Dick Cohan before January 31. They have announced that "anything of anyone in school this year" is acceptable.

Attends Meet

Miss Gernant attended the annual meeting of the Association of Georgia Artists on Saturday, January 14, at the DeSota Hotel in Savannah. The art exhibit, sponsored by the association each year, was held at the Telfair Academy. The exhibit, which includes outstanding paintings by prominent Georgia artists, will be open to the general public until January 29.

Masquers Hangout Now Decorated

What is all the noise that has been coming from the top floor of Anderson Hall? We talked to Bunny Brown and Mary Ellen Blocker, heads of the Masquers decorating committee, and found that the Masquers room is being redecorated. Believe it or not, loveseats are being made from tables, and chairs are being made from barrels—including Tillman Newsome's fish barrel. The redecorating is being done by the talented Masquers members who have discovered that they can do more than just act in plays. The Art Department is doing its part by making theatrical murals for the walls. Painting of the room has been started by the boys, and a color scheme of light green and dark green is being carried out. It is hoped that some generous person will donate some old rugs for the floors. When and if we get some rugs, we believe that the occupants of Anderson Hall will not be disturbed by noise from upstairs because the rugs will make the floors soundproof. After all the redecorating is completed, the Masquers will have a surprise for everyone on the campus.

20th Century Press Calls For Poems

Students who are interested in submitting poetry for possible publication in an Anthology of the Verse of American Youth, are asked to turn their entries in to either Burney Anna Mann, English Club president, or Lola Robbins, vice president.

The staff of the Twentieth Century Press feels that a book of verse by the Youth of America would be wholly in keeping with the times, so they have decided to begin the publication of such an anthology of poetry.

Those authors whose poems are accepted will receive a suitably inscribed certificate. Manuscript must be turned in no later than February 8.

This project is being sponsored by the English Club.

Faculty Members To Attend Meet

Four members of the administrative staff will attend the Teacher Education Council, which is to be held at the University of Georgia Monday through Wednesday of next week.

Dean Carroll, who is a member of the executive committee, will preside at one of the general sessions to be held in the University Chapel. In addition to Dean Carroll, Miss Perry, secretary to the Committee on Certification; Mr. Monroe, and Miss Freeman, who are on the Workshop Committee, will attend the meeting.

FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

Mr. Bill Holloway, owner and operator of the Statesboro Floral Shop and who is also a T.C. alumnus, gave a very interesting demonstration on various ways of arranging the flowers for the Home Economics Club Wednesday night. At the conclusion of his demonstration, Mr. Holloway gave the various arrangements to the Home Economics Department.

Long Week End Set for Feb. 4

Dean Carroll has asked us to remind you again of the change in the long week end schedule. The long week end that was originally scheduled for January 28 has been changed to the week end of February 4, due to the ball game with with Appalachian Teachers College quintet.

Changes Must Be Approved

Before registering for the first quarter of the junior year, students electing departmental majors and minors were supposed to work out with the heads of the departments concerned satisfactory major and minor programs. Any later changes in these programs must have the approval of the head of the department in which the change is made. If you are a junior and you haven't yet attended to this, see Miss Perry immediately.

Masquers Divide For One-Act Plays

Masquers has such a large enrollment that Miss Aaron, Masquers' director, found it necessary to divide the members into three groups for the production of the one-act plays.

Each group will produce a one-act play this quarter. One group is planning to give a Vesper play to be held in the theater down by the lake. Another group is going to present an arena-type play.

No definite date has been set for any of the plays, but will be announced at a later date.

slogans to make up — just put the top story machinery in motion and think up a cute and appropriate name for the Lyon's Cottage. What's that? You don't know what the Lyon's Cottage is? Why, that's where all those Home Economics majors, who cook so well, live when they take the course in Home Management. So you've already thought of a name?

Just send or bring it by The George-Anne office any day between January 21 and January 28. All entries must be dated before 12 o'clock noon January 28.

Don't forget to put your name and address on your entry. The prize will be a crisp, new five-dollar bill. This contest is being sponsored jointly by the Home Economics Club and The George-Anne. Miss Margaret Strahlmann and Miss Ruth Bolton, in behalf of the Home Economics Department, and Mr. Charles Kopp, in behalf of The George-Anne and Public Relations Department, will be the judges.

Religions Doing Worthwhile Work

Two of the denominational religious organizations on the campus, the B.S.U. and the Wesley Foundation, feel they are doing something all the students should know about.

The Southern Baptists through the B.S.U. sponsored a week of special interest on vocational emphasis during the week of January 9 through the 15, at twilight each night. The theme of the program was "Link Your Life With God's Great Purpose."

