Coaches' Reaction to Future Budget Mixed

This is the second and final installment in our series on the athletic budget crisis.

MICHAEL CHEEK
Assistant Features Editor

As the 1986 fiscal year approaches a close, coaches of various sport programs are wondering how they will fare during the next year. The athletic budget has already been approved by the faculty senate and is due to go into effect June 1.

Although most coaches already know the amount of funds they will receive, they know the records of the past seasons.

"We just do not have the budget to be competitive in division one," commented George Shriver, the women's tennis team coach.

The team's budget has been cut for the past three years. Shriver states because of lack of funds, he is unable to recruit out-of-state and cannot offer even the minimum financial assistance to gifted athletes.

The soccer program's budget was reduced from the 1985 season as well, according to Coach John Rafter. During the past season, the team played in renumbered uniforms that were four years old.

In addition, soccer players had to come to school two weeks early for preseason practice and stayed in the basement of the Lupton building at Paulson Stadium on cots. Members were supplied with only one meal a day. On away games, they could never afford to stay in hotels. The host school might supply a room for the team to sleep on cots, or other times, they would drive back and forth in one day.

Swimming coach Gordon Floyd pointed out, "We do more with less (funds) than any school in the country."

He continued that students are willing to pay for good athletic programs and GSC is working hard to achieve this goal. Floyd added, "There's no question in my mind we're underfunded in football, baseball, basketball and all of the other sports."

Del Presley, the new cross country coach, praised the dedication of student athletes who participate in sports: "It's difficult to compete with universities that can offer more to athletes."

Coach Jeanne Milling of ladies' basketball noted, "Right now, we don't have a tremendous problem." She later stated, "We don't have as much funding as we'd like to have."

Bill Spieth of softball feels that "if you want a good athletic program, someone's got to pay for it." His biggest difficulty is that softball has changed from slow to fast pitch and there are not many fast pitchers in the South. Without the funding, it is difficult to recruit out-of-state.

Recruitment seems to be a problem with all the coaches. Rafter stated, "Any recruiting I do is completely on my own time, at my own expense."

The salary of coaches is another debate confronted by the athletic department. Some volunteer coaches receive no pay at all. Bucky Wagner, director of athletics, is impressed with the "labor of complete love." He continued by saying the athletic department tries not to "hassle" these coaches.

Floyd says that this volunteering shows the dedication to GSC's tradition of excellence. He feels that even the coaches who do get paid aren't paid enough for their work.

He commented, "We've got coaches out there who do a helluva job and they're not getting paid for it. That's right on down the line."

GSC Honors Day Held

By AMY SWANN
News Editor

The annual Honors Day Convention was held last Friday at Sweetheart Circle from 10:30 to 12 p.m.

The event, which honors the scholastic and service achievements of GSC students, is one of the highlights of the academic year, said Dr. Charles Christmas, chairman of the Honors Committee.

The honorees included, Katharine Lorrain Reeves, the recipient of the Alumni Association Award, which is awarded to a graduating senior with the highest GPA who has done all undergraduate work at Southern. Steve Corcoran, president of the GSC Alumni Association, presented the award to Reeves.

The new members of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, Phi Kappa Phi, Beta Gamma Sigma, and Sigma Xi were also recognized.

Approximately 66 individual awards were presented, ranging from departmental awards to scholarships presented by various firms in the community.

Graduating seniors with a 3.9 GPA were also recognized. These students included: Jeanne Amos, Patricia Clifton, Paula Hall, Marshall Jackson, Nancy Lasala, Janice Leggett, Matt Love, Cynthia McAllister, Advid Pullin, Katharine Reeves, Eileen Tucker, Judy Ussery.

The culmination of the ceremony was the presentation of the Professor of the Year Award, which was presented to Will of the Physics Department. The election of Professor of the Year is held by the Gamma Beta Phi Honor Society. Students cast their vote for the instructor of their choice and the results are tabulated by the society.

Jim Randall, Assistant Professor of Marketing and Office Administration, was last year's recipient, and he delivered the keynote address for this year's event.

Summarizing the event, Christmas stated, "Honors Day is a time to pause and recognize our outstanding students and their achievements."

