GSC Student's Car Stolen from Dorm

By AMY SWANN
News Editor

On April 10 at approximately 1:30 a.m., a 1981 black Buick was stolen from the Stratford parking lot.

According to Andy Craft, the owner of the car and a resident of Stratford Hall, he was sitting in his room on the second floor when he heard his car start.

"I had parked my car directly under my window," said Craft. "My window was open that night so when they cranked the car, I heard it; my car has a very distinctive sound."

Craft ran to the window in his room and saw two white males in their early 20's pulling out of the parking lot. He ran downstairs in time to see the car leave and then he returned to his room where he called the Statesboro Police Department.

"I went back downstairs to wait for the police and there was a security truck sitting in front of the dorm," Craft said. "I told him my car had been stolen."

At that moment, Craft saw his car pull into the Stratford parking lot and proceed to drive past the security truck. Craft lunged forward and grabbed hold of the passenger window of his car.

"I got a good look at the guy on the passenger's side," said Craft.

According to Craft, he was a white male with medium length light hair and of medium to slight build. He was not able to see the driver.

Craft was thrown to the ground when the alleged thief floored the car in an attempt to escape. Craft ran around to the other side of the building in hopes of stopping the car. At that moment he saw the suspects ditch the car at the other end of the parking lot and run into Stratford.

Since a report had not been filed with security, the officer at the scene was not authorized to chase the vehicle as it drove around the building, said Captain Deal of Campus Security.

The car was dusted for prints that night by the Statesboro Police Department, and the car was returned to the owner.

This incident was preceded by the theft of Craft's keys three weeks earlier. According to Craft, in a rush he left his set of keys in the door to his dorm room. They were apparently taken from the door, and Craft reported the theft to his RA, Allen Miller, and to his Hall Director, Cathy Mansfield.

Mansfield, who had dealt with another incident of stolen keys earlier, assured Craft that it was probably a practical joke and that the keys would be returned. In fact, even after a request from Craft to have the lock on his dorm room changed, it still had not been changed on the night of the incident.

Craft also checked by security to see if the keys had been turned in, but they had not.

Not once was he told to file an official report with security over the theft of his keys, said Craft.

According to Pat Burkett Director of Housing, "It is the responsibility of the student to report any thefts to security."

Mansfield also witnessed the crime on the tenth.

"I heard yelling and screaming and I went into the lobby. I saw the car pull around, and then I walked back through the hall," said Mansfield.

According to Mansfield, she saw the passenger, but a description of him could fit 10 people living in her hall.

On the contrary, Craft said that Mansfield told him that night, "That she could give me names." According to Craft, Mansfield's story changed several times with her finally stating that she didn't know whether the suspects lived in the residence hall or not.

Mansfield said, "I don't know for sure if they live here."

According to Deal, they are still working on the case, and they have had some progress.

"The suspects will be charged with auto theft," said Deal, "But we will have to examine all of the circumstances."

Pless and McAllister Win Nursing Award

By LAVENA PURDOM
News Writer

Betsy Shank Pless, a nurse practitioner on the GSC faculty, and a student, Cynthia McAllister of Statesboro, have won the national JSI Rural Health Scholarship for their research project.

Their project focuses on preventing complications of osteoporosis in the rural elderly, using social support as a motivating factor in the areas of diet and exercise.

"We're just getting the data in, and it will take anywhere from a week to two weeks to collect it all," Pless said.

"Since it's been a collaborative effort" Pless continued, "our time has been limited. We started last quarter when Cynthia was involved in a research course."

McAllister reviewed literature, contacted community organizations which could help and investigated exercise programs already in existence in the community.

"Now that we'll be working with a computer" Pless said, "we'll have an even closer collaboration since Cynthia isn't familiar with computers."

Pless and McAllister use part of their $1,000 scholarship from the National Rural Health Care Association to pay their way to the association's conference in San Diego. The five day conference will be held in May. Pless and McAllister will present their findings during one of those days. They will also attend a luncheon where they will be awarded their scholarship money.

"I've never been to San Diego" Pless said. "We're both pretty excited, but there's still a lot of work to do."

Pless hopes that the project has been beneficial for McAllister in that it has combined research, theory and practice.

