NEWS BRIEFS

Sea turtles making comeback on Georgia beaches

ATLANTA (AP) — The decline in Georgia's sea turtle population stopped after shrimpers began using equipment to prevent turtles from drowning in their nets.

Biologists and volunteers found 1,193 nests on Georgia's coast in 1991, compared with 1,091 in 1990, the first year scientists were able to check all the beaches regularly throughout the nesting season, Department of Natural Resources said.

"The numbers of nesting turtles appear to be up very slightly, but up, over the last few years. We don't have anything to prove it won't go up again," said Jim Richardson, director of the Sea Turtle Co-Op, based at the University of Georgia's Institute of Ecology.

"Three years ago, it had been going down without a hitch for seven years and it was really grim," he said. At the time the number of nesting turtles, fewer than 1,000 according to estimates, was one-fifth of what it was 20 years ago.

In the last three years, turtle excluder devices, which allow turtles to escape from shrimp nets, have come into common use in Georgia waters.

All nests in Georgia the past two years were those of loggerhead turtles, Malesy said.

Green, leatherback and Kemp's Ridley turtles are also found in Georgia waters.

Environmental questions amount of tritium leak

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Environmentalists are questioning how much tritium actually was in water that spilled from the Savannah River Site, because a contractor's report indicates higher radioactive levels than federal officials said.

About 150 gallons of radioactive water spilled from the nuclear weapons plant around Christmas and traveled down the Savannah River from Barnwell County, S.C., to Savannah, Ga.

Tritium is a radioactive gas that boosts the explosive power of nuclear warheads.

The U.S. Energy Department said the radioactive water, which spilled from a cooling device in the K Reactor, contained about 9 curies of tritium per liter.

But a report prepared by a Savannah River Site contractor eight months before the leak noted the coolant water contained 17 curies of tritium per liter.

DOE spokesman Rick Ford said the report did not reflect changes that were made to the water that reduced its radioactivity before the spill.

But environmentalists question the accuracy of the DOE's figures and contend the issue should be investigated.

Tom Clements, southeastern spokesman for the international environmental group Greenpeace, said the federal agency has not been forthcoming in the past.

"Their credibility is at an all-time low," Clements said. "I would still like to see an investigation with public involvement so we can see how they came up with their numbers."

Officials estimated a person drinking water from the Savannah River before the tritium washed out to sea would receive a radiation dose equal to about a hundredth of that received from a chest X-ray.

Glover to keynote Black Awareness Month

Actor originally from Augusta to speak Feb. 24 on issues facing young blacks

GSU News Service

Movie and television actor Danny Glover will be on the GSU campus Feb. 24 to keynote Black Awareness Month activities.

A native of Augusta, Glover will speak in the Union Ballroom at 7 p.m. addressing issues that face young black people. He will relate his personal experiences and talk about what he believes young people are likely to face as they leave school to become productive members of American society.

One of Hollywood's most versatile and respected actors, Glover has gained international star status for his portrayal of police detective Roger Murtaugh opposite Mel Gibson in the megahits Lethal Weapon and Lethal Weapon 2. Lethal Weapon 3, which reunites the team of Glover, Gibson and Donner, began production this fall.

Also one of the busiest actors in the business, Glover stars with Kevin Kline, Mary McDonnell and Alfre Woodard in Lawrence Kasdan's upcoming contemporary drama Grand Canyon, which will become his fourth film to be released this year.

In Jan. 1990, Glover took on the role of a squadron leader in Paramount Pictures' Flight of the Intruder, an action-adventure film revolving around the relationship of three U.S. Navy men. He then played villain Easy Money in Miramax's spring release of A Rage in Harlem with co-stars Forest Whitaker, Gregory Hines and Robin Givens and directed by his long-time friend, Bill Duke.

More recently, Glover starred as pragmatic private detective Ray Campanella in this summer's comedy Pure Luck, with co-star Martin Short.

In 1985, Glover starred in three films of tremendous scope. He portrayed a murderous cop out to silence fellow officer Harrison Ford in Peter Weir's Witness. Then he portrayed Mal, a peaceful frontiersman who joins forces with three unlikely partners to fight against injustices in the Old West town of Silverado. That

GSU loses bid to continue hosting 1-AA championship

By Eric Weisenmiller
Sports Editor

"Our House" will not be the site of the 1992 I-AA National Championship football game — a game that GSU's Allen E. Paulson Stadium has been privileged to host for the past three years.

Instead, the Marshall University Football Stadium in Huntington, West Virginia will be the site of the 1992 and 1993 Division I-AA National Championship games.

The announcement of the NCAA's decision to move the game from Paulson Stadium was made public on Monday.

