GSU library introducing automated card catalog

Henderson Library has taken its first step in creating an automated system of its services.

The traditional card catalog will soon be replaced by the on-line catalog which is a part of a state-wide automated network of college and university libraries throughout the state.

This system will give students and faculty quick and easy access to a wealth of resources and information.

The total cost of GSU's new automated library system is approximately $170,000.

Other institutions which are a part of this system include Georgia State, Georgia Tech, UGA, West Georgia, DeKalb College, North Georgia College, Oglethorpe University and Southern College of Technology.

Armstrong State, Clayton State, Emory University, and the Georgia Department of Archives will also be added to the system.

GSU currently has six computer terminals in the Learning Resources Center which can access information.

A student can locate a book from any of the libraries within the system by searching through the on-line catalog.

"You can search for a lot of information with more access points and you can make hundreds of copies of information," said Julius Aerial, director of the Henderson Library.

The library plans to complete the automated system by fall quarter 1992. There will also be 16 new computers for a network inclusive of periodicals, indexes, newspapers and encyclopedias. Library catalogs and data bases will also be available.

SCAD student leaders may be barred from class registration

ATLANTA (AP) — Leaders of a student government drive at the nation's largest art school say they're still waiting for explanations this weekend, after finding "Do Not Register" entered in their records.

Three student government organizers at Savannah College of Art and Design told The Associated Press Friday they and as many as five others examined their computer files — with permission — and found the "Do Not Register" notation. Registration for the next academic term is to begin within the next two weeks.

"The only reason it can be is because I'm involved in this drive," said one of the students, Ellen Campbell. "It seems anybody whose name appeared anywhere (in the media) has been listed."

College spokeswoman Beth Eckard said she was unaware of any students barred from registration. Other officials, she said, were not available for comment.

The college has been the scene of tension between the administration and some students and faculty, ignited by the campaign for student government, which school officials have opposed.

Students overwhelmingly endorsed a proposed constitution Thursday in a non-binding vote.

Several students said Friday they asked school officials why their records contained the "Do Not Register" notation, but received no explanation.

Student government elections Thursday

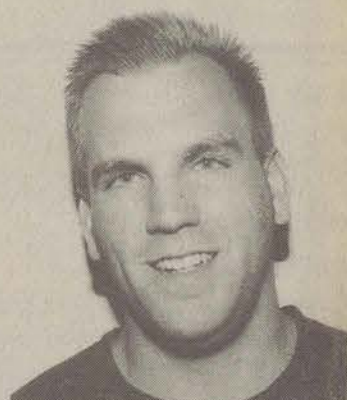

Former SGA senator, VP of auxiliary competing for presidency

By Kim St. Hilaire
Staff Writer

The GSU Student Government Association released the names of its candidates Thursday night April 16 following a meeting to finalize applications.

The elections for Executive Office, as well as Senate, will be held this Thursday, April 23 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the University Union Commons Area.

"According to our documentation, this year we have the largest number of candidates to qualify to run in the election race," Chris Clark, the current

Jonathan Brown

Niles Dixon

SGA President said. "Obviously I am very pleased with the number of candidates seeking executive board positions, but also we are elated by the fact that 32 persons are seeking a space in the 25 seat Senators' Cabinet."

"I have worked with SGA for four years and this is the first race I can remember that had no uncontested positions," Jeff Barker, SGA Publicity Coordinator, said.

"Each one of the positions will be fought over tooth and nail. We encourage all students not only to vote in Thursday's election, but also to give feedback to SGA officials.

It is only through the cooperation of the student body that SGA can effectively represent students' needs here at GSU."

In the race for the Presidency, it is Jonathan Brown, a junior criminal justice major, versus Niles C. Dixon, a junior accounting major. Brown claims one year of experience as the vice-president of Auxiliary Affairs for SGA. His opponent, Dixon, also claims a year of experience as a Senator.

Regents approve tuition, activity fee increases

By Misty McPherson
News Editor

For the fifth straight year in a row, the Board of Regents approved a 4 percent tuition increase for all Georgia colleges and universities within the system, with additional fee increases for GSU.

Referring to how the state pays 75 percent of education and students pay 25 percent, Jack Nolen, vice-president of student affairs said, "The intent of that is to keep the cost to the students in a 75-25 ratio (and) to get at that level and stay at that level. It's reasonable to try to keep that."

Nolen said there was discussion last year during the major budget cuts for a hike as high as 20 percent. There was never a proposal though, just discussion.

"Obviously everyone decided that was not reasonable — nothing we would want to do to parents in terms of cost," Nolen said.

Another fee that will be increasing is the university fee, which includes health, athletics and activity fees.

Student organizations approved the $29 increase which will be broken down as: $20 for a new recreation facility, $3 for recreation fields and a proposed $6 for health fees.

Nolen said that the $6 health fee would probably not be implemented this year.

"After evaluating it and discussing it we decided we could do another year without the increase," Nolen said.

The $6 increase would help fund the construction of a new counseling center, which is slated to begin sometime next year.

The final decision on the increase will be made in few weeks, Nolen said.

Parking fees will also increase from $10 to $15 a quarter.

Housing fees will increase to $450 a quarter for air conditioned rooms and $310 a quarter for unairconditioned rooms (Lewis Hall), said Patsy Burkett, director of housing.

Fees for private rooms will remain the same at $170 a quarter for air conditioned rooms and $115 a quarter for rooms in Lewis Hall.

Sanford will be $475 a quarter and the Pines will increase from $42 to $72 a quarter depending on the apartment. Burkett said the greatest increase for the Pines will be for small one bedroom apartments being rented to one person.

"These are the fees we requested and approved," Burkett said. "They are necessary to cover in operating cost as well as paying back on the construction of the new dorm."

According to Tom Palfy, the food service increases are the lowest increase on campus. The five day, two meal a day, meal plan will increase by $15 making the new cost $385. The seven day, two meal a day, meal plan will increase 4.4 percent to $470 (a $20 increase). The seven day, three meal a day, meal plan will increase 3.9 percent, another $20 increase, to $535.