Pless and McAllister hope to get at least one article from their findings. According to Pless, they may eventually apply their findings to other age groups such as college students where "prevention is really important."

Pless hopes that even if their findings aren't ground-breaking in and of themselves, that the collaborative effort between a faculty member and student will serve as a model for other projects.

Paul Ehrlich Shared Views in Tuesday Lecture

By BEKKI SHRIVER
Features Editor

Mankind is propelling itself into an alarming state of overpopulation while rapidly stripping the earth of its sustaining resources, according to

Dr. Paul Ehrlich, author of The Population Bomb, in a lecture at GSC Tuesday night.

Speaking to a packed crowd at the GSC Conference Center, Ehrlich warned the audience that the problem is more serious in rich countries, such as the U.S. than in underdeveloped nations.

"A baby is 50 times the disaster in a rich country," stated Ehrlich, explaining that a developed nation's population makes more economic demands and consumes much more energy than the poorer peoples in countries like India.

"Virtually every area of the world is overpopulated now, but we're not stopping!" said Ehrlich, citing Kenya as the fastest-growing country with a population doubling time of 17 years.

Ehrlich stated that every facility must be duplicated in that time to maintain current living standards, and that even the U.S. with its abundant resources couldn't do it.

"We're dooming people to lower and lower standards of living," stated Ehrlich, noting that almost 1.5 billion people have been added to the world since the publication of his book in 1968.

Even if control is established, the results won't be apparent for 30 to 40 years, because people don't "drop dead after giving birth," said Ehrlich, referring to the earth's excess of people at the child-bearing age.

In addition, man is diminishing its capital rapidly, he said, by demolishing five to 30 million populations of organisms that are crucial to sustaining life, and are the least substitutable of any resource. Other endangered substances include our soil and fresh water.

Population expert Paul Ehrlich.

Labeling Reagan's government as "the most dangerous administration ever on this planet," the author listed examples of resource depletion.

The U.S. is stripping the land of soils that take hundreds of years to replenish, pumping underground water more rapidly than the system can refill it and destroying other species, land, air and water by pollution with little policy against it.

"We've withdrawn from the genetic library of nature," said Ehrlich forcefully, claiming that a disappearing act is occurring that rivals the vanishing of the dinosaurs 65 million years ago.

New SGA Officers Begin Term May 1

By BO JOYNER
Editor

Five new officers and seven new senators were chosen to serve on the Student Government Association for the 1986-87 academic year in the annual SGA elections last week.

"If there is anything we can help you with, come by and talk to us. That's what we're here for,"

Rosa Reese, new VP of Academic Affairs.

In the election for president, Del Terry defeated Dave Harris, while Terry's sister, Taffanye, was voted in as the new executive vice president. This marks the first time in GSC's history that a brother and sister have been simultaneously elected to the two top SGA positions.

In the other officer elections, Victoria Mak was selected as the new vice president of finance, Rosa Reese was chosen as the new vice president of academic affairs and Bill Bomar was elected vice president of auxiliary affairs.

The seven new at-large senators are Dana Ferguson, Allen Davis, Rhonda Kanes, Richelle McClure, Mike Hancock, Ken Fox and Kim Yoder.

According to current executive vice president Lance Smith, a total of 404 students voted in Thursday's election, a turnout he said was "not as high as hoped for."

Commenting on the new officers, Smith said, "the five are not experienced in student government but their enthusiasm should more than make up for their lack of experience."

In an interview after the election, three of the officers did express enthusiasm for the upcoming academic year.

Reese said of her new position, "You put me here to help you. Don't forget! If there is anything we can help you with, come by and talk to us. That's what we're here for."

Mak also appeared enthusiastic about next year, saying that it is "time for an academic revival" at GSC.

Bomar commented, "I would like to see more student input into the functions of student government. The administration needs to get as much information through the SGA as to what the students' opinions are."

The new officers and senators will take office on May 1.

Career Day 1986 to be Held April 30 in Williams Center

By SUSAN WITTE
Managing Editor

Career Day 1986, sponsored by the Placement Office and Pi Sigma Epsilon, will be held Wednesday, April 30, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Williams Center dining hall.

Companies from all over the Southeast, as well as several national corporations, will send representatives to GSC to talk with interested students about job opportunities in the field of their choice.

