BUSH RATINGS HIGH:

More than half of all Americans say they will be disappointed if Saddam Hussein still is alive when the Persian Gulf war ends, found a USA TODAY national phone poll Sunday. And even though 77 percent give George Bush an A or B overall, 49 percent said they will be disappointed in the president if Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein still holds power after the war.

HELICOPTERS ATTACK:

A fleet of 300 helicopters streaked deep into Iraq Sunday in a lightning thrust aimed at cutting Iraqi supply lines. U.S. officers called it the largest helicopter assault in military history. "This is a bold, bodacious action," said Maj. Dan Grigson. There were no initial reports of U.S. casualties and the 101st encountered only minimal Iraqi fire, officers said.

POW PLAN GETS TESTED:

The allied program for dealing with POWs - first coaxing them to surrender, and then trying to process them - got its biggest test Sunday as the ground war drove more than 10,000 Iraqis out of hiding. Early signs were that the sheer number of Iraqis entering the system was almost overwhelming the allies. "Their morale is about boot-top level. They have none," said an allied officer.

CONGRESS SUPPORTS GROUND WAR:

The ground war that Congress wanted to avoid prompted not a whimper of protest Sunday as lawmakers from both parties lined up solidly behind President Bush. Caught up in the euphoria of initial campaign success, members of Congress said the dual goals of destroying Iraqi military and destabilizing Saddam Hussein's rule make the risk of allied casualties one that was worth taking.

PHILLY SKYSCRAPER BLAZES:

A 38-story Philadelphia skyscraper was in danger of toppling Sunday after a 19-hour fire that gutted at least five floors, killed three firefighters and injured at least 12. The 12-alarm blaze at One Meridian Plaza broke out late Saturday on the 22nd floor and quickly spread through the 29th floor. Officials said there are no sprinklers on those floors.

PA. ABORTION LAW CONSIDERED:

The legal battle over Pennsylvania's 1989 abortion law, until recently the most restrictive in the USA, Monday moves to a federal appeals court in Philadelphia. The law would require a woman to wait 24 hours and notify her husband before an abortion, and require a minor to obtain the consent of a parent or a judge.

VOTING IN ARIZONA, CHICAGO:

Arizona voters Tuesday choose a new governor. In the Nov. 6 balloting, Republican Fife Symington edged Democrat Terry Goddard, but no one got a majority because of a third-party candidate. Other races and issues include Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, who won the 1989 special election. He is the Democratic primary favorite there.

CHILLY AND WET IN THE EAST:

The eastern half of the USA faces chilly, wet weather the first half of this week. A storm will head northeast Monday west of the Appalachians with rain and showers from Oklahoma and Texas into Pennsylvania. Another storm should move into the Dakotas and Minnesota with light snow by Tuesday. The West Coast has hope of a weather pattern change that could bring needed precipitation.

Reaction to invasion bittersweet

One by one, as the candlelight fluttered in the dark church, the names were recited: "Chuck Cooley, Jimmy Beardmore, Matt London, Steven Stout..."

A guitar and trumpet sweetly sounded the Battle Hymn of the Republic, and Pastor Jeffrey Ellwood told his parishioners why they were there:

The Bible tells us, he said, "To every thing, there is a season. A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time of war, and time of peace."

At the Faith Assembly of God Church in Lothian, Md., it was

Children's festival to be held at GSU

G-A Reports

The day-long Ninth Youth Arts Festival, bringing hundreds of children and students together with artists on GSU's Sweetheart Circle, will open on March 9 at 10 a.m.

"This is a fine arts festival," said Richard Tichich, head of the Department of Art, and director of the yearly event. "It's not just a visual arts event, because it includes music, theatre and dance in addition to painting, sculpture, weaving, woodworking, drawing and other art forms."

The festival brings together a diverse group of artists from within and without Bulloch County. A number of Savannah artists will be participating, including Haywood Nichols, woodcarver; Dennis Vernon, drawing; Patrick McCay, painter; Johnny Smith, Blacksmith; Zdzislaw Sikora, printmaking; and Angela Beasley, puppetry.

Some of the participants are members of the GSU or public school art faculties, while others are accomplished artists who derive their incomes from sources other than their artwork.

"We try to highlight something different every year," Tichich said, and this year will find an American Indian troupe, "Celebrations of American Indians," which will set up an encampment on Sweetheart Circle and demonstrate native American storytelling, dance, song and art from various tribes across the country.

The festival is open to everyone regardless of age, said Tichich, and there is no admission charge.

Prof. attends conference

G-A Reports

GSU's mathematics professor Dr. David Stone represented the state of Georgia at a recent national mathematics education reform conference that continued a state-by-state program to improve math education.

Stone, the executive director of the Georgia Coalition for Excellence in Mathematics Education, met with other leaders of mathematics education reform from 50 states and the District of Columbia in Little Rock, Arkansas February 7-10.

"Georgia, Nebraska and Kentucky seem to be the three states that have been most successful to date in mobilizing support for mathematics reform through their state coalitions," said Stone, who recently received a $10,000 grant from the Georgia Power Foundation to further the coalition's goals.

Other corporations represented in the Georgia coalition are IBM, Southern Bell, Swift Textiles, Pratt and Whitney, Chic-fil-A, Baranco Pontiac, Hazelhurst and Associates and Ogelthorpe time to gather for prayer and song to honor the dozens of young men plucked from this rural haven of rolling hills on the Western Shore of Maryland and sent to fight in the Persian Gulf.

Outside the small colonial church, flags and yellow ribbons quivered in the late winter wind.

A bittersweet spirit crept through the country Sunday as Americans tasted the first dose of real combat — and faced its possible gory consequences.

Sadness and fear mingled with relief that the final battle had begun and that it appeared to be going well for the allies.

"I have hope and fear," said

Karen Shoch of nearby Dunkirk, who learned Sunday that her nephew was among the Marines headed to Kuwait City and so came to Lothian to pray. "Hope that it will get over more quickly now. Fear that they may be closer to death."

At church services and at museums, in restaurants and in stores, in homes, in front of televisions and at basketball games, Americans mulled over the hard lessons of war and accepted the inevitability of the ground war.

Veterans relived their battles.

Some mothers, wives and loved ones waited in paralytic anguish as news of the battle was suspended.

