Housing department to close down Cone Hall

By JEFF ALEXANDER
News Writer

In a money saving effort, the housing department made the decision to close Cone Hall for the spring quarter. Pat Burkett, director of housing, made this announcement to the residents of Cone Hall on the evening of February 21.

The residents were given a week to request their choice for housing spring quarter. "These residents are being given priority for housing spaces," said Burkett. "We are also making efforts to see that groups of students who wish to remain together can do so in another dorm."

"The reaction of the residents has been good," according to Hall Director Mike Schultz. "The main concern among the students seems to be whether or not they will be able to stay together with their friends," said Schultz. "We have built communities here and they would like to stay together." The students have applied for various dorms across the campus with 75 percent applying for Veazey, Oxford and Dorman according to Schultz.

Callie Hannah, a sophomore in Cone stated, "It didn't bother me too much to hear that the building was closing because it is in need of repairs to the heating and water heating systems." Charles Hebert, a resident assistant at Cone, said that "most of the residents are looking at this as a temporary inconvenience and plan to move back next fall."

The staff at Cone will be placed in openings around the campus and the Hall Director Schultz will become the new hall director for Deal Hall.

While the decision has been made for spring quarter, the question of whether or not Cone will be open again in the fall is uncertain according to the housing department.

Cone Hall will close spring quarter.

George-Anne receives seven awards at banquet

The George-Anne won six first place awards and one third place award. First place was awarded to The George-Anne in: Best Campus Community Service in Features, Sports, Advertising Excellence, Editorial Excellence, Layout and Design and General Excellence.

The General Excellence award is the most prestigious award given at the banquet.

The George-Anne placed third in Best Campus Community Service in news.

George Allen, editor of The George-Anne said, "We worked very hard and hoped to do well. This is an excellent reflection of our work and our commitment to the students of GSC. No other papers can boast like we now can. We're the best in the state."

Firm to design stadium

By GARY JENKINS
News Writer

GSC has contracted the architectural firm of Heery-Fabrap to develop the initial concept design for the new football stadium, according to Athletic Director Bucky Wagner.

"We are very impressed with the credentials of the Fabrap group," Wagner said. "They perhaps are the premier stadium architects in the country."

He said the firm has built 65 major sports facilities including

Atlanta-Fulton County stadium and three facilities whose constructions are similar to what GSC desired. "The three are Iowa State, West Virginia and Rich Stadium, home of the Buffalo Bills."

Phase one of the design calls for a seating capacity of 20,000.

GSC President Dale Lick said the contract arrangement "represents a major step forward for Georgia Southern and the entire southeast Georgia community."

SGA reprimands Teel

By BECKY NICHOLSON
News Editor

Diane Teel, vice president of Auxiliary Affairs for the Student Government Association, has been reprimanded by the executive committee because of a problem stemming from her not keeping required office hours, according to SGA President Jody Usry.

Teel has been put on a two-week probation period during which she will be evaluated by the other officers as well as by herself. The decision will be made this week whether Teel is able to maintain her position.

Presently, Teel has received a retroactive two-thirds reduction in pay for winter quarter because of her performance, according to Usry.

Teel, who is student teaching in Claxton this quarter, is unable to be on campus from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. She said that between her student teaching, illness and sorority activities, "the SGA has had to suffer because of me."

According to the by-laws in the SGA constitution, Teel is required to work at the SGA office three hours every weekday.

"I haven't been putting in my office hours. I put in maybe one hour a day. During the week of initiation, (sorority), I didn't put in any hours," Teel admitted.

As Auxiliary Affairs vice president, Teel's job is to be a mediator between students and the administration of Auxiliary Services, which includes food services, vending, the bookstore, the print shop, housing and health services.

The George-Anne wins General Excellence award.

Renovation is planned for racquetball courts

By GARY JENKINS
News Writer

An estimated $11,000 has been allocated to renovate GSC's racquetball courts, according to John Nolen, dean of students.

Nolen said the money has been approved since spring of '82 by the Activity Budget Committee. The reason for the renovation delay is because there was some confusion as to who would be responsible for the renovating, he said. Presently, "it is clear that plant operations has assumed this responsibility."

Douglass Leavitt, dean of the school of health, physical education, recreation, and nursing, said specifications for renovating the courts are ready to be put on bids.

Leavitt said currently no bids have been received. When some are received, "we expect them to be less than $11,000."

The renovations, except the lighting, should begin no later than two weeks into spring quarter, he said. One reason for the lighting delay is because the number of fixtures needed are unknown, Leavitt said.

He said the renovations include:

—The walling in of the side corners of the courts.

—The addition of retaining fences on the courts near the tennis facilities.

—The walling in of the back area of the courts near Cone Hall.

—The placing of a 15 foot concrete slab on the center court where a fence will be lofled.

—The lighting of the courts.

Leavitt said a light pole will be placed on both sides so that lighting will be received on all the courts without interfering with players' games.

He said to deal with the problem of players remaining on the courts for an extremely long period, "we will post a one hour or a one-and-one-half hour time limit."

However, with no one supervising the courts there really is not a way to solve this problem, he said. "It is a matter of courtesy" whether participating players release their courts to waiting players, he added.

