Officials plan to reopen Deal Hall as brothel

By Larry Flynt

Staff Writer

Department of Housing officials have announced plans to turn a vacant Deal Hall into a brothel beginning fall quarter.

Assistant Director of Housing for Student Affairs Vickie Hawkins said the controversial decision was made for purely economic decisions. "With nothing else to do with the deserted dorm, we couldn't think of anything that could put the building to better use and at the same time turn a tidy profit," she said.

Early estimates put the amount of money a brothel could earn at well over $500,000 a year. "A half-million dollars every year will do wonders for the housing situation. New dorms galore!" she exclaimed.

When asked of the legal implications of such a project, Hawkins explained that, since GSC is a nonprofit organization, "we don't have to worry about the feds."

"Besides," she added, "this sort of thing has been going on under our noses for years in Johnson, so it's about time we got a piece of the action."

Evidently, the plans include the recruitment of girls from the underground sex-for-sale program currently taking place at Johnson. "We'll give the girls a free room at Deal, 50% of their profits, and all the clean sheets they need," Hawkins said.

This plan is evidently very popular with the girls. "Sounds great to me. I haven't had clean sheets in months," said freshman flesh entrepreneur Dana Rimshot.

Heading up the project as supervisor of the "ladies" will be former Assistant Director of Housing for Assignments Louise Screws. "People have been addressing me as 'madame' for years so I guess I'm finally taking it to heart," she said.

According to Hawkins, the biggest hurdle for the project to clear was gaining approval from President Henry, but even that turned out to be not much of a problem. "A few of the girls helped convince him [Henry] of the merits of the project and he responded quite well," she said.

Henry was obviously delighted. "Yessiree, them gals are great," he said.

DUI's on sale ...this week

By D. U. Istanbul

GSC officials have teamed up with the Statesboro Police Department to offer students a 75% discount on DUI's and DWI's this week only, according to Vice President of Student Affairs John Nolen.

"When the police department first came to me with the idea, I burst out laughing," said Nolen at a press conference last Saturday night. "I was laughing so hard I had to leave the room."

GSC students are not sure what to think about the issue.

"I think it's a good idea but I wouldn't want to do it right now [get a DUI]; it's too cold out, especially if you're in a convertible," said one WVGS staff member.

Another GSC student who supported the discount said, "Maybe they'll only put 25% of a DUI on my record if I get 75% off-maybe they'll give me a discount on my insurance too!"

Officials, on the other hand, are completely supportive of the idea. "Hopefully, this will help them [students] get all of this nonsense out of their systems," Sheriff Herald Aikins said.

One-hundred Campus Security officers will reportedly be assisting the Statesboro Police Department in the program.

Local voters favor Jake

Jake-the-Snake, 8, a 6'8" boa constrictor from the Georgia Southern Museum, will be running for president of the Student Government Association this quarter.

"If the students show enough support, Jake just may run for U.S. president," said Tom Grovenstein, Jake's spokesman. "Look out, Bush!"

After years of observing the many students at GSC, Jake has compiled several suggestions for improvements in student activities, school spirit and education.

Student activities include: a slip-n-slide located in the common grounds between Williams Center and the Administration Building, a go-cart track around the lake, and a frisbee golf course in Sweetheart Circle.

To promote school spirit, a pep rally will be held in Hanner Fieldhouse every Friday to have the world's greatest toilet paper toss.

In addition, the core curriculum will be terminated, along with the GPA requirements.

Please vote for Jake-the-Snake, the Ultimate Party Reptile, April 14 in Williams Center.

And thank you for your support.

Admission standards skyrocket

By Jeffrey Bean

In a re-evaluation of its admission requirements for fall quarter of 1988, GSC decided to raise the standards by 159% from the previous proposal making it necessary for new applicants to hold an SAT score of 1650 and a high school grade point average of 5.0.

According to Johnny Frick, GSC's old admission requirements were incompatible with those of the larger universities in Georgia and he feels that the new standards are even more incompatible.

Head football coach Erk Russell is strongly opposed to the new hike. "How the hell am I gonna find smart fellers who can pass their classes and the ball at the same time? For cryin' out loud! What next?!" said Russell. "And you can take THAT all the way to the press!" he added.

One-hundred Campus Security officers reportedly share Russell's feelings.

GSC installs Family Planning Centers

By Justo Condo

GSC will install 500 new "Family Planning Center" dispensers containing prophylactics and related devices in the restrooms across campus to assist in the prevention of AIDS and to facilitate student purchases of such "embarrassing" items. According to Larry Smitte of Plant Operations, the idea was conceived from various bathrooms in other cities in Georgia.

