Late News

Driving nightmare

Up to 50 feet of the upper deck of the roadway suddenly tipped into the pavement below after the earthquake shook the Bay Bridge between San Francisco and Oakland.

REPAIRS BEGIN ON BAY BRIDGE:

Repairs begin Thursday on the Bay Bridge where a section of the top deck collapsed and damaged the bottom deck during Tuesday's earthquake in San Francisco. Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy Wednesday called for an investigation about why the "quake-proof" structure was affected by the 6.9-quake. Both decks of the bridge will have to be rebuilt. Cost: More than $200 million. Time: Two years.

The Richter scale

RESCUERS' HOPES DASHED:

More than 24 hours after Tuesday's earthquake in California, rescuers found what they thought was a survivor in the remains of the double-deck Nimitz Freeway that collapsed. They said someone trapped in rubble grabbed a rescuer's hand. After the rubble was removed, however, the person was dead. At least 272 are estimated dead, second only to the 1906 San Francisco quake that killed 700.

BUSH DECLARES DISASTER AREA:

President Bush signed an order that makes the Northern California earthquake area a disaster area — just 13 hours after the quake hit. He also visited the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Washington, D.C., which is coordinating response. He talked to Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner on the phone about the quake and plans to visit the area this weekend.

RELIEF AGENCIES OFFER HELP:

Relief agencies from across the USA and around the world are responding to Tuesday's earthquake in San Francisco. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev sent a telegram to President Bush offering his sympathy and asked how his country could help. Calls also came from England and Ireland. The Red Cross advises that cash is preferred over food and clothing.

SERIES MAY RESUME TUESDAY:

The World Series, halted by Tuesday night's San Francisco Bay-area earthquake, will resume next Tuesday at the earliest in Candlestick Park, baseball commissioner Fay Vincent said Wednesday. Vincent said the delay was necessary to allow time for repairs to the stadium.

QUAKE MAY MOVE FOOTBALL GAME:

Football in earthquake-stricken San Francisco may be moved from Candlestick Park to Stanford, the Oakland-Alameda Coliseum or New England's Sullivan Stadium for Sunday's scheduled meeting between the San Francisco 49ers and the New England Patriots.

Knights invade Paulson Stadium tomorrow

By AL ALLNOCH
Managing Editor

Tomorrow the Knights of Central Florida will march into Paulson Stadium wielding a new found weapon: TOUGH DEFENSE.

In GSC's previous seven games with UCF, the Knights have held the Eagles to below 30 points only twice, but that trend may change this season. Through their first six games this season, their first year in Division 1-AA, the 4-2 Knights have given up only 12.7 points per game and 223.8 yards of total offense.

Much of UCF's defensive turnaround can be attributed to a new defensive coordinator, who is none other than Rusty Russell, son of GSC head coach Erk Russell. "I have never seen a football team improve in one year in one facet of the game as Central Florida has from last year to this year," GSC scout Pat Spurgeon said.

"A lot of that is due to Coach Russell. They are better coached than they ever have been on defense. They've gone from among the weakest defensive teams that we've played up to now."

By no means are the Eagles lacking on offense, however. En route to their 6-0 record, GSC has averaged 31.5 points per game and 392.2 yards of total offense (285.5 yards rushing, 106.7 passing). Fullback Joe Ross leads the team in rushing. See Eagles, page 5

Director of Admissions pleased despite small Fall Visitation turnout

By SANDY HANBERRY
News Editor

Last Saturday's Fall Visitation Day brought approximately 50 prospective students to GSC.

Originally slated to take place in Hanner, the day's activities were moved to the Conference Center to better accommodate the smaller than anticipated crowd.

Dale Wasson, Director of Admissions, said "The format of the program was altered to suit the environment; the response of the people was very positive."

Original plans were made for a turnout of 800-1,000 persons, but when pre-registration figures did not measure up to expectations, plans were altered to better suit the anticipated turnout. The Conference Center was selected as the site of the day's activities. The schedule of events was altered to allow visitors more free time.

President Henry was on hand to welcome GSC's prospective students and parents to GSC.

Visitors were predominantly from Georgia, but there were also visitors from South Carolina and Florida in attendance.

Although turnout was light, Wasson's response was positive. "This is the earliest in the fall that we have ever had one of these programs. I'm pleased with the turnout, being as early as it was."

Another Fall Visitation Day is slated for Saturday, Nov. 18 and 350 persons have already pre-registered.

It is being organized through the GSC Admissions Office, as was last Saturday's visitation day.

Police Report

By CAROLYN SAMODEN
Staff Writer

Two accounts of theft were reported last week at GSC. These were:

On Oct. 6, 1989, Scott Thompson reported that someone took a radar detector from his vehicle while parked in Hanner Commuter parking lot.

On Oct. 13, 1989, Kim Harrelson reported the theft of a bicycle from Veazey Hall.

Vandalism is still prevalent here, also. Two reports were made on:

Oct. 8, 1989, Kris Miller reported someone threw a bottle through his window at Oxford Hall.

On Oct. 11, 1989, Ashley Brewer reported someone damaged her vehicle by scratching the left quarter panel with a sharp object.

Only one accident was reported, and that was on Oct. 13, 1989. James Shumans and Timothe Jackson were involved in an accident in "D" parking lot. No major injuries were reported.

Campus Briefs

Who's Who Nominations: Today is the deadline for nominations for the 1990 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Any member of the faculty, staff or student body may submit nominations. Criteria for selection include: grade point average (2.80 minimum); campus leadership and service; outstanding achievement in athletics, debate, music, art, or literature; junior or senior status. Contact the Office of Special Programs in the Rosenwald Building for more details and nomination forms.

