SENATE BATTLING OVER BUDGET:

Senate leaders, backed by the White House, battled Tuesday night to steer a five-year, $500 billion deficit-cutting plan around an election-year roadblock. Racing to avoid another threatened government shutdown at midnight Friday, the Senate ran into a regional firestorm over gasoline taxes and a philosophical fight over income taxes.

EDUCATIONAL TV GETS OK:

More educational programming for children will appear on commercial TV as the Children's Television Act of 1990 becomes law. President Bush said Wednesday he will allow a bill limiting commercials on children's TV shows to become law without his signature. Bush said he supports goals of the bill but objects to what he sees as restrictions on freedom of speech.

PAINT FUMES CAUSE POISONING:

Fumes from a fresh coat of interior latex paint manufactured before August might cause mercury poisoning, especially in children, a government study shows. The study found that mercury poisoning can cause nervous system and kidney damage. Symptoms included leg cramps, rash, fever, irregular heart beat and personality change.

KOVIC OPPOSES TROOPS IN GULF:

Ron Kovic, a Vietnam veteran and an early critic of military deployment in the Persian Gulf, begins a national TV campaign Thursday against the buildup. In the ads, the paralyzed, decorated ex-marine sits beside a U.S. flag. Funds for the ads were raised by another Marine Vietnam Veteran, Jim Driscoll.

'BAMBI' FUGITIVE CAPTURED:

Three months of life on the run where she became a sort-of folk hero in Wisconsin ended on Wednesday for Lawrence "Bambi" Bembenek. The former Playboy Club waitress and Milwaukee police officer, convicted of killing her ex-husband's former wife, was captured in Canada. Bembenek was working as a waitress in the Columbia Grill and Tavern in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

GAS PRICES, DEMAND INCREASE:

Gas prices are still going up but so is demand. The price of a gallon of gasoline has risen 28 percent since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2.

EVANS APPEAL DENIED:

The U.S. Supreme Court denied a stay of execution for Wilburt Lee Evans just hours before he was to die in Virginia's electric chair. Evans, 44, got the death sentence for the 1981 murder of a sheriff's deputy. Evans' lawyers based their appeal on his actions during a May 1984 prison uprising. They claimed he saved corrections officers and nurses from harm.

SEX AT THE AIR FORCE ACADEMY:

Two Air Force Academy cadets, male and female, who had sex in a dormitory, plus six others who watched the encounter, are facing dismissal. Air Force officials said the Aug. 29 incident was apparently plotted by six male cadets to help a friend break off relations with the female cadet. The Air Force prohibits sex in dorms, and offenders are often expelled.

U.S. NOBEL PHYSICS WINNERS:

Henry Kendall, 64, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor, Jerome Friedman, 60, also of MIT, and Richard Taylor, 60, a researcher at Stanford University are winners of this year's $700,000 Nobel Prize for physics. They won for work with atomic quarks. Harvard University's Elias "E.J." Corey, 62, won the prize in chemistry for simplifying production of plastics.

Student goes on game show

Lisa Fowler...Come on down!

By DAVID BERNY
Features Writer

All Lisa Fowler wanted was a new car. A regular viewer of The Price is Right, she had a strong intuition that if she could just find a way to Hollywood and attend the show, she would be called from the audience to participate and maybe even win her dream car.

Lisa knew that her father, who is a pilot, would be able to utilize his travel benefits to fly them to California at no cost. After persistent attempts to persuade her father, he agreed to take a chance. They'd fly to Hollywood and try to secure two spots in the studio audience. Tickets are not sold in advance, but are allotted on a first come, first serve basis on the day of the show.

After flying to California on Labor Day, they arrived at the studio the next day at 6 a.m. to ensure her a spot in the audience. She just made the cut-off list and was the 258th person in line out of only 300 participants allowed in the studio audience.

The next and most important step for Lisa was the screening of the audience, which determines who will be selected as contestants. Knowing that the show's producers are partial towards college students, Lisa wore her Kappa Delta sorority jersey in hopes of attracting attention and gaining an advantage over the rest of the audience.

Shortly after the show began, her plan proved to be successful except that it was not Lisa who was chosen. Instead, a recent graduate from Auburn, also a Kappa Delta, with whom Lisa had become friends during the screening process, was chosen. Lisa's disappointment was short lived because only after a few minutes, she heard the announcer say, "Lisa Fowler...Come on down, you're the next contestant on The Price is Right!"

Lisa, visibly ecstatic, flailing about just as elated contestants frequently do on the show, ran down to join her new friend on contestants' row.

After narrowly missing the correct bid on two consecutive items, Lisa's friend won the next bid and promptly went up on stage and won a brand new 1991 Toyota Celica, just as Lisa believed she herself would win.

Lisa's trip did prove to be fruitful, however, when she won the next bid for a range and a microwave. While on stage, she had an opportunity to win a piano. To win, she needed to estimate how much the piano was worth. And then write a check for an amount that would make the combined value of the piano and her estimate sold the range/microwave that she between $5,000 and $6,000. Going won, as well as her old against her gut feeling and taking Volkswagen Bug, and bought her a the advice of the screaming new Grand Am.

audience, she narrowly missed the correct sum.