Cheryl Stoner, whose husband, Army Pfc. Steve Stoner is in Saudi Arabia, stayed close to her television set at home in Richmond, Ind. "There's nothing else to do," she said. "Just wait and try to be strong."

In Tucson, Ariz., as the Arizona basketball team battled it out with Duke, students paused to consider the battle on the other side of the world.

"I think, unfortunately, that was something that had to come about," said sophomore, Lee Golden, 19, from Freehold, N.J.

The launching of the land battle Saturday night shook loose old memories for several veterans across the country.

"You get so damned scared," said Eugene Rader, 77, a Camden, N.J., resident who won a Purple Heart in the North African desert campaign against German Field Marshall Erwin Rommel during World War II.

"I was scared from the day I got there until the day I left," said Rader, who lost a knee in the war. "Anyone who says he wasn't scared is either a liar or damn fool."

The GSU 20-year plan: changes to continue

By David G. Berny

Staff Writer

Extensive projects, delineated in a 20 year master plan, are in the works for the expansion and improvement of GSU. The plans include numerous progressive alterations to various aspects of the campus.

"The university is and will be experiencing extensive changes and improvements," said Fred Shroyer, Facilities Planning Director for GSU.

Presently, many changes are already taking place. Construction of the Lakeside Cafe is well underway and it will open late this spring. Parking facilities have been expanded with the opening of the new lot located along Forest Drive where the ROTC tower used to stand.

In addition, more parking space is to be created adjacent to the new lot. Walkways are being installed to decrease walking time from the new lots to buildings such as the South Building and the Communication Arts Building. The walkways are located in the woods behind the South Building.

Shroyer explains, "It will actually be shorter walking to these buildings from the new lots than it will to walk from the gravel lot."

Other projects underway are the expansion of Lanier Drive and Chandler Drive.

Within the next year, a road beginning on highway 301 near Thursdays, will extend past Old Register Road all the way to the water tower in the Paulson Stadium parking lot. The road will allow fans to reach the stadium lot directly from 301.

Included in the long term plan is the construction of a new basketball coliseum in the Paulson parking lot. The complex will serve as a special events center for concerts and similar student activities.

The Southern Center for Continuing Education on Chandler Drive will be expanded to five times its present size. Included in the expansion will be a 1,200 seat performing arts theater to replace the one in McCroan on Sweetheart Circle. Construction on the project will begin this year.

Before fall quarter, a pedestrian mall will be constructed, beginning at the Student Union rotunda, down to the library, and over to the new Lakeside Cafe. Grass landscape will replace the asphalt in front of the Williams Center, with two cement sidewalks extending the length of the walkway.

The mall will include a tree canopy, lighting, benches, and numerous phone booths. Between the Williams Center and the Henderson library, a rotunda with a fountain will be added as well.

The performance troupe "Celebrations of American Indians," will be highlighted in this year's Youth's Art festival March 9. The festival will include puppetry, woodworking, and other arts. (Special Photos)

Power.

"Our concern is with the continuing trend of American students falling behind those from the rest of the globe's industrialized nations in their mathematical abilities," said Stone. "It is a frightening fact that, at a time when the importance of mathematical skills is ever-increasing, our students annually rank in the lower third of the world's young people in their basic math computational ability."

Professor of the Year elections to be held

The Gamma Beta Phi honor society is holding the Professor of the Year elections this week during student registration.

Students who wish to vote for their favorite professor will be able to cast their ballot any time during the week at the Williams Center. All students can vote and all professors are eligible to win the award.

The only stipulation for eligibility is that professors are not allowed to win the award more than once within a three year period.

Roger Manley Speaks on Aborigines

Roger Manley, well known photographer, will present a slide/lecture based on the year he spent with the Aborigines in the Australian outback. The lecture is Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Foy Recital Hall.

Manley was photographing Aborigines and their culture, when his landrover broke down. A band of Aborigines rescued him and saved his life.

The time he spent with these people will be covered in his slide show and lecture. Manley will discuss their culture and way of life.

New Students Must Show Immunization Proof

Starting Summer quarter, all beginning students at GSU and other University System institutions must provide proof that they have been immunized against measles, mumps and rubella.

Students will be required to return a completed Certificate of Immunization form, signed by a physician or public health official, as proof of vaccination against the diseases.

University officials stressed that students who do not submit See CAMPUS, page 8

Number of black faculty members on the rise

By Jill Reid
Staff Writer

The number of black faculty members at GSU has increased in the past five years because of state required goals. GSU no longer has goals imposed by the state because of the progress it has made in hiring black faculty in recent years.

In 1986 nine black faculty members were hired. Of those nine, eight are still on staff at GSU. Since July of 1990 GSU has hired 8 black faculty members and 7 Asian faculty members. No Hispanics or Indians have been hired since July, 141 white faculty members were hired.

Special emphasis is placed on black faculty members as opposed to other minorities because of the high percentage of black students attending GSU. Approximately 12% of the students at GSU are black. According to Ms. Ruth Ann Rogers, the director of institutional compliance and executive assistant to the President, "A black faculty member is considered a valuable faculty member because in addition to all their other qualities they bring diversity to the university."

During the 1985-86 school year there was a total of nine faculty members at GSU. During the 1989-90 school year there were 26 black faculty members. That number has dropped to 23 in the 1990-91 school year.

Of the 23 black faculty members at GSU, the Political Science department has the highest number of black faculty with five members. Many departments only have one black faculty member. The reason that the number is so low in some departments is that there are not enough qualified black applicants in some areas.

At GSU there is only one black tenured professor as opposed to 89 white professors who are either tenured or on tenure track. There are 2 tenured black associate professors, but four more are on tenure track. There is only one associate professor who is of another race.

The university is actively recruiting black faculty members, but once recruited they are not receiving any extra help in attaining a job at the university. Applicants are judged solely on their qualifications, and race is not a factor in the hiring process, only in recruiting. "The reason that GSU is doing this is to ensure that blacks are equally represented to the hiring committees," said Dr. Robert Haney, assistant vice-President of academic affairs.

Columbus controversy: was explorer hero or villain

By PAULA SCHWED

©Copyright 1991, USA TODAY/Apple College Information Network

A battle is brewing over the way school textbooks portray explorer Christopher Columbus: did he discover America or invade it?