"We carefully evaluate these yearly," said Nolen concerning the fee increases. "We do comparisons with other institutions and we do our best to keep them as low as possible."

GSU officials react to ASC faculty vote

By Dennis Smith
Staff Writer

GSU officials feel that the regional university plan is working despite an unofficial vote by Armstrong State College's (ASC) faculty last Tuesday to separate themselves from GSU.

The ASC resolution stated that the regional university "has not effectively met the needs of graduate students" in the Armstrong region.

Statements attributed to University Chancellor H. Dean Propst said that ASC's faculty has not given the plan enough time.

"I share the chancellor's view," said Wilson Bradshaw, vice president for graduate studies and research at GSU.

"It's a bit early to say it's not working. The chancellor still has confidence in the plan and I share that confidence."

A statement issued by Bradshaw in response to the ASC resolution said "education in Savannah has been expanded and improved over a short period of time."

Enrollment in the GSU graduate programs is up 7.3 percent since the creation of the regional university, Bradshaw said.

On July 1, 1990 GSU obtained university status and took control of the graduate programs at ASC and Savannah State College, creating the state's first regional university.

Bradshaw admits that things may be moving slower than they had first anticipated, but he attributes this to limited funding because of the state's budget crisis.

The ASC resolution also included a push to re-name all of Georgia's four-year colleges as universities.

South Carolina recently gave the choice to their senior colleges to re-name themselves as universities.

The Board of Regents is reviewing its policy on the matter because a number of Georgia colleges are trying to get university status.

Currently, there are certain criteria a college must meet before it can obtain the university designation in Georgia.

Dr. Jack Nolen, vice-president of student affairs, said the regional university is a very distinct type.

"Our main thrust is to serve a distinct region of the state," he said. "It is a different role than a four-year college. It provides another category of higher education that serves an important purpose."

A change in the policy of university status would require a majority vote by the Board of Regents.

According to a spokesperson for the board, the issue would have to be put on the monthly meeting agenda and the earliest the board could vote on the matter would be May 12.

VSC sorority funds missing

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — A Valdosta State employee who handled fraternity and sorority finances resigned after an audit found $23,273 was missing, college officials said.

The district attorney's office is conducting a criminal investigation.

The employee, who was not identified, has not been accused of taking the money, President Hugh C. Bailey said.

"All I know is there were not adequate receipts and documentation," he said.

The completion of the audit ends the college's role in the probe because the missing money didn't belong to the school, Bailey said.

The money belonged to the Panhellenic Council, an independent organization that governs all sororities at Valdosta State.

Council officers asked for the audit. Sorority members complained to Bailey's office that they had written checks that bounced, Bailey said.

The investigation focuses on 27 checks made out to the employee, 45 checks made payable to cash and four checks written to Valdosta State and cashed by the employee.

"For audit purposes, the monies have to be reported as 'unaccounted for' funds, even though some may have been spent for legitimate purposes," the audit read.

Local homes built in wetlands ordered removal

STATESBORO, Ga. (AP)—A developer who was ordered to remove two homes he built in a federally protected swamp has left angry tenants and flooded neighbors in his wake.

"I guess I'll have to suffer the consequences of what has gone before, which I didn't have anything to do with," said Penny Pennington, a grandmother being kicked out of her rented home because landlord Ray Hendley built it illegally.

Hendley built a road and two homes and poured the foundation for several more homes in the protected cypress swamp after being told to stop, said Greer Tidwell, southeastern regional administrator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Now, Hendley has been ordered to remove the houses and dig up the foundations by July 1 and to restore the wetlands to their original condition.

"We are committed to the protection of these high-quality wetlands in the Southeast and will not tolerate their deliberate destruction," Tidwell said.

Hendley said he was searching for movers to haul the houses to another location. He has given the tenants two months' notice to move.

"I don't like the way the government is enforcing wetlands laws," Hendley said. "It's against the American way of doing business, and I don't think Congress ever intended that the law be used in this way."

Property near Hendley's development has been flooded from the unauthorized development. Patrice Butterfield, a neighbor who helped organize about 120 homeowners to protest the development, said Hendley's project has ruined her flower garden of 400 bulbs.

"Now it's a wasteland," she said.

"Mr. Hendley is not an innocent victim of an overbearing federal government," said Hans Neuhauser of the Georgia Conservancy. "He knowingly violated two administrative orders from the Corps of Engineers."

Hendley, who has built hundreds of houses in the Statesboro area over the past 20 years, said he didn't know the property was a wetland when he built the two $60,000 homes there in 1989-90.

"I tried several times to call people in the (EPA) hierarchy so I could go to Atlanta and state my side, but I was never given the opportunity," he said.

Tidwell said Hendley knew about the wetlands and was issued cease-and-desist orders by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in December 1989 and January 1990.

In July 1990, the EPA ordered Hendley to stop building and restore the site to its natural condition. The order charged Hendley with violating the Clean Water Act for discharging pollutants into area waters.

Hendley said he stopped all work and started restoring the wetlands.

The EPA order was put on hold for several months while the EPA in Washington reviewed the case, said Tom Welborn, chief of the wetlands regulatory section for the EPA in Atlanta.

Welborn said he got the word Friday that the order

Two GSU professors devising new methods for school boards

GSU News Service

Two GSU professors believe that when a school board superintendent who operates with a "corporate" mentality encounters the informal "familial" oriented school board it signals potential difficulties - but need not mean an end to cooperation and progress.

Malcolm Katz, assistant professor of education and John Daily, associate professor of political science, hope to prove that conflicts between superintendents and school boards often are not simply the result of policy disagreements, but rather of conflicting management styles which can be detected and resolved through the use of a simple diagnostic test.

"Sometimes harmony grows into disharmony over areas of substance," said Katz, "but more often the tension stems from how the board perceives the superintendent is handling an operational issue."

