GSC student killed in car accident last Friday

By TERRY MOTE
News Editor

A GSC freshman, Laura Scott Martin, 18, was killed early last Friday in a car accident. The driver, James Roscoe Young, also a freshman, has been charged with vehicular homicide in the first degree and driving under the influence of alcohol.

Martin, an Atlanta native, was pronounced dead around 1:30 a.m. at the scene of the accident. The accident occurred on a dirt road off Lanier Road, near the Kappa Alpha fraternity house, according to the Bulloch County Sheriff's Department.

Young, of Longwood, Fla.,

registered .12 percent on the intoximeter reading. He was released from the Bulloch County Jail on $5,000 bond.

According to Sheriff Arnold Ray Akins, the jeep driven by Young flipped after hitting a sand bank. Martin died from head and neck injuries when the roll bar of the vehicle landed on top of her.

Martin became the first traffic fatality of 1987 in Bulloch County. She was a Kappa Delta pledge and an education major.

There were two other students in the car, Joseph Goodroe and Brian H. King.

British actors to perform and teach here next week

By LAVENA PURDOM
Assistant Feature Editor

Five British actors will both perform and instruct at GSC during the week of Feb. 23-28. Their visit will involve full days of classes as well as three evenings of public theater.

The troupe will present "The Tempest" Feb. 26 and 28 and readings from works by Harold Pinter Feb. 27.

All performances will be in McCroan Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Tickets are $6 for general admission, $3 for pre-college students, $1 for college students with I.D. There is no extra cost for holders of GSC's season theater ticket.

Appearing with the ensemble will be Trevor Baxter of the "Barchester Chronicles," Sarah Berger, seen on "Dr. Who," Bruce Alexander of "The Network" on BBC, George Raistrick of "The Pallisers," and Tom Mannion who had a role in "Return of the Jedi." Most of their work is done on the stage however, with such companies as Old Vic, the Royal Shakespeare, the National Theater and the Lyceum Theater.

Billed as "Actors from the London Stage," the troupe is brought to campus by ACTER (the Alliance for Creative Theatre, Education and Research), a University of California-sponsored project to revive theater as popular entertainment. Local organizations sponsoring the event include the Campus Life Enrichment Committee, Theater South, the Student Union Board, and the GSC Foundation.

The actors will teach English and theater classes, covering topics such as interpretation and voice as well as Shakespeare's sonnets, tragedies and characters. They will also take a leading role in workshops on "Teaching Shakespeare in the Public Schools," expected to bring 75 high school teachers from surrounding counties to campus for the Friday and Saturday sessions.

According to GSC theater professor Alex Chrestopoulos, Shakespeare's tremendous popular appeal to the English at all levels of education has not translated as well in America where Shakespeare is studied in school but not seen on stage.

"That makes all the difference," Chrestopoulos said. "Shakespeare's plays are not literature, they're drama—meant to be spoken, not read. And they're meant to be spoken in the

Tornado Awareness Week scheduled for Feb. 22-27

Special to the George-Anne

Ted Wynn, Head of Institutional Safety, announces that on Feb. 25, 1987 around 10 a.m., the campus Emergency Preparedness Siren will sound for approximately three minutes.

This test of the siren will be in conjunction with the state-wide "Tornado Drill." Feb. 22-27, 1987 has been designated as Tornado Awareness Week in the state.

Wynn advises that this is only a test and you should proceed with your normal activities.

If there is a threat of actual severe weather on Feb. 25, the test will be postponed until Feb. 27, 1987.

Listed below are some tornado safety rules which could prove quite beneficial to you if you are faced with this natural disaster, according to Wynn.

When the Emergency Preparedness Siren located on campus sounds, indicating a tornado has been sighted, your IMMEDIATE action may mean LIFE or DEATH.

In Cities or Towns

Seek inside shelter, preferably in a tornado cellar, underground excavation, or a steel-framed or reinforced concrete building of substantial construction. Stay away from windows!

In Academic or Dormitory Buildings

Relocate in an interior hallway on the lowest floor, away from windows, preferably in a basement, if one exists.

In Homes or Apartments

The corner of a basement toward the tornado usually offers the greatest safety. In a home or apartment with no basement, take cover under heavy furniture in the center part of the residence. STAY AWAY FROM WINDOWS.

Avoid Auditoriums and Gymnasiums with Large, Poorly Supported Roofs

If a building is not of reinforced construction, go quickly to a nearby reinforced building, or to a ravine or open ditch and lie flat.

In Open Country

Move away at a right angle to the tornado's path. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest

Black entrepreneur speaks on leadership

By DONALD WATSON
Staff Writer

"He who does not have it cannot buy it with all the wealth on earth," said businessman S.W. Walker of the virtue of leadership to a crowd attending a celebration of black entrepreneurship in the Conference Center last week.

Walker, president of Pilgrim Health and Life Insurance company in Augusta, added that competent leadership in the business world is a must today and that it is earned through a long and mysterious process.

"Leadership is acquired through the experiences of everyday life," continued Walker. Character also has an important bearing on leadership ability, he pointed out.

Walker associated three characteristics with the process of leadership. The first is a quality education. He maintained that great leaders must be educated. "In my mind education is the most challenging task of leadership," asserted Walker.

