BUSH GIVES UPBEAT UNION SPEECH:

President Bush Wednesday spelled out his vision of "a better America" for the 1990s, including a surprise plan to cut U.S. Soviet troops in Europe. In his first State of the Union address, Bush stressed the "spirit of American ingenuity" in urging investment in education, environmental protection, economic competitiveness.

BUSH OFFERS SOVIETS TROOP PLAN:

To the Soviets, Bush offered a new troop plan in Europe: The superpowers would draw down to 195,000 troops each in East and West Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland; the United States could keep its 30,000 troops in Britain, Italy, Turkey and Greece.

BLOOD PRESSURE DRUG RECALLED:

One of the most widely used generic drugs in the country is being recalled. Bolar Pharmaceutical Co. Inc., under fire for allegedly faking safety documents, said Wednesday it is recalling its generic version of the high blood pressure drug Dyazide, a combination of triamterene and hydrochlorothiazide.

NO RECESSION IN FORECAST:

The government said Wednesday its best forecasting tool points to continued economic growth this year. Thursday, a research group reported its survey of consumer confidence fell sharply in January. The report, economists say, indicate the economy likely will not go into a recession this year, but it is not out of danger.

TAXPAYERS SLOW TO FILE FORMS:

The first report on the 1989 tax season says taxpayers are slightly slower to file this year than last — filing 2.98 million returns so far compared with 3.1 million by this time last year. Also, the IRS says it is processing returns faster than ever. In just under a month, the IRS has approved 100,000 refunds. The average check is for $932.

FIVE CHARGED IN AGENT'S DEATH:

Five men were indicted Wednesday in Los Angeles on charges of participating in the 1985 torture-slaying of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena-Salazar in Guadalajara, Mexico. Among those newly named: Manuel Ibarra-Herrera, ex-head of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police, and Miguel Aldana-Ibarra, ex-chief of Interpol's Mexico branch.

SHUTTLE FLEW WITH FLAWED SEAL:

The space shuttle Columbia flew its last mission with a flawed solid rocket booster seal, a potentially catastrophic problem overlooked during inspections, NASA said Wednesday. The flaw could have caused a Challenger-type disaster if the primary and backup seals had failed.

RETRIAL IN McMARTIN CASE:

The last defendant in the nation's longest criminal trial will be retried on child molestation charges, prosecutors said Wednesday. Raymond Buckley, 31, and his mother, Peggy McMARTIN Buckley, 63, were acquitted Jan. 18 on 52 similar counts. But jurors in that trial, which took nearly three years, were deadlocked on 13 charges against the son.

SOVIET McDONALD'S OPENS:

The first McDonald's restaurant in the Soviet Union has opened under joint ownership between the U.S. firm and the city of Moscow. Features: 700 seats inside, 200 outside; can serve 30,000 a day; employs 630 Soviets; pays about 1.5 rubles, or $2.40, an hour; charges 3.75 rubles ($6) for a Big Mac, 3.25 rubles ($5.20) for a Quarter Pounder, 1 ruble ($1.60) for a sundae.

SNOW IN MIDWEST, RAIN IN SOUTH:

Eastern Texas, western Louisiana and Arkansas can expect intense thunderstorms with hail and gusty winds Thursday from a storm front that clobbered mid- and western Texas, forecasters say. Steady rain will spread to the north, from Oklahoma to Michigan, and snow to see Briefs, page 3 home win earlier this season, the record is now tied at 11-11. The two teams are perennial contenders for the Trans America Athletic Conference (TAAC) title, and this season is no different. Both squads are 6-2 in TAAC play, one game behind league-leaders Centenary and Texas-San Antonio.

The Eagles and the Trojans have certainly had their share of exciting contests over the years. In the final of the 1983 TAAC Championships, hosted by GSC, Eric Hightower scored at the buzzer to down UALR 68-67 and send the Eagles on to the NCAA Tournament. Two years later, Little Rock retaliated with a last-second shot of their own in the TAAC final to win 67-65 and send GSC home for the season.

THE RIVALRY CONTINUES

Vs.

The 1987 battle at Hanner saw another thriller, with GSC hanging on to win in triple-overtime, 69-66.

The Trojans came to Hanner in 1988 to play before a record crowd of 4,961. GSC, the nation's number one defensive team at the time, held

Little Rock to its lowest point total against a TAAC team since 1982, winning 57-48. Following the game, UALR head coach Mike Newell was not shaken, saying "they still have to play at our place."

But home court advantage did little for the Trojans that year. Playing in Little Rock's Pine Bluff Convention Center, the Eagles routed the Trojans 75-58, handing UALR their first home loss of the year and breaking a 17-game home win streak.

Once again though, UALR got their revenge, first blowing out GSC 94-74 in Little Rock last season, then downing the Eagles 80-63 at Hanner. A new record crowd of 5,303 turned out for that one, but was largely taken out of the game by a superior Trojan squad.

UALR won their third in a row over GSC earlier this season, but things could be different this time around. Entering last night's game with Stetson, Little Rock was 11-6

Student Union stores announced

By KEVIN HUDSON
Staff Writer

As the new Student Union Building enters its completion stage, decisions are being made as to the use of the retail space. Seven sections of the bottom floor have been set aside to provide GSC students with their own "mini shopping center."

Larry Davis, director of Auxiliary Services has been planning the shops in conjunction with various departments on campus. The group has found several services which are missing or need improving on campus.

The proposals are as follows: The first shop planned is a book store to supplement the college store next door. Text books will not be carried. Instead, the annex will carry trade books and educational journals to assist students in their studies. Art and engineering supplies will be available at the new book store as well, thus alleviating a lengthy drive to Savannah for supplies.

