GSC announces new stricter alcohol policy

By BO JOYNER
News Editor

GSC's and the state of Georgia's new policies on alcohol consumption have reduced the number of students who can legally drink, the places where they can drink, and increased the number of people who can be held liable in cases of alcohol related crimes.

Since Sept. 30, according to a new state law, no one under the age of 20 can legally consume alcohol in Georgia.

Dean of Students, Jack Nolen, said this change made about half of the students at GSC "illegal" in the eyes of the law.

To accompany the new law and to satisfy a request by the Board of Regents, the school recently adopted a new, stricter policy on alcohol that affects students, faculty, staff and guests at GSC.

According to Nolen, the new policy differs from last year's in several ways.

Last year, only conspicuous consumption of alcohol was not allowed in public areas on campus.

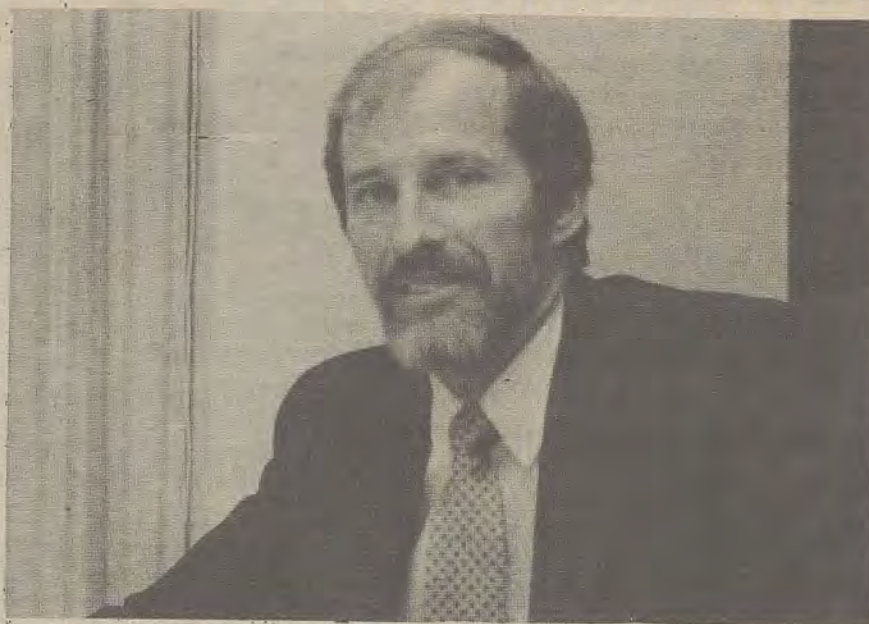

This year, any consumption of alcohol is prohibited in "all public areas of college-owned or managed facilities and grounds" except for certain areas that can be used by groups only after obtaining the school's permission.

Another difference is that last year's policy treated consumption by students and consumption by faculty, staff, and guests differently. This year's policy is the same for everyone, said Nolen.

According to the new policy, alcoholic beverages may be served at group sponsored events with the school's approval at the following locations: designated Paulson Stadium facilities, designated Conference Center facilities, the Foy Art Gallery, the Alumni House, designated dining area in Williams and Landrum, the Booster House, and the Eagle Roost.

Other facilities may be available on a per event approval basis if requests are received by the Facilities Office at least two weeks prior to the event and final approval is obtained from the appropriate vice president.

Student organizations must fill out a registration/approval form, available at the Office of Special Programs (34 Rosenwald), to be able to serve alcohol at a gathering. Failure to register events will be treated as a violation of the Student Conduct Code.

Non-student groups hosting events on campus must obtain approval from the Facilities Office. Groups sponsoring a series of events may sign an "Acknowledgment of Alcohol Policy" form, that covers events for one year. Failure to obtain approval may result in termination of events and prohibition of future events on campus.

Organizations must also make normal reservations to use a college facility through the Facilities Office.