He cited justice as the second characteristic needed in leaders. It is also one of the most often lacking ones, charged Walker. Too many times, he stated, companies and other institutions base promotions and other benefits upon injustice. Such decisions should be reached solely on the bases of function and merit, Walker stressed. Extreme injustice can lead to a serious breakdown in employer/employee relations.

Walker's most highly stressed characteristic of leadership was courage. "Courage is the one thing that is closest to my heart," explained Walker. "True courage in so many people seems to be lacking in our days."

Walker then went on to name three men whom he especially admired for their courage. These included Mohandas Gandhi, Martin Luther King and John F. Kennedy.

Walker praised King for his ability to fight force and aggression armed only with love. He remembered Gandhi for a similar kind of nonviolent struggle against the British in India. Finally, he congratulated Kennedy for being able to deal with such diverse problems as the Bay of Pigs and his

"1752 Club" awards insurance scholarship

Special to the George-Anne

GSC business students headed for insurance careers are collecting benefits from a scholarship award funded by the 1752 Club, an organization of insurance representatives.

Laura Edwards of Americus, a graduating senior finance major, won the second annual 1752 Club Scholarship, established to encourage students to seek careers in the field of insurance. The $500 award is the only insurance scholarship in the state, and GSC is the only school receiving it.

The check was presented by club president H. Hilton Brooks, marketing manager of Eagle Star Insurance Co. in Montecello; past president Dot Gazaway, field manager of Southern Guaranty Insurance Co. in Covington and president-elect and treasurer Bill Honea, territorial manager of The Moore Group in Atlanta.

The club derived its name from the year Ben Franklin founded mutual insurance in 1752. Now one of the

Thomas will keynote Black History Month

Special to the George-Anne

U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Chairman Clarence Thomas, a Savannah-born attorney appointed by President Reagan to one of the nation's top civil rights posts, will keynote Black History Month activities Feb. 24.

The address is free and open to the public at 7:30 p.m. in the Conference Center.

Thomas' two-day visit to the campus will also take him into business school classrooms for discussions touching on affirmative action, labor union initiatives and other issues under his purview in EEOC.

A politically conservative black, Thomas joined the Reagan Administration in 1981 as assistant secretary for civil rights in the U.S. Department of Education, and a year later was appointed head of the EEOC. He was unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate last August for a second term at the helm of the agency, the government's legal arm to end job discrimination in the public and private sectors.

Thomas has pursued a number of landmark class action suits forcing corporations to pay massive discrimination settlements, which are held in escrow for endowments to assist minorities and women in preparing for employment opportunities.

Thomas was raised in Savannah by his grandparents Myers and Christine Anderson, who "taught me not to make excuses, but to take advantage of opportunities." Taking to hear a lesson from his teachers at St. Benedict Grammar School and St. Pius X High School that "education [is] the key to opportunity," Thomas graduated with honors from Holy Cross College in Massachusetts and later earned his law degree from Yale University.

During law school, he served under Missouri Attorney General John C. Danforth as assistant attorney general, responsible for the state Tax Commission and Missouri's Department of Revenue. When Danforth was elected to the Senate, Thomas joined him as a legislative assistant, dealing with issues involving energy, the environment and public works.

NEW COLLEGE UNION

The design drawings for the new college union will be on display in the Henderson Library starting the week of Feb. 23.

The GSC Eagle Battalion held its "Dining In," a historic custom of military units. The formal event served as a learning experience in social amenities for junior officers.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Col. Elliot P. Sydnor, Ret., grand forces commander during the Son Tay P.O.W. raid in North Vietnam.

GSC Graduate School will host the Annual Graduate Opportunity Seminar on Tuesday, March 3, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the lobby of the Carroll Building. Representatives from several colleges and universities will attend the program. Refreshments will be served throughout the day.

Concert scheduled tomorrow

Special to the George-Anne
The audience won't have to be opera buffs to recognize most of the names and all of the music in the Statesboro-Georgia Southern Symphony's winter concert of "Arias and Overtures" tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. in the Foy Auditorium.

The orchestra will be performing operatic overtures and accompanying soloist Gregory Kunde in "four of the loveliest and most famous tenor arias" ever written, according to Conductor Peter Dundon.

Picked by "High Fidelity Musical America" as one of the top 20 artists in the U.S. today, Kunde has appeared in France, Canada, Chicago, the nation's capital, and is currently appearing in a production of "La Boheme" in Miami. The program will feature arias from Mozart's "Magic Flute," Puccini's "La Boheme," Verdi's "La Traviata" and "Rigoletto."

A few tickets are still available through the Symphony Association, by calling Dr. Al Rowton at 764-7050. A reception will follow the performance in Gallery 303 of the Foy Fine Arts Building.

Humanitas to meet at R J's

Special to the George-Anne

Humanitas, GSC's interdisciplinary discussion group, will meet Feb. 27 at R.J.'s Steakery. The meeting begins at 6 p.m. with a "dutch-treat" supper, followed at 7 by GSC mathematician John Davenport's presentation on "Distilling the Essence of Thought."

The discussion group, originally sponsored by the GSC history department, is now under the direction of the college's School of Arts and Sciences.

Davenport's discussion will address the problem of building a machine with a human-like capacity to acquire and apply knowledge. This goal of "Artificial Intelligence" (AI), which engages in "knowledge engineering," involves creating software for symbolic manipulation, non-numerical calculation and symbolic inference.

Humanitas is open to faculty, staff, students and members of the community. For reservations, contact the GSC History Department at 681-5586.