PRSSA: The GSC chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America held their first meeting of the year last week.

Featured at the meeting were student guest speakers who discussed their summer public relations internship experiences. All four emphasized the need for computer skills, interviewing and writing experience.

The speakers and respective intern sites were Sandy Lanier, Southeastern Marketing; Chrissy Seco de Lucena, South Dekalb Mall; Jenny Hassard, Houghton Sports Medicine Hospital; and Sid Yarbrough, William R. Biggs/Gilmore Associates.

The meeting also included a new-member orientation session which will be continued at the next meeting, October 25, at 6:30 p.m. in South Building, Room 164.

"Our October 25 meeting will be the last time this year for interested students to join. I encourage students to take advantage of this opportunity to meet professional PR practitioners and to obtain experience," said PRSSA President Shawn Sullivan.

PRSSA is a pre-professional organization which provides students with opportunities to extend their education beyond the classroom. Any PR majors wishing to join should contact Faculty Advisors Pam Bourland or Hal Fulmer (681-5138) or President Shawn Sullivan (681-6861).

Middle School Model United Nations: The sixth Middle School Model United Nations, with over 400 area middle school students scheduled to participate, opens on GSC's campus Oct. 26. The two-day United Nations simulation features students representing 167 national delegations who will debate resolutions, each representing the viewpoint of their assigned country. Interested individuals may observe the sessions of the Model U. N. General Assembly at 12:30 p.m. Oct. 27 in the Williams Center dining hall.

New Library Exhibit: The GSC Henderson Library will have a display in the Library's main entrance area featuring events surrounding GSC Homecoming 50 years ago. The display will remain during the month of November.

GSC history professor G. Hew Joiner has been awarded the 1989-90 Ruffin Cup. Twenty years a professor at GSC, Joiner earned his degree from Emory University and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Northwestern University. The cup was endowed by Professor Emeritus of English David Ruffin. It is presented as an annual honor to an outstanding teacher/scholar with at least 10 years of service to GSC who exemplifies the goals of the School of Arts and Sciences and excels in teaching services to students, in scholarship, and in contributions to the spirit of the liberal arts. Joiner's name will be engraved on the Ruffin Cup, which he will retain for one year. He will receive a small replica of the cup and a $1,000 award to enhance his teaching and scholarship through travel, equipment, or other means. # GSC geology professor works two weeks of summer for $1

News Editor
GSC Paleontologist Gale Bishop combined efforts and expertise for two weeks this summer with Austin Williams of the Smithsonian Institution's National Marine Fisheries Service Systematics Laboratory.

The purpose of this joining of efforts was to benefit the South Dakota School of Mines. "The thousands of fossils stored and studied in the geology labs and museum at GSC and other colleges and universities 'didn't simply appear there overnight', said Bishop. "They got there with a lot of hard work and a great deal of cooperation and good will".

Bishop and Williams showed a great deal of good will by working those two weeks for the token sum of one dollar. Together they collected and sorted some 2,000 fossil crabs, lobsters, and shrimp before donating them to the the Museum of Geology at the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology.

Once curated, the fossils, collected from excavation sites near the town of Mobridge and from the Heart Tail Ranch, will constitute one of the world's largest single accumulations of fossil cretaceous decapod crustaceans.

Bishop, who came to GSC in 1971, has been on expeditions to South Dakota nearly every year for the last twenty-five years. "This was a way for us to repay the people of South Dakota for their support and hospitality during the projects we've done over the past two decades," he said.

The two scientists, who normally work with grant support in the thousands of dollars for such an expedition, worked fourteen days in South Dakota at their own expense. During the expedition they unearthed numerous fossils of cretaceous sea life from ninety to seventy million years in age. "During the Cretaceous, South Dakota was sea bottom. A shallow seaway ran from what is now the Gulf of Mexico up to the arctic," he said.

During the course of the expedition Bishop discovered a new species of crab. Said Bishop of his discovery, "it is nothing unusual to discover a new Taxa in the rocks. However, it is exciting."

Bishop usually discovers one or two new species of fossils each year. His most recent discovery, which has not yet been named, is approximately 77 million years old and was found on a site from which fossil Bishop plans to return to South Dakota this summer, taking a class of GSC students. "During the five hour course," said Bishop, "students will be given the opportunity to collect crab, dinosaur, and other fossil remains."

Miscellany wants your material!

By MELISSA LUKEHART
Guest Contributor

I know something you don't know, but I just can't keep a secret. Lean close, and I'll whisper in your ear. Listen—it's Miscellany, GSC's student literary magazine. It's been a well-kept secret, but now it's time the Miscellany hit the scene. It's where you can show off, and where you can say what you've needed to say all these years. At the same time, you can see what the other students are thinking.

If you write stories or poetry, this is the place for it. If you draw or sculpt, take the time to show everyone what you can do. If you have a couple of songs tucked away that you never thought would see the light of day, send them to the Miscellany. If you have written an especially good critical essay on a work of art or literature, drop it off in the Williams Center, Room 105.

Even if you're not currently in an English course, the Miscellany has room for you in the expository essay category if you have a well-written, insightful essay for the judges. If you've always wanted to write a theatrical vignette, now's the time.

Do you know your way around a foreign language? If you do, show us with a poem or short story in another language. Do you take photographs that touch or jolt everyone who sees them? Show everyone on campus in the 1990 Miscellany.

There is still a great deal of time before the March 1 deadline, so don't miss your chance to mark your place in the 1990 Miscellany.

Even if the limit of your artistic talent is stick figures, off-key shower-singing, or "See Spot run," there's still a reason for you to pay close attention to the Miscellany. It captures the spirit of the year and the decade with creations straight from the student body. Your friends and classmates are the ones making the statements. You owe it to yourself to listen to what they are saying.