A list of ten guidelines for serving alcohol on the GSC campus is included in the new policy. Among the guidelines are provisions stating that:

* events must be approved in advance

* each participant must be at least 20 years old or be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

* the sponsoring organization is responsible for verification that participants are of legal drinking age

* student groups must specify types and quantities of alcohol, food, and non-alcoholic beverages on the registration form

* alcohol cannot be the focal point or reason for the event

* non-alcoholic beverages and food must be served

* alcoholic beverages cannot be paid for by selling at the activity or charging at the door

* appropriate supervision must be provided

* individuals will be held responsible for their action while under the influence of alcohol

* someone should be present to monitor the consumption of alcohol

Other provisions in the policy prohibit kegs, B.Y.O.B. events, and advertising including references to alcohol.

New laws concerning liabilities have serious implications for faculty, staff, students, and organizations at GSC.

State courts have said that hosts serving alcohol to an obviously intoxicated person when it can be predicted that the intoxicated person will be driving, can be held responsible if no effort is made to prevent the action.

Hosts may also be held liable for damage to people or individuals as a result of alcohol related violence.

The law also calls for strict penalties for people who are caught. See ALCOHOL, p. 2

New computer scanning system will improve election process

By AMY SWANN
Staff Writer

Homecoming and Student Government Association elections will run more efficiently this year due to a new ID Scan System, according to Lance Smith, SGA executive vice president.

With the new system, elections will be held as follows: A student's ID card will be scanned by an electronic device at the polling location. The computer screen will immediately indicate whether or not the student is eligible to vote.

"The amount of time saved will be tremendous; this is a very advantageous process," Smith commented.

In the past, elections were conducted in a different manner. A computer print-out with the student's names were take to Landrum.

Students wishing to vote had to show their ID and a SGA officer marked their name off of the print-out.

This process, according to Smith, was "tedious and time consuming."

Because of the system switch, elections will now be held in the Williams Center.

"We found that the cost of installing a computer line in Landrum was not feasible," said Smith.

The projected location of the elections is the first floor of Williams Center next to the Coffeehouse.

Smith credits Kelly Maher, vice-president of Auxiliary Affairs, with working out the details of the system.

He commented, "This was something Bobby (SGA President Robert Jenkins) and I had talked about. Kelly did a lot of checking and ground work this summer."

Hart will lead homecoming parade

Special to the George-Anne

Space shuttle astronaut and scientist Terry Hart will launch Georgia Southern College's homecoming weekend Oct. 25 with a 10:30 a.m. multi-media presentation on "Space for Tomorrow" in the Foy Recital Hall. At 3 p.m. he will lead the annual parade as grand marshal.

Both events are free and open to the public.

Hart, who has flown five shuttle missions, began his career as an air force pilot in 1969 and was selected as an astronaut candidate by NASA in 1978. He made front page headlines in 1984 for his operation of the shuttle's Remote Manipulation serving alcohol to person not of legal drinking age. Serving a drink to an underage person can cost the server a $5,000 fine. Establishments caught serving minors may face suspension of their license.

GSC has exhibited its stricter alcohol policies at home football games this year. Campus Security officers have confiscated numerous flasks containing "illegal substances" at the last two home games.

Nolen stated that the policy against alcohol at games has been enforced more readily this year because "athletic events and alcohol do not mix."

Unlike the University of Georgia, GSC has decided, for the time being, not to eject the drinker from the game but simply to remove the beverage.

AIDS update

Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is attracting world-wide attention and causing fear and anxiety in many Americans.

When AIDS was first recognized in 1981, there were fewer than 60 cases reported in the United States. Today, over 12,000 people have died from the disease and every day more people are diagnosed as having AIDS.

The fear generated by this lethal condition has prompted the media as well as others to inform the public about the contagious disease.

However, most questions about AIDS remain unanswered. For example, researchers cannot explain why in the U.S. only seven percent of the 13,000 victims have been women, while in the Central African countries of Zaire, Rwanda and Burundi, where the disease is thought to have originated, AIDS affects men and women equally.