Confine graffiti to the rock

The Rock, a perennial lightning rod for graffiti, has of late been a buoy floating in a veritable sea of spray-paint art. Individuals and all sorts of organizations from Greeks to even the Christians have proudly emblazoned colorful signatures all over the sidewalk, and the rainbow of "Kilroys" seems to be inching ever-nearer to Williams Center. It's not too difficult to envision the soon-to-come day when this blanket of graffiti has crawled up one side of the Center and down the other, reaching out tentacles toward the Administration Building.

While the decoration on the sidewalk is certainly colorful, and even cheerful, and while profanity has been mercifully avoided in the texts of these messages, it is still unbecoming. The painted messages are now so dense that they have begun to overlap, and soon the sidewalk will be nothing more than an ugly field of conflicting and unreadable gunk.

The Rock has been the Rock for a long time (something like 15 years) and only recently has the paint begun this inexorable march down the sidewalk. Perhaps if the graffiti can be confined once again to just the rock, an ugly and getting-uglier portion of our campus could be spared further damage.

There are better ways to make your mark on GSC than with a can of spray paint. Express yourself on a stage with Theater South, on the air at WVGS, or in print in the Miscellany or even the George-Anne. We'll print your letters with pleasure, but we're sick of seeing your name under our feet.

Student attendance?

While student attendance at the various GSC sporting events has been greatly encouraged over the years, other events sponsored by the school have often been neglected.

At the recent performance by the Mac Frampton Trio the auditorium was only three-quarters full and among those in attendance, only a third were students or faculty of the college.

With GSC's enrollment over 7,400 it would seem that there would be 300 or so people who would come out to support the endeavors of the school to provide entertainment for the college community.

Hopefully other events such as Theater South's production of Snoopy will be warmly received and attendance will be good for all the performances.

There is hope. The comedy team of Pinsky and Gray attracted a standing room only crowd in the Coffee Shop. Maybe this is a sign for things to come.

It's high time students and faculty take an interest in ALL the activities and events sponsored by the school. Who knows, they might have a good time.

Spring Break approaching

With winter quarter winding down and the weather getting warmer, the thoughts of every red-blooded college student turn to one thing—SPRING BREAK!

That's right folks, it's almost time to hit the sandy beaches, fill the coolers and head off to such spots as Daytona Beach, Fort Lauderdale, and Panama City. It doesn't matter; just as long as it is away from school.

But there are rules that we, as fun-seeking college students, must abide by in order to have a good time. These suggestions that I'm about to give may not suit everybody, but hey, I'm writing this column.

1. Plan your trip now. Motels in Daytona and throughout Florida are fast filling up and if you don't want to spend the night in the back of a VW or behind a sand dune with the fiddler crabs act now before it's too late.

2. Be sure to take along an extra large cooler, fill it with ice and then, last but not least, fill it with your favorite beer, wine cooler, soft drink or mineral water. And remember, keep your cooler full at all times. There's nothing worse than running out of beer on a Saturday night and having to wait until Monday. Horrors.

3. Eat lots of carrots. Yeah guys, carrots. With all those girls roaming the beaches you want to be sure that your eyes are strong enough so you won't suffer from any unnecessary strain. See something you like? Well reach out and grab it! Now I don't want to sound like some sort of demented sex fiend, but what the hey. A slap won't hurt for long and who knows, you might get lucky.

4. Girls, don't be shy. If you see a guy who turns you on, go ahead and make your move. I can assure you they won't mind. You see gals, many guys are shy when it comes meeting that someone special, so go ahead, make some guy's day.

5. Let it all hang out. Get wild, go crazy, cut loose. Spring break is a time to get out and have a good time and to forget the term papers and final exams. But you don't need me to tell you that.

6. Don't climb out on high ledges or jump out of motel windows. Last year some party goers decided to do their superman imitation only to be grounded permanently.

7. Bring plenty of bail money. You never know when one may land in the pokey. Police don't care much for nude volleyball.

Yes folks, Spring Break is a time to forget about school, drink beer and watch girls (or guys, whichever the case may be.) So fill your car with gas, pack the cooler, and take your money. You'll be good to go.

Students not getting respect

DEAR EDITOR:

When I came to GSC two years ago I was slightly irritated by the campus parking regulations and the general apathy of the college employees toward the students. I did not like having to park in the parking lots farthest away from the buildings my classes were in simply because I was a student instead of a faculty or staff member; especially since I was paying them to render me a service. I equally despise the cool, uninterested way the college staff treated the students in such places as financial aid office, business office, and even the cashier's office as they were taking my money. I had just come from a community college in North Florida and had expected to be treated with the same respect in Georgia as I had been accustomed to in Florida.

GSC seems to have a perverted view of the student-institution relationship considering that their funds depend on our choosing to attend their college. The administration, faculty and staff seem to see themselves as better than the students, more important than the students, and act as if we should feel privileged to have them working for us. Maybe this is simply a difference in the Georgia mindset and the progressive Florida mindset.

In Florida, our school administration had a different view of the student-institution relationship; a more progressive one. The view was summed up in the priorities of the employees of that Florida institution and was proudly displayed in written form in every office on the campus. The view held was that the students were the most important people on the campus, for without them they would have no jobs.

GSC could benefit greatly by thinking along those lines. The students are what keep the college open, who employ every instructor, staff member and even the all powerful administrators. If these individuals valued their jobs and were truly interested in the students then they too would treat the students as the most important people on the campus.

