NIXON WOULD HAVE SADDAM KILLED:

Former President Richard Nixon says Saddam Hussein is an "international menace" whom Nixon would have killed if he were still president. Nixon, 78, said he would be "greatly tempted" to agree not to prosecute Saddam for war crimes if he left Iraq. He also said Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has made a "fundamental error" in turning to hard-line conservatives.

TROOPS ARRIVE AT BORDER:

The first U.S. troops arrived Sunday at a remote refugee camp on the northern Iraq border as the pace of the U.S. pullout quickened in the south. Army helicopters flew 30 U.S. troops into the squalid tent encampment of Isikveren, Turkey, home to about 200,000 Kurds fleeing Saddam Hussein's Iraqi regime. To the east, an influx of almost 1 million refugees was taxing Iran.

HEART DISEASE COSTS YEARS:

If medical science could conquer heart disease, the average 35-year-old's life expectancy would increase three years, according to a computer analysis of health data. But those at high risk for the nation's No. 1 killer stand to gain more if they change their habits, the researchers say. Using a computer program, researchers plugged in different risk factors and analyzed the outcomes.

NRA FACES 'INTERNAL CONFLICT':

The NRA, the USA's most powerful lobby, is beset by internal conflict, the erosion of 10% of its membership in two years, state legislative defeats and the momentum of the Brady Bill. The NRA endorses the "instant check" bill. It would create a nationwide hotline through which gun sellers could run instant background checks on would-be buyers - with no waiting period.

BOARDS FOCUS ON BRUTALITY:

Now that Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and Police Chief Daryl Gates have made amends, two civilian investigating boards are focusing on the primary issue: police brutality. The civilian Police Commission is searching records of residents' complaints against the department for evidence of brutality or excessive force. A final report is due in late May.

BASE CLOSINGS FIGHT 'HEATS UP':

The fight over the fate of tens of thousands of military and related civilian jobs across the USA heats up Monday. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney goes before a bipartisan, independent commission studying his plan to close 31 major U.S. bases - the biggest military downsizing since World War II. Thirteen bases are in Republican districts, 19 in Democratic ones.

BUSH'S NON-CAMPAIGN CAMPAIGN:

President Bush's gurus have taken the attitude that the best politics is no politics to win the White House. Consensus: hold off on Bush's 1992 campaign as long as possible. Plan: wait until early fall to start fund raising; wait until 1992 to spend the money. Bush will rely on the same team that helped him win the White House in 1988. It's a closely knit group of six to eight white males.

RUSSIAN REPUBLIC OPENS EMBASSY:

The Russian republic, the Soviet Union's largest, will open an unofficial embassy in Washington in September, U.S. News & World Report said. U.S. supporters of Russian President Boris Yeltsin made a down payment on a $700,000, four-story building that is less than two miles from the Soviet Embassy.

Discrimination suit filed against GSU

BY MISTY McPHERSON
News Editor

Dr. Clarke Dunlap has filed suit against GSU for discrimination in employment on the basis of age and physical handicap.

Dunlap is 62 years old, and resides in Baton Rouge. He was seeking a position as Assistant Professor in the Department of Geology and Geography at GSU.

He was denied that position. "I believe I was equally qualified or surpassed qualifications," said Dunlap.

The qualifications called for someone with a Ph.D in geography with academic training and research interests in fluvial process and/or coastal environmental systems.

The applicant needed academic training and teaching experience for teaching undergraduate courses in physical and world regional geography.

Dunlap possessed an M.A. in regional studies and a Ph.D in physical geography.

According to Dunlap, the Geographic Professional Membership Directory indicates the professor hired did not have teaching experiences and academic training in physical geography, or in fluvial processes and landforms and coastal environmental system.

His degree is for teaching and research in agricultural rural geography.

"The incumbent was not qualified and I was. I expected this to happen," said Dunlap. "Knowing the biases against older people and the handicapped, I knew I would have to get involved in civil suits."

Dunlap walks on up to the elbow crutches due to an injection of a defective influenza vaccine in 1979 at the University of Kentucky Health Center.

Dunlap said his handicap would not hinder his work performance nor would he need any special accommodations on campus.

Of the 25 applicants who applied for the job, 10 were selected for consideration and five of the 10 were called back for an interview.

Dunlap wasn't called back for an interview and he believes this was due to his age and his handicap.

Both Daniel B. Good, Chair of the Research Committee, and Ruth Ann Rogers, Executive Assistant to the President refused comment on the matter.

Since Dunlap received his Ph.D from Louisiana State University he has had 16 rejections from colleges and universities across the United States.

"I took from the 16 rejections, the two most blatant rejections on the basis of age and handicap and filed suit," said Dunlap.

Dunlap also filed suit against Radford University in Virginia for the same reasons as he filed against GSU. He won the administrative law compliance and is waiting for settlement.

Radford University had five days from yesterday to settle. If they don't, the U.S. Department of Labor said their federal contracts would be taken away. This equals about $240,000.

"I'm expecting about 20 rejections this year," said Dunlap referring to the applications he has mailed out for positions beginning next Fall. "Again I will pick the two most blatant rejections and I'll start the process over again."

In the suits, Dunlap acts as his own lawyer. He has had two years of law school and has about 20 units to go before he can earn his law degree.

Dr. Clark Dunlap claims that he was denied a job as Assistant Professor in the Dept. of Geology and Geography due to his age and physical handicap. Officials refused comment.

SGA elections to be held Thursday

By David G. Berny
Staff Writer

With April showers and May flowers, the Student Government Association elections are another sign of the arrival of the spring season.

Cathy Powell, SGA member, explains, "Candidates will be allowed to begin campaigning after the April 11 nomination deadline."

"However, there are many restrictions that the candidates must abide by."

The display of campaign materials is prohibited within classrooms, the Student Union, dining halls, all administration buildings, the infirmary, and in the library. In addition, campaign signs are not allowed to be posted on the aforementioned buildings.

"Candidates may not campaign, in person or in proxy, within 100 feet of the Union or within 100 feet of the other voting locations," adds Powell.

Fines for campaign violations will be levied for election procedure violations, with a limit set at $30.

The executive positions to be contested include president, executive vice president, and vice president of finance. Candidates include: Chris Clark, Bo Davidson, and Tommy Sears for president; Niles C. Dixon and David Miles for executive vice president; and Patrick Bass, Iris S. Lavant, and Matt Whiten for vice president of finance.

The two other executive positions are uncontested with Cathy Powell running for Vice president of auxiliary affairs, and Amber M. Cornelius slated for the position of vice president for academics.