Lisa's show is scheduled to be broadcast ed at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, October 24.

Green: 'Handful' of problem students

By KEVIN HUDSON
Staff Writer

Part 2 of 2

As word has spread around the state about the "growing pains" Statesboro and the GSU community are going through, some of the people involved in the situation are trying to do something about it.

Ruth Green, a local resident, has contacted the Statesboro City Council and the management of some local businesses about noise and trespassing problems around University Plaza.

People in the plaza area seem to be split on who has the right ideas concerning how to deal with the neighborhood's problems.

In an interview this week, Green stated that she is not angry at the students in general. "It's only a handful" that are causing the problems, she said.

When asked if she felt that she was unfairly singling out GSU students, Green replied, "I say the students singled themselves out by their disrespectful and irresponsible actions."

"These students have to learn to live in a community, and we can help them by not condoning anything and everything they do," Green continued.

According to Green, she and Se-brell Everett of the Rockin' Eagle Cafe have spoken often on friendly terms, and the situation is improving.

"I know she [Everett] is limited in what she can do about the situation with the noise, but she is doing what she can, such as closing the back doors when she can."

Green said that several of the Rockin' Eagle's employees have cleaned up trash and building materials left over from this summer's remodeling of the club. "A couple even came back later to see if there was anything else they could do," she said.

Zax manager, Zack Mc Leroy, however, is apparently defensive saying, "I believe everyone has a right to live where they choose. I also believe it's a little unreasonable to move into an area that's known for its night time entertainment and expect it to be peaceful like a suburban neighborhood.

"That's like moving next to a sewage treatment plant and complaining about the smell," continued Mc Leroy.

In response to the trash problem at the complex, Mc Leroy said "The busiest time of the year is the first couple weeks of fall quarter. I... will be the first to admit there was a considerable amount of trash and noise but that hasn't been the same since."

He later stated, "A considerable amount of the trash problem stems from people bringing their own beer to University Plaza and throwing the trash in the parking lot. I believe we have been unjustly blamed for a problem that's only about 15 - 20% ours."

"We pick up as much trash as we can nightly and have increased [the use of] the parking lot sweeper to three nights a week," said Mc Leroy.

Comments were also made by Mc Leroy concerning the groups of people that gather in the parking lot near the clubs. "I had hoped students could come to the University Plaza and park their cars and walk to all these places and then could walk home at closing time, thus eliminating the DUI problem."

"If we could get the students to help us out by putting their trash in cans and disperse from the parking lot by 1:00 the problem would solve itself," continued Mc Leroy.

Earlier this week, the GSU Student Government Association placed five trash cans in the parking lot of University Plaza to help keep the parking lot clean. SGA told the owner of the parking lot, T. Holmes Ramsey III, that they wanted to help with the problem.

Ramsey said that he would rather have the students "hang out" in his parking lot than go elsewhere, and acknowledged that

River rolls over Dover

The flooding Ogeechee river has caused considerable property damage and emotional distress for residents of Dover, GA., which is about ten miles from Statesboro. While water levels are dropping at Dover, they are expected to rise in other low-lying areas as the floods move toward the Chatam county area.

Joe Wiggins, owner of this partially submerged house (pictured above) won't be cutting the grass anytime soon. The house, which reportedly cost 80 thousand dollars, was completed just prior to the Dover floods. (Photo by James Drinkard)

Taylor Dayne to perform at GSU

By CHARLES WHITE
Assistant News Editor

Singer Taylor Dayne will be performing a concert November 16 in Hanner Fieldhouse at 8 p.m.

The opening act will be "The Party", a band promoted by Hollywood Records.

Tickets will not be available until after Homecoming but are expected to cost $8 for students and $12 for non-students. They will be sold in the Union's concession stand.

The College Activities Board (CAB) sponsored event will reportedly cost just under $25,000. That money will be taken out of CAB's annually operating budget.

"Since the sum is so much, we don't expect to fully recoup the total cost until the middle of spring quarter," said Kevin Bolling, CAB student director.

Taylor Dayne will perform at Hanner on Nov. 16

"CAB is only able to sponsor one concert per year because of the sheer cost of such an undertaking," added Bolling. "Concerts are a big financial risk for us.

"Actually we consider this concert to be a bit of a bargain since she's charging $40,000 for her next appearance."

"Our budget equals eight percent of the college fee each student is charged. That gives us $170,000 this year. That money has to cover everything we do -- movies ($50,000), comedians ($14,000), programming ($70,000), our salaries, and a concert if we're able to book one."

Cesar Vinuesa, CAB Concerts Chair, commented that "the university required us to rent a floor pad from UGA to prevent hard-soled shoes from marking the new floor."

"The pad itself only costs $800 but we also have to pay for the two guys that haul it down here, their hotel bill, and their food. That can add up real quick."

Black Student Alliance reactivated

By LAURA MCABEE
News Editor

After a year's hiatus, the Black Student Alliance (BSA) has been reactivated and has several projects in the works.

