TORNADOES SLAM THE MIDWEST:

Bulldozers stood ready to make rubble of the shattered remains of an Andover, Kan., trailer park Sunday as the tornado that flattened it passed into history. At least 14 were killed and 182 were injured in the Wichita area. At least 48 tornadoes claimed 23 lives in Kansas and Oklahoma and did upward of $50 million in damage there and in Iowa, Missouri, Texas and Nebraska.

CRIME RATE RISES:

The crime rate in the USA continues to rise, despite an unprecedented crackdown by law enforcers. An FBI report released Sunday shows violent crime up 10% in 1990, and crime overall up 1%. Reasons: children of the baby-boom generation are growing up; more kids are growing up in poverty at a time when the safety net of the child welfare system has deteriorated; and drug abuse.

AMERICANS LIE 'AT DROP OF HAT':

Americans lie at the "drop of a hat," about everything from the quality of dinner to whether they really love their spouse. Ninety-one percent say they lie routinely, say results in "The Day America Told the Truth." And when they're truthful: 51% say there's no reason to ever marry; 29% aren't sure they still love their spouse; 31% are having or have had an extramarital affair.

FATHER FACES TRIAL:

Ramiro Rodriguez faces trial Monday on vehicular homicide charges in the wreck in which his daughter died. Veronica Rodriguez, 3, was thrown from her mother's lap and had her skull crushed from impact with the windshield when her father crashed the car. He's charged with failing to strap her into a car seat. His case is one of the first to test child car seat laws.

REFUGEE HAVEN DOUBLED IN SIZE:

Allied forces in Zakho, Iraq, Sunday doubled the size of the safe haven for Kurdish refugees in northern Iraq as the first refugees moved into a U.S.-built camp near there. The zone will cover 1,350 square miles or more. U.S. Marines will build a camp in Amadiyah, about 75 miles east. In southern Iraq, the Army began airlifting refugees to who fear Iraqi reprisals to Saudi Arabia.

FEMALE POW TELLS OF CAPTIVITY:

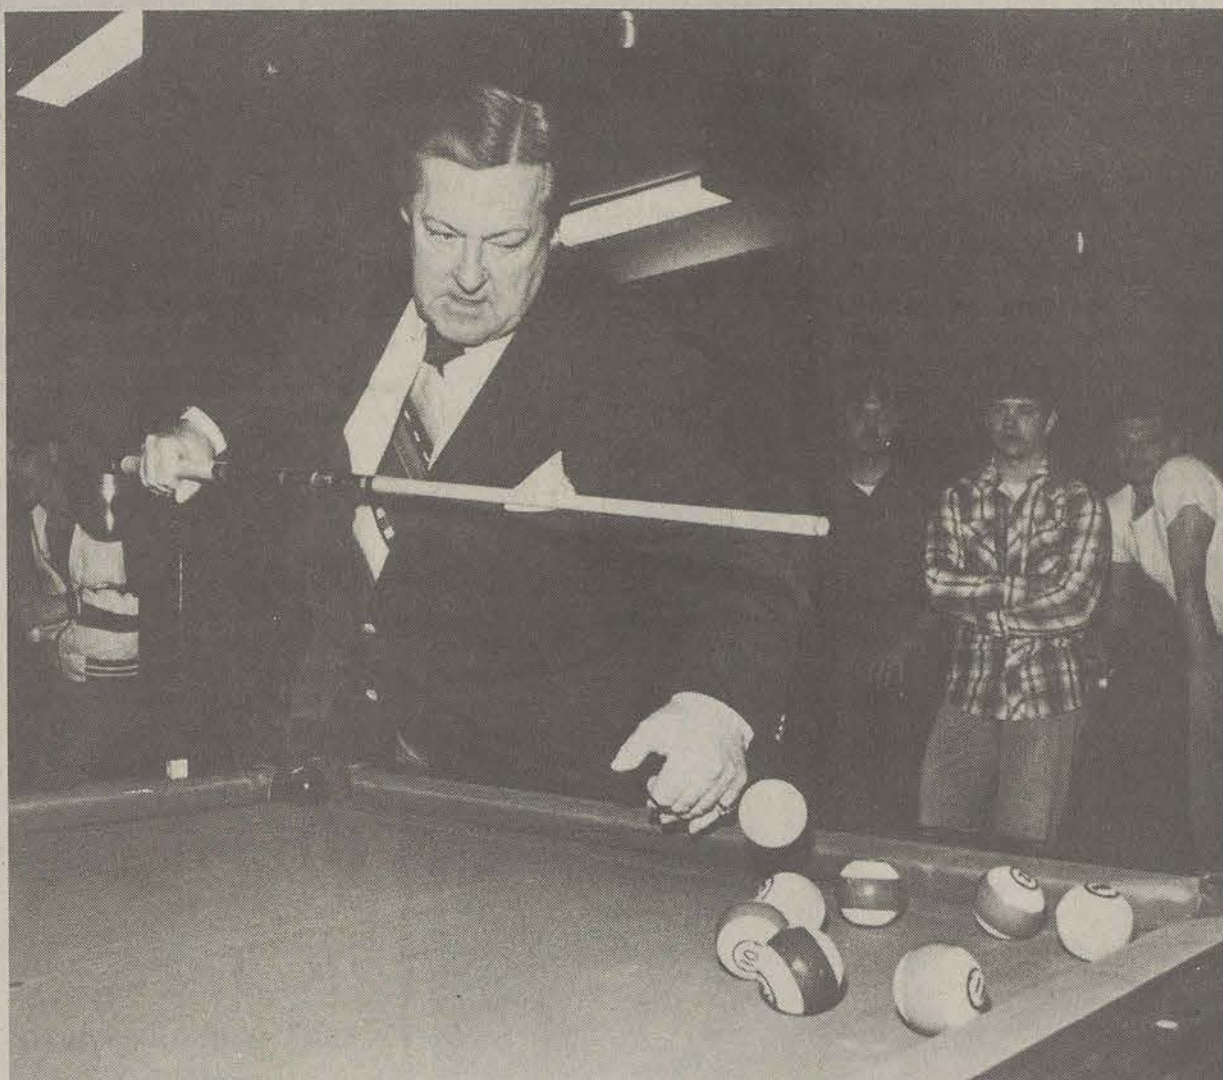

Melissa Coleman, who as Spec. Melissa Rathbun-Nealy became famous as the first female POW in the Persian Gulf war, ate five meals a day in captivity, played soccer and taught some English to her Iraqi captors. Coleman, 21, who got married after her return, prayed and counted tiles - 230 in her room, 644 in the hallway of the Baghdad prison where she was held.

