Former CAB/UP officer says name change was 'forced'

Union Director Cashon: 'I wouldn't call it force, I simply said this is what we need to do'

G-A Staff Reports

A former Union Productions (UP) student director claims the organization was forced to change their name by the Union Director.

Kevin Bolling, past student director of UP, claims Earl Cashon, Union Director, forced the then Campus Activities Board (CAB) to change their name to UP.

"I wouldn't call it force, I simply said this is what we need to do," said Cashon. "I told them we were changing philosophies that I wanted a different name with union involved in it."

"The members of CAB did not want to change the name to UP," said Bolling, in a letter to the George-Anne. "Cashon ... literally made the board change it's name."

Bolling, who resigned from his position in Spring quarter, stated that he went public because he didn't want students to think CAB employees had changed the name.

According to Dr. Nolen, vice-president of Academic Affairs,

Cashon has the right to suggest such a name change, but if anyone at UP were strongly opposed to the change, they could have come to Nolen and discussed the matter.

"We were told that people above us would not step in," said Bolling.

They did not approach Nolen on the matter, but did talk with "other staff at GSU."

"It is almost to the point where Cashon himself is picking the entertainment that comes to GSU

...," said Bolling.

"I don't even go to their meetings, I think that is totally erroneous," said Cashon. "[It's] ridiculous."

Cashon said he liked to give students a lot of responsibility, but sometimes they start thinking they are staff. "Students don't do the final picking."

There are two full time program advisors at UP, "They sign the contracts, they do the ultimate selection," said Cashon. "That's where the authority lies."

Three Students charged in death

By Kevin Hudson

Managing Editor

Three GSU students are being held pending charges of felony murder and entering auto in connection with the weekend death of a security guard during an apparent attempted auto theft at a local car dealership.

James Finch, 66, from Brooklet was pronounced dead at 12:45 a.m. Sunday at Bulloch Memorial Hospital. Finch was a security guard at Franklin Chevrolet/Toyota on Highway 80 East.

City police, responding to a citizen complaint, approached the dealership and spotted a jeep being driven by a white male leaving the scene.

According to the police report, a security guard pointed to two white males running across the open lot as Officers Jim Costlow and James Wilkinson arrived.

According to the report, the security guard advised Costlow that the white male driving the jeep had dropped the other two males off at the dealership.

Costlow then advised the police department of the tag number on the Jeep. Officers Randy Woodcock and Allison Baker picked up the driver within minutes according to the report.

utes according to the report.

The security guard identified the white male as the driver of the jeep. Police report identified the driver as James Daniel Bennett III, 18, a GSU student from Swainsboro.

The other two suspects were picked up later by the GSU Police Department. They were identified in the report as Jason Josep Baker, 20, a white male GSU student from Braselton and Patrick Parker, 19, a white male GSU student from Garfield.

Sergeant Vince Alewine arrived at Franklin's a short time after Costlow and Wilkinson. The security guard had gone into the office and Alewine went in to check on him. Finch was found unconscious sitting in a chair.

EMS was called to the scene and transported the security guard to BMH where he was pronounced dead.

News reports have alleged Finch died of an apparent heart attack, however the cause of death is still under investigation.

At presstime, all three suspects were being held in the city jail pending further court action.

The incident is still under investigation by the Statesboro Police Department and the Bulloch County Coroner.

SGA plans election

GSU news service

SGA will hold elections for the office of Vice-President of Auxiliary Affairs on Wednesday.

Jonathan Brown, Robert Hedstrom and Andy Mealor will be the three candidates running for office.

Brown, a junior from Lithonia, Georgia, is a criminal justice major who is currently a SGA senator.

He served as Sergeant of Arms in the Tau Epsilon fraternity, and has been involved Alpha Epsilon, the criminal justice fraternity.

In regard to his campaign, he says, "I really enjoy working with other people, helping them with their goals and other criteria in school."

Mealor, a junior from Monroe, Georgia, is an international business major.

He has served as Vice-President and as Pledge Trainer of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Mealor feels he has "the leadership abilities to be an asset to the Student Government Association because of leadership roles he has held throughout his high school and college careers."

Hedstrom is a senior majoring in Communication Arts with an emphasis in Public Relations. He is from Sumter, South Carolina.

He has been involved with Sigma Nu Fraternity as Historian, Public Relations Chairman and Rush Committees. He has served on the I.F.C. Board and as the public Relations Coordinator.

In regards to his candidacy, he said, "In order to be an effective leader in any position, one must possess good communication skills. The ability to work and relate well with other employees is a vital key to an organization's success. I feel that I possess these skills which can promote a good working relationship in the office and also with my fellow students on campus."

Students can vote on the candidates this Wednesday at the Union from 9 am until 5 pm.