Scientists have detected small amounts of the AIDS virus HTLV-III/LAV in human blood, tears and saliva. So far, there have been no cases reported of infection through casual contact with these bodily fluids. This includes friends and families. There is no current evidence suggesting AIDS is transmitted by sneezing, shaking hands, hugging or coughing.

Also, doctors say AIDS cannot be contracted from toilet seats, cooking utensils, books, clothing or furniture, mainly because the virus is fragile and cannot survive for long periods of time in the environment.

In fact, only four methods of transmission have been discovered: blood transfusions, the sharing of contaminated needles by intravenous drug users, childbirth and sexual intercourse.

Only one percent of American males and ten percent of females with AIDS were infected by the transfusion of blood or blood products like the clotting factor needed by hemophiliacs. Victims include infants, children and a 66-year-old nun.

Drug abusers are also a high risk group. Some 14 percent of the men and 53 percent of the women got AIDS this way.

The instance of mothers infecting their babies with AIDS during childbirth is very small—about 130 children have contracted AIDS at birth. This number is likely to increase as more women are affected by the disease.

The leading method of transmission is through sexual intercourse, both heterosexual and homosexual. The primary carrier of the virus is semen. Both men and women can get AIDS from infected men and it is not certain if infected women can transmit to men or women.

The largest majority of AIDS cases (73 percent) results from homosexual intercourse between men. Anal intercourse is thought to be the most prevalent method of transmission (for men and women) because during this sexual act, ruptures of the rectum frequently occur, allowing infected semen to enter directly into the bloodstream of the passive partner.

Also, the swallowing of infected semen may be, but has not proved to be a method of transmission.

Unfortunately, up to a million Americans have been exposed to the AIDS virus and the majority do not realize it. Many may not develop symptoms for six years, during which time they are likely to have infected others.

The best method of preventing AIDs is by discontinuing sexual relations. However, because few Americans will want to remain celibate, doctors encourage the use of condoms, diaphragms, and vaginal spermicides which contain an anti-viral agent during sexual intercourse to lower the risk of infection, especially if one of the partners is in the high risk category.

GSC's fund raising drives pay off

GSC's fund raising drives have paid big dividends so far this year. To help finance the budget of the GSC Foundation, the school annually sponsors two one-day fund raisers.

The first of the drives, called "A Day for Southern," is aimed at people in Bulloch, Screven, Evans, Candler, and Toombs counties. This year the event, which took place Sept. 10, surpassed its goal of $220,000 in securing $223,000 in donations.

The second of the two fund raisers, "A Day for Southern on Campus," took place Oct. 2 and 3. It attempted to get the faculty and staff at GSC to support the Foundation. The drive has so far raised $27,025. Donations are still coming in from this event.

Obey traffic regulations

Students who own and operate cars (and trucks) on campus are becoming a serious hazard to pedestrians as well as other drivers. Speeding, running stop signs, and disobeying simple traffic instructions are a few examples of irresponsible vehicular conduct.

One has to be a daredevil in order to obey the law. For instance, the four-way stop located in the Newton building area, is a playground for those who enjoy the game of "chicken." Of course owners of large cars and trucks have little problem, but those in Toyotas or other small cars may have to wait for hours or risk life and limb to get to class on time. This behavior has created a new survival of the fittest theory.

Is it worth endangering yourself, as well as others, just because you want to show off a new car or are afraid of being tardy to a class across campus?

Think about it.

Registering cars with Campus Security

It's not your day.

The guy at the Zippy Mart couldn't control a smirk when you asked for "$5 worth of irregular" because your mouth wasn't able to form the word "unleaded."

You walk into class, unprepared. Pop quiz.

Afterwards, disgusted, you stomp back to your car, properly parked in the Newton lot, only to find a familiar piece of paper fluttering from your windshield.

"Wait!" you think. "I know I registered the car last spring!"

Yes you did. But if you don't have your new decal you will get slapped with a $15 fine.