The shop will also carry novels, paperbacks, magazines, periodicals and city newspapers. The sale of records, tapes and compact discs is also being discussed. Some other ideas for the shop are a video rental section and a sundries shop. The goal of the shop, according to Student Union Director, Earl Cashon, is to be the best professional reading center in the area.

The second retail space will be a Quik Copy Center. This copy area will replace the print shop in the warehouse area of the Williams Center. The heavy printing equipment will remain in the old location, leaving more space for copy machines and other instant services.

Among the new services to be provided is a fax machine, which will be available for student use. Other potential services will be announced later.

Next to the print shop, there will be a health and physical education supply shop. General supplies for classes offered by GSC will be available here. Small sporting goods such as tennis and racquet balls will be sold, as well as other related sports items.

Ironically, there will be a sweets shop located next door to the health shop. It will offer candies and

The Student Union Building will snacks. Initially, it was planned to occupy two spaces of the shopping area.

The next space will likely be the most visited retail area in the center. It will contain automatic teller machines from the local banks. Two of the banks have agreed to locate machines in the ATM room and talks are continued with a third bank. Davis declined comment on which banks have agreed to install ATMs.

make life for GSC students easier.

One small retail space is located next to the entrance to the auditorium and will be used for ticket sales. The small shop could also serve as a concessions area, selling popcorn, cokes, and other general items commonly found in theatres.

A computer store is also planned for the Student Union shopping area. It will offer software and hardware, and will give students the lowest possible prices for computer accessories. Presently, the college sells computers at deeply discounted prices through the computer center. The new store will display many of the available computer systems to allow hands on use. Small electronics may also be carried in the computer store.

Each store will be independently managed, although they will be owned and operated by the college system. Joe Franklin, manager of

Pines pool to sport new look

By KEVIN HUDSON
Staff Writer

GSC students will have a completely renovated pool to enjoy next quarter. The In The Pines Pool is undergoing repairs and receiving a face lift.

The $100,000 estimated cost does not include the wooden deck to be built on the pool site opposite the clubhouse, or the gazebo to be built beside the pump room.

The decision to rebuild the pool was a long time in coming. It has been in need of repairs for several years but plans were speeded up due to the college's continued growth and the increase in the number of people living in nearby apartment complexes and Fraternity Row have generated more use of the pool.

David Williams, The Pines restaurant manager, said that construction, which has blocked some drive ways in the Pines apartments should be finished by March 1.

The pool has had several problems. First, the skim lines did not work properly, causing dirt and leaves to sink, rather than float into the strainer basket. The low pressure also caused difficulty in cleaning the pool. The old liner was cracked and peeling, and will be replaced by a new plaster liner.

The pool area will be improved through several measures. First, a new outdoor lighting system is being installed, along with underwater lights in the pool. Removable race ropes will be placed across the deep end of the pool for use by the swim team during summer practice.

Due to the increased traffic in the Pines parking lot, sidewalks are to be built around the outside of the fence to allow easier access to the restaurant and laundry room. The sidewalk between the clubhouse and the pool will also be widened.

A soda fountain is planned, which will enable students to get their drinks outside, rather than get dressed to come into the Pines for a break.

The much nicer and cleaner pool will also be equipped with a handicapped access ramp.

The renovations are expected to be completed by spring quarter, or soon after. Once reopened, pool hours will be from noon until 6 p.m. daily with a lifeguard on duty at those times. Student groups and organizations can also reserve the pool after hours for special events.

The annual Pines pool party, which is held in May, will serve as the grand opening celebration.

All students, faculty and staff are welcome to the pool. GSC I.D. is required.

Big Man on Campus winner announced

By ELIZABETH TILLEY
Staff Writer

"I feel that 'BMOC' should show leadership and be someone others can look up to," said Stephen Brown during the fourth annual Big Man On Campus contest, sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

A sport management major, Brown will get the chance to see if he can provide that leadership at GSC. The junior, whose hobbies include tennis, golf, and sky diving, was named Big Man On Campus for 1990.

John Hall, a sophomore business major, was voted first runner-up. "It made me more confident," said Hall of his experience in the BMOC contest.

Started several years ago as a fundraiser, Zeta sends out applications to all student organizations encouraging them to enter participants in the contest.

Zeta's Vice President Heather Lackey said that the idea came from a lack of male competitions and pageants.

Amid whistles and shouts from the audience, 14 guys paraded in sportswear and formalwear. Five finalists were chosen from this group and each was asked a question. After responding, they left the stage while the judges voted on who would be this year's Big Man. Among the panelists was Ma Futch, owner of the greek specialty store adjacent to the campus.

The judges' decisions were also influenced by the yells and whistles from the female members of the audience.

Of the show of appreciation from this segment, Brown said, "It pumps you and gives you a natural high."

Hall said he also liked the female appreciation. And although he enjoyed participating in the event, if asked to run again, he would allow someone else the opportunity to experience the excitement and fun.

Exuberance generated from the audience once the contestants made their first appearances on stage.

The sportswear revue brought laughs from the crowd. The outfits ran from overalls to a wetsuit to bird watching attire.

Overall, the formalwear revue gets highest honors. There is nothing as pleasing to the female eye as a man in formal dress. Of course, beachwear doesn't look bad either.

The audience seemed satisfied upon leaving. After all, Brown and Hall are perfectly capable of being the "big men" at GSC.

Congratulations, Stephen and John!

Hillel - The GSC Hillel affiliate wishes to invite the faculty, staff, and student body to our first annual tree planting in honor of the Jewish New Year for trees, Tu B'Shevat.