According to Kathy Snead, Director of Placement, the purpose of Career Day is to give students the opportunity to learn more about different business careers, as well as to facilitate employment contacts for graduating seniors.

"Career Day is a fantastic way for students to gain a contact in a company they're interested in," said Kelly Maher, Career Day chairman. Maher also stressed that Career Day is an excellent opportunity for undeclared majors to look into different fields.

Companies scheduled to attend include the Atlanta Journal Constitution, Georgia Pacific Corporation, the FBI, State Farm Insurance Company, Century 21, the Georgia Bar Association, and the Grinnell Corporation, among others.

"We have had very good response from companies, and we're expecting a great student turnout," said Maher.

In addition to the setup in Williams, representatives from some of the companies will be speaking to classes.

For more information about any aspect of Career Day, call Kathy Snead at 681-5409.

Painting of Rock Spreading

Some complaints about recent on-campus doings: Why must supporters of certain sororities and fraternities proclaim their loyalty by spray-painting initials all over campus? Shoe-polishing windows is one thing, but spray-painting windows, dumpsters, and various other places is a bit much. These "artists" need to realize that they're causing someone a lot of unnecessary work - unless they plan on doing the cleaning up!

And while we're on the subject - lately it seems that the tradition of painting the rock outside Sarah's Place has become the tradition of painting the rock, the surrounding grass, the sidewalks, the curb... Every day the graffiti seems to creep a little farther down the sidewalk. Plant Op thus has to get out there and sandblast the sidewalks. And who do you think is going to complain when students end up paying for it through raised fees...? Not to mention that it adds nothing to the appearance of the campus (except tackiness.) The rock is meant to be painted - but let's get rid of the rest.

On the other hand: The newly paved roads on campus are great! We wish the City of Statesboro would take a hint from GSC, and repave Chandler Road. But we also implore GSC to go easy on building new speed breakers. Granted, people don't need to be racing through our "walking campus," but neither do students need to keep putting money into shocks and front end alignments. Seems like no matter how slow you go over the things, your car still takes a jolt (especially if it's a small car.) So please, GSC, give our cars a break!

Required Attendance Woes

An otherwise educational and extremely entertaining lecture by population expert Paul Ehrlich last week was disrupted by a group of apathetic and inattentive students in the audience who bolted for the exits immediately following the conclusion of the speech but before the question and answer session that followed.

This exhibition illustrated the problems caused by teachers requiring their students to attend outside-of-class lectures or presentations. Ehrlich's presentation would have been more enjoyable and less embarrassing for the audience and the speaker if only faculty and students with a genuine desire to be there had been in attendance. It is true that the auditorium may have been only half full; but what would have been lost in numbers would have been made up in the quality of the interaction between Ehrlich and the audience.

Teachers, consider the detrimental effects on the educational experience before requiring students to attend a lecture or presentation they do not want to attend. Announcing the event and extolling the benefits of attending are enough. Don't require!

On Secular Humanism

Almost 400 years ago our forefathers sailed across a treacherous ocean to reach what is now known as the United States of America. These pilgrims were seeking a land of opportunity, a land of freedom - a freedom to worship God, as well as teach their children about Him. They encountered many hardships as we all know, but they endured because their purpose in coming was realized, no one could stop them from worshipping and teaching about their religion.

Today we find that freedom to worship God is still available to us, but the freedom to teach about God is almost nonexistent because of the famous "separation of church and state" interpretation of our Constitution. We know that because of this interpretation, there are laws prohibiting the promoting of God in our schools and universities. It is said there is no room for religion in our classrooms.

Both as a Christian and an American citizen I find this disturbing, but also a little confusing, because the same laws that prohibit the teaching of religion that includes God are condoning the teaching of religion that excludes God. What religion am I talking about? "Secular Humanism." Before you say that's not a religion, consider the following excerpt taken from a column written by syndicated columnist James J. Kilpatrick.

"What is 'Secular Humanism?' Its doctrines have been clearly defined in the Humanist Manifesto of 1933, in a second Humanist Manifesto of 1973, and in a Declaration of Humanism in 1980. Humanists describe themselves as 'non-theists.' They hold that man has no 'soul,' that man is only a complex animal, that God is a 'myth,' and that professions of faith in God

(such as "In God We Trust") are meaningless and irrelevant."