The BSA, which is advised by staff from the office of multicultural affairs, discussed cultural programming during its first meeting last Thursday.

"The college measures (student) retention rates by the freshman to sophomore year," states Gunter, who adds that many black students transfer during their sophomore or junior year.

Randy Gunter, multi-cultural affairs coordinator, believes that GSU needs to "work on creating social events, climate, and atmosphere that will be supportive "to the black community.

This exodus of black upper-classmen may be due in part to perceptions exposed in a survey conducted last spring quarter.

The survey showed a pervasive attitude among the black campus community that neither GSU or Statesboro offers enough social outlets.

The BSA was founded by GSC students in 1978 in order to combat circumstances such as this, and Gunter believes that tremendous strides have been taken.

"GSU has changed for the better. We've seen a lot of growth. Our students are more diversified, and are getting involved," Gunter says.

"At the time that the BSA was formed, the only predominantly black student organizations were KAP, AFA, AKA, ΔΣΘ, and the Afro-American club. Today, GSU has ΩΨΦ, ZΦB, ΦBΣ, and the NAACP."

Although the primary goal of the BSA is to enhance the lives of the black community at GSU, students of all ethnic backgrounds are encouraged to get involved in various programs sponsored by the BSA.

Gunter urged students, faculty, and staff to support activities that are sponsored by the office of Multicultural Affairs, saying, "Diversity is our asset."

Miscellany to Host Evening of the Arts

The Fall Quarter 1990 Evening of the Arts, hosted by Georgia Southern's Miscellany arts magazine, will feature a faculty poetry reading November 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Gallery 303 of the Foy Fione Arts Building.

"The readings will hopefully express to Georgia Southern students the great amount of talent present in the university faculty," said Miscellany editor Malone Tumlin. It will also give students the chance to see their professors demonstrate those talents outside of the classroom setting, he added.

Admission is free and the public is invited. A reception follows the event.

Miscellany is the annual student magazine of the arts, featuring the works of student artists and writers from a variety of disciplines.

Community Invited to Reception for International Friendship Families

Statesboro area residents who might be interested in becoming "Friendship Families" to foreign students are invited to attend a reception October 22 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 247 of the University Union.

Friendship Families provide a place for foreign students to learn about American family life and culture outside of the campus environment.

The families commonly invite a student to visit their homes, and take occasional meals or trips together. The program does not ask for a long-term commitment, and the students do not live with the families.

There are 235 foreign students from 51 different nations attending GSU this quarter.

The reception will provide a chance for residents to meet some of the students and to talk with people currently acting as Friendship Families.

Community Invited to Participate in University Homecoming Parade

The Campus Activities Board at GSU is seeking community participation in the 1990 Homecoming Parade, set for November 3.

"We want and encourage the community to be a part of the Homecoming Parade, and we look forward to more parade entries from the community -- especially since this is the first Homecoming for Georgia Southern as a university," said Anthony Rice, University Union program advisor.

This year's theme, he said, is "Georgia Southern -- Learning, Laughing, Living."

The applications for parade entries are available in Room 224 of the University Union or by calling 681-0399. They must be submitted by October 19. There is no fee for entering the parade.

Four Volunteers Complete Pre-service Training

Four participants in the Georgia Southern Area Senior Companion Program recently completed their 40 hours of pre-service training.

Dorothy M. George of Pembroke, Mae Bell Hazel of Springfield, Nina M. Simmons of Claxton, and Mildred R. Williams of Guyton are each now volunteering 20 hours per week to provide home assistance to area residents who need help with day to day tasks.

The Senior Companion Program provides trained volunteers so that people who would otherwise need nursing home care can continue living independently in their own homes.

Middle School Model U.N. Coming to Southern

The Seventh Middle School Model United Nations will be hosted by Georgia Southern November 8-9, bringing more than 400 students to campus.

Middle School students, representing 166 nations in a simulation of the U.N. General Assembly, will debate real-world issues based on the views of their represented countries.

Interested individuals may observe the debate of the General Assembly beginning at 12:30 p.m. November 9 in the University Union.

New role of security comes with growth of GSU

By WENDY WRIGHT
Staff Writer

Previously the Georgia Southern campus police would escort students to the doctor if they were sick, assist students in finding transportation to the bus station. If a student was locked out or stranded with a dead battery, they knew that they could count on campus police to help.

Not any more. The role of the Division of Public Safety, previously referred to as "campus security" has changed with the growth of the campus. Along with the name change, the University Police has taken on more responsibility ties, such as handling DUI's, rapes and other criminal activities that previously were referred to the City Police or the local Sheriff's Department.

Ken Brown, Director of Public Safety, says that although there was an increase in enrollment, University Police were allotted only one additional officer last year. The current staff consists of 43 full-time and part-time employees, with 24 of these being certified officers.

Currently there are 19 actively patrolling officers, two investigators and one administrative captain. With one officer to every 642 students, it is not uncommon for the University Police to be struggling for coverage, especially during football games, concerts and other special events.