"Two can put aside their stylistic difficulties, and work together on substantive issues" by using a simple diagnostic test.

For the purposes of examining the problem, Katz and Daily have contrasted two extremes of leadership style.

"Corporate" style favors decision-making based on information and statistical reports, a strong commitment to "chain of command," goal-setting, long-range planning, and outside consultation.

Potential conflict looms when the other party, if "familial" in nature, relying less data, preferring informal or oral communication, has special loyalty to the community or school system.

The base their decisions on this loyalty rather than to abstractions like "standards" or "excellence," and rejects outside opinion, which is viewed as intrusive.

The diagnostic test devised by Katz and Daily is based on five "constructs" or categories of opinion: preferred decision-making processes; perception of board member roles; board members' values; attitudes toward board advisement resources; and preferred superintendent priorities.

The first step in verifying their ideas is to test them in a real-world environment. For that, the Bulloch, Effingham and Candler county boards of education and their respective superintendents have agreed to cooperate.

"If the test proves successful, boards and superintendents would have a tool at hand for building on their potentials for accord, becoming more aware of their potential for discord, and for modifying their behavior so as to tilt towards greater harmony," said Katz.

"We see this as one tool for understanding and improving board superintendent relations, but not the only tool."

"Second, while we believe from empirical data that our assumptions are correct, proving them experimentally will take time."

"Third, our diagnostic test is still in its development stages. We have, however, used these ideas with superintendents in workshops without using the diagnostic test, to the apparent benefit of the participants."

"We see stylistic friction at the base of much of the conflict that arises between boards and superintendents."

"Its reduction or elimination may serve to help boards and superintendents focus on issues and problems rather than on what each sees as the offending behavior of the other. This would free them to do the creative and necessary work that they can only accomplish together."

Teaching about religion in public education necessary, says lecturer

By Gary A. Witte
Editor

As far as Dr. Robert VanDale is concerned, the public education system is in deep trouble.

According to VanDale, who lectured to an audience of students and faculty last Monday at the Union, the public system has been running a WASPish male dominated operation, but has had to begin taking into account the voices of other religions and cultures.

"So much so, that there is a fear on the part many observers that we are being so torn apart by our differences that we may not be able hang together as a nation much longer," said VanDale.

VanDale, a professor of religion at Westminster College, has conducted workshops and published numerous articles on Christianity and public education. He has worked in Ethiopia, Northern Ireland and Europe.

"I was disappointed that not one faculty member of the School of Education came to the lecture," said GSU history professor Dr. George Shriver, who helped bring VanDale to campus.

"I understand there was a lot going on on campus that night...but here we had an expert on religion and public schools on campus and the primary department that wasn't represented was the School of Education."

The audience consisted of students, numerous faculty members and at least one local religious leader.

"It is perfectly constitutional to teach about religion, about the Bible, about the Koran, about the Talmud, and about the Veda. It is perfectly constitutional as long as it is done objectively ... and as part of a secular program of education,"

Robert Vandale, professor of religion at Westminster

"Proexistence"

While granting that there needed to be a certain amount of continuity to keep the public education system together, VanDale stressed the need for what he calls "proexistence."

Proexistence is when people of differing traditions, religious or otherwise, attempt to make themselves the best example of their tradition they can be.

In this way, says VanDale, people can gain respect and knowledge of other cultures without losing their identity.

"Why should we be so concerned about melting everyone into a homogeneous blob, and then turning out duplicate copies of that all over the country?" said VanDale.

Teaching about religion

Necessary for this exchange, according to VanDale, is the teaching about different religions in the public schools.

He sees the primary responsibility of higher education as teaching the teachers to properly teach about religion.

But he clearly differentiates between teaching about religion and teaching religion.

"[Teaching about religion] is not only constitutional, but the [Supreme Court] Justices secular program of education," said VanDale.

Good teachers

"For a long time the problem was 'Where will we find pertinent materials?' Now there is more than enough good stuff out there. So now the problem becomes 'Where are we going to get good teachers?'"

"There are good training programs out there...if the School of Education at GSU doesn't know what's going on in educating people for becoming teachers able to handle religious topics in public schools, then they should certainly get ahold of some of the literature available," said VanDale.

Following the lecture, the audience participated in an open forum with VanDale, asking him questions and discussing religion and education.

The lecture was sponsored by the Campus Life Enrichment Committee and supported by the History department.

SGA Elections

Your choice

This Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the University Union, students will have a chance to vote on their choices for Student Government Association positions.

Despite poor publicity by the current SGA members (flyers announcing the open positions appeared only a week before the deadline for application), we hope the student voter turnout is better than last year's 15 percent student turnout.

We don't want to hear excuses about how you don't have time, or you're graduating this year, or even just how little you pay attention to SGA.

The point is — whether you like it or not — some of these candidates are going to be representing the entire student body on campus next year.

The candidates have done their part by applying for these jobs, giving you more choices than the student body had last year. All of the positions are being contested. Now it is your turn.

These candidates are going to be making decisions concerning the student groups you belong to. They are going to be making decisions that could affect the entire student body.

They are going to be making decisions that could very well affect you.

So take the time and find out what the differences between the candidates are. Find out what the candidates stand for. Find out what the key issues are.

Take the time to vote.

If you want to make a difference, that is.

Issues, not just names

We would encourage those who are candidates for SGA positions Thursday to pay attention to the rules and bring out the issues they think are important.

Candidates are not allowed to campaign, or have someone campaign for them, within 100 feet of the University Union. Students don't need you accosting them as they are trying to go inside the Union.

When you do send flyers out, we would appreciate it if you put something on them besides your name and what positions you are running for. Put the issues you believe in, and tell the students what you are going to do if you are elected.

If we wanted to have a popularity contest, we would have asked all of you to wear bathing suits.

- Have SGA form a committee to attend Statesboro city council meetings and let students know what is going on. Voice student concerns to city council.
- Address traffic problem on campus and look at possible solutions. Take student views to GSU administration.