"Just about every public restroom in Atlanta is equipped with this nifty little dispenser; GSC thought it was a good move in the direction of AIDS prevention and, besides, you can have a little fun with it at the same time," said Smitte.

The new dispensers, which charge customers 50 cents for a condom or one of three other various items, will be distributed throughout the campus, in the dormitories, in the faculty administration buildings, in the class buildings, and other selected bathrooms with a private one in the According to Plant Operations, 50 dispensers were installed at GSC for a trial period and have had so much success that the dispensers themselves will become a permanent addition campus-wide.

One adamant supporter of the new dispensers is the campus radio station, WVGS 91.9. GSC students see the new dispensers as having entertainment value.

"When I first began school here three years ago, I would have never guessed that GSC would become 'Condom Capital of the World,'" said Linda Lew, a senior at GSC. "They [the dispensers] have blue condoms, regular ones, black lace ones, ones with things on them; I can't believe the things that come out of that machine," added Lew, pointing to the bathroom across the hall from her classroom in Hollis.

According to Lew, many students say that they are offended by the new dispensers but usage continues to grow. "I see girls in there all the time buying them just to look at them; I don't know anyone that uses them, but I'm SURE they do."

One male student said, "Wow, 'Dispensers from Hell'--I think they're hilarious. I believe that everyone should use them. That way, you can get your piece of the rock and not have to worry about it getting you back."

One-hundred Campus Security officers will reportedly be the first to use the new machines.

Rad! Surfers invade the 'Boro

By Barton Lynch

Surfer Guy

The world's top surfers are in town this week for a stayover in preparation for the Tybee Pro surf contest to be held through Sunday.

"Savannah has some killer hotels, but nothing can match the service and five-star accommodations offered by the Stiles Motel--not to mention the hot Statesboro night life. All these girls!"

said current world champ Tommy Curren of the Association of Surfing Professionals' decision to choose Statesboro as the contest headquarters.

The contest will be held at 16th Street on Tybee Island starting today with a series of two-man elimination heats. The finals will be held Sunday at noon. "We're really stoked about surfing the island," said Australian

Mark Occilupo, currently rated third in the World Championship race. "Sure, Hawaii has great waves, but when it comes to power and consistency, Tybee's the spot."

Surf legend and fellow-Australian Mark Richards echoed Occilupo's feelings. "I've surfed all over the planet--Fiji, Uluwatu, Hawaii, back home, you name it. But I've never seen anything as outrageous as Tybee's tubes. It's way better than Pipeline even," he said.

Before the contest, some of the pros held a clinic at Eagle Creek for some of GSC's surfers. "It was killer seeing all these guys, who I had only read about in Surfer magazine, actually

Campus cops can crank callers

By Mike W. Swain

Staff Writer

A recent string of obscene telephone calls which had continued over a period of four months has finally been ended, thanks to the combined efforts of a group composed of officers from the Statesboro and Bulloch County Police departments and the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

Captain Bill Neville of the GBI, spokesperson for this group officially known as the Sexual Misconduct Undercover Team (known affectionately as SMUT), disclosed that his department was brought into the case in mid-February when the number of such phone calls began reaching maximum proportions.

"Apparently, the caller or callers was simply going down the alphabet, dialing the numbers of people listed in the phone book," said Neville.

Garbage can overturns

By Wally Shore

Staff Writer

GSC's largest garbage can overturned yesterday as a result of a particularly blustery gust of wind, Campus Security officials reported.

No one was injured in the incident, however. "It was really fortunate nobody was killed, considering the size of the thing," Captain Bob NeSmith of the Department of Public Safety said.

The can involved is located behind Veazey Hall between Lewis and Hendrix Halls, reports indicated.

GSC Dancers Prepare for Inaugural Festivities

By Alowz E. Guy

The inauguration of new president Nicholas Henry promises to be a real event here at GSC. Along with many other campus organizations, the GSC Dancers are planning a special recital in honor of our new president.

Ms. F. Artsy, director and choreographer of the troupe, described the performance as, "violent, yet gentle; passionate, yet chaste; modern, yet classical. This is art, art at its most exquisite and sublime."

Ms. Artsy emphasizes that she tries to make a statement with her dance. "This particular dance is an allegory of repression . . . it's about ripping the veils from our eyes and seeing life as it really is."

A staff member who witnessed a rehearsal of the performance concurred, "There is nothing veiled on those girls!"

The thirty-minute dance is a dramatization in dance of the life of that revered twentieth-century cultural hero, Prince, which includes both his early days and his later superstardom. Older faculty members with weak hearts have been advised not to attend.

