Truth in advertising law passed

A new law to be passed by the Kansas legislature tomorrow will require television and radio commercials to have something to do with their products. A loophole in the law would give leeway to those commercials that feature sweaty young female models. Vice-President Dan Quayle hailed the bill as "What Americans all over Kansas should take for a leading example in American advertising laws."

Bush has "no intention" of withdrawal

President Bush declared that he has no intention of withdrawing from his occupation of the White House. He has reportedly barricaded himself inside the Oval office and called for his "Republican Guard" to save him.

Hussein declares himself VP candidate

Saddam Hussein declared his availability as a Vice-Presidential running mate Saturday. The Iraqi dictator cited the "name-recognition" factor and the fact that his face has been on so many American T-shirts. "I figure I'm at least as popular as Dan Quayle," said Hussein.

Gorbachev offers peace plan

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev offered President Bush a last-minute bailout plan upon the two Gen.s' candidacy announcements. "I can show him a thing or two about how to handle domestic problems," said the Soviet president.

Schwarzkopf to pose for Playgirl

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf also announced his decision to pose for the May issue of the magazine Playgirl. "I wanted the public to see my own Patriot missile," the Gen. reportedly said. While there has been no official reaction from the White House, the President was reported as saying, "What?"

Satanists want equal time

Encouraged by the success of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA), officials announced the formation of a new religious sports organization, the Fellowship of Satanic Athletes (FSA). The organization's sponsored sports will include nude candle jumping, broomstick races, and badminton.

Video camera sales increase

Video stores around the nation reported a 70 percent sales increase of home video cameras over the past two weeks. Store managers had no explanation for the increase. Sales have gone up 170 percent in the Los Angeles area.

Poll shows illiteracy among readers

In a recent USA Today poll, it was revealed that 70 percent of USA Today subscribers are functionally illiterate. 20 percent stated they could read, and the remaining 10 percent didn't know. Ticks escape from campus collection

BY M.E. WISE
NEWS EDITOR

Over 100,000 ticks, from GSU's tick collection, were released Sunday night by who police believe are members of the Citizens Against Caged Animals (CACA), a nonprofit organization.

Statesboro police received a call from a person identifying himself as a CACA member, late Sunday night.

"Someone phoned in around midnight to say this so-called organization had released the ticks from the tick lab," said Police Chief Adolph DuPues, of the Statesboro police department.

"We get calls of this nature everyday, so we assumed it was some college kid playing a practical joke, but sure enough it turned out to be true."

At the scene, police found a note from whom police believe to be the CACA stating the reasons why they released the ticks.

"They (CACA) said it was wrong to cage any living, breathing, organism for testing purposes," said DuPues. "We've never had much contact with this group, so we're still not sure if it is their work or if someone else is responsible."

Dr. Horace P. Melusod, head of Southern's Institute of Antropodology and Parasitology is urging anyone who finds a tick not to kill it.

"We have a specialized team of tick specialist who will collect the released ticks. We want to get them all back into the lab as quick as we can. I believe if everyone pulls together we can collect all the missing ticks."

"I just can't understand why they (CACA) would want to do this. What we were doing here was trying to find a cure for several diseases. There isn't anything wrong or immoral about this. It was for the good of the community."

The collection contained approximately 90 percent of all known tick species in the world.

None of the specimens preserved in glass vials were harmed. "They seemed intent on only releasing the live specimens," said Chief DePues. "No other damage was done to the lab."

GSU's Health Center is prepared to treat anyone who suffers from tick bites. DePues said he felt all the ticks could be collected and secured back in their proper domain before anything of this nature occurred.

Even so, officials are urging everyone to take caution and watch for ticks, because a tick bite might be deadly.

Ticks can carry Lyme disease, Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever and ehrlichiosis ("rashless" spotted fever).

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease said this is the worst thing they've ever seen and could possibly set the study of tick biology back months or even years.