Faculty members change textbooks too often

By PAULA BARNETT
News Writer

"Textbooks are being changed too often," Student Government Association President Jody Usry said at a Student Senate meeting on February 21.

He said a guideline, or book adoption policy, is needed to keep faculty members from changing books as often.

Usry further said the frequent changes of books mean "thousands of dollars" out of students' pockets.

Money can be saved by using the same books over again, according to Usry. "The student may lose money in the end, but overall, money will be saved."

Also discussed was the 10 percent discount the bookstore offers to faculty members. The Senate proposed that this discount either be dropped or expanded to staff members as well. An official Senate recommendation will be made.

A proposed survey on P.E. requirements was talked about. The Senate discussed the possibility of doing this survey with Pi Sigma Epsilon, the marketing fraternity. The shared labor would lessen the cost of the survey.

In other business, several campus organizations' requests for funds were discussed.

The French Honor Society, Pi Delta Phi, requested money for the foreign language contest they are sponsoring on April 16. The funds were denied.

Funds were approved for uniforms for GSC's Rugby Club. The Senate agreed to award the Rugby Club the maximum amount of money they can, $500.

SGA Vice President Jody Melchers said, "They deserve uniforms."

The Rugby Club receives no funds from the athletic department, and has been paying its own fees, according to Terri Smiley, vice president of Finance.

Miss GSC Pageant to be held March 4 and 5 in McCroan

By LEAH WHITTEU
News Writer

The 39th Annual Miss GSC Pageant will be held on March 4 and 5 at 7 p.m. in McCroan Auditorium.

The Miss GSC pageant is a preliminary to the Miss America contest, and the winner will advance to the Miss Georgia Pageant in June. There are four phases of competition in the Miss GSC Pageant.

The talent phase has more emphasis counting fifty percent. The swimsuit, evening gown, and interview phases each count sixteen and two-thirds percent. The contestants will be interviewed for seven minutes individually on Saturday by a panel of five certified Miss America judges.

The theme of this year's pageant is "Vacation." A former Miss GSC, Alison Delane Lustead, will be the mistress of ceremonies, and the reigning Miss GSC, Mitzi Smith, will crown the new Miss GSC.

Monument to clean pond

By KATHY SMITH
News Writer

A monument in memory of GSC art teacher, Bronislaw M. Bak, will be erected in the larger of the two ponds in front of the campus library, according to Steve Hansen, associate director of Research Services.

The monument will serve not only to honor Bak, but also to clean the pond through a wind driven structure in the form of a fountain with spiral planes. The wind force will generate water through the planes and therefore rid the pond of algae.

The fountain is an environmental structure that Bak had been in the process of developing before his death. His students have now taken on the project of finishing it under the direction of Bak's widow, Hedi Bak. Also, the students have received advice from Keith Hickman in technology and a nationally known architect based in New York.

The one problem that will determine the date of completion is money. Although GSC has been cooperative in the provision of space, labor, and technical advice, it is in no position to provide money—this has to come from private sources.

A native of Poland, Bak was sentenced to the Concentration Camp Schirmeck-Struthoff during World War II. After the war, he received an education and emigrated, with his wife and two sons, to the United States in 1952.

Bak's architectural work is represented not only around the United States, but in many countries around the world as well.

"Bruno was a nationally known artist and a delightful individual. I'm happy I had the chance to know him," said Hansen. "After living through all those horrors of WWII he still had a bright and happy outlook on life and a child-like excitement about him in things he met and saw."

'Iron Horse' will be shown at Conference Center

"Iron Horse," an award-winning documentary about a modernistic sculpture that set off a protest riot on the University of Georgia campus in 1954, will be shown at the GSC Conference Center March 8 at 7 p.m.

Admission is free and open to the public. The film is part of the Georgia Humanities Resource Center collection housed at the college, and the program is financially assisted by the National Endowment for the Humanities through the Georgia Endowment for the Humanities.

The hero of the true story is a three-ton welded steel horse by sculptor Abbott Pattison, which survived attempts of university students to deface and burn the piece in protest of its abstract art form. After a mob of more than 1,000 students attacked the sculpture its first night on campus, university officials banished it to a remote farm field where it collected rust for several years. The horse was rescued by a university professor who put the horse on top of a hill on his farm where it still stands.

The documentary was produced by independent filmmaker Bill VanderKloot who said the incident reflects man's "fear of something you don't understand." He notes that Michaelangelo's David was stoned at its first display and Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" caused a riot. The 30-minute film uses interviews, archival footage and a dramatic recreation of the riot.

In 1981 the "Iron Horse" won the Golden Eagle award of the Council on International Non-Theatrical Events.

Locate stadium on campus

GSC is about to take a big step toward major college football. Our Eagles will hopefully unveil their new 20,000 seat stadium for the opening kickoff of the 1984 season.

The problem is where are we going to put it? According to Athletic Director Bucky Wagner, two sites are being discussed. One site is somewhere off-campus, while the other is near the ROTC range off Perimeter Rd.