Kilpatrick goes on to say that Humanists believe that orthodox religion teachings are "shams," and that moral or ethical values are "situational."

Kilpatrick contends that, from a constitutional standpoint, these convictions amount to articles of faith, and that, as a matter of law, Secular Humanism is as clearly a religion as Christianity or Judaism. I have to agree with his assessment.

It becomes more obvious year after year that the textbooks we are now required to use in the educational process aren't written just in a manner to exclude God and creationism, but also in a manner that seeks to convince people there is no deity. It seems our educational system is now geared toward turning our country into an atheist nation. We are being systematically taught that the evolutionary theory of man's existence is truth and everything else is false. Secular Humanism, which incorporates atheism and evolution, has one purpose - to convince people there is no God. Yet this is what's being taught in our institutions of learning.

Why is this? If we can't be taught about God and creation, why must we be subjected to teachings that promote Secular Humanism? Our governing bodies have actually gone so far to insure that we can't study religion, that we are now in fact studying religion - Secular Humanism. The only difference is it leaves God out.

So ask yourself this very important question: Is it unfair to teach that God does exist, yet fair to teach that He doesn't exist? The answer may surprise you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Courts Need Lighting

Editor:

I am attempting to write this letter after probably suffering severe eyestrain trying to play a couple of sets of tennis on our ever so lovely "lighted" GSC tennis courts.

Although it is a bit annoying that when the tennis teams practice they monopolize all the courts regardless of whether they actually need them or not, it is also understandable and tolerable.

What is not tolerable is that after having paid the most exorbitant activities fee in the nation I am relegated to playing tennis under lights less sufficient than two GSC maintenance men armed with flashlights standing on the base lines.

It is not too much to ask that decent lighting be provided for our tennis playing enjoyment. The activities fees of just a dozen of our students would provide ample funding to repair and maintain the lights all year long. C'mon Southern, shed some light on the subject—tennis, that is.

Drive-In Attracts 'Boro Partiers, Movie-Goers

By LISA CORNWELL
Assistant News Editor

Boys and girls sprawled back in their lounge chairs, depleting an endless supply of beverages as a cool wind blows.

Sound like a typical beach scene? Almost—except there is no beach.

Lounge chairs and coolers are part of the scene, though. And a cool breeze can make a night at the drive-in a movie lover's dream come true.

People of all ages have come from everywhere to see the latest movies and "party with the gang" at the Southside Drive-In, located on highway 301 south.

But the drive-in has seen better days.

Assistant supervisor Fred Frederick of Daytona, Florida was sent to Statesboro by Floyd Theaters, owners of the Southside Drive-In, to "build business back up at the theater."

"I haven't yet had a theater losing business that I couldn't help," said Frederick.

Frederick went on to explain that the drive-in desperately needs a promotion.

"The people of Statesboro and the students of the college need to know about our drive-in," said Frederick.

"We have top-rate movies at less than half the regular cost."

The Southside Drive-In does have top-rate movies as well as top-rate equipment.

"Everything, including the film projectors, is fully automated," explained Frederick.

As for the movie selection, "Nightmare on Elm Street Part Two," "Rocky IV," and "My Chauffeur" are just a few of the recent movies that have been shown at the drive-in.

With top rate films and low rates, where are all the people?

According to Frederick, business has been slow because of the weather. Hopefully, now that spring break is over, it will pick up.

Many movie-goers, whether regular or occasional ones, love to gather with friends at the drive-in.

"The drive-in is the closest thing we've got to a beach," said Walter Peterson.

Peterson, of Statesboro, is a regular with the Sunday night bunch, the drive-in's "big business" crowd.

Others just like being outdoors. "Going to the drive-in is fun," said GSC student Joan Smith. "It's not like going and sitting in a theater where people yell at you if you make noise."

Partying at the drive-in seems to be a favorite pastime among some movie-goers. And the more they party, the more the theater benefits.

GSC Professor Living the 'Good' Life

By BEKKI SHRIVER
Features Editor

Two soldiers, guns dangling beside them, sat dozing in the train clacking its way out of Ecuador.

The sleeping men, who were escorting the train out of the country before the mid-70's revolution, didn't see the American leave to climb on top of the moving train railroad cars.