You'll see our signs everywhere on campus—the racing blocks are hard to miss. If you can't wait to find out what it's all about, call Ira Dove, the editor, or Melissa Lukehart, the associate editor, at 681-0069. If you want to see what we do, come to the Foy Gallery on Monday, Oct. 23, and see what the best of Miscellany is all about.

Above all, don't wait until it's too late. Get into the act and get into the Miscellany. It's a new time for GSC, a new time for Miscellany, and it's time for you.

U.S. Coast Guard Academy nation's choosiest college

By PAT ORDOVENSKY
©Copyright 1989, USA TODAY/Apple College Information Network

The U.S. Coast Guard Academy has replaced its big brothers as the nation's choosiest college.

The 921-student academy in New London, Conn., accepted only 9 percent of its applicants this year to rise to the top of Gannett News Service's annual list of most selective schools.

It's an honor that rotated for the past three years between the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., and the Military Academy in West Point, N.Y.

The 1989 Choosiest College list grows to 52 schools, up one from last year. To make it, a college must accept fewer than half its applicants and have a freshman average of at least 1200 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

The Coast Guard historically has accepted a small percentage of applicants, but its SAT average has been below 1200. The average climbed gradually, however, from 1189 four years ago to 1200.11 this year, says spokesman Norm Whitehurst.

The Coast Guard is becoming more popular, says Whitehurst, because "it's a humanitarian service, not a combat service."

Selectivity does not measure academic quality, merely the odds against an applicant being accepted. It's a rating that fluctuates with a school's popularity among high school seniors.

Connecticut College, coincidentally also in New London, Conn., also joins the choosiest list for the first time. So do Colby College and Bates College in Maine and Occidental College in Los Angeles.

Dropping from the list this year are New York's Hamilton and Barnard colleges, Oberlin College in

This Week's Announcements

•GSC has been invited to participate in the International Studies Association's (ISA) scholarship program for their 1990 SUMMER VACATION ABROAD. Students awarded full scholarships by the ISA will spend four weeks abroad studying the language of their choice. The final day to register is October 20.

The languages included in the program are French, German, Italian, Spanish, and English. Up to six transferable credits may be earned by a participant in the summer session. Students taking part must be at least 16 years old but not older than 20, have completed a minimum of two courses of the language of their choice by the time the program starts, pass the ISA test—given on November 17 for a $25 fee—with a minimum score of 700 of a possible 800, and provide their own transportation to and from New York if selected for scholarship. Other expenses, with the exception of health insurance, will be covered by the ISA.

Additional information about the program is available in the GSC International Studies Program office in Room 4 of the Political Science Building.

•The sixth Middle School Model UN will be held at the Southern Center for Continuing Education on October 26 and 27. Over 400 area middle school students, representing 167 national delegations, will debate resolutions in a simulation of the General Assembly. Participants will also attend workshops presented by GSC faculty, which deal with international political and economic problems.

Interested individuals may observe the General Assembly session in the Williams Center Dining Hall on October 27 at 12:30 p.m.

•An Art Teachers' Evening will be held at the Atlanta College of Art Wednesday, November 15, from 5:30-8 p.m. The program will include a private showing of the powerful and widely-acclaimed exhibition "I Dream a World: Portraits of Black Women Who Changed America," featuring photographs of 75 notable black women by Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Brian Lanker. The evening will feature a tour of the exhibition, a gallery talk, a tour of the Atlanta College of Art studios, and a wine-and-cheese reception. The Gallery is located at the Peachtree Street entrance of the Memorial Arts Building in the Woodruff Arts Center, 1280 Peachtree Street NE.

•Last Christmas, the Mail Call program brought smiles to more than 125,000 of the US' servicemen and women, many of them young people away from home for the first time. It combined greetings from thousands of people, re-sorting all the cards and letters into more than 900 bundles which were sent priority mail to units and activities in more than 40 states, as well as to the four corners of the globe.

For information about taking part in the program, send your name and address along with a first-class postage stamp (no envelope; just a stamp is required) to: MAIL CALL, BOX 988, ST. ROBERT, MO 65583, and mention where you read about the program.

•Entrants in the Music City Song Festival will compete for over $250,000 in cash and prizes from MCSF exclusive sponsors including Atari Computer (Professional Song), TASCAM (Amateur Song), Peavey (Novice Song), Shure (Vocal), Technics (Professional Lyric), Smith Corona (Amateur and Novice Lyric) and Magnavox (Lyric Poem). Entrants do not give up any rights to their material, and entering the competition does not tie up a song or lyric in any way.

Entry deadline for the Lyric and Lyric Poem divisions is November 15; for Song and Vocal divisions, November 30. An official entry form and entry fee are required.

Music City Song Festival's free, educational SoundMakers magazine will be published in November. It will contain articles contributed by music industry authorities as well as a complete list of 1988 Winners, Finalists and Honorable Mentions.

Pulling Strings the Right Way

By MELANIE ROBINSON
Staff Writer

The Puppet Theatre has been functioning around GSC's campus for over two decades. Occasionally struggling with a low budget and poor facilities, the theater has managed to defeat the odds and is now going strong.

Located on Highway 301 next to the Skate-R-Bowl, the Puppet Theatre has a stock of puppets worth more than $10,000, and an air-conditioned theater that can hold 150 children.

Puppetry is one of the oldest arts and has been in existence since before the time of Christ. Faculty Director Richard Johnson feels puppetry is a "reflection of all the arts." Painting, music, dance, playwriting, and sculpting all contribute to the art of puppetry.

Operated by the GSC Puppetry Guild, the theater is a student organization designed to provide opportunities for students to work in the area of puppetry. Some students may feel that this opportunity is reserved strictly for theater majors, but they are wrong.