CITRUS HILL WON'T SAY 'FRESH':

Citrus Hill Fresh Choice orange juice will have a new name and a new label by May 22. And "fresh" won't be part of it. Last week, 12,000 gallons of juice were seized by the FDA, which said the juice, made from water and concentrate, can't be called fresh. Procter & Gamble is renaming the juice Citrus Hill.

WOMAN TO LEAD NAVAL CLASS:

Naval Academy history will be made in September when Julianne Gallina, 20, takes command of its 4,300-member brigade. She becomes the first female student-body leader in the school's 146-year history. The school has been stung recently by controversy over its treatment of women. Midshipman Gwen Dyer resigned last May after she said classmates handcuffed her to a urinal.

Pool champ comes to campus

By David G. Berny
Staff Writer

This Thursday, from 11:30 am to 2:00 pm, "The Doctor of Poolology" will be performing in the Union Commons. With wit as sharp as his pool playing ability, Jack White is sure to entertain even those who have never even seen a pool table before.

As good at winning laughs from his spectators as he is at winning pool games, White teases his audience with lines such as, "If you want to make money, hang around here. If you miss a class so what? I'll buy you some class. But from the looks of you, that will take a lot of money."

A world champion pool player, White is very confident, frequently promising $100 to everyone present if he loses a game. That's a pretty safe bet for him, since he has racked up wins against billiards champions Willie Mosconi, Luther Lassiter, and the legendary Minnesota Fats.

The nephew of a former world champion and son of a professional billiards player, White began playing when he was only 8 and he admits to a 20-year career as a pool hustler before he turned pro.

After playing for nearly half a century, White's achievements are nearly legendary. At the age of 19, he won a match that lasted 4 1/2 hours, winning $27,000. It is reported the he once played a match for a solid 3 days and 3 nights, living off pastrami and milkshakes.

He loves entertaining as much as he does winning, touring the country 10 months out of the year and visiting 225 universities, colleges, and junior colleges. He has played at the White House with 8 presidents as well as for the Queen of England.

He performs many trick shots throughout his show. His most famous involves placing the 8-ball in the center of the table with

Interracial issues discussed at conference

By JENNIFER BOOTH
Assistant News Editor

About 250 people gathered at the University Union on Saturday, April 20 for a conference on interracial issues.

The conference was held from 9:00 am until 3:30 pm, and was entitled "A Summit: A Time for Healing: African-American Students at the Crossroads."

Participants included students from Savannah State, Georgia State, West Georgia, and the University of Georgia. Parents of students also attended, and there was a busload of 12-year-old children from Metter.

Kevin McWhorter, former president of the GSU NAACP chapter, said planning for the summit began about two or three weeks before spring break. He said part of the reason for organizing the conference was the increased black against black violence around the GSU campus.

"We had to do something in a positive light," McWhorter said, "because the black community was being looked upon as barbaric and unruly."

McWhorter said there was a lot of doubt about how the program would turn out, but the attendance was better than expected. "We showed that we can come together collectively in a positive way," he said.

The keynote address was delivered by Dr. Joseph Silver, Assistant Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs for the University of Georgia system. Also speaking were Tyrone Bledsoe, Associate Dean of Students at Georgia Southwestern College; Joseph Flowers, pastor of Brannen United Methodist Church in Statesboro; and Randy Gunter, Coordinator of Multicultural Affairs at GSU.

Also, Dr. Jane Thompson, Assistant Dean of Students for Special Services, spoke.

Columnist Dave Barry runs for President

By ADAM NAGOURNEY
©Copyright 1991, USA TODAY/Apple College Information Network

WEST BRANCH, Iowa — Columnist Dave Barry was bouncing in a van past the cornfields of Iowa the other night, scanning the horizon as he headed toward Herbert Hoover's birthplace. Suddenly, his face lit up.

"I need a pig," the Pulitzer Prize-winning humorist proclaimed. "I have to find a pig."

Just what a lot of Iowans have been waiting

In a 16-hour drive here — enough time to eat at a grill-your-own-steak restaurant, speak at the University of Iowa, and drink four beers at a college bar — the Miami-based author did what so few others have done this year: He said he was running for president.

He also stood up in a local beer hall to announce campaign contributors would be rewarded with seats on the Supreme Court.

Four years ago at this time, more than a dozen would-be presidents were scrambling to find pigs to be photographed with to demonstrate "concern with agriculture," Barry says. (Barry and his.)

Now with only 10 months until the Iowa caucuses — the nation's first test for presidential contenders — Iowans basically have to settle for Barry.

"This is incredible — I'm not hearing anything," says Johnson County Democratic Chairman Tom Taylor. He wanly welcomed Barry's entry into the race, even though he missed the speech — an important dental appointment he said.

Following in the footsteps of Pat Paulsen, the comedian who ran for president in 1968, 1972 and 1988, Barry promises at the very least to provide entertainment.

He also decided which party's nomination he'll seek, See BARRY, page 8

Statewide tuition hike this summer

By MISTY McPHERSON
News Editor

Students throughout Georgia will see a 4 percent increase in tuition beginning this summer.

"Considering the budget difficulties we've faced, that's good news," Chancellor H. Dean Propst said, according to published reports.

The increase is due to the 75/25 percent ratio set by the state of Georgia. The state pays 75 percent of the cost of schooling for students and the students pays the other 25 percent.

The increase will also help pay faculty and staff salaries.

Compared with other institutions the University of Georgia system had a comparatively low increase.

Dr. Armstrong, Vice President of Business and Finance said he was pleased that the increase was so low. "I am glad our students will not have a large increase to pay."

In Virginia, higher education officials report tuition increases will be up by 15-17 percent in the fall.

Other southern states are exception up to a 20 percent increase.

With the exception of Mississippi (19.2 percent) and Texas (13 percent) Georgia's increase of 20 percent, from 1986-87 to 1990-91, is the lowest in the South.

Besides that of tuition, other fees will also be increasing.

