ROUGH RIDE FOR PLAN:

President Bush and congressional leaders have until Oct. 19 to sell a thorny budget accord to a skittish audience on Capitol Hill. That's the deadline for congressional passage of Sunday's eleventh-hour agreement that slashes spending and raises taxes to cut the deficit $500 billion over five years. The deal hikes taxes and fees by $134 billion and cuts spending by $182 billion.

DEBOW OWNS EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.:

For Walter DeBow, fighting City Hall brought an unexpected result: He now owns East St. Louis, Ill., City Hall and 220 acres of city property. DeBow, 55, suffered permanent brain damage in 1984 after being beaten into a coma by a fellow prisoner at the city jail. He was being held on a traffic charge. (From the USA TODAY News section.)

SUPREME COURT OPENS MONDAY:

The Supreme Court opens its fall term Monday short one justice, but not lacking in controversial cases. David Souter, nominated to replace Justice William Brennan Jr., is expected to easily win Senate confirmation Tuesday and may be sworn in Wednesday in time to participate in hearings on key cases. Souter will not be able to participate in at least eight cases argued before he's sworn in.

PIRATES CLINCH NL EAST:

The Pittsburgh Pirates clinched the National League East title Sunday with a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. The National League Championship Series starts Thursday at Cincinnati at 8 p.m. EDT.

BLUE JAYS DOWN RED SOX:

The Toronto Blue Jays beat the Boston Red Sox 10-5 to keep them from clinching a tie in the American League East. The Red Sox are ahead by one game with three games remaining. The Blue Jays had a season-high 19 hits against five Boston pitchers. Boston's Tom Brunansky had his fifth home run in the three-game series. Toronto now plays at Baltimore, while Boston finishes at home, vs. Chicago.

Henry defends students

By LAURA McABEE
News Editor

GSU President Nick Henry defended the university community during an address to University Optimists Thursday following comments from a local law official that many students are unruly and should be jailed.

"One local law official" seems to be sending the message that students are not wanted and will be shunned in Bulloch County. As a result of the county seemingly being "out to get" them, students and parents will lose interest in Georgia Southern, the University will shrink, enrollment will wither, and Bulloch County's economy will suffer.

However, Bulloch County Sheriff Arnold Ray Akins, to whom Henry alluded to in his speech, says that his intention is not to "pick on" college students, and that his comments were taken out of context in other newspaper reports.

"What I said was this: that we were going to enforce the law with college students, and if there had to be an example made out of some college students, you know, that was what it was going to take. Nobody has said one time about picking on college students."

"Now, we're going to arrest college students the same that we arrest anybody else who violates the law," said the sheriff.

"We aren't singling out college students and letting everybody else go. We're going to arrest college students, we're going to charge college students, and then, I said, if we're going to have to make an example out of some, then sometimes you have to do that," he added.

Akins met with President Henry twice last week to discuss relations between the University and the community, and says that he believes that Henry understands the position of local law enforcement.

"All we want is for the students to know that if they violate the law to a point, that they can be sent home," Akins said.

Jane Thompson, Assistant Dean of Students for Special programs, introduced President Henry who commended the members of the newly formed University Optimist Club, saying that the "membership of civic-spirited men and women, representing the community and the campus, is symbolic of the partnership between Southern and Statesboro that has accomplished so much for both."

Henry acknowledged GSU's rapid growth, and cited favorable attention that the new university status has brought Statesboro from as far away as London, England. He then compared the favorable attention of the London Times with recent headlines from the Statesboro Herald that read, "Increase in enrollment means more community problems", and "Students who play loud music...could find themselves in front of a judge" or in jail.

"Apparently, our student population is registering not only in numbers, but in decibels," Henry quipped.

Henry stated that the relationship between the campus and the community will continue to be of paramount importance at Georgia Southern, and that students who

Student media offices expand

By YOLANDA WALLACE
Features Editor

With all the construction sites around campus, GSU is undergoing an obvious upheaval. Mirroring this trend, the student media has undergone quite a few changes as well.

The Miscellany, GSU's magazine of the arts, "never really had its own office space before," said magazine editor Malone Tumlin. The magazine was always edited and produced in the cramped quarters of advisor Bill Neville's office in the Williams Center.

"Now we have room to spread out and work," Tumlin said of the location, room 102 Williams Center. "We have a nice office with plenty of space and desks for the editorial staff [Jamie Murdoch and Shannon Brett]. I like being near the George-Anne office and being near Bill in case I have any questions. The PAGES office [which lays out the magazine each year] has been a big help as well."

The Miscellany will conduct its first reading of the year Nov. 14. The First Evening of the Arts, a faculty poetry reading, will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the Foy Art Gallery, room 303.