The Puppetry Guild is open to all students who wish to share in the experience, either for fun, for the art, or to prepare for careers in puppetry, education or recreation.

Students are urged to get involved, Johnson says, adding that he would like to see student participation increase. Last year, only twelve students participated in production.

Credit can be earned through puppetry courses, independent study, and puppetry practicum. Students would be assisting in puppet construction, which would entail sewing, sculpting, and bringing the puppets to life.

The theater has been allotted a $1,000 budget to work with for the 1989-90 school year, but that is the most money the organization has ever been given. With the money, the theater can produce the puppets for shows, but it would take thousands of dollars to replace all of them. Time, effort, creativity and precision go into the construction of the hundreds of puppets used in the theater.

In the past, the theater has performed for nursing home residents, members of Alcoholics Anonymous, the Youth Arts Festival, the Bite of the 'Boro, and public schools, but children are the theater's largest audience. Last year, for instance, the Puppet Theatre taught over 300 children how to make their own puppets.

The group's first project this year will be "A Charlie Brown Christmas." The show is scheduled for Friday, Dec. 1. Even though the production will be geared toward children, everyone is invited to attend the performance.

By providing students with valuable experience in the art of puppetry and serving as an entertainment outlet for all members of the community, the Puppet Theatre is one of GSC's finest assets.

Reel to Reel Film Reviews by Bill Johnson

By BILL JOHNSON,
Staff Writer
Halloween 6

Eleven years ago a small film company produced a low budget horror classic called Halloween. Every few years a sequel has come out, cashing in on the original's success. Now comes the fifth sequel to the College Cinemas, just in time to cash in on the Halloween spirit.

Halloween V, The Revenge of Michael Myers, is a scare-filled fun fest, enjoyable for groups of people who delight in yelling at the screen.

The plot continues where the fourth left off in which the maniac, Michael Myers, escapes from a flaming death. He lies dormant for a year until Halloween comes around again.

Next we are introduced to his sister's daughter, who he was trying to kill in Halloween IV. Donald Pleasance returns in the role of Sam Loomis, Michael Myers' doctor.

The movie proceeds in a generic horror film manner to introduce characters and kill them off in nasty ways. One way that this film is a step above most generic horror films is the recurring character of Myers. He is the Boogeyman, and only comes out on Halloween.

The manner in which he moves is unique in horror villains also. He never speaks, which saves us from the stupidity of a Freddy Krueger babble, and he always walks instead of runs. The best way to see this movie is with a big crowd so that you can all yell things at the screen. It is a basic horror film with a little push because Halloween is coming up soon, and it should satisfy anyone looking for a good scare.

Rating: B-

Johnny Handsome

The other film now showing at the College Cinemas is Johnny Handsome, a slam-bang, shoot-'em-up action movie that is a mix between the Elephant Man and 48 Hrs.

Mickey Rourke stars as Johnny, a deformed man who has only one friend and lives a life of crime.

When Johnny and his friend pull a heist with two strangers, the strangers kill Johnny's friend, and set him up to take the fall. When he is stabbed in prison by an associate of the head stranger, Rafe, he is taken to a specialized hospital in the city. Forrest Whitaker, in a splendid supporting role as a doctor, heads a surgical team that attempts to correct Johnny's deformity.

It is the doctor's theory that when Johnny looks normal, he will no longer turn to crime. The operation is a success, Johnny is freed from jail, and starts a new life.

A big-city sheriff is not satisfied with Johnny's transformation and feels that he will attempt to avenge the death of his friend.

Johnny tries to stay on the right path for a while, but his hatred for Rafe demands a confrontation.

The movie is very moody overall. Mickey Rourke is superb as the tormented Johnny. Even though most of his face is obscured by heavy make-up at the beginning of the film, his eyes portray a sense of loneliness and fear.

The supporting cast is excellent, with Morgan Freeman as the sheriff and Ellen Barkin as one of the strangers.

This is not a perfect movie, but it should satisfy anyone's goal for an action film and a revenge drama.

Music Corner: Country & Progressive

By ELIZABETH TILLEY
Staff Writer

October is a month of change. The green leaves fade into glorious reds and golds, pumpkins are harvested, and hay is cut and bound. All those things make me think of the country. Maybe that is one of the reasons October was named Country Music Month, the month in which the Country Music Association holds its annual awards.

During the past few years, the country music audience has grown larger and younger. Part of this younger audience might be attributed to the number of young country music artists who have hit the streets of Nashville in the latter half of the '80s.

The sound of country music has also changed in the last few years. No longer is it full of twangy guitars and banjos. Today, in any number of songs, there can be found a variety of musical instruments. The guitar still plays a tremendous part in the country sound, but there are now better drum systems, saxophones, keyboards, and a host of other instruments.

*"I'm just carrying on
tion"*

Country music carries with it parts of gospel, pop-rock, and a bit of the blues. Therefore, it is not surprising that there have been some crossover songs that have topped the charts.

Thanks to artists like Alabama, George Strait, Randy Travis, and of course Hank Williams, Jr., the sound of country is being spread throughout the United States. While the newcomers bring exciting ideas, the veterans like George Jones, Charlie Pride, Loretta Lynn, and Dolly Parton somehow manage to change and yet remain the same.

If you were as fortunate as I and "grew up on country sunshine," then, at some point, you have come into contact with these sounds. "After all this time" it would seem some of the appeal should fade, but it seems to be doing quite the opposite.

As a child, I was exposed to music of all types. Perhaps that is one of the reasons I am so spacey at times. However, since it is not "chiseled in stone" that any person should listen to any one type of music, that cannot be classified as an excuse. As it happens, "I'm just carrying on an old family tradition."