The students deserve the best parking spaces, the attention, courtesy, cooperation of all the employees. I intend on giving my future employers 100 percent of my efforts and abilities and college is the place that should be preparing me for this role. I don't think expecting 100 percent from the college is asking too much. In fact, I see it as the college's duty to set a good example by being good employees. A simple change of attitude could do more for this institution than any monetary grant, university status, or championship athletic team could ever do.

Anda Camp works as the "Voice of GSC"

Anda Camp keeps the world up on what's happening here at Georgia Southern College
Special Photo

Special to the George-Anne
How many times have you wondered what the person on the radio looked like? Well, there is more than just a pretty face behind the "voice of Georgia Southern College."

For two hours a day, Anda Camp brings news of the college to listeners across Southeast Georgia through a network of 12 radio stations. But her interest in broadcasting spans almost her entire 21 years.

As a child she did "novelty" voices like Donald Duck and the Exorcist in commercials for her parents, Mike and Leeta McDougald, on their Rome, Ga. radio stations, WRGA-AM and WQTU-FM. By 17, she had graduated to covering the police beat for the news director during summer vacations and Christmas holidays. She has even "crossed over into television, working one Christmas with "11 Alive TV" in Atlanta coordinating the station's "Can-a-thon" to collect canned foods for the needy.

A junior at GSC, Camp is working toward a degree in communication arts with an emphasis in broadcasting (naturally). After class she performs with the college's drama company, Theater South, and works part-time producing the one-minute capsule of campus happenings for the GSC Public Relations office.

In spite of the perils of finding a minute's worth of news each day—which is often much harder than it sounds—Camp enjoys doing the report and calling it in to her network.

"I've gotten to know the people at each station pretty well," she said. "They tell me what's happening in their hometowns and the things they're doing. We've built up a great rapport."

The rapport is so good it often includes some good-natured teasing; her contact at one station has dubbed her report "Anda Panda's Propaganda."

She just smiles and calls the next station to let her listeners know what's happening at GSC.

Adopt a student at GSC

By RUSS L. BROCK
Staff Writer

Remember your first day at GSC? The building loomed large and forboding, the instructors seemed cold and menacing, and the "Wizard of Oz" syndrome began to creep into your being with echoes of, "There's no place like home, there's . . ." How wonderful it could have been if some experienced college "vet" had just taken you under his wing and shown you the ins and outs, the who's and where's, and made the transition to college life so much simpler.

Now there is just such a program being offered at GSC by the Student Interest Group (STING) to help acclimatize future "Southerners" to the campus environment. For one day, approved representatives of GSC, appointed by STING will "adopt" one high school senior who has been accepted by the college to take him with them on a typical college student's day. Beginning at 10 a.m., the student will be accompanying you on your day's activities and will in no way interfere with your plans. He will merely be your shadow for about six hours.

This is an ideal opportunity for anyone interested to recruit students for GSC, and should be especially appealing to PR majors. It is very important at this time of rapid growth and the swelling enrollment at GSC to maintain the traditional feeling of warmth and welcome we have always prided ourselves in extending to the potential new GSC student.

It must be pointed out that this is not a paying position in the monetary sense. However, the reward and experience of introducing someone to our marvelous institution and the satisfaction of seeing that person enroll this fall with a solid foundation on which to build a college career will provide you with immeasurable gratification for years to come.

Anyone who would like to become involved in the program can contact Synda Armstrong or Marybeth Smith at the Admissions Office or call 681-5531 between 2 and 4 p.m.

The Curmudgeon's Corner

By JEREMY HOWELL

As a guest curmudgeon this week, I really have little to complain about. But I did overhear the following conversation and found it amusing, and thought you might enjoy it as well.

B—Hey, Jonathon, did ya git a letter from home?

J—Yeah, Ben, Mom writes me every week.

B—What's this? Didn't ya tell me that ya lived in Atlanta?

J—Yeah, what about it?

B—Then why does this here say Marietta?

J—Because, that's where Mom lives.

B—Oh, then ya must live with yur dad in Atlanta.

J—No, no, we all live in Marietta.

B—But I thought ya said Atlanta.

J—I did. But it's like, nobody really lives in Atlanta, that's just where we say we live to cut down on confusion.

B—Seems to me it creates confusion. In South Georgia we just say where we live at.

J—That's because you and everybody else from down here know where all those little hick towns are.

B—Yep, I s'ppose yur right, but I know where Marietta is, too. But, now, I kinda like livin' in a small town.

J—Oh, man. Those towns are deadsville. There is nothing to do in those places. Now in Atlanta we've got just about anything. Malls, concerts, sports—

B—Sports? Humnph. With the exception of the high-flying Hawks, Atlanta sports ain't nuthin' to be proud of. The Falcons play tomfool football and the Braves oughta order some 2x4s for bats. And the fans only support 'em if they're winning. Let 'em lose one game and the fans are gone. In our town we hang in there with our boys no matter how they do.

J—Well, that's because you have nothing to do except sit around on your farms and watch cable T.V. or count the gnats. In Atlanta we've got so much to do. It's like, down here there isn't anywhere to use my Macy's card. And I can't find Polo shirts or my Calvin's. There's just nowhere to spend the money my dad sends me."

B—Shoot, we jest go on out to the K-mart and git some Levi's.

J—Man, you just don't understand. We've got malls all over the city. You can spend all day wandering around in them.

