We Saw Rick ...

During Homecoming Week '86 Rick Zakrajeck bared almost all in order to win the Legs contest on Thursday. While not showing as much as Rick, Charley the Rooster (ASC's version of the Coastal Carolina mascot) won his life with help from Tricia Logue and others, despite chants of "Burn the Bird" at the bonfire pep rally. For a complete wrap-up of homecoming '86, see page 5.

Free, Free, Set Them Free

by MARIUS RUJA

(EDITORS' NOTE: The following article presents, in response to the International Conference Against Apartheid, held in Atlanta on the eve of the recognition of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, a cogent and incisive look at what we sometimes overlook: the frustration and injustice of apartheid. While the article presents a somewhat personal view, the facts remain irrefutable.)

"May we have a moment of silence for the people who have died and who are still living in the Republic of South Africa and may we thank God for the human rights and freedom we take for granted in this country."

The moment for this silence is for them and also for us. It is time to stop the "rat race" we are into and just take a few minutes to think in a rational and logical way on an issue that is as plain to see as the difference between black and white. There is a country here on earth in this year 1986 that is performing the largest magic act in the history of the world. It is a type of government, who is taking human beings and mysteriously taking away their freedom, their dignity, their nationality, their pride to live, and turning them into expendable livestock to be used to reproduce more and more white money! The most wonderful thing about this magic act is that it is taking place right on our T.V. sets and right in front of our eyes. The funny thing is that we are enjoying it and tuning in every night: same bat-time, same bat-channel and excitingly watching more and more magic acts.

Well the time has come for all to grow up and be enlightened on the tricks and schemes of "Apartheid!"

WHAT IS APARTHEID?

An Afrikaans word meaning "apart - ness," designates the type of government that is found in the Republic of South Africa. The two basic policies of Apartheid are racial separation and white supremacy. Apartheid is firstly a policy of racial separation.

Such segregation rests on sociological and theological assumptions that races are the fundamental divisions of mankind, and that each race has its own peculiar culture and destiny which cannot be fulfilled if races intermingle in a common society. In South Africa the separation aspect of apartheid is expressed in law as well as in custom. Every resident is classified officially by race. There are separate educational facilities for each race.

Marriage or cohabitation between white and other races is unlawful. Only Africans may own land in the "Bantu area" but they may not own land in the "white area."

Apartheid involves more than separation. The white population in South Africa occupies a position of supremacy based on history and enforced by the law. The central government has sovereign power over the entire country in which only whites may be part of the parliament and the cabinet. Members of the parliament are elected by white voters only; the blacks do not vote. African chiefs are paid by the government and may be dismissed by the government.

African unions are not recognized in industrial bargaining. Only whites may possess firearms and carry arms in the military and police force. Organizations opposing apartheid are barred: their leaders imprisoned or "silenced."

LIFE UNDER APARTHEID

The fundamental aims of apartheid is the regulation of the flow of cheap labor into the white owned mines, factories and farms; secondly, to forestall any emergence of a permanent and united black urban population that could challenge the white minority. Under the present South African society, the status of the Africa people is of mere "transients," who are permitted to work temporarily in the "white-only" industrial centers. To protect this system, there are 150 laws which are enforced daily. The overall purpose is to guarantee that 24 million Africans remain "citizens" of 13.7% of the most barren land, while being stripped of any rights to the rest of the country. Incidentally, in the constitution of the Republic of South Africa, blacks are only mentioned in one sentence.

WORKING FORCE

Black labor makes 90% of the national labor force. Of the million Black farm workers 570,000 were migrant laborers; and of the 400,000 mine workers the majority were immigrant laborers with thousands coming from Lesotho, Botswana, and Mozambique, the Black worker receives a monthly average of $140, while white workers are paid an average of $1,000 per month!

HEALTH

The life expectancy for whites in South Africa is 72 years, while for "coloureds" is 56 years and 53 years for Africans. 50% of all deaths suffered by Africans and "coloureds" are those of children under 5 years old, and 52% of all 2 to 3 year olds in the bantustans suffer from malnutrition.