Atlanta Braves win National League West pennant

Fans, players celebrate Atlanta's amazing 'miracle year'

By Richard Hyatt

Knight-Ridder Newspapers

ATLANTA — This city gave itself a big hug Saturday afternoon, and it didn't want to let go.

Atlanta's baseball team — the Braves — is the champion of the National League West. They clawed their way out of a cellar deepened by the years they've been there. They did it by defeating the Houston Astros, 5-2. They did it by watching the centerfield screen as their West Coast adversaries, the Los Angeles Dodgers, unraveled in San Francisco.

The moments were magic. It began as the innings clicked away, here and at faraway Candlestick Park.

No one could sit down. The eerie tribal chants that no one seemed to start were bouncing from one side of the stadium to the other.

Police SWAT teams, wearing their game faces and their night sticks, were the only ones not raising their arms or their tommy-hawks.

The ninth inning moved quickly. Terrance Blackwell, a stadium security officer, got his place in place.

"When there's two outs, spread out on top of the dugout," he told his guys.

Heavyweight champion

Evander Holyfield, who grew up blocks away from the stadium, had left early. Nobody else followed. They were just standing there, watching the Braves retire the Astros and watching the message board that reported the Dodger demise.

Two outs. The second hand was ticking slowly. Players crouched on the edge of the dugout. Fans stopped chopping. Guys in the bullpen stopped throwing.

Fly ball to right. David Justice squeezes it. He strikes a pose. He raises a single finger.

Emotions explode. Players ride each other's backs. Fans can't stop whooping. There are hugs, everywhere. There are horses, a large reminder of what could happen.

Over the PA, BTO sings about "Taking Care of Business." And the business of baseball has been finished for today, first here, then in Frisco where the Giants have taken care of LA. The screen is split. There's the image of a frowning Brett Butler, a former Brave who still lives here. Next to him is Braves pitcher John Smoltz, leaping like a limber acrobat.

The second party can now begin. Now it is really over, at least until there is time to think about Pittsburgh's Pirates.

Players wave thank-yous to their fans, throwing their blue caps into the crowd. Everywhere there are those hugs, the kind that have been saved for so long. To this town, it felt good.

"After 25 years, this has been a long time coming," said U.S. Sen. Wyche Fowler, an Atlanta native who grew up near this city's now departed minor league stadium.

Gary Leathers, who has had his season seats since 1987, said this was providential.

"In 1982, the Braves weren't supposed to win it, and they did. It had to happen again," Leathers said.

John Heyman moved here in 1969, the first time Atlanta won the division.

"This is better," he said. "In '69, I had just moved here from New York and I was a Mets fan."

Players had disappeared into the sanctity of the clubhouse. Now they were back. Wearing brand new championship caps and T-shirts.

Around the entire field they ran. This was their moment. Maybe this would be their only chance to take a victory lap. They were acting like boys, remembering for now that is a boy's game. No agents. No contracts. Just boys.

Like most of the sellout crowd, Tom Moran stood there, savoring and smiling. He's a marketing executive with Shell Oil. His company has had box seats since 1969, partly for PR purposes, this year for baseball.

"There were many years when if we didn't throw the tickets away we had to force people to come. Not this year," Moran said.

Nobody wanted to leave. A toddler in overalls wearing an Indian headdress sat on her Daddy's shoulder. Up the aisle, a pre-schooler slept in his mother's lap. Some day they would be told they were here.

When the crowd did begin to leave, they took the party with them. Cesar Delcampo and Vance Wells joined four guys they didn't know in a chanting circle.

"One more time," Wells directed. "Louder!"

They were acting like fools and they loved it.

'Reunion' to be dedicated

Steel spirals upward to blend with boldly colored flags that create the new sculpture in front of the Foy Building.

Some feel this creation resembles dolphins while some say it resembles ski flags.

"That is the beauty of this sculpture, each individual has his or her own interpretation of what it is," said Richard Tichich, coordinator of this project.

Caroline Montague was commissioned by artist Betty Foy Sanders to create an environmental sculpture for the front lawn of the Foy Fine Arts Building.

A prospectus was sent around the state to artist challenging them with this project. "We got about 50 entries and then narrowed [it] down to one" said Tichich.

Sanders made these thematic suggestions for the artist: creativity, ascending upward, aspiration, life, four members of a family united as one and circular forms evolving to represent unity contrasting the square lines of the building.

Montague, an Atlanta resident, said, "Family members are all unique individuals, but are united by family bonds." Named "Reunion," this sculpture actually represents a family.

She explained, "The color flags are in arch of energy that says they are separate, but related members building together with a sense of celebration."

The fine arts building is named after J.P. Foy, Betty Foy Sanders' father. It was built during her husband's administration; 1963-1967. She has been an avid patron of the arts since 1963.