The 1991 edition of the Miscellany, which will make its appearance later this year, is now accepting submissions from students, faculty, and staff in the following 13 categories: poetry, theatrical vignettes, critical essays, expository essays, foreign language literature, short fiction, musical scores, photography, sculpture, ceramics, drawings, paintings, and etchings.

Several promotions and giveaways will take place before and after the March 1 deadline. Each entry should have a cover sheet with the student's name, Landrum box number, and title of the work. Visual art should include a brief description of the piece. Each written entry should be typed and double spaced. Entries should be mailed to LB 8023 or taken to the Miscellany office. For more information, call 681-0565.

WVGS, the campus radio station, did not make a change in location, unlike most of the other organizations on campus. WVGS simply expanded into Williams Center Room 110, the office space given up by the George-Anne.

"Honey likes his new office space," said Music Director Scott Lambert. "Everyone was sort of stepping on each other's toes before, but now everything's cool."

The George-Anne, the official student newspaper of GSU, vacated Williams Center Room 110 in favor of Room 111, a former conference room, after several board rooms were built in the University Union.

"It's advantageous to have this much space," said G-A News Editor Laura Mcabee. Room 111 is over twice the size of 110, room enough to utilize the furniture left behind by SGA and CAB in their exodus to the Union. "There's room for everyone to have his/her own desk. We no longer have to double up on desks for the assistants."

Interjected Editor Clint Rushing, "Yeah, and I don't have to worry about hitting people in the head any more when I, Nolan Ryan/Patrick Ewing, strike out Jose Canseco with the high heat or go for a slammin' slam dunk."

'Master plan' forshadows future changes

G-A Staff Reports

The closing of the Lake Drive parking lot is to be the first stage in a pedestrian mall, according to Gary Witte, assistant director of Facilities Planning.

"It will extend from the rotunda at the Union Building to and possibly beyond, the new Lakeside Cafe," Witte said in an interview with Anne. "That area is the main area for students to walk to class and there was a lot of traffic in that area."

"Pedestrians and traffic don't mix well," Witte said.

The long-range construction plan includes formal fountain areas, student gathering areas, and information booths to be placed along the mall.

"It's all a part of the campus facilities master plan that was developed in the spring," said Witte Parking is also a part of the master plan of GSU's future.

"Parking is being moved further out from the center of campus," said Witte. "The core part of the campus is gradually being turned over exclusively to pedestrian use."

Future changes, however, do not include parking decks or paving of the South building parking lot.

"A parking deck would be extremely expensive ... it could cost anywhere from $5,000 to $6,000 per space," Witte said. "There are things we could do that wouldn't be so cost prohibitive yet work just as well, such as a small transit system, or internal loop roads, which are a part of the master plan."

According to Larry Davis, director of auxiliary services, the area that the South building parking lot now occupies will eventually be taken up by a major academic com-

Dr. Philip Bjork, vertebrate paleontologist, will present "The Dinosaurs of Western North America" Oct. 4 at 7 p.m. in room 280 at the Georgia Southern University Union.

Bjork is the director of the South Dakota School of Mines Museum of Geology. He received his masters degree from the South Dakota

School of Mines and his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

He has spent the last 20 years of his life working in the field of paleontology and, specifically, the last 15 working with dinosaurs. In addition to collecting hundreds of Hadrosaur bones from a bone bed in northwestern South Dakota, he collected one of the eight known Tyrannosaurus Rex skeletons.

The creation of the Georgia Southern Museum resulted from the contribution of the mosasaur dinosaur by Bjork in 1979.

"Dr. Bjork is a practicing paleontologist who has spent his life furthering our knowledge of the evolution of vertebrate organisms and the geology of the United States, particularly South Dakota," said Dr. Gale Bishop, a member of GSU's Department of Geology and Geography. "I feel dinosaurs are currently a fascination to persons of all ages."

New band directors

By JOHN HASTER
 Staff Writer

For both men it meant a return to the southeastern United States.

First year faculty member, Dan Pittman, left as band director at Cameron University in Oklahoma. And Bill Schmid, who joined the Georgia Southern music department five years ago, transferred from a teaching position in Nova Scotia.

Now they are both taking on new roles at GSU.

Pittman is the new director of the Georgia Southern Marching and Symphonic Bands, and Schmid has been chosen to direct the school's Jazz Ensemble.

With the Symphonic Band not performing until winter quarter, Pittman has been concentrating his work with the marching band.

Thumbs down in D.C.

In a spectacle unique to all which has transpired over the course of the history of United States politics and justice, this past summer saw Washington D.C. mayor Marion Barry worm his way out of a prison term for using illegal drugs.