The Huntington, West Virginia site was chosen over the Statesboro/Savannah area to host the game, which will be played in Marshall University's recently completed 28,000 seat stadium.

"We are certainly disappointed that we did not win the bid to keep the NCAA I-AA National Championship football game in South Georgia," said GSU Athletic Director Dr. David 'Bucky' Wagner.

"Though disappointed, we are proud of the effort that South Georgia provided and the good will we spread throughout I-AA football. It was worth it to let our fans experience in person the excitement of the National Championship game," said Wagner.

During the three years that Paulson Stadium housed the championship event, GSU claimed two national championships (in 1989 and 1990).

In 1989 the Eagles recorded a perfect 15-0 season with a national championship victory on their home turf. With the win GSU became the first championship team on any level to log a perfect 15-0 record. In 1990 GSU claimed its fourth national championship in six years.

"The 1989 and 1990 games were a thrill of a lifetime to us all. I still get emotional when I think of the day that we won the national championship and set a new standard for college football with a 15th win, undefeated season and we did it all in 'our house,'" reflected Wagner.

Marshall's stadium was completed in 1991 and is the third largest on-campus stadium in America.

Marshall University athletic director Lee Moon was "proud and honored" at being awarded the game.

"The exposure to the state of West Virginia and the Huntington area will be a tremendous boost," commented Moon.

The selection of a host site was narrowed down to GSU and Marshall before a final decision was made. Both schools are members of the highly competitive Southern Conference.

Southern Conference commissioner Wright Waters expressed his pleasure that the decision came down to bids submitted by two SC institutions.

"We think this accurately reflects the strength of our league," said Waters.

Marshall will keep the game for two years before its bid is reviewed.

Professor to lead program in Jamaica

By Ken Ward
Staff Writer

A GSU history professor will be leading a cultural studies program in Jamaica this summer.

Dr. Alfred Young will coordinate the program, consisting of daily discussions covering key issues and topics related to the historical, social and cultural development of Jamaica.

Young has had extensive experience in Jamaica and the Caribbean. He has arranged for staff from the African-Caribbean Institute of Jamaica to lecture.

While in Jamaica, students will also have an opportunity to visit historic sites and areas of natural beauty.

"I would recommend this class to students at GSU because I think it is very important for a person to experience and develop an appreciation for cultures other than their own," explained Young. "The first and foremost goal of the program is education. The trip will provide an opportunity for students to travel to Jamaica and learn more about the Caribbean from the 'bottom up.' What that means is that we will have contacts with the lower realm of society as well as the upper realm."

"I will be trying to expose the students to the society and culture through a range of academic and personal experiences. By going to Jamaica with me, students will have a chance to get more than a superficial understanding of the area. I want students to understand that the people of Jamaica, like all other people, are individuals who love, die and have social and economic problems."

Unlike many other international studies programs that allow only certain majors to participate, this five-hour credit program is open to all undergraduates and graduates that have completed at least 15 quarter hours of university-level work.

Young's program is also the only one in the University System of Georgia that will be visiting a third world country.

The dates for the program are June 15 through July 5. The trip is integrated with excursions to areas within Jamaica, such as Kingston, Dunn's River Falls and Discovery Bay.

The cost of the program is $1,645. This includes round-trip airfare from Savannah to Montego Bay, ground transportation, room and board and fees for local entertainment. GSU tuition and fees, textbooks and personal expenses are not included in the above price. Financial aid will be available to students who qualify.

"The application deadline is April 1," Young said. "I expect between 15 to 20 students to go on the trip. This is a good number because we need a small group so each person can get individual attention."

Homophobia still prevalent at GSU, said Richter

By Kimberly R. Hill
Staff Writer

Fred Richter and a representative from the Triangle Gay and Lesbian Club spoke to a group of students in Johnson Hall Jan. 30 about homophobia. Homophobia, the fear of understanding and interacting with homosexuals, is still prevalent in society and on the campus of GSU.

Richter, an English professor, clarified many of the stereotypes and misconceptions associated with homosexuality.

He reminded students that homosexuality is not all about engaging in sexual relations with someone of the same sex. Instead, he noted that gay people do not choose to be gay and they seek mutual understanding, care and affection just like heterosexuals do in a relationship.

Homosexuality is not a chosen behavior and Richter made several references to sociological and psychological case studies which are trying to prove whether or not people are born as homosexuals.

Richter feels that group settings and information sessions have helped change some of the attitudes at GSU about homosexuality. While cultural acceptance is still lacking in the United States, Richter is proud of GSU's attitude.

While many large universities have overlooked the gay community, GSU includes in its affirmative action and equal opportunity policy that all students and employees are acceptable regardless of race, creed, color, sex, sexual preference, national origin, religion, age, veteran status, or handicap.