The George-Anne believes that GSC's stadium should be on our campus. Sure, much of the funding for the stadium is being provided by local contributors, but a home game wouldn't be the same if students have to fight traffic, and drive several miles to get to the game.

We hope our administration will realize the advantages an on-campus stadium would give the students of this institution. The support for the team, and the spirit surrounding the day of the game activities would be greatly enhanced.

Student voice is important

Students are always complaining, "What does it matter what we think? We don't have any say so in the major decisions that affect us on campus."

Well, a breakthrough has been made at GSC. The faculty senate and the general faculty has agreed to have two students on the faculty senate. The Student Government Association and one other student will have voice but no vote on the senate.

Some people might think the decision isn't important because students aren't given a vote. The George-Anne feels that it is important to have a voice and no vote than to have a vote and no voice. While two votes probably wouldn't make a difference in a major decision, student discussion during the meetings may help persuade the faculty to see things through students' eyes.

Future Herschel Walkers

So, Herschel's gone. All the questions have been asked and all the angles taken, with the exception of maybe one. What effect will Walker's departure have on the fledgling GSC football program?

With Walker gone, so have the dreams of national championships and New Year's trips to New Orleans. Or should we say, it has become a dream. Whatever the case, the bottom line is, with the Wrightsville sensation gone, UGA football may not enjoy the success it has the past three years. Then again, maybe it will. Assuming it doesn't, however, could it possibly constitute a shift of interest from Bulldog football to Erk's Eagles?

One year maybe GSC will get its own Herschel Walker and then all the questions will be answered.

Grades are important

"But it won't matter a year from now." How often do you hear that remark after you've made a C or D in a class? Well, if you're an average student on campus, then you've heard it countless times. Often times I really wonder, "What is it all going to matter once I've graduated? If I make a lower grade than expected, who's going to notice when I'm 30 years old?"

But, when you get right down to it, it may NOT matter in five years; but it does matter now. You're living in the present, hopefully, and only working towards the future. And, if you're at all concerned about life after graduation, then maybe you should see that it matters whether or not you can pull a B instead of a C.

Low grades are easy to pass off as "the teacher doesn't give A's," or "I had a 79.5 and she wouldn't give me the B." But, after talking to some teachers, and being an aide myself, I realize that the odds of ending up with a 79.5 or 89.5 are much lower than the number of people who claim such grades.

Low grades are easy to come by; high grades may be a bit tougher, but isn't it worth the extra effort?

If you question the fact that you are not capable of attaining a high grade, then maybe you need to re-evaluate your attitude. Low grades are easy to come by; high grades may be a bit tougher, but isn't one worth the extra effort?

Think of it this way, if you put that extra effort into a class now, it will be that much easier in the long run. But, be consistent.

Another new quarter is about to start and you could fall into the same routine all over again. You'll take great notes the first week, maybe two, and you'll even start reading the book. But, by the third week, it will happen. You will slack off, and instead of blaming yourself, you will blame Mother Nature. "But I can't study spring quarter, there's too much going on." These cries are heard campus-wide each year.

Those cries aren't even distinctive of spring. What about fall quarter? I know you've heard them—"But it's football season, who can study when there's a football game? And what about all the parties?" Sounds like a line for Wendy or Doug Whiner.

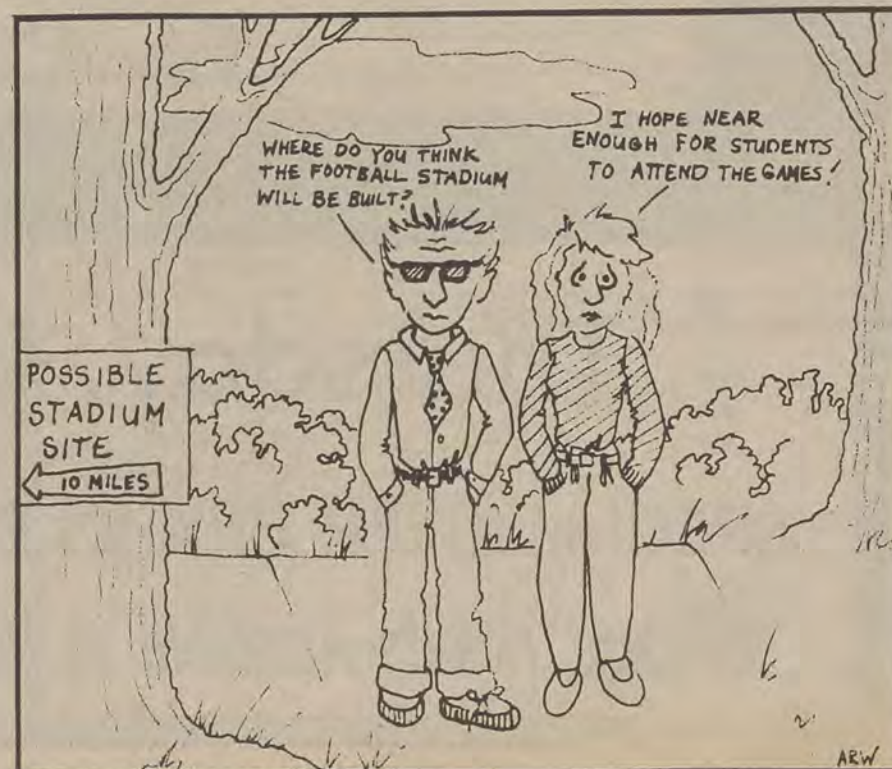

Instead of walking out of class without ever giving it a chance, try to set the goal to reach for the top, the "A".