"It's certainly not for everyone," gasped one shaken observer. "I don't want to give anything away, but there's lots of whipped cream and leather . . . Ideally, they should end this show by providing cold showers for the audience. I can't wait till the inauguration!"

Ms. Artsy is a new faculty member who hopes that the new spirit she has expressed in this show will become a GSC tradition. "I feel that my three years as a dancer on Solid Gold have more than prepared me for a position as a GSC professor. After all, nothing can replace experience in the art world."

Henry is reportedly enthusiastic about the theme and content of the show. According to one anonymous source in the President's Office, "Oh, yes, he's a big Prince fan. Sometimes, late on Friday afternoon when he thinks everyone's gone home, we catch him lip-synching to Prince videos in his office. It's an open secret in the Administration Building."

The performance will be held on April 26 in McCroan Auditorium.

Several civic groups, including

Mysterious Creature Roams Campus

By S. Holmes

Ace Crime- and Strange Stuff Reporter

An unusual creature was sighted on the evening of March 31 around 9 p.m. swimming sedately through the pond by the library. The observer was one Edward Burlington, who was returning to his dorm from a night job.

"It was terrible," reported Mr. Burlington, "I'll never forget that, ever! I feared for my life!"

With horrified eyes, the witness saw the creature slither up the bank. An ordinary goose from the neck up, this creature sported the addition of a huge serpentine tail. Startled by the young man, the creature reared up, dived into the lake, and disappeared into the night.

After hearing the description of the creature, one biology professor was quoted as saying, "It's amazing! I didn't think there were any left. Imagine having one in our lake."

An artist's representation of the elusive gooseosaurus which lurks in the depths of the GSC lake.

The professor refused to commit himself, but speculated that the creature might be the mysterious gooseosaurus, primitive forerunner of today's goose.

"If I'm right," he said, "we have a major scientific discovery on our hands. The GSC lake is amazingly similar to the primordial slime. Who knows what's down there?"

To further investigate this phenomenon, the Federal Government is flying in a special team of research scientists, experts in the evolutionary field. According to all reports, the scientists anticipate a major breakthrough inspired by "Old Spikeosaurus," as the creature is coming to be known on campus.

One administrator saw in the creature even more possibilities. "The state will have to make us a university now that we have a tourist attraction. I'm proposing that we change the proposed Lakeside Cafe to the Official Monster Spotting Place. We can sell gooseosaurus T-shirts, gooseosaurus license plates, gooseosaurus underwear. Who knows? Maybe even someday . . . The Georgia Southern Gooseosauri! Hey, if Santa Cruz's mascot is a banana slug, anything's possible!"

Meanwhile, the GSC lake lies as murky and mysterious as ever. And somewhere, in its impenetrable depths, swims a living legend and a fantastic financial opportunity.

The traditional college student writes home to Mom asking for cookies, cake, and other contributions. Here at GSC, however, students often write home asking Mom to learn to cook Landrum-style.

"I don't know what's wrong with my little Scooter," sobbed one distraught mother, "but ever since he went off, he won't eat plain ole turnip greens 'n corn pone anymore. He wants that fancy food like they cook up to the college."

A recent government study showed that Polo, a popular men's cologne, has been found to cause sterility in males. Heavy usage, defined as a daily "splash," even elicits the development of secondary female characteristics such as loss of body hair, high-pitched voice, lesser muscle development, and, in certain cases, breast development.

Because of the popularity of the cologne, the government withheld the results of the study, for fear of causing a national panic.

The details of the study were revealed to the George-Anne by one of the original research scientists, a professor here at GSC, on the condition that we protect his identity.

"Dr. X" told us that the study took place over a five-year period and involved 200 subjects between the ages of 15 and 35 years of age.

When the World Stood Still . . .

By Wim N. Haifer

Ghost Writer

An incredible event in history took place on Friday, March 25, at precisely 3:25 p.m., an equivalent or repetition of which we are not likely to see in our lifetimes: Everything on campus went right.

"It was almost as if, for one brief moment, the world stopped dead in its tracks and then started turning in reverse," said a bewildered Billy McBride as he sat at a stone bench outside the Williams Center, staring dazedly at his hands.

On this day, extraordinary things were noted all over campus, as reported by numerous befuddled observers. In his Creative Writing class, Dr. Humma admitted that he had privately read a number of the novels by Stephen King and secretly found them to have more literary worth than those of D. H. Lawrence. During a rather lengthy telephone conversation with a fellow professor from Duke, Dr. Hew Joiner actually completed a sentence which contained simply a subject, verb, and complete complement without exceeding two syllables for any one word.