Opera sets anniversary performance

Special to the George-Anne

The Georgia Southern Opera Theater, celebrating its 20th consecutive season for university and community audiences, will present Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera "The Medium," October 24-27 in the Foy Recital Hall.

Admission to the Opera Theater is free at 8 p.m. October 24, 25, and 26 and at 2 p.m. October 27.

The two-act play is described by Opera Theater Director Joseph Robbins as "frightening and intense -- perfect adult Halloween entertainment." In fact, he said, the show is probably not suitable for small children because of the level of violence and the realism of the drama.

"The Medium" features three primary characters. Madame Flora is a spiritualist medium who cheats her clients through fraudulent seances with the help of her daughter, Monica, and the madame's mute adopted son, Toby.

Robbins utilizes double casting of his all-student actors in the performance, with Michelle Newsome of Swainsboro and Mena West of Cordele in the part of Monica, Clint Horne of Glenwood as Toby, and Levita Carter of Macon and Daphne Steedley of Swainsboro as Madame Flora.

The madame's clients are acted by students Lisa Glass of Griffin and Carol Richardson of Stone Mountain (Mrs. Gobineau), Joseph Flanders of Swainsboro (Mr. Gobineau), and Meg Thorp of Conyers and Christy Mullis of Statesboro (Mrs. Nolan).

Musical direction for "The Medium" is provided by Susan Thomson, instructor of music at GSU. Technical director is Tim Schiavone of Ringgold, the stage manager is Holly Anderson of Statesboro.

Costumer to the GSU Opera Theater is Costume Associates of Greenville, S.C.

Robert Meguiar, Reidsville, is assistant to the director. Makeup supervision is provided by Patti Howard of Statesboro, while costume supervision is by Mena West, and poster and graphic design is by Clint Horne.

In an interesting sidelight on the author, Gian-Carlo Menotti was largely responsible for founding Charleston's acclaimed annual Spoleto Festival. 1990 marks the 80th birthday of Menotti which will be celebrated throughout the work with performances of this type.

GSU professor publishes Lawrence study

G-A Staff Reports

John B. Humma, professor of English at GSU, has published a study of later works by D.H. Lawrence, Metaphor and Meaning in D. H. Lawrence's Later Novels.

Although Lawrence's later works have been the subjects of much discussion by critics, few scholars have dealt with his sense of craft. Humma argues that, by examining the author's carefully orchestrated strategies with language, especially metaphor, it will be realized that his longer works form Aaron's Rod on, and including The Virgin and the Gypsy, are small masterpieces.

Humma maintains that these novels are different form earlier works in which Lawrence employed the use of powerful symbols. Those of the last decade develop largely through intricate interlacing of metaphor and symbolic detail.

The professor devotes a chapter each to Aaron's Rod, The Ladybird, Kangaroo, St. Mawr, The Plumed Serpent, The Virgin and the Gypsy, Lady Chatterly's Lover, and The Escaped Cock.

Paying close attention to the texts, Humma's work states that Lawrence was far from the indifferent craftsman in his later fiction, as he has been characterized. That in fact, Lawrence was acutely aware that language and meaning are inseparable.

The author's perspective upon the art and meaning of Lawrence's later work provides a major re-evaluation of this last phase in the writer's career.

The University of Missouri Press is the publisher of Metaphor and Meaning in D.H. Lawrence's Later Novels. Humma has been published previously on the work of Lawrence. He received the university's Excellence in Research Award in 1988.

Several Broadway shows to play in Augusta soon

From George-Anne Staff Reports

A series of three Broadway productions, "Cats," Juliet Prowse in "Mame," and Hal Holbrook in "Mark Twain Tonight!" is coming to Augusta's newly-renovated Bell Auditorium. Season tickets to go on sale Friday, October 12.

There will be two performances of Juliet Prowse in "Mame," Saturday, November 3 at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, November 4 at 3 p.m.; three performances of "Cats," January 1 through 3 at 8 p.m.; and one performance of Hal Holbrook in "Mark Twain Tonight!" on Saturday, January 19 at 8 p.m.

"Cats," the international musical phenomena by Andrew Lloyd Webber, based on T. S. Eliot's "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats," has become the most successful theatrical production in history. Set in an oversized junkyard where everything is four times normal size, the musical presents a tribe of felines as they gather during a full moon for the annual Jellicle Ball.

Throughout the night, the audience meets and hears the stories and memories of the various cats—including the faded glamour cat Grizabella, who has been ostracized from the tribe.

Most of the "Cats" poems are presented in their original form; however, some lyrics were discovered among the poet's unpublished writings with the help of his widow Valerie Eliot. The lyric "Memory" is by Trevor Nunn, incorporating lines from Eliot's "Rhapsody on a Windy Night" and other Prufrock poems.

Internationally renowned actress, singer, dancer, comedienne Juliet Prowse stars as everyone's favorite aunt in the lavish national touring production of Jerry Herman's hit musical "Mame." The revival is filled with stunning sets, spectacular costumes and explosive dancing. "Mame" features such classic hits as "We Need a Little Christmas," "The Man in the Moon," "My Best Girl," and the showstopping title song, "Mame."