Go directly to the Campus Security building. They will understand. They have a print-out of students who registered their cars. They will treat you kindly and will help with that fine.

Apparently, many students have had this problem, because no one publicized the fact that every fall quarter you must get a new decal.

Now you know. Go get one.

AIDS is not a gay disease

A pestilence isn't a thing made to man's measure; therefore we tell ourselves that pestilence is a mere bogy of the mind, a bad dream that will pass away. But it doesn't always pass away and, from one bad dream to another, it is men who pass away, and the humanists first of all, because they haven't taken their precautions.

—from The Plague, by Albert Camus

It is amazing the number of Americans who choose to ignore the widely publicized facts about Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

By insisting AIDS is God's revenge on sodomites and junkies, some people are able to convince themselves they have nothing to worry about, so they disregard any information available to them.

AIDS is not a "gay disease" despite its epidemiology. The virus is probably not spread through casual contact, but is transmissible sexually and through the blood. It is less contagious than hepatitis or flu.

By concentrating only on gay and bisexual men, people are able to ignore the fact that AIDS has been in the general population from the beginning, not spread from one group to another.

AIDS is not transmitted because of who you are, but what you do.

We can no longer pretend 12,000 cases of AIDS do not exist and as many as 1 million Americans could be symptomless carriers of the disease.

Even the United States government has recently passed a $200 million appropriations bill to help in the battle against AIDS.

This move puts the Administration in a precarious position. To those who view AIDS as only a homosexual disease, federally-funded educational programs which talk about gay sex acts might be seen as the government condoning the criminal activity of sodomy, which is still prohibited in 24 states.

Regardless, it is the government's responsibility to allocate funds to communities so they can educate the people about AIDS in the most effective manner.

Although the majority of all AIDS victims are homosexual or bisexual, and IV drug abusers account for the next largest group, no one is completely safe.

It is reported that only 2 percent of AIDS cases have occurred as the result of using contaminated blood or blood products. In fact, a screening test developed a couple of months ago, has proven to be 99.8 percent accurate in detecting the presence of the AIDS virus in donated blood.

However, the American Red Cross is worried there will be a critical shortage of blood if donations continue to decrease.

Local chapters of the Red Cross have sent notices emphasizing the fact there is "absolutely no risk of contracting AIDS or any other infectious disease from giving blood."

Also, the American College Health Association has released statements explaining AIDS cannot be transmitted from everyday contact with others and urges students to take precautions against the disease. These include the use of condoms and avoiding sexual intercourse with those in high risk groups.

Although heterosexuals account for only one percent of AIDS victims, that number may increase as the incidence of AIDS increases.

We can no longer afford to be an ignorant public and must band together to prevent AIDS from weakening our society's minds as well as our bodies.

GSC Art department presents show

By LEE DAVIS

Special to the George-Anne

On Friday evening, October 11, a reception was held to celebrate the opening of the 1985 GSC Faculty Art Show. The snacks, drinks, and good conversation provided a fitting atmosphere in which to view, appreciate, and ponder the works of twelve of GSC's resident artists as well as the photographic results of a media project funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Best represented at the show was Ms. Jane Pleak, who displayed twelve pieces of her whimsical, delightful work. Ms. Pleak uses a variety of media, but manages to successfully transfer the themes of her work from ceramic wall-hangings to free-standing ceramics to painting to pottery.

Of particular interest is that free-standing piece, "I'd Rather Have Tea." In it, a preening young woman offers a rather surprised and hapless looking nerd a cup of tea. These two are regulars in Ms. Pleak's cast of characters, and this time they sit in all their chaotic glory atop the uncompromising geometry of a checkerboard tile base. The nerd reappears on the back of the piece, this time on his hands and knees, forming the table for tea service which rests on his back. Teacups and spirals rain from the sky and echo the pattern of his brightly colored nerd-shirt.