One biology professor is reported to have said to his Bio 151 class that he realized he had made a mistake as an undergraduate in his choice of careers. He declared that the only science worth studying is English. Even a Resident Assistant in Winburn Hall got into the act by declaring her wish that 24-hour visitation would be put into practice in the Nunnery. Other confused persons noted that the girls on campus even opened doors for the guys and volunteered to carry their books and other essentials. These females refused to speak unless some male talked to them first.

Needless to say, it was a moment of total chaos, a moment when everything in our known section of the universe turned topsy-turvy.

Though campus scientists have searched diligently for the cause of such an event, it has yielded no plausible explanation. Therefore, researchers (and all concerned parties) can only wait and hope that a similar phenomenon does not happen again.

Tips for spring quarter

With Spring Break a thing of the past and the new quarter well underway, the George-Anne would like to offer a few of our favorite spring quarter survival tips to help get you through this last and most difficult quarter.

Remember that your tan comes before all else. Your tan is much more than mere skin pigmentation; it is a reflection of your true worth as an individual and is therefore worthy of any and every effort you can make to improve upon it. We recommend skipping any and all classes which may conflict with prime tan time, as well as enrollment in any one of Statesboro's fine tanning salons. Why tan in the sun for free when you can spend lots of money to have the same thing done artificially? Don't worry about wrinkles or skin cancer; just remember that anything worth having is worth suffering for.

Always drive your car to class. Sure, it may be a sunny 89 degrees outside, but what can possibly beat the thrill of driving those 200 yards to class in air-conditioned bliss? Don't worry about parking tickets either; paying $5 for a parking space is common fare in most large cities.

Remember that nobody really expects you to learn anything over spring quarter. Who could possibly concentrate on calculus when the temperature rises above 60? Ask to have class held outside or, better yet, to have class cancelled every Friday. Don't feel bad about loud yawns in the middle of class or staring out the window all period. These are simply commonly accepted ways of letting your professor know when your attention span is at a minimum and that class should end early.

Your spring wardrobe should consist of only the tightest shorts, the shortest halters, and lots of baby oil. Why work so hard on a tan if you don't show it off? Wearing clothes that leave little to the imagination not only helps you attract members of the opposite sex by displaying your assets but also distracts most professors to the point that they completely lose their train of thought and have to call off class early.

Finally, never stay in town over the weekend. Head for the beach, go home, or go shopping in Savannah, but under no circumstances should you abide in the 'Boro when you don't absolutely have to be here. Fortunately, most students already have lots of practice at this important ritual of GSC life.

Due to the complete incompetence and utter mindlessness of the present staff, the editor of the Boy-George-Anne is seeking a completely new editorial board and staff. If you would like to become part of the fastest shrinking and least respected group at Georgia Southern just stop by our office and we'll give you a job! Remember, you can't be any worse than Mike Mills or Ryan Blake!

Physics Dept. linked to SDI

By Mike Klug

Chief Babysitter

Well, it was bound to happen sooner or later, and now it has. Secret sources within the school have finally revealed that the GSC physics department is indeed working toward completion of a major component in the Strategic Defense Initiative ("Star Wars") Program.

It all began when President Reagan and his capable and competent cabinet were convinced by the Military Industrial Complex that there was a window of vulnerability here in south Georgia.

They concluded that any Soviet missile sub could, with minimal effort, disguise itself as a bass boat full of bass-fishing rednecks and cruise right up the Savannah river.

From there the Soviets would be able to launch a short-range attack right into the heart of South Georgia, wiping out hundreds of opossums, lots of kudzu, and a few registered voters.

At first the cabinet argued that the voters were probably Democrats anyway and therefore deserved to perish in a Commie nuclear fireball, but, after much pleading by Nancy Reagan on behalf of the opossums and kudzu, the President finally decided on a course of action.

After an exhausting search for a suitable defense site, a special committee fell prey to Southern's claims of Academic Excellence and opted to place the multi-billion-dollar missile defence station here at GSC.

The next step in this incredible charade was the entrenchment of a CIA mole right here in our own physics department.

The CIA chose an innocent, if not somewhat ignorant, agent and planted him here under the guise of C.M. Mobley. Mobley's main function was to clear all other physics professors for the top secret work which was soon to ensue (especially that strange Greek guy with the funny accent).

From the editor's desk...

The GSC physics department received a five-billion-dollar grant to research, design, and build a clandestine missile zapping system right here on our campus. The result of this work is the seemingly innocent radar dish right outside the GSC Conference Center.

While this structure may appear to be just another one of the noxious sky suckers that have recently come to litter the countryside, it is indeed a high-intensity radar-tracking system, missile guidance jammer, and hotdog cooker.