I haven't forgotten winter quarter either; have you? I think it goes something like this, "But it's so cold and depressing winter quarter; if I study I'll REALLY get the blues."

So, now that I've re-capped some of the excuses you and I so readily use, now maybe it's time to make a change. It isn't too hard to pull a grade a little higher than you expected. In fact, a lot of students talk themselves right into their grades. What happens is that you will go to the first day of class, listen to the teacher, walk out and say, "I'm going to get a C in there; there's no way she'll give me a B."

After you resolve yourself to the fact, then you work at getting that grade. So, instead of walking out of class without ever giving it a chance, try to set a goal to reach for the top, the "A."

Grades may not be important five years from now, but they are important when you open that letter that tells you you've made Dean's List.

The GEORGE-ANNE LETTERS

'Housing, we need help'

DEAR EDITOR:

I would like to address this letter as a plea to the housing department. Dorman Hall needs help! I am a resident in Dorman and have been for the past two years.

Last year, Dorman was one of the best male dorms on campus by far. We had an outstanding house director. He made the resident assistant's work for their money, and they enjoyed the hard work. Dorman also had a great hall council. The dorm participated in many events and socials that were a lot of fun. The dorm last year was kept pretty nice, mainly because people respected the RAs and the house director. Aside from your usual rotten eggs, Dorman was a great place to live.

This year, however, is a very different story. Almost everything that was accomplished last year has been lost. The house director is considered a pushover. There are only one, maybe two RAs, out of six, who completely fulfill the job description of an RA. The hall council has only three members, which is hardly enough for an effective hall council.

I think most of the RAs in Dorman take advantage of their job. They get paid $500 a quarter to do very little work. I think the housing department could find some more qualified people. Five hundred dollars is a fair price, but only when the job is done. This year in Dorman only one RA truly deserves that $500 per quarter.

What is funny about the situation is that all the RAs and the three hall council members were all in Dorman last year when Dorman was really a great place to live. The main problem seems to be motivation. So who is to blame? Anybody?

Housing we need help!

Concerned Resident

Parties are unified

DEAR EDITOR:

It is a sobering fact that the annals of literary history have been marred by such infamous works as Al Haig Looks at the English Language, Famous Jewish Sport Legends of the Antarctic, Paradise Lost (Richard Nixon version), Khadafy on Ghandi, and more recently within the small sphere of the metropolis of Statesboro, "Democrats aren't Unified" which ran in your most current issue of The George-Anne.

As I performed a scatology of this masterpiece of dangling participles and misplaced modifiers, I could not help but to applaud the author on the most noteworthy achievement of his time and effort—the fact that he cut his article short and did not step in the mess any further. Kind of reminded me of an M.C. Eischer drawing—starting from nothing and accelerating into nowhere.

To claim that the Democratic party at their 1980 convention wasn't unified is, at the least, wrong. At the most, it's an outright lie. Seems that I recall that in 1980 (and let's face it, I knew it all then...I was a high school senior) that the Democratic party was being praised for mending the rifts between the Kennedy and Carter faction, and that Jimmy Carter danced right into another nomination. Perhaps I need to go and recheck Webster on the definition of unity, but I seem to remember that the Democratic convention of 1980 came somewhere close to that definition. Perhaps "Democrats aren't Unified's" definition of unity is more closely akin to the Republican convention of 1976. All I know is one of us has to look up the definition of unity.

I will concede that the Republican party did sweep into office in 1980 on the promise of a balanced budget. Make no mistake about it, that's all it was—a promise. If any resident of the United States has been able to only smell a newspaper in the last three months, he or she (or it, depending on the political party) would realize that the "promise of 1980" is fast and furiously moving into the biggest projected deficit of all time—$200 billion. Perhaps I got out of bed on the wrong side of life, but that doesn't seem to be the right direction towards a balanced budget.

That makes two things I'm confused on: the definition of unity and the way a bank account should be run. I'm afraid to go to the bathroom now! But seriously folks, 50 years of Democratic rule never dreamed of a $200 billion dollar deficit. Again, I will concede that it is the Democrats fault for being elected and maintaining a majority in both houses most of the time. How dare they appeal to the needs of the majority in a democratic society! Boy, wait until George Washington comes back, is he ever gonna be sore!

Now for my favorite part—Ronald Reagan standing firm on his well-planned domestic policy...gag me with a proverbial spoon! They are about as well-planned as the Black Plague of the Middle Ages. Come to think of it, there are some similarities: the poor and middle class are choked out, and insulated rich remain to slap each other on the back and congratulate themselves on getting rid of the bourgeoisie.