It was a limelight-perfect case, District prosecutors parade the abuse of illegal drugs and womanizing/sexual escapades of a big money mayor in front of television cameras for weeks on end.

Years of investigations, millions of tax dollars and what happens? The good mayor is found guilty of one simple charge of cocaine possession. "A charge most federal agents routinely ignore," says U.S. News and World Report.

The problem with this case was one of credibility because virtually everyone who witnessed against Barry was a drug abuser. But so what? In the multi-million dollar sting investigation done by U.S. law enforcement officials and D.E.A. officials last January, Barry was filmed using illegal drugs. This apparently was not enough for the jury. Well what more could a jury ask for? This failure to obtain a conviction by the government was a most embarrassing, yet typical episode in the antics of a legal system gone to hell.

Some say that the U.S. Government was wrong and tried to entrap Barry with the elaborate sting. In reality the government was attempting to bring justice to a criminal who for the past three years has been an alleged drug abuser. Everyone knows Marion Barry is a dope head, but when the proof is finally shown, the ever-so-weak judicial system fails to send him to prison.

To make matters worse, Barry has withdrawn from his political party and talked of running as an independent in the mayoral election for the District of Columbia. Now all the voters in the District need to do is show that they are all stupid enough to let Barry win should he indeed run again.

Thumbs down to Marion Barry, who has taken an office of high public trust and brought shame into it. He has disgraced himself, his family, his administration, his city, his nation's political and judicial systems, and his race. In a nation where black politicians such as Jesse Jackson and Andrew Young are attempting to bring political credibility to their race, Barry has shot down their efforts in a poor showing of discipline. We at The George-Anne hope that the American citizens will take to memory the man who could only grin after his trial, in which he was obviously guilty of a crime, when the jury was left both split and hung.

Good ole boys come through again

From The
Editor's Desk
Clint Rushing

A great injustice is taking place here at GSU. It seems as though the "good ole boy" system has proven once again to be stronger than justice. The good ole boys this time are the faculty and department head of a certain unnamed department here on campus. The victim, a young cavalier of education, a man well-schooled in the disciplines of his study, a teacher in every sense of the word. A man unafraid to show his students how the world really is, rather than paint a rosy picture as his department would prefer.

In my two years here at GSU, I have encountered many people who were graduated from institutions of higher learning in the field of education, but I have encountered only one true teacher. This very teacher is serving a notice of termination that his department head served to him last spring quarter. This man, who earned his doctorate degree in education, is quite a remarkable classroom instructor. He is the only instructor I have ever encountered who could inspire me to continue school and graduate. His lectures aren't merely read out of textbooks as most teachers do; he actually puts his heart into these lectures, expressing his opinions and affording his students another view of the situations he is talking about. I believe this separates him from other teachers. His teaching style affords him the ability to shed light on subjects in a real-life perspective, something students are not often exposed to.

The injustice is that this man has been given notice for no particular reason. But he and I know exactly why. The department head and his followers are ancient in educational method, strictly conservative and unchanging, inefficient in terms of departmental management and easily disturbed by active and energetic teachers posing a threat to their little kingdom. This teacher has been labeled a radical by the department. But why? Because he occasionally shouts an obscenity in class? Hell, don't we all do that? Not good reverends!! Because he teaches with so much vigor that his students are amazed? Certainly. I know this teacher received great student evaluations. I would even venture to say that this department head is jealous of this teacher's popularity. What it all comes down is the fact that this particular professor is not, was not, and never will be the ass-kisser his boss wants him to be. He will not knuckle under to the pressure and consequently is paying for it with his job.

Just like that a man's career is in dire straits. The good ole boy system prevails again. Conform or be cast out.

It all reminds me of the movie "Dead Poets Society," in which Robin Williams portrays a young English teacher in a private school for boys. His mentors are all old men with ultra conservative views on educational methods, religion, and society. As Williams attempts to teach his students to "Carpe Diem" (seize the day), he is met with opposition from the "old school." Although Williams is simply adored by his students for his teaching methods because his methods don't fit into the styles of the old professors, he is eventually fired. Williams in the movie is also blamed for a student's suicide as well because of the "radical" teaching style he so often used. Now this GSU professor is not involved with any suicide or anything of that magnitude, but he does teach his students the way life really is. He refuses to paint a rosy picture of the world and that is why he has grown so unpopular with his boss.

I cannot put into words how strongly opposed to this situation I am. A damned good professor is losing his job and a damned good university is losing its best teacher. The only ones suffering are those students who will not get the chance to encounter this professor's classes. All I can do is cry injustice and show you what truly is a damned shame!