Secret Landrum meat source revealed

Editor dead

G-A Staff Reports

George-Anne Editor Clint Rushing was found dead of 52 stab wounds at his desk late Sunday night. University police suspect suicide.

"He seemed depressed," said Acting Editor Gary Witte.

This sentiment was echoed by G-A staff members.

"He didn't seem very happy," said Features Editor Michael Strong. "He seemed down ... you know, depressed."

Rushing, a junior business major, apparently entered the G-A office at approximately 11:55 p.m. Witnesses described him as "depressed."

At 12:05 the G-A staff went to the local fast food establishment for supper, leaving Rushing alone in the office.

The body was discovered tied to a chair when staff members returned at 1 a.m.

An apparent suicide note reading "Hooters," was found stapled to Rushing's forehead.

Clint Rushing

Police psychologist George Rogete said, "This sad note is an obvious cry for help."

Family members were mystified by Rushing's sudden demise.

Rushing had been a staff member of the G-A for three years, serving two of them as Editor-in-Chief.

A memorial service will be sponsored by the Panhellenic council and held in Sweetheart Circle tonight at 10 p.m.

GSU Professors discover new energy source

By I.P. Phreely
Staff Writer

Two GSU professors are currently conducting a revolutionary physics experiment using human feces.

The experiment coordinator, Dr. Charles Bickley, has studied feces for over 23 years and is convinced that the key to the world's energy problems is what he terms "feces fission": creating a type of electrical power using feces.

"Turds have always fascinated me," Bickley said. "My goal is to solve the world's energy problems using feces. Production of oil in the United States has declined every year since 1970. Our imported foreign oil increases the country's vulnerability to an embargo and increases the U.S. deficit.

"Something has got to be done to save the world from this madness."

The University System of Georgia recently allotted $1.5 million to Dr. Bickley's experiment.

"We plan to use some of the $1.5 million to build a feces fission chamber," Bickley said. "If this chamber works it will probably change the destiny of the world forever. No man has ever attempted to build such a magnificent power producing structure."

According to Dr. Bickley, the chamber will produce something called turdtricity: power created by the motion of electrons, protons and other charged particles, manifesting itself as attraction, repulsion, magnetic, luminous and heating effects.

The experiments co-coordinator Dr. Ki Yang said, "Georgia is growing by leaps and bounds. Many new businesses, industries and people are moving into our beautiful state. These people use power just like you and me; however, unless some new power source is found we will run out of all fossil fuels within 14 years.

If our experiment works the chamber will be able to supply America with over 841,622,000 million kilowatts of turdtricity. However, when working with turdtricity there is a great danger. One of the major concerns connected with the power involves the fact that the feces chamber will produce large quantities of waste."

There are two main types of waste produced within the core of a feces chamber: a hideous odor and vitriolic acid.

A well known defecation expert said, "I think the waste from the feces chamber can be disposed of permanently in a safe manner. If properly buried deep underground in geologically stable formations there is little chance

Objects worn in hair cause brain damage, say experts

BY M.E. WISE
NEWS EDITOR

A recent national health report, conducted by the American Health Association, reveals that large objects worn in the hair results in severe brain damage, causing people to partially act out childhood fantasies.

Psychiatrist I.M. Smuck, from the Laboratory of Mental Disorders in Lexington, said he first started to notice problems when large amounts of people started dressing like clowns and other various circus entertainers.

"We would see people on an everyday basis walking around trying to dress like (what we thought) looked like clowns," said Dr. Marcel Puckett, also with the Laboratory of Mental Disorders. "We immediately knew something severe was wrong. We started bringing these people into the labs to be tested."

After months of intense examinations and research, Smuck discovered the problem. "Everything seemed to relate back to head injuries. All those we examined would wear large objects, usually bows, in their hair."

"We wondered why the majority of the people with this disorder had long hair," added Puckett. "Finally we discovered these people all were pulling their hair back so tightly in bows they would shake their cerebellum loose."