The ceremony will be held on Sunday, Feb. 11 at 1:30 p.m. in Olewine Park, between the Biology Building and the new Union.

Steven J. Cushner, president of the Hillel affiliate, will officiate the ceremony. For more information, contact Bernard Solomon at 681-5696.

Cooperative Education

With more than a million college graduates entering the job market each year, it's likely that many of them will have difficulty finding a career position in their field of study - usually because they lack practical work experience. You don't have to be one of those statistics.

GSC's Cooperative Education Program can give you that practical experience and, thus, a competitive edge on the job market.

The Co-op program is an alternating quarter work-study program in which students obtain practical, applicable experience in their major. To be eligible, students must have a 2.5/4.0 GPA overall, have completed 45 hours of coursework and be willing to commit at least three quarters to the employer.

For additional information contact Linda L. Miller, coordinator of Cooperative Education in the Placement Office, Rosenwald 282, or by phone at 681-5197.

Informative meetings will take place at the President's Dining Room, Williams Center on the following dates:

Monday, Feb. 5, noon
Tuesday, Feb. 6, 10 a.m. & 4 p.m.
Wednesday, Feb. 7, 11 a.m.

Jump Rope for Heart - Jump Rope for Heart will be held Thursday, Feb. 15 from 6-9 p.m. in the Hanner Fieldhouse. Check-in will be at 5:30.

The activity is open to all GSC students, faculty and staff, and prizes will be awarded. For more information, contact Dee Ramsey, Office 153 Hanner, ext. 0200, or L. B. 8076.

The Criminal Justice Club will be having a guest speaker on Monday, Feb. 15 at 5 p.m. in room 2, Political Science Building.

Frank Lee, an A.T.F. Officer, will be speaking about job opportunities.

The Criminal Justice Club will also be holding a bake sale in front of Landrum Center and the College Bookstore on Monday, Feb. 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

MCAT Test - The Georgia Health Sciences Consortium will be sponsoring a simulated Medical college Admissions Test (MCAT) on Saturday, Feb. 10 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. in 219 Hollis. If you are interested in participating, please call our office at 681-5387.

On Sunday, Jan. 28, Campus Police and the Statesboro Fire Department responded to a reported grease fire at the In the Pines apartment #570. The fire was quickly extinguished and caused only minimal damage.

The report was called-in by Charles A. Scott.

Also on Jan. 28, Joe Giddens, a clerk with stores and shops, reported that a vending machine in the game room at Dorman Hall had been damaged.

Contacting alumni a problem for officials

GSC Alumni House

By KEVIN HUDSON
Staff Writer

The Georgia Southern Alumni Association handles more information on GSC graduates than any other department on campus. The 36,948 former students are a legacy for the college.

The Alumni Association has a problem, though; they only have valid addresses for two-thirds of them. The association has not been able to contact the rest for some time because they have moved, married or otherwise changed addresses.

When GSC students move, get new jobs, win awards or are otherwise recognized; they are urged to contact the alumni office on Georgia Avenue. According to Gene Howard, director of Alumni Affairs and Community Development, graduates do not keep the Alumni Association informed on their addresses because they think they will constantly be asked for contributions. Although funds are needed, there are other reasons for wanting information on graduates. Some of the proceeds goes toward organizing alumni receptions which can be held anywhere across the country.

Crawford will be attending an alumni meeting next week in Charlotte, N.C., where there is no organized chapter. However, there are organized chapters in Atlanta, Macon, Augusta, Dublin and Griffin, Ga.; Columbia, S.C.; Washington, D.C.; and several other cities. These events are paid for by Alumni gifts and attendants are usually provided with hotel accommodations and refreshments at no charge.

Two years ago, the Georgia Southern Alumni Board of Directors established a dues system in which alumni, although not required, may pick a payment plan to support their alma mater if they wish to make a donation. There is also a section on the form to update general information so the association can keep an accurate record of Alumni on file.

To keep up with GSC affairs, the Alumni Association members receive the Alumni Record Quarterly, a magazine about GSC graduates. Information update forms are also included in the publication.

GSC students attend All-College Band

Thomas Lee

SANDY HANBERRY
News Editor

Ten GSC students participated in the Georgia All College Band last weekend, Jan. 25-27 at Armstrong State College.

The event was held in conjunction with the Georgia Music Educators Association's annual convention.

The students began a rigorous rehearsal schedule on Thursday in preparation for their Saturday performance.

This year the All College Band, which consisted of 100 members: 92 winds and 8 percussion, was conducted by Thomas Lee, director of the University of California bands.

According to GSC Band Director, Jarrold Michaelson, this year's performance was "one of the better ones that (the band) has had."

The students began a rigorous rehearsal schedule on Thursday in preparation for their Saturday performance.

The All College Band selection process consisted of two steps. First, the top twenty eligible musicians from the band were chosen by the director. Then the selected members were placed according to the order of their director's ranking, 1-20, until each section of the All College Band was filled with a pre-designated number of members.

According to Michaelson, this selection process, does not always yield the best All College Band possible because the player who is highly ranked at one institution would be selected to attend, whereas, a player of similar ability may not attend because he does not rank in relation to his institution's other candidates.

At the convention the band directors from all the institutions gathered and voted to change the criteria governing the selection of the 1991 Georgia All College Band participants.

The new system allows future participants to be selected without regard to their institution's ranking, but instead, completely on the basis of their musical ability.

GSC's All College Band Representatives were: clarinet- Sonja Odum, Cathy Rogers and Lauren Shutt; Tuba- Everett McDaniel and Tim Quigley; Trumpet- Jim Dupree and Dana Knowles; Euphonium- Gene Hendley; Baritone Saxophone- Jonathan Palmer; and Percussion- Teresa Robertson.

