SGA Elections To Be Held April 18 & 19

by Deloris Sims

If you have ever complained about the cost of books....If you've ever tried to check out a library book only to discover that it had been stolen....If you've ever been scheduled for a class that you "HAD" to have and found that it was offered only during the activities hour....

Now is your chance to make your voice heard - to be a participant in the search for solutions to problems on our campus. Now is your chance to stop complaining and do something! "Do what?", you may ask. Well, the first thing you can do is participate in the spring elections coming up April 18 & 19. The least you should do is to cast your vote for the candidates of your choice. Executive officers as well as Senators from the schools of Human Services, Education, Arts and Sciences, and from the Sophomore class will be elected to serve you during the 1983-84 school year. If you would like to do more than just cast your vote, call Leslie Warnock at 925-7544 or contact the Student Activities Office at 927-5300 and volunteer your services as a poll worker for a few hours during the elections. Voting booths on loan from the county will be used for this election and there will be a short training session for anyone who could volunteer to help man the polls.

During this past year the Student Government has been active in many areas of campus life. The problems of disappearing library books, the high cost of textbooks, maintaining the activities hour, and the need for more outside lighting and outdoor furniture on the Human Services patio are just a few of the topics that the Senate has investigated during the 1982-83 school year. However, the biggest problem on the Armstrong campus is one that the members of the student government cannot solve alone. They need the help of every member of the student body. That problem is a need for student input. If you care about what happens at Armstrong....If you would like to have an active role in deciding what happens at Armstrong - Then go by the Student Activities

Therapists Fair Well

A total of 86 percent of the first graduating class from Armstrong State College's Respiratory Therapy Program have passed the Clinical Simulation Examination administered in December.

The college's pass rate was considerably higher than the national pass rate of 49 percent.

The simulation exam tests a graduate's ability to apply knowledge to clinical practice. Graduates must pass both the comprehensive written exam and the clinical simulation exam before they can be credentialed as Registered Respiratory Therapists (RRT).

Armstrong's Respiratory Therapy program began Fall Quarter 1979 and is headed by Ross Bowers.

Blue Angels Coming To ASC

The world famous Navy Blue Angels precision flying team will visit the ASC campus on Friday, April 8th in the Jenkins Hall Auditorium at 9:30am. Though the Blue Angels have demonstrated their expert airmanship in the HAAF Air Show several times, this marks the first time that they have made an appearance on campus. Their visit will include a lecture, a film presentation, and a short question and answer period. They will also visit the friendly skies of Savannah, April 9 and 10 during the Hunter AAF's "Salute to Savannah" Air

Show.

As an introduction for the few that are not familiar with the Blue Angels, they are the U.S. Navy's precision flying squadron that tours the United States each year, demonstrating precision acrobatics as well as dazzling maneuvers to the public. Though some of their maneuvers may be considered as stunts, they are in actuality only highly polished maneuvers that are taught to each and every Naval Aviator. Their trademark is what is called a "diamond formation" in which each aircraft is flying next to each other in a diamond shape with only 36 inches separating wingtip to canopy. Other maneuvers that the Blue Angels perform with that 36 inch separation includes loops, rolls, low level acrobatics, and a delta formation.

The pilots who compose the precision acrobatic team are all Navy or Marine Corps officers that have gone through Naval flight training and have had tours of duty with various squadrons aboard U.S. Navy Aircraft Carriers. Their academic background is as wide and varied as can be; from technical majors to liberal arts; from the Naval Academy to civilian colleges via Navy R.O.T.C. or through Aviation Officer Candidate School. Backing up these men and their aircraft are highly technical and experienced Navy enlisted personnel who are the creme' de la 'creme of their respected fields. It is a team effort; requiring the best that both pilot and aircraft repair technician can provide and deliver.

The Blue Angels are not a new outfit, but rather a seasoned outfit with 37 years of distinguished service to both the Navy and the United States. The first flight exhibition was started up in 1946, demonstrating aerial military maneuvers in close formation. The first aircraft used were propeller driven. However, as technology increased, they transitioned to more and more advanced jet aircraft. And with the improved aircraft, came more and more precise and dazzling acrobatic maneuvers.

The Blue Angels flight demonstration is a true spectacle which should be on everyone's calendar. As a warm up, all students and faculty are cordially invited to attend the presentation

GCA Sponsors Grant-Writing Seminar

The Georgia Council for the Arts (GCA) will sponsor a free grant-writing seminar designed specifically for individual Georgia artists interested in applying to the Council for funding under the Artist-Initiated Program. The seminar, to be conducted by GCA Assistant Director Corinne Anderson, will be held in Atlanta on Thursday, April 7, from 6:30-8:30pm at the Walter C. Hill Auditorium in the Atlanta Memorial Arts Building of the Robert W. Woodruff Arts Center, 1280 Peachtree St., N.E.