Candidates for Executive VP

Charisse Chisholm
Junior, Early Childhood Ed.

Experience— 1 year, Senator

Comments:

"I would like to be the liaison between the students and the administration by providing the students with an outlet so that they can be heard."

Judson Smith
Graduate Student, History

Experience— 3 years, Senator at Augusta College

Comments:

"Through serving on the judicial board at Augusta College, I have seen what factors make a productive SGA and what factors can hinder SGA's progress. I want to incorporate these factors to not only produce an effective SGA but also provide a source for students to rely upon for addressing their concerns."

Candidates for VP Finance

If elected:

- Would put together student and faculty committee to create collegiality between students and faculty and improve relations.
- Make SGA more visible on campus.

'Wayne's World' starts a universal negative – NOT!

NEW YORK (AP) — The release of the film "Wayne's World" has spurred an unprecedented upsurge in good grammar, proper sentence structure and accurate verb conjugation.

Not!
Instead, the sudden popularity of Wayne-speak has everyone from tight-bodied Madonna to tight-collared George Will using the schwinging slang that twists a simple sentence into a semi-goof.

The "not" construction, which William Safire calls a "psuedo-Gallic negative," is the catch phrase of the moment.

For anyone locked in their own basement for the past few months, "not" is a staple of any conversation between Wayne Campbell and Garth Algar, the cellar-dwelling hosts of the faux cable show "Wayne's World."

The "Saturday Night Live" skit is the brainchild of Michael Myers, the noted linguist — not! — who plays Wayne, the suburban metal-head who hosts the show while clutching an electric guitar.

Here's how to use it. Utter any declarative sentence, preferably one conveying a compliment or conviction — then pause, and undercut its meaning with a quick "not."

The crack has cut across social, political and economic barriers to become the most-abused cliché since Saddam Hussein promised "the mother of all battles."

Wayne's work is everywhere: — T-shirts produced by the Republican National Committee proclaim "Didn't inhale ... Not," playing off Bill Clinton's claim that he once smoked marijuana without inhaling.

— A Page Six column in the New York Post had this to say about Garth's alter ego, Dana Carvey, and his visit to a trendy Manhattan restaurant: "When the 'Wayne's World' star and several friends tried to enter in jeans and T-shirts, they were greeted with a resounding, 'Not.'" — "Ziggy," the cartoon nebbish, stares at a map which reads, "You are here ... NOT!"

Rather than using the ordinary syntax, the speaker will express a negative by making an affirmative statement, followed by a brief pause punctuated by the word not.

Federal Magistrate Franklin L. Noel

— Jane Pauley, on the "Today" show to plug her latest television show, noted that her daughter suggested this title for the news magazine: "Real Life with Jane Pauley ... Not." ("Real Life with Jane Pauley," her previous effort, was shelved.)

— George Will wrote in his syndicated column that "Bush will kill that program. Not."

— Madonna's "not" was delivered to Wayne and Garth themselves, during an SNL dream sequence plugging her "Truth or Dare" movie.

— Safire, the New York Times columnist, dedicated two-thirds of a recent "On Language" piece to the "not" proliferation, and included this take on the phenomenon from federal magistrate Franklin L. Noel of Minneapolis: "Rather than using the ordinary syntax, the speaker will express a negative by making an affirmative statement, followed by a brief pause punctuated by the word not."

Noel indicated that the line had not cleared the age gap: "My law clerks often use this mode of expression, and I fear that my ignorance may be generational," he wrote.

What's that, your honor? You don't get it? Why, that's impossible!

Not!

Mical Whitaker performs a scene from Blood Knot. The play will run today through Saturday at 8 p.m. in Communication Arts 101. (Photo by Jesse Stribling.)

Blood Knot starts tonight

Fugard's first play has universal meaning

By Teresa Roach
Features Editor

The ideal in poetry is to create something so personal that it is universal. Blood Knot is a play that reaches this universal level through telling a story of two brothers, one light-skinned and one dark-skinned, in 1950's South Africa.

South African society at this time (and until recently) was strictly stratified into four classes: white, black, colored, and Indian. These classes lived in separate residential areas and attended separate schools.

In Blood Knot, the light-skinned brother can "pass for white" and the dark-skinned brother is oppressed by society because of his skin color.

Life is inevitably easier for the light-skinned brother, played by Rohan Quince. The dark-skinned brother, played by Mical Whitaker, has to face discrimination from the same people who accept his brother.

Whitaker is an instructor of theater courses and a specialist in African and African American drama. He was raised in Metter and earned a degree from North Carolina A and T State University.

He then spent 20 years in New York working as a director, producer, and occasionally as an actor. He returned to Metter in 1981 and began his work at GSU.

Quince is a native of South Africa. He earned his degree at the University of South Africa in Johannesburg. Subsequently he taught high school for five years in Capetown.

Quince came to the U.S. and in 1980 received his Master's degree from Southern Illinois University. He taught at Michigan State University before transferring to GSU in 1988. He teaches in the Department of English and Philosophy.

Blood Knot, according to Whitaker, "explores the relationship between two people....

It explores jealousy and the way people are manipulated by circumstance and each other."

The universality of the play lies in this exploration of feelings. Says Quince, "The exploration of race relations is applicable in South Africa, in the United States, in the South, at Georgia Southern...anywhere."

The point was raised by Whitaker that it is not uncommon in the South for two families, one black and one white, to live in the same town and have the same last name, and ultimately be related by blood.

Blood Knot was written by renowned playwright Athol Fugard and was also his first play. GSU's production is directed by Leslie Gordon, director of cultural affairs for the city of Savannah, and designed by Gary Dart, an instructor in the Communication Arts Department.

The play will run today through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the intimate setting of Communication Arts 101.

Entries for juried art exhibition now accepted

GSU News Service

The annual juried art exhibition will run May 7-May 29. All work must be submitted to Gallery 303 between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 30 and Friday, May 1. Any undergraduate student interested must fill out an entry form during this time. There will be volunteers available to receive the work.