Racism knocks on society's door

Guest

Richard Peters

Once again the nation looks to Birmingham, Alabama, for racial guidance. Once again the nation's dominant white male society must change yet another of its deep-rooted traditions to accommodate racial equality in America.

This is a free society and most Americans could not care less if a Shoal Creek wants to isolate itself... BUT, when a Shoal Creek uses the masses, or a city, county, state or federal government, they become violators of civil rights laws. Women, blacks, and other minorities will demand that the laws be enforced.

Shoal Creek is but a pebble in a bucket of sand concerning racism at America's all-white country clubs. These clubs are where our dominant white males socialize. These are the people behind the policy makers in the United States. They set the tone for our communities.

All-white country clubs, in general, must look at a far deeper problem than that of simply allowing blacks to become members. This act is only the beginning. Our colleges and universities are affected by unlawful acts of racism which are spawned in country clubs all over the U.S. More often than not, these country clubs are tied in financially to state and federal funded institutions. White students learn discrimination and racism through these clubs by being allowed country club privileges to complete student projects, and to participate in sporting events. Minority students must find other ways to accomplish these things.

This is our tax dollar being used, and these are our students, both black and white, being exploited.

These racists acts by these country clubs contribute to the fact that white students classify blacks as second class citizens. These acts also teach our minority students to feel and act like second-class citizens. This is racism...

As long as blacks and other minority citizens are considered second class, racism will remain prevalent. These are our future leaders who are being exploited.

Some institutions of higher learning won't schedule sporting events such as golf, tennis, and swimming with other schools who have blacks participating in these sports. And it is not as if the television networks, the Pro Golf Association, or the National Collegiate Association of America are not aware of this fact.

On June 15, 1989, I personally wrote a letter complete with video tape to the NCAA, ABC Sports, and to Chris Schenkel concerning these unlawful acts on the part of federally and state funded Georgia Southern and the Forest Heights country club in Statesboro. The annual golf tournament bore Schenkel's name. I have to wonder just how far we have come as a nation on racial issues. Let me note that I now live in another part of the United States because of this stigma.

Agencies such as the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the NAACP, CORE, the Rainbow Coalition, women's rights activists, minority rights activists, and concerned white citizens should come together to assist government agencies such as the EEOC, the U.S. Department of Education, and the IRS in putting an end to these outrageous, blatant acts of racial discrimination practiced by all-white segregated country clubs.

I fear no other nation in the world, but I do fear the United States from within...

North Carolina ballet troupe to perform here

By ELEANOR LAWSON and WENDY WRIGHT

The Campus Life Enrichment Committee (CLEC) welcomes everyone back to GSU. CLEC is your student/faculty committee that brings special speakers, cultural events, and performances such as the 1990-91 Performing Arts Series, to the GSU community. CLEC events are funded through the Student Activity Budget Committee, so all CLEC events are free to GSU students, staff, and faculty throughout the academic year.

In an effort to keep the GSU community informed of these various worthwhile activities, the George-Anne graciously allows space for this column, which will highlight the Performing Arts Series events and the special departmental programs.

The first departmental program will be presented by the music department as the first performance in their Visiting Artist Series. Dr. Mary Ann Stringer, talented pianist from the University of Southern Mississippi, will perform in the Foy Recital Hall, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m.

Stringer spent last year on sabbatical leave in England, where she interviewed British composer Joan Last and completed a bibliography of Last's work for students. Also while in England, Stringer worked with Prof. Christopher Elton at the Royal Academy of Music.

Another departmental program to attend this week is "The Dinosaurs of Western North America," a lecture by Dr. Philip Bjork, vertebrate paleontologist and director of the Museum of Geology at the S.D. School of Mines. The lecture will be Oct. 4 at 7 p.m. in the Georgia Southern University Union, room 280, and is co-sponsored by CLEC and the department of geology and geography.

The mosasaur skeleton which now resides in the GSU Museum was a gift in 1979 from Bjork, who has also collected one of the eight known Tyrannosaurus Rex skeletons as well as hundreds of hadrosaur bones from a bone bed in northwestern South Dakota.

Another exciting event to add to your calendar will be the opening night of the 1990-91 Performing Arts Series featuring the North Carolina Dance Theater in performance Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. in McCroan Auditorium. Their "Twentieth Anniversary Retrospective" program may include such classic and contemporary pieces as "Clowns and Others," "The Grey Goose of Silence," and "Journey."

How far must one travel to see world-renowned ballet? Paris, Milan, New York... Statesboro? The NCDT is a 21-member critically-acclaimed dance company widely regarded as one of the finest touring groups in the United States.