In South Africa only 2.8% of the 17,374 registered doctors work in the bantustans.

SHUTTLE

The space tragedy that happened has already been compared with the tragedy that swept the nation in 1963 when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas - Ft. Worth. Like the Kennedy assassination, the television was there broadcasting a live coverage of what was happening.

The television made you feel like you were there. I'm not old enough to remember Kennedy, but if this tragedy is a comparison to his assassination I definitely know the feeling and the impact it had on our nation. The tv gave us not a front-row seat, but it put us in the dining room, the living room; it made us feel like we knew the victims. I was in shock, and I felt like as if I had lost something when the shuttle exploded. I was not there but the tv made me feel like I was there, that I did know those seven people.

I still see the tv video coverage in my mind as though it was plain as day. And even more I still feel the grief and loss that the families and the people of this nation felt.

Had I only read the story I might be feeling less emotion. But because I saw it live I felt that I was actually there. The power of live television coverage is phenomenal. It conveys almost a picture perfect image of emotion surrounding an event. The assassination of Kennedy literally stopped the nation. The people saw their beloved president being killed. Once again this nation has been shocked. Not because the seven that died were prominent. They weren't. The seven that died represented the every-day person. They were people like us.

Television gave us a vision that we knew these people and when they died we felt as if we had lost a dear friend. Because of television the impact is more severe. Even without television I believe this tragedy would have been felt since it was the first and hopefully the last of it's kind.

SCUTTLE

Let him eat crow. Well, I settled for turkey appropriately enough as the Chicago Bears mauled New England 46 - 10. I admit the Bears are and were the best team in pro-football this past season. Their defense now ranks with the likes of Dallas' Doomsday bunch and the Steel Curtain of old.

I am not sorry or ashamed for picking the Patriots as prohibitive favorites. I made my choice based on sound, deductive reasoning. There was just one problem with that, however; the Bear's success this season, in such an overwhelming fashion, denies (or negates) any such logic. Why was I wrong? I was wrong because Chicago whipped me with my own logic. How you say? Well, several years ago Chicago began to meticulously (and successfully) draft individuals with a lot of talent for their past defensive problems. The fruits of their labors are now appreciated by every Bear's fan. The "46" defense is awesome I admit, but next year may be different. So savor their success for now all you Bears' fans, next year WILL be different. My team will win the NFC Central, not Chicago.

P.E. REBUTTAL

There seems to be a poor opinion of Physical Education on our campus. This article's purpose is to enlighten the public's awareness of what Physical Education actually is.

To start off with, let us look at what P.E. stands for. It does not represent games, sports, and athletics; instead it stands for the Education of the Physical and through the Physical. Physical Education deals with the total person not just the physical. Other areas of importance include the emotional, social, and intellectual being.

In our society the amount of physical activity required by a person has dropped substantially in the past 100 years. Seventy percent of the working population performs nonphysical tasks. This sedentary life-style leads to cardiovascular-disease, excessive weight gain, lack of social skills, and mental illness. Through Physical Education we try to educate people on how to improve their lifestyle—not just a better golf swing.

Our hectic life-styles have left many with problems of mental strain and stress. P.E. activities are an excellent way to combat these problems in comparison to alcohol and drugs. Exercise refreshes the mind and leaves room for creativity and reduces stress.

Movement is also related to one's self concept. It can improve one's sense of well-being and helps develop a positive outlook of life. Movement is imperative for development of one's body image.

The most important aspect of Physical Education is the prevention of cardiovascular disease. Exercise develops the heart and lungs so that they can function without undue strain. It also improves coronary circulation and reduces the risk of obstructive arterial disease.

According to the 1984 American Heart Association statistics, 42,750,000 Americans have one or more forms of heart or blood vessel disease. Cardiovascular diseases are the major cause of death in the United States, representing just under 50 percent of all deaths in 1981.