Well-planned indeed! There is a famous lesson to be learned on the intellectual capacity of Republican presidents. For example, when Jimmy Carter was in office, he wasn't sure what to do with Taiwan, so he called ex-President Ford on the phone and asked, "Gerry (how y'all) would you recognize Red China?" Mr. Ford's reply was, "I'd know it the minute I saw the Alps." And this was a man Ronald Reagan couldn't beat in 1976.

But again, I guess now I'll have to look up the definition of "well-planned." But if I'm wrong again, then I'm glad too that we have "a President who stands firm on his well-planned domestic policies" (to quote "Democrats aren't Unified"). I'm also glad we have 12 million unemployed in our country; I'm also glad that ideally since unemployment is up that inflation should be down, but I still pay an arm and a leg for books at the bookstore (by the way, $30,000 lost every year by theft in the bookstore; come on gang).

Finally, "Democrats aren't Unified" attacked Franklin Roosevelt for his instituting the Social Security System. My history professor told me that there was something called a "crisis" at the time which called for swift, corrective measures to curb the growth of the Great Depression. I guess that was typical of Franklin Roosevelt (or of any president); he was just doing his job.

Darn those Democrats, they're rascals aren't they? Every time one turns around, they're doing their job. Must be because they aren't unified.

Kevin Lievsay

Denial isn't so bad

After all of the effort, all of the letters and all of the politicking, we're still Georgia Southern College. So big deal if we didn't get university status. Sure, there are lots of benefits that would come with the instillation of, "Georgia Southern University." The name itself would be an improvement, or that's what I'm told. I prefer Georgia Southern College. I also prefer to keep GSC just the way it is.

The atmosphere is the key to this school. The small south Georgia school located in rural Statesboro, Georgia, would lose everything if university status found its home here. I can see it now—enrollment up by one-third, then one-half. Landrum would be twice the madhouse it is now. Oxford Hall would go to four in a room. The line to play "Galaga" at Sarah's would be ridiculous. We won't discuss parking. We don't need any outsiders coming down here expecting another Athens just because we're a university.

That's another thing. Goodness knows how this school, if given university status, would immediately be labeled, "UGA South." Coach Kerns would be replaced if he didn't agree to change his name to "Edwards" so it would go with "Eagles." The standard cheer would probably be something like: "Go Eagles! Peck 'em! Squawk, squawk, squawk!" And the thought of having, "How Bout Them Eagles," on every bumper and coming out of everyone's mouth makes my stomach hurt. One UGA in this state is enough for me.

Call me old-fashioned. But I'm not living in the past. I'm not against change. I am appreciative of GSC for what it is now. It took the thought of

In my opinion, (for what it's worth) as a student of government, of civilization and indeed as a registered voter, it would appear that government owes a debt to its society; the entire society—black, white, yellow, red, rich, poor, business major, history major, etc.

As for President Reagan, I could not have a greater degree of respect for the man. He's a class act and I'll admit I don't see eye-to-eye on everything he stands for, but I'll respect it. I am neither a Democrat nor a Republican, but in my view, to attack an institution as honorable as the Democratic party of the United States is about as useful as attacking one religion or another.

There is no inevitable "I'm right" plateau. Had the article read "Republicans aren't Unified" I would have just (or almost) as vigorously defended their party. I thank ya'll for your time, and I wish I could stay longer, but I have some definitions to look up.

Timothy Donahue

GSC becoming a university to make me realize how good things are here.

My original purpose for coming to school at GSC was to stay for a year and then transfer to Athens. This was not a new idea by any means. After my first year in college, I decided to stay one more year before transferring. I enjoyed the small college atmosphere. I liked being able to walk to class instead of having to catch a bus. The classes weren't too crowded. I felt confident that the professor knew my name. In a big school, with masses of students in every class, you are known by your Social Security number instead of your name.

I also enjoyed meeting the other people in my classes. Not that you can't do this in other schools, but that's ALL you can do in a big school. Once you get out of class, you're lucky if you see anyone in your class before the next day in class. How discouraging it would be to fall in love with the blond who sits next to you in English. You have a better chance of seeing her at a football game than you do of seeing her around campus. And the stadium holds 80,000 people. I realized that I didn't want to transfer. I had no desire to go to UGA. My heart was in Statesboro.

I guess that it all comes down to the people. People is what makes GSC as great as it is. The friendliness and "southern hospitality" found in the folks here at GSC sets it apart from the rest. We should take the rejection of university status as a slap in the face. A slap that will make us take a look around and see where we are. Are we taking GSC for granted? Yes, we are. We've got a good thing here. Take time to appreciate it.

GSC graffiti

By RICHARD L. QUEEN
Features Writer

Where do we draw the line between scribbling faces, pictures or slogans on books, desks and buildings? Is graffiti just a form of harmless creativity or is it vandalism?

Most graffiti on campus is vandalism. Graffiti on walls and buildings is not only an eyesore, but it also takes away from the clean appearance of the campus. Maybe graffiti is a form of self-expression.

Some types of graffiti are poetry or art. This does not often seem to be the case with the graffiti we see on campus. What we are exposed to is merely embarrassing vandalism.

Richard Tichich, head of the art department, said "a graffitist is like a child learning to walk because this is a primitive form of communication." He feels that graffiti is the most defacing thing one could do to his school.