Along with the executive positions, 14 senators will be selected from the following candidates: Jeff Barker, Rex Benton, David G. Berny, Jonathan Brown, Tanya Burdette, Charisse Chisholm, Tim Griffin, Ursula L. Hamilton, Julie Hawkins, Elizabeth Holley, Jeff Hylton, Jennifer Jacobs, John Key, Micheal Marchesseau, Connie Phillips, H. Keith Roughton, Andrea Renee Tigger, Lance

80% of girls dropped out during sorority Spring Rush

BY DODIE VANCE
Staff writer

GSU's Panhellenic Council sponsored the second annual sorority Spring Rush last week. A total of 278 girls went through the five-day rush held by eight sororities -- although approximately 80 percent dropped out during the week.

The high number of drop-outs make the quota of 34 seem high but according to Paige Worley, the Panhellenic President, "[The] quota could not be changed because all the sororities had already invited a certain number of girls to their preferential parties."

The Spring Rush was held for the second year in a row in efforts to help keep the numbers down for the Fall Rush pledge classes.

This new rush structure is designed to keep both Fall and Spring classes smaller.

"Spring Rush is designed because it is hard to integrate that many girls at one time," said Worley referring to the problems experienced when there was only a Fall Rush.

Spring Rush was designed differently this year so that in the future Fall Rush will only be open to incoming freshmen, transfer students, students who just passed out of developmental studies, and those who got cut out of Spring Rush.

All of the girls who were eligible to go through Spring Rush were notified of the new restrictions and informed that if they did not go through Spring Rush they would have to wait until next Spring due to the new fall requirements.

Many of rushees had conflicts because Spring Rush coincided with classes, but class excuses were sent to the sororities if a rushee could not attend.

According to Worley, holding the majority of rush in the Union facility, "helped rush to run better and the rushees were not as tired because they were in one confined area."

Spring Rush is also more casual and the sororities are limited to little decoration and entertainment, which allows for more conversation time.

Kristie Powell, Membership Chairman for Zeta Tau Alpha, agreed and said, "Rush is always a very hectic time, but because it was more casual, we were a little less stressed and it went very smoothly."

Bush popularity drops due to Kurd situation, says poll

By RICHARD BENEDETTO

WASHINGTON — President Bush, immersed in political damage control, is trying to shift public attention away from the Kurdish refugee disaster by spotlighting issues such as education and trade.

But dramatic television images of the massive human suffering in Iraq keep getting in the way.

"It's so compelling to see the plight of these people that it's hard for the president to compete in any way," said Frank Greer, a Democratic media consultant based in Washington.

A Gallup Poll, released Wednesday, shows a 14 percent drop in public approval of the way Bush has been handling the post-war Gulf situation — down to 78 percent from a record-high 92 percent when the war ended five weeks ago.

He has come under fire for allowing forces loyal to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to crush uprisings by Iraqi Kurds in northern Iraq and Shiite Moslems in the south.

On Wednesday, Bush went to the extraordinary length of helicoptering some 100 miles to a rural West Virginia elementary school to honor Rae McKee as national Teacher of the Year.

Inn establishes scholarship

G-A Staff Reports

Jameson Inns of Georgia recently established a scholarship to support students enrolled in GSU's Hotel and Tourism Management program.

The scholarship will be administered by GSU Foundation and will be sponsored by Georgia's 11 Jameson Inns.

"The gift is one way of assisting Georgia Southern's hotel-tourism management students," said Bob Olliff, regional manager for the Jameson Inns of Georgia. "We were anxious to contribute to the community that does so much to support our business. The start of the University campaign for Excellence seemed like a good time."

The Jameson Company will sponsor one scholarship each academic year.

Michael Castleberry, a sophomore majoring in recreation with an emphasis in hotel management, was selected as the 1990-91 recipient of the scholarship. He is a 1989 graduate of Monroe Area High School and is the son of Charles and Cynthia Castleberry of Monroe.

GSU now issues international ID cards

G-A Staff Reports

GSU has become the third college or university in the state to be named a Council on International Educational Exchange agent for issuing identification cards.

"As an agent, the university will be authorized to issue International Student Identity Cards, International Teacher Identity Cards and the International Youth Cards to all full-time GSU students, faculty, and children of faculty and staff," said Sue Williams, coordinator of the International Student Programs at the University.

The International Student Identity Card is the only internationally accepted proof of student status. It offers benefits including major reductions in the costs of travel arrangements and admission to cultural attractions in over 60 countries.

The International Identity Card automatically provides the holder with basic medical and accident insurance coverage while traveling outside the U.S.

"Revenue from the sale of the cards in the U.S. helps support the International Student Identity Card Scholarship which enables students to explore the variety of educational opportunities available in the Third World," said Williams.

Cost is $14 for students and youth and $15 for faculty. Those interested in obtaining a card should bring a passport sized photograph (two inches by two inches), and a check made out to GSU to Room 4 of the Rosenwald Building.

Union Camp sponsors Teachers' Institute

G-A Staff Reports

This summer, teachers will be able to study how the state's natural resources become part of its economy through products and jobs when Union Camp funds, for the 20th consecutive year, the Teachers Environment and Technology Institute (TETI) at GSU.

More than 447 teachers have participated in the summer workshop since TETI's inception, and 25 scholarships are being offered for this year's June 17-

July 12 session.

This year's session includes a reunion for past TETI participants and a commemoration of Georgia Power's 20 years of support for the program.

The intensive indoor-outdoor course is open to all teachers in all grade levels and disciplines. The institute calls on consultants from government, industry, science and education as visiting lecturers for classroom studies and on field trips.

The teachers will visit sites ranging from natural areas and tree nurseries to water treatment plants and paper mills. Among the topics covered during the four weeks are forest economics, hazardous waste disposal, geology, wildlife conservation and energy.

Teachers keep diaries of their daily activities, and the institute ends with a display of exhibits developed by the participants on some aspect of their summer experience.

The purpose of the course is to allow teachers to integrate into their classroom teaching new perspectives on Georgia's resources and man's use of them.

Free speech resolution drafted after incident

By GEORGE BASLER
and MARK WINHELD
©Copyright 1991, USA TODAY/Apple
College Information Network

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. — The faculty governing body at State University of New York-Binghamton is drafting a resolution condemning threats to free speech after a lecture was interrupted by students.

"Faculty members are very upset by the threat to free speech," said Paul A. Smith, chairman of the Faculty Senate's executive committee. "Intimidation is out of place at a university."

The incident made national news Wednesday when The Wall Street Journal published an editorial, "Return of the Storm Troopers," comparing the event at the state University Center at Binghamton to a scene out of Nazi Germany.