"Betty Foy Sanders commissioned this project with money that she saved from selling her paintings. This was very unselfish and is a nice way for creative energy to recycle," said Tichich.

For nearly two decades Sanders has donated sculptures and paintings to GSU which are formally called the Betty Foy Sanders Collection.

Most of this artwork is housed in Henderson Library. All of her donations have been artwork by Georgia artists.

"The sculpture spirals upward and therefore gives the impression of grace. It floats like a ballet dancer who doesn't seem to be pulled down by gravity," said Tichich.

"This upward spiraling is an important reference to families as well as GSU," he said.

"Since fall quarter is filled with hopes and dreams, it was decided that now would be a good time to dedicate this sculpture," Tichich said.

Talking dancer on campus

GSU News Service

Fearful of leaving home for the first time, worried about the end of a long-term relationship, and being on your own are things all college students can relate to and understand. Once the fear is gone, fresh starts and bright futures take on new lives of their own.

Celeste Miller, referred to as the "talking dancer," will present her own stories of new beginnings in her performance piece "Vision On 66," October 22 and 24 at 8 p.m. in the Foy Recital Hall.

"Vision On 66" is a story about a person far away from home and alone and stranded in a hotel on Route 66. The unknown highway soon becomes a new path toward a bright future and reveals a vision born out of the stories of some of the other fellow travelers she encounters down the "Will Rogers" Highway.

The eclectic column

Celeste Miller has toured extensively throughout the U.S., including a performance in Statesboro several years ago, with her "Lost and Found in America: Some of the Stories" production.

Tickets for this event will be distributed at the GSU Union Information counter. Tickets are free to students, faculty, staff, and administration with a valid GSU I.D. The tickets will be distributed exclusively to students October 8-15, and to everyone else beginning October 16. The ticket guarantees seating only until 7:50 p.m. in the Foy Recital Hall. Persons needing to purchase tickets may do so beginning October 16 at the CLEC office, room 111 Foy Building, or by calling 681-5434.

Now that all the excitement of the weekend is over, it's time to focus your mind back to the anxiety of this week's tests and assignments. You've been procrastinating and now the pressure is on to find time to cram it all in.

You can't concentrate because of the big argument you had with your girlfriend or boyfriend. And what about those meetings you have to attend this week? And those credit card bills! What should you do?

Stress is the body and mind's reaction to anything that is new, threatening, or exiting. Stress prepares you to act, and how you handle it affects your health and well-being.

Some stress is part of daily life, and it affects everyone. Furthermore, everyone needs some degree of stress to stay motivated; this is known as helpful or positive stress.

However, when there is too much stress on your mind and body, negative and harmful effects arise. This undesirable form of stress can cause anxiety, tightening of the neck area, tension headaches, backaches, sleep disturbances, depression and some serious physical problems.

You can learn to manage the stress of college life, and as soon as you do, you'll be better able to enjoy your college years. Some days you may become stressed by such things as a negative response from a professor, boss, or parent.

You may feel like running away from the problem or even arguing, but you must stay cool. This causes your adrenaline to become bottled up, having no place to go.

In a recent interview, Ford Bailey, at the GSU Counseling Center, suggested that one should try to prevent these negative situations from happening, and even though these situations come up occasionally try to keep them to a minimum.

Exercise is a way to drain this bottled-up adrenaline. It will also relieve some of your nervous energy and help condition your cardiovascular system to withstand stress.

Adequate sleep along with a balanced diet also helps reduce stress. This includes taking vitamins, reducing your intake of caffeine, and protecting your-

Unfounded comments

Recently, a local radio talk show host described the story "ID problems at stadium upset some students" [The George-Anne, Sept. 24] as unfounded and that the best part of the story was the headline.

We stand by our story, and invite anyone to review our source material or listen to the taped interview with athletic director David "Bucky" Wagner that was the basis for the article.

It disturbs us that this announcer, who has extremely close ties to GSU and its sports program, would announce that a news story has no merit without even listening to the source material first.

We hope that this type of unprofessional and petty behavior will not continue in the future.

Male perfume doesn't attract women at all

Most American guys are reluctant to use fragrances, on the theory that if you start wearing perfume, you're heading down a slippery slope that will inevitably lead to rouge, leotards, watching "Oprah," etc. So most guys prefer to emit only natural male aromas such as BO and ketchup.

To change this attitude, the fragrance industry has for years been running an advertising campaign based on the theme that a fragrance-wearing guy will need a fully charged cattle prod to fend off semi-naked women. You've seen the magazine ads, which usually feature a guy being stared at by a woman whose facial expression says: "I am receiving your fragrance! Let's have carnal relations right here in the magazine!"