The hotdog-cooker part was not originally part of the design but was later added by the industrious (and hungry) John Olsen and Darell Ripply as they worked long hours assembling and painting the dish of death.

Further investigation has revealed that the project was completed under budget and the excess funds spent to buy beer, suspenders, and auto radar detectors for the physics faculty.

Sources in the department claim that the project was kept secret in order to avoid the massive student protests that are so common here at GSC.

They were also afraid that the geology department would learn that funds were available for such research and would immediately submit a counter-proposal to build a system which would shoot down incoming missiles with rocks or dead shrimp.

Pictured above is the newest installation in SDI research located here on the GSC campus. Note the sophisticated hotdog cooker at the apex of the antenna.

What many students fail to realize is that the location of the defense station on the GSC campus makes us all a primary first-strike target! Right now there are probably 20 or 30 megatons just waiting for the chance to blow the Administration Building into the next century!

Sure, the people who built the thing may say that it's safe but, if it will cook a hotdog in under 30 seconds, just think of the damage it could do to the brains of passing sorority girls.

Now is the time for action! Let the government know what you think of its South Georgia Initiative and the whole Star Wars system.

Write to your senator and congressman and tell them all to stop wasting your money on weapons of destruction while people go homeless in the streets. But most of all be sure to attend the SGA-organized student rally at the radar site this afternoon.

One other thing: Don't forget your hotdogs!

Letters to the editor . . .

Curmudgeon has got to go

Dear Editor-

I am writing this letter in reference to the obviously disturbed individual that writes under the pseudonym of the "Curmudgeon". I strongly suggest counseling for this disturbed person and intensive therapy followed by excruciating months of electroshock treatment.

Obviously your negative attitudes toward life in general are being manifested through an extremely high sperm count and a lack of sexual abilities. Your deep-seated resentments toward women obviously stem from your "impotent" advances toward the fair sex. The knife that you wear on your hip is surely a phallic symbol or is it often utilized to relieve confinement in the presence of members of the opposite sex?

The epitaph, "Klug the Slug", is applicable since you are slimy, disgusting and terribly insecure. I remember when I was three or four years old and learning to tie my shoes, my mother took away my black, Pilgrim "buckled" shoes to enhance my education. Your buckle fetish is represented by a "Buckle fixation" that stemmed from masochistic pleasures derived from an early age.

Seek the help that you need! You are a Geology student, aren't you? Save the Mososaur later and yourself first. Seek the guidance you need in the Black Hills of South Dakota and save us from your misguided drivels. Die Curmudgeon, cretin scum-bag! (P.S. Throw away Jimmy Swaggart's phone number!)

Dr. Nicholas Henry

Letter policy . . .

All letters to the editor are subject to standard editing policies for taste, libel, etc. In fact, any letters received which the editor feels are in good taste are summarily rejected. Other letters are rewritten to conform to the editor's own peculiar tastes. The editor reserves the right to reject any letter and frequently does. There is no word limit on letters and are published on a first come, first served basis. Letters should address certain issues and not attack individuals. All letters MUST BE SIGNED. The letter writer may request to remain anonymous. However, it will be the editor's decision whether or not to print the name. And it's your tough luck.

What, Justo right?

Dear Editor-

"We love Justo, yes we do, cause the Bible told us to..."

This letter is in response to the article written by Justo Condo concerning the Pep Band and the Cheerleaders winning the $ 100 spirit award during the men's basketball game.

You are absolutely correct in your comment that told the truth about the undermining scheme to award the money to the band and cheerleaders. Although the Pep Band and Cheerleaders have been at every home game since the Christmas break, we feel that we are not very deserving of the spirit award.

Being a member of the band, I cannot speak for the cheerleaders, but I can say that we are very enthused by your exceptional talent and fact finding abilities. Obviously you realize we did not sign up for the contest and as a result it was impossible for us to fairly win. Although we all work hard at what we do, and do not receive enough attention, I think you are God and should help me to give birth next month. I'm eight months pregnant. You did not insult the band and have a nice day.

P.S. Tell Curmudgeon to find the after-life.

We miss 'em...

Dear Editor-

Bring back Biff and Dash! We miss them and pine for their return. Never have two individuals done so much for so little and heartened the very existences of the unfortunate of the world. We lust after their firm, healthy bodies and keenly insightful minds.

Just the sight of them once a year at the homecoming parade was enough to satisfy our fantasy needs for an entire year. We laughed like we have never laughed before when we read their witty insights and razor-sharp wit. When God created the perfect man, he had Biff and Dash in mind.