Student Admission Team Formed for Recruitment

LISA CORNWELL
Assistant News Editor

Seven GSC students have been selected to form a Student Admissions Team in a major recruiting effort by GSC.

According to Admissions Counselor Mary Beth Smith, the purpose of the new Student

Admissions Team is to "provide prospective students peer contact."

The seven student volunteers for the program, selected through intensive interviews and recommendations, include Harry Wachniak, Chris Crowl, Rosa Reese, Tracy Smith, Penny Griffin, David Newman, and Sydna Armstrong.

Smith explained that the students will undergo extensive training to learn about GSC and will undertake some individual recruiting efforts.

Part of the students' job will be an "Adopt a Student" program.

Smith went on to explain that prospective students will get to spend a day with one of the volunteer students and become familiar with everyday life at GSC, from classes to dorm life.

Sydna Armstrong, one of the student recruiters, explained why she volunteered for the program.

"I like GSC. It will be neat to promote it," said Armstrong. "The program is a good idea."

G-A Tries to be Fair

In last week's edition, a letter to the editor suggested The George-Anne discriminates against Greek organizations. In answer, we would like to explain some basic facts about how The George-Anne works.

Each staff member is a full-time student. Therefore, a majority of time is dedicated to classes. Members are dedicated to producing a quality publication but because there are only 24 hours in a day, we cannot go gallivanting across GSC to find every little occurrence.

Staff members cannot be everywhere when something happens. When we hear about an event, someone might cover it. There are things that are covered, however, that cannot be published because space is limited.

This is not a PR newsletter. We get several press releases a week and if we have room, we might run some. One of the main reasons for a college newspaper is for journalism students to receive work experience. If we published just news releases, all we would need is typists.

The final question that staff members have to face: "Is it newsworthy?" If a boy scout helps an old lady across the road, that's great, but is it really worth publication. However, if the boy scout pushes her in front of a Greyhound...

We are the student newspaper. If something happens on campus that you think is worth publication, let us know. We will try our best to cover GSC fairly and accurately. This does not only apply to Greeks, but to everyone.

An Offering of Sympathy

The George-Anne wishes to express our sympathy to the family and friends of Ricky Mallard, a GSC freshman, who was killed in an auto accident on May 5, 1986.

Mallard, of Rt. 3, Box 230, Statesboro, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Troy Mallard.

On Turner's Games

Ted Turner: Peacemaker. What?!?! Is this the same Turner who had CBS pulling out its hair over the Atlanta tycoon's recent takeover attempt? Unbelievable, yet strange as it may seem, the world will soon be thanking Uncle Ted.

In the past ten years, about the only competition between the U.S. and the Soviet Union consisted of the eye-rolling and the ho-humming games of the last Geneva summit. But thanks to Turner, all of this will soon change with the 1986 Goodwill Games.

As a result of Turner's financial backing, athletes from the U.S., Soviet Union and other eastern bloc countries will meet together on the athletic field for summer competition for the first time since the 1976 Montreal Olympics. In the past, politics has unfortunately deprived the people of the world of watching the best athletes in the world compete on the same playing field.

This will change though as over 50 countries will meet in Moscow, July 5-20 to compete in 18 sports and 175 events. And Turner is behind it all.

Captain Outrageous, Terrible Ted, The Mouth of the South. Turner has heard them all. Yet his determination, and yes, even his somewhat cocky attitude and high sense of attainment has helped the mass media mogul become the success that he has. Uncle Ted usually gets what he wants. And he wanted the Goodwill Games.

In getting the cooperation of the Soviets to set up the games, Turner has succeeded where all the summits and talks have failed. He has conquered the war of words and disagreements in policy that forced the boycotts of the last two Olympics.

Yet critics still question Turner's real motives for sponsoring the games. Sure, Turner should profit greatly from his venture but by doing so he would have done more for the hope of world peace than could ever be accomplished by President Reagan and Mikhail, Gorbachev in Geneva. Maybe Turner ought to go to Geneva himself the next time there is a summit.

When Turner first came up with the idea of the Goodwill Games people laughed. They said that this was just another hair-brained scheme of the Atlanta crazy-man who was at the time planning his takeover of CBS. But Turner never listened to his critics. He never has. If he had, he would be somewhere in Savannah selling billboards. Instead he has put together what very well could be the best amateur sporting event of the past ten years.