The thing is, when I hear women talk about what they find attractive in a man, they never mention fragrance. Women don't care about shallow, superficial qualities. Women care about spiritual issues, such as: Does the man have cute buns?

Take my research department, Judi Smith. I want to stress that Judi is happily married to her husband, Tim, a total stud muffin and sex wolverine. But sometimes, for research purposes, Judi puts photographs of male models on the office wall, and these photographs tend to be bun-oriented.

So the question is, do male fragrances really attract women? In an effort to find out, I conducted a scientific test of two fragrances for men, starting with:

GIORGIO COLOGNE FOR MEN

I selected Giorgio because it met my stringent criterion, namely, I got a free publicity sample in the mail. I used the standard scientific test procedure of (1) sneaking up behind the males in my office, (2) firing a burst of cologne at their heads, and (3) sprinting off to a safe distance. The results were as follows:

- The males reacted to Giorgio in exactly the same way that a cockroach reacts to Raid. If there had been a giant refrigerator nearby, they would have scurried underneath it.

For alert readers only...

Dave Barry

• Females in the vicinity of the Giorgio-treated males definitely experienced a passionate emotion. "What is that SMELL?" is how they expressed it. To my knowledge, the office staff went through the entire day without a single episode of carnal relations. This was bad news for Giorgio, but good news for the human gene pool, considering the guys in my office.

I had high hopes for the next fragrance product:

LIQUID MAGNET

I found about this thanks to alert reader Robert T. Germaux, who sent me a mail advertisement that begins: "Would you like to turn beautiful women on instantly? Would you like beautiful girls to ignore your face and stare at your pants?"

Frankly, no, because of the ravioli stains. But anyway, according to the ad, Liquid Magnet contains a "rare distilled Swiss pheromone formula" that is irresistible to women. If you wear it, the ad claims, "Salesgirls, dental hygienists and other women will try to touch you, and may reach for your private parts!"

I personally, would not be thrilled if I were having my teeth cleaned, with a suction hose in my mouth and drool all over my bib, and a dental hygienist wearing gloves and a mask suddenly lunged for my personal region. Especially if she were holding a sharp instrument. But I felt it was important to test this product, so I generously sent off $39.95 of The Miami Herald's money.

Weeks later I received a small, crushed, torn, oozing brown package that looked like it had been delivered by Edward Scissorhands. Inside was a leaking cheap plastic spray bottle containing a yellowish fluid that you might mistake for public-

'White conspiracy' - a dangerous myth

From the editor's desk...

Gary A. Witte

When a large group of people begin to believe that another group is conspiring against them...things are going to turn violent.

There has been a lot of talk about conspiracies recently, specifically, that of a white conspiracy against African-Americans.

It seems that, in growing numbers, many African-Americans believe that the drug problems, increasing violence, and AIDS in inner cities are a result of a white conspiracy - the object of which is extermination.

On a recent CBS newscast, about a dozen, highly respected African-Americans sat together in a room and agreed that there was indeed a conspiracy. Most of the subjects had college degrees and many had doctorates.

I can't say I blame these people for thinking there is a plot of some sort.

If one were living in a neighborhood filled with crime and drugs, and little to no police protection, yet a few blocks away there were peaceful well-patrolled neighborhoods - one might start thinking that there was a deliberate plan behind it.

I can also say for sure that if "civic" organizations like the KKK or the skinheads were smart enough, they might try something like that.

But the conspiracy theory is a wonderfully seductive one, and it is human nature to listen to them with wide eyes and think that it is us against them.

Back in the late 1800's, a book called Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion was written, describing an alleged meeting of high Jewish officials. The book described how they would take over the world by way of a secret conspiracy.

As silly as this may sound now, the book was deadly seriousness back then.

The false book fueled anti-Semitism in Europe, and became one of Hitler's many "proofs" of the Jewish conspiracy.

Then came the Holocaust.

Which leads us back to the "white conspiracy."

The neat thing about conspiracy theories is that if you deny that there is a conspiracy, then you automatically become suspect.

After all, you could just be a front of the administration building demanding blood or better parking.

Maybe that sounds amusing, but when a large group of people begin to believe that another group is conspiring against them, then sooner or later, things are going to turn violent.

That is what is so dangerous about conspiracy theories.

True bigotry, for the most part, is a shapeless, unorganized thing. It is the average person, whose ideas and attitudes are shaped by their friends and family that are the main feeders of bigotry, hatred and violence.

I'm not saying that there aren't real conspiracies against African-Americans out there, but whites - as far as I know - did not invent AIDS, are not encouraging black-on-black violence, and are not trying to exclusively pump drugs into black neighborhoods.

The slimeballs who deal drugs are too interested in profit to care what race they deal their shit to.