The company's repertoire consists of 13 different works as a part of their twentieth anniversary tour. This season, the dance troupe will bring to life two full-length ballets, the "Coppelia" and the "Nutcracker." Hailed as being "an immediate winner... finely honed, disciplined, versatile dancers" by Allan Ulrich of the San Francisco Examiner, the NCDT company attracts dance enthusiasts from across the country.

Based in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, the company was founded in 1970. In 1979, multi-talented Salvatore Aiello became the NCDT artistic director, working in close proximity with ballet master Dennis Marshall. Together, the duo has worked to train and develop a team of top-notch performers who demonstrate choreography at its best.

The New York Times describes the NCDT as "classically-trained, yet open to contemporary influences" and "a pleasure to behold."

Students may pick up a free ticket, one per ID, for the performance at the Union Information Desk beginning today. After Oct. 8, GSU faculty, staff, and students will be offered the remaining tickets at the same location, free of charge, one per valid ID. (Ticket holders are reminded that their ticket guarantees seating until 7:50 p.m., after which time any empty seats will be released).

Eagles return to winning ways, 33-14

Slotback Alonzo McGhee comes back down to Earth after making a fingertip grab of a high Raymond Gross pass. McGhee caught three passes for 41 yards and added 21 yards rushing. McGhee and his teammates racked up 407 yards against NLU.

That sound you heard from Paulson Stadium Saturday was a collective sigh of relief by the Eagle faithful.

The Georgia Southern Eagles ended their three-game losing streak with a 33-14 pounding of the 15th-ranked Northeast Louisiana Indians, GSU's first win since the season opener.

NLU entered the contest averaging 398 yards a game, but the Eagle defense limited the Indians to 196 yards passing and 49 rushing. In outgaining NLU 407-245, the Eagles kept the ball for almost 38 minutes and committed no turnovers.

"I think we played a complete game for the first time," quarterback Raymond Gross said. "When we play like we did today, it's hard to beat us."

Gross led the GSU offense with 226 yards and two touchdowns on 12-18 passing. After not passing for more than 200 yards in a game his first three seasons, the senior from Midway has now done it twice in as many weeks.

"The good thing is that Raymond is throwing the ball so well that we can throw when we need to," said Eagle head coach Tim Stowers.

GSU scored 10 unanswered points in the second quarter to open a 20-7 lead. Going into the game, the Eagles had been outscored 41-7 in the second period of their first four games.

Joe Ross' one-yard leap over the top capped a 12-play, 59-yard drive and gave GSU a 17-7 lead with 12:43 left in the first half.

Gross and split end Deryl Belser got the drive going with a 21-yard pass play to the NLU 41 on second-and-13. GSU converted two third downs on the drive, including an eight-yard rush to the one-yard line by Ross on third-and-one.

The Eagles added three more points before halftime, thanks to an Indian miscue. Freshman Alex Mash recovered a Cisco Richard fumble at the NLU 33 and, when the GSU offense stalled at the 27, David Cool nailed a 44-yard field goal 31 seconds before halftime.

GSU started the scoring less than five minutes into the game on a 54-yard bomb from Gross to Karl Miller. Eluding the NLU rush, Gross hit the wide-open Miller, who strolled into the end zone for his first of two TD receptions. Miller's score was the sixth play of a 93-yard drive.

The Eagles made the score 10-0 on their next possession. Six straight runs, including a 16-yarder by Darryl Hopkins and an 11-yarder by Ross, brought the ball to the NLU 16, where Mike Dowis booted a 33-yard field goal.

Miller's second touchdown gave the Eagles their biggest lead at 27-7. After Alonzo McGhee ripped off a 12-yard run and a 25-yard reception, Miller took a shovel pass from Gross and fought his way 16 yards to paydirt.

The Eagles' two kicking specialists took turns padding the lead in the fourth quarter. Dowis kicked a 27-yard field goal for a 30-14 lead with 11:07 remaining, and Cool hit his second 44-yarder to end the day's scoring.

NLU's only points came on a 32-yard run by quarterback Doug Peterson in the first quarter and a 17-yard pass from Peterson to Kendall Farrar late in the third quarter.

Peterson managed 20 completions in 35 attempts, but was intercepted twice and sacked five times. His 196 yards were 37 below his season average.

While Gross paced the GSU passing attack, Ross led all rushers with 79 yards on 23 carries. Lester Efford was close behind with 78 yards in 11 attempts.

NLU fell to 2-2 on the season and saw their two-game winning streak end.

"People talk about us being in the top 20, but we aren't even close," Indian head coach Dave Roberts said. "We were out-coached and out-played."