Puckett explained when this happens it causes severe disorientation of the mind and usually causes people to act out childhood fantasies.

People begin to imagine themselves leading other lives -- many see themselves as circus entertainers.

Smuck believes this may have been a childhood fantasy for many. "All kids go to the circus at least once in their lives," he explained. "The clowns and entertainers are the main scope of interest for children. As the children grow up, they still fantasize about life in the circus."

No one actually actually believes they are clowns, they just start to dress like one and at times even act like one said Smuck.

"Most don't develop a full blown change. In our research we've only met a few who really believed they were clowns, and 95 percent of these people become Early Childhood Education majors or had other severe psychological disorders."

As of now, there is no known cure for this disease. Smuck and Puckett are researching and trying to discover a cure.

To alleviate some of the symptoms remove all objects from your hair Smuck said. "Under no circumstances wear your hair up."

James Brown to play Hanner Fieldhouse

Anita Life
Staff lowlife

In a shocking, but pleasant surprise James Brown has decided to add Hanner Fieldhouse to his Post-Incarceration Tour this fall. The concert will be April 31 at 7:30 and will be jointly sponsored by CAB and the Criminal Justice Club.

Brown, who finished serving two years of a seven year sentence, will also be shooting his planned television special during the concert here. He seems like an unlikely choice for CAB to bring to Statesboro, but sources close to the organization explain why Brown was chosen.

"Well, it was either him or Bob Hope and he was cheaper," said a source. "And right now we need the cheapest entertainment possible."

Brown's past run-ins with the law are now well documented, but local police do not anticipate any problems.

"James who?" said Sheriff Ray Akins.

Brown and his entourage put on an electrifying two and half hour production that normally includes an elaborate stage production, but because of the size of Hanner Fieldhouse the show has had to be altered slightly.

"James is slightly disappointed by the size of the arena," said a spokesman. "But, the stage he used in jail was about the same size, so we don't anticipate any problems."

CAB officials seem excited about the prospect of Brown's show coming to campus. A rather extensive advertising campaign for the show will swing into action during the month of April. WVGS will run contests to give away tickets and there will be an extra flyer attached to every bulletin board on campus.

"God I hate Taylor Dayne," said one high ranking CAB official. "She sucked a royal egg. We've got a real star now, don't we?"

In addition to the giveaways, GSU President Nicholas Henry will declare April to be James Brown month and will give him the key to campus.

"James who?" said Henry. Tickets will go on sale April 30 at the Hanner Fieldhouse ticket window. Admission will $1 for students with a valid student I.D. and $30 for the rest of the world.

Announcements from hell

G-A staff gossip

- The University Union will be converted into a Buddhist Temple. GSU President Nicholas Henry said that only the game room shall remain for student use. "While they are a small percentage of the student population, we felt that they should have proper facilities to be themselves," said Henry. Brother Jim will speak at the opening ceremonies.

- The GSU Museum will be showing a new exhibit for the month of April entitled "The World of J. Danforth Quayle." Items on display will include his Little League baseball uniform, an erector set creation built shortly after his nomination for the vice-presidency, and his legos. Quayle was supposed to speak at opening, but found out that the university has his legos and cancelled his appearance.

- Former G-A News Editor Laura McAbee left the newspaper to take a position with the GSU Rugby team as the team secretary. "I feel that it is time for me to move on to bigger and better challenges," said McAbee. "I just love rugby."

- George-Anne Features Editor Michael Strong was hospitalized Monday due a severe blow to the head. Doctors say that Strong is in serious, but stable condition. Strong was struck by an oblong shaped object according to campus police. A rugby ball and a note were found at the scene. The note said, "I have not, nor will I ever be anyone's damned secretary!" Police have no suspects.