Prowse first played the outrageous Mame Dennis in the original London production. Mame is a woman with an unflappable zest for life whose lifestyle drastically changes with the arrival of her orphaned 10-year-old nephew and his timid, proper nanny. Proclaimed London's Woman of the Year during a record-breaking six-month engagement of "Sweet Charity," Prowse also was voted Female Star of the Year by her peers in Las Vegas.

The one-man production "Hal Holbrook in Mark Twain Tonight!" showcases one of America's most accomplished actors in the internationally-acclaimed portrayal of America's best-loved humorist. Holbrook has numerous credits on stage, screen and television. He has won three Emmy Awards for "The Senator," "Pueblo" and "Sandburg's Lincoln," plus a Tony Award and a Drama Critics' Circle Award for "Mark Twain Tonight."

Holbrook has portrayed Mark Twain since 1954 and during this time has constantly perfected and expanded the character. He is currently appearing in the new CBS comedy "Evening Shade" after appearing for two years on another CBS comedy "Designing Women" with wife Dixie Carter.

As Richard I. Coe of the Washington Post remarked, "What makes the portrait so remarkable is that as the world changes, Holbrook changes his Twain with it."

Season tickets are $66 and went on sale last Friday. For more information or to charge by phone, call (404) 724-2400. Tickets are available at the Augusta Richmond County Civic Center Box Office.

Customers may also mail order by sending a cashier's check, money order or their Visa/Mastercard account number and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Augusta Richmond County Civic Center, P. O. Box 2306, Augusta, GA 30903. There is a $3 service charge per season ticket on credit card orders.

In defense of the media

Change of 'heart'

Separation.

It's a word that is second cousin to segregation, but doesn't hit you quite as hard- unfortunately.

If we could label what is happening between the races today as segregation and not separation, then we might strive harder for change. But, the separation of the races today doesn't occur in restrooms, bathrooms, and bus terminals; it occurs in the heart and in the mind.

The races slip further and further apart as black and white student unions emerge, leaders are labeled as white or black, and advertisers are blasted for targeting blacks or whites.

There's even Bart and Derick Simpson. One's black and one's white, it just depends on who is wearing the t-shirt.

But, there's another t-shirt whose message runs deeper than what color a cartoon character should be.

If you're not wearing it then at least you've seen it. On the front, there's a picture of the University arches. They're colored red, green and black and the colors beam to a map of Africa. On the back says, "It's a black thing, you wouldn't understand."

When I first saw this shirt, it infuriated me. "What do you mean, it's a black thing I wouldn't understand? I've studied South Africa, I understand the plight of the blacks there."

But the other night, I learned that the truth is, I really don't understand. I finally got up the nerve to ask someone wearing the shirt just what kind of statement he wanted to make by wearing it.

My comment to him was, "It's a human thing, why can't we all understand?"

He lifted his shirt and pointed to the colors and said, "What do these colors mean?"

I honestly admit I didn't know.

"Okay then, you don't understand," he said.

Yes, it is true that understanding must run deeper than the colors of the flag. He admitted that. But the ensuing conversation showed me that not knowing the symbols is a symbol of how little we know about each other as races. He set me up a scenario. He put me in a black history class-not just American black history, but African black history.

"How much do you think the typical white American would know about the kings of Africa? But, these are our heroes."

All his life, he has had to learn about the white kings of Europe, whom the blacks of South Africa see only as rapers of their land.

What most of white America knows about black history could be put in a thimble. We hear about it once a year, and that's just when black organizations try to make us listen. Separation is inevitable.

He said he didn't wear the shirt to alienate anyone, but to make them ask themselves whether they really do understand. Then, they may end up asking someone wearing the shirt.

"It's not because it's a black issue that whites can't understand, it's simply that they usually don't. Because I'm black. I have to understand."

There are no easy answers. He didn't have any and I didn't have any. Questions are more important at this point.

"What do these colors mean?"

Red is for the bloodshed, black is for the people, and green is for the land. To the guy wearing the t-shirt, that's a beginning.

With respects to The Red and Black.

Major businesses in Statesboro such as Robbins Packing Company and Georgia Southern University have been undercharged for city water use for the past twelve months.

Forest Heights Country Club shuns blacks and collegiate golf teams with black players, and does not welcome minority GSU students to participate in certain recreational classes held on their property in conjunction with the university.

If the media did not tell you, who would? That is right, the public may never have been apprised of those situations had the media chosen to overlook them. These are just two examples of exposes that local media teams have brought to the attention of the public. Relative to all media, it is a minuscule portion of the services the media provides the public.

To accuse the media of purposely rewording sentences and twisting statements into sounding good for the media's own image is an ignorant blanket statement. The news media exists to provide the public with the facts. The media is by definition, an unbiased entity existing to report the truth in all instances. I find it incredibly hard to believe that most mediums of communication in the United States (press, television journalists, etc.) would ever attempt to report an untruth.