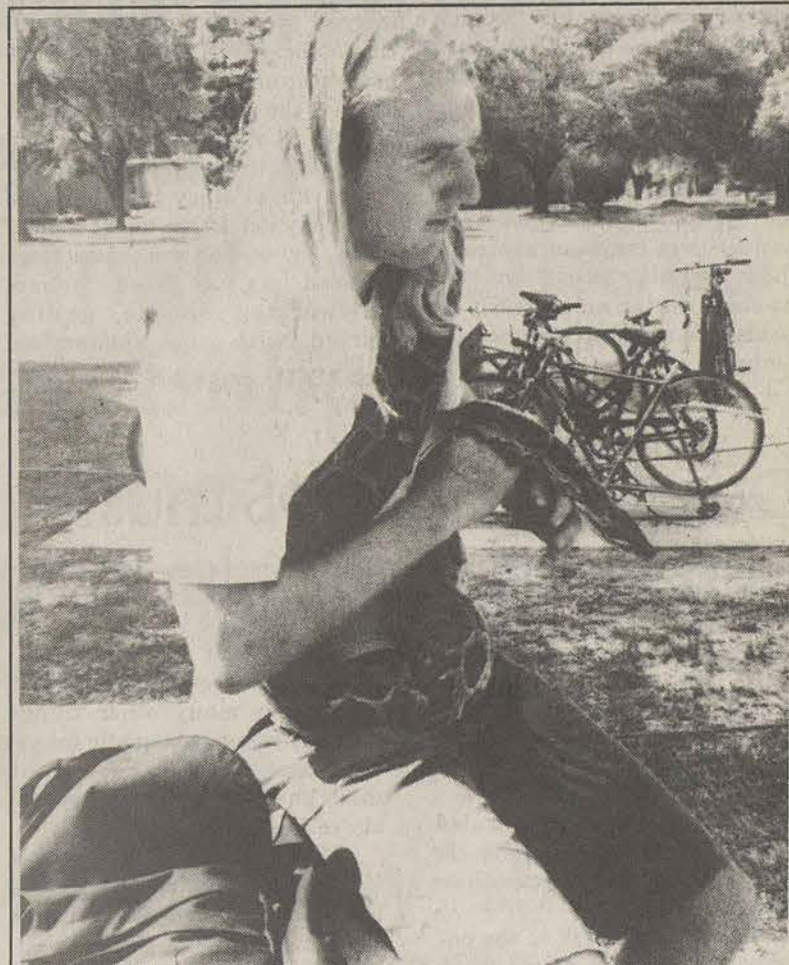

Effective July 1, the student activities fee will increase one dollar per quarter, making it $30 per quarter.

The health service fee will also increase $7 per quarter. It will be $34 per quarter and will be effective fall quarter.

The food service fee will increase between 1 percent and 12.1 percent depending upon the meal plan the student purchases.

The housing fee will be raised between 7.2 percent and 7.5 percent depending on place of residency.

Both the food service fee and the housing fee will be effective fall quarter.

WVGS mascot a lengthy subject

By MISTY McPHERSON

WVGS, the campus radio station, has an interesting mascot, -- and it's not an eagle.

Her name is Patricia, she's two years old, weighs 30 pounds and is 10 feet long.

She's a Burmese Python owned by Guy Owens, a senior Biology major.

"The snake is probably the least demanding of all pets," said Owens.

Patricia eats about once every three weeks and dines on pigeons and rabbits Owens buys just outside of town.

"I use to have a couple," said Owens, referring to the other snakes he once had. "But, she (Patricia) is so big, she's all I can handle."

Once Patricia is full grown, she will be 15 feet and about 100 pounds.

Owens keeps Patricia in a cage he built for her.

She is a very docile snake, according to Owens. He has had her since she was hatched.

"Elsie May" wins Miss Eagle Beast

By KEVIN HUDSON
Staff Writer

Nearly 200 GSU students and faculty attended Pi Sigma Epsilon's 1991 Miss Eagle Beast Beauty Contest last Thursday. Seven student organizations sponsored contestants in the event which is a spoof of the Miss GSU pageant.

As in the Miss GSU contest, the participants had a talent competition, an evening gown competition, and the dreaded "finalist's question". The only real difference is that the contestants were male students. The Eagle Beast hopefuls were sponsored by various social fraternities and sororities, as well as service fraternities.

The annual event is sponsored by the GSU chapter of Pi Sigma Epsilon. PSE member Bill Nixon has worked with the event every year since it was conceived in the fall of 1987. "It was a fun idea we thought of as a spin-off of the Miss GSU contest," said Nixon. "We initially held it at the same time of the year as the original pageant, but this year there were just too many other projects going on at that time to do it right."

The winner of this year's pageant was "Elsie May," also known as Alpha Phi Omega's David McDonald. When asked during the pageant what one thing she would like to change about herself, McDonald replied "My boob size. I mean, you just don't know how important boob size is to guys." The crowd roared, remembering that this was the same contestant whose "bra filler" had flown across the stage during an obviously feeble attempt at twirling in the talent competition.

The First runner-up was "Honking Mahoney" (Michael Duck), sponsored by the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Duck appeared to be the crowd's favorite, judging from the shouts as the judges made their final decisions. His impersonation of Madonna in her controversial "Justify My Love" video, complete with a pair of tasseled red funnels on his chest and all of Madonna's popular moves. The question Duck drew from the bowl read "What would you do if you felt that your husband was having an affair?" In a barely feminine voice, the reply came as if it had been rehearsed: "Well, first I would confront him about it...then, if I felt that he had lied, I would follow him...and if I found out it was true, I would kick his butt!"

Second runner-up was "Suzie Mae Baker", Sigma Delta Theta's Joseph Smith. As Smith strolled out in a light blue tea-length dress for his evening gown presentation, Kim Padgett, the Mistress of Ceremonies, defined "Suzie Mae's" hobbies as nude tennis and break dancing. This time the question read "What have you learned from being in the Miss Eagle Beast Pageant?" The immediate reply was "Well, I've really learned to make a fool of myself, that's for sure!". Smith's talent presentation was a dancing lip-synch of the pop song You can reach Me.

Another crowd pleaser was Pi Kappa Phi's "Juicy Lucy", played by Jeff Hylton. In the talent competition, Hylton had walked on stage dressed as a tired housewife/working woman getting started with the vacuuming.

Doctors with AIDS must tell patients, says Judge

By MARCO R. DELLA
CAVA

A New Jersey judge ruled Thursday that patients have the right to know if their doctors have the AIDS virus.