- Andrew Dice Clay will be giving a speech in the Union Ballroom April 3 at 7:30 p.m.. The speech entitled, "Proper etiquette when in the presence of women" will be accompanied by short question and answer session. The speech is being sponsored by Males Of Real Official Neanderthal-like Skulls (MORONS). Clay was overheard saying, "Badda-boom, badda-bing." We at the George-Anne assume that means that he is excited about coming, but we aren't sure.

- CLIC will sponsor a film series entitled "Obscure mating rituals of cultures that no longer exist and had no meaningful reason for being on the face of the planet." It is a four part series that will be shown every Tuesday during the month of April. The film starts at 7:30 a.m. in the Biology Lecture hall.

- The Broadway production of The Phantom of the Opera will be perform in Foy Auditorium. Tickets go on sale April 1. Prices are $1 for students with a valid student I.D. and $2 for non-students. It will be a seven show run starting April 2. Yeah, right.

- Brother Jim will be on campus April 3 to promote his new book, "How to Make Friends in Three Easy Steps." The book signing will be held in the Union Ballroom provided that the Buddhists don't mind. "I think that many of the students can benefit from the advice in my book," said Jim. "I just hope that some of those lustful Greeks can gain some knowledge from the book."

Jive Socket blows chance and other stuff like that

By Ben Dover
Staff contortionist

Statesboro rock act Jive Socket gained national notoriety this week when rap superstar/egomaniac M.C. Hammer announced he would be sampling the bass line from the Socket's hit single "Buddy" on a song to be recorded on his upcoming album, Please Hammer, Don't Annoy 'Em. The song, tentatively titled "Here Come the Socket", will be the first single from the album, scheduled to be released some time early this fall. According to sources close to the band, a settlement was reached in which Jive Socket will receive "at least seventy or eighty bucks" and an undisclosed number of cartons of Camel filters in payment for the song.

In an exclusive interview with the George-Anne, Hammer referred to the Jive Socket's work as "proper" and expressed interest in working with the group again in the future.

"Some of their stuff is really fresh, know what I'm sayin'? I was able to check out their last show at Bubba's, and some of the tunes really made me wanna bust a move," said Hammer, "That Elmer Perdue [Socket vocalist] is a lyrical genius. I'd love to jam with that brother sometime, maybe a duet or something."

Future projects are unconfirmed, but rumor has it that Perdue and Hammer may be teaming up to record a cover version of the Prince hit "Let's Pretend We're Married" for an album benefitting the Beer Drinkers of America Foundation.

In other local music news, Crashin' Abbey, formerly Old Man's Beard, recently lost an opportunity to tour nationally opening for Texas rockers ZZ Top. The position, recently vacated by Atlanta's Black Crowes, was offered to the band but subsequently retracted when Crashin' Abbey bassist Dennis Smith attempted to pull the beard off of ZZ Top guitarist Dusty Hill at an Atlanta press conference for the two bands.

Representatives for ZZ Top called the event "an obvious act of disrespect" on the part of Smith and said that chances of the two groups playing together in the future are "very slim."

"I thought the damn thing was fake," said an obviously distraught Smith just hours after the fateful conference. "The guy obviously can't take a joke and I think that's pretty sad if you ask me."

Hill was unavailable for comment.

Steve Martin opens new Museum tour

Star of L.A. Story and many other films Steve Martin helped the GSU Museum kickoff the grand opening of the new Skating Tour of the museum. Everyone will be required to roller skate through the halls of the museum. Rental skate will be $1 for students and $2 for non-students. (Photo by some strange guy we don't know.)

Record crowd possible to pack Paulson for spring game

By TERRY HARVIN
Aging Jack

Attendance for the May 4th Blue-White spring football game is expected to exceed Paulson Stadium's 18,000-seat capacity.

The overwhelming interest in a scrimmage is further proof that GSU students are incapable of attending any sporting events other than football games.

In fact, if the demand for tickets continues at its current rate, the attendance could break the Paulson Stadium record of 25,725 fans for the 1989 I-AA National Championship Game.

The fact that GSU is playing itself rather than another team has actually escalated student support. One student explained his "logic."