An audience of about 20 students and professors at a March 14 lecture by Richard I. Hofferbert, a political science professor, mushroomed to more than 200. The crowd, composed mostly of black students, showed up because of an unfounded rumor that Ku Klux Klan members would be talking. Some in the crowd carried walking sticks and some shouted insults and obscenities, witnesses said.

Hofferbert's lecture, on the dismantling of the Berlin Wall, was sponsored by the local chapter of the National Association of Scholars, a group opposed to what members perceive as politicized courses and overemphasis on multicultural approaches to education.

The president of the National Association of Scholars called the confrontation an unprecedented effort to intimidate faculty and break up a meeting of the organization.

"It's very disturbing that our organization can't hold a meeting on the Binghamton campus without a large, menacing crowd appearing with what seems to have been an effort to physically intimidate our members," said Stephen Balch, an associate professor of criminal justice at the City University of New York.

Balch is national president of the National Association of Scholars, which has about a dozen campus chapters nationwide.

The faculty committee's resolution, to be presented to the full Faculty Senate this month, will "condemn and deplore actions of intimidation and disruption," said Faculty Senate President Alvin P. Vos.

Balch called on SUNY-Binghamton President Lois B. DeFleur to condemn the incident and conduct a serious investigation.

Professor Saul Levin, president of the association's Binghamton chapter, started disciplinary action Tuesday against one student accused of hurling a framed photograph of Hofferbert's granddaughter across the hall and spitting gum at Levin.

Association members have said a principal spokesman for the crowd was Gonzalo Santos, an adjunct sociology lecturer. Levin said Carol Boyce Davies, an associate professor of English, asked malicious, rhetorical questions that compared the association to the Klan.

Davies and Santos have refused comment, but Santos said he will comment at a news conference Monday. He said association members are deliberately misrepresenting the incident.

Tenth anniversary of space shuttle launch celebrated

By I.K. BROWN
©Copyright 1991, USA TODAY/Apple
College Information Network

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Ten years ago Friday, the space shuttle Columbia soared off the launch pad, returning U.S. astronauts to orbit after a six-year absence and signaling the start of a new era in spaceflight.

No longer would the United States throw away a rocket every time it sent a payload or crew into space. The shuttle was designed to fly again and again.

Such potential spawned big dreams. Scientists, businesses and military officials drafted dozens of shuttle projects. But NASA's cornerstone plan was to use the spaceship to build and service a permanently staffed, orbiting research laboratory.

During the shuttle's first decade, it delivered dozens of satellites, deployed robotic probes to distant planets and flew hundreds of experiments. The shuttle also gave NASA its deadliest tragedy to date. The explosion of Challenger on Jan. 28, 1986 killed six astronauts and Christa McAuliffe, a teacher.

The investigation into the Challenger explosion found flaws in NASA's safety procedures and prompted the space agency to undertake a massive top-to-bottom overhaul before another launch was attempted.

In its second decade, the shuttle will be tapped to fulfill its original mission: building an international space station.

The task of servicing the station in the 21st century, however, will fall to the shuttle's successor, a launch vehicle that is expected to be designed, but not built, this decade.

NASA envisions six to 10 shuttle flights a year through the 1990s, including several extended missions lasting up to 28 days. Its record launch year to date: nine missions in 1985, far below the 50 annual launches NASA once predicted.

"The shuttle is a marvelous working machine. It perhaps has not been able to fly as many times as some people would like it to. But still it's proved to be the most fantastic flying machine in the world. It has a lot to give to the country in the future," said shuttle program director Robert Crippen, who piloted Columbia on the first shuttle flight.

At least 24 flights in the 1990s are to be dedicated to building NASA's proposed $30 billion space station. Other missions include:

— Repairing and enhancing the $2 billion Hubble Space Telescope.

— Deploying satellites to monitor Earth's climate and geology.

— Studying celestial phenomena with ultraviolet- and X-ray sensors.

— Flying commercial and government-owned pressurized modules for microgravity research experiments.

— Retrieving orbiting platforms launched by the United States and other countries.

Throughout the decade, the shuttle is expected to remain the country's only vehicle to fly humans into space, although the space station will have a small spacecraft capable of returning crews to Earth in case of an emergency.

"There probably will not be a replacement vehicle flying, or ready to fly by the year 2001," said former astronaut Charlie Walker.

How closely the next-generation vehicle will resemble today's shuttle is unknown, but the shuttle already has provided important lessons for spacecraft designers.

"For research and development, the shuttle has been absolutely essential. We had to learn how to operate a reusable spacecraft," said space policy expert David Webb, a visiting professor at the University of Central Florida.

Webb favors the proposed National Aerospace Plane to take over the job of launching people and cargo into space. The vehicle is designed to take off and land like a conventional airplane and achieve orbit like the current shuttle. Rather than using a series of rocket boosters to reach orbit, the spaceplane's engines would do the job alone.

Materials, propulsion and other technology needed for the space-plane are in the early stages of research. Congress is expected to decide in 1993 whether to proceed with building the experimental plane.

A more-immediate shuttle successor is a joint Air Force-NASA project that combines elements of the shuttle with unmanned rocket technology to provide a flexible heavy-lift launch vehicle. Still unnamed, the new launch vehicle would initially be used for cargo only, but gradually would be upgraded for manned flight.

The shuttle's shortcoming has been its complexity and huge operating expense: at least $300 million per flight, or roughly three times the cost of an expendable rocket.

"We're seeing a growing realization that we can't afford to use the system the way we're using it now," said Gregg Maryniak with Princeton, N.J.-based Space Studies Institute.

As NASA looks to improve and streamline shuttle operations, more program management is expected to be based at Kennedy Space Center, a practice that likely will be incorporated in future launch vehicle programs. The agency also is considering ways to trim the shuttle's labor-intensive flight preparations.

"The shuttle's taught us about technologies and it will continue to teach us how to do better," Walker said. "It's been an important milestone in human flight in space."

Open Letter to GSU from Sears, Bass, and Dixon- SGA Executive officer candidates

TO THE STUDENTS OF GSU
On Thursday of this week, the Student Government Association will be holding its annual elections. In your consideration of the candidates, we would like to give you, the students, a few things to think about as you go to the polls.

Tommy Sears, Niles C. Dixon, and Patrick Bass have each served as SGA At-Large Senators throughout the current academic year. Sears and Bass have held Senate positions each of the past two academic years. In addition, we are each extensively involved in other campus organizations such as Pi Sigma Epsilon fraternity, College Republicans, and Model United Nations.

We have each developed strong administrative skills and have a firm grasp of the role and appropriate powers of SGA within the campus and the community. However, we feel there are changes that need to be implemented within SGA itself which, in our view, can only be done through careful constitutional revision.