Miscellany looking for contributorsBy Ira Dove
Guest Columnist

Soon, the flowers of spring shall bud and bloom all around us. Are you also looking for a creative outlet? Then, you will be interested in Georgia Southern's Magazine of the Arts. The annual spring edition of the Miscellany is beginning to take shape, and we would like you to be a part of it. In addition to publishing the spring volume which will contain the creative endeavors of present students, Miscellany will publish a special tabloid edition which examines the sixties. Also, there will be an "Evening of the Arts" event on February 20, at 7:30 at which sixties music will be played and sixties literature read. We invite you to come enjoy the festivities which will be held in the Foy Art Gallery. All of our events and publications are free.

If you would like to have your masterpiece considered for publication in this year's Miscellany, or know someone else who would, or if you just want to review the creative endeavors of other students, you will want to contact us. Submissions in photography, sculpture, ceramics, drawings, paintings, etchings, foreign language literature, poetry, short fiction, critical essays, expository essays, theatrical vignettes and musical scores will be considered by the faculty jury for inclusion in the Miscellany. The deadline for the submitting your original works to the magazine is March 1, 1990. All submissions should be accompanied by a cover sheet which includes your name, landrum box, and the title of the piece. Visual arts submissions should be taken to the Art Department Office on the third floor of the Foy Building. Literary submissions should be sent to or brought by the Miscellany office.

If you have any questions about the categories for submission, the "Evening of the Arts" or the Tabloid, feel free to contact Ira Dove, the editor, or Melissa Lukehart, the associate editor at Miscellany L.B. 8023, phone 681-0069, Room 105 in the Williams Center.

New anti-drug single Student entering music industry the write way

From George-Anne staff reports

SLI Records and Lowery Music announce the release of "Suicide Street," a single dedicated to increasing public awareness of the dead end street of drug abuse.

Producer Sonny Limbo, whose past successes include Alabama and Bertie Higgins, teams up with popular songwriter and recording artist, Lefty Dave Smith, blending Southern rock with rhythm and blues to produce this powerful song arrangement.

The song is quickly being added to record reviews, press releases, play lists, song lists and promotions. Also, advertisements for Smith and "Suicide Street" are being included in public service and awareness advertising.

The Muscle Shoals Players provide instrumental backing for the song. Backup vocals are provided by the Nashville Now Singers, seen daily on the Nashville Now talk show on TNN, the Nashville Network.

"The purpose of writing a song," he said, "is to touch someone with its meaning." That is the philosophy of Sam Purdue, a GSC senior who is an aspiring songwriter.

Two of Purdue's country songs, which had bids from two sources, are in the process of being sold. "Big Wedge Music and independent producer Tommy Dee are both fighting for the songs 'Picture of the South' and 'If You Only Know What I Know,'" Purdue said.

His musical sound ranges from ballads to progressive rock. When writing songs, Purdue progresses from idea to title, with emotion in it all the way. He has his own small studio and records some of his songs, playing most of the instruments himself.

Recalling his first image of writing, Purdue said, "I was in high school watching Johnny Carson after breaking up with a girlfriend. Johnny's guest sang 'What's Forever For?' and it touched me as if it were meant only for me." He started writing songs a week later, and has pursued it ever since.

Purdue credits some of his inspiration to the lyrics of certain rock bands, giving special acknowledgment to Guns N' Roses for their song "Welcome to the Jungle," which he said brings out the true meaning of New York.

He is majoring in accounting, because he feels it is the backbone of the record industry. "Over half of record sales go toward the accountants, lawyers and shipping companies. Money is the key."

Purdue has had a tough time writing, but said tremendous support and help come from his parents and friends.

He has a story that sums up what he wants from songwriting. Once, when he finished playing a song called "Leading on the Street to Brotherhood," everyone applauded and one of his fraternity brothers cried. He needed nothing else.

Panic was Widespread

By BILL JOHNSON
Staff Writer

"I like coconuts. You break them open and they smell like ladies lying in the sun." This line from the song "Coconut" is a prime example of tantalizing lyrics the band, Widespread Panic, writes.

Widespread Panic, which performed at the Rockin' Eagle Tuesday night, takes a new approach to music that is a refreshing change on today's music scene.

Calling themselves a band for the '90s, Widespread Panic has been together for about five years and have been steadily gaining strength and increasing the number of their fan following, known as Spreadheads.

Local bands in Athens and Atlanta have been doing Widespread Panic covers for a while. Producing music reminiscent of a young Grateful Dead, Panic is the hot band at colleges like Georgia Southern.

Band members include John Bell, vocals and guitar; Michael Houser, vocals and guitar; Todd Nance, drums and vocals; and David Schools, bass, percussion, and vocals. The addition of Sunny Ortiz on percussion adds a Hawaiian beat that moves through the music like a duck through water.

The long "Traveling Light" bounces through your speakers with a mellow rocking beat that is soothing. During some of the songs,

I reacted to them as if I was hypnotized.

Some of the group's lyrics sound like Grateful Dead music. Yet they are capable of doing a variety sounds. The "Take-Out Song," "Chilly Water" and "Space Wrangler" are all very enjoyable songs that have a good harmony and a pleasant guitar instrumentals.

Some students I talked to were very psyched up for the performance, preparing for it a week in advance.

"I listened to the album five times in a row before the show," said one female student. "There's nobody better than the Panic." And so it goes...

SGA

By JAMES M. JORDAN, JR.
Guest Writer

Recent events this quarter have been hectic, but SGA has been keeping itself right in the middle of things, working for students of GSC.