"This way we ain't playin' Nevada or Montana or any of them other teams I ain't never heard of," Bobby Joe Backwoods said. "This way's a lot less con-

GSU is charging for spring game tickets for the first time this year. However, the cost has encouraged students rather than scare them off.

"Everybody knows students like to spend their parents' money like it's going out of style," GSU Athletic Director Bucky Wagner said. "This is right up their alley, so we might as well take advantage of it."

Flocking to the spring game has other advantages as well.

"I get to sweat to death in a dress one more time," said a senior bow-head whose name could not be given after she forgot it.

"I'll have another chance to sneak a flask past those 60-year-old guys at the gate," said her male companion.

Wagner was nonchalant in answering the obvious question: Why do people support the football program, but not a basketball program that has been to the NCAA Tournament or a baseball program that has been to the College World Series?

"The people in this part of the country don't know any sport other than football," Wagner chuckled. "Their friends would laugh if they put baseball ahead of spring football."

Lack of fan support is nothing new to GSU Head Basketball Coach Frank "I Swear Like a Sailor" Kerns. Upon hearing the anticipated attendance for the spring game, Kerns responded in typical fashion.

"Aw, those (bleeps) don't (bleeping) care. You'd (bleeping) think we had just one (bleeping) sport for these (bleep-bleep) people to watch," he barked. "Maybe it's (bleeping) best that they (bleeping) don't care. (Bleep)."

Samford, Mercer, and Ga. State form own conference

By FIG NEWTON
Special to the G-A

Georgia Southern's former conference foes Mercer, Georgia State and Samford have formed their own three-team conference.

The three schools used to belong to the Trans America Athletic Conference (TAAC), which had as many as 10 members before hitting hard times.

The troubles began for the TAAC when Houston Baptist and Hardin-Simmons dropped Division I athletics. Then Arkansas-Little Rock bolted for the Sun Belt Conference. When perennial cross country powerhouse Georgia Southern accepted an invitation to join the Southern Conference, Samford, Mercer and State could see the writing on the wall.

"We knew the conference was in trouble when we were one of the best teams left in it," said Samford Head Basketball Coach Ed McLean.

"It's true the conference failed, but it is hard to imagine anything we were a part of being a success story," said Mercer Athletic Director Bobby Pope.

"...We won the conference championship..." said Bob Reinhardt, Georgia State's dazed head basketball coach.

(Georgia State won the conference tournament in its last year in the TAAC, which still has Reinhardt virtually speechless. Hell, State went 5-23 a year ago, so all of us are a little speechless.)

The three schools were fond of the name "TAAC," so they tried to think of a new name using those letters. Mercer and Samford agreed on a suggestion -- Teams Too Awful to be Accepted Into a Real Conference.

However, Georgia State shot down the suggestion. It seems the name would have been too long for anyone associated with Georgia State to remember.

"You must admit the shoe fit," McLean said. "I liked the name, even though it would've taken longer to say the name than to mention my coaching achievements."

"The name means nothing," said Pope. "Call it the Little Three Conference for all I care, just SOMEBODY TAKE US!"

"...We won the conference championship..." Reinhardt said.

The three schools finally agreed on the "TAC" -- Terribly Awful Conference.

"I don't think we'll command a whole lot of respect with this name," McLean said. "But then, if I were worried about respect, I wouldn't be coaching Samford."

"At least it's easy to remember," Pope said. "The third word is real easy to remember, and, if I start to forget the first two, I just think about us."

Speaking for the functionally mute Reinhardt, Georgia State Athletic Director Orby Moss said, "Of course, now we won't be able to go to Georgia Southern and plaster 'The Real GSU' stickers all over their gym anymore. Our move, coupled with Georgia Southern's, will definitely put a dent in our childish fun."