The Triangle Club, chartered five years ago, is a fellowship for gay and lesbian students to express themselves. Richter and members of the group would like to eventually become a service organization for the school and the community in order to further educate everyone about themselves as human beings.

According to Richter, the bottom line is that all of us "must learn to love the individual for himself."

Revisions reorganizing on campus

G-A Staff Report

Revisions, an equal opportunity organization, is reorganizing and its first meeting will be held Feb. 18 at 6 p.m. in the Union room 247.

"I really think that we can become an important effective group," said Linda Paige, advisor to the group.

Every student is invited to attend. Paige also said that anyone not enrolled in school, but interested in the group is invited.

The first meeting will be an organizational meeting and during the second meeting, Feb. 25 at 6:30 p.m. in the Union room 247, officers will be elected.

"I see it as an information group, a group that shares, a network," said Paige. "I think it's important that everyone be heard, no matter what they say."

GLOVER

same year, Glover brought to life the menacing character of Mister in Steven Spielberg's production of the Alice Walker novel The Color Purple.

For his work in Lethal Weapon, Glover was presented with the NAACP Image Award. He received his second Image Award as well as an ACE Award for his performance in HBO's 1987 presentation of Mandela, filmed in Zimbabwe.

He also appeared in one of television's highest-rated miniseries, Lonesome Dove, for which he earned an Emmy nomination as Best Supporting Actor.

In 1988, Glover starred in BAT-21, portraying a pilot sent to rescue a man stranded in the enemy-infested jungles of Vietnam and in 1989, took on the difficult task of portraying a prison psychiatrist faced with the moral consequences of his job — to prove a prisoner legally sane, so that he may be executed — in the HBO Showcase production Dead Man Out.

Last year, Glover starred in Charles Burnett's award-winning and critically acclaimed To Sleep With Anger, playing a character whose conflict between his good and dark sides brings three generations of a contemporary black family to a dangerous crossroads. The film marked Glover's debut as an executive producer and landed him the Independent Feature Project/West's Best Actor award. He then went on to star as Detective-Lieutenant Mike Harrigan in the action-thriller Predator 2.

In the early part of 1990, Glover was the recipient of two prestigious awards in recognition for his achievements in the performing arts. In February he was inducted into the Black Filmmakers Hall of Fame and in April he received the prestigious Phoenix Award from the Black American Cinema Society.

Glover is also very active within the community. He spends one month a year on a corporate-sponsored tour speaking to children and young adults across the country about the importance of education, drug abuse and other teen-related issues. Earlier this year, he was presented with the Landmark West School's Albert Einstein Award for his work helping others to overcome the obstacles of dyslexia.

One of Glover's proudest moments came last year when he and his wife, Asake Bomani, opened an art gallery in San Francisco.

Miscellany, GSU's magazine of the arts, caters to everyone's tastes

By Carolyn McWilliams
Staff Writer

For the past several years, the Miscellany magazine has been a forum for GSU students to have their artwork presented. But, some students are not familiar with what the magazine has to offer and what type of materials they accept.

The Miscellany began with a group of English teachers and students who wanted to publish their works for others to enjoy. It began as a literary journal that was done on a typewriter and photocopied. Pictures were also included in this early edition to illustrate the poetry.

But, since then there has been a certain frustration associated with the magazines' editors. "The magazine has not been well known except to the English and Arts department," states Angela Whitlock, this year's editor. "We want it to be everybody's magazine, everyone has the ability to create."

Angela Whitlock

All of the artwork and the prose that is given to the Miscellany office is submitted in its original form to a group of judges. The judges are selected from faculty members specializing in the various categories who give their opinions to the editor of the magazine on which items should be printed. The judges do not know who has submitted the works, nor do they know what that person's major is.

Therefore, the Biology major who submits something has the same chance as the English major who does. The editors usually hold close to what the judges advise. The magazine also has a faculty advisor who helps with the production of the magazine. Oliva Edenfield, from the English department, has served as the advisor for the past several years.

"The majority of the prose that is submitted deals with human communication," according to Whitlock. "Some of the others are political, but they deal mostly with what people are exposed to everyday. On a college campus those experiences are wide in range."

In addition to the magazine, the Miscellany also sponsors several productions. An Evening of the Arts is held each quarter to display faculty or student submissions. This quarter the production was entitled, "An Evening of Sex and Death." The production, which enjoyed a large crowd at both shows, highlighted performances and poems from the last 35 years of the Miscellany. "One of the most scandalous pieces performed was a play entitled 'Girls,'" states Whitlock, which "touched on the subject of lesbianism."