Most importantly, President Sean Schuur has been working with your SGA senators to lobby against the recent decision of the Statesboro City Council to place a cap on the number of students allowed to live in dwellings in certain areas of town. While the city council passed the proposal, SGA is considering alternative ways to rectify this situation.

On a lighter note, SGA will be hosting a Red Cross blood drive Thursday, Feb. 8, in the Williams Center. All students are asked to participate in this worthy cause.

Students are also encouraged to contribute their aluminum cans and help raise money for High Hope, an organization dedicated to helping mentally disabled persons. Collection time is every Monday from 3-5 p.m. in the Johnson Hall parking lot.

SGA is also working on a paper drive for High Hope. Collection boxes will be set up in offices around campus.

Last, but certainly not least, SGA would like to extend congratulations to Ed Baynes, our new advisor. We look forward to working with him for a long time. Welcome aboard, Ed!

DORSETT CALLS IT A CAREER:

Future Hall of Famer Tony Dorsett, a 13-year veteran with the Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos, announced his retirement from the NFL Wednesday. Dorsett rushed for 12,739 yards in his career, second only to Chicago's Walter Payton. His 99-yard scrimmage run against Minnesota is still a league record. Dorsett, 35, sat out the 1989 season following reconstructive knee surgery.

ILLINOIS PROBE CONTINUES:

Officials from the University of Illinois say that the NCAA is still investigating alleged basketball recruiting violations despite assertions from basketball coach Lou Henson that the probe is over. The NCAA is investigating charges that freshman Deon James was offered $80,000 and a Chevy Blazer to sign with the Illini. James has been benched for the season.

Some things never seem to change

In Tuesday's edition, George-Anne ran a front page story about alleged racism at a local restaurant adjacent to our campus. All I can say is that the story shows a fact that I've known all along: racism is prevalent here at GSC.

Imagine how black students feel after reading that article. Imagine how those black students who have eaten at that restaurant feel now.

I simply cannot grasp the idea of purposely serving substandard food to black people simply because a manager doesn't like the people of that particular race. That is an apparent psychological problem. This is 1990. Why is this sort of thing still happening?

From The Editor's Desk

Clint Rushing

And to think that hiring a token black cook to work in the restaurant would improve the image of the establishment apparently is idiocy in its purest form! That act is an insult to the proud race of black people and it's an insult to me!

While free beer may attract a few white students each night to the establishment and promote a clever and popular marketing gimmick, such as catering to beer drinkers who have no more pride in the human race than to patronize a racist restaurant, it still will not erase the disgraceful stigma of said allegations.

I can't see how any black student could patronize or remain employed by a business which seemingly prefers not to deal with the black public.

This situation is an embarrassment to GSC students; white, black, oriental or whatever their race may be.

When I think about this situation I feel ashamed to say that I patronized that establishment once; I'll not do it again.

Haven't we progressed enough yet to get over racism?

After all this is 1990!

Atoms and Ethics: The Manhattan Project

Guest Column

By Robert Boxer
Professor of Chemistry

Every now and then a new crisis pops up in the Savannah River Plant. This facility, used to produce radioactive material for weapons, has had safety and equipment problems for many years.

I cannot help but think how it all started during World War II. To me, one of the most fascinating aspects of that conflict was the cooperative effort among Americans involved in creating the atomic bomb from scratch during the last two years of World War II. Of course, this effort (known as the Manhattan Project) came to fruition when a uranium weapon was successfully dropped on Hiroshima Aug. 6, 1945, and a plutonium weapon on Nagasaki three days later. The human carnage produced by these two weapons proved to be the driving force that finally convinced a full-of-fight Japan to accept unconditional surrender and lay down its arms.

The Manhattan Project was headed by a highly respected Army engineer named Leslie Groves. By 1943, Gen. Groves had an unsupervised checking account with a balance of over $37 million in order to quickly and conveniently buy any uranium oxide he could get his hands on. This personal checking account of his was also used to keep as many people as possible in the dark about the project. After all, the Manhattan Project was a clandestine project and the fewer people who knew about it, the better. When the project was completed, over $4 billion of government money (more like 40 billion 1989 dollars) was spent and thousands of people worked on the project without knowing why they were doing what they were doing.

Besides buying uranium oxide, Groves also purchased hundreds of thousands of acres of land where plants to make the weapons were to be located. Buildings were constructed, equipment bought, people hired to support this extremely complex operation—each process done with as much secrecy as possible.

It was accepted, in that day and time, that some of the nation's business was secret (like the Manhattan Project) and not particularly moral (like the activities of the OSS).

What I find most interesting about the Manhattan Project is that it all took place without a hint of scandal. No kickbacks, no dishonesty, no fraud.

There were two processes that the scientists recommended experimenting with in order to separate fissionable U235 from nonfissionable U238: gaseous diffusion and electromagnetic separation. One problem developed with the electromagnetic method: tons of copper were needed to wind around the iron of these huge magnets. The problem was copper was heavily used in various kinds of war equipment. There would never be enough available copper. One scientist suggested that they replace copper with silver. To make a long story short, the Manhattan Project borrowed 14,000 tons of valuable silver from the government depository at West Point. When the silver was returned after the war, less than 0.04 percent was missing.

If we were to juxtapose the 1980's into the 1940's, at least 10 percent of the $4 billion spent would have been stolen by federal goodole-boys (and girls), a main congressional committee would have leaked the information, an exhaustive investigation would have taken place (costing $200,000), the project would have been scrapped as being wasteful and 500,000 American men would have been killed during the invasion of Kyushu, Nov. 1945 and Honshu, March 1946.