For instance, can you think of an SGA senator whom you know by name? Could you contact a senator or officer in SGA should you have some concern or complaint that requires SGA attention without an extensive search through the telephone book or repeated dialing of local information? We rather doubt it.

One of our central goals is to make the SGA Senate truly representative of the student population and to make this representation much more effective, efficient, and consistent by assigning senate representation according to off-campus/on-campus specification- a process that would be done much like districting is done at the state and federal government levels; of course our "districting" would be of a much smaller scale and not nearly as complex.

To demonstrate our point, we ask you to consider the following: on-campus residents may hold At-large senate seats while also holding the seats designated to them within the constitution (one seat per residence hall).

We believe this fact to represent an inadequacy of the present SGA structure. We do not mean to imply that we begrudge seats to on-campus residents. This is hardly the case.

What we wish to point out is that the present design of the senate makes it possible for At-large positions to be held by on-campus residents, thus excluding off-campus residents from representation in the senate. As At-large senate positions are the only means through which off-campus residents may participate in SGA (aside from the five executive positions) we believe that changes

G-A supports Sears, Bass, Dixon ticket for SGA

Thursday April 18 is election day for Student Government at GSU. We at The George-Anne would like to encourage all students to get out and vote for the candidates of their choice.

SGA is an organization which is most often overlooked and underrated in terms of what it could do for the students at GSU. So often organizations complain about SGA and what it doesn't do- well everyone has a chance to elect the candidate they believe has the strongest platform so that the proper changes can be made within the organization.

Tommy Sears is back again this spring and campaigning for President of SGA. Niles Dixon is his running mate for Executive Vice-President, and Patrick Bass is vying for the position of Vice-President of Finance. We feel that this team is worthy of the offices they seek and encourage the student body to vote for them on Thursday. The George-Anne supported Sears last spring in his unsuccessful attempt at winning the presidency of SGA. This year Sears has an outstanding platform once again which is published in this edition.

If everyone wants to see the executive offices filled with competent students and see SGA maximize its potential, Sears, Bass, and Dixon are who to vote for.

Go out and vote because you have the right to. If you want to make GSU better then do it through the SGA.

GSU delegation to Model UN given a unique perspective on Soviet Union

By TERESA ROACH
Staff writer

A group of students from GSU spent their spring break in an unusual way this year: representing the Soviet Union in a Model United Nations convention.

Approximately 130 different colleges and universities participated in the Model UN, which was held March 25-30 in New York City at the UN building.

GSU sent 16 delegates and one advisor to the conference. Representing the Soviet Union was an honor for GSU's delegation, as the nation plays a large role in international affairs.

This year, representing the Soviet Union entailed extra research, as the state of the nation was extremely volatile during the time the conference was held. The delegates got up every morning to watch the news and read newspapers in order to stay abreast of Russia's political stance.

According to Paul Harris, GSU's head delegate, participating in the convention was a challenge because as a representative.

"You have to support certain ideas even if you don't agree with them," said Harris.

Among the multitude of issues discussed at the convention, the most important issues were the gulf crisis, women's rights, refugee problems, world hunger, arms production, and European security.

As noted by Harris, some of the solutions proposed for these problems were the call for an end to nuclear, biological, chemical arms for lesser-developed countries, and the adoption of fair and equal treatment of women.

In years past the UN has not been as instrumental as is possible in resolving international problems, but according to Harris, "The Gulf crisis has shed new light on the UN." The crisis effected positive change in that it encouraged more interaction and communication among nations.

In order to prepare for the model UN conference, GSU's delegated took a five credit class that met four hours per week during fall and winter quarter.

The group also invited guest speakers, such as GSU history professor Dr. John Steinberg, who specializes in Soviet studies. The delegation hosted a dinner for the Soviet dance troupe who performed at GSU winter quarter.

"Although [the Model UN] is a university competition, it should be noted that the inherent purpose of the Model UN experience is to impart upon the student a sense of global understanding and a sense of global diversity," said Harris. "It is definitely a character building experience."

Every fall and winter GSU hosts a regional Model UN for middle and high school students. The most outstanding delegate from the high school division is invited to represent GSU in the national convention, along with 15 GSU students.

Funding for the trip is provided by the Student Activities

Committee and by the delegation's fund-raising activities.

The advisors for this year's group were political science professor Dr. G. Lane Van Tassell, international studies professor Dr. Ziaul Hashmi, and political science professor Dr. Gale Harrison, who was the principal advisor and attended the convention with the delegates.

GSU has been participating in the Model UN since 1971. The advisors were "extremely pleased with the intelligence and motivation that this delegation put forth," said Harris.

Follow For Now takes control of fans who follow them to the Eagle

By DOUG GROSS

In the music media recently, there seems to have been a lot of talk about funk. Since the explosion of Living Color, and more recently Faith No More, onto the national rock scene, such terms as "funk-metal" and "punk-funk" have been invented to describe the fusion of hard rock with mega-doses of slap bass and slick, often rap style vocals.

This style has also made a huge impact on the alternative music charts, with a plethora of funk rockers, mostly originating from the west coast, such as the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Fishbone and Primus gaining considerable popularity on college radio.

Nowhere, however, is this style presented more genuinely than by Atlanta funksters Follow For Now, who performed at the Rockin' Eagle Cafe Wednesday night.

Follow For Now have been Rockin' Eagle favorites since their first appearance here last winter, and Wednesday night's was yet another full force assault on the ears of Statesboro, leaving long time fans and new converts alike craving for more. The tone for the evening was set early, when the group opened their set with a hard driving cover of Public Enemy's "Channel Zero", the band's only cover and a favorite of Follow For Now regulars.

What was to follow would be a set of extremes, ranging from such funk rockers as "Loverboy" and "360" to slower, psychedelic jams such as "Misfortune" and "Fire and Snakes", in which vocalist Dave Harris lays down a uniquely seductive rap involving Pop Tarts, whipped cream and Soul Train.

The rhythm section, the backbone of any good funk unit, was well represented by the grooves of Enrique Coley and bassist Jamie Turner. Chris Tinley gave a fine performance on rhythm guitar, as well as lead vocals on several songs, and Billy Fields' keyboards added a textured feel to the music which many bands of this nature lack.

Dave Harris completed the Follow For Now sound with smooth vocals and often Hendrix-style guitar leads that were hotter than a rug in Donnie Wahlberg's hotel room.

If there were any question as to how the Rockin' Eagle crowd would react to the group, one look at the mass of bodies assembled

Karate Club kick through red tape to exist

By REBECCA DAVIDSON
Staff writer

Eric Lunsford, a 22 year old Psychology major, had a problem. He needed somewhere quiet and private to practice his black belt in Karate. Sweetheart circle was nice, but there was always the chance of passing idiots wanting to prove their manhood by taking out a real black belt, said Lunsford.