B—Ya can't go to but one store at the time, so what good does it do to have so many that ya can't go to 'em all? I still say Atlanta is no big thrill.

J—But we've got culture, real culture that you can't even imagine.

B—Like what?

J—There are movie theaters all over the place and great places to eat. Bowling alleys with 50 lanes or more and ice skating. Plus record stores and video arcades that never close.

B—Yep, I s'ppose you do. We got some of them around here, but I guess we miss out on the best part. They say getting there's half the fun, and from what I hear ya'll spend a lot of time getting there in Atlanta. We just don't have them wonderful freeways like ya'll do.

J—You sure don't.

B—Well, what I can't understand is why ya'll want to come down here to school. I thought maybe it was 'cause Statesboro had a mall and I know ya'll are kind of big on those, but I don't reckon that's it.

J—You call that a mall? I couldn't find enough stuff in there to make it worth shopping. I never spend less than $250 on a shopping trip.

B—Well, Savannah ain't too far if ya gotta have somethin'.

J—I thought it was a lot closer, like maybe Statesboro was a suburb of Savannah. Seems like we went through it sometimes on our way to Tallahassee.

B—What? To Tallahassee? Whatever you say. I think it's jest so ya can come here where nobody knows who ya are and wear those funny lookin' clothes.

J—Funny looking clothes? Man, have you ever seen GQ? Every time I go home I have to buy something new to be in style. I almost have to sneak into Atlanta so I won't be laughed at.

B—Well, down here don't nobody know nothing much about what's in style. We jest wear what we like and what's comfortable.

J—Being down here does ease my wardrobe a bit. I had trouble getting all my clothes in the van and the car fall quarter. With my stereo, color TV, and the VCR there just wasn't enough room.

B—Uh-huh. Ya know some say that ya'll jest weren't smart enough to go to them there high-fallutin' institutions of high learning like Georgia State, Clayton, or Kennesaw. An' I heard that Marietta Vo-Tech is really tough."

J—Now hold on there. I had a very good reason for coming down here. Dad promised me a car if I did. Now I can go to Atlanta and cruise every weekend.

B—I thought ya went home to see yur folks.

J—No, just to drive around and be in Atlanta. Hey, I've got to go. See ya, 'round.

T—Hey, Ben, who was that you was talking to?

B—Hi, Hom. Jonathan. He's one of them Atlantans. They're a strange bunch.

T—Yeah, but we gotta get used to them. Sherman's dead, ya know.

B—Kind of a shame, ain't it?

Count down to Spring Break

By RUSS L. BROCK
Staff Writer

Here we are just past the mid-point of winter quarter, and we are experiencing a wonderful break in the winter weather with spring-like days that are just whetting our appetites for that annual college ritual—spring break spent at one of the beautiful beaches in sunny Florida!

Now for the bad news. Winter, the cold, calculating culprit that it is, has lured us into a false sense of security. Hiding beneath the layers of winter wardrobe has been an ever expanding waistline. Have you caught yourself NOT standing in front of the oh-so-brutally-honest mirror when you are getting dressed? Does the thought of your reflection in a full-width mirror send shivers up your well-insulated spine? If you answer yes to any of these questions, then you better get ready to start shaping up or this year's spring break may become a very forgettable experience.

First, don't panic. You have time to rid yourself of those winter poundages in time to hit the beach. Do not crash diet. If you do, those missing inches will come back, only this time they'll be back with reinforcements.

Do not cut back drastically on the amount you eat, but just eliminate what you eat that will put those layers of adipose tissue on you. Cut out all fried foods, butter/margarine, red meat, and all unnatural sugars. The unnatural sugars are the ones you consume in soft drinks, ice cream, desserts, etc. Drink only water as your beverage. This may seem like a difficult regimen but do remember that it is only for about four weeks.

Incorporate into your schedule at let one hour for aerobic exercise of, some sort. If you cannot get into an aerobics class, simply begin some light running. If for some physical reason you are unable to run, walking burns the exact same calories as running if the same distance is covered. GSC has an excellent weight room for firming up those flabby muscles. Just be sure to get into your exercise program slowly so you won't get too sore and get discouraged. Don't be lured by anyone to try and do a million sit-ups. The best way to tighten up those stomach muscles is to do sets of ten to fifteen on a steep incline board or with a weight on your chest to increase the resistance.

As you get into your weight "adjustment" program more and more, make the mirror your ally. It will tell you how well (or not) you are doing and to keep up the good work. Stick to it and you will not have to fear any chuckles behind your bulging buttocks, let alone any whaling ships that may be lurking offshore.

Board of Regents
c/o Chancellor "We're a university
& you're not" Propst
Out of Touch Ave.
Atlanta "The Other Georgia," Ga.

Dear Board Members:

We're bored too! This letter is a final plea for university status for Georgia Southern College. It is apparent that the Board is avoiding the issue of university status for GSC.

At the recent dinner to honor the Eagle football team's repeating as national champions, Mr. Propst sent an envoy because he was too busy with the new president of UGA to spend his time on a small-time college like GSC. We realize that you have other responsibilities but be honest, in the unlikelihood that UGA would win a national championship next year, would you be too busy to honor them because of the installation of our new president?

Now let's take a short time out for a little quiz for our non-biased Board Members:

1) During the past year, which school in the university system had the largest percentage increase in enrollment?