The Miscellany is still accepting entries for its Spring Edition in the following categories: Poetry, Theatrical Vignettes, Critical Essays, Expository Essays, Foreign Language Literature, Short Fiction, Musical Scores, Photography, Sculpture, Ceramics, Drawings, Paintings and Ethicings. All work submitted must include a title page with the student's name, Landrum Box, and the title of the work.

Visual art must be submitted as photos or slides. The title page must indicate the medium and the size of the original piece. Written entries must be typed, essays and stories should be double spaced. The deadline for entries is March 2.

Valentine's Day: the naked truth

G-A Staff Reports

What do you really think about Valentine's Day? Has the meaning of it changed since its beginning in the 1400s? Is it a holiday just for lovers, or is it for all people?

To get a feel for how people today feel about Valentine's Day, we took a random survey, and here's what we found:

"It's a time to show people that you care, except I don't have any sweeties." —Jesse Stribling

"I hate Valentine's Day! I liked it until I got my job in the classified ads department." —Sherry Dyal

"If you're single, it sucks." —Brent Parrott

"It always comes around the time of year when I have no money: right after Christmas and right before income tax returns." —Stacy Graham

"It's a holiday based on commercialism. If two people care about each other, they can express that any day. They don't need a particular holiday for it." —Doug Gross

"It's a great excuse to be a secret admirer." —Jessica Peterman

"It's a day to appreciate all the special people in your life. It's not exclusively for the romantically involved." —Colleen Arnold

"It's my favorite sentimental holiday because it's more general than some other holidays, such as Mother's Day, which I fully believe is a conspiracy of mothers to get presents. Father's Day is undervalued and overlooked." —Bill Neville, Student Publications Coordinator

"Love comes from the heart, not the calendar." —Stephen Gundersen

"It's the one day of the year that the person who makes you feel rotten all the time finally tries to do something nice." —Traci Cobb

"The commercialism creates a social pressure to have a significant other, and I don't, so I don't like it." —Susan Mallory

Hypertension remains a threat

In the United States, hypertension in the black population is twice as great as that of the white population. Although it remains uncertain whether there are genetic or physiological reasons for this variation, "the lower the socioeconomic status and higher socioeconomic stress levels of blacks are probably important," says R.F. Gillum.

High blood pressure puts added strain on blood vessel walls which increases the risk of stroke, if a clot blocks the brain's blood supply. Prolonged high blood pressure can eventually result in heart and kidney damage, or even failure.

"Among hypertensives in the United States, blacks are 10 to 18 times more likely than whites to suffer kidney failure, and three to five times more likely to develop chronic heart failure," says Edward S. Cooper of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

Many factors can increase a person's risk of developing the condition, including stress, obesity, aging, inadequate exercise, alcohol use, salty diet and family history of hypertension. However, in 90 percent of hypertension cases, physicians are uncertain of the cause. Furthermore, scientists cannot figure out why black Americans are particularly vulnerable to this potentially fatal condition.

Some researchers have suggested that socio-economic differences may underlie the chronically elevated pressures that predispose U.S. blacks to hypertension (Science News: Feb. 16, '91, p.111). For one, the high cost of health care and lack of insurance can prevent low-income people from getting regular examinations or treatment. Also, the stress of poverty or racism may cause a hormonal

Support National Condom Week

With Valentine's Day begins National Condom Week, and the effort to educate people about condoms proper use begins anew.

Yes, celebacy is the only 100 percent sure way of avoiding sexually transmitted diseases (STD's) and AIDS, but it is unrealistic to think by preaching abstinence, we can prevent the spread of STD's.

Some will say that to promote the use of condoms is to encourage sexual activity. We would say that to not teach teens and adults about proper birth control and the prevention of STD's is like not teaching someone that there is a safety on the gun they already have.

There should be no shame to using a condom, no shame in the learning of their proper use, and we support the Health Center, the Student Government Association, Union Productions, and the Triangle Club in their efforts to educate people on the proper use of condoms.

Remember, its better to be safe than dead.

Use a condom.

Death of a writer

The death of Pulitzer-Prize winning writer Alex Haley at the height of Black History Month is a sadly ironic coincidence.

As the author of "Roots: The Saga of an American Family" and "The Autobiography of Malcom X," Haley was on the forefront of historical research into one's past and heritage, which is what Black History Month is all about.

The past is the key to the present, and in his own way, Haley gave everyone a part of that key with "Roots."

The epic work about his family's history sparked an interest in genealogy that lasted long after it faded from the best-seller lists, and inspired people of all races to look at the past with open eyes.

We hope that his descendants will be able to look back and see that Haley was a part of their origins, and be made proud because of it.