The NCAA will not award an automatic bid to the national championship basketball tournament to the TAC champion. The NCAA just assumed Mercer and Samford would have 20-loss seasons every year, and that, after Georgia State's 117-76 loss in the first round of the 1991 tournament, State would rather just stay home than risk facing another humiliating defeat on national television.

Eagle hoopsters upset Duke, UNLV to take 1st national title

Barlow

By STUDLY HUNGWELL
Sports Stud

In one of the most stunning upsets in Final Four history, the GSU basketball Eagles pounded Duke and Nevada-Las Vegas to take the national title.

The Eagles reached the championship game by routing Duke 103-73 Saturday.

"Duke loses in the Final Four every year, so I don't know why this is such a (bleeping) upset," said GSU Head Coach Frank "Mr. Excitement" Kerns.

In Monday's title game, Monty Noblitt drained a three-pointer at the buzzer to give the Eagles a shocking 75-74 win over UNLV's top-ranked Runnin' Rebels.

Noblitt was not Southern's only hero. Guard Herbert Barlow led GSU with 25 points.

"I'm really happy for Herbert," Kerns said between cigarettes. "He's had a tough road, what with quitting the team eight different times and all."

Center Jeff "Slim" Hagans also hit double figures against UNLV. Hagans scored 12 points, all on perfect 12-for-12 free throw shooting.

"Slim's worked real hard this year to eliminate his air balls," Kerns mumbled.

Hagans' career free throw percentage was 30 percent (9-30) going into this year, but he came on strong as a senior by leading the nation at 91 percent.

Senior center Emmett Smith, considered to be a possible NBA draft pick, missed 13 of 15 shots, but was happy his team got the win.

"Yeah, I liked it," Smith said. On the heels of GSU's sudden success in an indoor sport, Smith was named National Player-of-the-Year. Despite a television appearance to accept the award, Smith still didn't shave.

Smith was not alone in receiving post-season recognition.

Kerns was named National Coach-of-the-Year, but was denied an opportunity for an on-camera acceptance speech when the presenters became afraid of what might come out of his mouth.

Mike Backus, Kerns' Associate Coach, was named National Best-Dressed-Coach-of-the-Year.

GSU Head Football Coach Tim Stowers announced to the 1991 football squad that they will open next year's campaign against Auburn. The team responded by stating, "OH, SHIT!"

GSU nickname changed to "Ticks"

By DONNIE WAHLBERG
Sports Punk

In possibly the biggest surprise move in college athletics, Georgia Southern Athletic Director Bucky Wagner announced that the university's mascot would officially be changed from an Eagle to something the administration feels has special meaning to the school... a tick.

"Dr. Henry has been telling everyone he wanted to start new traditions in the athletic program as part of us becoming a university," said Wagner. "I did not feel that could happen until we left the Eagle behind."

The new mascot was selected in connection with the National Tick Collection being located at GSU.

In response to the announcement, Dr. Phil O. Chit, the GSU professor who proposed the new mascot, stated simply, "Hell, I thought it was a joke!"

While Dr. Henry was unavailable for comment, Matt Rogers, Southern Sports Information Director, summed up the situation by stating with a grin, "You have to admit, it is colorful. Personally, I can't wait to write the releases when we play teams like Samford."

Head Football Coach Tim Stowers also felt the change was for the better.

"This will give me a chance to work on some new cliches," Stowers said with a smile.

Possibly the most interesting comment came from Head Basketball Coach Frank Kerns, who responded in his typical fashion. "Hell, it's not like it really matters," Kerns said. "Our fans probably don't know what the (bleep) the (bleeping) mascot is anyway. Everybody knows they don't know (bleep) and don't give a (bleep)."

Whether anyone cares or not, the new mascot will be ready as the Georgia Southern Ticks infest Auburn's Jordan-Hare Stadium.

This Eagle shows why warm-ups can be more fun than the game.

Now you can afford to dream in color.

If you thought that finding a color Macintosh® system you could afford was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple® SuperDrive™, which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself.

It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.

Apple introduces the Macintosh LC.