Tichich added that anyone who has the urge to express themselves in any shape, form or fashion should come by his office. Tichich offered to give anyone anything they need to hang or put on the walls.

Russell Dewey, a psychology professor, said, "Graffiti is a cowardly way to leave your mark on the world without anyone knowing who you are. It is a form of exhibitionism much like a flasher. The person feels he is turning people on when what he is writing is trash nobody really wants to see."

'The Lords of Discipline' — quite intriguing

By MICHAEL HANSON
Movie Critic

"The Lords of Discipline" is, basically, the story of how Private Will Maclaine (David Keith) spends his senior year at the Carolina Military Institute.

In his senior year, Maclaine learns a secret that has evaded him through all three of his previous years at the institute. He learns of the "Ten."

The "Ten" is a secret organization consisting of the top ten seniors of the institute. These men are sworn to secrecy and are obligated to insure that all incoming cadets uphold the dignity of the institute.

Inhuman methods are used by the organization to get rid of those who they feel should not be allowed to stay at the institution. When Private Maclaine learns of this organization and their methods he feels a compelling obligation to put a stop to it.

Good acting is also a strong point of the film. After having a bit part in "The Rose" and a supporting role in "An Officer and a Gentleman," David Keith does a very good job with his first leading role.

Robert Prosky is wonderful as Maclaine's colonel, "Bear." Their relationship is sort of a Arthur/Merlin type relationship from "Excalibur"; Maclaine, the young learner, and Bear, the wise old teacher, who is somewhat of a guardian angel to the private.

What is most pleasing about the "The Lords of Discipline" is the fact that it is not a trite "day-in-the-life" type story of life at a military institute. It does indeed show such aspects of life, but it also adds a perhaps unrealistic, but definitely intriguing plot. The film does go a bit overboard at points, but such sappy excess is, as mentioned earlier, kept to a bearable minimum.

The climax is not quite the caliber as that of a "Rocky" movie, but it is enough to give the revenge-filled audience member a rush of satisfaction. I call a film such as "The Lords of Discipline" a "guilty pleasure." It is not a great film, but it is an entertaining one.

Steve Smart preparing for professional tour

By MARK JEFFRIES
Sports Writer

As morning turns to afternoon, and as afternoon becomes evening, as episodes of "All My Children" and "General Hospital" yield to network news, Steve Smart, a member of the GSC golf team, is out pounding the fairways at Forest Heights Country Club, working on his golf game. Smart is a 22-year-old senior, and a scratch golfer who is preparing to turn pro after he graduates.

Smart has been playing golf for 11 years. "I've always had a natural talent for golf," he said. "When I was younger, I got a job at a golf course and started taking up golf. The first tournament I ever entered was when I was 11 years old; I won first place in the first flight of the state championship."

Since that day, Smart's future in golf has continued to look brighter and brighter. Supplementing his natural talent is an uncommon dedication and willingness to work hard. His game is fast approaching the stage where he can successfully make the leap from amateur to pro status.

The road to success has not been an easy one for Smart. Smart practices five to six hours a day, every day, Monday through Friday, and often longer on weekends.

This mental preparation is what separates the weak golfer from the strong golfer. "Although a lot of people think golf is 90 percent mental, I think it is up to 95 percent mental. A guy with a good mind and a proper mental attitude can go out and beat someone with a lot of talent because he just out thinks him," Smart said.

Smart has established a timetable for himself. He would like to be competing on the PGA tour by 1986. This will give him two years to finish school, time to establish himself financially, and plenty of time to practice and prepare for competition.

When a golfer turns pro, it doesn't necessarily mean that he'll ever be competing on the PGA tour. Turning pro allows a golfer to make money from the game of golf. As an amateur, there is a set regulation saying that you cannot earn money from golf. Even playing in a tournament, there is a $350 limit to how much you can win. For a pro, these restrictions do not apply. Pros can get benefits and make money from golf through, for instance, owning a pro shop or giving lessons. When a golfer gets in the pro rankings as a touring professional or as a club pro, he can make thousands of dollars. Furthermore, as a pro, he can be sponsored by a company like Powerbuild, Spalding, or Wilson.

Besides the money, another aspect Smart looks forward to is the added experience of playing as a pro. "I've never really competed or played with professional golfers. I haven't had much exposure to any big names in golf. The only way I've really tried to qualify for a professional event is in the U.S. Amateur Open, where I missed the cut by two shots. The other tournaments I compete in—about seven or eight every summer—are amateur events."

Smart has his goals in sight and within reach. It requires a lot of work, but it's worth the effort, because he knows that you get out of it what you put into it. "I know it's not going to be easy to be a success, but I am going to pursue golf as far as I can," said Smart. The sky is his limit.

Smart would like to be competing on the PGA tour by 1986.

IS THE IDEA OF WEARING A UNIFORM KEEPING YOU OUT OF ARMY ROTC?

Whether you realize it or not, you're probably wearing a type of "uniform" right now.

There's nothing wrong with it. But an Army ROTC uniform could make you stand out from the crowd.