"The ultimate risk to the patient is so absolute that it is untenable to argue against informed consent," said Superior Court Judge Philip Carchman.

He said doctors with AIDS should stop performing procedures that endanger patients.

The estate of plastic surgeon William Behringer, who died of AIDS in 1989, charged The Medical Center at Princeton with violating state laws prohibiting discrimination against people with the AIDS virus.

"(We're) pleased the court upheld our policy of requiring a surgeon who is HIV-positive to obtain informed consent from a patient prior to surgery," said Jane Kerney, Medical Center at Princeton. "We always felt the patient has the right to know and decide."

The ruling was condemned by AIDS activists.

"Transmission (of the HIV virus) isn't really happening with regular health care," said Elias Guerrero, a New York doctor and spokesman for ACT-UP. "There are many other things that are more problematic for patients that they don't know about their physicians, like substance abuse."

The American Civil Liberties Union said the decision could usher in a segregated health care system.

"This is very worrisome. Once the ball starts rolling, it's hard to get it to stop," said Chai Feldblum, of the ACLU in Washington, D.C. "It could mean a loss of privacy and jobs, and more importantly a shortage of people willing to care for patients who are HIV infected."

Battle of Bands shows GSU talent

By DOUG GROSS
Staff writer

Music lovers will have the opportunity to hear some of Statesboro's best local rock and roll this afternoon as the College Activities Board and WMCD Statesboro present the second annual Battle of the Bands. The event will begin at 5:00 p.m. at Sweetheart Circle and will feature ten local acts competing for recording time at Savannah's Reeltime Studios and gift certificates from Deloaches music store.

The groups competing in this afternoon's contest are: Coconut Grove, Crashin' Abbey, Daddy Was A Preacher, Home of Thousands, Big Time, Midnight Sun, Ophelia Daze, Jokers Wild, Threshold and Trip and Fall. There will also be a special guest performance by Jive Socket, last year's Battle of the Bands winner.

The judges for the contest will be provided by WMCD and the groups will be graded on originality, musical ability, stage appearance and audience response.

This year's contest features a diverse selection of musical styles with no clear cut winners in the field.

"It should be really tight between about four bands," said Donald Painter, lead vocalist of Ophelia Daze.

Painter's thoughts were echoed by Dennis Smith of Crashin' Abbey.

"I think the competition this year will be stiff," said Smith. "It's a friendly competition but at the same time it's a competition that really pushes you."

While it seems that a competition of this sort would cause rivalries among the groups involved, many of the musicians interviewed were supportive of the bands against which they would be competing.

"I know a lot of people in the other bands and I think it'll be lots of fun, with all of the bands working together," said Ophelia Daze drummer Ann Clayton.

"I've got friends in three of the bands," added Dan Owens of Daddy Was A Preacher. "If any of us are able to place in the top three, that would be cool."

Owens also mentioned hopes for a large turnout at Sweetheart Circle for the Battle of the Bands.

"The more people there are the better," he said. "Students will have a chance to get out and see people they might see on campus everyday but not realize are in bands."

CAB step show struts through Hanner Fieldhouse: Alphas and Deltas win

By ANGELA McCONNELL
Staff writer

Wow, what a performance! CAB's first stepshow was a big hit with the students and faculty that attended it.

Delta Sigma Theta was awarded $250 for first place in the female category, and Zeta Phi Beta was awarded $100 for second place.

Alpha Phi Alpha, who began their program by emerging from a refrigerator, was awarded $250 for first place in the male category, and Omega Psi Phi was awarded $100 for second place.

Peemoy Walters, CAB Multicultural Coordinator, said "the stepshow went the way we wanted it to, everything went very smooth."

"All the groups that performed presented themselves in a very positive way especially with the messages they sent," she said. "You can tell they were proud of their heritage and the organizations that they represent."

Walters also said, "I was really impressed with the way Delta Sigma Theta put their show together to promote knowledge in our culture. It's really important for African Americans to have knowledge of their heritage. I'm just sorry that more people didn't come out to see the show because it seems that the Greeks have some leadership on campus."

"I was also impressed with the way Alpha Phi Alpha went along with the theme of peace, and also the need for the black youth to stand up and be recognized," she said.

Minnie Austin, Assistant Director of University Union/Programming and a judge of the stepshow, said "I think it was a very good show. The performers were great and the audience was on their best behavior. Everything was well planned.

"Greeks should be complimented for their cooperation in working with CAB to make this a success," said Austin.

The party after the stepshow was a success also. Thanks, CAB, for a great time.

Bess looks to open students eyes by teaching African-American literature

By TERESA ROACH
Assistant Features Editor

College campuses generally provide a wealth of resources to the community, and GSU is no exception. As well as providing facilities, sports events, and cultural opportunities, GSU also offers the advantages of an informed and up-to-date faculty.

One of the members of GSU's faculty who has much to offer is Georgene Bess, an instructor in the English department. Bess is originally from Glenville, GA. She earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in English from GSU, and upon graduation felt like she had received a well-rounded education.

After graduation Bess went to Atlanta and while browsing in a bookstore called "The Black Madonna," she discovered a type of literature which she had never been exposed to: literature by black authors.

Bess says that in these books she "saw a mirror...a reflection of [herself]." Upon learning of this literature, Bess became angry because she realized that much was missing from her education. She returned to GSU to earn her Master's degree. Her original intention was to emphasize in Greek drama, but after her newfound discovery she decided to emphasize in African women's literature.

In order to research her thesis, Bess went to the Howard University library because the Henderson Library did not have adequate research materials for her topic.

Bess began teaching at GSU in the fall of 1989. In her courses she aims to present an aspect of literature that is usually ignored: that of the black author. By doing so she hopes to provide students with a broader perspective of life than is traditionally presented.

In her English 151 courses she requires her students to read novels by black writers. She admits that she was at first hesitant in doing this because she was unsure of how her white students would react, but almost all of the feedback she has received has been positive. She says that white students are often "shocked at what they learn from these novels, but they are glad to have learned it."

Bess also teaches a course focusing entirely on the works of black women writers. Among the books taught in the course are The Bluest Eye, Sula, The Color Purple, and Their Eyes Were Watching God. The response to this course has been good, and students enrolled are both black

G-A letter policy restated

All letters to the editor should be signed with a complete mailing address and telephone number. The editors reserve the right to reject any submission. Very few letters are rejected, but if in fact a letter came into the office addressed to the editor and had known false statements written in it, the letter would not be published. The George-Anne will not publish known falsehoods to protect the author and any person accused by the author in the letter containing the false statements.