The Council's revised "Guide to Programs" containing updated application forms will be available at the seminar. "Artists can avoid making mistakes on the revised form by attending the seminar, which will include a step-by-step review of the application process," Ms. Anderson said.

The seminar on April 7 is the only one scheduled before the May 1 application deadline for this grant category.

Projects proposed by individual artists under the Artist-Initiated Program must be sponsored by a non-profit, tax-exempt organization. The applications for grant funding will be judged on artistic merit and potential career benefit for the artists. Examples of typical projects include exhibition of artwork, production of a new script or a newly choreographed work, performance of original music, or publication of written work or exhibition catalogs.

For further information, contact the Georgia Council for the Arts, 2082 East Exchange Place, Suite 100, Tucker, Ga. 30084, (404) 656-3967.

Dong Kingman Showing

Internationally-known watercolorist Dong Kingman will present a watercolor painting lecture/demonstration in the Fine Arts Center, Armstrong State College, on April 7 from 1-5 p.m.

Kingman was born in Oakland, California in 1911 and studied art and calligraphy during his formative years in China. His unique technique combines East and West.

Frustrated by oil painting, Kingman began to paint in watercolors in 1931. His reputation was established in 1935 after a successful one-man exhibition in San Francisco.

Kingman has taught at Columbia University and Hunter College. His work is included in numerous private collections and in more than fifty permanent museum collections such as the Museum of Modern Art, the Boston Museum of Art and the National Academy of Design.

Among his many awards are the 150th Anniversary Gold Medal from the National Academy of Design, the Walter Bigg Memorial Award from the National Academy of Design, the V.K. McCracken Young Award, the Ford-Times Award and the Barse Miller Memorial Award.

Kingman has also written a book with his wife Helena Kuo Kingman titled "Dong Kingman's Watercolors," published by Watson Guptill Inc.

578 Students Eat Lead and Die Sniper Unleashes Campus Carnage

by Ronnie Thompson (ABS) Savannah—

A lot of people got killed the other day.

A crazy man with a gun is being sought by the authorities after he gunned down innocent students gathered outside Armstrong State College's MCC Building at 4pm EST on Friday. The students were gathered for an anti-Soviet rally. Latest body counts indicate that at least 578 students perished in the bloodbath.

Georgia Governor Joe Prank Polaris was one of many officials throughout the United States expressing shock and outrage at the brutal murders. "I can't believe someone could kill so many people," said Polaris. President Reagan cited the incident as "just another example of the evil of Communism."

"By the time my men got to Armstrong, there was not much left," said

Savannah police chief David Geratly at a Saturday press conference. Armstrong's Acting President Bobby B. Burdette called the massacre "the most heinous crime since Afghanistan."

gallant students attempted to dislodge the sniper by entering the building on the north, south, and west entrances. Once inside, the unfortunate heroes discovered that the stairwells leading to the second floor had been mined. One Emergency Medical Service technician described the stairwell incident as "the most gruesome scene I had ever seen. The stairs and walls were covered with burning arms, legs, heads and other human paraphernalia. It almost made me spittle up my McDonald's Happy Meal."

So far only a handful of victims have been identified. Armstrong Security Chief Hans L. Gretel said "It's a good thing these people were issued student I.D. cards, otherwise we'd never be able to identify what's left."

The whereabouts of the mysterious murderer are unknown. Law enforcement agents are baffled by their inability to locate him. F.B.I. agent Gilbert K. Kincaid speculated that "The gunman may have been beamed aboard an alien

MCC Changing

by Timothy Haeussler

School administrators have announced that certain renovations will be made to the Memorial Student Center over the summer in order to increase college revenues beginning Fall Quarter 1983. The school anticipates that the renovations, at an initial estimated cost of $94,713.28, will quickly pay for themselves.

The first stage of the new Armstrong Discotheque will be the construction of a large dance floor in the center of the cafeteria. Windows will be tinted or else dark drapes will be hung. Tables will be placed around the dance floor, as well as in the lobby to provide a quieter atmosphere for tamer patrons. Comedy acts will also be booked for performance in The Lobby.

The kitchen will remain operational, as will the game room and Studio A, with sporting events as well as movies shown on the wide screen. Two bars will be built, one in the cafeteria and another in the lobby. Restroom facilities will be expanded. The second floor will eventually be remodelled and refurbished to accommodate offices and suites for visiting dignitaries.

The project should become operational in early September, just in time for a Back-To-School-Grand-Opening-Bash. Officials expect the operation to be in the black by mid-Winter Quarter 1984.

The building will still serve as a cafeteria during the morning and early afternoon hours. Construction will be carried out in small phases so as to limit disturbance to the students. Profit from the operation has been tentatively allocated for the construction of an entirely new student center, as well as other needed school facilities.

Superstar Eddie Bachaencher staged comeback bid.