And ROTC will help you become more outstanding. Because you'll develop into a leader of people and a manager of money and equipment.

So how about switching "uniforms" for a few hours each week?

Netters look impressive in early season tourneys

By KARO WILSON
Sports Writer

"The men's and women's tennis teams have opened the '83 season with 'good playing' and 'big wins,'" said men's Coach Joe Blankenbaker and women's Coach George Shriver.

The men's team drilled Valdosta State, 9-0, in their opener. "Our program is too strong for them," said Blankenbaker.

Eagle winners were John Gompert over Greg Robson 6-0, 6-1, Mike Imbornore over Billy Harris 6-1, 6-2, Gary Meanchos over Ronald Oglesby 6-1, 6-2, Lindsay Benton over Richard Johnson 6-0, 6-0, Steve Benson over Paul Burgdord 6-3, 6-1, and Reiner

Becker over Ricky Rodriguez 6-0, 6-1.

The men chalked up victory number two with a solid 7-2 upset of top 20 Florida State. "It was a good win for us because they had beaten us badly last year," said Blankenbaker.

The men dropped their first tourney of the year to the University of South Carolina. "It could have gone either way," said Blankenbaker of the 3-5 loss. "We came out of singles 2-4 and we needed to come out 3-3 for a shot at winning because our number one doubles can play with anybody."

GSC's three wins came as Gompert defeated Trenor Raal 6-1, 6-4, Meanchos downed Richard Ashby 7-6, 4-6, 6-2, and Wilms-Gompert beat Petdovic Ashby 6-4, 6-4 in doubles action.

The Lady Eagles lost their season opener, 3-6 to Northeast Louisiana, a top 20, Division I team. "We played extremely well for our first match," said Shriver. "It was their ninth."

The three Eagle wins came as number five Margaret Faughnan beat Jo Anna Nichols 6-2, 6-4, number six Marsha Fountain defeated Annabelle Landa 7-6, 6-2, and number the doubles team of Jo Ann Pearson-Christi Colmer downed Marla Fischer-Annabelle Landa 6-2, 6-3. In an exhibition match, GSC's Sandy Smith squeezed by Dina Softic 6-4, 7-6.

The women bounced back in their second tourney with an impressive 8-1 victory over Presbyterian, the seventh ranked team in the NAIA.

Intramurals / Campus Rec.

This past week marked many winter quarter Campus Recreation/Intramural events. All events were extremely entertaining and fun.

The first event of the week was the Walk on Recreation Night for volleyball. About a dozen participants showed up for this Tuesday night event and played some traditional volleyball as well as some New Games volleyball.

The second event of the week was the First Annual Winter Quarter Sport Trivia Game Show, held Wednesday night. This event saw GSC's finest sport buffs in head to head competition. We had originally scheduled Bob Barker of TV's "The Price Is Right" show to MC the event, but Bob was detained with a screaming middle-aged lady, who had just won a new micro-wave oven, so he couldn't make it. But even without Bob, the event went on, and after a few rough edges and shaky questions, the tennis team, consisting of Joe Blankenbaker, John Gompert and Gary Meanchos, emerged as Sports Trivia Kings. Second place went to Pi Kappa Phi. Congratulations to these two teams and the other teams who participated in this event.

The third event of the week was the inter-dorm swim meet. The Hanner Pool saw some great competition, as well as a lot of fun. The winners of the men's and women's events were Veazey Hall and Johnson Hall, respectively.

The winner of the Wiffle Ball Tournament of weeks gone past were ATO for the men and the Twenty-Birds for the women.

Gator puts bite on golfers

By DEBORAH HALL
Sports Writer

The GSC golf team finished 12th in the Gator Invitational Tournament, February 18-20.

Gene Sauers led the team with 74, 70, 71 and finished in the top 15 of the tournament.

Tripp Kuhlke and Steve Smart both averaged a 220. Kuhlke shot 71, 74, 75 and Smart shot 73, 73, 74.

Rusty Strawn, the fourth man, played a consistent tournament with three rounds of 74, and Marion Dantzler shot 80, 76, 76.

"Florida's course is so short and so easy that if your team doesn't putt well, you're going to get beat," said Coach Gordin, "and we putted horrendously."

The team hopes to revive themselves, February 25-27, in the Seminole Invitational at Tallahassee, Florida.

The same five will be going, with Dantzler winning in a playoff for the fifth position.

"If that's the only bad tournament we have, it's alright, but if we have any more real bad ones, our chances to reach our goals will be diminished," Gordin said.

Eagles pluck Gamecocks in Carolina arena

By DAVID JONHSON
Sports Editor

Eric Hightower sank a six-foot baseline jumper with three seconds remaining in the game to propel the Eagles over the University of South Carolina 66-64 Wednesday, February 22 in Columbia, SC.

"It wasn't really planned that I shoot," said Hightower. "The ball came to my side. I was thinking about taking my time. I saw seven seconds were left, so I drove to the basket. I was going to pass but no one picked me up so I kept driving. I saw the rim and I hit it."

GSC led by as many as 13 points in the second half before the Gamecocks fought back and tied the contest at 64 at the 1:31 mark.