"He was one of the biggest mass murderers in history," says philosophy teacher Jan Elliott of Gainesville, Fla., a Cherokee descendant who believes Columbus' arrival unleashed a reign of terror upon American Indians.

"Germany wouldn't celebrate the holocaust. Why should we celebrate this man as a hero?"

Elliott is part of an effort to use next year's 500th anniversary celebration of Columbus' arrival to push for textbooks that place more emphasis on the viewpoints of various ethnic, racial and religious groups. These critics contend the curriculum wrongly preaches European culture and ideals to the exclusion of others.

"The Columbus celebration is an opportunity to inject alternative curriculum in the schools and reflect on what's been left out of the history books because of racism," says Emory Searcy Jr., executive director of an Atlanta group Clergy and Laity Concerned. "Racism and sexism and all the other 'isms' began with Columbus in 1492."

The furor building over Columbus in 1992 represents one facet of the fierce debate going on in school districts all over the country over what textbooks should say about the many ethnic groups that make up America.

Gone from many schoolbooks are simplistic descriptions that minimize the inhumanity of Africans sold into slavery or ignore the venerable culture of American Indians when Columbus arrived on these shores.

With the United States and the rest of the world more interdependent, schools can no longer ignore the rest of the globe. Nor can textbooks treat all Americans as if they sprang from the same mold.

But some scholars and ethnic groups say the curriculum does not go far enough in spelling out the experience of minorities. The result, they contend, is children who believe they are less worthwhile if they do not resemble the white European faces that dominate their textbooks.

Countering their claims are educators who say it is divisive to emphasize the factions that make up America, and wrongheaded to devote less study to the common values and culture that have guided the nation.

All this argument puts publishers in a bind. Critics like Gilbert T. Sewall of the American Textbook Council charge that in the interest of sales, many have responded by teaching textbooks of controversy and therefore making them even more boring to children.

The Association of American Publishers estimates that $2 billion was spent on textbooks in 1990, a figure sure to rise with mounting school enrollments and the nationwide impetus for educational reform.

"Blandness sells, or at least, it appeases the people who have a bottomless reservoir of discontent in matters of religion, sex and ethnicity," Sewall says.

Sewall sees promise in a new series of textbooks for kindergarten through eighth grade developed by Houghton Mifflin Co., and adopted for distribution by the states of California, Arkansas, Indiana, West Virginia and Oregon. A huge leap from the rudimentary McGuffey Readers, these social studies texts are filled with bright illustrations, readable maps and imaginative excerpts from literature.

"It's a new generation of textbook," says Sewall, whose group's bulletin describes the books as grappling "with issues of gender, ethnicity and multiculturalism in insightful ways, in balance with the larger scheme of history and society."

But in California, the Houghton Mifflin books ran into a buzz saw of criticism from special interest groups that argued their history, culture or beliefs were misrepresented.

Jewish representatives objected to a description of the participation of Jews in Jesus Christ's crucifixion. Muslim groups disputed the mentions of Islam's aggressiveness against "the infidel." Gay activists wanted the sexual preferences of historical figures included. At one point police were summoned to restore order to the emotional hearings.

The battle was closely watched by other publishers because California is a bellwether state that buys 13.2 percent of the textbooks sold in this country. Whether America's textbook publishers will respond to the brouhaha in California by imitating Houghton Mifflin's approach or trying to sidestep controversy remains in doubt.

Meanwhile the debate rages, and even those on the same side differ vehemently among themselves about how much multiculturalism is enough and who's to blame for the sins of the past.

"It's not a time to beat up on white people for what they've done," says Searcy, while Elliott calls herself a radical who believes "the history of this country is built on lies."

On the other side of the argument are those who fear that decisions about what textbooks should say are being made to placate political pressure groups, without regard for historical accuracy or balance. They believe too much emphasis on the experience of different groups will divide America instead of conveying to children the common ideals that unite Americans.

Historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. says: "Let us by all means learn about other continents and cultures ... (but) to deny the essentially European origins of American culture is to falsify history."

The Mudd Puppies are coming, the ...

By MICHAEL STRONG
Features Editor

Envision this: you're lying in bed, with the windows open, and all you can hear is that annoying Cicada bug--or is it the Chickasaw Mudd Puppies?

"Most people may think of it as annoying, but I think of it as a serenade," says Mudd Puppy Ben Reynolds.

He and Brant Slay thought enough of the Cicada to write a song about it for their recently released album 8 Track Stomp.

The album is the duo's second release. R.E.M. singer Michael Stipe and blues master Willie Dixon alternately produced this effort, in addition to playing on the album. After all was said and done, the Mudd Puppies had recorded 13 songs. After realizing that they had that unlucky number of songs, the superstitious duo renumbered the songs to exclude the number 13.

The number of songs and their renumbering is not the only extraordinary feature about the album; the title begs for scrutiny and interpretation.

"I think the 'stomp' is pretty obvious," said Reynolds. "We are a product of the 8-track generation. Everything we listened to was on 8-track."

The Mudd Puppies felt that the 8-track was so important in their development that they wanted to release 8 Track Stomp on 8-track, but there are no longer any facilities for the 8-track.

Don't hassle the librarian

By TERESA ROACH
Staff Writer

What image comes to your mind when you think of a librarian? Probably something like a woman sitting behind a desk reading and checking out books. In reality, however, there is much more to being a librarian than that.

Many people take librarians for granted. They do not realize that librarians are specially trained professionals who are highly acquainted with the ways of library science, yet they expect them to have all the answers to any questions they might have.

The main qualification for being a librarian at the Henderson Library is a Masters in Library Science. This is a program of study which extends one or two years past the Bachelor of Arts degree, depending on the institution.

There are different types of librarians also. A cataloging librarian labels books for the card catalog. An acquisitions librarian orders books and records the influx of them. A circulation librarian checks out and reshelves books and audiovisual material. A reference librarian answers questions and gives tours and instructions on how to use the library. Reference librarians also teach the course, Library Research.

Henderson Library employs four catalog librarians, one acquisitions librarian, four part-time and two full-time reference librarians, and one circulation librarian. There are also many library assistants available.