And what a joy that will be. For the past ten years American athletes have been foaming at the mouth to prove to the world as well as themselves to who the superior athletes are. They will get their chance.

Think of it, Mary Lou Retton and the rest of the American gymnastics team competing against the always-tough Soviet squad, our swim team going head to head against the powerful East Germans. The possibilities are endless. Indeed, it's better to meet on the athletic field than on the battlefield.

Because of Ted Turner, the spirit of athletic competition between the U.S. and the Soviet Union still lives. But no matter what athletes come out victorious, the winners will be the fans. Thanks Ted.

Catch Greater Tuna!

AMY SWANN
News Editor

Lord have mercy, the Texans have taken over Southern! Well actually, the inhabitants of Greater Tuna, Texas have taken over McCroan Auditorium tonight through Saturday, May 17.

The play, which begins at 8:15 each evening, deals with the stereotypes of the characters of the small town of Tuna, Texas. Originally intended for only two actors, the large cast of characters will be played by seven actors from Southern.

"It's a crazy play," said Alex Chrestopoulos, director of the production.

Chrestopoulos has wanted to direct the show since he saw it in San Diego. "I thought it was very funny, and it is a real stretch for the actors to change from one character to the other."

Most of the actors will be playing three characters which leads to a multitude of difficulties.

"The most difficult part is portraying these characters honestly," said Stephen Sisson, one of the actors. "I mean, these are people I grew up with," commented Sisson, who hails from the thriving metropolis of Vidalia, Ga.

Sisson has four roles in the show ranging from Elmer Watkins, a member of the KKK, to Bertha Bumiller, the buffanted mother of three.

"My first change is from Elmer to Bertha, and that is the toughest," laughed Sisson.

Mitchell Sellers, 23, a music education major from Baxley is also in the show. He is portraying Arlis Struvie, a DJ at OKKK Radio Station, and Hank Bumiller, Bertha's husband.

Sellers, who was also in The Miser, feels that this play will be received better than The Miser, because it deals with characters that people, in this area of the country especially, can relate to.

This show will be the theater department's first of two shows entered in the American College Theater Festival.

But competition aside, this show promises to be the crowd pleaser of the season.

According to Chrestopoulos "They'll love it!"

From Top to Bottom, Hot Fashion in the 'Boro

By KATHY COTTRELL
Staff Writer

For all of you fashion-conscious ladies, looks like spring and summer are HOT with exciting and dynamic fashions for daytime and evening, according to several experts in the area.

"Many of the same colors from fall are still popular this season," says Jill Mock, from the Traffic Light in Statesboro. "Darker and brighter colors, pastels, whites and black and white combinations are all in."

Two colors that continue to sell big in this area are fuchsia pink and royal blue. Mint green, peach, orange and yellow are good colors for the spring and summer also because they act as a highlight to tanned skin.

One certain look for women that continues to come back again and again is the very feminine and dainty look. Lacey dresses and blouses are appealing and they're "in", admit experts.

Straight and snug-fitting skirts are also popular, with lengths varying from very short to tee length. Pleats are fading out this season, and racer-back dresses are in.

According to Mock, two-piece bathing suits always sell more than one-piece suits. However, there is a new style out this year called five pounds lighter-body control. It is a one piece that is designed to give the body a more slender look.

Connie Lewis, manager of Expo, located in Statesboro Mall, says most of the suits for the season have been French cut however the Statesboro area is much more conservative than Atlanta. She predicts that next year a more radical and funky style suit will hit the 'Boro.

Another one of the newest fashions came from the movie "Out of Africa" — the safari look! This look will go on through the summer and make its transition into the fall, with such colors as brown, gold and khaki.

"Soon lurex will be in. This is the shiny thread and material that was popular about four years ago. Lurex will be in blouses, sweaters, shoes, and everything else," Lewis explained.

Speaking of shoes, Dee Reaves of Patterson-Griffin Shoes says that the flat-heeled casual shoe is the most popular today. Bright pink, red, blue and yellow are the best colors to wear!

Freshman's Farce

By MICHAEL CHEEK
Assistant Features Editor

A couple of weeks ago I turned 19 years old. It was not one of the best birthdays I've ever had. As a matter of fact, it started out downright depressing.