If you find yourself with nothing pressing to do on a "Southern Sunday" and feel like "killin' time," just turn your radio dial to WCHY (94-FM) or any of the other local country stations and give it a try.

Since "I'm no stranger to the rain," I can assure you that you might be pleasantly surprised. "If it don't come easy" and you "shed a million tears into those last few beers," just turn back down "Cumberland Road" until you get back to your normal station.

If it is to your liking and you do not want your friends to know you joined a "country club," that is okay. Besides, it is always good to have at least one "ace in the hole."

Hope to see you "down in the boondocks," which happens to be a "diamond in the middle of a field full of stones."

Name your poison

CAB serves GSC well

For each of the past four years, a big-name musical group has performed (or been scheduled to perform) at GSC. Each week a recent major motion picture is shown on Fridays and Sundays in the Biology Lecture Hall. Each year comic acts, magicians and other similar entertainers appear on GSC's campus. Who is responsible for drawing such quality entertainment to our campus?

It is the College Activities Board (CAB), that's who! Although everyone has undoubtedly seen CAB's name on the advertisements and flyers promoting upcoming acts, not many people seem to recognize CAB for the fine job they do. We think it is time to commend them.

Each year CAB fills a calendar full of popular entertainment acts, as well as activities such as contests and talent shows that give students a needed break from the everyday pressures of school. Such a schedule requires skillful coordination and months of careful planning in advance.

Diverse entertainment acts like Cary Long, Ronnie Bullard, and this year's homecoming guest, 38 Special, are not easy to attain, but CAB has done a wonderful job in obtaining such talent.

CAB is made up of Kevin Bolling, Tony Kemp, Jeff Thomason, Suzanne Acker, Tim Poore, Vickie Davis, Tammy Eason, and Angie Smith. To these people The George-Anne would like to say thank you for keeping us "active" and involved, and keep up the good work!

Political activism needed

The University of Georgia's student newspaper The Red and Black recently published an editorial entitled Campaign '90. Discussed in the editorial was the Georgia Republican Party. This editorial brought to attention the fact that Republicans are having a hard time trying to get student candidates elected to Athens City Council posts, and rightfully so, because students simply are not politically active enough. Who would vote for a student?

The same would occur here if a student ran for a Statesboro City Council position. No one believes students know enough about governmental issues, making policy, and the like.

This reputation of political inexperience can be abolished, but only if there is a widespread change of concern among students here at GSC. We at The George-Anne do not believe that the student body as a whole is politically active or responsible enough. We encourage GSC students to try to become more knowledgeable of the local and state political scene.

No student should dare complain about laws and ordinances if he cares not to vote for them. It's a cruel world out there, and the only way to change that is through political involvement. Want change? Get involved!

Let us know what you want

It has come to our attention that a percentage of our readers feel The George-Anne is not carrying stories that appeal to some of the student body's interests.

If that's true, write to the paper at LANDRUM BOX 8001 and tell us what issues, events, organizations, or individuals you would like to see covered by The George-Anne. Tell us who or what you think is being ignored.

After all, we can cover only the stories that come to our attention. If we aren't aware of something, let us know and we'll put a staff reporter on the trail.

I know you've heard a million times that The George-Anne is the official students' newspaper of Georgia Southern College, and it's true. The George-Anne was created to represent you, the students of GSC. If you feel you aren't being represented or recognized, tell us.

Chauvinism thrives in "the system"

"She asked for it. The way she was dressed with that shirt, you could see everything she had. She was advertising for sex." This was the way a juror named Roy Diamond explained the acquittal of Steven Lord for raping a 22-year-old woman. This is also an accurate reflection of the way that our society views cases of violence against women.

The fact is that no one deserves to be violated in this (or any) manner, but our society places blame in the social order who are weak and unable to defend themselves who receive the abuse of violent individuals.

The remark by Roy Diamond reflects the misconception that women are the "property" of men, or at least are there for the taking whenever a man feels the need.

The alarming statistics on date rape and spouse abuse support this theory. For years our society has portrayed women as being subservient to men. Women are taught to strive to please men, while men expect women to do so. Some men feel that it is acceptable to rape a woman if they take her out on a date. I guess the logic behind this is that they pay for her company in the form of a dinner or movie, so she owes them something in return.

Also, how many of you have noticed that sexism is visible in everyday life? I have seen video games that portray the prize for winning as a scantily-clad woman holding a trophy. What's going on here? Does the girl go with the trophy as a part of the prize? Or is it just that she does a better job of presenting the trophy if she is nude?

Either way, it does not take Sherlock Holmes to figure out that something is very wrong with the way women are often portrayed. If a woman is strong-willed or independent, she is labeled a bitch. If she is self-sufficient, she is a cold-hearted bitch. How do I know this? Aside from personal experience, I have seen it happen in movie theaters. The male characters are extremely macho, but let a woman be as tough as the men, and she is a bitch, or at least trying to be too tough.

One cannot help but wonder, however, if in this society there is such a thing as too tough.

The fact that the victim's dress was interpreted as inappropriate is merely a lame excuse for the perpetrators to hide behind. The people who say, "She advertised for it" are the same ones who say, "She deserved it; she shouldn't have been in that particular place." The truth is that location and dress have nothing to do with being raped. Personally, I have known of a woman being raped by her physician. Was she "asking for it" then? Was she too provocative in the waiting room? I think not. The excuse for it this time, though, was the attack NEVER REALLY HAPPENED. I guess the whole ordeal was swamp gas, or maybe the bright office lights caused her eyes to play tricks on her.