To say that the media withholds information to shape the opinion of the public is just as ignorant. First of all the media exists to pass along information; the shaping of opinion is done on an editorial page or in a commentary part of a news broadcast. And even as it is, to say that these editorials and commentaries influence the public's opinion is an insult to the people of this nation. In this information society the public is too well educated to simply think the way an editorial or commentary attempts to sway them. Just because I wrote that Andrew Young would be a great governor of Georgia does not mean that it is true or that I am attempting to shape the public's opinion as such. The public decides for itself what to believe, the editorials simply push their authors' personal opinions.

To compare modern news me-

From the
Editor's Desk

Clint Rushing

dia to modern tabloids such as the National Enquirer and Star magazine is an insult to all professional journalists who seek the true fact of every assignment. Those tabloids are prime examples of what is known as "Yellow Journalism."

If media bashers think that the media misrepresents situations then perhaps these critics should take another look at what is being reported. They would find that the facts much more often than not, have been verified and re verified for truth. It is the way the reader perceives the article or news report which tends to change the meaning of the article. How many people read only half of an article and go jawing to their neighbor only half truths?

The media does not "cover up" stories such as extramarital affairs of dignitaries, if anything it is constantly trying to pry into the private lives of certain public officials (which by the way, may be it's only true downfall). To criticize the media for covering up such major stories is paradoxical ignorance. If one is going to say that the media exists to shape the opinion of the public then why accuse them of keeping secret such a story? It does not stand to reason.

And lastly, to say that there are instances where truth should be withheld in the best interest of the public is about as shortsighted as one can get. There is never an instance in which truth and fact should be withheld from the public. It is always in the best interest of the public to know.

The media is not guilty, generally speaking, of sensationalism. Journalists strive not to sensationalize their stories. It is always important to remember that if the media did not tell us, who would?

Media guilty of thwarting truth

Guest Column

Ray Thorpe

What is new in the news today? Who knows except for the media? We put our faith in those who deliver the news. But how do we know if the news we receive is the whole truth? The media is accustomed to using facts and turning them around to make themselves more popular. At the same time the media wants the public to feel the same way they do about an issue. A majority of news publications frequently withhold information because the media's only interest is to shape public opinion.

It seems that the media only televises or prints what they feel people want to hear. In a sense they can be compared to the tabloids.

In many instances the media has kept newsworthy facts from the public to protect important people.

we really know about?

So often the media changes words around to fit their purposes. A perfect illustration: an ABC news team went to Jesup, Georgia to ask about the AIDS situation in Wayne County's district, which consists of 19 counties. This district has the second highest incidents of AIDS victims in the state of Georgia; but the media gave the impression that this district was made up only of Wayne County. ABC interviewed several people then edited the interviews to make the people interviewed sound like country bumpkins. A Jesup woman was quoted to say, "They (ABC) made Wayne County sound like the sin and drug capital of the southeast."

Politicians have constantly been stereotyped as dishonest. Soon the media may fall into the same category. A profession that started out to serve people has become an occupation where words are twisted and perverted. News is important no matter how big or how small. So all news should be treated equally and honestly.

Will the day come when buying a newspaper will be the same as buying an Enquirer or Satr magazine? This is not to say that all media is dishonest. There are instances where the truth should be withheld in the best interest of the public. But the examples I have described do not fall under the category of public safety. So who is to say what news is to be told? Scary as it seems, that is for the media to decide.

Eagles hope to stop high-powered Knight offense

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Editor

Georgia Southern knows the Central Florida offense will be able to move the ball Saturday night. The only question is who will be moving it.

While racking up 353 yards and 31 points a game in 1990, the Knights have started three different quarterbacks in six games.

Freshman Travis Peeples has started three games, completing 42 of 80 passes for 466 yards with four interceptions and one touchdown.

However, Peeples was replaced by junior Rudy Jones in UCF's last game, a 37-16 defeat of Samford October 6. Against the Bulldogs, Jones threw for 93 yards and led the Knights to a 21-point fourth-quarter rally.

Jones has thrown for 322 yards on 26-55 passing this season. Like Peeples, he has three more interceptions than scores (5-2). Ron Johnson has also started once at QB, throwing for 235 yards on 16 completions.

The UCF running game is almost as difficult to figure out. Mark Giacone leads the Knights with 358 yards on 64 carries, but Willie English is right behind with 318 yards on 77 attempts.

The Eagles and Knights will square off Saturday night at 7:00 in the 70,000-seat Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Fla.

With a win, Southern would inch above the .500 mark for the first time since the season-opening win over Valdosta State. Despite a 3-3 record, the Eagles have impressed the pollsters enough to earn a tie (with Grambling) for the 11th-place ranking in the latest Division I-AA poll.

The unranked Knights are 4-2 in their first season in I-AA.

Like GSU, Central Florida has lost to Eastern Kentucky, the top-ranked team in I-AA, and to a Division I-A school. UCF lost to EKU (24-12) and Memphis State (37-28), while Southern fell to EKU (42-34) a week after losing to Florida State (48-6). The Eagles also lost to Middle Tennessee State (16-13).