Eagle defensive linemen Giff Smith (95) and Alex Mash trash an NLU ballcarrier. GSU defenders sacked Indian QB Doug Peterson five times and picked him off twice in the Eagles' 33-14 rout of Northeast Louisiana Saturday.

Southern nets USC-Aiken

By JAMES DRINKARD
Sports Writer

The GSU soccer team blasted the Pacers of USC-Aiken 5-1 Thursday at Eagle Field. The win gives the soccer Eagles a 5-1 season record.

The Eagles first penetrated the USC-Aiken defenses 12:34 into the game. Jay Dingbaum and Scott DeAmbrose attacked the Pacers' lines and passed to John Hagens, who found the back of the net. The assist was DeAmbrose's fourth of the season, which keeps him as the leader in assists in the Trans America Athletic Conference.

Fourteen minutes later, John Regan took a pass from the TAAC's leading scorer, Steen Larsen, to capture his second goal of the season.

Kevin Connelly gave Southern breathing room in the contest when he beat the Pacers' goalkeeper off an assist from Jorge Baboun. The shot came with 2:30 remaining in the half.

The Eagles entered the second half with a 3-0 lead and continued their domination of the soccer field. With just under six minutes off the clock, Baboun attacked the USC-Aiken goal. Chris Chambers supplied the assist.

The score did not change until 24 minutes later when Southern's Andrew Hansen took a pass from Andrea Amorati and beat the Pacers' goalkeeper. The goal was Hansen's first of the season.

The score remained 5-0, and it looked like a shut-out, until the final 17 seconds of the game. The Pacers' Tom Shimp beat the Eagle defense to net USC-Aiken's only point of the match.

All three Eagle goalkeepers, Mike Cole, Joe Bellafato, and Kevin Chambers, saw action in the match. Each of the three revealed their prowess at the goal with incredible saves. Bellafato, who had two crucial saves, was singled out by Eagle soccer coach Tom Norton for his outstanding play.

Commenting on this year's soccer effort and the outlook for the remaining season Norton said, "I was expecting a pretty strong team. I hope this game is indicative of how well we've progressed."

The GSU soccer Eagles will have a chance to prove their abilities when they take their unique three-man backfield formation on the road against Stetson University tomorrow.

Volleyball team beats SSC, Mercer -- falls to SCSC, AC

By CHARLES C. WHITE
Sports Writer

During the past seven days, the Lady Eagle volleyball team has played four times.

Monday the girls defeated Savannah State 15-5, 15-5, 15-4 in Savannah to boost their record to 2-1.

Some personal highlights included Mendy Crook having the most kills on the night with four along with 12 digs. Dee Cardell and Jill Eisel each had seven assists. Julie Ciekowski had a season high nine service aces.

Fortunately GSU dominated enough to allow all the girls more playing time, particularly the less-experienced freshmen and sophomores.

The Wednesday game against Mercer was much closer. Mercer won the first game 15-9 but the Lady Eagles were able to comeback and take the match by winning the next three games, 15-7, 15-8, 15-13. With this win they achieved a 3-1 record, the best ever for GSU volleyball.

Once again personal highlights included numerous individual season highs. Crook knocked out 14 kills and Lori Dattolo nailed 11 kills. Cardell provided 15 assists and Eisel 14. Of the 83 digs, Crook had 25, Ciekowski had 19, Dattolo had 16, and Heather Radtke had 14 -- all season highs.

Most of the girls were able to play but because of the strong competition, Coach Claiborne had to use his most experienced players more than usual.

Friday night the girls started a double header playing South Carolina State. Despite strong playing and several exciting rallies, SCSC won the match in four games 15-13, 15-12, 13-15, 15-4. As the score reveals, the match was close, painfully close.

Claiborne was forced to rely on his seven best players throughout the match. After the game he said he saw lots of improvement in the team. He feels they need to work on blocking, reducing unforced errors such as net violations and carries, and on serving which he described as "a mental thing."

"We had a chance to win this one. The girls were upset afterwards because they wanted to win. I don't like to see them upset but I do like to see that intense desire to win. I think [SCSC] thought this match would be a quick and easy win. Last year it was for them. I'm proud we were able to make them work so hard for the win. We play them again this season and I'd like to see the scores reversed."

The girls second match against Augusta College was to begin at 9 p.m. but was delayed until 10 p.m. because the match between AC and SCSC hadn't finished. Once started the match was exciting but anticlimatic. AC managed to narrowly win 16-14, 15-12, 11-15, 3-15, 15-11. Matches don't get much closer than this. Some veteran fans said the match was the closest they'd ever seen GSU play.

Speaking of fans, a handful of people showed for the last match, in itself a feat of determination since all the doors to the gym were locked. These determined fans were pumped for the occasion, hooping and hollering until the match finished at 12:05 a.m. No joke folks, we're talking midnight. I haven't had so much fun at a volleyball game in ages. Ever do the wave with six people?