Perhaps it is time for the "justice system" to change its tactics. Maybe instead of trying to blame the victim for being victimized, it should entertain the theory that the perpetrator is a mean-spirited, malicious monster. Maybe we should ask why we allow these perverts to roam our streets instead of saying, "How dare you put yourself at risk? You must have wanted it."

Until we start blaming the perpetrators, instead of the victims, there will be no justice. I have been accused of cynicism, but I am still idealistic enough to think that those of us who are appalled at cases of blatant abuse and discrimination outnumber those who abuse and discriminate.

Until we make sure our money and votes go only towards people and institutions that support the rights of the weak; and until we rid ourselves of the chauvinism that is thriving in the system, we will never experience liberty and justice for all.

Writer ponders issue of flag burning

On The Wildes Side Marty Wildes

after he has denounced everything this country stands for, he leaps from the steps and runs to the flag pole. Wild-eyed and frothing at the mouth, he yanks the flag down, douses it with gasoline and sets it afire. (To make the hypothetical less complicated, let's just say he owned the flag).

What would happen in this situation? Let's say everyone in the audience kept their hats on their heads and Mr. Flag-burner didn't have to pick through the pecans to find his teeth. Otherwise, some zesty patriot might find himself involved in a lawsuit. If no one is hostile, a then handcuffed Mr. Flag-burner would probably be curtly escorted away by Statesboro's Finest on some trivial charges. Minus one flag but end of the nuisance.

But it's not illegal! What about our poor sacred flag, our symbol!

I love my country and I've never known anything different, but we can't be carried away on a wave of emotion. Sure it's bad but, before we rip into that piece of paper we call the Constitution, we must consider the long-term consequences. We may be planting a kudzu seed. I'm sure everyone has heard the story about why there is so much kudzu in Georgia. That little amendment which is to fry Mr. Flag-burner and whoever wishes to follow in his footsteps could create a problem greater than the one it is to solve.

Granted that, under the present system, we cannot lock him up and throw away the key, but I'll bet that everyone in Bulloch County will eventually know who Mr. Flag-burner is.

SGA reports its business to students

On behalf of everyone at SGA, welcome back to what has already been an exciting year for everyone at GSC. As you all are well aware, our university status brings with it many new changes, and your Student Government Association is right in the middle of this dynamic period of adjustment and improvement.

Most importantly, the students of GSC now have a voice on the Faculty Senate. Dean Carl Gooding of the Business School raised the motion which led to the installment of SGA President Sean Schuur and Senator-at-Large Amee Adkins as representatives of the student body to the Senate.

"This is both an honor and a great responsibility," says Schuur, who aims to make the most of this opportunity for the students. The opening has been approved by the Faculty Senate for a trial basis of one year.

The first meeting of the Presidents of Georgia Southern met last Monday, Oct. 16. Executive Vice President Tom McClean and High Hope Center Director Gloria Fordham presented to the Presidents a competitive recycling program for which all campus organizations are eligible.

Under this program, clubs and organization will compete with one another to see who can collect the greatest amount of aluminum cans for the purpose of recycling by the High Hope Center for the Mentally Handicapped. Grouped according to size to promote fairness in judging, the winners will receive the first-ever "Golden Trash Can Award". The winners will be announced on April 25, 1990. This also happens to be GSC Earth Day, the focus of a week-long schedule of activities celebrating our ecological community.

To register your organization to compete for the soon-to-be-coveted "Golden Trash Can Award", contact Tom McClean at the SGA office in the Williams Center.

Also Speaking at the Presidents' meeting was Mr. Earl Cashon, the newly appointed Director of the new Student Union Building. Mr. Cashon, who was Director of the Tate Center at UGA, feels that he is most fortunate to have been selected to his present position. Students are top priority with Mr. Cashon, and he is currently evaluating proposals for the retail spaces available in the Union Building. He wants the businesses to be both innovative and useful to the students, as well as consistent with the current campus trends. SGA looks forward to working with Mr. Cashon as he prepares the new structure for occupation and use by the beginning of Spring Quarter.

Among items of further interest, SGA committees have been hard at work this past summer to ensure student welfare around the campus. Specifically, Dr. Armstrong, vice-president of business and finance, helped SGA appropriate the funds for the completion of the new sidewalk that runs from the Pines to the parking areas next to the Newton Building. SGA is also working to replace the basketball courts that are now occupied by the North Building. A sidewalk will soon be installed around this building as well.

Students may now take advantage of extended library hours, thanks to the special cooperation of Julius Ariail, director of the library. The library closes later now: at midnight Monday-Thursday, 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and again at midnight on Sunday.

Other projects still in the works include GSC's hosting of this spring's Leadership Conference to be held by the Student Advisory Council to the Board of Regents. SGA President Schuur is also pushing for the creation of "Dead Days" prior to final exams. This would give students the chance to further prepare for the exams without additional classwork to occupy their time.

Not to be forgotten, SGA wishes to thank all organizations who donated their time and money to the Hurricane Hugo relief effort. Words cannot express the appreciation of the victims who benefitted from your selfless giving. God bless you all.

SGA reminds you that we are here for you. What are you thinking? You can attend the first SGA meeting Oct. 23, at 5:30 p.m. in Hollis 118. Also, do not forget the SGA suggestion boxes in the Williams Center, the library, and Landrum. Let us know what you think about the job we are doing..