All work should be ready to exhibit. It is not necessary for professional framing, but drawings and 2-dimensional works are expected to be matted if needed. If work is too large to bring to the gallery, bring a simple sketch or a photograph of it and let a volunteer know where it is.

All work must have been created in the past twelve months and must not have been exhibited in last year's show. Awards will be presented during the opening at 7:30 p.m. and will include the Lamar Dodd Scholarship funds for top winners, and also the Betty Foy Sanders and Roz Ragan Scholarships. The jurors will be Bob Simile and Gena Spivy. The opening reception will be on Thursday, May 7 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Fantasy baseball
creates a geek

"It's for geeks who have nothing better to do than bury their noses in stat books," I said.

Now, I'm a geek.

I'm talking about Fantasy Baseball leagues. Actually, I'm not a complete geek because I don't actually own or manage a team, but I'm caught up in one.

My roommate, who shall remain nameless — but for our purposes we'll call him "Special To the Eagle" — is too.

"Special" is a part of a league in his office. Every day is a blur of how Tom Pagnozzi or Ruben Sierra did. Should I trade the Reds pitching staff for the Blue Jays?

Like a moron, I'm trying to help, not that he ever listens (which is probably good). An example of reasons to trade a player or a staff, could be one of the following: you can get someone you wanted more; a player gets injured; or they pitch against the Braves on a regular basis and you don't want to root against the Braves.

The league is a structured entity with rules and bylaws. Points are awarded by for things that show up in a box score.

For example: a hit is worth one point. A home run is worth four. But, if your player is caught stealing, subtract a point. If you start your player and he doesn't play that night — tough luck.

The winner of each series is determined by the number of points his/her players accumulate during the series. The winner of the season wins $100.

The league has some strange bylaws. If there is no clear winner at the end of the season, the winner is determined by either a coin toss or a beer drinking contest.

I've seen some of the guys in this league and I know that "Special" is gonna win any beer drinking contest.

Since the league is based completely on statistics, hot players been big points and big wins.

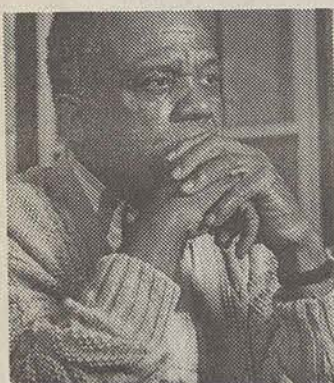

So in one sense, you have to start the right players at the right times. My roommate broke the league record for points in his first series, then said with a Cheshire grin, "I'm pushing all the right buttons."

When Brett Butler hit that opposite field double against the Braves the other night, it gave "Special" a tie (he thought, it was later determined that "Special" won the series by a point) he and I were both upset.

I'm not usually this involved in such cheesy games. It's a little strange that I'm living vicariously through a vicarious experience.

The box score is now my new found friend and ESPN's SportCenter has taken on a whole new meaning.

Methinks I'm a little too involved — a little too "geeked."

Eagles finish second in Southern Conference

By John Munford
Staff Writer

The GSU Eagle baseball team lost to the Furman Paladins 9-8 at J.I. Clements Stadium after sweeping them Friday night in a Southern Conference doubleheader, 6-2 and 7-4.

Right fielder Todd Greene hit his fourth home run in two days, but Furman's lead proved to be insurmountable.

Eagle starting pitcher Jim Carragher gave up eight runs on six Furman hits, three of which went for extra bases, dropping his record to 7-4.

Even a five-run eighth inning couldn't help the Eagles, as Mike Miller was thrown out trying to take third on a single to right to end the inning and the Eagles' chances of coming back.

In the first game of the doubleheader Friday, Greene hit his 13th and 14th home runs of the season to give the Eagles a 6-2 win.

Ron Buffington got the win, going all the way, giving up six hits while striking out four. The win improved his season record to 7-1.

The Eagles added to Greene's support in the second as Kevin Hallman singled and scored on a wild pitch.

The Eagles scored two in the third inning as Craig Cassidy reached on an error, and Doug Eder and Willando Ficklin both contributing singles.

In the nightcap, the Eagles got out to an early start, as Chris Petersen and Eder lead off the game with a pair of singles.

They were driven home by Miller two outs later to give the Eagles an early two-run lead.

They added to the total in the second inning, when a leadoff double by Bobby Slater was followed by consecutive singles from Buddy Holder and Cassidy. Petersen followed, reaching on a fielder's choice and scored on Greene's sacrifice fly to center to give the Eagles a six run lead.

Ronald Stanford took the win in relief for the Eagles, working out of a bases-loaded jam left to him by Eagle starter Tim Roth.

Stanford pitched 2 2/3 innings, allowing two hits and stranding seven runners.

The Eagles end their Southern Conference season with a record of 15-6, which gives them a second place finish overall.

They will play the seventh seed in the Coca-Cola Southern Conference Tournament at 7 p.m. Thursday at College Park in Charleston, SC.

The winner of the double-elimination tournament will get a regional bid to the College World Series.

The Eagles' next home game will be Monday May 4 at 7 p.m. against the Clemson Tigers, the second-ranked team in the nation.

Golfers third in SoCon tourney

G-A Staff Reports

The GSU Golf team finished third in a field of nine teams in the Southern Conference Golf Tournament held last week.

East Tennessee State shot a 24-over par 294 in final-round play and held off Marshall to claim its fourth consecutive Southern Conference Golf Tournament Tuesday at Rain-tree Country Club's South Course.

The Buccaneers, who ended with a 51-over par 891, led Marshall by nine strokes entering Tuesday's third and final round.

Marshall fired a 292 in the last round to finish to finish second at 898. GSU was third with 916, followed by Furman (927), UT-Chattanooga (939), The Citadel (941), Appalachian State (985), Western Carolina (1012), and VMI (1016).