An example of such occurred Monday when a letter was hand delivered to the editor but was not signed nor did it contain a telephone number so that the author of the letter could be verified as an existing person. The letter also contained erroneous information which could have put the author of the letter in danger of having a libel case brought against him—if his existence could have been verified in the first place.

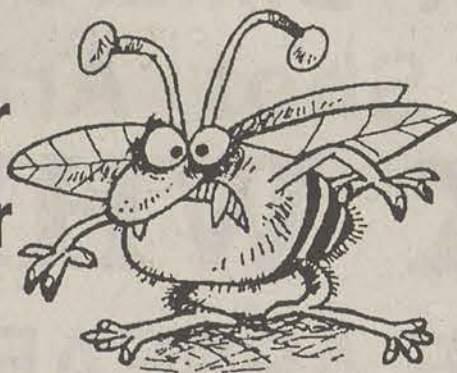

Often (not in the aforementioned case, however) the letters that are unsigned contain valid points; but a valid point is no good if it cannot be shared with the public.

So don't come crying to our office when your letter doesn't get on the opinions page. Remember to sign it, and leave your address and telephone number if you take responsibility for the contents of the letter; and, for the convenience of everyone involved, make certain your facts are correct.

Many college students at one point or another in their school days find it necessary to get a part time job to either pay the rent, help mom and dad out with tuition, or at least to buy beer. I, being no exception, have been working at Lakeview General Store since Christmas break.

Lakeview General is a quaint little pump and pantry type store on the north side town just past the Statesboro city limits. It's built right in the middle of what I like to call the "cultural arm pit of Bulloch County," meaning that every type person imaginable frequents the business for whatever reason—usually either to purchase gasoline, beer, cigarettes or to tell me some gossip.

The "usuals" at Lakeview General are quite the individuals. There's Mrs. Butterworth, who lives down the road from the store and never fails to call the owners if I don't show up to open the store at 6 a.m.

Billy Kidd is another regular. He's a local farmer who likes to challenge me to roping contests in the parking lot. We take turns lassoing the gas pumps at night when business is slow. He is also one of the "predictables." That means I know exactly what he wants when he walks in—a can of Skoal and a can of pepsi. He's also seen every movie Lakeview General ever rented.

One can set his watch by Sam. Every night around 7 p.m. he drives up in his Chevy truck and buys two packs of Winstons and a can pepsi. Never fails. "That's $2.36 Sam," every night.

Oh, and there's the favorite married couple of Lakeview General—Bartow and Ezzie Mae. Come hell or high water they're gonna buy either a 12 pack or a case of Budweiser, depending on how close to the beginning of the month it may be.

Lu Lu and Tammy Jo are really a desirable pair of women who always seem to come in on my shift. Lu Lu weighs 260 pounds and has a bad habit of wearing high heels and tight mini-skirts. She's got bright auburn hair—which I am sure is indicative of her love life—but sorry Lu Lu—I'm not your type.

Tammy Jo never seems to have any shoes on—which is perfectly alright if that's what she wants to do, but usually dresses look better on women when bare, filthy feet are covered. Tammy Jo also likes to buy a can of beer and cigarettes each night—paying me with PENNIES!!

Even GSU head football coach Tim Stowers comes in to Lakeview General occasionally. He heads straight for the cooler for his usual can of Copenhagen—Dr. Pepper, and then grabs a bag of roasted peanuts. Never letting him get out without a comment on the football team I either beg him to let me try out for a linebacker position or ask him how I should bet on the Auburn-GSU game this coming August. Of course what he says from there is off the record—sorry folks.

And what general store would be complete without a customer like Skeebo. Skeebo single handedly keeps Marlboro cigarettes in business purchasing at least a carton (one pack at a time) per night. Skeebo also has a nasty habit of bringing me his payroll check to cash for him; and I have this nasty habit of turning him down every time. He always gets pissed off and spins out of the parking lot to verify his anger—but he's always back the next night.

The mentality of our customers never ceases to amaze me either. Take for instance the kids who come in after school and buy 20 ponds of candy every day of the week. Along with the motherloads of candy, they always purchase the "Big 20's" (20 oz. soft drinks) to wash all that sugar down with. Each of these kids probably weighs around 200 pounds each. They range from 13 to 18 years of age. And they wonder why they're so damn fat???

Lakeview General supports the rock band The Pigs. As a matter of fact, the owner's son is the band's manager. We have a few copies of their latest cassette on our counter and it never fails. These dumb old rednecks come in, bring their beer to the counter to pay for it, pick up a cassette, study it for a long time, look at me and ask "Thu Piigs? What thu hail is zayat?" I simply shrug and tell them it's a college band. They giggle and put the tape down. Not a very good marketing technique on my part, but hell who cares? You can't sell progressive rock to rednecks anyway.

There's always one woman who comes in, walks back to the beer cooler, stands directly in front of a huge white sign that reads, "ICE COLD SINGLES $.60," and yells from the back of the store—"How much dees is?" I cringe at her idiocy and make her ask me twice before succumbing to her stupidity. Aint that America for you and me?

And there's an old fellow, farmer I'm sure, who comes in each day and tells me, "You know it takes a crazy man to be a farmer," to which I reply, "Yep I know," and that usually cuts him off there. That's the end of that.

The same man claims to be a 71 year old farmer who still plows with a walking mule. He buys a 6 pack of Schaefer and gives me the old "Son when you are 71 years old..." speech and goes on about his business. What a hard life that man must have had.

We serve 58 migrant Mexican farm workers every day at lunch and around 6 p.m. I have to watch every one of them, translate broken English, straighten out crumpled up muddy dollar bills, and ring each one up separately. And of course they all want bags for their merchandise—regardless of whether or not it's a candy bar or pack of gum. Go figure.

Now I'm down to my three favorite customers of all time. First we have the SLOWEST MAN IN THE WORLD." An ancient, old, worn out, medieval, old man of about 92. Drives a Massey Ferguson tractor to the store every day. It takes him 13 minutes to get off that tractor and get in the store. He's about 6'9" and takes 4 minutes to get out his 1925 Buxton leather wallet from his back pocket. During the time he spends at the counter I can ring up seven customers. Joy!