Dan Good, now a professor of geography at GSC, wanted to catch a view of the Andes from the vantage point of the luggage.

"It's one of the highest train rides in the world—beautiful country!" reminisced Good, who fills the room with 6'2" of lively presence.

Good was traveling with his father-in-law, Wallace Estill, who had worked for the FBI in Ecuador during World War II. It was a chance for him to get to know Estill better while Good worked on a field study, but their time was cut short by the country's inner turmoil.

"It was a gentlemanly coup—they let the president's daughter go through with her wedding before they kicked him out of the country," said Good.

Ecuador is one of Good's favorite places, with such a high altitude that the trains and hotels are equipped with oxygen tanks.

He's an aficionado of the Indians there, and of the majesty of the Andes.

"You know it's called the Land of Eternal Spring," related Good.

Traveling has been an integral part of the professor's life, and he's done plenty of it, from naval duty in the Caribbean Sea to Fullbright Fellow grants to Brazil and India.

India is another of Good's favored countries, inspiring to him in its excitement.

"It's a dynamic place, full of vitality—throbbing with life!" he exclaimed. "It's the real world!"

Good's office is stuffed with evidence of a man involved with the "real world." National Geographics, encyclopedias, family photos, articles, maps and memorabilia from his travels line the walls. From a full bulletin board Good pulled a picture taken of his group standing with Indira Gandhi not far from where she was later assassinated.

His head is barely visible behind "some jerk (who) got in front of me."

Of Gandhi: "She was a sweet lady. Charismatic, dynamic—you'd have to be to run a country like that," assured Good.

He described India as a "female country, where there is 'worship of the earth, the basic substance of life.

It's a passive, suckling thing—docile and tolerant."

"Some countries are more of a male-type," he went on to explain. "Like Peru. It's masculine and aggressive."

Good didn't start out with the study of other lands, however. He graduated with a B.A. in economics from Emory and Henry College in Virginia, but didn't like his major.

"I minored in geography because I loved it," said Good. "It's both a social and a physical science, bridging the gap between the two. It's the study of soil, climate, land forms, religion, culture—it's a down-to-earth science," he quipped, grinning at the pun.

Good decided to continue his studies in geography, earning an M.S. and a Ph.D. in the subject from the University of Tennessee.

Upon graduation, he was offered a job with the Defense Intelligence Agency, involving a study of the Soviet Union, but he was newly wed and it didn't appeal to him. Besides—they wouldn't tell him what the job was.

So instead, Good went to Tennessee Wesleyan College in Athens to teach "for fun" and discovered he liked it.

Shortly afterwards, he came to GSC and has been teaching here ever since, when he's not roaming the world.

"I'm a wanderlust—I have itchy feet. I like to do interesting things. You've got to experience the smells, sounds, food of another country. You can't get it from reading about it," emphasized Good.

His church, Pittman Park Methodist, is of the same philosophy, and Good has frequently been involved with their mission trips.

"It's a do-something church—you come back feeling enriched, spiritually renewed by people who have a lot of faith in their lives. (The people) pump us up. They're wonderful—the real stuff!" said Good enthusiastically.

His hobbies have been as interesting as his travels. A member of the National Police Bloodhound Association, Good used to track down fugitives for the Bulloch County Sheriff's Department. He trained his bloodhound, Cool Hand Luke, to be one of the finest trackers in the state. The professor-and-dog team used to give demonstrations to schools in the area.

However, Good got out of this sideline when the last man he tracked down had three or four guns beside him at the end of the trail. Nothing happened, but realizing the possibilities Good decided, "It wasn't a fun hobby any more."

Still, Good likes to live life to its fullest, and isn't a great believer in sitting on the front porch after retirement.

Perhaps he'll be able to match his father-in-law, age 66, who retired from an equally active life—and now trains elephants at the Knoxville zoo.

DRIVE-IN

Con't. from p. 6

"I'm here to sell sight and sound," exclaimed Frederick. "I don't care what they do. All of it makes money."

Frederick went on to explain that the more movie-goers enjoy themselves, the more likely they are to enjoy the concessions.

Buttered popcorn, Cokes and candies are just a few of the taste-tempting items to enjoy while watching the movie.

But for some, bringing their own food is half the fun.

"I enjoy going to the drive-in," said Amy Swann, a GSC student.