The Eagles and Knights have met eight times, with Southern winning seven. The Eagles scored 18 points in the fourth quarter to down UCF 31-17 in Paulson Stadium last season. Lester Efford scored two TD's and Joe Ross and Raymond Gross both rushed for over 100 yards.

GSU also won 31-17 in Orlando in 1988. The Knights picked up their only win in 1983, the second year the schools met.

GSU kick returner Karl Miller and punter Terry Harvin continue to rank in the top 15 nationally. Miller's 26.6-yard kickoff return average puts him ninth among I-AA leaders, while Harvin's 40.6-yard average is good for 14th.

In contrast to UCF, Southern's quarterback situation is set. Gross has completed 55 of 103 passes for 770 yards with three TD's and three interceptions.

Ross and Efford, two of the rushing heroes in last year's win, are the one-two punch of this season's Eagle rushing attack. Ross has gained 445 yards on 116 carries with seven scores and Efford has rolled for 200 yards on 52 carries.

The Eagle offense will face a UCF defense that ranks fifth in the nation in total defense (229.8 yards per game) and 15th in rushing defense (111 yards per game).

Saturday's game will be televised by 10 Georgia Southern Sports Network affiliates, including WJCL in Savannah.

The Georgia Southern Lady Eagles dropped two games Tuesday night in Aiken, S.C. This pulls their record down to 10-11.

Despite 28 team kills in the first game against USC-Aiken, Southern lost 8-15, 9-15, 8-15.

Mendy Crook led the team with 11 kills. Dee Cardell had 15 digs and 12 assists.

GSU's 43 kills were not enough to prevent them from falling to Winthrop College 15-9, 8-15, 11-15, 14-16.

Once again, Crook led the team with 18 kills -- her second-highest game total this season -- and 26 digs. Cardell had 21 assists and 13 digs. Eisel was close behind with 17 assists. Sandy Bobal kept the backcourt covered with 18 digs.

Monday night the Lady Eagles will play Georgia Tech in the Hanner Fieldhouse at 7 p.m.

GS Invitational this weekend

By James Drinkard
Sports Writer

The GSU cross-country team will defend two years of domination at their only home meet, tomorrow near Hanner Fieldhouse. This year's meet brags the most competitive field in the history of the event.

The Georgia Southern Invitational is a tune-up for the conference championships. The TAAC and NSWAC tournaments will be held in Atlanta on Nov. 3.

Cross-country coach Jim Vargo explained that this would be the last chance for the members of the team to organize their inner feelings before the championships. "It's time for them to put the finishing touches on things so that when they get into next weekend and the conference meet, they can say 'I'm ready,'" Vargo said.

The GSU men's cross-country team took the top eight positions for a perfect score at last year's Invitational while the Lady Eagles took the top three positions in the women's division.

This year's meet will feature GSU sophomore Gene Sapino in the men's division and junior Alicia Hewes on the women's side. Hewes has won the Southern Invitational the past two years and is expected to repeat her previous performances. Sapino finished second in last year's event but has been leading the Eagles this season. The men will be looking for him to lead the way to victory. "I don't anticipate any surprises," Vargo said.

The team remains wary however. Several of the teams competing in this year's meet boast impressive rosters. "Fort Valley State has a guy on there team who we recruited heavily," the coach said. "He could really mix things up."

The starting point for the 5K (3.1 mile) course is located behind the new temporary building adjacent to the baseball field. The runners will then proceed down Fair Road, pass the soccer field, and cross the practice football field. The course then winds around the Herty Preserve and down the nature trail. The competitors will run the route twice. The finish line for the course will be located between the tennis courts and the athletic weight facility.

One team member said that the Eagle squad is looking forward to performing for their home crowd.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., but it may begin slightly later due to the fact that most of the teams will be arriving in Statesboro Saturday morning.

REDS WIN IN 10 INNINGS:

The Cincinnati Reds took a 2-0 lead in the World Series Wednesday with a 5-4 comeback win over the Oakland A's. Joe Oliver chopped a 10th-inning, RBI single over third base to score Billy Bates from second easily. The Reds had rallied from 4-2, tying with an eighth-inning run. Canseco got the A's first postseason home run in the third. Billy Hatcher is a record 7-7 in the series.

NFL OWNERS MEET:

The NFL said it will offer fans special travel packages for the playoffs. NFL owners also: tabled until their spring meeting proposals to toughen anti-tampering rules; took no action on complaints from colleges about players leaving school early to play in the spring World League of American Football; approved a bylaw change to allow Seattle and Tampa Bay to vote on realignment.

BO BACK WITH RAIDERS:

Bo Jackson's Los Angeles Raiders teammates welcomed him back Wednesday with a greeting only he could receive: "The baseball player's here!" The Raiders' running back completed his 10-day, post-baseball vacation last weekend. He went through his first practice Wednesday. And, for the first time since joining the team in 1987, he finds the Raiders winning, at 5-1.

Cyclists finish season

By CHARLES WHITE
Assistant Sports Editor

GSU students Bill Sellers and Brice Ordeil competed in the Greensboro Classic bicycle race in Greensboro, S.C., this past weekend. Both are class IV riders.