Shemp Krumpke is a local mechanic with an incredibly heavy up state New York accent. He always tells me his story of being a helicopter gunner in Vietnam and how he once stayed submerged in a rice paddy for 2 1/2 hours breathing through a bamboo shute while his pilot tried to find him behind enemy lines.

And lastly we have Mack Nife, who is a logger. He claims to have once worked directly under Dwight D. Eisenhower in U.S. Military Intelligence. "What a paradox that this man worked for intelligence" I think. He'll come in sometimes with a six pack of "the beast" and challenge me to try to bend his pinky finger backwards. Of course I never can because the man is an ox in human clothing. But the challenge is what keeps him happy.

These characters are every day people in the cultural "armpit of Bulloch County." They keep my job interesting. Of course the names have been changed with the exception of coach Stowers. I don't think he'll mind since he's one of the more stable customers. But all this really happens at Lakeview General Store, where men are men, and women are welcome."

GSU star Miller signs with Falcons

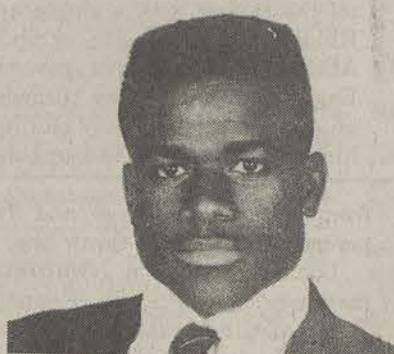

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Editor

Former GSU standout Karl Miller signed last week with the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

Miller, who last year set a GSU single-season record with 37 receptions, inked a one-year contract.

Miller will report Thursday for the Falcons' three-day mini-camp. In June, he will report for summer camp in Suwanee, Ga.

The 6-0, 182-pound Miller went undrafted in last Monday's NFL draft. However, about 15 minutes after the draft ended, Miller received the call he had been waiting for.

Karl Miller

"[The Falcons] said they were interested in signing me as a free agent and they asked me if I could come up Tuesday and try out," Miller said. "They flew me up there Tuesday and I ran a 4-5 40 and caught several passes for them."

After "Night Train" gained 1,743 all-purpose yards his senior season, several scouts felt he deserved a shot in the NFL. The Falcons agreed.

"They felt I should've been drafted," Miller said. "They thought I was a steal and they wanted me to sign right away."

However, the Falcons weren't the only team interested in the former North Clayton High School star. While Miller was trying out for Atlanta, the New England Patriots called.

Miller's decision was made easy by a variety of factors: he would be closer to home with the Falcons, he would fit in better in Atlanta's offense than New England's and -- last but not least -- with New England, he would be playing for one of the lowest-paying teams in the NFL.

"It was no question," Miller said. "I didn't want to go to New England. If New England wanted me, [the Falcons] were ready to be competitive."

During the 1990 regular season, Miller led the team in receiving out of his slotback position. He grabbed 37 passes for 396 yards and three touchdowns. He finished fourth on the team in rushing, gaining 284 yards on just 41 carries.

In the playoffs, Miller added 11 receptions for 189 yards. He caught two TD passes, including the game-winner in GSU's thrilling 28-27 quarterfinal win over Idaho.

Miller finished his career (regular season games only) with 926 yards rushing. As a junior, Miller led the Eagles with a 12.4 yards-per-carry average (27 carries for 336 yards).

However, he made his mark on special teams as a kick returner. Miller averaged 22.5 yards-per-return in 1988 and 18.9 in 1989.

Miller capped his senior year by finishing in the top 10 nationally with a 22.8 yards-per-return average (25 for 570). The 23,204 fans at the national championship game against Nevada will remember Miller's 51-yard return to open the contest.

One factor that will make Miller's transition to the NFL easier is the similarity between GSU's "Flexbone" offense and the Falcons' "Red Gun" offense.

"I'll be playing behind (Andre) Rison in the slotback-type position," Miller said. "The only difference is their slotback is more pass oriented, whereas ours is more run oriented."

Miller was the first of two Eagles to sign professional contracts last week. Defensive lineman Tim Brown signed with the Miami Dolphins Thursday.

Eagles edge ASC behind Carragher

By PAUL FLOECKHER
Sports Editor

Jim Carragher continued his strong pitching against Armstrong State and the GSU Eagles withstood a late rally to down the Pirates 4-3 Thursday at Clements Stadium.

Carragher won for the second time in as many starts against ASC. He pitched a complete-game 5-0 shutout against the Pirates April 1 in Savannah.

"I was a little bit worried going into tonight's game because they had already seen me for nine innings," Carragher said. "But I just have to pitch the same way every night."

Carragher (5-2) held ASC to six hits and one earned run through seven innings. The sophomore left-hander struck out four on the way to his fourth straight win.

"He pitched well against them down there and he pitched well tonight," said GSU Head Coach Jack Stallings. "Against a good-hitting ball club like they have, he's done a good job."

Pirate pitcher Mark Ewing was almost as effective as Carragher, but suffered from poor defense that led to two unearned runs. Ewing (3-3) went the distance, allowing six hits and two earned runs while fanning five.

A comedy of ASC errors led to three GSU runs in the second inning. The Eagles pounded out only two hits, but took advantage of a walk, a wild pitch, two errors and a passed ball.

Mike Miller began the second innocently enough, walking on a 3-2 pitch in the dirt and moving to second on a wild pitch. Mike Yuro followed with a routine grounder, but ASC third baseman Eric Chavez threw the ball away to give GSU runners at the corners.

One batter later, David Dupree put the Eagles on the scoreboard with a double off the right-field wall that brought home Miller. The double was Dupree's ninth of the year.

Chavez's second error of the inning gave the Eagles their second run. Doug Eder's grounder bounced off Chavez's glove, scoring Yuro and moving Dupree to third.

Eder scored on a passed ball to make the score 3-0, but only after he was involved in a strange play that typified the inning. With Eder breaking for second, Dupree was caught napping at third.

Dupree was thrown out in a run-down, but Eder ran all the way to third on the play.

In the third, Southern scored what proved to be the winning run. With two outs, Miller walked and scored on Yuro's double.

Pirate center fielder Terry Hipp tried to make a diving, over-the-shoulder snag of Yuro's long drive, but the ball ticked off his glove. Miller scored on Yuro's team-leading 14th double.

GSU entered the ninth inning with a seemingly comfortable 4-1 lead, but ASC scored twice to make things interesting.