Also worth lingering over are Ms. Pleak's ceramic wall-hangings. Framed by what appear to be old bathroom wall tiles, the images stand out bold and triumphant like graffiti on the tile wall of the New York Subway. The images themselves are scratched and painted onto irregularly shaped shards of ceramic, which gives the impression of some long-lost treasure that has been reassembled by some patient archeologist.

In "The First Time I Saw You, You Were Wearing Your Picasso Shirt," a girl laughs at our old friend with the flat-top hair, who seems not to be in on the joke.

My favorite of the series of six is "Nightingale's Song," in which an exotic woman, more serious and sensuous than Ms. Pleak's other characters, peers coolly into space from a dark, rich background.

A few of Jessica Hines' eerie photographs are on display, but really just enough to whet the appetite for more. Ms. Hines' hand-toned infrared photographs are untitled, which is appropriate as she seems not to want to provide the viewer too many clues to help answer the questions these other-worldly images are sure to raise. You may find yourself scratching your head as you walk away from this exhibit; the images may haunt you for days.

Stephen Bayless' "Primavera" is both a small painting and the 5'x16' culmination of the plan. Skeletal, abstract forms which may be made out of light dance exuberantly against a rigidly geometric limbo of horizontal pastel stripes, which serve to make the big painting look even bigger. The energy of this piece is infectious, and I found myself staring at it for a long time.

All of these highlights, plus works by Richard Tichich, Thomas P. Steadman, Bernard Solomon, Henry Iler, and Joseph Olson, as well as the 24 photographs of the "Unique Personalities in Georgia" National Endowment for the Humanities media project will be on display in Gallery 303 on the third floor of the Foy Fine Arts Building until October 31. There is no charge, and the gallery is open all day.

Baseball Eagles set to begin fall schedule

By CHUCK KAUFMANN
Sports Writer

To any baseball fan the word "October" is synonymous with "playoffs" or "World Series;" to the GSC Eagles it means "Spring Training" or, more succinctly, "roster cuts."

The Eagles have split their returning players, new recruits and walk-ons into two squads—Blue and White, and this Thursday through Sunday they will host the annual Fall Tournament at Eagle Field. Play is to begin today at 3:00 p.m. with each squad taking its turn against Gordon Jr. College. The tourney ends Sunday when the Blue and Whites each play South Georgia Junior College beginning at 12:30 p.m.

"This is a time for evaluating talent," said GSC pitching coach Larry Bryant. "Right now the returning players are fighting for a place just like the new people," he continued.

By far the biggest question mark of the fall is the Eagle's pitching staff, where Phil Dale (11-4 in 1985) and Kenny Roberts (11-3), the heart of last year's starting rotation, are gone. Roberts' 3.20 ERA was the lowest among the Eagles' starters in '85, while Dale led the staff in strikeouts, innings pitched and complete games. Dale, a 6'2" right hander from Victoria, Australia was signed as a free agent by the Cincinnati Reds this past summer

To help fill the pitching void, the Eagles have signed several new recruits, including righthander Chip Hoffman, a 6'2", 180 pounder from Clearwater, Fla.; righthander Kevin Meier, a transfer from the U. of Connecticut, 6'5", 205 lbs; and Keith Richardson from McEachern High School in Powder Springs, 6'4", 195 lbs., who is also a righthander.

On the infield the Eagles will have to find someone to replace short-stop second baseman Luis Ramos, a quick, graceful fielder who, said Bryant, "made the routine plays all the time and the exceptional plays pretty regularly." Ramos hit .320 last spring and was second on the team in stolen bases with 18 in 21 attempts. He was drafted by the Pittsburgh Pirates over the summer, though at last report he had not signed with the National League Club.

Besides Ramos, the only other key regular whom the Eagles must replace is left fielder Bobby Aiken, who batted .351, drove in 46 runs, drew 50 walks in 232 plate appearances and played excellent outfield defense for GSC in his final season.