2) What school had 89 percent of their seniors on the football team graduate on schedule? (You're right Ms. Kemp, it wasn't the Bulldogs, but don't let the dog, er, cat out of the bag! Let the chancellor guess for himself.)

3) Whose enrollment is expected to increase 15 to 20 percent next year? (Shut up Ms. Kemp you already answered a question!)

Think hard before answering, Chancellor. Is it Georgia? Georgia Tech? Georgia State? Augusta Medical College (giggle, giggle, snort, snort)? Noooo! The answer to all the above is (drum roll please) GEORGIA SOUTHERN COLLEGE!!!!

Attempts at university status through Mr. Propst remind us of the man who tried to teach his pig to sing. Someone finally told the man to quit... "You're wasting your time and annoying the pig!" So Dr. Dale took his advice.

However, in the Chancellor's defense, he has indicated that university status for GSC would be likely in the future. But he failed to clarify whether he meant present future or future generations. Diplomatically speaking, this puts the timetable for university status somewhere between 1987 and the Second Coming!

Board Members, we are calling for citizens of South Georgia to unite! You have left us no alternative but to secede from the University System of Georgia! Our good buddy, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has offered GSC political asylum and university status in his state. Strom said no school in his state had won back-to-back national championships either. Though some might feel this action is extreme, perhaps even radical, Stu and I feel the Regents have left us without any recourse. Citizens unite! The time has come! We must do what we must do, for if we do not do what we must do, then the things that we must do will not get done! Get it?

Truly & sincerely,
Bryce & Stu
P.S. Grab a clue, Chancellor! Even Peter Pan had to grow up, the poor slob!

hits; his seven inning shutout was the longest stint that any GSC pitcher has worked so far this season.

Friday's game proved to be the most productive of the series as the Eagles and Western combined for 34 hits. The Catamounts were able to come back from a 10-3 deficit to defeat the Eagles 14-12. Western's Mike Carson went four for four in the game including the game winning double to put the Catamounts ahead in the ninth inning. Southern was forced to use four pitchers as Carolina pounded out 18 hits. GSC's Jamie Chapman surrendered seven runs on eight hits to take the loss.

The loss overshadowed the exploits of freshman sensation Rob Fitzpatrick who hit homeruns in the first two games of the series including a grand slam. Fitzpatrick, a ninth round draft pick by the New York Mets put the Eagles ahead 10-3 in the fourth inning with his base-clearing blast.

The Eagles are now 2-2 on the young season and now must face a slew of Top 30 teams in the weeks ahead including Georgia Tech, Georgia, Auburn and the hated Gamecocks of South Carolina. Their TAAC conference schedule will begin April 3 against Stetson.

After several years of intense study, a lot of college graduates finally learn something. They're not qualified for the job they want. Fact is, many graduates never find a career in their field of study. All their time spent in study. Not enough time in the field.

That's why there's a nationwide program for college students called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice.

To participate in Co-op Education you don't need to fit into any particular socio-economic group. You don't need to be a straight "A" student either.

All you really need to be, is smart enough to leave school.

Demands for more gym hours to be answered

By MIKE MILLS
Sports Editor

Probably the favorite leisure sport of the casual athlete here at GSC is pick-up basketball in Hanner Fieldhouse and the old gym. But unfortunately, the availability of court time is severely limited by intramurals, the varsity basketball teams and other distractions such as badminton classes, indoor soccer, dances and volleyball.

This situation has put the GSC administration at odds with the student body. The administration is faced with having to satisfy the requirements of the Division IA status of the university by providing court space for a large number of varsity sports. These sports include men and women's basketball, volleyball, and the non-required fencing, indoor soccer, cheerleading, gymnastics, karate and aerobics.

The students naturally want gym space for pick-up basketball, jogging, intramural sports, and weight lifting. Because of the increased enrollment at GSC, severe over crowding occurs even during the free play time available to the student body.

The George-Anne was able to interview Gerald F. Lafferty, the dean of physical education, health and nursing, whose office has direct control over the use of the gymnasium facilities. Lafferty realizes that the problem of availability of gym space exists and claims that his office is doing everything in its power to remedy the situation.

"We are exploring many different solutions to this problem. I have instituted a policy whereby we are freeing up as much court space as possible. The demand for gym space is an extremely controversial subject. The number of groups competing for these spaces is overwhelming. Obviously in the long range, more facilities will have to be constructed to contend with the increased student population," Lafferty stated.

Lafferty is trying to use some immediate measures to solve the gym problem. One of these solutions will be the soon-to-come renovation of the aerobic/gymnastic room that lies across from the weight room in Hanner. The cheerleaders' and gymnastics equipment will be relocated and the small gym will be turned into a fully usable basketball court. This gym will be used only for free play and no other groups such as intramurals, varsity sports or social groups will have access.

Unfortunately, the main gym in Hanner is closed indefinitely to casual student use because of the Tartar floor that now lies there for the varsity basketball team. This floor, which costs $24,000 a year to resurface every year, is susceptible to marking and pitting.

But the complaints from the student body continue. Ross Shearouse, a junior management student here at GSC, feels that the availability of free play hours is limited to a significant degree.

"We never have any chance to play. The gyms are always being used by the teams or are locked and we can't get in. Even when the old gym is open, it is way overcrowded . . . there are just too many students who want to play. On weekends, the doors are always locked and when we find the security officer, he won't unlock the doors," Shearouse complained.