"We pop our own popcorn, and sit, and watch the movie, and talk, and drink, and eat."

"It's a big social event," said student Lavena Purdom. "Nobody watches the movie."

Susan Beall, a GSC student, explained that she likes going to the drive-in because "it's like a small-town feeling."

Beall summed up the problem with the drive-in.

"I wish it were more popular," she explained. "A lot of people just don't think about going."

Young Republicans Charter Chapter

By SHERRY JENKINS
Staff Writer

Watch out, GSC, here come the Republicans! The Georgia Federation of Young Republicans chartered its latest of 32 chapters here recently.

"The purpose of this organization is to encourage participation and support in the Republican party," stated Andrew Rhoads, newly elected chairman of the club.

This nationally parented organization offers GSC students and other young Republicans in the area organizational means to become more politically educated.

Through participation in activities, a member can learn to promote the platform and candidates of the Republican party.

"Our first meeting was quite a success," said Rhoads, who is a sophomore pre-law major.

Part of the success is due to charter member Shawn McClellan, who is campaign manager for Mack Mattingly. McClellan has already utilized the efforts of this new club.

"Georgia Southern Young Republican Club could not have come at a better time. Some of the members have already helped me complete a telephone poll for Senator Mattingly," reported McClellan.

Along with campaign enterprise, the group will be attending the Georgia Federation of Young Republicans Convention on May 23rd and 24th in Savannah.

Five delegates from this chapter will be participating in the election of the organization's national officers. However, any member can attend and will benefit from the weekend's events.

According to James Banks, charter member of the Buckhead Young Republicans and acting liaison for Southern's chapter, there will be political workshops as well as parties included in the agenda.

The next meeting of Young Republicans will be April 24, at 5:00 in the banquet room of Dingus Magee's Restaurant.

GSC Ladies Take Second in Softball

By LYNN RUSSELL
Sports Writer

The GSC Lady Eagles swept a doubleheader—14-13 and 11-7—in Macon last Friday against the Mercer Teddy Bears, then went on to Atlanta to capture second place in the New South Women's Conference Tournament, winning two of three games.

The single elimination tournament also included Mercer, Georgia State, and Stetson, who took first place.

GSC defeated Mercer, 11-1, and Georgia State, 4-1, behind the performances of Karen Sagan, who was the winning pitcher in both games. The Lady Eagles then lost the championship game to Stetson, 5-0. Janet Scott pitched for the Eagles, who saw Stetson break open a scoreless game in the sixth inning.

In the tournament game against Mercer, Merri Kay Orick, Sue Lanier and Linda Blackwell each had two hits. Debbie Tomkiewicz, Kathryn

Lady Tennis Eagles Lose Out in Finals

By JENNY OLIVER
Sports Writer

The GSC ladies tennis team ended their season on a losing note as they fell to Stetson 7-2, in the championship match of the New South Women's Conference Tournament last Saturday in Macon.

GSC had advanced to the finals by routing Georgia State, 8-1, on Friday behind Melissa Fountain, who won in both singles and doubles competition.

Fountain and Tammy Jackson picked up the Eagles' only victories against Stetson as they each won in singles competition.

"We were disappointed to lose in the championship match," Coach George Shriver said, "but I think we did a good job overall. We've had a good season."

GSC's final record stands at 9-6.

Stallings Honored; Eagles Romp

By CHRIS NAIL
Sports Editor

Mike Shepherd, Frank Vashaw and Craig Cooper each blasted home runs to lead GSC in a 12-3 rout of the Augusta College Jaguars on Jack Stallings Appreciation Night on April 16th.

Stallings, who recently picked up his 800th collegiate baseball victory, was honored by City and County officials and the GSC Athletic Department in a ceremony prior to the game. However, Stallings revealed after the game that he had been a little apprehensive about possible distractions the presentations could cause.

"Sometimes having some sort of awards before a ballgame can affect the players (in a negative manner)," Stallings said. "Fortunately that didn't happen tonight."

Early in the game it appeared the Eagles were distracted as they fell behind, 3-2 to the Division II team, going to the bottom of the 3rd. But before the inning was over, GSC had plated 6 runs — 4 on a grand slam by Shepherd, which was his sixth homer of the season. Vashaw drove in the other 2 runs with his fifth home run.