Why were there no scandals in the Manhattan Project? Were these men perfect? Far from it. They were intensely human.

Leslie Groves was a military martinet and had a passion for security. The scientists, on the contrary, were free spirits and they fought like cats and dogs.

The scientists constantly were baiting Groves. Rumor has it that a scientist, well aware of Groves' obsession about security, easily cracked the safe in Groves' office one day when Groves was out of town. When he next opened his safe, there in plain view was a sign with "Guess Who?" printed in big letters.

On the other hand Groves viewed the scientists as behavior disordered children and often called them "crackpots." He tried to force them into the Army, and thus, subjected them to military discipline. But when almost all the scientists threatened to quit, he reluctantly backed down.

Once the bomb was built, many scientists, particularly Leo Szilard (a physicist), had grave doubts about the use of this frightening explosive. Table pounding arguments between bomb advocates and don't-bomb advocates were common, but always among those people in the know. There was never a leak. The rules of behavior were always followed and the country's secret was protected.

I don't believe we can have an all-out effort today as we have then and still keep it secret. I think there are several reasons for this. First, the break-up of the American family has severely depressed the amount of ethical behavior. Second, the never-ending examples of greed and influence peddling have given the people sufficient reason to distrust the federal government. I find this sad and disturbing.

Letters to the editor

Abortion breeds hypocrisy

Dear Editor,

On any given day in any newspaper, you can read letters, editorials, or stories on abortion. The letters are usually strongly pro-abortion or strongly anti-abortion. It seems to be an issue with no middle ground. The issue I want to address is the hypocrisy of both sides of this issue.

The pro-abortion side says that it is the woman's right to choose, that it is not murder to abort a child. I see hypocrisy here because, regardless of when life begins, everyone would have to admit that an abortion kills what is alive inside a woman's body that would ultimately be a human.

Perhaps it wouldn't be so bad if the overwhelming majority of the two million abortions performed in America each year were not done mainly for the convenience of a young man and young woman who have been irresponsible in their sexual relationships and do not want to take responsibility for supporting and raising a child.

If abortions were performed as a result of incest, rape, threat to the mother, or some other equally severe reason only, then most anti-abortion people would give up their fight.

I see hypocrisy on the anti-abortion side when they call abortion murder and nothing more than protest to stop the killing. If they really believed that it was murder, they would have to fight harder than what they do to stop abortion.

To illustrate my point, how far would the average person go to stop a murder if they knew when it was going to happen, where it was going to happen, and that there was little chance of them being physically harmed if they tried to stop the murder.

Abortions are performed openly and at predictable times. It is relatively easy to stop if one considers it murder. If anti-abortion people really think that abortion is murder, then they are guilty of accepting preplanned, predictable murder, right under their noses.

It must be that even those who are most anti-abortion don't really mean what they say when they say, "Abortion is murder."

Dissention voiced

Dear Editor,

This letter concerns an old-age, worn-out issue, but I believe needs to remain an issue until some sort of remedy is offered to the problem. It is the problem of parking here on campus. But my main point concerns the parking at night around the Foy Building and the library. Yes, it is true that any student can park in any of the marked spaces whether faculty/staff or not, and be safe from the ever ready ticket patrol. But if all the spaces are full and you don't want to park a fifteen minute walk across a dimly lit campus at night, you park along side a curb wherever you can find room and go ahead and write your check out payable to campus police and put it under your wiper.

But lately, there have been many programs offered at night that the Statesboro community attends in the Foy Building. Therefore there are no marked spaces for those of us who pay to park on campus. And even my illegal space is taken up by a non-registered car. And is campus police ticketing those cars? Not that I nor anyone whom I've talked to have ever seen. I am not offering a solution to this problem, because I don't have one. But it just puzzles me that I, like many other students who pay to park can't find a space, must hike across a dark campus and walk past non-registered cars parked legally and all illegally unticketed.

Editor shall rot in hell

Dear Editor,

This letter is in response to your article, "Abortion is the women's choice." Abortion is murder and it is by no means a God given right.

You said that God put us on this earth with the intent for us to live in peace with one another making our own choices about our lives. And you said he does not interfere with our decisions. Well, Mr. Rushing, YOU'RE GOING TO ROT IN HELL FOR A LONG TIME FOR SAYING SUCH THINGS!

Who are you to say what God's intentions were when he created us? God does not let us live our own lives. He set up some rules which we are to live by. These rules are called the ten commandments. One of these commandments says, "thou shalt not kill." It doesn't say "thou shalt not kill, unless you were raped, or if was an accident." Killing is killing and there is no way around it. Somebody who gets an abortion is just as guilty of murder as a man who blows somebody's brains out at point blank range.

You are right about one thing, however. God does not interfere with our decisions. There is a reason for this, and it is called judgment day. On this day every person will stand face to face with God and Jesus Christ to answer for every sin they ever committed. How can anyone explain to them about their murdering innocent babies?

And to Rachel K. Williams who wrote in about Yolanda Wallace's article, Bravo for you! I'll see you in heaven.

Julie P. Moser

Parent at arms with column

Dear Editor,

If your intentions for writing your editorial on abortion were to ruffle feathers and collect a paycheck, then possibly your mission was accomplished. If, on the other hand, you were trying to give the illusion of having anything intelligent to say on the subject, then perhaps you were not successful.

This is, of course, my "soul" opinion and not meant to cause any trouble.

You start out with the startling revelation that abortion is a "God given right." Apparently that means God is in favor of abortion. When did God share this knowledge with you, Mr. Rushing, and how? Psalm 139 tells me that God "didst weave me in my mother's womb" and that "all the days ordained for me were written in His book before one of them came to be." I find it difficult to believe we are talking about the same God.