Lafferty insists that measures are being taken to relieve the weekend problem of free play. He has hired new security officers with instructions to open the old gym on weekends from 1 to 11 p.m. Students have been hired to check I.D.s in an effort to keep non-students from using the gym, and that has helped to free up some of the gym areas.

Lafferty knows that the problem is not an easy one to solve. "We are sympathetic to the students' needs. We are in a difficult situation here. We have limited space and everyone wants a part of it. The main gymnasium is considered by the local population to be their property. Any major events are naturally scheduled in Hanner . . . we've had circuses, concerts, graduations, meetings and even wrestling here . . . the answer is to build new facilities, but right now we have to make do with what we have," Lafferty said.

The problem of free play in Hanner complex continues. There are no easy answers to this problem. The administration is doing what it can to help, but students continue to look forlornly at locked doors and occupied gym space. Ross Shearouse said it best when he stated, "All we want to do is to play basketball. When the gyms are open they are too crowded . . . it is frustrating."

GSC Football inks 24 new signees

By LANCE SMITH
Assistant Sports Editor

Weeks and months of hard recruiting came to an end for the GSC coaches on Wednesday, Feb. 11 as Southern announced the signing of 24 prospects to national letters-of-intent.

Twenty of GSC's 24 signees were homegrown prospects from Georgia, while three, Alex Brown, Tom McSunus, and Gene Scott, were from Florida. The other was quarterback Freddy Cuthbertson from Harrisburg, Pa.

"This is the best recruiting class on paper that we've had since 1982, when we signed Ham, the Harrises, and Monte Sharpe," Coach Russell said. "We needed to fill some holes in the offensive line and backfield and all areas on defense. I think we've been able to do that."

Quarterback Raymond Gross of Bradwell Institute and running back Joe Ross of Augusta, who snubbed Virginia for GSC, headlined the signees. During Gross's senior year, he ran 146 times for 797 yards and 11 touchdowns and passed for 1,011 yards and nine TDs. Ross led Westside High in rushing with 2,133 yards and scored 22 touchdowns.

Defensive lineman Matt Spaulding of Dunwoody chose GSC over Georgia. Darryl Belser, brother of Eagle wide receiver Tony Belser, was a Class AAA honorable mention all-state selection and chose Southern. Rounding out the recruiting coups was Darryl Hopkins, a Class AA all-state running back from Oconee County.

Eagles split pair with Western Carolina

The baseball Eagles were in action this last weekend on a four game tilt with the Catamounts of Western Carolina. Southern managed a split, winning the Thursday and Saturday contests. The Catamounts are highly ranked in many of the preseason baseball polls this year and are unanimous choice to win the Southern Conference in baseball.

On Saturday, the Eagles posted the most impressive win of the series with a 10-0 whitewashing of Western Carolina. Southern pitchers Keith Richardson and Russell Hendricks combined for a three hit, no error shutout of the visiting Catamounts.

The Eagles managed 11 hits but had only one extra base hit on a double by freshman first baseman Brett

Hendley who went three for four on the afternoon.

Richardson worked seven innings and gave up all of the Catamount's

Three point shot has long range implications

By RYAN BLAKE
Sports Writer

Each campus in the college basketball world is lining up its best long-range shooters to contend with one of the most controversial additions to any major sport: the three point basket. This new innovation is 19 foot 9 inch shot that have many of the college basketball observers confused and worried for the future of the game.

Mike Stokes lead TAAC in three-pointers.

The rule was voted in by Ed Scitzes, the chairman of the Rules Committee and athletic director of Springfield College. The three point shot has been experimented with for a number of years in varying lengths and different leagues.

The further we get into the college season, the more the Division IA coaches seem to disagree on the merit of the shot.

"It's ruining the game," GSC Head Coach Frank Kerns says. "[Basketball is] the only sport that gets a reward for retreating."

Kerns is not alone; a recent survey of Division I coaches revealed that 64 percent of all coaches are in favor of abolishment of the three point shot. This poll, conducted by Off the Glass magazine, interviewed 284 Division IA coaches, and only 32 percent of whom agreed with the new rule.

It seems that the prevailing reason for dislike of the rule has to do with the relatively short distance from the shooter to the basket.

"It's entirely too short," remarked Kerns. "If a player shoots 33 percent from the three point line, he is as crucial as a player shooting 50 percent from the inside."

The rule was brought into effect in order to break up the rough play in the paint, the zone defenses and to lessen the effect of the dominating big man. A man-to-man defense was expected to be used to counter the three pointer, but according to Kerns the zone defense is still being used and the rough play underneath the goal has not lessened at all.

The coaches seem to be the only ones who dislike the new rule. Both the fans and the media contend that the three pointer makes the game much faster and more exciting.

The three point rule has both helped and hurt the Eagles. In the TAAC, the Eagles are second in three point efficiency with point guard Michael Stokes leading the league in three point shooting percentage. But GSC is next to last in three point shooting defense and the three pointer has figured decisively in many of the GSC's losses.

The general consensus of the knowledgeable basketball authorities is that the three point line will be moved back to 21 feet next year.

Cagers drop pair in recent Florida trip

By LANCE SMITH
Assistant Sports Editor

GSC stumbled miserably on its tour of Florida as Southern lost 68-61 in overtime to Stetson and suffered an embarrassing 61-59 loss to Division II opponent Central Florida.