From there on it was smooth sailing, which prompted Stallings to say, "It was certainly nice to play with a lead."

Craig Cooper added a 2-run homer — his 19th — in the eighth for the Eagles, who also pounded out 3 doubles in their 12-hit attack.

Scott Luman, one of four pitchers from the starting rotation used in the game by Stallings, raised his record to 6-2 in relief of starter Marty Murphy. Luman was followed by Frank Merkel, Kevin Meier and Mike

Benton Sets Record in Tournament

Courtesy of Sports Information

Sophomore Fred Benton fired a three-day total of 5-under par 208, including a Georgia Southern record 63 in the second round, to lead the Eagles to a second-place finish in the Trans America Athletic Conference golf tournament in Abilene, Texas. In the final round, Houston Baptist overcame gusty winds to erase a two-shot GSC lead to win the event by 11 shots.

Benton fired rounds of 75, 63, 70 to claim the individual championship and earn TAAC Player of the Year honors. Seniors Billy Bulmer and Marion Dantzler were named to the All-Conference team, finishing with a 54-hole total of 216, while Dantzler was one shot back at 217. Freshman Richie Bryant finished at 220 for the Eagles, while another first-year player, Chris Bottomley, carded at total of 225.

Strong Field Set to Compete in Schenkel

By MIKE MILLS
Sports Writer

What do Curtis Strange, Andy Bean, Jerry Pate, Hal Sutton, and Jodie Mudd have in common? They all are outstanding golfers on the Professional Golfers Association tour who have, at one time or another, participated in the Chris Schenkel Invitational Golf Tournament, which the GSC Eagles will be hosting for the 16th consecutive year starting tomorrow at Forest Heights Country Club.

This amateur event, which was started in 1971 by former GSC director of athletics, the late J.I. Clements, and Statesboro businessman Charlie Robbins annually attracts some of the country's best collegiate linksters. One national golf publication has referred to it as "The Collegiate Championship of the East."

This year, 11 of the top 25 ranked schools in the nation will be participating.

The field includes No. 1 Oklahoma State, No. 4 Wake Forest, No. 5 LSU, No. 6 Georgia Tech, No. 20 Auburn, No. 22 Georgia, No. 24 Clemson, and the Eagles.

GSC has never won the Schenkel, but Coach Doug Gordin feels his team will be playing to win. "We'll go out and play as well as we can," he said. "The course is dry, which makes the greens lighting fast. I think that may help us. But we'll just have to let the others play their game and we'll play ours, then take it day by day.

Chris Schenkel, a long time sports announcer and avid supporter of collegiate sports of all kinds, has lent both his nationally recognized name and assistance to make this event what it is today.

Mike Holder, coach of the top-ranked Cowboys, was quoted as saying, "We'll come back as long as there is an invitation... it's the best tournament we play in."

Everyone is encouraged to come out and root on the Eagles and enjoy watching some of the best amateur golf in America.

Stallings' Eagles Take Eastern Division Title

By ANTHONY DASHER

Strong pitching and timely hitting was the story last weekend in Macon as GSC clinched the TAAC Eastern Division title by taking two out of three games from Mercer.

The Eagles took game one Friday by the score of 3-0 then split a double header Saturday, winning the opener 3-1 before dropping the finale 9-7.

Although the pitching staff has been somewhat inconsistent this season, Coach Jack Stallings couldn't have been more pleased with Billy Brooks performance on Friday. The senior from Macon scattered four hits and struck out seven to run his record to 8-4 on the year.

Joe Bonanno provided Brooks with all the runs he needed as he blasted a two-out, three-run homer in the sixth.

In game one Saturday, the Eagles got on the board first in the opening inning when Dan Gealy doubled, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a sacrifice fly by Greg McMullen.

Mercer tied the score in the fourth off starter Scott Luman, but the Eagles came back with two runs in the sixth for the win.

McMullen started things with a walk and took second on an error by Mercer pitcher Shane Haygood. Jim Cunningham then singled in McMullen and scored one batter later on a single to left by Mike Shepherd.

Keith Richardson came on for Luman in the fourth and allowed only one hit the rest of the way to pick up the win, his third against two losses.

The win also had a special meaning as it marked the 1000th victory for GSC's baseball program since 1946.