You contend that "a child is entitled to life only if it is conceived by two people who are in love or by two people with the best intentions of the child in mind at the time of conception." I think my choice would be a combination of love and good intentions, not one or the other. I also think that if we use your standards to decide who is and who is not entitled to life, we may eliminate a large part of the population. Now, if by chance someone did manage to be born not meeting these criteria, can we then say that it is our God given right to eliminate them?

Further into your editorial, you ask us how a decision to abort an unwanted child is any different from our parents not giving us a choice about church attendance. Pardon me? Could you be a little more vague? In the first place, a person can only make a choice between belief in God and nonbelief in God, a person must be exposed to God. To never expose a child to God or church is allowing the child no choice. If there was any logic in your attempt to compare this situation to a decision made to abort an unborn child "who cannot distinguish between life and death," it totally escaped me. To further address this comment, if it is justifiable to kill a person because they cannot distinguish between life and death, we have just broadened our spectrum of people that can be eliminated to include some of the mentally retarded and some of the elderly.

Now, Mr. Rushing, you go on to tell pro-lifers that they are against abortion because they have never had to face the hard facts that accompany an unwanted or untimely pregnancy. I believe that to be a rather broad and unfounded statement. I'd be willing to bet that more than one pro-lifer has faced this situation and chosen life rather than abortion. You fail to mention that even though the pregnant woman may not want the child, there are many loving couples waiting to adopt one of these precious babies.

I do agree that a pregnancy resulting from rape or incest would be a terrible ordeal, but do you really believe these to be reasons most abortions are performed? Lack of sexual responsibility on the part of the woman or her partner is a very poor excuse for ending a life. It is my opinion that abortion is not an acceptable form of birth control. You say our days are numbered and an unwanted child can make the only life we know very unpleasant. Not as unpleasant, I'd imagine as being sucked from your mother's womb, possibly piece by piece. Think about it.

Little Rock always a challenge for Eagles

Lady Eagles host Florida International

overall, their most recent loss coming to Texas-San Antonio 107-104 Saturday. Little Rock only beat Stephen F. Austin, who was ranked 293 out of 294 teams in the NCAA Division I power ratings, by six points Monday night, 75-69.

Meanwhile the Eagles have been on a roll lately, winning six in a row before their game last night against Samford. They have also won four of the last seven against UALR and own a 7-3 advantage when playing the Trojans at Hanner Fieldhouse.

GSC head coach Frank Kerns said the Eagles' biggest problems would come in dealing with a trio of excellent UALR perimeter players, forward Derrick Owens, and guards James Scott and Carl Brown. Brown leads the team with 19.3 points per game, while Owens and Brown are averaging 13.9 ppg and 12.9 ppg, respectively.

Brown was voted TAAC Player-of-the-Week last week after racking up 55 points, 11 assists and nine rebounds in games against Hardin-Simmons and Texas-San Antonio.

"Scott may be the best guard in the league, and Owens may be the best forward," said Kerns. "They will be exceptionally difficult to guard. They play a lot of full-court pressure and try to tempo the game. We're going to have to guard those people and we're going to have to be able to handle their pressure."

When the Eagles have the ball, they will look to Ben Pierce and Mike Curry for scoring. Pierce is averaging 15.6 points per game and Curry is scoring at a 15.1 rate.

Curry leads the team with 7.3 rebounds per game. Center Emmett Smith also has been impressive lately, tallying 35 points and 14 rebounds in the last two games.

"We played very, very well against Centenary (GSC won 109-86)," Kerns said. "That was probably our best game. Then we had two mediocre wins on the road against Mercer and Georgia State. We are going to have to be more consistent."

The Eagles' game with Little Rock is not the only big matchup of the day. In fact it will follow another important conference battle, that of the GSC Lady Eagles and Florida International University. GSC and FIU enter the game in a deadlock for first place in the New South Women's Athletic Conference.

GSC Promotions Director Greg Van Zant said Wednesday that tickets for the GSC-UALR game are selling very rapidly and stressed that students need to arrive early to get a seat. "We've sold this game out the last two years," he said, "and we think we're going to have another sell-out this year. We've set two sections aside in the reserve seating area, but students still need to get there early."

Tipoff for the GSC-FIU game is at 5:15, with the GSC-UALR game set for 7:30. Gates will open at 4:30 for the Lady Eagles' contest. The doubleheader is being promoted by Taco Bell, and the first 1,000 fans through the gates will receive a free miniature basketball compliments of Taco Bell.

Mike Curry (20) will look to break out of a two-game scoring slump against Arkansas-Little Rock Saturday.

Blankenbaker optimistic about season

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Writer

Despite losing three of the top four players from last year's team, GSC men's tennis coach Joe Blankenbaker remains cautiously optimistic that his inexperienced group will nevertheless cause some problems in the Trans America Athletic Conference (TAAC) this season.

"Even with the players that we've lost, I still think that we can finish in the top three or four in the conference," Blankenbaker said while watching his squad prepare for a February 8-9 season-opening tournament in Charleston, S.C.

Although Blankenbaker has yet to determine the starting line-up, he expects Harry Anderson, Jerker Hansson, Anibal Gomez and Richard Proctor to be four of his top six players. Anderson, a senior who held the number two spot on the team last season, should move up to the top spot in his final year.

Hansson, who played at number five last year, and Gomez, who held down number six, could begin this year as high as the second and third seeds. Proctor, a junior from England, has no previous game experience at GSC. He sat out last year after transferring from Shorter College.