Viewing these statistics it is imperative that we understand why Physical Education needs to be stressed in our curriculum. P.E. activities are not taught to produce championship athletes, but instead to give an individual an activity that they want to participate in for a lifetime. These activities will help people achieve fitness that can lead them toward a healthy and productive life. Moreover, students who have the desire are encouraged to participate in extracurricular functions such as Intramurals and Athletics.

When considering the cost of the Physical Education budget it must show that our budget is comparable with the other mid-range departments. Our expenses involve the Intramurals as well. We do not feel it is justified to compare our budget within the school because naturally equipment is going to be more demanding in some areas. (ex. dental hygiene and computer science) We also feel our budget should not be compared because what price can you place on your education and your health?

Dealing with the issue that Physical Education majors should be the only ones required to take P.E. classes totally defeats our purpose. The Basic Health class, the swimming class and the choice of three activity classes are required to help you form a healthy lifestyle and a positive attitude in your endeavors at work, school, home, and leisure time. The underlying implication is that we all need Physical Education just as we all need English, Math, and History.

Our concern for this matter has prompted us to speak out for the policy required Physical Education for all college students. P.E. trains a student to be independent in his own decisions and life choices. Physical Education greatly enhances the attractiveness of the curriculum.

Awards

by GINGER CARVER

On January 22nd of this year, a banquet was held at the Abercorn Carey Hilliards in order to honor the recipients of the Phi Delta Kappa awards. Each year, this educational fraternity selects qualified students from each of the middle schools, high schools, and colleges in Savannah, and presents them with a certificate as well as a free dinner.

These students, according to Dr. A.D. Robinson, are selected because of their academic standing and community contributions. Any student is eligible to receive this award, but only if he/she is sponsored by a fraternity member.

This year Armstrong is lucky enough to have 3 Phi Delta Kappa award recipients. Sheleta Hudson, Cindy Lendig, and Jeffrey Smith. Because they are college students, these recipients were chosen according to their contributions to the ASC campus (along with the academic and community requirements). At the banquet, the students were treated to a speech by Cecil Carter, Deputy Superintendent of the Chatham County Public School system, and Ms. Hudson said that Deputy Superintendent Carter stressed the importance of leadership, scholarship, and citizenship in our developing lives. He went on to congratulate the recipients on their outstanding academic, community and campus achievements. Let's hear it for ASC's honorees, and all of the recipients, on receiving the Phi Delta Kappa awards!

Alpha Gamma Delta

by ALPHA GAM ANNIE

As this quarter progresses, Alpha Gams have been very busy participating in ASC events. The girls are ready for intramurals so watch out for our Pillo-Polo and bowling teams!

A warm welcome is extended to our newest pledge, Michelle Vichich. Gamma Rho chapter is so pleased and excited to have Michelle as a new member of Alpha Gamma Delta!!!

Some upcoming events that Alpha Gams will be participating in are the bus trip to Myrtle Beach for the ASC basketball game against Coastal Carolina and the chapter Crush Party on Valentines Day. Also, AGD is proud to announce that our annual Juvenile Diabetes Week will take place February 14th - 21st.

The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is Alpha Gamma Delta's national philanthropic project. Alpha Gam chapters all over the U.S. and Canada sponsor a JDF week each year with wonderful results. Diabetes is the third leading cause of death by disease in America, after heart disease and cancer. Last year, it claimed over 300,000 lives. More than 12 million Americans suffer from diabetes. Of these, 2 million are juvenile (or insulin dependent) diabetics. It is increasing at a rate of 6 percent each year. Diabetes often leads to heart attack, stroke, kidney disease, gangrene, nerve damage, and is also the cause of new cases of blindness.

In children, the onset of diabetes can be particularly swift and severe, the course of the disease unstable, and the problems acute. Presently, one-half of these individuals die from kidney disease within an average of 25 years following the diagnosis of diabetes. Women are 50 percent more likely to have diabetes than men; non-whites are 20 percent more likely to have it than whites; lower income people are 3 times more likely to have it than middle and upper income people.