So if there is an American-wide, or even a worldwide, "white conspiracy," then no one has gotten around to telling me about it yet.

Studies program will broaden your experience

I envision a world of BLACK: not the black representing derogatory statements and other negative thoughts but BLACK as an anachronism representing Beauty Love Ancestral history Culture and Knowledge of a diversified race.

Are you interested in broadening your academic experience?

If your response is yes, then perhaps you should "explore the history, culture and ideas of African and African American people," says Dr. Alfred Young, a professor in the Department of History.

For those who aren't aware, GSU is one of only two colleges in the state of Georgia that has an African and African American Studies Program (AAASP).

At the University of Georgia, you can receive an AAASP certificate. GSU offers a minor; twenty hours are required to obtain a minor. And, of that twenty there's a 5 credit hour prerequisite required.

If things continue to progress at GSU, then I'm hopeful a major will be offered soon.

Changes...

Philana Griffin

The African and African American program was official-ized winter quarter 1991. However, the program received recognition beforehand. Some of the courses that were offered previously are now a part of the AAASP course curriculum.

On July 1, the school received a grant of $119,000 from the U.S. Department of Education to assist and strengthen the program in various aspects.

A consultant, Armstad Robinson, visited GSU this summer. While he was here, there was a round-table discussion in the Carroll Building pertaining to the AAASP.

During the discussion, Robinson offered various suggestions that would contribute to the growth and development of the AAASP.

Broadening the selection of library resources, expanding and providing a broader variety of courses, and teaching skills and various approaches that would assist in dispelling the archaic myths pertaining to African and people of African descent were some concerns that were discussed at this information session.

In addition to these concerns, Armstad Robinson deemed it necessary to have a center that would display paintings, literature, sculptures and various other aspects of African and African American culture.

Dr. Young, whom I quoted before, is responsible for the formulation of this program. Upon his arrival to GSU in 1989 and departure from teaching at both Colgate and the University of New York, the attempt to establish an African and African American Studies Program has been an ongoing project for him.

Dr. Young had some assistance from the African and African American Studies Program Faculty which consist of 18 professors located in various departments. Professors David Dudley (English), E. Francois Manchuelle (History), V. Richard Persico (Sociology/Anthropology), Saba Jallow (Political Science), and Mical Whitaker (Communication Arts) are presently members of the Executive Committee.

The AAASP is not a new minor formulated just for African and people of African descent. It's imperative for other cultures to take these courses.

I concur with Dr. Young, exploring "the history, culture and ideas of African American people" will broaden students academic experience.

As a result of taking these courses, individuals of other cultures will have a better understanding of African and African Americans.

The derogatory statements and thoughts will be eliminated. And the new meaning of blackness will be a positive one.

Rod's Review

By Rod Swinson

Staff writer

Well, I just left the most exquisite cafeteria on the campus of GSU, and what I heard was a far cry from fan support for the Eagle football team.

Although Landrum was somewhat empty, the consensus was that the team just does deserve support until they earn support.

I must admit, after viewing the game on Sports South, I was not racing to my closet to get my shirt and hat that identifies me as an Eagle fan.

Even though comments ranged from: "We need a quarterback who doesn't think the football is the plague," to "If I were a receiver on the Eagles team, I would transfer, because I would never see the ball," I'm not going to give up on the team yet. They're just about to get the key player.

By the way, the sports editor says things are still going according to plan.

I really don't want to contradict my last column, but things are getting kind of tough for me.

As I was walking out of Landrum, I saw a rather symbolic sight. Walking ahead of me, was one of the more prominent defensive backs with a very noticeable limp, as if to say, "We lost and it hurt, and I'm not sure if we really have a leg to stand on."

Well let me leave the depth of despair, and move on to the land of luxuries, namely Atlanta.

How about the BRAVES!!!

Finally, I am proud to say that I'm a Braves fan.

I mean from worst to first in the span of a year, was simply an impossible dream at the beginning of the baseball season.

To be honest, I really didn't think it would happen in my life time.

I thought that the Hawks would be having a victory party in Dominique's club long before the Braves would be partying with Prime Time in his club.

I'm glad I was wrong. Hats off to the Braves.

Well I have been talking to a few of the basketball players ("C.Y." and Wendell), and things seem to be looking pretty good.

I'm looking forward to seeing the Eagle basketball team improve on their record from last year. The guys seem to be pretty focussed on the task at hand.

If the game was won in the mind, the Eagles positive attitude would warrant an undefeated season.

Now there is this matter of the picture that the Strong Points painted of Mr. Deion Sanders.

The impression that I received was one of utter dislike.

Well I have a different view of Prime Time. I think he is good for professional sports not to mention the media.

Regardless of your opinion about Deion as a person, the man has extraordinary talents.