Librarians are expected to have full command of the resources available at the library, and books are only the beginning of this vast supply of information. Also available are audiovisual materials, such as filmstrips, compact discs, records, and video tapes; periodicals, both bound and on microfilm; government documents; and various indexes, such as Infotrac, ERIC (the educational information index), and CINAHL (the nursing and allied health information index).

The next time you are at the library researching a project and you need a librarian's assistance, remember that a librarian is a qualified authority on the resources available at the library. Give your librarians the respect they deserve.

The Chickasaw Mudd Puppies, Ben Reynolds and Brant Slay, will be coming to Statesboro on Tues., Feb. 27.

There has been some speculation revolving around the duo becoming a trio or even larger.

"We played with two guys in Athens the other night [last Wednesday] and it was pretty good," said Reynolds. "But, the magic isn't usually there."

In actuality, there is a third "official" member of the band. Jim McKay, who shot the video for "Do You Remember", played percussion on 8 Track Stomp. McKay has also played drums with the Mudd Puppies on several live performances. But, adding a new member for the sake of adding one wouldn't "make the music anymore exciting," according to Reynolds.

The duo will be traveling to England and Holland to begin an eight week tour in support of the new album. They will be at the Rockin' Eagle on Tues. Feb. 27 before they leave.

"We love Statesboro," said Reynolds. "We miss Billy and Peggy, but Steve Andrews has been really nice."

The Mudd Puppies would like progression just like this in their music.

"We don't care where it goes," said Reynolds. "Just as long as it's going somewhere."

It would seem that with a new album, a European tour, and two videos getting airplay, the Mudd Puppies are moving and at a pretty good clip.

Powell poem tribute

By CHRISTY JOHNS
Staff Writer

Last Thursday night, The Miscellany, GSU's literary magazine sponsored "An Evening of the Arts." It was the second such "Evening" of the quarter and was a truly enlivening experience.

The poetry reading was a tribute to the late Roy F. Powell, a former professor here at school. Powell passed away in 1970 but before he did he managed to have a profound effect on many of his students' lives. Once yearly a student that has "excelled in the areas of talent, imagination, originality, technique and overall support of the arts" receives the Roy F. Powell Creative Writing Award.

The first speaker of the evening was retired Merit Professor of English Hollis Cate, a former student of Powell's. He read two of Powell's own creations, "Introduction to a Pedagogue for His Three Daughters" and "Dearth for the Hired Man," a semi take-off of Robert Frost's "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening." "Dearth" is a student's explanation of how, where and why he obtained and did away with the resources for his term paper.

Dan Rahn, the News Editor for the University of Georgia Extension Service and former Powell student, was the next to speak. Rahn obviously cared deeply for his former professor and showed great distress in the fact that he did not visit Powell when he learned he was in the hospital. He ended with a touching self-written poem, entitled "Eagles," about the passage of life.

Get a life Sinead!

Thumbs down to Sinead O'Connor, who recently boycotted the Grammy Awards ceremonies for "political reasons."

In a recent television interview O'Connor accused the United States and England of "covert terrorism and genocide." O'Connor claims that while Saddam Hussein is doing "terrible, ungodly things to the world, the U.S. and England are just as guilty." When asked to cite specific examples O'Connor stuttered and then shut up.

It is a sacred right to be able to voice an opinion, as O'Connor says, so here is one. Sinead O'Connor is quite guilty of overemphasizing her own importance and needs to get a life. What, did she think the Grammys would be cancelled if she didn't show up? The only award she deserves is "worst attitude toward the efforts to stop a crazed, murdering maniac." But then there are many people who speak out against the very governments which protect their lives and liberty. Talk about appreciation.

Perhaps O'Connor is a spy for the Iraqis. Yeah, and Andrew Dice Clay is a coalition forces spy; maybe that's why she wouldn't appear on the same show as he. It would in effect be Spy versus Spy.

Iraqi war comparable to Vietnam?

Well, I'm still studying on the Iraqi war. It's a real mess, and it takes a heap of studying to get it straight. I watched some of the bombing on TV, and I was reminded of some of the things that went on in Vietnam.

Now there is another mess that takes a heap of studying, too. In fact, I started studying it back while I was in high school. I kept on studying it while I was serving over there, and I'm still studying it today. I don't know if there is enough studying to ever get that one straight, and folks might be saying the same thing about this whole Middle East mess twenty years from now!

In looking at Vietnam, and the Middle East mess, and a few other events in between, I have reached a conclusion. It has become the standard policy of the government to lie to the people. Even when telling the truth would be easier and simpler, they will lie just to deep in practice. If they figure the lie would just be too fantastic for them to get away with, then they will classify the truth and not say anything one way or the other. That is why we got into such a mess in Vietnam, and that is why we will be in such a mess in Iraq if we don't keep a close eye on the folks up in Washington.

Another thing that really gets me upset when I watch what's going on today, and compare it to Vietnam, and I am not alone in this, is the fact that we could have done to North Vietnam what we are doing to Iraq, and we didn't. In fact, it would have been easier to do in North Vietnam, at least early on in the war.

If we had started on North Vietnam in January of 1965 the same way we got started on Iraq in January 1991, we could have packed up the troops and come home before January 1966, and there would have been a lot fewer widows, orphans, and disabled as a result. If we ever learn anything from the basket of blunders we made in Vietnam, it is that we must not stop, there must be no cease fire, until Insane Hussein is waving a white flag. Any and every cease-fire will cost us hundreds of additional casualties and no telling how much additional time.

In a war of words or warplanes, once you determine that words have failed there is only one thing left to do—shut up and fly! So far, that is what we have been doing, and it is on this point only that I applaud our leaders.

I hear everyone saying that we must support our troops in the Middle East. Well you can take it from an old Vietnam Vet; there are two ways to support the troops. The first way is to not put them into a war. But once you have failed in that, the best support you can give them is to get out of the way and let them go at it as hard as they can and get the job done as quick as they can.

I pretty well got all that worked out, but one question that keeps nagging at me is the question of what our plans are once the fighting has stopped? I mean, after all this bombing there must be large portions of Iraq that are beginning to resemble the surface of the moon, and once this is all over I am sure that the county, the government, and the economy will all be a shambles.

Well I've been bitched out by the best and the worst of them. Over the past two years as Editor of this "liked by many, cussed by some, read by them all" publication I have been called many different names and told to do many things with "my newspaper." In retrospect it is all quite hilarious; to look back at all you people who have taken what has been published on my page personally is a real trip. Let us reminisce, shall we?