All proceeds made during JDF Week will go in full to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. This money goes partially towards those who have juvenile diabetes; however the majority of the contributions go to research for a cure. We would appreciate your help in raising money for this great cause. So get involved in our JDF Week festivities and join in the fun while helping find a cure for JDF!!!

Part III: Protection of the Witness

(EDITORS NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles by INKWELL staff writer Heidi Becker on victim assistance in our society.)

by HEIDI BECKER

Thousands of American's refuse each year to testify in criminal trials for fear of retaliation by the accused. The problem of intimidation, which usually involves mobsters or major drug dealers, encompasses countless burglaries, robberies, rapes, and incidents of domestic violence that police never even hear about because victims and witnesses are afraid to report them. They have seen what the defendant is capable of.

The Constitution explicitly requires only that the defendant have the opportunity to confront an accuser in court; however, judicial rules in many state's require that the identity of all witnesses testifying be made known to defendants so that they can attempt to rebut the testimony. Yet there are many jurisdictions that are concealing the identities of some witnesses until they actually take the stand. Georgia is not one of them.

Section 17-7-110 of the Official Code of Georgia Annotated provides that, "Prior to his arraignment, every person charged with a criminal offense shall, on demand, be furnished with a copy of the indictment or accusation and a list of witnesses on whose testimony the charges against him are founded. Without the consent of the defendant, no witness shall be permitted to testify for the state whose name does not appear on the list of witnesses as furnished to the defendant unless the prosecuting attorney shall state that the evidence sought to be presented is newly discovered evidence which the state was not aware of at the time of furnishing the defendant with a list of witnesses."

While 17-7-110 states only "list of witnesses," a significant problem has recently focused on the newly adopted State Bar of Georgia Uniform Superior Court Rule 30.3 which states, "Upon request of the defense counsel, the district attorney shall furnish to defense counsel as an officer of the court, in confidence, the addresses and telephone numbers of the state's witnesses to the extent such are within the knowledge of the district attorney, unless for good cause the judge allows an exception to this requirement, in which event defense counsel shall be afforded an opportunity to interview such witnesses prior to the witness being called to testify."

One recommendation to this dilemma is accurately defined by the President's Task Force on Victims of Crime. It states, "Legislation should be proposed and enacted to ensure that addresses of victims and witnesses are not made public or available to defense, absent a clear need as determined by the court."

We can mitigate the fear manifested by safeguarding the addresses and phone numbers of crime victims and witnesses. Yet this issue is clouded because rule 30.3 was adopted in Georgia last summer. According to Elizabeth Stewart, the committee, Georgians for Victim Justice, voted to advocate the protection of the addresses and phone numbers and to support a bill to this effect should it be forthcoming, even though it is unclear whether the Legislature or Judicial mandate would prevail. Apparently some legislators are concerned because of all the decisions the Justices made, indicating that they (Justices) have a good deal of power.

When asked about this situation, Georgia State Supreme Court Chief Justice Harold Hill Jr., and Justice Hardy Gregory, Jr., said that the proposed rule was indeed modified from the previous one which allowed the "defendant" access to a victim's address and phone number - to the current rule which states the district attorney shall furnish in confidence the addresses and phone numbers to the "defense counsel."

Justice Richard Bell responded by saying, "How far the state must go in guaranteeing a defendant for trial is problematical. While you say the scales of justice seem to favor the defendant, those of us who have never been charged with a crime don't know what it's like to be faced with a criminal charge and not have available access to the evidence to be used against you." Justice Bell also cited specific cases reviewed such as Hicks vs. State, Lewis vs. State, and Holsey vs. State, which culminated in the final adoption of Rule 30.3.

Justice Charles Weltner explained that the rules were adopted unanimously by the Conference of Superior Court Judges (78 to 0) and subsequently approved by his court. He also stated that a staff member who was instrumental in the preparation of the rules said that the Superior Court Judges may be considering a revision of Rule 30.3.

Justices Weltner and Gregory both pointed out a very important provision in Rule 30.3 which states, "unless for good cause the judge allows an exception," such as harassment or danger to the witness, the judge may order the information held until trial.