To start off, no one greeted me in the morning with a cheerful "Happy Birthday!" After spending a month hinting that my birthday was rapidly approaching, not a soul said a word.

At the newspaper office, I entered without spectacle. I knew Bekki would remember, but since she's sworn off smoking, she's been a little slow. Well, the staff did remember and sang "Happy Birthday" to me at the end of the staff meeting.

I recommend you never invite the members of The George-Anne to sing at weddings, revivals, barmitzvahs, or any other social gathering unless you want the place to clear out.

As the day progressed, I finally got desperate and told a dormmate it was my birthday. They sang to me as well. (Again, the same recommendation for a Cone Hall Choir).

Finally, I entered my room after a lonely birthday dinner at Sarah's (It was my chicken fingers, Bo, Luke, Boss Hogg and I).

I worked in my room the rest of the afternoon into the evening hours. I figured they might be holding a surprise party for me (after all, we had thrown one for all of my other friends).

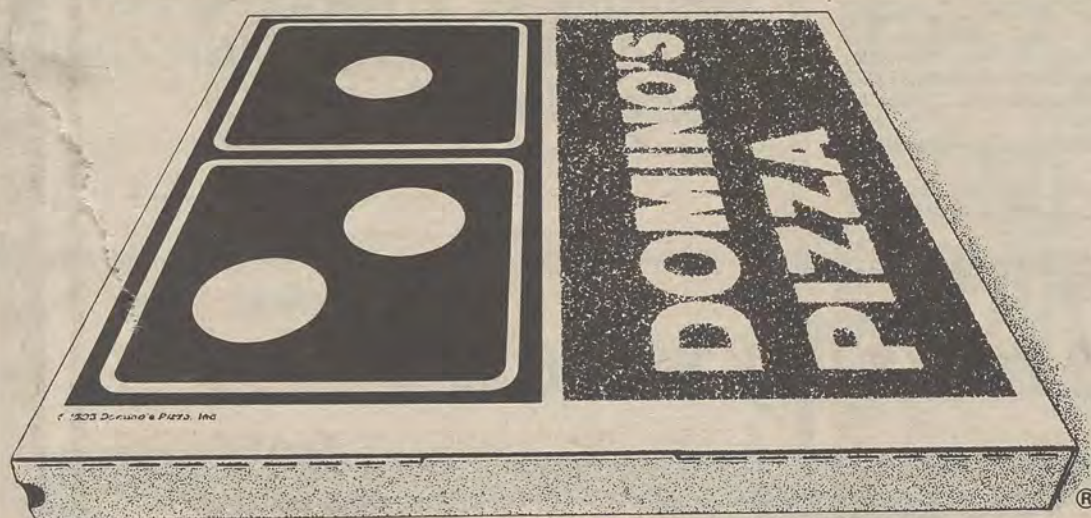

It progressed past seven, then through eight. When it hit nine, I gave up. Maybe they had forgotten. I tried not to be depressed. It was not working.

The phone rang. It was for my roommate. "He isn't here," I replied. It was obvious that there was a lot going on in the background. My roommate suddenly entered and I handed him the phone.

He said three words: "Hello. . .okay. . .bye." Turning to me, he spoke, "Listen here, they're having a surprise party. . .now let's go and act surprised."

I went. I knew it was odd because of how late it was. It turns out, believe it or not, that someone forgot to invite me to my own surprise birthday party.

GSC's Mike Coughlin: A Taste of the Majors

By CHRIS NAIL
Sports Editor

Most every pitcher in amateur baseball dreams of one day taking the mound with major league stars like Ryne Sandberg or Ron Cey in the batter's box. However there are exceptions, such as senior left-hander Mike Coughlin of the GSC Eagles. Facing such players isn't a dream of Coughlin's—it's a reality.

During the past two seasons Coughlin worked for the Chicago Cubs as a batting practice pitcher, a position some amateur players would — literally — give their right arm (or left) for. And according to Coughlin, it is a dream come true.

"I've always wanted to play pro baseball or be in a (pro) organization," Coughlin said. Just to see what it's like on the field level is exciting, seeing what the players go through, how they react to winning and losing. Major league baseball is quite an operation with the way everything is set up and all. It's really amazing."