Four players will battle for the two remaining singles spots: Barry Boone, a senior from Dublin, Ga.; Kevin Green, a junior from Roswell, Ga.; Derek Robertson, a freshman from Norcross, Ga.; and Juan Velasco, a senior from Spain.

On the doubles side, Blankenbaker feels that "it would be good if we could really improve our doubles game because we're not going to blow teams off the court with our singles." Anderson and Hansson, playing together for the third year, have been penciled in as the number one doubles team. Gomez and Proctor are a likely number two team, with Robertson and Green possibly number three.

In Blankenbaker's opinion, the race for this year's TAAC title will be between Arkansas-Little Rock and defending champion Georgia State. He considers GSU to be particularly dangerous because the Crimson Panthers have all their players back from last year and "they've won it once, so they know they can do it." Blankenbaker admitted that his team will have a hard time winning the conference, but at the same time acknowledged that the Eagles very realistically could finish near the top.

Blankenbaker also acknowledged that his unproven Eagles will face several stiff challenges before the TAAC schedule even starts. After battling the likes of Clemson, Furman and South Carolina in the Charleston tournament, GSC will return home the following weekend for a date with Georgia College. The Eagles then face two powerhouses - Georgia Tech, a top 20 NCAA Division I team, and North Florida, the NAIA pre-season number one.

Lady Aqua Eagles upset Emory

By DAVID LOSINGER

Maschio in the 100 yard Freestyle. Maschio, a freshman from Inverness, Fla., captured her seventh first place finish of the year, which is second best on the squad.

Stacey Scheible took two first place finishes, including a school record in the 200 Individual Medley, to help lead the GSC Lady Aqua Eagles past third ranked Division III Emory University 118-107 Saturday at Hanner Natatorium.

Scheible, a freshman from Columbus, Ga., captured the 200 I.M. in 2:13.44, breaking the old mark of 2:13.49 set by Tracy Horn in 1988. Scheible also took the 200 yard Breaststroke in 2:30.24, giving her 10 first place finishes this season. Scheible has set three GSC school records and one Hanner Natatorium record in five meets this season.

Other individual winners on Saturday were Terri Comeau in the 200 yard Freestyle, Karen Welles in the 1000 yard Freestyle and Keri

The Lady Eagles overshadowed a brilliant performance by Emory's Rachel LeClair. LeClair took three individual first place finishes, including a pool record 2:12.67 in the 200 yard Backstroke. LeClair's time shattered her old mark of 2:19.70 set in 1988.

GSC improved its record to 3-2, their third consecutive meet victory. Emory falls to 5-8.

"This was a prime time victory for our program," Head Coach Scott Farmer said. "The ladies came out fired up and it really showed. This win should give us much needed momentum the rest of the season."

The Lady Eagles will look for their fourth consecutive victory when they host the Lady Jaguars of Augusta College today at 4 p.m. at Hanner Natatorium.

Aqua Eagles split two meets

By DAVID LONSINGER
Guest Writer

The GSC men's swim team split two meets over the past weekend at Hanner Natatorium, defeating Georgia Tech 135-100 Friday, but losing to seventh ranked Division III Emory University 137-106 Saturday.

On Friday, Marc Fayard captured the one and three meter diving, and Jason Singalewitch, Andrew Bristow and Mark Von Duyke took first place honors to help lead the Eagles to their second victory of the season.

Trailing 30-25 after three events, the Eagles captured four of the next six events to take a commanding 98-68 advantage.

Singalewitch, who captured his first top place finish of the season, edged out teammate Tim Eigel to win the 100 yard Freestyle (49.39). Bristow, who continues to swim well in winning his fourth individual event of the season, took the 200 yard Backstroke in 2:07.07. Von Duyke, who also captured his first top place finish, took the 50 yard Freestyle (23.32).

Georgia Tech, who slips to 2-5 on the year, was led by Todd Testrake's two first place times in the 200 yard Freestyle and the 500 yard Freestyle.

On Saturday, the Eagles met a well trained Emory University squad that came in as the seventh ranked team in Division III and showed why as they handed the Eagles a 137-106 defeat.

Diver Chris Radpour set two Hanner Natatorium records in helping Emory to the come-from-behind victory. Radpour, considered among the nation's elite divers, scored a 29.1 in the one meter and a 267.1 in the three meter, both pool records. Radpour's one meter score broke the old record of 226.1 set last season by William & Mary's Matt Heist. Radpour's three meter score broke his individual mark of 249.9, also set last season.

Trailing 86-83, the Emory

Eagles won the final four events for the 31 point victory.

Bristow and Eigel led the GSC Eagles in a losing cause with two individual first place finishes. Eigel won the 100 and 200 yard Freestyle, while Bristow won the 200 yard Backstroke and the 200 yard Individual Medley. Bristow now has five first place finishes on the season, including the two individual victories. Eigel captured his third and fourth respectively.

GSC was without the services of Singalewitch, who sustained a shoulder injury in the victory over Georgia Tech.

"We knew they were going to be tough and losing Jason just made it tougher," GSC Head Coach Bud Floyd said. "We took it to them, but the final four events and Radpour's diving made the difference."

GSC falls to 2-3 on the year, breaking a two meet winning streak. Emory improves its record to 5-7.

The Eagles will travel to Charleston, S.C. to battle the College of Charleston on Saturday, Feb. 10.

the GSC College Bookstore and initial co-manager of the Trade Book Store explained the purpose of the new store system, "It has been designed to support the education mission of the college."

"The stores are not designed to be money makers," says Davis. "They are proposed to satisfy the service needs of the students."

One part of the new services that students will particularly enjoy is the fact that MFP's will be accepted at all stores.

If all deadlines are met the Student Union Building could be open as early as next quarter.