Bob and Paul's football picks

Paul's Picks

Illinois at Michigan State: MSU is only 2-3, but the three losses have come against Notre Dame, Miami, and Michigan. The tough road continues against an Illinois team that has beaten USC and lost only to powerhouse Colorado. The teams appear to be evenly matched, so the Spartans get the edge at home. Michigan State 21- Illinois 19

N.C. State at Clemson: A month ago this looked like a great game, but Clemson has lost two of its last three. N.C. State has gone 6-0 without playing anyone worth mentioning. The Wolfpack's first real test will be a rude awakening. Clemson won't lose two in a row in Death Valley. Clemson 17 - N.C. State 14

USC at Notre Dame: When these two met last year, Notre Dame pulled off a surprisingly easy 27-10 victory. This year USC returns 18 starters (ten defensively), but the Irish are even more talented than last year's national championship team. Notre Dame 17 - Southern Cal. 13

Auburn at Florida St.: Since losing to Tennessee, Auburn has looked less than spectacular. Meanwhile, Florida State has won four in a row. I'll cheer for FSU now that Deion Sanders is gone. Florida St. 27- Auburn 17

Tennessee at Alabama: Take away Notre Dame-USC and this is the game of the day. Alabama leads the SEC in scoring offense, but they're inconsistent. Star runner Reggie Cobb has been kicked off the team, but the Volunteers will get by without him. Tennessee 24 - Alabama 20

Kansas at Colorado: The fans in Boulder will get to leave at halftime, if not sooner. This joke of a game pits a powerhouse against a group that would struggle at the high school level. The Buffaloes will cruise to 7-0. Colorado 52 - Kansas 6

Michigan at Iowa: Iowa lost their opener 44-6 to Oregon. A team that loses by 38 points to the Ducks doesn't belong on the same field with Michigan. Michigan 34 - Iowa 10

Cincinnati at West Virginia: Does anyone really care? West Virginia 35 - Cincinnati 14

New Mexico at Florida: The loss of four players won't hurt the Gators tomorrow. The Gator defense, which is tops in the SEC, will be enough to give Florida what could be its last win of the season. Florida 27 - New Mexico 3

Central Florida at GSC: The last time these two schools met on Parent's Day in 1987, the final score was 34-32. It won't be that close this time. The Eagles will rebound from a shaky performance at Nicholls State and send the Knights back to Orlando with their seventh loss in eight tries against GSC. GSC 31- Central Fla. 10

Cross Country team gears up for GSC Invitational

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports writer

We all know that Saturday is Parent's Day and that Erk's Eagles are taking on Central Florida tomorrow afternoon. However, what everyone might not realize is that the football team is not the only squad that will be in action.

In the only home meet of the year, the GSC cross country team will compete against Armstrong State, Augusta College, Georgia College, Paine College, and Savannah State in the Southern Invitational tomorrow. The 5,000 meter (3.1 mile) event will begin with the women's competition at 9 a.m., immediately followed by the men's race.

Assistant cross country coach James Vargo considers the GSC men to be heavy favorites. In his opinion, three Eagle freshmen, Mike King, Gene Sapino and Jason Moody, are the top runners in the entire field.

On the women's side, Vargo acknowledges that GSC is the favorite, but also points out that Paine will provide stiff competition. Last season Paine defeated the Lady Eagles in Statesboro. Coach Vargo feels that victory should go to the Lady Eagles as long as their number three, four, and five runners run well.

GSC is hoping to build on its successful performance at the Oct. 7th Georgia Intercollegiate Championship in Athens. At that meet, the Eagle's top performance came from King, who finished 14th with a

Stupac's Picks

Hi again, it's me Bob Stupac. In my first college picks for the George-Anne, two weeks ago, I was 9-2. Now I'll crank it up again and try to pick some winners:

Illinois at Michigan State: It just doesn't get any easier for State as they play their fourth top twenty opponent in as many weeks. But the Spartans have to win sometime and this just might be the week. Michigan St. 21- Illinois 17

N.C. State at Clemson: The Wolfpack put their ACC title hopes on the line against a Tiger team that is still smarting from upset losses against Georgia Tech and Duke. The Tigers will get back on track this Saturday. Clemson 30 - N.C. State 28

USC at Notre Dame: A third great game this week. The Trojans will take their shot at the defending champs in South Bend. They will also find out why the Irish are on top. N.D. 21- USC 14

Auburn at Florida St.: Another scary game to call. Both teams have lost their shot at a national championship; therefore, they'll be out for blood. The game is in Tallahassee; that should be enough for the Seminoles. Fla. St. 31- Auburn 24

Tennessee at Alabama: They don't come any better than this. No. 6 at No. 12. In a battle between the two top SEC teams, it's almost too close to call. But the Vols should win a squeaker even though they lost their top rusher in Reggie Cobb. Tennessee 28 - Bama 27

Georgia at Vanderbilt: In three short weeks the Bulldogs have found themselves in the pound and on the extinction list in the SEC race. However, they will bounce back this week and put the bite on the Commodores. Georgia 31- Vandy 20

North Carolina at Georgia Tech: The last two weeks have seen the Jackets grow up with ACC wins over Maryland and Clemson. This week they take their winning streak to three as they sting the Heels. Tech 34 - N. Carolina 14.

LSU at Kentucky: The Bayou Bengals travel to Lexington looking for their first SEC win. They should get it, but it will be a battle. LSU 21- Kentucky 20

Duke at Maryland: Both teams have the ability to choke anywhere, anytime. However, the Terrapins will probably out-choke the Blue Devils. Then again, they may not. Duke 1- Maryland 0

Central Florida at GSC: Easiest pick of the week. The only question is, "How bad will the Eagles whip the Knights?" My guess is pretty bad after the Eagles near loss in La. GSC 42 Central Fla. 17 time of 22:11. In addition, Sapino came in 16th, with Moody 23rd, Mike Grubbs 33rd and Jay Knight 45th. The GSC team came home fifth out of 14 competing.