Amazing also described the manner in which Coughlin got his unique position.

"I had never met any of the Cubs and I didn't know anybody in the organization," the Chicago native said. "One day in June of '84 I just went down to the park (Wrigley Field) early to see if I might could get some pitching tips from a coach or someone. Pitching coach Billy Connors talked to me a little bit and then asked me if I had a summer job. He said they needed someone to throw some BP, so I went back the next day. They put me in a Cubs' uniform and I threw several minutes of BP. The first batter I faced was Jay Johnstone, and he liked the way I threw so I got the job."

Coughlin estimates he threw BP over 200 times—including road trips—for Chicago during the past two seasons, and although he usually threw just to right-handed pinch hitters, he faced every Cub at one time or another.

Chicago won the National League East in '84, but fell to San Diego in the playoffs, three games to two, after having a 2-0 lead in the series. If they had won, Coughlin would have seen his first live World Series.

"They (Cubs) were going to fly me home if they made the Series," he said. Coughlin has returned to GSC for fall quarter.

According to Coughlin, a major difference in amateur and major league ball concerns the mental aspect of the game.

"In the majors if they go 0 for 4 or 4 for 4, they don't dwell on it," he said. "They still have to go out and play the next day. In amateur ball a player might carry one bad performance for two weeks."

Coughlin says some things he learned from Cubs pitchers have made him a better college pitcher, and his stats verify that. In '84 he threw just 13 innings for the Eagles, and had a 11.08 ERA. He didn't play last season, but so far this year he has pitched 17 innings with a 2.59 ERA and a team-leading four saves.

So what are his plans for this Summer?

They've (Cubs) invited me back to go another season with them," Coughlin said. I'm going to do it another year and then see what happens. It's quite a life."

Eagles Split With Tech; NCAA Bid Possible

By ANTHONY DASHER
Assistant Sports Editor

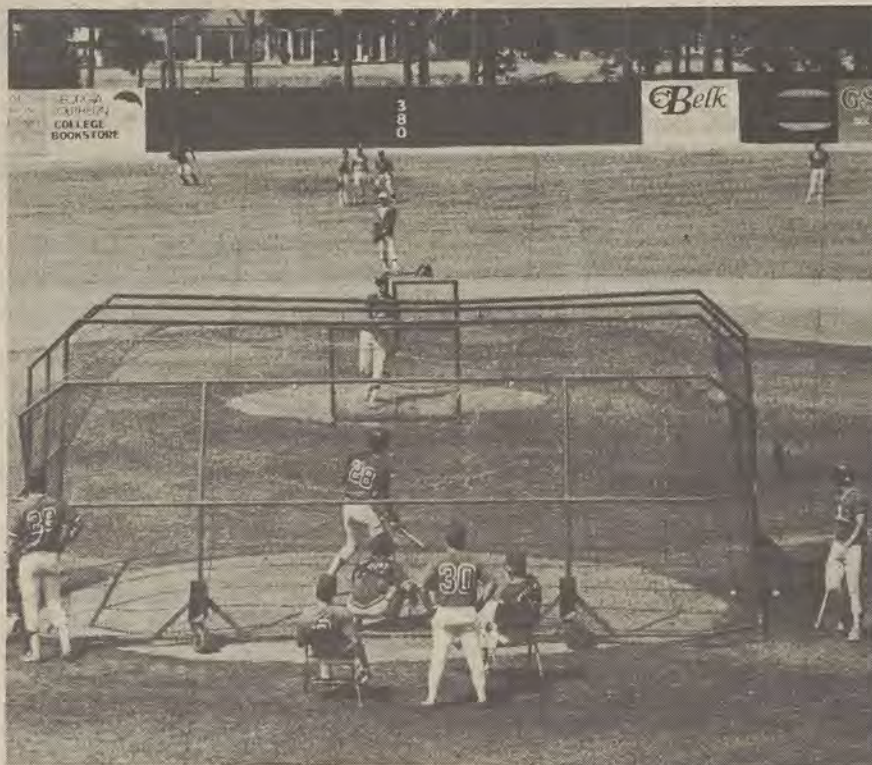

Frank Bolick, Jeff Mons and K.G. White (twice) all homered to lead Todd Shiver and Georgia Tech to a 7-1 victory over GSC Sunday and a split of their two-game series. But despite the season ending loss, Coach Jack Stallings' squad remains hopeful of an NCAA bid.