To play two professional sports and have an impact in both of them is not an easy task. I admit he gets paid well for doing it, maybe too much just to entertain, but that's another issue.

The professional sports world makes money by providing entertainment that people will pay to go and watch.

Deion, in his profound wisdom, and utter conceit, is an entertainer in every aspect of the term.

Prime Time can have an entire stadium of people on the edge of their seats just waiting for the moment he's going to blast off.

Deion always provides the media with a highlight shot or some profound word that rings throughout the airwaves or across the wire service.

Mr. Sanders is a prime commodity in the business world. I mean names like Deion, Bo, Magic, oh and I can't forget MICHAEL, they just personify entertainment, and that translates into currency.

So in conclusion, Mr. Strong if the man was overrated, why would we be wasting precious space in the George-Anne to give him ink?

EKU makes it two in a row GSU 10-6

By Eric Weisenmiller

Assistant Sports Editor

It was a defensive battle Saturday night at Roy Kidd Stadium in Richmond, Kentucky as number six ranked GSU faced the number three ranked Eastern Kentucky Colonels in one of the best match ups of the season in Division I-AA.

The contest was a showcase of two stubborn defensive units. The Eagles could only manage to gain 194 yards of total offense compared with Eastern Kentucky's 191 yards.

Turnovers were the determining factor in the disappointing 10-6 defeat of the Eagles. Neither team could get their offensive machines in gear.

All but three of the points scored were set up by turnovers deep in the opposition's territory.

GSU who came into the game with a 2-2 record were looking to avenge last season's 42-34 loss to the Colonels which ended the Eagle's 38-game winning streak at Paulson Stadium.

On the opening kickoff Eastern Kentucky's Leon Brown coughed up the ball and GSU freshman Danny Britt recovered Eagles took over at the EKU 31 yard line.

After being penalized five yards for illegal procedure Quarterback Charles Bostick picked up 11 yards on the first offensive play. On the following play Bostick handed off to fullback Lester Effort who rambled 23 yards to the two yard line.

Three plays later converted slotback Albert Huntley plunged into the end zone from one yard out to put the Eagles on top early 6-0. The extra point attempt was blocked.

After exchanging punts the Colonels had the Eagles pinned at their own eight yard line. Then a Bostick fumble gave EKU the ball at the GSU 4 yard line.

Two plays later Tim Lester ran it in from the five.

The point after was good and the Colonels grabbed a lead which they would not relinquish.

Early in the second quarter, Eastern Kentucky put together the most substantial drive of the evening.

Starting at their own 35 yard line EKU marched to the GSU 9 yard line while eating up 6:25 of the clock.

The Eagle defense stalled the drive and forced the Colonels to settle for a Todd Duffy field goal.

At the half, EKU held the advantage 10-6.

GSU's comeback attempt was stifled by costly turnovers. Two Bostick fumbles squelched two of the Eagle's third quarter drives.

Interceptions by Mark Giles, Jim Mutimer and Mike Berry gave the Eagles the ball in decent field position, but the offence failed to capitalize.

With 1:08 remaining on the clock GSU took over on their own 43 yardline and installed the two-minute offense for an attempted comeback drive.

The Eagle hopes went unrealized, however, after Bostick lost his fourth fumble of the game. The final outcome was 10-6.

The Colonels improved their record to 4-1. The Eagles drop to 2-3.

"It's been so long since we've played a game in Paulson Stadium that I really don't think I can remember just what it looks like," said Coach Tim Stowers.

GSU hopes to return to their winning ways next Saturday as they return to the friendly confines of Paulson Stadium to face Western Carolina at 1 p.m.

Volleyball team wins first tournament ever

By Michael Strong

Sports Editor

The Lady Eagle volleyball team overcame stiff challenges and bad scheduling to win their first tournament in school history over the weekend.

"They sure surprised me," said Coach J.B. Claiborne. "I didn't expect it, but I'll take it."

The tournament featured GSU, Alabama State, Alabama A&M, South Carolina State, and Tuskegee

In addition to winning the tournament, senior setter Dee Cardell was named MVP of the tournament and Julie Ciezkowski was named to the All-Tournament team.

"I'm really happy for Dee," said Claiborne. "Julie played well, too. It was just a great weekend for us."

The Lady Eagles just plowed through the competition, winning 15 games and losing just two.

In their first match, they beat Alabama A&M, 15-5, 15-6, 15-12, then wiped out Paine, the host team, 15-8, 15-10, 15-7.

In those two matches, Alexis Dankulic had 22 kills and Nicci Borisek added 13. Cardell had 50 assists and Ciezkowski had eight aces.

They then faced Alabama State to get to the playoffs. Borisek went gonzo in the 15-12, 15-2, 15-12 victory with 16 kills and no errors for a .615 hitting percentage.