The Wesley Foundation had charge of the services at the Methodist Church last Sunday night. Before church for the next few Sunday nights, the discussion group, which meets directly before church, will discuss Love, Courtship and Marriage. The group had a hayride and weiner roast at Dasher's last night.

An Insight on Elementary Lab School

OUR ELEMENTARY LAB School, as it is at the present time, should not exist. Let's take a look at some of the conditions over there. The lighting is poor, the kitchen is poorly equipped, the equipment is old, there are not enough restroom facilities, there are not enough drinking fountains, the fire escapes are not safe. Something should be done and HAS to be done about these conditions. Plans have been made to combine the elementary and high school, but they have not materialized. Will they ever materialize? If the elementary school were combined with the high school, two sets of records could be done away with, the cafeterias could be combined, new facilities and equipment would surely be installed—the lab school would then be one unit.

Let us begin to think about this. Surely the students, who teach in the elementary school of Georgia Teachers College, need to teach in ideal situations. If they do not see the ideal situation when they are practice-teaching they will not have any ideas on improving the conditions of the public schools when they actually start teaching. If they do not see good situations they will be satisfied with the old and forever stay behind the times.

Sure, we need the elementary school; we need a nice, well-equipped elementary school. We cannot be satisfied with it as it is because it is not what we want. Let's talk this thing up and appeal to the Board of Regents for the money that we surely deserve so we can do something about this situation. Wake up to what is around you, and at least be conscious of what you see.

Something CAN be done about it, if we all get behind it.

What About Our Food?

I DECIDED AT the first of the year that I would lay off the dining hall. So much has been said in previous years that it has put a bad taste in my mouth even to think of writing an editorial about the dining hall. Worse has come to worst, however, and I think it is time something was said about it. I am not speaking of the service down there because that couldn't be better. What I am speaking of is the huge amount of sweets and grease we are fed each day. If the desserts were not accompanied by other foods that are so sweet, it would be all right. If the vegetables and breakfast meats were not drowned in grease, that, too, would be all right. The thing about it that too much grease or sweets is not good for you.

Another thing, what has become of the liver? Surely liver is essential to our bodies, so the health books says. It is true that many people do not eat liver, but it is good for the body and set before them, the majority will try to eat it. Many people don't like fish and chicken either—I'm not complaining about that, but the point I am trying to cite is this . . . Liver shouldn't be cut out of our diets just because some people don't like it, no more than the other meats or vegetables some don't like shouldn't. Let's think about these things and see what we can do about them.

Be Consistent

ARE YOU AGREEABLE with your neighbor, or are you always striking discords? I'm not speaking of whether or not you get along, but whether or not are today's views are consistent with yesterday's. That makes a lot of difference to your associates. We should all strive to draw up one opinion and stick to what we believe. Nobody likes someone who says one thing today and something else tomorrow or people who are going out of their way to disagree.

Speaking of consistent views, what about the campuses and restrictions that are placed on the girls. One girl might break one rule deliberately and get by with a week's campus-ing while another girl might get into an unavoidable situation and get a two week's restriction placed on her. I firmly believe if certain rules were laid down and the girls knew exactly what punishment they would receive if they broke said rules, less rules would be broken.

Be consistent. That's what counts.

Letter to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR:

I have attended a prep school and two other colleges pther than this one. I have heard complaints on food until I am inclined to feel that students just want to complain. At one school the food was very good, but we ate in the cafeteria style and paid dearly for it. I think the food her compares with either of the other two, and very nearly surpasses them. We must understand that we are not in our homes where Mama fixes the choicest of meals. The kitchen here has to prepare meals for at least 500 every meal. They can't come near to pleasing everyone every meal. Why don't we accept this fact and eat our meals with our mouths shut, except upon the insertion of food.

One meal I do object to occasionally is the lunch. Sometimes I just do without it, but the dinners are very good. I haven't found a school where they had tea for lunch every day, either.

From now on, if you feel like complaining, let go at yourself for not studying, or something else that will accomplish something. Let me and the other hungry rascals eat their meals in an atmosphere that makes the food enjoyable.

MOSE.

You, the Voter

Why don't you vote? If you are over 18, there is positively no excuse for you not to be voting in every election that is held. You, the college students, who are supposed to be the "cream of the crop," should be a great influence on the general public. Instead of that, many of our student body have not registered, and according to the survey that was taken last quarter by the Young People's League For Better Government, 12 students from our very campus, who are of voting age, stated they will not register. WHY?

There should be no earthly reason for anyone of us not to vote if we are of voting age. Voting is a privilege, it is sad but true, that many U. S. citizens do not take advantage of. Instead of looking on suffrage as the honor and privilege it is, many look on it as a burden. Some people are actually too lazy to go to the courthouse and register, and find it too much trouble to bother to attend the elections of the politicians who are to govern them.