Please get pictures of their backsides for our desperate attempts to fantasize with these divine beings. God, we love them so and we just can't get enough. Big kisses X O X O X O X O . O O O O O O O h h h h h h h h ! AAAAAAhhhhhhhhhh! Tell that Curmudgeon and that slug editor to slime his way away from the print media!

We want Biff and Dash like no women have ever wanted their sexual prowess and large attributes. Take us now you hose monsters! Bring them back!

EDITOR:

I just want to state for the record that I had absolutely nothing to do with this ill-conceived, poorly executed and otherwise sorry excuse for a newspaper parody edition. But, nooooo. You have to do it your way. Write your own rules. Follow your own mis-guided path. Speak your own mind. Carry forward your own idealistic principles. Challenge authority. And, print just about anything you want... regardless of how it might offend those in the campus community more sensitive and caring than you.

The college tries to help you. We offer counseling. We can provide support groups. Someone is usually around to help you focus your energies. There is therapy available. There are even journalism classes available to all—even campus lowlife such as yourself.

If I didn't know better I'd think that this newspaper was produced by a bunch of freshmen.

In your brief—and, thankfully—soon-to-be-terminated tenure as editor, you have made great strides to besmirch the dignity of journalists everywhere. You should be ashamed.

Sports Vegy

By Studly McHungwell

Sports Stud

So, Studly, what's bothering you? What's your vegy? What in the world of sports gets in your craw and tears at your gut, making you want to cry out in agony and kill it? Well, I'll tell you... it's the Russians' going around the nation trying to learn how to play baseball for the 1992 Summer Olympic Games. Okay, I think every country should be allowed to put its best foot forward come Olympic time, but do we have to help them out? Aren't those Ruskies good at enough sports without the US showing them how to hit a long ball or catch a Sunday pop fly?

You know what we are setting ourselves up for, don't you? Yea, Communist influences on the old national game. Baseball, hot-dogs, apple pie, Chevrolet! America, the land of the free, the brave. Oh beautiful for spacious... Ruskies are out on the ballparks of our great land, infiltrating the very essence of the American dream. Player arbitration? Obviously this is a KGB plot to undermine the great American sport. The signs are everywhere.

The Reds are coming and if we don't stop them soon, it will be Comrade Musburger covering the World Series and Comrade Skip Carie doing the play-by-play. And what about the St. Louis Cardinals? They sure wear Red uniforms all the time. Who's to say that Jack Clark wasn't a good American that they got rid of before he revealed the truth about Whitey "Moscow" Ford? The Ruskies coaches sure spent a lot of time in the Cardinal camp. Hmm...

So, if the Cardinals go "red", what's to say that other teams won't fall in line? That Marxism dogma associated with the player's union will drag the league down to the Cardinals' level. One by one, the teams will fall prey to the Communist hordes as the "domino theory" takes effect. The teams will stop playing for standings and post-season action, concentrating instead on undermining the American way of life. The very fabric of the country will be torn as the evil influence of baseball takes hold!

Even as we speak, the Gorbachev minions are gathering information to do their dirty work by spying on the American society. They swarm over the spring training camps and spread their lies and deceptions. Stop them we must! We must save the American way of life now before it is too late. Down with the Commies and down with the evil influence of the St. Louis Cardinals!

In the coming year, we must eradicate the influences that threaten our way of life. Refuse to watch the Cardinals on baseball's "Game of the Week"! Throw away those Cardinal hats and root for the good ole American New York Mets as they struggle against St. Louis! Deny ever hearing of player arbitration and baseball strikes! Live long and prosper in the knowledge that our society does not stoop to the tactics employed by those sneaky Ruskies! If you see one, don't talk to him.

If we as Americans gather together and stand tall in the face of this threat, our way of life will survive! Oh, say can you see... Okay Studly, what's your vegy for this week? Well, I'll tell you...

UALR coach Newell quits to promote protection

By Ekim Sllim

Sports Editor

Little Rock-Arkansas, Ark. - Today, Mike "Drago" Newell, the outspoken coach of the University of Little-Rock at Arkansas' basketball team announced his retirement from collegiate coaching and proclaimed himself to be the leader of a new fundamentalist religious organization dedicated to the promotion of prophylactic usage or the "Trojan movement."

After failing to move his school into the NCAA Division I tournament finals and dual losses to Georgia Southern College last season, Newell was placed under observatory care in conjunction with a multiple technical foul/player tossing incident in a Trans-American Conference game. He was subsequently given an extensive psychotherapeutic examination that revealed him to be obsessed with toilet paper and sweat socks.