Walt Neveker walked and Chavez doubled to put runners on second and third with no outs. Neveker and Chavez scored on back-to-back ground outs, then Pete Richter popped out to short to end the game.

Freshman Matt Sheppard pitched the ninth to pick up his second save. After relieving Jake Greene with Neveker and Chavez in scoring position, Sheppard coaxed the final three outs.

The Pirates scored a run in the fourth on Richter's single and Tim Reynolds' RBI double off the left-center field wall.

Stallings adds 2 to GSU

G-A Staff Reports

Left-handed pitcher Ron Buffington and middle infielder Shad Renick have signed letters-of-intent to play at Georgia Southern, Eagle Head Coach Jack Stallings announced Thursday.

The 6-1, 180-pound Buffington is currently 3-0 with eight saves in 22 appearances at Middle Georgia College. He has struck out 35 and walked five in 45 innings. His earned run average is 1.63.

Renick is batting .300 at Riverwood High School in Sarasota, Fla. The 5-10, 160-pound shortstop hit .341 as a sophomore and .295 last year. He is highly regarded as a defensive player.

GSU has signed three new players for the 1992 season. Right-handed pitcher Shannon Snyder of LaGrange committed to the Eagles last fall.

Hamilton, Eagles blank Pirates

By ERIC WEISENMILLER
Sports writer

The Georgia Southern baseball team banged out 11 hits and scored seven runs to coast to a 7-0 shut-out of the Armstrong State College Pirates in a Friday night match up.

The baseball Eagles won their fourth straight game to improve their record to 29-23 on the year.

Joey Hamilton's stellar pitching performance subdued the Armstrong State bats, yielding only four hits in nine complete innings of work. Hamilton fanned 11 Pirates, taking the win and bettering his record to 10-5 for the season.

The GSU scoring began in the second inning. Mike Miller and Mike Yuro each singled. Miller was driven home by a Doug Eder hit to right. Sophomore catcher Buddy Holder followed in similar fashion by singling to right to score Yuro and Eder.

ASC's shortstop Blu Harvin helped the Eagle cause by mugging a Chris Petersen grounder, which allowed Holder to cross the plate with the fourth GSU run.

The Eagles scored two more in the fourth inning. A double by freshman Kevin Hallman scored Doug Eder.

A Pirate error was the cause of the sixth Eagle run. Another Harvin blunder allowed Hallman to score another run for GSU.

Two innings later the Eagles upped their lead by one. Eder led off the inning with a single and Holder followed with a walk. ASC's shortstop Harvin gave the Eagles another gift by throwing an apparent double-play ball into his own dugout. This enabled Eder to score run number seven.

ASC pitcher Joel Goodwin was promptly replaced by John Booth. Goodwin headed to the showers only after displaying a classy obscene gesture to the J.I. Clements faithful.

The Eagles hung on to complete the shut-out and take their 29th victory against 23 defeats.

ASC's Goodwin took the loss to drop his record to 5-4.

Five more commit to Eagle basketball

G-A Staff Reports

Five more basketball players have signed national letters-of-intent to play for Georgia Southern, according to GSU Head Basketball Coach Frank Kerns.

Guard Roger Montgomery, forward D'Andre Goggans, forward Chris Birden, center Dexter Abrams and guard Mickhal Locklear join two other signees on the 1991-92 Eagle roster.

Kerns also landed East Point's Pierre McKisic and Atlanta's Shawn Brown during the spring signing period.

Roger Montgomery, a 6-6, 195-pound guard, played one season at Pratt (Kan.) Community College after an outstanding career at Fairfax (Cal.) High School.

Montgomery averaged 13 points, seven rebounds and four assists per game at Pratt during the 1989-90 season, earning honorable mention on the Jayhawk West All-Conference squad.

At Fairfax, Montgomery earned all-region and California Top 100 honors by averaging 12 points, six rebounds and two assists per game. He led his 1987 squad to a 31-2 record and a number one national ranking by USA Today.

D'Andre Goggans, a 6-6, 235-pound forward, averaged 12.5 points and 14 rebounds during his senior season at Augusta (Ga.) Josey High School.

Goggans helped Josey to the city championship last season by shooting 50 percent from the field and 77.5 percent from the free throw line.

A multi-talented athlete, Goggans also earned letters in golf, baseball, tennis, track and soccer.

Chris Birden, a 6-6, 210-pound forward, averaged 13 points and 5.9 rebounds for New Mexico Junior College last season.

Birden shot 61.5 percent from the floor and 64.3 percent from the free throw line to lead the Thunderbirds to a 19-13 record and a second-round appearance in the Texas/New Mexico State Tournament.

During the 1989-90 season, Birden averaged 11.6 points and 7.3 rebounds, earning honorable mention all-conference honors in the Western Junior College Conference. He finished his junior college career as the Thunderbirds' career record holder for field goal percentage (309-of-484, 63.8 percent).

Dexter Abrams, a 6-7, 210-pound center, averaged 12 points and seven rebounds per game last season at Howard (Tex.) College.

Abrams led the Hawks to a 32-2 record and a top ranking in the National Junior College Athletic Association during 1990-91. Howard was knocked out of post-season play in the first round of the state tournament.

A resident of Gray, Ga., Abrams is a 1989 graduate of Jones County High School.

Mickhal Locklear, a 6-1, 170-pound guard from Marietta (Ga.) Sprayberry High School, averaged 18.7 points, six assists and 3.8 rebounds per game his senior year.

While helping Sprayberry to a 23-2 record during the 1990-91 season, Locklear recorded 2.3 steals per game and shot 40.5 percent from the floor, 41 percent from three-point range and 72 percent from the free throw line.

Locklear was a two-time member of the Cobb County Team-of-the-Month and also earned inclusion in the Atlanta

Tip-Off Club's Team-of-the-Month during his senior season.

Georgia Southern will return six lettermen, including three starters, from last year's 14-13 team.

The GSU Lady Eagle softball team took a pair of games from the Mercer Teddy Bears in a Thursday afternoon meeting in Statesboro.

GSU won the first game by the unlikely score of 1-1.

Melissa Williams' fourth-inning single scored Beth Williams to tie the score at one.

The game remained knotted at one apiece and the game headed into extra innings.

In the eighth inning, Mickey Paul's attempted sacrifice fly was caught by the Mercer first baseman, who attempted to catch Lanier off of second base. The throw hit Mercer shortstop Tammy Grantham in the nose, forcing her to be taken out of the game.