I guess it all started with the infamous greek column in the fall of 1989. My credibility was compared to GSU favorite Brother Jim by Dan Ellis of Kappa Sigma frat. Lori Willbanks claimed I had

From The Editor's Desk Clint Rushing

"feelings of self imposed inferiority." Ex-GA editor Mike Klug told me that I had "alienated a large portion of my readers." D.E. Davis had the gall to accuse me of being a hypocrite and unfair "copy placement on the opinions page."

Another nameless frat bro told me he felt sorry for me and hoped that one day I'd be invited to a party or formal, but he said I'd never happen. Well, I've been to two in the past year, not that it means anything, HA!

Onward! One of my particular favorites came from Dean Thames, now an employee of PAGE3- sister publications organization to the G-A; Dean called me a "sniveling brat" in a letter in the fall of '89. Thanks Dean! You're fired! Just kidding!

Winter quarter of '90 I wrote the also infamous abortion column stating my pro-choice opinion. Never have I received so little support from readers. Obviously the majority of the readers were pro-life on the abortion issue- another of my favs was Julie Moser telling me "You're gonna rot in hell for a long time for saying those things!" That really tickled me.

Other pro-lifers who chose to respond encouraged The George-Anne to "abort its editor." My you guys were vicious!

And now this year the Taylor Dayne fiasco has me being dubbed a sexist. Well what can I say except, How bout them hooters!?

Irresponsible journalist? Womanizing slime? Immoral fornicating demon? Well here's a little rhyme I learned when I was four years old: "Sticks and Stones may break my bones but names just make me laugh."

I still appreciate the fact that you all are at least reading the columns. At least Mike Strogg isn't editor-he wouldn't take half the shit I do.

Ramblings on daytime soap operas

Okay. I left it right here. Who took it? I'm not amused by this. Where is it? Okay, look. I left it RIGHT THERE ON THE TABLE. Someone had to move it. I need to find it. I hate it when this happens! Ah, there it is....No, that's my calculator...that's no help. Here it is. Thank God. I thought for a minute there I might actually have to get off the couch and change the channel by hand.

What time is it anyway? Did I sleep through Donahue? What's this? No I don't need a hand-hammered wok. What's on this channel? OH NO! It can't be time for that already. I just got up. This is so unfair. Why can't we have cable? It's either this or three different picture qualities of Wild Kingdom. I wish Sesame Street was on.....

I hate these soap operas. I don't know why. Probably because they're just too realistic for me. Take for instance these people's names. What crack-smoking ex-botany major names these people anyway?

Ridge. Thorn. They're all named after woodland life!

Cricket. Storm. Well if you're going to do it, why not do it right? Where's Bark? And Petiole? Why not Leaf? And what about Trunk? And you don't think Apical Meristem would be a lovely name for Thorn and Tree's child?

And what's with the close up shots at the end of a scene? Yeah, I'm just dying to see the eight jillion wrinkles in old lady Chancellor's skin. Like that makes the whole scene more effective. Somebody named Antler comes in, threatens to blackmail the woman, kill her children, cut off her legs, leaving her for dead in the ditch by the side of a dead-end dirt road, and you just sit there and wonder and wonder if she's worried about it.

Then, suddenly they zoom in

Eagles find hard times on road

By JAMES DRINKARD

Assistant Sports Editor

Coaches have often said that it takes a good team to win a game, but it takes a great one to win on the road. The Eagles discovered just how true those words can be last week as they took the road to face conference rivals Centenary and Texas - San Antonio.

Few would deny that Southern is a talented team, but it takes more than talented players to bring victory home from Shreveport, La., or San Antonio, Texas.

Sometimes, that is a hard lesson to learn.

Centenary 90, GSU 85

The Eagles knew they were in for a tough night when they took the court amidst 3,100 screaming Centenary fans Saturday.

They did not know what an understatement the word "tough" could be.

The Gents' Patrick Greer stole the ball on Southern's first possession, driving the length of the court for the jam.

The crowd went wild, GSU fell behind by two, and the Gents never looked back again.

Ferguson

Ignited by the slam, Centenary burned the nets with a 38-16 drive, setting the tone for the remainder of the game.

Despite Cal Ferguson's 12 points and four rebounds in the first half, the Eagles could not keep up with the Gents.

Southern's 43 percent first half field shooting acted as an anchor, slowing the Eagles and pulling them into deeper water.

At the end of the half, Frank Kerns led his team into the locker room with a 47-30 deficit.

Smith

Southern seemed reborn in the opening minutes of the second half, launching a 13-6 drive.

Unfortunately, while the Eagles maintained their scoring barrage, they also began a more physical one. With 14:41 left on the clock and the score narrowing to a 54-43 margin, Southern began to slip into foul trouble.

Eagle charity was just enough to keep the Gents' lead alive. As the time remaining in the game fell inside 12 minutes, Centenary began to break away.

Opening up their fast-firing perimeter game, the Gents extended their margin to a 79-64 lead with 5:39 showing on the clock.

The Eagles, however, refused to give up.

The Southern five unleashed a vicious attack, firing from the perimeter and hammering the paint.

Unfortunately, fate often falls to the fortunate, and fortunate is exactly what the Eagles were not.

Southern point guard Charlton Young fouled out with 1:30 left in the game, and the Eagle assault faltered -- but it did not fail.

By the time the clock had fallen to 33 seconds, Southern had closed the gap to five, trailing 85-80.

Then, at the 18-second mark, a fatal blow was struck. Cal Ferguson committed his sixth personal foul, putting the Eagle forward on the bench and the Gents' Patrick Greer on the line.

Greer connected on one of his two resulting free throw attempts, but more importantly, a major force in Southern's game plan had been eliminated.

The Eagle drive fell short of the mark, and Centenary walked away with the victory.

Texas-San Antonio 87, GSU 79

Earlier in the week, on Thursday, the Eagles journeyed to San Antonio to take on the conference-leading Roadrunners.

All five Southern starters posted double figures on the evening. Wendell Charles and Tony Windless each dropped eleven points, Charlton Young popped off 13, and Cal Ferguson led the Eagles' scoring effort with 18 points.