The "Trojan movement," which began in the Little-Rock

area, suggests sweeping changes in the public's perception of condom use and was named apparently after Little-Rock's "Trojan" basketball team. Newell was quoted as saying, "Hallelujah! Always be prepared for any sexual eventuality. Embrace the teachings of our religion and fear no more of the evils of Satan's AIDS and illicit pregnancy!"

Newell was known as a rather outspoken and somewhat obnoxious member of the coaching community after confidently predicting boundless success for his team and scurrilous comments concerning other teams on his schedule.

"I have left the sin-filled world of collegiate sports behind me and now see the light. I will minister the faith of predestined contraception to all that will listen. I predict that all other faiths will fall prey to our full court... ah... preventative defense and slam dunk the pregnancy problem right through the break-away goal of life! Praise be unto the Condom!"

The Little-Rock community has been scandalized by former-coach Newell's behavior and is planning efforts to censure his participation in UALR activities. Newell has publically proclaimed his intention to distribute pamphlets and free samples of these contraceptives at every Trojan home game.

Little-Rock players and coaches alike are aghast at Newell's behavior but are not particularly surprised. Trojan point guard Jumpin' Slam Dunkerson sees a trend in Newell's actions: "We used to find them (prophylactics) in his locker after games, and he used to talk about contraception right before any home game. I always thought it was some form of defense or something. It was pretty weird, no wonder we lost those games to Georgia Southern. He used to fill them (condoms) with water and hit us with them when we lost."

The GSC Lady Eagle softball team soundly defeated the Southern men's baseball team 24-0 in an exhibition match last weekend. Incredibly, the ladies touched GSC pitching ace Keith Richardson (5-2) for 12 earned runs on 14 hits in less than an inning. Debbie Tomkiewicz, the Lady Eagle shortstop, went four-of-five with a double and three consecutive home runs to lead an attack that featured 28 hits. Richardson was impressed with the ladies. "Gosh, they sure hit hard. I'm glad they don't play us again this year."

Mark McClellan, the GSC sports information director, announced his impending marriage for later this June. This marks the first time that a Southern SID is to be married in post-season action in over 10 years. This will be McClellan's first career marriage. His premarital dating averages were .073 dates per week, 5.8 rejections per month, $89.73 spent per date, 434 career slaps to the face and one abortive engagement.

The GSC Sumo wrestling team was in action this week against University of Tokyo and was able to pull out a tie (5-5) due to Southern standout Tim Foley's final win in the heavyweight division. Foley, wrestling in the 275 - 500-pound division, easily defeated Yumi Longwong in just 12 seconds. Foley is undefeated this year and is expected to make a decision about choosing between the NFL draft and becoming a professional wrestler in Japan.

The highly successful Southern tennis team (10-2) was in action Saturday against Arkansas Little-Rock and won seven out of nine matches. The only blemish of the day for the Eagles was #1 Ryan Blake's 0-6, 0-6 loss to Sven Jorgensen. Blake, usually an exceptional player, was destroyed by the Swedish player and his brother Jorkiesk, who went on to defeat Blake and his doubles partner Alex Porcella 1-6, 0-6. Blake's only comment was, "I can't seem to beat guys with j's and k's in their names."

Southern associate basketball coach Jim Backus will leave after this season to pursue a career as a male model in California. The spiffily dressed Backus was overheard saying, "I've done some modeling in Statesboro, so why not in Hollywood? R.J. Pope today, tomorrow the world! K-Mart, Wal-Mart, Sears, all the finer clothes stores. I'll be a star!"

When asked why her team did not make the NCAA

Women's basketball tournament or the National NIT, Lady Eagle coach Drema Greer subduedly stated, "Those lousy &@!%, I'd like to take a basketball and &^+@%> them. They didn't even consider our %&@# record and just because of &@~%. Maybe next year if they get off their &%$% and %#@, we'll get a bid. But I am happy about the way our team played this year &%%!"

Record bass caught

By Bill Dance

Sports Fisherman

A national angling record was set this week as former GSC student Tony Mills caught a 65-pound, four-ounce hybrid striped bass in BEAUTIFUL EAGLE CREEK.

Stripers, native to the Statesboro area, are sleek beautiful fish renowned for their fighting abilities.

Mills set the record using an ultra-light Shakespeare rod, a Diawa reel and five-pound test line to haul in the monster.

"It was great!" said Mills, "I beached him on an old Michelin tire and hit him with a BEAUTIFUL EAGLE CREEK sign." The CREEK is legendary for unusually large species of fish due to mystical and magical properties reportedly utilized by GSC coach Erk Russell and his highly successful football team.

Scientists have argued about the possibility of something in the waters causing this phenomenon, but Mills simply stated, "I think it just ate the beer cans that the students threw in the water... it sure had a big gut."