Wrongly called racist

The day after a jury brought in a guilty verdict on rape charges against boxer Mike Tyson, supporters of Tyson were already screaming racism. These unsupported claims throw a very negative light on real efforts to fight prejudice around the country.

These Tyson supporters seem to conveniently forget that the jury, made up of a majority of whites, was also approved by Tyson's defense.

These supporters also seem to forget that all of Tyson's female accusers were the same color as himself. The additional fact that jurors spent nine-and-a-half hours deliberating the evidence rather than just taking a vote and coming back helps discount these claims of racism, also.

Just because the supporters don't want to accept the verdict is no reason to whine about racism. This sort of display only causes real complaints of racism not to be taken seriously.

LIFE IN HELL

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'African-American' is a term of spiritual, social honor

Dear Editor,

I am responding to the "Whites aren't only racists" article in last week's George-Anne [Letters to the editor, Jan. 28]. If we examined history honestly (not his-story), we would realize that the ancestors of African-Americans were the only race of people stolen from their home and brought to the New World.

African-Americans were and are oppressed in many instances, yet we still made and make vital contributions to the "Superpower" status that America enjoys today.

I don't blame Mr. Hightower for not recognizing his ancestral link, but I will not passively bow to anyone badgering my people for recognizing our ancestors. As African-Americans, we feel a strong spiritual bond with the living, dead and unborn in the African-American community.

Furthermore, there is no need for a "Caucasian College Fund" or Miss Caucasian-America contest in a country where caucasians control a major portion of the economy, media and educational system. Do you think I'm lying? Stop by any public school in our nation, and you will read history books and witness students being told that Lincoln freed the slaves, John Brown was crazy and Malcom X was a villain.

Lincoln's true aim was to unite the Union and Confederacy, John Brown was a caucasian who genuinely cared about the welfare of African-Americans and Malcom X urged black and white students to change the course of a country whose leaders had misused and abused their power.

You don't read in the history books that Dr. Daniel Hale Williams performed the first successful open heart surgery, Garrett Morgan invented the traffic signal and gas mask, Dr. Charles Drew perfected the use of blood plasma and the list goes infinitely on and on.

Also, have you watched your television set lately? If so, I'm certain you have seen Jesus, the son of God, portrayed as a caucasian. If you took a European-American male with long hair, a beard and mustache to a playground with small black and white children and asked who he was, several would probably say he was Jesus.

Does the media know what Jesus looked like? I don't know what he looked like; however, according to Revelations 1:14-16, "his hair was like wool, and

Integration and acceptance aren't the same thing

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in response to a Mr. Larry Hightower, Jr. who seems to be confused about African-American representation. Let me begin by saying that not all black people are going to be sensitive to ignorance, and I am one of those black people.

If there is something you do not understand, all you have to do is read, research, and ask questions.

The United Negro College Fund was founded to support black students who could only attend the historically black colleges, many of which were founded by whites following the Civil War to keep blacks segregated from the educational system.

It has not been that long ago, and just because America is supposed to be integrated today is no reason for us to forget our past and vacate these sources.

Most of our black organizations were founded what you call "long ago" and remain a source of support for our community. These organizations, including our HISTORICALLY

BLACK fraternities and sororities, were founded to strengthen our own people because of the injustices in the land of the free.

If we do not support ourselves and search for our own identity, who will do it for us? Would it have been you, Mr. Hightower?

Many white people are threatened or misled when they hear the names of our organization such as the National Association for the Advancements of Colored People (NAACP), the National Council of Negro Women, Inc. (NCNW), the Black Caucus, 100 Black Men, Inc., Coalition of 100 Black Women, Inc., and many others. Instead of finding out what these organizations are about, or their contributions to society, many white people get defensive.

If you know any real history, you would know that the NAACP was founded by blacks and whites. The National Council of Negro Women, Inc., founded in 1935 by Mary McLeod Bethune, was used as the advisory for President [Franklin] Roosevelt's "New Deal" program and other political issues. I am not about to give up my lifetime membership and commitment to NCNW, Inc. or its history because of an integrated society.

There is never an issue in this country when any other race of people recognizes itself, or celebrates its history, except the black race. A lot of people made up this country and they don't all call themselves simply Americans. My birthplace does not make me the person I am, it is my experience that does.

If I choose to call myself African-American, black, or even kemit, that's who I am, and I can't change that, nor do I wish to.

By the way Mr. Hightower, kemit is the term Egyptians called themselves and it means BLACK, because that's what they were and they didn't have a problem with it.

When the luxuries in American life were only allowed to whites, "not so long ago," there were no questions, it was accepted as is and that's the way it was. Now that black people have opportunity and the choice to create their own, it seems to always be a question of prejudice or "reverse discrimination."