After the game all the girls and Claiborne said how pleased they were to see the loud late-night crowd. Even though they lost, Claiborne said he was "proud of the way they played. The girls never quit. They've improved a lot since last year and a lot already this year.

"These may be the toughest two teams at our level. One key to turning these losses into victories will be the girls learning who will be where and how each person plays. Our communication is improving and we served better. I personally wanted this game, but we play AC again this year so maybe then."

The next home game is against Paine College Tuesday, Oct. 2 at 6 p.m. Come out and support the team. And bring a friend.

Move 10 years ahead of the class.

The new HP 48SX and a free 'library card' can get you there.

With over 2100 built-in functions, our new HP 48SX Scientific Expandable calculator takes a quantum leap into the 21st century. Buy an HP 48SX between August 15 and October 15, 1990, and HP will send you a free HP Solve Equation Library card (a $99.95 retail value).

The plug-in application card alone contains more than 300 science and engineering equations, as well as the periodic table, a constants' library, and a multi-equation solver. It's like having a stack of reference books right at your fingertips.

The HP 48SX calculator is so advanced, it will change the way you solve problems forever. It integrates graphics with calculus, lets you enter equations the way you write them, and does automatic unit management.

Check your campus bookstore or HP retailer for HP's range of calculators and special back-to-school offers. Then check out the calculators that are years ahead of their class.

There is a better way.

Museum to display GSU's past, present, future

From Staff Reports

Throughout October, the GSU Museum will display an exhibit that traces the history of the university from its founding as a secondary school for farmers' children to becoming the first university in the southern half of the state.

"The show is a display of the times, as well as the school," said Del Presley, director of the museum. "It is a wonderful opportunity for everyone to see where we came from, where we are, and where we are going."

Mannequins dressed in school uniforms stand beside photos taken during the era from which the outfit came. The miniature typewriter that Pres. Marvin Pittman used during his travels around the world is on display. Georgia Southern alumni from throughout the school's history have donated items to the exhibit.

"The exhibit is a great way for people to see Southern's history in a tangible way," said Presley.

During University Week, Oct. 8-13, the display will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be an exhibit reception Thursday, Oct. 11 in the museum. Refreshments will be served and the public is invited.

Also during University Week, the Union's official grand opening will take place.

Even the director and staff of GSU's new $10 million University Union building can't tell you all of the facility's uses—they are still discovering new ones. The public is invited to discover the new university's newest building as the Union celebrates its official grand opening on Oct. 9, in conjunction with University Week.

The grand opening ceremony begins at 11 a.m. and will be followed by an 11:45 a.m. cake cutting, with entertainment provided by a Dixieland band. Throughout the day, various performing and visual artists will display their talents in the commons area and the Afro-American Choir will present a recital beneath the rotunda.

At 8:30 p.m., there will be a free showing of "Another 48 Hours" in the Union's 578-seat theater. It will be a day for the public to get a sample of just what the University Union can offer the university students, faculty and staff.

"There are so many things this building can do that it will take us a few years to find out just what potential it really does have," said Earl Cashon, director of the 110,000 square foot facility. "Just as each university has its own personality, so does each university union. We have no idea what the personality of our union will be yet; that's what the first year or two are for."

Like everything else concerning the University Union, the students will decide what personality the building will assume.

violate "precepts of good citizenship" will be sent home by the college.

However, blaming every loud radio or other disturbances on GSU students is unfair to the vast majority of law abiding students, Henry said.

"Making an example" out of University students by dealing with them more harshly than other citizens who commit the same infraction may well teach students a lesson, but that lesson is not about justice under law," Henry said.

Henry went on to say that although there has been an extraordinary amount of negative press about the college, the community is enjoying the economic impact, which approaches $250 million in business per year. "Georgia Southern has been the growth industry in Bulloch County for the past quarter century, and every single one of us has benefitted from that growth."

President Henry went on to list additional contributions made possible by Georgia Southern, citing examples such as student volunteers involved with TOPSTEP tutoring, Habitat for Humanity building, collections for 'Hugo relief', hosting birthday parties for underprivileged children, and enhancing visibility for Mothers Against Drunk Driving. Also, each fraternity and sorority at GSU contributes service hours to community work or charitable organizations, and the Pan-Hellenic Council of sororities organized a blood donor drive that added 400 pints of blood to the Bulloch County Red Cross.

"The vast majority of our college students do right, do good, and inject almost a quarter of a billion dollars into Bulloch County in the process."