But it was Emmett Smith who spearheaded the Eagle attack, posting 14 points and 18 rebounds, while grabbing four steals and dishing out two assists.

While Southern's high honors for the evening belonged to Smith; however, the night belonged to UTSA's Ronnie Ellison.

The junior guard posted 34 points, five steals, and five rebounds, while dishing out four assists.

That's 39 percent of the Roadrunners' total points.

Overall, UTSA shot 42 percent from the field, 40 percent from three-point territory, and 71 percent from the line.

In comparison, the Eagles were 42 percent from the field, a disappointing 15 percent from the outer reaches, and 72 percent from the charity line.

Once again, the first half proved fatal to Southern's efforts.

A team that shoots 37 percent from the field, 16 percent from three-point range, and 60 percent from the line for half the ballgame cannot hope to knock off the conference leader.

Despite all the problems, the Eagles played a good game. They played as a team, something that they had failed to do the previous week, and they kept the pressure on.

This week

The 12-12 Eagles will attempt to regain their composure before they take on arch-rival Arkansas-Little Rock Thursday night in Hanner Fieldhouse. Tip-off is scheduled for 7 p.m.

ARIZONA EXTENDS HOME STREAK

No. 7 Arizona beat No. 8 Duke 103-96 in two overtimes Sunday to run the nation's longest college men's basketball homecourt winning streak to 61 games. Much might have been at stake, including a No. 1 seed in the NCAA tournament, for instance. In other games: No. 5 Indiana beat Michigan 112-79; No. 18 Oklahoma State downed Colorado 79-67; No. 6 Syracuse beat No. 22 Pittsburgh 89-68.

UNLV REMAINS NO. 1

Nevada-Las Vegas (25-0) remained No. 1 in this week's USA TODAY/CNN college basketball poll. The rest of the top ten: No. 2, Ohio State (24-1); No. 3, Arkansas (27-2); No. 4, North Carolina (21-4); No. 5, Indiana (23-4); No. 6, Syracuse (24-4); No. 7, Arizona (22-5); No. 8, Duke (23-6); No. 9, Kansas (20-5); No. 10, Kentucky (20-5).

LAKERS BEAT PISTONS IN OT

A.C. Green, an NBA All-Star last season but seeing limited action this year, had four of his 14 points in overtime Sunday as the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Detroit Pistons 102-96. In other NBA games: Indiana 115, Boston 109; Houston 100, Minnesota 91; New York 108, Miami 92; Orlando 120, Sacramento 90; LA Clippers 129, Denver 112; San Antonio 95, Portland 88; Seattle 103, Utah 91.

EARNHARDT WINS PONTIAC 400

Dale Earnhardt is tough to beat in a three-lap dash, which he proved again Sunday by winning the NASCAR Pontiac 400 at Richmond International Raceway. Ricky Rudd, who finished second and Earnhardt battled after a two-car accident eliminated Earnhardt's four-second lead and set up a three-lap shootout. Harry Gant was third.

FLYERS TOP ISLANDERS

Ron Sutter had a goal and an assist as the Philadelphia Flyers defeated the New York Islanders for the second consecutive night, 4-3, to extend their unbeaten streak to four. In other NHL games: New York 5, New Jersey 2; Pittsburgh 5, Washington 5, tie; Los Angeles 5, Winnipeg 3; Hartford 5, Buffalo 5, tie; Edmonton 6, Quebec 3; Chicago 6, St. Louis 2.

LENDL DEFEATS STICH

Ivan Lendl had five aces and won 100 percent of his first-serve points to beat defending champion Michael Stich of Germany 7-5, 6-3 in Sunday's final of the Volvo Indoor tennis tournament at Memphis. No. 1 seed Lendl, who won last week's U.S. Indoor at Philadelphia, earned $99,000 for his 90th career title. Stich won $53,000.

NOVOTNA TAKES SLIMS TOURNAY

Top seed Jana Novotna won her fifth career singles championship by defeating No. 5 Anne Smith 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 at the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Oklahoma tournament. Smith and Meredith McGrath, the No. 2 team, defeated No. 3 Katrina Adams and Jill Hetherington 6-2, 6-4 in the doubles final.

USA WINS CHRYSLER CUP

Led by Charles Coody's course-record 63, the USA won five of eight matches for a 58 1/2-41 1/2 victory against the International team for its fourth consecutive Senior PGA Tour Chrysler Cup title Sunday. The U.S. players - George Archer, Jim Dent, Mike Hill, Al Geiberger, Bruce Crampton, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lee Trevino and captain Miller Barber - won $50,000 each.

CONTRACT TALK IN BASEBALL

Dwight Gooden gave the Mets some breathing room Sunday, but Ryne Sandberg turned up the heat on the Cubs. Sandberg has given the Cubs a Friday deadline for a contract extension, or he says, he will play out his option and become a free agent after the 1992 season. Meanwhile, Dwight Gooden said Sunday that he decided his agent could continue negotiating. He had set a Friday deadline.

Southern ends Jacket jinx

By JOHN HENRY

Sports Writer

The Diamond Eagles split a two-game series with Georgia Tech over the weekend. Saturday the Eagles suffered a 6-4 loss, and on Sunday there was a complete turnaround with the Jackets falling 13-8.

The win over Tech broke a 10-game GSU losing streak in the series between the two teams.

The games were very significant to the morale of the Eagles. After Saturday's loss, the team decided something had to be done.

Sunday, in game two, the Eagles came out kind of weak at first. In the bottom of the third, a Chris Petersen base hit allowed Doug Eder to put a number on the board for the Eagles. This helped build the Eagle momentum and eventually put the sting on the Killer Bees.

Base hits and a lot of walking brought monotony to the next few innings of the game. Then, in the sixth inning, a Jacket show of force worried the Eagles. The worry ceased as the sixth inning played on.

The bottom of the sixth was what all the fans had been waiting on. GSU scored six runs on four hits.

Once again, Todd Greene was the hot-shot of the series. Greene, who now has a 10-game hitting streak, put a little fear in Tech's eyes as they watched a three-run blast take him into home.

Also gaining recognition at bat was Mike Miller, who blasted two homers in the two-game series.

On the mound, Joey Hamilton started Saturday and showed that getting the feeling was possible once again. Jim Carragher took to the hill in the eighth and showed a lot of previously unseen talent.