Creek to be plugged for Southern Russell Reservoir

By Slap Maxwell

Sports Writer

GSC president Nicholas Henry will officially break ground for the new Erk Russell Memorial Dam and Reservoir on April 23 as the construction of the new GSC recreational lake and aquatic sports facility begins on the present site of BEAUTIFUL EAGLE CREEK.

With Henry will be many local notables including GSC Vice-President Harry Carter, Mr. Paulson, former GSC president Dale Lick, Sumo wrestling star and all-American place kicker Tim Foley, seven time Olympic gold medalist Mark Spitz, and Flipper the dolphin. This distinguished group will ceremonially dig in the ground and Flipper will later put on an exhibition in the frothy waters of EAGLE CREEK.

The Russell Reservoir will be the home of the future Eagle water-ski team and the Eagle Bassmasters fishing squad who will compete in the TAAC conference as varsity sports. The lake will serve the Statesboro community as a sanctuary for fishermen, sportsmen and any aquatic sports. Early this spring, the Army Corps of Engineers will dredge EAGLE CREEK and erect the Russell Dam to hold back the rushing waters of the CREEK.

The plan is not without drawbacks, though, as the football practice fields, the intramural complex and the soccer stadium will be flooded. Henry is optimistic about resolving these subsequent athletic problems.

"Heck, the football and soccer teams can practice on Oxford field. I think this is a giant step forward in the promotion of water sports here at GSC...besides, I just got a new bass boat and I want to try it out."

GSC head football coach Erk Russell was mystified by the honor bestowed upon him. "Aren't you supposed to be dead to have a memorial anything? I just went into surgery to get my arm fixed, that's all. I think they shot the gun a little bit. Besides we just built those fields and now all we're going to see is the goalposts. They are even going to flood Snooky's!"

It was a pattern that proved to be the undoing of the so-called Dirty Dialer, as Neville and his men were able to guess who the evil-doer was going to call next.

ing the Legion of Decency, the Moral Majority, and the CASWJON (Citizens Against Singers With Just One Name), have already declared their intent to picket.

"We don't like those there purple weirdos," said one surly dissident. "If they want to do someone's life, why not Lawrence Welk? I bet that Prince fella can't polka!"

In response, Ms. Artsy just sniffed. "Cretins! I'll bet they don't like Flesh For Lulu either. It just goes to show you."

Good luck to Ms. Artsy and her dancers in their debut. We fully support artistic expression, especially when it wears whipped cream. All of us here at the George-Anne anxiously await your performance.

shredding the Creek," said GSC surfer Slash Bigdrop. "I didn't even know it was surfable," he added.

Evidently, the pro surfers like what they see in south Georgia. "It's great. The best waves in the world and that great farm lifestyle to boot," said ASP coordinator Ian Cairns. "I'm moving here permanently," he added.

One-hundred campus security officers will serve as on-site body guards for the surfers during the contest.

Cover-up

Dr X said. "Polo, besides having an obnoxious odor, activates normally dormant hormones in the male."

Dr. X warned that, if you are using Polo or have used it for over a year, you may already be showing some or all of the symptoms.

In response to the potential flood of victims, the Health Center is preparing a pamphlet telling afflicted males how to best cope with their condition.

Government scientists are currently working on an antidote for Polo cologne, but sources say they will probably find a cure for AIDS first.

"By the time we were called in," Neville stated, "the person had reached the listing for 'Jones.' And, since we knew we couldn't keep up with those Joneses, we just figured the prankster would try to call the Kennedys, the next name in the book."

The SMUT team put a tap on the Kennedys' telephone and waited. Two days later, the surveillance paid off when a deep-throated voice came over the line and began talking with Mrs. Kennedy, making references to whips, chains, and cucumbers.

"It was horrible," a distraught Nancy Kennedy claimed, wringing her hands. "The man kept making grunting sounds in my ear. At first, I thought it was just my husband Ralph, but then I realized it was daytime, so I panicked. The next thing I knew, the officer who had been stationed in my house started talking on his walkie-talkie and told me the call had been traced."

Traced it was, right here to the campus of GSC. Though neither Neville nor any other members of SMUT would disclose the name of the suspect they took into custody, an informant reported that the Dirty Dialer belonged to GSC's geology department. The police are still investigating in an effort to determine whether the suspect had accomplices.

One-hundred Campus Security officers assisted in the investigation.

Statesboro Fire Department, three Statesboro Police patrol cars, two ambulances and the Georgia National Guard swarmed to the scene. "Yep, we really had the situation under control. You just can't skimp on personnel when lives are at stake," said Campus Security officer Wilbur Kookmeyer.