Since "idiots" have a right to life too, and courts put people in jail for breaking their bones, Lunsford asked the school if he could use the GSU Gymnastics Center, where the karate classes are taught. The school answered with a resounding no. The only way the school would let Lunsford use the facilities was if he were a part of an official club.

So he braved the red-tape, and the GSU Karate Club was born. Now with over 25 members from more than seven different styles, the club is definitely on the move. Tae-Kwon-Do, Shaolin Kempo,

Japanese Karate Assoc., Shotokan, American Gojuryu, Tang Soo Do and Wing Chun, the style made famous by the late Bruce Lee, are all represented by the club members.

Members also come from all over the world. Fernando Martin, the 1985 bronze medalist in the Spanish Nationals, as well as the Madrid Champion in Tae Kwon Do is an active member.

But you don't have to be a Seagal or a Van Damme to join. Members come from all belt levels. And it's co-ed. Among the female members Margaret Lunsford stands out. She met club president Eric in a karate class, and they were married ten months ago. She holds a red belt in her chosen style.

Lunsford stresses that the club is not there to teach.

"Some basic knowledge is required...and you must sign a waiver to join," said Lunsford.

The club meets Tuesday and Thursday nights from 9-11, and will be meeting on Wednesdays, but the time has yet to be set. If interested, just head on down to the GSU Gymnastics Center when the club is practicing.

Lunsford hopes to compete against other clubs, and the GSU Karate Club will hopefully be fighting in the Battle Of Atlanta.

Don't miss this chance to hear internationally acclaimed pianist, composer, and arranger Toshiko Akiyoshi. The New York Times says Akiyoshi is "the most physically articulate conductor in jazz since Duke Ellington." Akiyoshi is the first woman in the history of jazz to receive the coveted Arranger of the Year award, as well as Record of the Year, and Big Band of the Year, in Down Beat polls. To those honors, add ten Grammy nominations for Best Big Band Performance and three nominations for Best Arranger and you get the idea that this is a very special event.

As a bonus for the GSU concertgoers, the Akiyoshi quartet's performance is going to feature her husband, the outstanding saxophonist and flutist Lew Tabackin. His achievements include First Place Flute in the Down Beat Critics and Readers' polls from 1980-83. The Los Angeles Times says Tabackin is "surely the premier tenor saxophonist and arguably the finest flutist on today's jazz scene."

Eagles pull one out of 'Hat'; split two

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Editor

The GSU baseball Eagles split a doubleheader with the Stetson Hatters Saturday, winning the first game 10-8 before falling 6-3 in the second.

GSU 10, Stetson 8

The Eagles pulled one out of the "hat" by scoring five runs in the last inning to down the conference-leading Stetson Hatters 10-8 in DeLand, Fla.

After Todd Greene belted a three-run homer to tie the score at 8-8 in the seventh inning, Mike Miller drilled a two-run shot to give Southern the improbable win.

The game was a battle of big innings. Stetson exploded for eight runs in the third inning, only to see Southern score five in the fourth inning and add five more in the seventh inning.

With Stetson leading 8-5,

Kevin Hallman opened the GSU half of the seventh with a walk. Chris Petersen followed with an infield single, chasing Hatter starting pitcher Jim Waring.

Stetson Head Coach Pete Dunn inserted relief ace Tom Hickox, setting up a power against power match-up -- Hickox, the all-time NCAA saves leader, vs. Greene, who entered the weekend with 16 home runs.

Would there be a repeat of their 1990 confrontation, when Greene blasted a grand slam off Hickox on his way to a 26-homer freshman year? Or would there be a repeat of the GSU-Stetson game earlier this season when Hickox fanned Greene to end the game?

Greene answered those questions with one swing.

The sophomore right fielder picked a perfect time to extend his hitting streak to 13 games, launching a three-run dinger over the left-field wall.

Unfortunately for Hickox, things only got worse.

Chad Sumner followed Greene's blast by reaching on third baseman Casey McComb's error. Mike Miller sent a Hickox pitch soaring over right-center field wall for the game-winning two-run homer, Miller's 11th round-tripper of the year.

Southern's incredible comeback began with a five-run fourth. After Miller was hit by a pitch and Mike Yuro and David Dupree singled to load the bases, Johnny Brown lifted a double into the right-field corner to plate Miller and Yuro.

One batter later, Southern trimmed the deficit to 8-4. McComb picked up Bobby Slater's grounder and threw wildly to first, allowing Dupree and Brown to score. An error scored Slater, and GSU was right back in the game at 8-5.

In the bottom of the third,

Stetson sent 13 men to the plate. Thanks to seven hits and two GSU errors, the Hatters built a quick 8-0 lead.

McComb put the Hatters on the board with a two-run single. Matt Wilson, who had walked, and Chris Thomas, who had reached on an error, crossed home for a 2-0 Hatter lead.

The rest of the inning was highlighted (lowlighted?) by Chris Hannum's two-run single and Aaron Iatarola's long double to center field that drove in Mike Sempeles.

Jake Greene (4-3), who relieved starter Jim Carragher with no outs in the fourth, picked up the win. Hickox (4-2) took the loss.

Stetson 6, GSU 3

The Eagles fell behind one too many times.

After trailing 3-1 in Friday's game and 8-0 in Saturday's first game, the Eagles came back to beat Stetson both times. However, their magic finally disappeared and the Stetson Hatters salvaged the final game of the series with a 6-3 win over GSU Saturday at Conrad Park.

Stetson scored five runs in the first inning off starter and loser Ronald Stanford (1-5), and extended the lead to 6-0 before a mild GSU comeback fell short.

Stanford faced only six Hatter batters, with five of them reaching safely. Meanwhile, Stetson starter Larry Hingle went the distance to improve his record to 6-3.

In the first, Mike Sempeles drove a two-run triple off the right-field wall to give the Hatters a lead they actually wouldn't relinquish. Joe Taylor and Casey McComb, who both had singled, scored on Sempeles' drive.

Stanford took an early shower after a Pedro Rodriguez double scored Sempeles and an Aaron Iatarola single brought home Rodriguez.

The Eagles scored two runs in the fifth to get their fans thinking about another thriller.

After Mike Yuro's one-out single to center, David Dupree drilled one that went off Iatarola's glove and all the way to the center-field wall. Yuro scored on Dupree's triple.

Doug Eder, making his first-ever start at designated hitter in his three years at GSU, blooped a single over second base to score Dupree and trim the Stetson lead to 6-2. Buddy Holder followed with a walk, but was erased on a double play.

Eder scored Southern's final run. In the seventh, Eder doubled off the left-field wall, moved to third on a ground out and scored on a wild pitch.