Being integrated and being accepted are not the same. Therefore, when you cannot accept my culture, whether it's the present or past, then you don't accept ME!

'Jam the Gym' a success

Dear Editor,

I just wanted to take a moment and thank all our fans for their great support in our "Jam the Gym" win over Georgia State last Saturday. The crowd was the difference, and would not let the Eagles lose.

It was a great combination of students and local fans that made the evening a special night to be at Hanner Fieldhouse.

I hope you'll try and join us for our three remaining home games on Feb. 22, 27 and 29. If things keep going our way we have a chance for some exciting basketball at home in early March by hosting the TAAC Tournament.

Remember, you really did make the difference to our players, and we hope to see that excitement again this season.

Tyson was doomed to go to jail

Well, it seems as if Mike Tyson is going to need some soap on a rope. Mike is about to undergo a major change in his lifestyle, possibly for as long as 63 years. Too bad.

Tyson was found guilty of rape this week and will get to spend some time in the big house. It's possible that "Iron" Mike is going to get a whole new perspective on rape and I don't think he's going to like it too much.

So the score on rapes by famous people is tied at one apiece. William Kennedy Smith was acquitted and Tyson wasn't, why do you suppose this is? Could it be that Tyson's trial wasn't televised? Is it because the prosecutor in Indianapolis was better than his counterpart in Palm Beach? Is it because Tyson is black and Smith is white? No, I would suggest it is because Tyson actually did rape his accuser and could not talk his way out of it as Smith did. (Smith's accuser is much like Tyson in that respect.)

The jury took a look at the evidence and at Tyson and said, "Yes, we think he did it." Tyson seemed doomed before the trial even started. Mike beat his former wife, Robin Givens, and is well known for aggressive behavior. In addition, Tyson wasn't eloquent enough to participate effectively in his own defense.

Bad feeling, eh, Mike. Should've stayed in school.

More precisely, there's a larger picture to examine here. Should underprivileged children of inner city neighborhoods be taught to box? Sports have always been seen as the way out of the ghetto for minorities. Learn to play football, basketball, baseball or box and get out of "da hood."

These children are brought up in a violent world, but unless they excel in sports, they get little encouragement to change that world. They are taught to survive. If they can't run fast enough, jump high enough or for many other reasons, some of these kids learn to box. Boxing seems harmless when put into a romantic perspective; men being men and duking it out. Gentleman Jim Corbett and other boxers from past eras spring to mind.

Today's boxing world is much different. It is one of outrageous money, modern slave owners (Don King and Experience. That will be the key to the success of the 1992 Georgia Southern Baseball team.

Sure, there's a lot to be said about the virtually impregnable defense. Others would focus on the leadership qualities of seniors Todd Greene and Mike Miller. And even others would obviously point to the solid coaching of head coach Jack Stallings.

Stallings, in his 17th year here at GSU, is glad to mention the improvement he sees already in this year's team.

"Our first through sixth pitchers in the rotation will be very important. They have the most experience," said Stallings.

Junior Jim Carragher is the leading candidate for the number one spot in the Eagle rotation.

Defense is also greatly improved this year also. Junior shortstop Chris Peterson and senior second baseman Doug Eder work well together on the double play, according to Stallings.

Speedy junior college transfer Mark Dean brings more speed to centerfield this year, which makes the club very solid up the middle.

Among those expected to carry the offensive load is All-American Outfielder Todd Greene. He is a member of the Olympic Baseball Team and was second in the nation in home runs last year with 25.

Greene's power will be well supported by Senior first baseman Mike Miller. Miller is making the position change from left field to first base.

Greene, Peterson and Miller were each selected to the pre-season all-Southern Conference team.

Another position change for this year's team will be the move of Kevin Hallman from centerfield to third base.

Also, team depth is much improved this year. This will give Stallings the opportunity to audition a number of people in left field and behind the plate.

"Competition is a very good thing. We won't make the decision of who plays where until the time comes," added Stallings.

The depth on the bench also gives Stallings some players to fall back on in case a starter goes down with an injury, or if somebody simply needs a rest. As the season progresses, Stallings will look more and more to the bench for a contribution.

GSU will be competing in the Southern Conference for the first time this season. They begin conference play on March 7 when Marshall comes to town for a three game series.

The Eagle's combination of a solid defense and an impressive offense are the main reasons that they are picked by Baseball America to win the Southern Conference. If they

Stallings nears record

By John Munford
Staff Writer

This Georgia Southern Head Baseball coach needs eight victories this season to become the eighth NCAA baseball coach to have 1000 career wins.