As you well know, the Minimum Foundation Bill, which will greatly influence the vast majority of us, will be coming up before the General Assembly again soon. We, plan to be teachers and who are interested in the education of our youth, above all, others should be supporting the bill if not by word of mouth, by our vote.

If you have not registered, the IRC urges each and everyone of you to do so immediately. If you are one of the 12 who said you would not register, please reconsider; you will be hurting yourself and others by taking such a stand. Again, I say, Why not vote?

Recital To Be Monday, Jan. 23

Miss Margaret Sherman will be presented in a recital at the college auditorium Monday, January 23, at 8:15 p.m.

Miss Sherman, a soprano, began studying voice under Dr. Ronald J. Neil. She was soloist with G.T.C. Philharmonic Choir until 1947 when she entered the University of Georgia where she began studying under Mr. Byron Warner, head of voice department at University of Georgia. She continued under Mr. Warner from then until last December when she gave a joint senior recital with James Griffith who will appear on the program here. She has appeared on many musical programs here, in Athens, Savannah, and Augusta.

Mr. Griffith, of Athens, Ga., is an outstanding baritone at the University, where he has had the male lead in many college musical productions and operettas. He is also an accomplished athlete.

Mr. Warner will be their accompanist.

Club Competition Furthers Progress

One of the things T.C. could use is school spirit brought about by competition between campus organizations. If one club is forever trying to outdo the other in good clean competition, someone of them will accomplish something. The clubs on our campus, and there are truly many of them, should be doing more. A good way to bring about competition is through contests and improvement of conditions on the campus. Think about your club; is it doing all it could? If it is not, it's time to get to work.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

Stop! Look! Listen! It will be too late after you get into your practice - teaching to decide your field is too crowded. Take everything into consideration before you decide your major and minor. Some fields are overcrowded and yet students still insist on going into them. Find out which fields are crowded and try to work your interests into another field. Beginning next week we are going to try to show some of the crowded fields and bad situations in our schools and try to find a solution. Here's something for you to chew on until then, however — the elementary field is wide open.

These Wild, Wild Women Will Be Insane

ONCE UPON A TIME there was a beautiful, accomplished young feminine sophomore who resided in one of the spacious, beautifully-kept rooms of West Hall on the campus of Teachers College. This young lady, as all students of said college will testify, found here a rich, full, and satisfying life. Across the campus lived the man of her dreams—tall, dark, and more than handsome. He was much sought after by most of her friends, but, of course, it was our heroine whom he held in his heart daily. It was rather sweet to watch them in the chow-dining hall line every day. He always gallantly allowed her to get her tray first and select a table where they had a good view of the line and yet secluded enough so that no one could hear their conversation. Of course, there were many such choice places, but she always seems to pick the choicest table of them all.

They engaged in many activities, these two. At nights they took in a show or some exciting nightspot out of town. There was always so much to do! They often picked a group of their friends and made a night of it, sometimes coming in as late as one or two o'clock, to be met at the door by the house mother who was always eager to know how the evening turned out, and if they had had fun. Saturday nights were the gayest of all! Occasionally they took in the regular college dance, but there were ever so many other places to go and mix and mingle with non-college people!

She lived a happy life, this pretty little sophomore. She found her teachers to be very considerate and understanding. If she would happen to overlook her fifteen minutes of daily study, they assured her that it was nothing to worry about and that it was not absolutely necessary. She found classes to be fascinating places for discussions of everything from fingernail polish to how to get the attention of the opposite sex. Occasionally they did get into a discussion of something tiresome, such as the ancient dynasty of China and how to find the unknown quantity of something. Most of all, however, she discovered it to be an excellent place to make new friends. Here she found opportunities to make the "Light of her Life" turn a little green with jealousy, but never very seriously.

She also found dormitory life very pleasant. There was plenty of quiet for reading the Book of the Month or the current serial in a popular magazine, except when the maid came in to dust the table or put fresh flowers in the vases. She received many callers, too. The dean of women even paid her visits to see if she was still happy and satisfied, although of late, the dean's visits had been much more occasional as her time was more taken up encouraging the home - sick freshmen and taking them out to places around town to get their mind off their home-sickness.

But this little sophomore frequents the halls of Georgia Teachers College no more. No more will you find her sipping tea on the lawn behind Lewis Hall. No more will you see her in a blue bathing suit running hand-in-hand with the man of her heart across the front campus. No more hear her voice again. Those of us who were her best friends will always remember those parting words, "Awa dejabber slob heria verad temenio—" Poor girl! She just couldn't take it! We still get a letter from her occasionally in Ward 3, division for Mental Breakdowns.