The Lady Eagles' were just as impressive. Leading the way to a fourth place team finish was Alicia Hewes with a time of 19:47, which put her in ninth place overall. Behind Hewes were Beth Thomas (20th), Jackie Davis (25th), April Satterfield (35th), and Gina Nunnally (41st). Also, all five Southern Invitational schools finished behind GSC at the Georgia Intercollegiate Championship.

Even though Saturday looks encouraging for GSC, Vargo is down playing the event as a tune-up for the conference championships. The Eagles will be in San Antonio next weekend for their meet, with the Lady Eagles heading to Macon on Nov. 4th for their conference championship meet. Being able to tune up without having to leave home is the most important aspect of tomorrow's event.

Vargo considers the Southern Invitational to be a great opportunity for the college community to see the team. In the coach's words, this year's squads are "the best men's and women's teams we've ever had." If that is not enough incentive to watch them in action, what is?

Vargo thinks that the meet fits in well with the rest of the day's activities: cross country in the morning, football in the afternoon, See Southern, page 6

Knights ride into GSC on new found defense

with 620 yards, and quarterback Raymond Gross follows with 505 yards. Gross has hit 32 of 63 passing attempts for 520 yards with a 50.8 percent completion rate.

Defense is not the Knights only strongpoint, either. The traditionally powerful UCF passing attack is back again this year, led by quarterback Shane Willis, who has completed 105 of 171 attempts for 1,149 yards.

Wide receiver Sean Beckton has 27 receptions for 357 yards, and Shawn Jefferson, whom Spurgeon calls "dangerous," has 24 catches for 309 yards and three touchdowns. In all, the Knights return nine starters on offense.

The strong UCF passing game should make for an interesting match-up against the Eagle pass defense, which has twelve interceptions for the year. Senior strong safety Randell Boone is responsible for five of those interceptions this season, which ties a school record, and sophomore cornerback Kevin Whitley has picked off three passes.

GSC's rivalry with Central Florida is its oldest since we resumed our football program in 1981. Of the seven games, the Eagles have won six, including the last five in a row, but UCF has averaged over 24 points per game in every meeting since the first. Last season GSC managed to hold UCF to 17 points in a 31-17 victory in Orlando's Citrus Bowl, and in 1987 the Eagles had to use a comeback effort to defeat the Knights 34-32 in Paulson Stadium.

GSC remained second to Eastern Kentucky in the NCAA Division I-AA top-twenty poll this week. The Eagles have been continuously ranked in the top-twenty since Oct. 7, 1985, and have won 15 of their last 16 games.

The Eagles have now won 30 consecutive games at Paulson Stadium, but tomorrow's contest is no guarantee that it will be 31. "This is by far the best team Central Florida has ever had," Spurgeon said. "Everything we get this week, we're going to have to earn. They (UCF) are going to be ready to play and they will get after us, but I have a feeling we're going to get after them also."

Tough games are no more

By BOB STUPAC
Sports writer

At this very moment, college football is besieged by a problem so widespread that very few programs are excluded. No, I'm not talking about steroids, drugs, recruiting violations, academic problems, etc. I'm referring to college football schedules, and if you don't think there is anything wrong with them, then maybe you had better take another look.

Athletic directors and coaches are scrambling every year to find patsies to inflate their respective records. Forget good tight games; instead focus on going 10-1, or 11-0. But the athletic directors and coaches can't take all the blame.

The bowls and polls both want perfect records. It doesn't matter if those records are based on wins over Palooka U. and Snailville College, as long as the win column looks good.

Very few schools are excluded from this disgraceful practice. Notre Dame and Michigan are two good exceptions. Both have outstanding programs and they will play anyone. In fact, they thrive on the theory that you must play the best to be the best. However, it is sad to say that both schools are in the extremely small minority.

Division I teams pick on I-AA teams; I-AA plays Division II schools and so on. Just look at Southern's schedule. We've got three Division II schools on our schedule (Valdosta State, West Georgia, and Savannah State). Now, I don't mean to belittle those teams, but GSC beat all three by a combined score of 114-31. Give me a break.

As a fan it's frustrating to watch an Eagle team, that may be the best ever, play inferior teams every week. Let's play someone that is more on our level, or maybe a little above it. Are you listening Dr. Wagner?

Now I don't mean to pick only on GSC. Everyone else is also guilty, for instance Auburn. In past years, they've played such toughies as Kansas and Pacific. Or take a look at Miami's schedule. They lined up powers like Wisconsin, California, and San Jose State for the 1989 campaign. To make it worse the favored coach always plays up the underdog opponent. "Well, Nowheresville U. has got a great quarterback, he will make it a miserable afternoon for us."

seven of them) are in the doubles alley. The courts are badly in need of resurfacing, among many other things. Please, Bucky or any Southern booster, if you're reading, do something about the condition of these courts!

Last week due to a technical error, I made pro football picks in place of Bob Stupac's picks. Just in case anyone was interested, in a weekend of very strange occurrences in the NFL, I went 7-5. Not fantastic, I know, but I picked the Lions-Buccaneers game correctly and that made my week.

Despite the fact that the San Francisco area experienced a major earthquake and they will not be playing any games at Candlestick Park, I still think that the Giants will win the World Series. The next big prediction: Where will the Giants play their home games? My guess is Dodger Stadium.

Just thinking

By MIKE STRONG

I have an advanced tennis class on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. At the beginning of the quarter the instructor, men's tennis coach Joe Blankenbaker, told the class what he expected of us. He also informed us of the condition of the tennis courts. As he put it, "These are the worst courts in Division I-AA tennis." He was absolutely right!

I live in Michigan, and the tennis courts there experience something the courts down here rarely do: snow. However, the tennis courts at my high school are better than these courts.

The first court, nearest the PE and athletic entrance, is missing several large chunks of concrete! It is impossible to play doubles on it since most of the holes (about six or