Basketball stars sign on with Kerns' Eagles

G-A Staff Reports

Two basketball players signed national letters-of-intent with Georgia Southern last week, according to GSU Head Coach Frank Kerns.

Pierre McKisic, a 6-6, 175-pound forward from East Point (Ga.) Tri-Cities High School, was Southern's first spring signee.

McKisic averaged 14 points, 10 rebounds and two blocks per game, leading Tri-Cities to a 17-7 record. Tri-Cities earned runner-up position in sub-regional play.

McKisic was an Atlanta Tip-Off Club pick for membership to ATOC's Team-of-the-Month. He also gathered Southside Leading Rebounder honors.

Shawn Brown, a 6-6, 245-pound forward from Decatur (Ga.) Harvester Cathedral Academy, was the second GSU spring signee.

Brown averaged 9.4 points and 14 rebounds per game while leading Harvester Cathedral Academy to a 24-3 record during the 1990-91 season. He also led his school to two consecutive state quarterfinal appearances.

Brown shot 69.8 percent from the floor and 71 percent from the free throw line. His top performance was a 26-point, 18-rebound, four-block effort against Temple High School for the sub-regional title.

McKisic and Brown join GSU's early signees Calvin Sinkfield, a 6-6, 210-pound center from Odessa (Tex.) College, and Dexter Holmes, a 6-4, 183-pound guard from Columbus (Ga.) High School.

The Eagles lost four lettermen from last year's 14-13 squad. Southern will return six lettermen, including three starters, for the 1991-92 season.

WOOSNAM WINS THE MASTERS ON 18:

Foreign domination continued at The Masters Sunday as Welshman Ian Woosnam outlasted Spain's Jose Maria Olazabal and the USA's Tom Watson in a dramatic final-hole showdown. After 17 holes, the three were tied at 11 under par. But only Woosnam was able to par the 405-yard 18th hole. After Olazabal and Watson bogeyed from the same bunker, Woosnam sank an 8-footer for his first major title.

NORTH STARS UPSET BLACKHAWKS:

The Minnesota North Stars completed their stunning National Hockey League playoff upset of Chicago, beating the Blackhawks 3-1 Sunday. The Blackhawks had the NHL's best record during the regular season but fell 4-2 in the Norris Division semifinal series. In other NHL games: St. Louis 3, Detroit 0, series tied 3-3; Calgary 2, Edmonton 1, OT, series tied 3-3; Los Angeles 4, Vancouver 1, L.A. wins series 4-2.

SABATINI WINS TITLE, MOVES UP:

Gabriela Sabatini outsmarted, outgambled and outlasted too cautious Steffi Graf for a 7-5, 7-6 (7-3) victory in the Bausch & Lomb Championships Sunday. Sabatini earned $70,000 by defeating her German rival for the fifth consecutive time. Sabatini, 20, of Argentina, displaces Martina Navratilova at No. 3 when new rankings come out Monday. Graf remains No. 2 behind Monica Seles.

ALL-STAR FIELD SET FOR MARATHON:

With an all-star field assembled for Monday's 95th Boston Marathon, speculation has centered on the men's early pace and the possibility of a close women's race. Kenya's Douglas Wakihuri has won his last three marathons. Others include three-time consecutive runner-up Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania, Ireland's John Treacy and Ethiopia's Abebe Mekonnen. By JAMES DRINKARD
Assistant Sports Editor

From the moment I started covering sports for this paper, an agreement was made by my editor and I that we would attempt to cover every sport that the Eagles are involved in. In addition, we have also placed an occasional Intramurals story on our pages in an attempt to keep all of you involved in the world of sports at Georgia Southern. From football to cross-country, there has been at least one story on every sport that we know of on this campus.

Twice, we decided to place columns in the sports section.

The first departure from straight sports reporting came as an attempt to bring humor to our pages. In that column Charles White, AKA "Chuck," wrote of his ignorance concerning the sport of rugby. To say that his words were met with dislike would be an unbelievable understatement. For a brief period of time, Paul and I considered wearing "I'm not Chuck" t-shirts to avoid the harassment we were receiving.

Following the response received concerning this article, we decided not to write anymore columns -- it was too dangerous.

Then we witnessed something that we simply could not take, the sorry state of fan support at Southern. We can remember the days when Paulson Stadium was filled with screaming fans whether the Eagles were winning or not -- and Hanner Fieldhouse was the home of a screaming mob. Even remember one night, just a few years ago, when Hanner Fieldhouse rocked with a standing-room-only crowd, so to watch people walk out of games in the third quarter -- if they even showed up -- was too much for me to bear.

So, Paul and I got together and wrote what we thought was a rather scathing article and prepared ourselves for the harassment we felt we would surely receive.

Nothing happened. If anyone even read the column, we could not tell.

Needless to say, we were discouraged. We had directly confronted -- even verbally assaulted -- the student body, and the student body as a whole was unmoved.

So, Paul and I once again decided not to write anymore columns.

Alas, we did not take into account the ideas of our advisor. He informed us that our section was missing an important element... a column. This man, the man we look to for guidance, informed us that readers enjoy sports columns.

Thus the decision was made that we would, once again, place columns on our pages.

Over the course of this quarter, I will be attempting to compose a series of such pieces on various subjects. My topics will range from a discussion of what constitutes a "true" sport to my argument for set starting salaries for major league players. Some of my columns will be serious addresses of important issues in the sports world while others will simply point out some of the humorous elements in the sports world.

Whatever the case may be, I want everyone to note one simple fact -- I am writing these columns as a source of entertainment.

With all of the controversies, the money, and the corruption, it is often easy for fans to become lost in the sports world. Sometimes, people -- even sports geeks like Paul and I -- can forget about the fun of it all.

Offense disappears for Lady Eagles; Southern drops 4 in South Carolina

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Editor

The GSU Lady Softball Eagles lost all four of their games in last weekend's Lady Gamecock Tournament in Columbia, S.C.

Southern fell to Coastal Carolina and Georgia State Friday, then to UNC-Charlotte and host South Carolina Saturday.

Coastal Carolina 5, GSU 3

Coastal Carolina took advantage of five GSU errors to down the Lady Eagles 5-3 Friday.

GSU starting pitcher Carrie Collins allowed five runs through six innings, but only one run was earned. Collins also didn't walk a batter, but nonetheless saw her record fall to 6-10.

Coastal Carolina scored four unearned runs in the fifth inning to erase a 2-1 GSU lead.

Thanks to a single and two errors, Carolina put runners on second and third with no outs. Dee Craft scored from third with the tying run when Collins fielded Michelle Minton's groundout but threw wildly to first. After an error brought home the tie-breaking run, Beth Parks and Jami Long each drilled run-scoring singles.