On the plus side, GSC returns a pool of good line drive hitters from last year's club which collectively hit an impressive .313 on its way to a 41-

23 season. The impact of hitters like Mike Shepherd (.363, 9 HR, 61 RBI), Craig Cooper (.297, 14 HR, 53 RBI) and Greg McMullen (.338, 5 HR, 47 RBI), all of whom will return in '86, is best measured by one stat: GSC averaged an even 8.0 runs per game last season.

The Eagle coaches will make the final roster cuts this Monday; the team will then play several exhibition games, including the Alumni-Varsity Game on Friday, Oct. 25th at Eagle Field. Game time is 5:30 p.m.

Russels Eagles crack top ten in 1-AA poll

By CHRIS NAIL
Sports Editor

The GSC Eagles, who just last week broke into the top 20 in the weekly NCAA Division 1-AA poll, jumped nine spots to become the country's 10th-ranked team in this week's poll.

Coach Erk Russell, although admitting he was "shocked" at the big jump, feels that the rankings are insignificant at this point in the season; "There's not anything to it [the polls]," Russell stated. "Rankings are nice for conversation, but they just aren't valid at this stage of the season. They're important after the season, but right now they just give opponents some extra incentive."

The No. 10 position is the highest rank for the Eagles since November of last year when they made their way to the No. 7 spot, only to lose their final two games and fall out of the top 20.

As far as the effect on his team at this time, Russell commented that "it depends on how they accept it [the high ranking]."

Middle Tennessee State, which handed GSC its only loss this season, jumped one notch to the No. 3 position.

Strong second half propels Eagles to fifth victory

By ANTHONY DASHER

Offense was the name of the game in Paulson Stadium last Saturday as Georgia Southern turned on the afterburners and blew by Bethune-Cookman 46-24.

The Eagles, who ran their record to 5-1 on the season were led by Ricky Harris who literally "swept" his way around B-C for 154 yards and two touchdowns.

After the kickoff, B-C immediately took to the air and after a crucial Eagle penalty scored on a two yard touchdown pass to make the score 7-0.

Unimpressed, Tracy Ham hit Monty Sharpe on a spectacular 45-yard pass and catch to the B-C 18 and on the next play Ricky Harris took a pitch and swept left into the endzone for the score. Tim Foley split the uprights and the game was tied 7-7.

Then after a B-C punt, Ham hit Frankie Johnson on a shuttle-pass for a 26-yard touchdown and the Eagles were up 14-7.

Even though GSC led 20-14 at halftime, Coach Russell was less than pleased with his team's intensity; "I thought we were holding study hall," he went on to say.

In the third quarter the defense decided it was their turn to score when linebacker Charles Carper intercepted a Bernard Hawk pass and returned it 29 yards for the six. A 2-point attempt failed and the score stood 26-14 GSC.

B-C managed a 52-yard field goal but later Nay Young returned a punt 41 yards to the Wildcats 45-yard line which set up a 2-yard scamper by Ham to make the score 32-17. Again the pat failed as the snap was fumbled.

Southern managed two more touchdowns, one on a 33-yard sweep by Ricky Harris and a 4-yard scoring strike to fullback Gary Miller from Ernest Thompson.

Bethune-Cookman ended the scoring on a meaningless 14-yard

Coach Russell echoed Harris's thoughts by saying, "They gave us the pitch all day and it was just a footrace with Ricky."

"I felt good about the defense in the second half," Russell added, "Our linebackers had good drops and got depth on the snaps." However, Russell quipped, "If we would have caught all the balls we hit, we would have set a national interception record." Hugo Rossignol had 10 tackles to lead the defense.

Russell concluded by saying, "The week off will give us time to recuperate and work on fundamentals. It couldn't have come at a better time."

Sports Beat By CHRIS NAIL Sports Editor

ATLANTA SPORTS: Believe it or not the Falcons actually looked like a professional football team for 55 minutes last Sunday. Unfortunately, a game lasts 60 minutes and those notorious birds of prey were shot down again, this time by the Seattle Seahawks. Drawing a conclusion from Sunday's game, it appears that David Archer will permanently displace Steve Bartkowski as the Atlanta quarterback. It's sad to see a man who has meant so much to Atlanta over the last 11 years get demoted, but Bartkowski's body obviously can't take the pounding of pro football anymore.