But often the initial problem begins at the trial stage when the witness must endure the glare of the defendant as the defense counsel demands the residence of the victim. And, if the defendant is found not guilty, he has access to the whereabouts of the victim.

"But this is true of every case, and it's much more true in domestic relation cases than in criminal cases," according to local attorney Alex Zipperer. "It would be nice to be able to guarantee the protection of witnesses because every lawyer has gone through a situation where obtaining a witness is difficult because of fear. And yet if you try to insulate that witness from any party to the case, it will deprive that party of due process."

Mr. Zipperer said that theoretically in any criminal case there is a problem concerning the intimidation of a witness. But a defendant is called a defendant for a primary purpose - he has the right to defend himself. The right to defend implies the

EDUCATION

All public education is racially segregated with racially differentiated curricula.

In 1982 only 2% of the Africans reached the post high school level. Per capita spending on education was $1,115 for whites and $120 for Africans. Teacher/pupil ratio 1:18 for whites. 1:40 for Africans.

OFFICIAL VIOLENCE

Over the years, thousands of peaceful demonstrations opposing apartheid have been shot and killed by the police. Sixty-nine people died in the Sharpeville Massacre in 1960 and at least 575 people died in 1976 during and after the Soviets uprising. Recently the numbers of killed and wounded have been rising to staggering sums. The thing that comes to mind everytime this feeling arises is the T.V. scene with the children and people being whipped with long sticks and shot at with rubber bullets. The violence doesn't end here. It continues with extensive torture inflicted on political detainees by both South Africa and bantustan police.

Methods used include electric shocks, beating, sleep deprivation, driving nails into men's testicles, and isolation. Speaking of torture, Bishop Desmond Tutu said "when you get stopped by the South African police, be careful, because they have strange chairs: people fall off of them and hit their head against the wall twenty times and die."

WHAT IS THE A.N.C.?

The African National Congress (ANC) of South Africa is an organization formed out of the "crucible" of the oppression and resistance of the Black African masses. At Bloemfontein on January 8, 1912, the workers, intellectuals and tribesmen from all parts of South Africa assembled to forge an organization to fight racist colonialism. At the end of the deliberation the ANC emerged as the organization of the people. The birth of the Historic Freedom Charter on June 25 - 26, 1955, reflects what a free South African will mean. The demands:

- The people shall govern.
- All national groups shall have equal rights.
- The people shall share in the country's wealth.
- The land shall be shared among those who work it.
- All shall be equal before the law.
- All shall enjoy equal human rights.
- There shall be work and security.
- The doors of learning and culture shall be opened.
- There shall be houses, security, and comfort.
- There shall be peace and friendship.

For 50 years the ANC worked to change the racist system by peaceful, nonviolent actions, but they were met only with the most inhumane and violent repression. All of the nonviolent practices by the ANC were finally ended by the Sharpeville Massacre on March 21, 1960. Sixty-nine unarmed people were gunned down unmercifully, most of them shot in the back, and hundreds more were beaten and wounded for protesting the hated pass-law system. After this the ANC felt their only alternative was to "Fight Back."

As you have seen and read in this article, apartheid is something inhumane and it is without any question, WRONG. It takes human beings and turns them into animals which are used for the economic and social use of the rich whites.

They have taken a land of wealth and riches and turned it into a desolate place to live in. They have broken up families, placed starvation on the table of the blacks, and killed men and children as if they were flies. They have segregated people into "bantus areas" which can be compared to Hitler's concentration camps, and have told them, "You're free." The worst thing about this whole situation is that it is taking place right now—1986, not far away from us in a place which Ronald Reagan called "the last bastion against Communism." But for most of the people of South Africa it is the worst nightmare one can possibly have.

As a speaker at the International Conference Against Apartheid said, "Whites came into South Africa with a Bible in their left hand and a gun in the other; and now, the blacks are holding the Bible while the whites are holding the gold and diamonds of South Africa."