"She [Borisek] was incredible," said Claiborne. "But, we hit in streaks. Next game it was Julie. She had eight kills and no errors for a percentage of .500. But, we always had somebody hot."

They played Paine College in the semi-finals and took them in four games, 15-8, 15-9, 6-15, 15-10.

The loss of the fourth game was the first game they had dropped in the tournament.

In the finals, they faced a South Carolina State squad that had beaten them at home earlier this season, in four games.

But, the Lady Eagles returned the favor by beating S.C. State in four games, 15-10, 12-15, 15-7, 15-7.

"I was worried we were going to run out of gas," said Claiborne. "I wasn't subbing much and we had to play three matches in about three hours and the finals right after the semi-finals. Plus, they had beaten us earlier, but they came through."

Cardell finished the tournament with 129 assists, 12 kills and no errors. She had 309 assists going into the tournament and needed just 15 more to break her own record of 324 which she set last season.

"She's played on a bad ankle all year long," said Claiborne. "But, it didn't seem to bother her."

Ciezkowski had 34 kills and 18 aces. Dankulic and Borisek finished with 59 and 52 kills respectively.

Claiborne was quick to add that it was a complete team effort.

"They all played well," he said. "Jennifer Petelle was our blocking leader and Dee gave us leadership."

The Lady Eagles have been on a roll of late. They took a three match winning streak into the tournament and extended it to eight.

Soccer team drops tough one to FIU 4-0 at Eagle Field

By Elise Lane

Guest writer

The GSU soccer team was defeated by Florida International (FIU) at Eagle Field, 4-0, last Thursday.

"We played smart," said Coach Tom Norton. "But, we didn't track our man all the way down the field. We let him loose inside the 18 [yard line] and they scored."

The first scoring opportunity was created by Eagle midfielder Scott Sutton.

He picked off a pass at midfield and passed to an open Chris Martinez. The FIU defense collapsed around Martinez, who was unable to get off a shot.

The Golden Panthers retaliated with a scoring opportunity of their own, except they put the ball in the net.

At 8:40, Titto Torrejon laid a ball off past GSU goalkeeper Kevin Chambers and Don Gaillard ran it into net.

The Eagles did not let up the pressure. Joey DeSandre took a shot causing a FIU's goalkeeper to make a brilliant save. Ted Davidson also had a golden opportunity to score off a corner kick, but was unable to score.

FIU scored again at the 32:00 mark. At intermission, the score was 2-0 in favor of the Golden Panthers.

After halftime, both teams had plenty of opportunities to score.

FIU capitalized on those chances late in the game, at 75:10 and 81:21.

For the Eagles, Sutton hustled all over the field and created numerous scoring opportunities, but none found the back of the net. Adam Clark also had a strong defensive performance.

With less than a minute left on the clock, Andrew Hansen went down with an ankle injury. This brings the total of injured starters to four.

"We've got so many injuries," said Norton. "But, the guys are staying competitive."

The Eagles dropped to 2-6-2 overall and 0-3-1 in the Trans America Athletic Conference Eastern Division.

Two GSU players awarded the TAAC players of the week honors last week

By Elise Lane

Guest writer

Two GSU athletes have been selected as Trans America Athletic Conference (TAAC) Players of the Week for their respective sports, the conference announced last Tuesday.

Senior soccer player Ted Davidson and sophomore cross country runner Mike King are the first Eagles to be recognized this season.

Davidson scored two goals and added an assist in a 3-3 tie with Georgia State on Saturday and saved two goals with outstanding plays against South Carolina.

King captured the individual title at the West Georgia Invitational, finishing the five mile course in 26:20. He has placed highest among Eagles in each of their three competitions. GSU finished third to Samford and West Georgia in the latest meet.

Soccer team wrestles away win 2-0

By Michael Strong
Sports Editor

GSU defeated Winthrop 2-0 last Saturday at Eagle Field in what looked more like a wrestling match than a soccer game.

Three Winthrop players and a GSU player were cautioned and another Winthrop player was ejected.

But, the biggest difference in the game for the Eagles was the effort by the players.

"It was a good win," said Coach Tom Norton. "We were aggressive and we had a lot of effort, which we didn't have against FIU."

The game was a seesaw affair in the beginning with both teams moving the ball up and down the field.

Winthrop had the first scoring opportunity of the game at the 8:04 mark when Shane Sallie ripped a shot at Eagle goalkeeper Kevin Chambers.

Chambers blocked the shot, but was unable to hold onto the ball, but Joey DeSandre blocked the next shot, then cleared it to foil Winthrop.

The Eagles had a scoring chance at the 13:13 mark. DeSandre drilled a shot from the edge of the penalty area, but Winthrop goalkeeper Steve Pereira stoned him.