ETSU was led Tuesday by Jon Wallace's 71. Tai Teshima and Scott Honeycutt each finished with 75's for the Buccaneers, while individual medalist Chris Stutts fired a 73.

Stutts, who finished with rounds of 77, 68, 73 (218 total), held off defending champion Eric Shaffer of Marshall who ended at 76, 70, 74 (220 overall). Stutts led Shaffer by one stroke entering the final round and the two stayed tight the entire third round.

Marshall's Bill Hutcheson and GSU's Mitch Marchman tied for third at 221, followed by Wallace at 222.

Rounding out the top ten were Sean Duffy of Marshall (223), Teshima (225), GSU's

Chris Chuck (226), Furman's Scott Summers (227) and The Citadel's Pohn Hillman (230).

The coaches five-man all-conference team and award winners were also announced Tuesday.

GSU's Rick Basch, UT-Chattanooga's Neil Connolly and Furman's Mark Lofye comprised the all-conference team.

Stutts was selected as the league's player-of-the-year,

NL pitchers anxiously await Sanders' return to gridiron

CINCINNATI (AP) — How hot is Deion Sanders?

So hot that pitchers can't wait for football season. So hot that Sanders says that may not matter this year.

The Atlanta Falcons' brash cornerback has become the National League's leading hitter. His .447 average, 17 hits and five triples all are tops among hitters in the National League.

In his first at-bat Wednesday against the Cincinnati Reds, Sanders lined his first homer over the right-field wall. He went 2-for-4 in the Braves' 3-1 loss, adding an eighth-inning triple.

Going deep was the only thing he hadn't accomplished in his sizzling start. He's hit for average, stretched doubles into triples, stolen bases and dazzled everyone.

"The guy's exciting to watch, isn't he?" Braves manager Bobby Cox said.

"I wish Deion Sanders would go back to playing football," said Reds pitcher Tim Belcher, who gave up a single, double and two triples to him Monday night. "He's turned himself into a pretty good hitter for a part-time baseball player. He ought to consider it full-time, before a 6-foot-5, 290-pound lineman breaks his legs."

He's considering it.

After going 2-for-4 Tuesday night in a 5-4 loss to the Reds, Sanders said he wants to spend the whole season with the Braves. No more flying back and forth between football practice and baseball games late in the season.

Sanders has one year left on his contract with the Falcons, which took precedence over baseball last year.

"I'm comfortable with the Braves," he told The Atlanta Journal-Constitution. "I'm a full-time baseball player. This is what is best for Deion."

He abruptly cut off a question about his dual-sport role Wednesday morning.

"I don't walk to talk about football, period," he said.

Thinking about just one sport is agreeable to his batting average. Sanders hit just .191 in 54 games for the Braves last year, going 21-for-110 with one double, two triples and four homers.

He's already eclipsed some of those totals. He is 17 for 38 with three doubles, five triples and eight runs scored.

"He's hitting everything right now, no matter what they throw," Cox said.

Simply a matter of concentration, according to Sanders.

"I think I'm more focused and dedicated as a player," he said Wednesday. "I'm totally focused. That's something I've learned to do. I'm just into the game, ready to play. I can't wait to play the next day."

His sensational start was precisely what the defending NL champions needed. Leadoff man Otis Nixon is serving the rest of his 60-game suspension for a drug relapse and can't return until April 26.

Cox might have some interesting choices at that time.

"Everything always works out," he said.

For now, Sanders fits nicely into the mix. He made his name as the self-promoting, prime-time football star — neon Deion. The act's been toned down for baseball, with most of the flash saved for his at-bats.

"I don't go out there to show anybody up," Sanders said. "I play hard and with a lot of intensity. I get excited. When I hit a triple and I throw my hand up, it's not because I'm trying to make them look bad."

Pitchers respect that. Belcher would like to see Sanders stay in the game full-time, even if it ends up hurting his earned run average.

"He's the kind of enigmatic personality that's good for the game," Belcher said.

Cross country team competes in Furman Invitational

By Jay Knight
Guest Writer

GSU men's cross country team had a strong showing at the Furman University Track and Field Invitational Saturday.

Southern Conference teams from Furman, East Tennessee State, and Western Carolina were present, allowing Eagle runners to get some insight as to what they'll see. GSU runners competed in the 800, 1500, and 5000 meter runs.

In the 5000M, Tim Willis finished third overall with a time of 16:27.7 lowering his U.S. National record for the blind by 27 seconds.

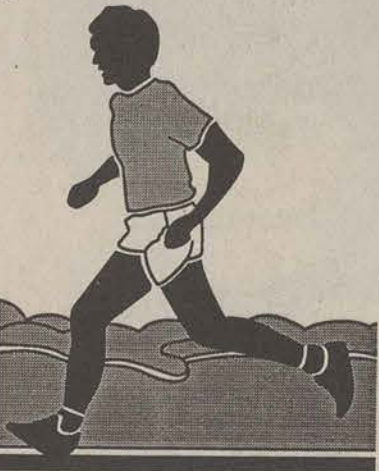

"I was satisfied with my time and pleased with my performance being my first 5000 of the year," said Willis.

Sophomore Chris Smith had an impressive day in two events.

He placed fourth in the 1500M (.93 miles) in 4:04. Smith finished second in the 5000M with a time of 16:26.3.

"With each race I hope to continue to improve on my times," said Smith.

Coach Jim Vargo was pleased with the teams' performance.

"I thought Chris and Tim extremely well and ran at the level we have been seeing from them in practice," he said. "Winter and spring practices have been going well and this will show down the road."

Freshman Matt McDuffie gave an indication of good things to come by running the 800M in 1:59 and completed the 1500M in 4:32.

Other competitors for GSU included Jay Knight (5000m, fourth, 16:42), Don Daniels (5000m, fifth, 16:42), Gene Sapino (5000m, 17:40) and Brad Simmons.

Mike Brinkmyer, after an extended layoff due to injury, completed the 5000m in 18:30.