Who is Jack Stallings? Ding! Ding! Ding!

In his 16 seasons at GSU, Stallings is 592-385-5, leading the Eagles to four NCAA post-season appearances and four TAAC Championships. Two years ago, he coached the Eagles to a school-record 50 wins, the Midwest Regional Championship and an appearance in the College World Series.

He began his coaching career at Wake Forest in 1960, leading them to a 152-108 record in eight years. Then, he left for Florida State University, where his Seminoles were 248-107 over a five-year span.

But that's not all. He was also the hitting coach for the 1984 Olympic Team in Los Angeles. "When you're there, with the Team USA uniform on, and they play the National Anthem, well, that's very exciting," said Stallings.

All his hard work hasn't gone unrewarded. In 1979, the American Baseball Coaches Association gave him the Lefty Gomez Award for his outstanding contributions to amateur baseball. In 1988, he was inducted into the American Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame.

What does all this mean to him? In his own words, "The main thing is that it's just a lot of years with a good program. It's very gratifying."

Gratifying indeed, and well done.

Eagle netters expect nothing but aces

By Michael Strong
Assistant Sports Editor

The GSU men's and women's tennis teams started the season on the right foot with victories over Georgia College on Saturday, but the men fell to Auburn on Sunday.

The men lost to the Tigers 7-2, with Charles Olinger winning 6-2, 7-6 at third singles. Hector Porcella, fourth singles, struggled early, but pulled out a 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 victory.

The Eagles had other close matches. At first singles Roger Mills lost a heartbreaker 7-6, 7-5 and Kevin Green lost in three sets 5-7, 7-6, 6-1.

Before traveling to Auburn Head Coach Joe Blankenbaker was concerned about having to play the Tigers with having as little preparation as they Eagles have had.

"They play all year around," he said after the match against Georgia College. "We play outside and if it rains we don't practice. They have an indoor facility, if it rains, they go inside. They've also played some tournaments, so we'll find out [how good the team is] tomorrow."

The men's team rolled over Georgia College 8-1.

Although Scott Allen and Olinger had to go three sets in their matches.

"This is a good team," said Blankenbaker. "Their number three guy [Olinger's opponent] beat out number one in a tournament last year."

This year's squad presents problems for Blankenbaker because there is no superstar, but they have lost just one player from last year.

"Depth is what is going to get us through this year," he said. "We have to have three or four guys playing well all the time otherwise we'll be in big trouble."

The ladies team romped past Georgia College 8-1 as well.

"I'm real pleased about that," said First year Coach Gary Glassman. "I hope it's the start of good things to come."

The only blemish on the start of the ladies season was a 6-2, 6-3 loss by Christy Ward to Summer McCollough.

"She had a game that gave me difficulties," said Ward.

Ward did gain some revenge as she teamed with Lydia Darrieutort to beat McCollough and Beth Finch 6-2, 7-6 in doubles.

This year's squad has just one returning player: Ward. At first singles is Chris Triesch, a transfer student from Germany. Second singles will be held by Cami Harris. Darrieutort, Ward, Christine Papp and Wendy Trenary round out the top six spots.

In addition to inexperience, the team has had to overcome several injuries and some early season chemistry problems.

"I call them the M.A.S.H. unit team," said Glassman. "They've all been in there [the trainer's room] sitting on the benches."

The injuries include a groin pull for Triesch, wrist problems for Harris, Darrieutort pulled a back muscle and Ward is battling shin splints.

The chemistry problem is something that is behind the team, according to Glassman.

"We've had some struggles," he said. "Tennis is kind of an individual sport, so we're trying to come together as a team."

Glassman is also a new element to the team. Coming into a new season with a new

Windless named 'player of the week'

By Rod Swinson
Staff Writer

Eagle forward Tony Windless was chosen "Player of the Week" in the Trans America Athletic Conference this week.

The 6'4" senior led the Eagles to two come-from-behind TAAC wins over Samford and Georgia State last week.

His team's 9-0 league-leading record ties a conference record set by Arkansas-Little Rock in the 1986-87 season.

Windless led the Eagles in scoring averaging 19.5 points and shot a blistering 66.7% from the floor including 55.6% (5-9) from three point range.

Windless, a transfer from Cowley County Community College, said the honor was unexpected.

"I just found out myself but I am pleased to have been chosen. I have even more motivation now to go out and do the best I can," said Windless.

A Memphis, Tenn. native, Windless is on a torrid scoring pace averaging 21.2 points in eight of the last nine games.

Windless' previous years of experience have helped in defining his role on the team.

"I feel that I must take on

that leadership role. I know what it takes to win, because I do have some experience in winning."

Coming from a close-knit family, Windless receives a great deal of motivation from his family and close friends.