At 29:38, GSU's Brian Buback took a curving shot from about 25 yards out, but Pereira, despite being partially screened, slid over and made the save.

Senior midfielder Scott Sutton passes the ball up the field against Winthrop College. The Eagles defeated Winthrop 2-0 at Eagle Field Sunday (Photo By Tony Tocco)

Winthrop's Gary Baker tried to give his team the advantage less than a minute later when he tried to use a screen to roll a shot by Chambers, but he handled it with no problem.

With a bit less than nine minutes left in the first half, the Eagles had their best chance for a goal.

Dak Woods followed a shot into the goal to put the rebound in the net, but just before he could head the ball in a Winthrop player reached over and slapped it over the net and out of bounds. No call was made on the hand ball.

The first half ended in 0-0 tie.

The second half began with the Eagles dominating the tempo and flow of the game and Winthrop committing a lot of hard fouls.

At 51:27 a string of actions by the referee turned the tide of the game.

First, he cautioned Winthrop's Kwesi Wilburg for ungentlemanly conduct, then ejected Brian Naylorm for striking and then cautioned Jim Lord. All occurred in just a little over one minute.

GSU seized the momentum during the spree and scored between the ejection and the second caution.

Chuck Hayes took the ball up the left wing and found a wide open Chris Chambers in the center of the goal box, who put the ball in for the easy score.

Winthrop would never recover from the goal and the referee's actions.

The Eagles added another goal less than two minutes after scoring the first one when DeSandre put one in with an assist from Scott Sutton.

With Winthrop being a man short, GSU moved the ball around a lot and kept them moving, but would not score again.

GSU's Chambers, the Eagles all-time leader in shutouts, got his first shutout of the season.

"I'm sure he feels good about it," said Norton. "This should do his confidence some good and for the defense as well."

The Eagles improved to 3-6-2. They play Flagler College on tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Eagle Field.

Cross Country teams races to fifth place

By Chris Smith
Staff writer

Both of the GSU mens' and womens' cross-country teams competed in the Georgia Intercollegiate meet in Atlanta this weekend.

The mens' team placed fifth overall and the women placed sixth.

The meet was very competitive as it consisted of only the teams from the state of Georgia.

The men were led by Mike King who finished eleventh overall as he was the only runner to receive all state honors for GSU on the mens' side.

The fifth place finish was GSU highest finish ever in this meet.

Other top finishers for the mens' team were Gene Sapino, Chris Smith, Cedric Crumbley, Tommy Trent, Don Daniels, Jay Knight, Brad Simmons, Chris Sherwood, Mike Brinkmeyer, Matt McDuffie, and Tim Willis.

The womens' team was paced by Alicia Hewes, who also received all state honors with a fourteenth overall finish.

Hewes, the only senior on either team, ran to all state honors for the fourth year consecutive year.

Other top finishers for the womens' team were Beth Thomas, Jessica Lloyd, Angie Stewart, Gail McLeroy, Gina Nunnally, self from the lowered immunity caused by stress. The last thing you need is to get sick during stressful times.

Also managing your time is helpful. It takes planning ahead, studying every day, and doing some work on each subject each day so that you won't get behind and have to pull an all-nighter.

Most importantly, relax. Take the time to enjoy your hobbies - whether it's music, a favorite television show, or a nice warm bubble bath. Also every now and then take a few deep breaths to clear your mind. Better yet, close your eyes and imagine yourself in a very relaxed place, such as on a sandy beach chatting with your favorite celebrity, as if he or she is your best friend. Wow!

These are only a few ways to manage stress, and if carried out on a consistent basis you can keep your stress to a minimum.

However, if you have a chronic condition of stress please contact the GSU Counseling Center (located in the right wing of the Health Services Building) or call 681-5541. The office hours are from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. (Monday through Friday).

Because college students are faced with many challenges, they experience numerous stressful situations. However, with effective stress management you will be able to keep things in proper perspective.

Ogeechee Clinic Is Pleased To Announce the addition of a full time family nurse practitioner to their staff. Patricia Law, certified family nurse practitioner, has joined the obstetric/gynecological practice and is now accepting appointments.

According to Ogeechee Clinic personnel, the addition of a nurse practitioner will enhance patient care by providing women's health care including management of obstetrical and gynecological problems, patient education, and counseling, as well as lessen the waiting time for patients in the office.

Ms. Law is a graduate of Georgia Southern University's accredited nursing program and received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing in 1984. She later returned to complete the Family Nurse Practitioner program in 1987 and has worked in family practice the past four years. She is a native of Glennville, Georgia and currently resides in Statesboro with her husband and four-year-old son.

Appointments can be made by calling Ogeechee Clinic, Monday through Friday, 8:30am - 4:30pm.