After falling behind 1-0, the Lady Eagles tied the game in the third. With the bases loaded and two outs, Beth Williams came through with a single that scored Gretchen Koehler. Koehler had singled and moved to third on a fielder's choice and a Melissa Williams single.

Southern took a 2-1 lead in the top of the fifth. With one out, Mickey Paul singled, then took second on left fielder Jan Bolebruch's error. Paul scored on a Christy Hill single, followed by an error by right fielder Long.

The Lady Eagles closed the scoring in the seventh. An error scored Paul, who had blasted a one-out triple.

Georgia State 2, GSU 1

Georgia State pitcher Jenny Pruett held Southern to one earned run and the Lady Panthers scored with two outs in the final inning to hand the Lady Eagles a heart-breaking 2-1 loss.

It could be said that the Lady Eagles actually beat themselves. GSU gave up one run on an error and another on a wild pitch.

Southern hurler Tammie Lanier surrendered only one unearned run and four hits, but she walked five and uncorked a bases-loaded wild pitch to score the winning run.

State's Debi Hale led off the seventh inning innocently enough with a fly out, but then the bottom fell out for the Lady Eagles. Jacquelyn Cheek walked and Ann Baxley followed with a walk.

State loaded the bases one batter later. Lanier wanted to throw to third for a force play on Gretchen Gruber's bunt, but no one covered the base. After an out, Baxley charged home on Lanier's misfire.

Southern scored its lone run in the fifth. Marginia Kemp led off with a triple to right, one of GSU's two hits. Kemp scored on Gretchen Koehler's safety squeeze bunt.

The "other GSU" took a 1-0 lead in the first. After Tina Miller walked and Charlene Chilton singled, Mickey Paul dropped Hale's fly ball to short center field, scoring Miller.

UNC-Charlotte 2, GSU 0

The Lady Eagles out-hit UNC-Charlotte 9-5 and committed no errors to UNC-C's two, but failed to take advantage of their opportunities in a 2-0 loss.

Southern collected four hits in the opening inning, but failed to push across a run. Mickey Paul led off the game with a single, but was thrown out trying to steal. Then Melissa Williams, Christy Hill and Beth Williams all singled, only to see the next two batters pop out and leave the bases loaded.

Hill's double and Marginia Kemp's single put runners at the corners with two outs in the third, but Carrie Collins flied out to end the inning.

The game remained scoreless until UNC-C scored twice in the sixth. Tricia Fox drilled a run-scoring double and Betsy Whicker added an RBI single.

UNC-C starter Courtney Hanks allowed all nine GSU hits, but struck out three and walked none to earn the victory. Collins, who allowed five hits, was the loser.

South Carolina 6, GSU 0

Southern's scoreless Saturday continued as the South Carolina Lady Gamecocks roughed up the visiting Lady Eagles 6-0.

As often is the case, the main reason for the USC win could be described in two words: Angie Lear.

Lear handcuffed the Lady Eagles, allowing six hits and no walks while striking out five and going the distance.

The Lady Gamecocks scored three runs in the third to break open a 1-0 game. Carolina added single runs in the fourth and sixth.

South Carolina's 11-hit attack was paced by Michelle Deloso, who finished 2-for-3 with a run scored and two RBI. Four other players rapped two hits apiece for USC.

One of Southern's few bright spots was Christy Hill, who had two hits in three at-bats.

Bush

Such awards are usually routinely presented at the White House. But Bush ostensibly made the trip to call attention to the importance of education, a subject he's planning to make a cornerstone of his 1992 re-election campaign. He said he would soon unveil a national education blueprint that would be "a long-term strategy to make America all that it can be."

But only an hour after he arrived back at the White House, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater had to go before the TV cameras to outline how the United States is aiding refugees, and warn Iraq it must cease all military action near areas where refugees have fled.

Thus, any hope of the education in the senate structure are vitally necessary in order to make the SGA the responsive and effective instrument of the students that it should be.

We would also like to address an issue that has arisen in this stage of our campaign—specifically the issue of deferred rush.

In our opinion, the decision to go through rush in order to pledge a fraternity or sorority is each individual's choice as the considerations of what is best for him or her can only be made by that person.

However, we also understand that there is some degree of support for a deferred rush among some Greek organizations. As we are not completely familiar with the circumstances forming the base for this support, we are completely satisfied to see this issue resolved among the Greek organizations themselves and we will not stand in the way of whatever decision that may be made regarding this issue, whether it be for or against a deferred rush.

As long as the resolution is fair towards all parties who could be affected by its consequences, we see no reason to object.

But to return to our original point, the reform of the senate is the necessary first step in developing a responsive, effective, and truly representative SGA. But in order to bring these changes about, we must have your vote.

We are eager to make your Student Government the instrument of the campus community that it should be. We hope that you share this same feeling. So go to the polls at Williams, Landrum, or the Union on Thursday and cast a vote for an SGA leadership dedicated to student involvement and student voice. Cast your vote for a new SGA.

story getting big media play went by the boards.

The same thing happened last week when Bush went on a five-day trip to California and Texas to spotlight critical trade issues and meet with Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

Despite the importance of trade to the U.S. economy, Bush was dogged throughout the trip by questions on the Kurds. An angry Bush defended his position on the Kurds with Kaifu and Salinas, looking chagrined, standing at his side.

Back at the White House on Tuesday, a dour Bush refused to take questions on the Kurds. Noting that he had held four press conferences in six days, he said he was in danger of becoming "overexposed."

"It's ironic that Bush, who has basked in the glow of the Iraq war, is now trying to shift the focus onto other issues when things are going badly," said Greer.

But only a few weeks ago the Democrats, looking bad for opposing a war that went well, were doing the same thing. Democratic National Committee Chairman Ron Brown charged that Bush "has absolutely no domestic policy," and vowed to make that a major element of his party's 1992 campaign against him.

However, no top-level Democrats have emerged thus far to take Bush on next year, an indication of how difficult the president will be to unseat.

"This is the most worried Democratic Party in my lifetime," said former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, who said he will formally announce his Democratic candidacy on April 30.

But sensing that Bush may be faltering, congressional Democrats returned to Washington Tuesday from Easter recess ready to talk tough on the Kurds, and slam Bush's handling of the situation.

"I share almost a feeling of embarrassment that we have not responded more fully," said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill.

The Records

By winning two out of three at Stetson, the Eagles improved to 21-23 overall and 7-8 in the Trans America Athletic Conference.

Stetson (30-17 and 12-3) clinched the championship of the TAAC's Eastern Division with its win over GSU Saturday.

Florida International swept Mercer over the weekend to improve its TAAC mark to 9-6. The top two finishers qualify for the TAAC Tournament.