Sunday, Jake Greene started and clearly demonstrated that the Eagle pitching squad was evolving ing into a solid force. Ronald Stanford took over in the seventh and did not satisfy Larry Bryant for long. Todd Greene was put in, facing a sticky situation with the bases loaded.

A double play initiated by Greene removed some of the pressure that had built during the eighth inning. From there, the Eagles gained the uniformity needed for victory.

Now, looking much better, the Eagles are going to take to the road. The Eagles will be in Columbia today and tomorrow to take on the University of South Carolina.

Golfers 12th in tourney

U-S-A Staff Reports

The GSU golf team finished 12th of 18 teams in the February 22-24 Taylor Made Doral Park National Collegiate Invitational in Miami, Fla.

After posting a 306 and a 302 in the first two rounds, the Eagles combined for a 284 in the final round to finish with a three-day total of 892.

Louisiana State won the team title with an 866 (283-291-292).

LSU's nearest competitor, Central Florida, finished 10 strokes behind at 876 (297-282-297). Georgia Tech was third at 879, followed by Texas' 881.

Individually, Bo Fennell turned in GSU's top performance. Fennell shot a 222 (73-75-74) to join four others in 25th place.

Eagle Rick Bash finished in a four-way tie for 30th with a 223. Bash followed rounds of 74 and 77 with a 72 on the final day.

GSU's Chris Chuck tied two others for 48th with a 226. Chuck sandwiched a second-round 73 with a 78 and a 75.

Also placing for the Eagles were Tim Logsdon and Mitch Marchman. Logsdon finished 54th with a 228 (81-77-70), while Marchman rebounded from scores of 81 and 84 with a final-round 68 to finish 74th.

Miami's Guy Hill won the individual title with a 211 (73-69-69). In doing so, Hill became the first freshman ever to win the event.

EXCELLENT WAGES and INCENTIVES

Florida Shocker

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Editor

With the GSU Lady Eagles in need of a boost before the conference tournament, their games against Stetson and Bethune-Cookman looked like certain confidence-building wins.

After all, the two teams combined had just two wins in 43 games.

Instead, Stetson and B-CC enjoyed the high points of their seasons, while GSU returned from the trip to Florida with two surprising losses.

Stetson 86, GSU 76

After the Stetson Lady Hatters lost their first 23 games of the season, you had to think they might catch a break sooner or later.

They finally had one go their way Saturday night, against last year's conference champion no less.

Stetson took advantage of 36 Georgia Southern turnovers to down the Lady Eagles 86-76 in a New South Women's Athletic Conference game in DeLand, Fla.

GSU, which needed a win almost as badly as Stetson, fell to 3-8 in the NSWAC and 14-12 overall. Stetson closed its conference schedule with a 1-11 NSWAC mark.

Not to take away from the fired-up Stetson squad, but, because of injuries and other problems, the Lady Eagles were forced to use a makeshift line-up and search for the right combination all night.

Starting guard Andrea Stults missed the game with a slight lumbar sprain. Stults suffered the injury in the final minute of the Bethune-Cookman game Thursday.

Stults' replacement, Yolanda Edwards, was thrust into her first career start. Edwards suffered a rough debut, scoring no points in 17 minutes.

Senior guard Trina Simmons did not make the trip for disciplinary reasons. Simmons, who averages 13.1 points per game, scored 17 in GSU's 85-66 pounding of Stetson in Statesboro January 26.

Beverly Copeland was supposed to replace Simmons, but she was late for a team meeting the morning of the game. Copeland began the game on the bench, and the starting nod went to sophomore Heather Voight.

Finally, center Stephanie Christmas underwent treatment for an impacted wisdom tooth Saturday morning. Christmas played just five minutes against the Lady Hatters and missed her only two shots.

All those factors added up to a young, inexperienced line-up that turned the ball over 20 times in the first half alone.

The 20 turnovers killed GSU in the opening half. Despite shooting 58.6 from the field and outrebounding Stetson 19-8, the Lady Eagles trailed 46-37 at halftime.

Southern's two bright spots were forwards Tracy Wilson and Gwen Thomas, who teamed for 49 points and 27 rebounds. Wilson pulled down 12 rebounds to go with her game-high 27 points. Thomas led all players with 15 boards while scoring 22 points.

GSU trailed only 71-70 with 3:26 to play, but Stetson's Kristy Austell single-handedly kept the Lady Hatters ahead to stay. Austell nailed two free throws, then hit two baskets to make the score 77-70 with 2:03 left.

Austell's six unanswered points were a fitting close to the game. Only a freshman, Austell drained nine of 13 shots from the floor and eight of 10 from the line for 26 points. She added 12 rebounds and 10 steals.

Southern held a 65-62 lead, their largest of the game, with 9:23 remaining, but Austell sank a free throw and Amy Tracy Wilson led GSU with 27 points against Stetson and 21 points against Bethune-Cookman.

Knauff added a basket to tie the score.

The Lady Hatters owned the first half, leading by as many as 11 points, 37-26, after a Knauff bucket. Stetson led by 10 points, 40-30, as late as the 3:14 mark of the first half.

Bethune-Cookman 57, GSU 56

Yes, you read that right.

Despite shooting 27 percent (9-33) from the field in the first half, the Bethune-Cookman Lady Wildcats clawed GSU 57-56 in Daytona Beach, Fla., Thursday.

The win was a double shock for the Lady Eagles: B-CC entered the game with a paltry 2-18 record, while GSU owned an 11-4 mark against non-conference opponents.

Neither record mattered as the Lady Eagles gave up eight straight points to see a 50-45 lead dissolve to a 53-50 deficit with 3:19 to play.

After the Lady Wildcats jumped ahead 15-6, GSU answered with a 15-2 run to grab a 21-17 lead with 3:53 remaining in the first half. Southern led 25-21 at halftime.

GSU's Tracy Wilson led all players with 21 points and a career-high 24 rebounds. With 10 offensive and 14 defensive re-

The Lady Eagle softball team probably doesn't want to see any visitors from Florida for a while.

The seventh-ranked Florida State Lady Seminoles swept the Lady Eagles 6-2 and 5-1 Sunday at the GSU Sports Complex.

Saturday the Lady Eagles defeated Florida A&M 7-3 in the first game of the doubleheader, but the Rattlerettes rebounded to take the second game 4-1.