"Aench" Returns

Armstrong's baseball team's bid to extend their 23-game winning streak looked doomed to end Thursday after the entire team came down with the flu Wednesday night. Eddie "Aench" Bachaencher came out of retirement, however, to volunteer his services to Coach Robert Huckleberry. Huckleberry was reluctant to allow Bachaencher to play after such a lengthy retirement, but he found himself with no other alternative, so he let Bachaencher play all nine positions.

Facing Division I Levigh, "Aench" showed little sign of being rusty in the first inning, as he quickly built up a 3-0 lead, knocking himself in once and then scoring on a throwing error and a wild pitch. All of that running around must have tired Bachaencher because he began to look fatigued on the mound and had trouble chasing down balls in the outfield. Levigh built up an 8-3 lead in by the eighth.

"Aench" caught his second wind at that point and showed his true champion form. He rallied for two more runs, but his comeback fell short.

Bachaencher was only 7-for-39 at the plate and his pitching was only mediocre. But Coach Huckleberry said, "When you win 23 in a row, it's kind of hard to get upset at Eddie for losing one."

On a serious note, Armstrong's 23-game winning streak was a school record and fell just short of the NAIA record. The collegiate record is 28 games.

Armstrong rebounded from the streak-snapping loss to Lehigh, downing Bethune-Cookman 5-1 and 3-1 Saturday and then splitting with Georgia College 1-3 and 3-2 Sunday. Armstrong and Georgia College had both been undefeated in District play going into those games. Armstrong now stands 29-8 on the year.

World in Review

Mary Poppins (Disneyland)

by T. J. Haeussler

Although it's been years since the movie was released theatrically, with the television airing of Mary Poppins in the last year or two, sales of the soundtrack to this film have jumped dramatically.

The music is as timeless as the spectacular footage in the movie. While the American listener may find the thick English accent a bit tedious in spots, this barrier is transcended for the most part by the stirring message the album holds. The theme of this album is one of frivolity ("I Love to Laugh") and of taking life in stride. "In ev'ry job that must be done there is an element of fun," states "A Spoonful of Sugar."

There is no electronic gadgetry used on this album, just straightforward music. Choruses of chimney sweeps and animals are utilized on several tracks, however, to give the listener a feeling of harmony with society and nature. Some critics argue the album to be voicing opposition against a wealthy upper class, since it centers around chimney sweeps in London, but I find no proletarian message. In fact, the upper class of society is strangely absent from the entire album. Walt Disney seems to be urging us to accept our lot and live for today, in simplistic terms.

The songs of this album seem to flow together and carry, for the most part, a lively, upbeat tempo, with the curious exception of "Feed the Birds" in the middle of Side 2. This song, with its somber, melancholy tale of the Little Old Bird Woman, is a startling contrast to "I Love to Laugh" and "Chim Chim Cheree," between which it falls. The song seems greatly out of place, but keeps the listener in touch with reality in the midst of a world of fantasy.

The album as a whole, while perhaps not a classic, is very well done, nothing short of "super-calefragilisticexpialidocious." It's the kind of legacy that should be passed down from generation to generation. If you haven't gotten a copy of Mary Poppins for yourself, then get one for your children or grandchildren.

Alfalpa Thater Hosts Meeting

The Armstrong chapter of Alfalfa Thater, international history of the film industry honor society, hosted the state convention of the society this past Saturday. The event was held at Spanky's Southside location. Guest speaker Buckwheat, an acclaimed international celebrity, presented a talk on child actors of the 1930's. Jackie Cooper, president of the society, said that he was very pleased with the way the convention went.

When asked what he thought of the city of Savannah, Buckwheat replied that he thought the city to be "o-tay."

Beatles—Sgt. Pepper (Capitol)

by Michael Barker

Who are these guys, anyway? One of those New Wave groups from England? I was in the local record store asking which album I should review, and the clerk handed it to me and said, "Try this. These guys are great." That was my first mistake.

I don't like to be blunt, but in this case I have to—the album stinks. The mixing is the worst I've heard in years (it sounds like it was recorded in a bathroom), and the music sounds as if they paid other musicians to play it—I mean, can they play trumpet, harp, strings, and woodwinds?

As far as lyrics are concerned, they deal with real contemporary subjects. Take, for example, the title song, which deals with an old band leader trying to make a comeback—hardly an everyday occurrence. Another song deals with a girl being chased at 6-Flags over Georgia. The girl, Lucy, runs by "plastecine porters with looking-glass ties" in her desperate attempt to escape. The ordeal gives the girl a glassy, multi-colored look in her eyes—I think they used the term "kaleidoscope." Yet another song deals with a love affair with a meter maid named Rita. It sounds like they are scraping the bottom.

Perhaps if we get Margaret Thatcher mad at us, we could break off Anglo-American relations. Only then can we keep trash like this out of the record stores and away from the impressionable youths of this great land of ours.