Mercer had no available substitutes to replace her, so GSU won the game 1-1 by forfeit.

Carrie Collins was awarded with her 10th victory of the season. Martin took the loss for Mercer.

In the second game, Marginia Kemp led the Lady Eagles in the hitting department. She went 4-for-4 with two RBI and three runs scored.

Beth Williams also contributed two hits and two RBI.

The Lady Eagles jumped out to an early lead by scoring five runs in the first two innings. GSU made quick work of the Lady Bears by taking a 10-0 lead to end the game after six innings.

Tammie Lanier pitched the entire six innings, giving up only two hits and two walks while striking out five to improve her record to 6-9 on the year.

The GSU Ladies upped their record to 21-24-1 on the year (6-5-1 in the New South Women's Athletic Conference). Mercer fell to 16-24 (1-5 in the NSWAC).

Eventually a fast song "got her going" as he began a strip tease using the vacuum cleaner as a "partner" of sorts.

"Thela Lou Butler" (Rufus Butler) was sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta. This presentation in the talent contest was the only one to utilize "real talent." Butler played the piano and sang The Greatest Love of All in a voice that was obviously designed for Thela Lou, and not Rufus. Butler's reply to the question "What do you see as the role for women in the 90's?" was the only answer which brought a negative reaction from the crowd, although the response was meant in humor: "I think the woman should play the role of the man, because a man is just not dependable any more. A woman has to make her own living, because a man just won't do it today."

The other contestants were six other balls around it. He then covers them all with a handkerchief, and shoots. He sinks the selected ball in the chosen pocket every time.

In recognition of his expertise, White has received honorary degrees from Notre Dame, Alabama, Fort Hays State, Utah State, and the University of Georgia.

He accepts challenges from the top pool shooters on campus and usually wins. So bring yourself, your family and your friends, but don't bring your wallet—you just might get hustled.

Barry

although over beers he admits that wrestling the GOP spot from President Bush might be tough. And he might be the first candidate for president who isn't registered to vote. (No, as Barry likes to say, he's not making this up.)

"I'm willing to run for president," says Barry, 43. "But I'm not willing to sink so low as to vote for myself."

He told an overflow crowd of 1,000 at the University of Iowa that he'd keep Dan Quayle as vice president — "for security reasons."

He would appoint Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf to head up Barry's No. 1 domestic priority: The war on light beer.

Barry may need a few pointers in political etiquette. He pokes fun at this politically pivotal state.

"I know there is more to Iowa than just pig farms," he says. "There are also pig farm supply stores. I know it's a very cultural state. Why are you laughing? Des Moines — it's a French word. It means, more of these moines."

Barry printed 2,000 bumper stickers ("no other candidate has these"), with his name and the slogan: "A Catchy Slogan Should Appear Here."

His goal is to win one delegate. He appointed Ted Habtegabir, an Ethiopian student who got him a lecture here, his Iowa manager.

Barry's audience swarmed around him after the speech in search of bumper stickers.

"Have you chosen an attorney general yet?" asked Dave Pierce, 31, an out-of-work restaurant manager who worked for Jesse Jackson in 1988.

Barry looked up. "You're it," he said.

cial Programs at GSU; Dr. Lane Van Tassel, Department Head of Political Science at GSU; Roscoe Williams, Associate Dean of Students at Augusta College; and Stephanie Ray, Counselor and Coordinator for Minority Programs at GSU.

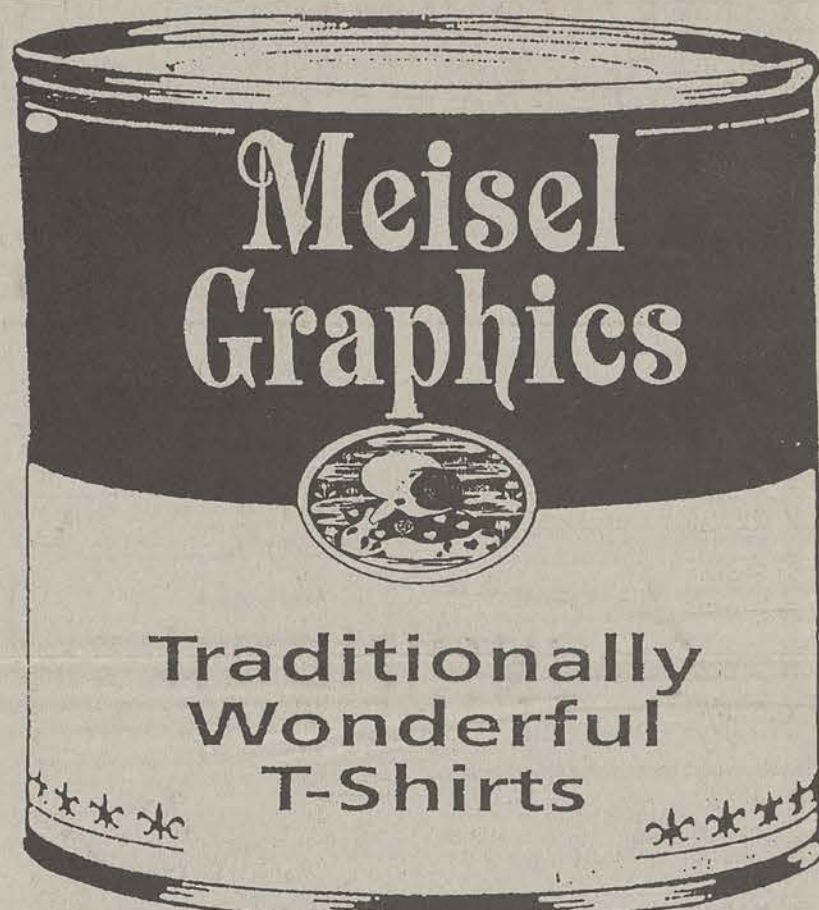

Some topics at the conference were: interracial and intraracial violence, new rules for Greek organizations, relationship abuse between males and females and racism.

McWhorter said that although attendance at the conference was better than expected, the participation of white students was lower than he had hoped for.

"There should have been more white students there because we talked about issues that affect all students on campus," he said.

He added that hopefully next time more white students will come out and get involved.

McWhorter said there has been some talk circulating about holding a similar summit in the fall.