In the first game Sunday, things looked bright for Southern as they took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. However, FSU answered with a run in the second, three more in the third and two more in the fifth.

FSU pitcher Christi Larsen shut down the Lady Eagles, allowing one earned run in seven innings. She struck out five and walked none.

Catcher Beth Williams led GSU with two hits and an RBI in three at-bats. Mickey Paul also slapped two hits, while Cathy Stinson drove in Southern's other run.

In Sunday's second game, GSU committed four errors and drilled only four hits to make a loser of starting pitcher Gretchen Koehler. Koehler allowed three earned runs and walked none, but nevertheless saw her record fall to 0-1.

First baseman Jennifer Olow and center fielder Becky Harrison each drove in two runs to lead Florida State's hitting barrage.

Southern fell behind 2-0 to FAMU in the first inning of the opening game Saturday, but responded with two runs in the bottom of the first and five more in the second.

Mickey Paul rapped two hits, scored twice and drove in three runs. The Southern center fielder blasted a home run to key GSU's five-run second.

Other Lady Eagle hitting stars were Beth Williams, who finished 3-4 with an RBI, and Christy Hill, who enjoyed a 2-4 day with two runs scored.

Backed by a 10-hit attack, Tammie Lanier picked up the win to improve to 3-2.

The Rattlerettes shut out GSU for the first six innings on their way to a 4-1 win in the second game.

GSU pitcher Carrie Collins allowed two earned runs, struck out five and walked none, but was outdone by FAMU hurler Bauntia Andrews. Andrews held GSU to three hits and no

The backbone of recreation

By GARRETT HEABERLIN
Intramurals Publicity Coordinator

When "Campus Recreation and Intramurals" is mentioned, one immediately thinks of high-powered basketball, four-man volleyball, or softball tournaments.

But none of these events could take place without the hard work and determined willingness of the students behind them. Campus Recreation and Intramurals offers the student an opportunity to help develop part of the mechanization that goes into supporting the programs.

When employees are hired, CRI offers an extensive and complete training session. The employees then become transformed into supervisors, scorekeepers, weight room attendants and aerobic instructors.

For the supervisors, the session can last up to five hours. The average time of the sessions is from three to five hours depending on the responsibility of the job. Weekly meetings are also held with the supervisors. The CRI staff sits down with the supervisors and talks over the situations and problems, and how the su-perisors can improve situations the following week.

The job description of the supervisor includes keeping games under control, keeping crowds under control, and checking employees in at their respective jobs. The advanced job of the supervisor commands authority over the officials and scorekeepers. Supervisors also judge sportsmanship in the heated games and take care of all accidents and emergency procedures.

But the job of the CRI employee is not a thankless one. The CRI staff offers such incentives as employee of the month and year in each specific area and overall. The students receive beautiful plaques in areas such as Most Valuable Official, Most Improved, and Most Hustle. Also, a student employee of the month is picked from Intramurals and one is picked from Informal Recreation. Informal Recreation includes attendants in the weight rooms, aerobics instructors, and equipment managers.

From the Intramurals Department, Martin Pinckney received the award of Intramural Employee of the Month for January as a basketball official.

Pinckney is a senior Human Resource Major and a member of Kappa Sigma. Pinckney hails from Warner Robins, Ga.

For Informal Recreation, Mike Johnson received the Informal Recreation Employee of the Month for January as an aerobics instructor. Johnson is a sophomore Electrical Engineer major from Lithonia, Ga. Johnson is also a Georgia Southern cheerleader.

ing the quality of our students' math abilities," he said.
GOEME has garnered support for math education reform in grades K-12 from governmental, educational and corporate leaders to further its goals, which include: improving the public perception of mathematics; raising awareness of the need for qualified math teacher; encouraging the teaching of relevant, applicable, experimental math; making in-service training and professional development available and accessible.

Miscellany

Next, Eric Nelson, a creative writing teacher here at school commented on three works in The Miscellany's special publication in tribute to Powell. All three of the poems, entitled "Creek Song," "Exploring Corfu" and "Hatian," share in common the ability to draw the reader back to time and time again to search for yet another "hidden jewel of literary worth." Nelson was quite convincing in his dialogue.
Ira Dove, A GSU grad assistant in Sociology and the 1990 recipient of the Powell Creative Writing Award, read two of his award winning poems- "The Beach" and "Dear Mr. Schoulz"- and a more recent creation entitled "Wang Doodle."

Finally, GSU English Professor Fred Richter closed the evening with another of Powell's poems entitled "To Hester Some Years Later" and a poem about Powell by Happy Hicks called "Reflections in Blue."

Now you can afford to dream in color.

If you thought that finding a color Macintosh® system you could afford was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

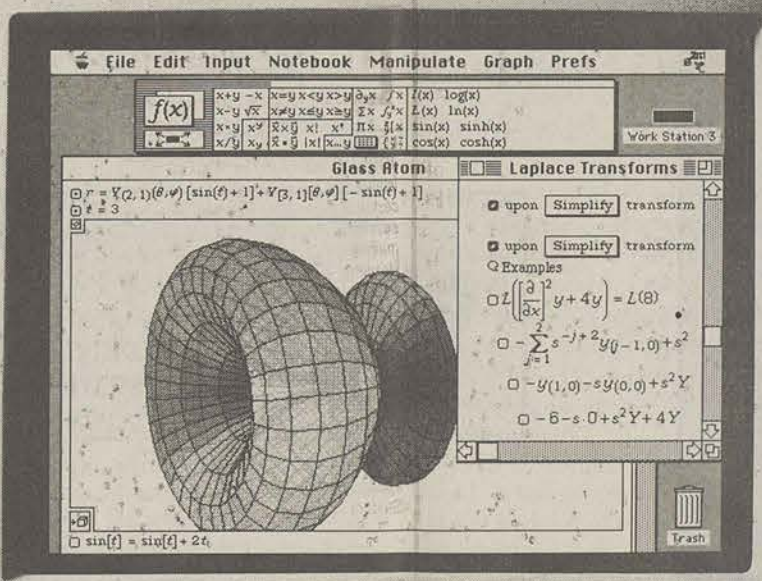

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple® SuperDrive™, which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself.

It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.

Apple introduces the Macintosh LC.