Golf Interest Spotted on Campus

Have you, too, been wondering about the golf clubs a certain two young men on our campus have been carrying around with them? An inquisitive George - Anne reporter wanted to know what was what, and strangely enough, he found out.

"Pinky" Newton, of Tifton, and Scot Walker, of Fitzgerald, have been swinging golf clubs on our front campus every morning for a good reason.

They are practicing for a match with members of our faculty; the date of which will be announced later.

"Pinky" has taken prizes at the Student Night Crowned Success

Student Night was a huge success last Tuesday night. Don't forget this Tuesday night is Student Night again, and you are all invited to go out to the Skate-R-Bowl and have a good time. Beginning next week, however, Student Night will be on Wednesday nights.

Championship of Radium Springs and the Invitational Jack Oliver Golf Tournament. Scot took prizes at the Invitational Tournament at Douglas in June, '49, and went to Gray Invitational Tournament.

Creative Writers To Reorganize

The Creative Writers, an organization which was formed last year with the purpose of inspiring and helping the students on the campus who are interested in writing, plans to reorganize.

Instead of having a weekly meeting every Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the group will meet every other Monday. Dr. Fielding Russell, advisor to the group, thinks a semi-monthly meeting would prove more beneficial to all concerned.

All students who have a "knack for writing" are urged to attend the first meeting of the quarter which will be held on Monday afternoon in Dr. Russell's office at 4 o'clock. Come, even if you are not especially talented, and the group may be able to help you.

Miss Smith Attends Library Dedication

Miss Sallie Smith attended the dedication services of the newly-constructed Austell Public Library in Austell, Ga., last weekend. Miss Smith, now connected with the G.T.C. Library, was formerly librarian of the Austell library.

In a rough-and-tumble, high-scoring game played on the home floor Wednesday night, T.C. swamped the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia, 108-52.

Scotty Perkins, with his uncanny shots, again led the Teachers in scoring with 19 points, while George Roebuck was a close second with 18, and Sonny Clements and Roger Parsons each bucketed 13 points. Every man on the squad saw action and scored.

Bloodworth led the visitors' scoring as he dumped 17 points.

A grand total of 63 fouls was called during the night, with T.C. getting 35 against them.

One shot that Scotty Perkins made during the night that raised the roof was one in which he lay on his back. Scotty doesn't seem to have to be standing to make his points; the old ball seems to obey his command. As one spectator stated after the game, "So that's what they call the 'sleeper' shot."

TIDE AND N. GEORGIA MEET TONIGHT

The Blue Tide will try to make the North Georgia team go down weary land with another defeat tonight. In the last game against North Georgia, Scotty Perkins lead the Tide with 20 points while Moseley lead the North Georgia quintet with 11.

We received word from a student at N.G. that the Cadets are really laying for the home team.

Probable line-up for the teams are:

Teachers — Perkins (rf), Clements (lf), Helton (c), Roger Parsons (rg), Ralph Parsons (lg).

North Georgia — Moseley (rf), Moore (lf), Bartlett (c), Gibbs (rg).

Burt (lg).

Hazelhurst and Georgia Teachers College Lab School will play a preliminary game tonight at 7 o'clock tonight in the college game.

The Lab boys will be out to continue their winning streak and will have Rawdon Deal, high-scoring center, back in action.

Coach Peden has that old blue towel out and is singing the blues about the big crowd startling the new boys on his team.

HAVE YOU HEARD ?

Why Tillman N. felt like a stinker when he came to chapel in his a fish barrel which had not been deodorized.

Who Winnie E. of West Hall is always looking for. Watch out, Jack, she is dangerous property.

Why Elizabeth C. didn't ask Ed. D. to be her escort for the Beauty Review.

About all that dates that Beulah A. has been having with "Tubby." How long will this go on?

What Charles gave Emily last Thursday? Was it a ring?

Who's been slipping in Miss Strahlman's window.

Why so many people are limping and complaining about being sore. Could be they were at the Skate-R-Bowl Tuesday night. A few more student nights and your feet(?) will feel no pain. Maybe because you won't have any.

About the guy Sara J. has been seen around with? Watch out, Bob.

That Jimmy and Rosalyn don't even eat at the same table anymore. They were the first two this writer saw here, and I surely thought they would be the last two.

body of his son to be cremated and the ashes flown here for burial.

Dr. Pittman has been in constant direct communication with the directors of the search for his son and Dr. Conklin since it was learned that they were missing. Hugh Avery, operator of Station DU1HR, at Clark Air Base in Manila.