"My brother Marvin really is my biggest fan and a great motivational factor."

He also credits his best friend David Taylor and a special lady friend with keeping him focused.

Although his game looks very strong on the court, Windless said he definitely has some weakness that he must work on.

"I penetrate well to set up my other teammates, but I really need to work on my defense rebounding."

Windless expressed that his goal is the same as the team's goal — to win the TAAC tournament.

The Eagles have a chance to go 14-0 in the TAAC, a feat never accomplished.

"We would love to go undefeated in the TAAC," said Windless. "But our primary goal is to work hard every day and to be ready for the tournament."

Windless does have individual goals, but he tries to put these second to the team's goals.

"I would like to win the TAAC Player of the Year, and possibly go on to the next level, but right now I am just trying to better my team."

Windless and the Eagles will travel to Louisiana for a couple of TAAC games this week against Centenary and Southeastern Louisiana.

Windless commented on the road trip:

"We just want to focus on one game at a time and not let the crowd get to us."

his eyes were as a flame of fire, and his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace, and his voice as the sound of many waters."

That description certainly doesn't fit the character we have all seen on the movie Jesus of Nazareth. We are all made in the image of God and I just don't see the son of God as that famous work of art painted by Michaelangelo. I must also add that the representations of King Tut and Cleopatra on the television series "Batman" are profound insults to the African-American community and history itself.

Let me further add that there are thousands of caucasian students attending historically black institutions who benefit from the United Negro College Fund. Also, in the history of the "Miss America Pageant," how many African-American women have been Bob Arum) and warped perspectives. Money is king and apparently makes all kinds of behavior acceptable.

It is also a world of Muhammad Ali: a man who was hit so hard so often that it damaged his brain. The man is a shadow of his former self. He can barely speak above a whisper; his reflexes are basically non-existent (at least to my eyes); and the quick wit of years past is an impossibility.

Larry Holmes, another great heavyweight champion of the past, is making a comeback. He looked impressive in a recent victory over Ray Mercer, a top-ranked heavyweight. But if you look at Larry now compared to Larry 10 years ago, there's a marked difference. Ten years ago, he looked like he could tell you all about a fight, now he looks as if he couldn't tell you what time it is.

crowned? Furthermore, how many African-American women are chosen to compete?

Too realize that there are racist people in all ethnic groups in America. I have experienced both sides here at GSU. I work in a department where the ignorance of blatant racism has been defeated by intelligence. I have a caucasian supervisor who inspires me, and a caucasian advisor who has given me a positive path to follow since my arrival.

I have also come in contact with a strong African-American professor who has supported me in my academic and social endeavors. All three women are jewels. Unfortunately, I have also been a victim of several racial incidents. I have also been saddened by some of my African-American brothers and sisters who denounce their history and culture.

By classifying myself as an African-American, I am paying homage to my people who were stolen from "the motherland" and my people who helped build this great nation. If Mr. Hightower is tired of hearing the term "African-American," and is not proud of his Irish and Yugoslavian ancestral link, where will he go?

I cannot speak for the other ethnic groups who compromise the minority population in America, but "African-American" is a term of intellectual, spiritual, and social honor. I urge Mr. Hightower and others both black and white who feel the same way as he does to re-think the situation because, "A MIND IS A TERRIBLE THING TO WASTE."

— also helped them to endure the terrible conditions they encountered in the New World, Grim suggests. However, the same trait that was a survival advantage then may prove fatal today.

Physicians suggest that all blacks get their blood pressure checked regularly. I also recommend to everyone plenty of exercise, a low-salt diet, and for those with extreme cases of hypertension, be responsible enough to take your medication as suggested by your doctor, to keep dangerously high pressures down.

team should be a daunting prospect, but it didn't bother him.

"Pat [Breen, his predecessor] had recruited pretty well before he left and with some walk-ons I picked up we got it together," he said.

The women's team is 1-0 on the season and the men are 1-1. Their next match is a dual meet on Feb. 19 at home against Armstrong State at 1:30 p.m.

It can't do laundry or find you a date, but it can help you find more time for both.

The new Apple® Macintosh® Classic® II computer makes it easier for you to juggle classes, activities, projects, and term papers—and still find time for what makes college life real life.

It's a complete and affordable Macintosh Classic system that's ready to help you get your work finished fast. It's a snap to set up and use. It has a powerful 68030 micro-processor, which means you can run even the most sophisticated applications with ease. And its internal Apple SuperDrive™ disk drive reads from and writes to Macintosh and MS-DOS formatted disks—allowing you to exchange information easily with almost any other kind of computer.

Introducing the Macintosh Classic II.