ASC SPORTS

Lady Pirates Face Adversity

Adversity has been the middle name of the '85-'86 version of Armstrong's Lady Pirates. When the season opened, the Lady Pirates were without one of their top two players, Cynthia Hargrove. As the season progressed, other injuries devastated the team. Norma Faison, the team's leading scorer, went down with a tough knee injury that sidelined her for eight games. In a true character test, the remaining Lady Pirates managed to win a very respectable 5 of 8 games without Norma and Cynthia. To add to their misfortunes, two other players were lost for the season due to academic woes.

Presently, the Lady Pirates are 9-8 overall and 5-5 in District 25 play. They have seven games remaining on the schedule. Six are away (and District games) while only one home game remains—the February 21st match against Georgia College. SO COME AND WATCH THE LADIES IN THEIR HOME FINALE!!

Coach Ford has done a remarkable job this season. To think that the Lady Pirates could still have a winning record without their 1-2 punch (Norma and Cynthia) testifies to a good coaching job and good team effort. Now she has Norma back and that means a lot.

Norma is an All-American candidate in the NAIA ranks or would be if it wasn't for her unfortunate knee problem. As is, she leads the Lady Pirates and is fourth in the nation (in NAIA) in scoring with a very hefty 23.8 points per game average. Norma has also considerably improved on her rebounding and assist totals.

While Norma is a candidate for All-American honors, two other Lady Pirates come close. Dee Burns and Kim Pitts have been Armstrong's bread and butter while Norma was out. Kim is second in scoring on the team only to Norma with a respectable 16.5 points per game average. She leads the team in free throw shooting, hitting nearly 83 percent of her attempts (21-21 at one point). She has also proven her rebounding ability.

If we talk on that subject, we must look at Dee Burns. The talented Senior center leads the team in rebounding. Her 10.5 rebounds per game average makes her the number two rebounder in the nation. Her 16.2 points per game average (nine higher than last season) looks even better when you consider her 60 percent Field Goal percentage. The team's other senior, Tee Dixon, is also having a good year. Her 8.1 points per game is fourth best on the team. Her rebounding and assist numbers are much improved over last year's, but what Tee supplies most is hard work and leadership.

Katy Ballance and Benita Hicks share time at point guard for the Lady Pirates. Each are vital for their superior ball handling skills and ability to read defenses. Katy presently leads the team in assists with nearly 4½ per game while Benita's much improved play takes some of the pressure off Katy. Dale Parker, Yvette Clark, Deena York and Michelle Phillips are also essential in the Lady Pirate's attack. They give Coach Ford talented back-up players who can give the team a boost whenever it begins to sag.

If the Lady Pirates win four or five of their remaining games, they stand to be at home during the district playoffs.

right to investigate charges. And this is virtually null if the defendant does not have a clue as to who the witnesses are, or where they are, and thus has no opportunity to make contact.

Zipperer cited an example of a witness named John Brown. If the name John Brown is all the defense counsel knows, the defense is then left to his own devices to find Mr. Brown, and of course, this would be practically impossible. On the other hand, suppose John Brown has an address in Reidsville, Ga, where he has been residing for the last 15 years in the penitentiary with a string of felonies for testifying falsely in court, then the defense would have no opportunity to secure this information prior to trial. So legally, this cuts off the right to prepare an effective defense.

What about a proverbial scenario where the defense attorney, who contacts the witness prior to trial, exerts pressure to secure information and subsequently uses this knowledge as a weapon against the witness in court?

Zipperer responded by saying, "If you think the defense attorney may exert pressure to a witness, what about the prosecutor exerting pressure to a witness? The whole idea of a trial is the discovery of the truth and a trial is set up so if a witness or defendant has been pressured or tricked, then there is an opportunity through cross-examination by the opposing counsel to learn that fact."

While there is no easy solution for intimidation, it is in fact a felony to intimidate a witness, so Mr. Zipperer feels we need to enforce the laws against intimidation and somehow encourage the public to realize what their responsibility is to the system. Citizens need to cooperate and testify to make the whole system work.