Henry said. "Given these stubborn facts, is it fair to boast that the county jails have ample room to incarcerate students simply because they are students? Perhaps some officials would not mind seeing Georgia Southern students in cells. If so, however, we shall all be diminished in proportion to the small size of those same cells."

Henry asked for the assistance of the Optimists in "delivering the good news that Georgia Southern's students are volunteering in droves to support the community that has always turned out to support them."

Sheriff Akins believes that GSU should determine which infractions are offenses that students should be sent home.

When asked how he felt about relations between GSU and the community, Akins replied, "I think there's really been ups and downs, and there's been better cooperation from some people than others, but on the whole, I think relationships have been real good. I think that the college does a lot for this community, but I also think that this community does an awful lot for Georgia Southern."

"The whole emphasis of this facility is to serve the needs of the students," said Cashon. "As the students and their needs change, so will the University Union change to meet those changes."

The facility has already been dubbed "the campus living room" because of its casual atmosphere and numerous lounges, and Cashon intends for the building to be used as a place for students to relax and meet friends between classes.

Several of the lounges are tucked away from the hustle and bustle, but for students who like to be right in the middle of all the action, the Commons is the place to be. Not only is it a natural center of traffic, but a small stage will be used to showcase the talents of musicians, comedians and various other performing artists.

The Commons is bordered by various retail shops, as well as a restaurant and several student activity rooms. Among the shops are Books Plus, which offers, by far, the largest selection of paperbacks and magazines in Statesboro; Express Copies copy center; Eagle Logic, where, using their educational discount, students can purchase computers and software for reduced prices; University Sports Club, specializing in athletic apparel and equipment; and a sweet shop that, among other things, will offer special coffees and cappuccino.

University Station is a restaurant operated by Auxiliary Services, and is one of only two restaurants in town that offers cut french fries. Also bordering the Commons is a music room in which students can listen to their own music on one of 10 cassette decks. Track lighting will allow the room to also be used as an art gallery.

The University Union features a 578-seat movie theater that, because of space limitations on campus, will double as a classroom for four classes this fall.

"Serving as a classroom facility is not our mission, but our university is experiencing growing pains and it is up to all of us to kick in and help where we can," said Cashon.

The theater will feature classic films used by the English department every Monday night and will show some of the current box office hits on Wednesdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

In addition to the theater, Cashon expects the 7,000 square foot ballroom to be one of the Union's most popular features. As with all of the Union's facilities, student groups have first priority for use of the ballroom—and in some instances have already booked it a year in advance. The room can seat approximately 850 people and features a built-in stage, a projection booth, a retractable 25-foot screen, state-of-the-art sound and lighting, and can be divided into three separate rooms.

"This ballroom is so high-tech that we are still trying to figure it out," said Cashon with a laugh.

Non-student groups will be able to rent the ballroom, most often on Friday or Saturday nights, when many students have social activities outside of the university, according to Cashon.

"Again, our whole emphasis is on serving the students, but I think we are big enough that we should be able to accommodate everyone's needs, at least for the first few years," he added.

In addition to Cashon, the facility has hired two assistant directors and a program director. Approximately 60 student employees will help run the facility.

Georgia Southern's University Union was named as one of the top 22 union facilities in the nation by the Association of College Unions International.

"With only two weeks of practices behind us, I feel very good about our starting point [the Sept. 22 game]," said Pittman.

The main thrust of the next few weeks will be filled by home game performances, marching in two parades and performing an exhibition at a high school marching band competition at Statesboro High School Stadium.

"We want to make our performances better each week," Pittman said. "We want to make an assessment and see where we can make improvements." He feels the band will continue to improve. "We have a lot of wonderful people. I am happy about what the band is."

With two performances scheduled this fall, practice is also the main concern of Director Schmid and the 23 members of the Georgia Southern Jazz Ensemble.

The first Jazz Ensemble performance will be Oct. 9, when the group will perform during the official opening of the new Student Union. Schmid says that the center of the Ensemble's work this quarter will be placed into preparing for the Nov. 15 performance in Foy Recital Hall.

I would've bought a Macintosh even without the student discount.

"The first time I saw a Macintosh, I was immediately hooked. It's a work of art. I saw the student pricing and my next move was obvious: get one."

"Some other computers are cheaper, but they're a pain to learn, and working on them can be a grueling experience. Last year, a friend bought another kind of computer against my advice and has used it for maybe 15 hours. What a waste."

"Macintosh, on the other hand, is a logical extension of the mind. It lets you concentrate on what's in your paper, not on how to get it on paper. You can create professional-looking documents in minutes, and you lose the fear of learning new programs because they all work in the same way. "Once you've worked with a Macintosh, there's no turning back."