GSU runners will compete May 2 in Gainesville, Fla. at the University of Florida in the Twilight Invitational.

UGA student considered for NL presidency

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — When a University of Georgia student wrote the National League office applying for retiring president Bill White's job, he didn't expect to be taken seriously.

"I told them why I preferred the National League ... more natural grass, a more aggressive style of play," said Phillip Ramati, a journalism major and writer for the Red & Black student newspaper.

During the weekend, Ramati received a letter from NL vice president Phyllis Collins informing him he is a candidate and that the selection committee is considering his application. The correspondence was probably a form letter.

"I'm the only candidate as far as I know," Ramati said. "I don't know who my competition is."

Ramati, a junior, said White's retirement in 1993 fits his time frame. "By the time (White) retires I'll have graduated, so it will work out well," he said.

Maybe there is a substitute for experience.

After you're done with school, you face one of the hardest lessons in life:

Without experience, it's tough to get a job. And without a job, it's tough to get experience.

At The Wall Street
Journal, we recognize that experience is something you don't start earning until after graduation.

But while you're waiting, we can give you a head start by providing some of the same competitive advantages that experience brings.

For instance, our wide-ranging news coverage gives you a clearer understanding of the whole complex world of business.

Our tightly focused feature reporting prepares you for your more specific ambitions - whether in management, accounting, finance, technology, marketing or small business.

And our in-depth analysis helps you formulate your ideas in a sharper and more persuasive way.

Mail the coupon - and start your subscription to The Wall Street Journal at student savings of up to $64.50 off the regular subscription price.

That's a pretty generous offer. Especially when you consider what it actually represents.

1. To find out where that next new temporary building will be located.

The second and first place winners will be published in upcoming editions of the G-A.

perception is everything...

Are the long lines parallel?

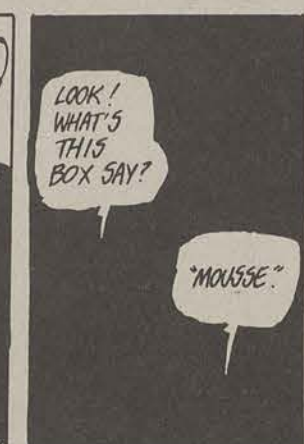

ANSWER: INTERESTED? Come by Statesboro's Wendy's to find out!

or is it?

This little seed of doubt has been planted by Statesboro's "Genuine" Value Leader, Wendy's...because Perceptions can be deceiving. For example, did you know that Burger King and McDonald's can't beat Wendy's when it comes to combo meals? It's true. Just compare prices*: McDonald's Big Mac Combo is $3.19. The Whopper Combo at BurgerKing is $3.29. Wendy's single combo, including a 1/4-pound of fresh ground beef, is only $2.99. And you pick the toppings you like. Over the next few weeks we'll present more of these challenges to stimulate your mind as well as help you question your pereptions about fast food restuarants. It's just another reason to give your local Wendy's a try.

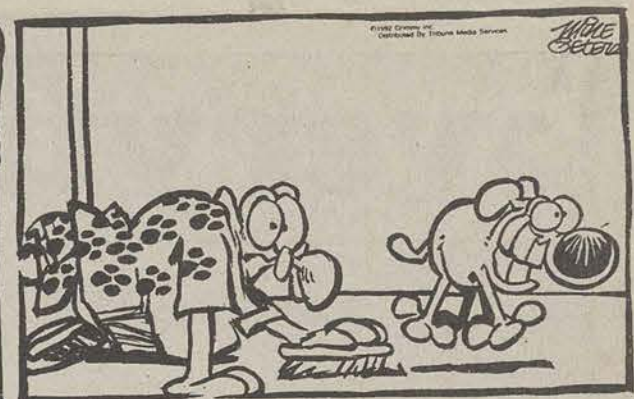

* Prices effective 4-16-92. Add tax to all three examples.

1992-93 Elections for University Media Positions

The Media Committee of Georgia Southern University announces elections to choose student members of the 1992-93 broadcast and editorial boards of the university's official student media (The GEORGE-ANNE, SOUTHERN REFLECTOR, MISCELLANY and WVGS/FM).

Students interested in applying for an elected position will be expected to present a letter of application to the chairperson of the Media Committee. Student applicants must also sign a waiver (included with this advertisement) which gives permission to the chairperson of the Media Committee to validate the candidate's academic standing. A student may indicate the position(s) sought either in their letter of application or on the waiver form. However, a separate letter should be submitted for each medium, if a student wishes to apply for more than one medium.

TERM: The term of office for the editorial and broadcast boards shall be the next four quarters following the spring elections and shall expire at the end of four quarters or at the end of the next spring quarter whichever comes first.

QUALIFICATIONS: Specific qualifications for persons holding board positions are listed below. Prior experience may be considered in lieu of stated qualifications. The media are listed in alphabetical order but the board positions within each medium are listed in ranking order.

THE GEORGE-ANNE

Editor — The editor should have completed two years of college work, at least one year at Georgia Southern. An editor should have served on the staff one year and should display capabilities required for the position. The editor is responsible for the preparation of a commentary section for each edition. The editor serves as the chief executive officer of the newspaper and is ultimately responsible for the total editorial content of each edition. (Pay: $650 per quarter)

Managing Editor — The managing editor should have completed at least one year at Georgia Southern and should have served at least two quarters on the staff. The managing editor should be familiar with basic journalistic practices such as layout, copy editing, and news and feature writing. The managing editor will be responsible for coordinating the editorial content in all sections of the newspaper, such as news, sports and features. The managing editor (with the assistance of the news editor) will be responsible for the preparation of the front page. (Pay: $600 per quarter)

News Editor — The news editor should know basic news writing and should be familiar with news sources on campus. The news editor should demonstrate news judgment and should have served at least one quarter on the staff of the paper. The news editor will be responsible for all news gathering operations of the newspaper. The news editor assists the managing editor in the preparation of the front page. (Pay: $575 per quarter)