Against the Hatters of Stetson University, GSC led for almost the entire game by pushing the ball inside for easy shots. In fact, the Eagles seemed to have the game in hand as it led 55-50 with :08 remaining in the game. But, as fate would have it, Michael Stokes missed a free throw and Stetson canned a three-pointer with :02 left. A foul on Stokes on the inbounds play allowed Stetson to sink both free throws and force overtime.

Coach Kerns would not comment on the call, but did comment on the game.

Kern's hoopsters discuss game strategy.

He said, "It's the most brutal loss I can remember . . . Poor coaching and bad luck cheated us out of victory."

Stokes looks to reverse losing trend.

Special Photo

GSC was led in scoring by Michael Stokes who poured in 14 points. The Eagles' leading scorer Brian Newton was held to only nine points. Three Southern players, J.J. Jones, Jeff Sanders, and Mike Curry, all finished with eight points. Top reserve Willis Holliday canned seven points.

Stetson continued its home unbeaten streak for the season with the 69-61 victory over GSC.

Southern suffered perhaps its most demoralizing loss of the season as the Division II Knights of Central Florida squeaked past GSC 61-59. Senior forward John Friday tossed in a layup with four seconds left in the game to seal the victory.

With the loss, Southern's record dropped to 14-9 for the season while its TAAC record remained at 9-5. Central Florida's record improved to 9-13.

Kerns was not pleased with the Eagles' performance. He said, "We just had a little adversity and couldn't handle it. There were some tough officiating calls that went against us, but basically we just didn't do the things we needed to do to win the game."

GSC was led by sophomore center Jeff Sanders who poured in 15 points and Anthony Forrest who added 13. Brian Newton suffered his second sub-par performance by scoring just seven points, while reserve guard Willis Holliday could net only two points.

GSC led by as many as 14 points in the first half and carried a 34-26 lead into halftime. But Southern saw its

JOCK & GUYS

Tank and Moose emulate professional journalist.

Special Photo

Yo! Tank and Moose here—The heavily imbibing Jock Guys! Well, baseball is finally here. College basketball is winding down toward the NCAA Tournament and the NBA just finished their all-star break. So, we have a lot to talk about this week.

Did you see the All-Star break? The slam dunk contest was boring without Dominique and Spud Webb. Wasn't obvious that Jordan was going to win? Who else can fly sideways after taking off from the foul line, double clutch, and slam the ball over the rim? Nobody on this planet.

Had anyone seen a sadder face than Detlef Shrempf's when he saw Larry Bird casually hit eight three-pointers in the final round of the long range shooting tournament? The only way that Bird is going to get beat in the three-point contest is if he gets knocked out in the first round or when Seton Hall wins the Big East.

The professional baseball players are getting down to spring training and that can only mean that the arbitration disputes have started. Rumour has it that Bob Horner demanded that he get five million dollars or he would DIE. Apparently Oral Roberts was his agent.

The Braves seem to have traded everyone but Dale Murphy. This year will be different . . . no more heartbreak at the end of the season as the lowly Braves finish last again. No more despair as the Braves drop a four game series to the Dodgers in July. We now know that they are going to finish last and smash the hopes of fans all over the nation. This year we are going to go with a real winner. A team that has a chance to finish in the top five of their division. We think we'll choose the Seattle Mariners.

***

Does it seem that the Big East plays at least 60 games a season? We swear that Dick Vitale is sick of seeing John Thomson every night. Also, do any of the Big East teams ever play on their home court? Maybe should join the NBA since they play every game on pro courts.

Well, another week, another column. We hear that Biff and Dash maybe back to cover a play or some other pansy event. They'll probably wear those pink shirts with the fruit loop in the back. Whoops! Time for wrestling and another BEER. We can't wait for Wrestlemania III . . . that's fine entertainment. Those guys are a throwback to the time when men were men and women were men too! Hang loose Bud and we'll catch you next week.

Lady Eagles whip FAMU

By MIKE MILLS

Once again the GSC Lady Eagles let the New South Conference know that they are the team to beat as Southern defeated the Lady Rattlerettes of Florida A&M 70-59.

shoot 31 of 60 from the field and led handily throughout the game.

The Eagles, who have lost but one conference game this season to Georgia State on Thursday night, improved their league-leading record to 15-7 overall and 6-1 in the conference. With the win over FAMU, the Eagles now lead the New South by a full two games with only three conference games to go this season.

Florida A&M was led by April Manning at 18 points, Latrice Shotwell at 14, Cynthia Williams with 11 and Sharon Cliett with 10.

GSC seems to be in the driving seat in the New South as they wind up the regular season, heading into the Tournament that will be held at Hanner Field House on March 5-7. The Lady Eagles' remaining opponents are Central Florida, Stetson, and Mercer; with the regular season final against non-conference opponent Baptist on Feb. 28.

Regina Days drives toward playoffs.

Special Photo

This was the second time that GSC has defeated FAMU this season; the previous game had Southern destroying the Rattlers 80-53.

The Eagles were lead by high-flying Phyllette Blake, who had 27 points and 23 rebounds in this key New South matchup. Other Lady Eagle top scorers were Regina Days at 14 points, Carla Sisson at 12 points and Sharon Thomas at 10 points.

FAMU shot well under 50 percent from the field on 26 of 84 shooting. Over the two game series, Southern's defense and excellent team play took away the shot from the normally high-scoring Lady Rattlers. GSC was able to