Up Next

GSU hosts the Charleston Southern Buccaneers today at 3:00 p.m. at Clements Stadium.

Southern routed the Buc twice on their home field last week, 7-1 and 13-1.

At today's game, GSU Athletics and Hawaiian Tropic will co-sponsor a "Best Tan Contest." A "Miss Hawaiian Tropic" Georgia Southern will be chosen from GSU co-eds entering the contest.

An added attraction will be free bottles of Hawaiian Tropic Sunscreen for the first 500 fans entering the game.

and drove in four runs and Mike Boddicker gave up no runs in eight innings as the Kansas City Royals beat the New York Yankees 5-3. Gibson homered in the first and eighth innings. EDBERG BESTS LENDL FOR TITLE:

Sweden's Stefan Edberg was at his overwhelming best Sunday, routing Ivan Lendl 6-1, 7-6, 6-0 in the Japan Open final at Tokyo. It is the world's No. 1-ranked player's fourth Japan Open title. Also, Emilio Sanchez beat Sergi Bruguera 6-4, 7-6 (9-7), 6-2 Sunday in the final of the $650,000 Count de Godo tournament at Barcelona, Spain. Sanchez won $82,500 for his first title in a year.

BARCELONA REMAINS UNDEFEATED:

Scott Erney passed for three touchdowns, two to Gene Taylor, as the Barcelona Dragons defeated the Orlando Thunder 33-13 Sunday. Erney passed for 340 yards as the Dragons (4-0) pleased the 40,875 fans in the largest crowd to watch a sporting event at Montjuic Stadium in Barcelona, Spain. Kerwin Bell, the WLAF's leading passer, threw for 312 yards for the Thunder.

FISH STORY:

He hooked a fishing lure in a tree and said his catch in the Eagles of Angling Bass Tournament was "humiliating," but President Bush helped the Pintlala (Ala.) Baptist Church haul in $286,000, the pastor said Sunday. Bush fished in the Saturday tournament at Pintlala. Rev. Gary Burton said donations came from the 20 pro anglers and corporate sponsors who fished with Bush.

FOYT UNSURE:

A.J. Foyt's plan to begin his racing comeback next weekend in the Valvoline 200 at Phoenix might have run into a snag. Foyt, who continues therapy for badly mangled feet and legs suffered in a crash last September, said he doesn't know if Terry Trammell, CART's director of medical services, will release him to drive. Foyt still plans to drive in the Indy 500.

OLYMPIC SPORTS ADDED, CUT:

Women's fastpitch softball and women's modern pentathlon will be added to the list of sports at the 1996 Summer Olympics in Atlanta, the International Olympic Committee announced Sunday. Eliminated in 1996: duet and solo synchronized swimming.

SHAMIR, PAVLOV MEET IN LONDON:

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, in London to meet with Soviet Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov, offered Palestinians limited self-rule in the occupied territories, as outlined in the 1978 peace accords with Egypt - an offer Palestinians have already rejected. Shamir said he would urge the Soviet Union to restore full diplomatic relations with Israel.

EAST BEGINS RECONSTRUCTION:

The West takes a first step toward breathing life into moribund Eastern European economies Monday, officially opening the new European Bank for Reconstruction and Development. The move marks the start of a 42-nation venture, which includes the United States and Soviet Union. The bank intends to help finance Eastern Europe's transition to multiparty democracy and free market economies.

CYPRIOT TANKER SINKS:

A fifth explosion sent the Cypriot tanker Haven to the bottom of the Mediterranean Sunday - along with millions of gallons of crude oil. The ship, off the coast of Italy, appeared intact, however, and experts said the oil inside had likely turned solid - which would ease its removal. Italian officials called the damage "containable."

SHARON, SCOWCROFT DEBATE DEAL:

Israeli Housing Minister Ariel Sharon and U.S. national security adviser Brent Scowcroft wrangled Sunday on U.S. TV over settlements in Israel's occupied territories. Sharon, a hard-liner in Israel's ruling Likud Party, said the settlements provide "strategic depth" for Israel. Scowcroft disagreed, arguing that Israel had already traded land for peace.

NIXON WOULD HAVE KILLED SADDAM:

Former President Richard Nixon says Saddam Hussein is an "international menace" whom Nixon would have killed if he were still president. "If I could find a way to get him out of there, even putting out a contract on him, if the CIA still did that sort of thing, assuming it ever did, I would be for it," Nixon said on CBS' 60 Minutes Sunday.

WHITE HOUSE IS 'MEDDLING':

Civil rights leaders negotiating with executives on a civil rights bill said Sunday the White House was meddling. White House officials have warned executives involved in the discussions against giving in to rights groups, negotiators said. The White House has vetoed a measure that would have reversed six Supreme Court rulings and made it easier to prove job discrimination.

U.N. FORCE ARRIVES:

A U.N. peace force arriving in Kuwait City had bad news for thousands of desperate Iraqi refugees. The peacekeepers' job isn't to protect them from Saddam Hussein. Some 1,440 U.N. soldiers and military observers from 36 countries to arrive to set up a U.N.-mandated demilitarized zone between Iraq and Kuwait.

MORE STORMS FOR THE MIDWEST:

Sunshine and warmer temperatures should start drying out the USA's midsection from the Rockies to the Appalachians Monday and Tuesday. Blustery weather over the past four days kicked up snow in Wyoming, tornadoes in Texas and flash floods in Louisiana. In the West, much-needed storms are bypassing California and other areas suffering from drought. International News Briefs ©Copyright 1991, USA TODAY/Apple College Information Network

REFUGEES WILL NOT BE PROTECTED:

A U.N. peace force arrived in Kuwait City this weekend carrying some bad news for thousands of desperate Iraqi refugees: The peacekeepers' job isn't to protect them from Saddam Hussein. We "are not there to care for the refugees, not even to protect them," said U.N. spokesman Fred Eckhard. "What can I tell (the refugees)?" asked Norwegian Maj. Tor Munkelien of the U.N. force.

in front of the stage would quickly dispel these doubts. The band's faster numbers propelled the crowd into a slam dancing frenzy, with the occasional dancer being lifted into the air and passed around the crowd. Thankfully, the Rockin' Eagle bouncers did not interfere with the fun, and no injuries were reported. Follow For Now have recently signed a recording contract with Chrysalis records, and their first album is scheduled to be released sometime this summer. Hopefully, the people at Chrysalis will be able to distinguish between Follow For Now's sincere dedication to their music and the hordes of groups out to cash in on a trend, and will give them the support they deserve. In the meanwhile, go see this band whenever you have a chance, listen to WVGS for their single, "Trust", and always "rock hard in a funky space".