The Eagles, whose record stands at 36-23-1 won Saturday by the score of 4-2.

"Obviously the selection committee looks at a team's record, but also the opponents record, schedule and strength of the schedule and how teams fared against top opponents," Stallings explained. "Also the strength and depth of a pitching staff plays a major role in that selection."

"Our pitching was not as strong as it could have been this year, but pitching is a common problem in college baseball as lots of pitching staffs are struggling."

But Tech's staff was not one of them Sunday as Shiver scattered five hits, allowing only a home run by Mike Shepherd—his 15th—in the ninth. Senior Billy Brooks, took the loss, dropping his record to 10-6.

On Saturday it was the Eagles who got the pitching as Kevin Meier and Keith Richardson combined to hold the 37-21 Yellow Jackets to two runs on eight hits as GSC beat Coach Jim Morris's team for the third time this year.

Joe Bonanno drove in the Eagles' first run with a two-out single in the fourth and delivered a two-out, two-run double in the sixth. Dan Gealy added a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Tech scored their runs in the sixth and ninth on singles by Ricardo Ingram and K.G. White.

Meier, who scattered five hits over 6 1/3 innings, ran his record to 6-4. Richardson pitched the final 2 2/3 to pick up his first save.

"Our record was better last year," Stallings concluded. "But overall records don't really matter as much as your record against everybody else who is in contention for a bid. Most of the other schools in contention are in the vicinity of 35, 37, 38 wins, which our record is."

Savannah to Honor Eagles

Courtesy of Sports Information

The city of Savannah will host a celebration to salute the Georgia Southern national championship football team on Saturday, May 17 from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the John Rousakis Plaza on River Street.

The celebration, dubbed "Super Saturday," will be co-sponsored by Spanky's, WAEV-97, H&H Beverage Co., and Pepsi-Cola and will include appearances by Eagle head football Coach Erk Russell, Savannah Mayor John Rousakis, and Chatham County Commission Chairman Charlie Brooks. The program calls for live entertainment, booths with food and beverages from Spanky's, and special sponsor giveaways throughout the day. In addition, GSC season ticket and single-game applications will be available (including GSC-Florida tickets).

All proceeds from the "Savannah Super Saturday Salute to the Eagles" will go to the Georgia Southern football stadium fund.

GSC Rally in Ninth Leads to Win in Final Home Game

With the aid of an error on a potential game-ending double-play ball and an ensuing base hit by Dan Gealy, the GSC Eagles rallied for a 6-5 "must win" over the Armstrong State Pirates last Thursday at J.I. Clements Field. The Eagles had routed the Pirates the previous day in Savannah, 13-6.

"It was a funny game," Coach Jack Stallings said. "We had so many wasted opportunities earlier in the game, chances to do things and didn't. But then for it to end like it did... like I said, it was a funny game."

After having led 2-1 in the fifth inning, the Eagles found themselves down 5-2 entering the bottom of the eighth. However, Joe Bonanno led off with his 10th homer of the season and Gealy scored on a double by Jim Cunningham to bring GSC within one, setting up the wild finish.

Frank Vashaw struck out to start the ninth, but Bonanno and Rusty Melcolm drew walks to put runners at first and second with one out. Jeff Shireman then hit a grounder that went through the shortstop's legs allowing pinch runner Kim Lovett to score the tying run, with Melcolm taking third. Armstrong then brought the corner-infielders in, but Gealy foiled that strategy by grounding a single past the first baseman for the win.

Chip Hoffman (3-1) got the win with four solid innings of relief of starter Marty Murphy. Hoffman gave up just 2 hits, 2 earned runs, no walks, and struck out 3. Craig Cooper led offensively with 3 hits and a RBI.

In Wednesday's game at Armstrong, the Eagles got a 3-run double from Shireman and a complete game pitching performance from Billy Brooks in their win.

Shireman's blow broke a 1-1 tie in the second inning, and GSC never trailed afterwards as they avenged a 8-5 loss at Armstrong on April 29. Shireman later added a RBI-triple.