However Stallings and his squad didn't have long to celebrate as the Bears fought back from a 3-1 deficit and went ahead by one as they nicked starter and loser Kevin Meier for three runs in the second.

Mercer put the game out of reach in the third by scoring three runs on just one hit. GSC attempted to rally in the fourth but could manage only one run before Mercer's Marlin Dayton put out the fire.

The series plus Sunday's loss to South Carolina left GSC with a 28-19-1 record. The Eagles were scheduled to play a 2-game series in Athens against Georgia yesterday and Tuesday, and will take on Hardin-Simmons for the TAAC championship tomorrow and Saturday in Abilene, Texas.

Netters Set to Play for TAAC Title

By ANTHONY DASHER

Led by senior Gary Meanchos, the GSC men's tennis team swept all nine of their matches to win the Eastern Division Championships of the TAAC held last weekend in Macon.

The Eagles, who garnered 45 points for the nine victories, were paced by Meanchos, who came back from a tough opening set to defeat Georgia State's Jeff Greenberg 7-6, 6-0. Ryan Blake ripped Sanford's Kelvin Borthwich 6-0, 6-1; Michael Rice edged Panther Danny Lewis 6-4, 7-5; Chris DeMarta blitzed Bulldog Brad Hornsby 6-1, 6-0; Ed Wylie beat

Sports Beat

Boy oh boy! If you're a basketball fan, last weekend had to give you the ultimate high. Never have I seen games on consecutive days as exciting as the Atlanta Hawks' 137-125 victory over the Detroit Pistons on Saturday and the Boston Celtics' 135-131 double-overtime victory over the Chicago Bulls on Sunday.

No one—not even the Bulls themselves—expected the Boston victory to be so tough to come by, but then again, no one expected Michael Jordan to play superman either. In one of the more unbelievable performances in NBA history, Jordan scored a playoff-record 63 points, breaking the old record of 61 set by former L.A. Laker Elgin Baylor in 1962—ironically against Boston. And it wasn't just the number of points Jordan scored that was fascinating, but also the manner in which he attained his total. Boston tried every possible way to defend against the Chicago guard, but Jordan either went over, under, through, or around every Celtic on the floor. Boston has four of the best defensive players in the league in Robert Parrish, Kevin McHale, Bill Walton and Dennis Johnson, but Jordan burned all of them—Johnson on the outside, the rest on the inside—more times than one could count. Jordan, who missed 64 regular-season games with a broken bone in his left foot, scored 49 points in the opening game of the series, thus he sported a 56 ppg scoring average for the two games. Is it rational to say Jordan has joined that league of which previously only Larry Bird and Magic Johnson were reputed to be members? Well if he hasn't joined, I would think his application has to be at the top of the stack.

However, Jordan didn't put on the only show over the weekend. The one in the "Big A" (Atlanta) was also memorable, and not just because of the 50-point explosion by the Hawks' Dominique Wilkins. The smallest guy in the NBA—Spud Webb at 5'7"—made a lasting impression on a national TV audience, as well as the Detroit Pistons, who had released him during the preseason. Spud continuously drove the lane into the land of the giants to come away with either a basket (19 points) or an assist (18). Every time Webb touched the ball, you could feel the electricity as fans and players alike waited for something spectacular to happen. And to top it all off, the only NBA slam-dunk champion ever below six feet was called for goaltending near the end of the game. Webb, who came into the league as a novelty, has proven that he is a legitimate star. Now all he needs is a nickname to replace Spud. There's Dr. J, Magic, World, and a host of other eye-catching names, surely someone can come up with one that's more befitting a player of Webb's caliber than Spud.

Bulldog Greg Vedel 6-0, 6-2, and Steve Benson crushed Vedel's teammate Tom Guthrie 6-0, 6-0.

Joe Blankenbaker's netters continued their winning ways in the doubles competition as Meanchos and Rice defeated Russ Crutchfield and Jon Zwony 6-2, 6-3. The team of Blake and Benson trounced the Panther's Greenberg and Zwony 6-2, 6-3 and DeMarta and Wylie waylaid Sanford's Hornsby and Vedel 6-1, 6-0.

GSC and runner-up Georgia State now advance to the TAAC Championships in Little Rock, Arkansas this weekend to play the Western Division winners.