Sellers led five laps in his race but was eventually overtaken by some other riders. He finished 20th out of 125. He anxiously awaits next season with hopes of higher finishes.

Ordeil did not place but was happy with his performance and looks forward to the start of the 1991 season in March.

The race course was a one-kilometer criterion through the downtown streets of Greensboro.

The race was hosted by Michelin and Subaru. Over 70,000 people jammed the race course trying to get as close as possible to the action. The turnout was one of the biggest ever in the Southeast -- larger than at the Orlando race a few weeks ago.

Team organizer and captain Andrew Ohlsson came in first place in his race. The win was his first in six years.

Ohlsson won by a mere three feet after chasing down the lead pack. This win allows him to climb from class IV to class III racing where the competition will be fiercer.

"All the hard work has finally paid off," Ohlsson said. "And it feels so good."

On the way to victory, Ohlsson won a $50 cash prize and another prime worth $50 of tires.

Professional riders competed in some of the races, one of which had a $10,000 purse. Some well-known names to the cycling world include Mike Zennoll of the Coors Light team and Frankie Andrew of the 7-11 team.

Now that the season is over, the GSU riders will begin cross-training programs. This will include activities such as volleyball, swimming, running, basketball, and other sports.

SAE, Maintaining Order win games of week

By KATHRYN DENTON
Intramurals Publicity Coordinator

The game selected as this week's men's game of the week was played on October 8. Once again flag football rivals SAE and Sigma Chi were matched up and an exciting game followed.

During the first half, Sigma Chi's Mark Collier made a touchdown and the score at the half was still in favor of Sigma Chi, 6-0. The action really began during the second half with touchdowns from SAE players Martin Hartsfield and Dave Lavendar. Sigma Chi also scored again on a run in from quarterback Brad McNeely. The game went into overtime and SAE came out on top when quarterback Scott Brady scored on a fake reverse.

The final score: SAE 18, Sigma Chi, 12.

Billy Downs, captain of the SAE team, believed that his team excelled in defense. "We had some great rushing plays from Dennis Berdis and Jody Sailor-Smith," Downs said. "Whenever we play Sigma Chi you know it's going to be a good match-up."

Frank Blancato, coach of the Sigma Chi team, thought his team made a tremendous showing in this second-year rivalry. "Dodd Morris, Brian Riggins, and Scott Helfrich did an excellent job defensively," Blancato said. "We plan to be a tough opponent this season."

This week's women's game of the week was played on October 9. Maintaining Order came out on top of the Pink Panthers with a score of 6-0. The game remained scoreless until the second half with a touchdown made by Maintaining Order's captain, Jennifer Russo-Alesi.

"I caught the ball from quarterback Renee Anderson and was able to just step in," Russo-Alesi said. "Our team has been together for two years so we work well together. Kelly Klope and Michelle Strauss made some great plays."

Pink Panthers captain Lori McCurley believed that her team had a good passing game going, but that a strong defense from the opposing team made their touchdown attempts unsuccessful.

"We will be working on better blocking from now on, but players such as Tara Ellison, Kristin Askin, and Christine Braddy did a super job," she said.

Flag football games are played Sunday through Thursday at the Sports Complex. Don't miss out on the excitement!

The Georgia Southern soccer Eagles scored two second-half goals to nip the pesky Baptist College Buccaneers 2-1 Wednesday at Eagle Field.

The Eagles raised their record to 11-3 while the Bucs dropped to 2-10.

Although the game looked like a sure blowout on paper, Baptist held a 1-0 lead at the half. The Eagles had not trailed at the half of any of their six previous home games.

Baptist opened the scoring at the 40-minute mark. After Nigel James' shot bounced off Eagle goalkeeper Kevin Chambers, Max Ward kicked the ball into the empty net.

GSU evened the score with 30:03 left in the game. Ken Wilson beat an out-of-position Buccaneer goalkeeper, then converted the wide-open shot. The assist went to Jay Dingbaum.

The Eagles scored again five minutes later as Kevin Connelly kicked in the game-winner off an assist from John Regan.

Regan's assist pushed his season points total to 23, tops in the Trans America Athletic Conference. Regan has a TAAC-leading eight goals along with his seven assists.

With his second-half goal, Connelly upped his points total to 15 (five goals, five assists). He is fourth in the TAAC behind teammates Regan, Johan Hageus (17) and Steen Larsen (16).

Problem

there aren't very many places like this for students to go in Statesboro.

Green also brought up a Statesboro ordinance which states that "Beer or wine may be served in a restaurant or club only when served with food." [S3-14-84(10)]

The article further identifies a restaurant as "an established place of business... which derives at least 50 percent of its gross income from the sale of such meals prepared, served and consumed on the premises."

According to Green's statement, this and several other ordinances

"are broken night after night; primarily Wednesdays and Saturdays even though those committing the illegalities have been reprimanded over and over."

Green says that she wants to get along with the business and academic communities in the area, but feels that all may have to give and take a little to reach a happy medium.

She welcomes anyone who would like to discuss the recent problems to speak with her or other "town folks," since communication seems to be the best way to get everyone to work together.