It was only appropriate that the Eagles upset USC, for only two months earlier (December 22), GSC lost to the University of Georgia in the same way they beat the Gamecocks. In that game, the Eagles led by 11 at the half, before the Bulldogs clawed back and tied the game with less than a minute remaining, and won on a jumper with three seconds left.

"It's definitely a great victory for us," said Head Coach Frank Kerns. "We had Georgia down by 11 at the half and we let them get away. I told them we weren't going to let that happen again."

The win extended GSC's winning streak to seven games and upped their record to 15-10. The loss dropped USC to 17-8 and dashed any hopes they had for a post season bid to the national tournament.

The Eagles led 38-35 at the half and they came out smoking in the second half. They hit 11 of 13 from the field through the first 10 minutes to take a commanding 61-48 lead. However, GSC cooled off after that spurt and managed only five points the rest of the way.

Bryan Norwood paced the Eagles with 18 points followed by Fears with 14, Hightower with 13, and Murphy with 12.

The Eagles winning streak came to an abrupt halt Saturday night as they lost to a very talented Alabama State squad 92-82.

The Hornets built up a 48-41 halftime lead and never trailed throughout the final 20 minutes. The Eagles got within three points in the final minute of the game, but could never get closer.

ASU's Lewis Jackson had an outstanding game, pouring in 40 points in the winning effort.

It was GSC's final regular season game and they finished the year with an impressive 15-11 mark. Hightower waited until the end to have his best game of the year as he paced the Eagles with 29 points. Reggie Fears had yet another outstanding game as he put in 17 points in addition to pulling down 11 rebounds. David Wright had 11 points in a losing cause.

Eric Hightower lets one fly. The 6'3" guard hit a last second jumper to down USC.

Johnson's Jargons

By David Johnson

You know, it's not often you get to brag and get away with it, but this week is an exception. I'm proud to say I work for the best college newspaper in the state. This past weekend in Athens, the big George-Anne mopped up, taking six first place awards in the seven major categories. Of course, the best award was the one for General Excellence, which, in short, quite simply means "We bad."

As for the sports section, has anyone seen the Heinz Ketchup commercial where they pour their brand and another brand into separate strainers and the competition runs. Well, that's exactly what happened in the sports category. No other school so much as sent in a sports section to compete against the big G-A. Not only did the competition run, they didn't even show up.

Now I'm not one to hog all the glory. In fact, I've got the easy part. All I've got to do is sit around and give assignments. If it weren't for my writers there wouldn't even be a sports section. I'd just like to thank all you guys and gals and George Allen for making my job so easy and making the sports section a success.

Of course, when a group takes a trip, there's always gonna be rumors going around about what went on. Well, I'm here to dispell these vicious lies before they go too far. First of all, it's not true that one of our number who shall remain nameless (until the price is right), personally kept the "Mad Hatter's" bar in business. In fact, there were 20 other people who together spent as much as he did.

And it's certainly not true that our managing editor danced with every girl in the place. I counted at least three girls he didn't ask. As for the vicious rumor that the editor and sports editor ran up and down the halls with underwear on their heads, it's an absolute untruth. There is one rumor I won't deny. In fact, I'll confirm it. We had a blast!!

Enough bragging about Athens. How 'bout them raging, caging, basketball Eagles. Last year after we played South Carolina, there was a big headline in the G-A which read, "Gamecocks pluck Eagles in coliseum." Well, as you can see, I thought I'd return the favor, seeing as the Eagles decided to return the favor.

This Saturday the TAAC Tournament begins, and in case you haven't heard we're hosting one of the games. Now I don't want to hear any excuses like you've got a big test tomorrow. The only school you'll have the next day is Sunday School and I don't think you're having a mid-term in that. And the one about you're broke won't work either 'cause all you gotta do is flash your I.D. So just come on out, bring a friend, make lots of noise and let's Jam the Gym.

Swinging Eagles split pair; Fifth inning rally propels GSC

By RICHARD POLLETTE
Sports Writer

The GSC Eagles split two games with Coastal Carolina, this past weekend, losing the first game 5-4, despite out-hitting them 16-5, and won the second game soundly 16-2.

In the opener, the Eagles led 3-2 in the top of the eighth inning when Frank Talotta hit a double with one man on to tie the score. John Rigos then singled him in to give Carolina the go-ahead run.

They added another run in the ninth as a single by Ricky Grise brought Rick Murray in.

Jeff Petzoldt sacrificed with the bases loaded to give GSC their fourth and final run in the bottom of the ninth.

In the final game, the Eagles broke open a 2-2 tie with an eight-run fifth inning. Singles by Botti and Youngberry let Pregon, who had walked, to score the go-ahead run. Petzoldt and Ramos hit back-to-back singles to drive in another run.

An error on Carolina second baseman Jim Castellani kept the rally alive by allowing another run to score and reloading the bases. A single by Luis Garcia and a sacrifice by Ben Abner brought in three more runs. Abner hit his second home run of the year with one man on in the sixth to put the Eagles up by 10.

A single by Alan Balcomb and another error by Castellani brought in two more runs before Abner singled in the final two.