MISCELLANY

Editor — The editor should have completed two years of college work, at least one year at Georgia Southern. The editor should demonstrate both the interest and the talent to create a quality literary and art publication for the college. The editor, in cooperation with the faculty advisor, will select a student editorial board to assist in publication duties and promotional events. The editor will be responsible for the total editorial content of the magazine. (Pay: $375 per quarter)

SOUTHERN REFLECTOR

Editor — The editor should have completed two years of college work, at least one year at Georgia Southern. The editor should have served at least one year on the staff and should have solid managerial and organizational skills and should be familiar with magazine copy writing and layout of pages. The editor serves as the chief executive officer of the magazine and is ultimately responsible for the total editorial content of each edition. (Pay: $650 per quarter)

Art Director — The art director should have completed at least one year at Georgia Southern and should have served on the staff at least two quarters. The art director should be knowledgeable of all aspects of magazine production, including layout and design, computer graphics, and all photographic processes used by the magazine. The art director will be responsible for management of magazine photographers. (Pay: $600 per quarter)

WVGS/FM

Station Manager — The station manager should have completed two years of college work, at least one year at Georgia Southern, and should have served at least three quarters as a dj at the station. The manager should display leadership qualities and should have a basic knowledge of Federal Communications Commission (FCC) rules and regulations, broadcast equipment, and budgetary matters. The station manager should plan on maintaining office hours averaging a minimum of one hour per week. (Pay: $350 per quarter)

Music Director — The music director should have completed at least one year of college work and should have served at least two quarters as a dj at the station. The music director is responsible for reporting playlists to trade journals and maintaining telephone and mail contacts with music companies. The music director should plan on maintaining office hours averaging a minimum of one hour per week. (Pay: $300 per quarter)

Production Director — The production director should have completed at least one year of college work and should have served at least two quarters as a dj. The production director is responsible for producing 10-20 new Public Service Announcements (PSAs) per quarter and coordinating other production activities. The production director is also responsible for generating quarterly issues lists (listing PSAs and special programs) as required by the FCC. The production director should plan on maintaining office hours averaging a minimum of one hour per week. (Pay: $300 per quarter)

Operations Manager — The operations manager should have completed at least one year Georgia Southern and should have served at least two quarters as a dj (disc jockey) at the station. The operations manager will be responsible for operating the station's computerized database, entering its album collection into the computer, keeping WVGS in compliance with all FCC rules for noncommercial radio stations, and should plan on maintaining office hours averaging a minimum of one hour per week. The individual who applies for this position should be well organized and should enjoy working with computers. (Pay: $300 per quarter)

DEADLINE: The deadline for all applications for any of these positions is Tuesday, April 21, at 5 p.m. Applications should be sent to Bill Neville, chairperson, Media Committee, in care of LB 8068, or delivered in person to Room 103, Williams Center.

COMPENSATION: Payment rates for board members are tentative and pending final approval by the Student Activities Budget Committee.

INTERVIEW DATE: The Committee has established two interview sessions this year for candidates. All candidates for board positions on George-Anne and Reflector Magazine must appear personally for an interview with the committee on Wednesday, April 29, and for Miscellany and WVGS/FM on Wednesday, May 6. Each interview session will begin at 3 p.m. in the Room 101 (formerly the President's Dining Room) of F.I. Williams Center (Upper Floor).

APPLICATION AND WAIVER FORM

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: Questions regarding these positions should be directed to the advisors of the media: Bill Neville (The GEORGE-ANNE) at 681-0069 or LB 8063; Olivia Edenfield (MISCELLANY) at 681-5350 or LB 8023; Del Presley (REFLECTOR MAGAZINE) at 681-5444 or LB 8061; or Russ Dewey (WVGS/FM) at 681-5446 or LB 8041. Additional information and interpretation of the qualifications may be obtained from the chairperson, Bill Neville (681-0069). Position(s) applied for (Please check ALL that are applicable):

students with an outlet to be heard," said Brown. "I will continue to strengthen community and campus relations. I would like to bring more organizations together to increase the closeness already existing here on the Georgia Southern Campus. I would also stress and focus on the need for more multicultural awareness programs."

"A stronger SGA means a stronger GSU," said Dixon.

He explains his main goal as being "To build an SGA that the students will use to work for them, as well as one that the administration will also use for its needs."

In the race for executive vice-president it is Charisse Chisholm, a junior early education major, versus Gerald Judson Smith ("Jud"), a graduate student working towards a Masters in history. Chisholm has a year of experience as a Senator for SGA. Smith has three years of experience as a Senator at Augusta college.

Charisse Chisholm explains, "I would like to see more student participation and involvement in GSU's SGA. I would like to be a liaison between the students and the administration by providing the students with an outlet so that they can be heard. I am also an advocate of the newly proposed student recreation center. I know what the students need and I will provide these needs to the best of my abilities."

Jud Smith, her opponent, comments, "Through serving on the judicial board at Augusta College, I have seen what factors make a productive SGA and what factors can hinder an SGA's progress. I want to incorporate these factors to not only produce an effective SGA but also to provide a source for students to rely upon for addressing their concerns."

In the executive race for Vice-President of Academic Affairs are: Mike Bowden, a junior marketing major; Jerald Carter, a sophomore political science major; Charlton Dickerson, a freshman graphic design major; Michael Floyd, a sophomore criminal justice major; Gregory Hester, a junior journalism major; and Ken Ward, a graduate student working towards a masters in public administration.

Competing for Vice-President of Auxiliary Affairs are: Jennifer Jacobs, a sophomore, and Regina Zimmerman, a freshman nursing major.

Finally, for Vice-President of Finance, the candidates are: Jarrell Jones, a junior accounting major; and Andy Mealor, a junior finance major.

These student along with the thirty-two candidates for Senate want to make a difference for all of us at GSU. Support these students, support SGA, support GSU, and vote in Thursday's election in the Union Commons Area between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m..