NOTE: Falcon place-kicker Mick Luckhurst added four field goals Sunday to up his season mark to a perfect 15 for 15 in that department, including several 50-plus yarders and other over 40.

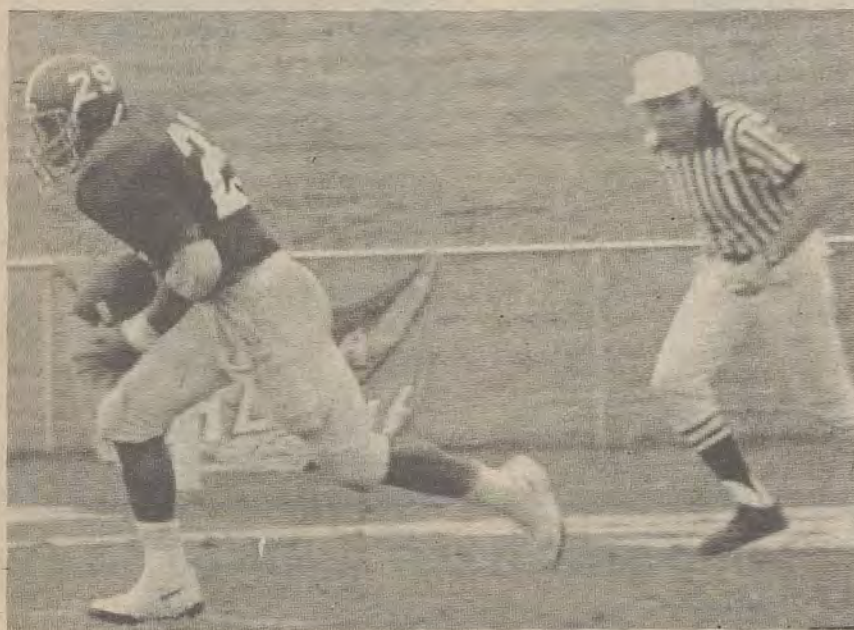

The Braves' Ted Turner may be taking a gamble by hiring Chuck Tanner as his club's new manager. Tanner, who becomes Atlanta's fourth skipper since last October, managed the team with the worst record in all of baseball last year—the Pittsburgh Pirates. Despite this fact many observers feel that Tanner is one of the top field generals in baseball. If he can put together a pitching staff, Tanner may turn the Braves around; if he can't, look for the team to pick up a new title—the "clown princes of baseball."

Those clowns of basketball, the Harlem Globetrotters, have made an unprecedented move to bolster their declining popularity by signing their first female ever to a player contract.

Lynette Woodard, who captained the United States gold medal-winning 1984 women's basketball team, should add a breath of fresh air to the Trotters in their effort to regain the glory of their golden years when they had such entertaining characters as Meadowlark Lemon, Curly Neal, Marquis Haynes, etc.

Woodard's an excellent choice for the venture as she's a superior ball handler who set the all-time Big-8 Conference scoring record (previously held by Wilt Chamberlain) for men or women during her career at the University of Kansas. But just as important from the Globetrotters' point of view is her exuberant personality which should blend well with those of her male counterparts.

It looks like women's lib has come a long way.

Ricky Harris returns kickoff against B-C Wildcats.

The second quarter saw B-C tie the game when tailback James Graham scored on a 29-yard sweep. But GSC came back and went ahead by three when Foley booted a 43-yard field goal.

After the Eagle's defense held, Foley got another chance with six seconds left and drilled a field goal from 50 yards out. The 50-yarder was Foley's third from 50 or more yards of the season.

touchdown pass with the outcome of the game already decided.

After the game Coach Russell commented, "We turned up the switches in the second half and got the job done. The first half I was disappointed."

As for the offense, Ricky Harris exclaimed, "Things just seemed to work out. I knew once the blocking was there the rest would be easy."
