University of Georgia student being treated for meningitis

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — An outbreak of meningitis on the University of Georgia campus isn't likely, although guests at a fraternity party should be vaccinated, university officials said.

Virginia Murray of Griffin was in stable condition Wednesday in St. Mary's Hospital after being admitted Tuesday suffering from the disease, a hospital spokesman said.

Tests indicate she has meningococcal meningitis, which is not as contagious as other strains of the disease, said university health services director Dr. Jacquelyn Kinder.

The student attended a party last weekend at a fraternity house on campus and everyone at the party should get an oral vaccine at the student health center, she said.

About 80 students had received the vaccine by late Wednesday.

Two students that painted swastikas study Judaism

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln students who spray painted swastikas on a Jewish temple are taking 30 hours of study on Judaism and the Holocaust.

Cantor Michael Weissner is directing the studies by the two men, both 23. Weissner is spiritual leader of the Congregation of B'nai Jeshurun.

The day after the March 8 incident police cited Tye OsBurn and Paul McAtee for vandalism, which carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $500 fine upon conviction.

City Prosecutor Norman Langemach said that OsBurn qualified for pre-trial diversion, however, McAtee appeared in Lancaster County Court March 26, pleaded innocent to the charge, and was released without bond with trial set for June 25.

Weissner said when OsBurn realized he was eligible for diversion, "he called me and asked if he could do his community service by way of studying Judaism, and the Holocaust in particular, and I said that would be fine with me" if he received diversion program approval.

Minister paints message of moderation for Absolut Vodka

ATLANTA (AP) — Baptist ministers are not likely to paint labels for vodka bottles, but the Rev. Howard Finster is not your average Baptist minister.

The 76-year-old artist-minister from north Georgia is the latest pop painter to be commissioned by Absolut Vodka's importer to render the Absolut bottle label in whatever direction inspiration leads the artist. His painting was unveiled Monday in Atlanta.

No teetotaler, Finster said his painting, "Absolut Georgia," is not at odds with his religion.

"I don't use (alcohol) at all, unless I need it" for medicinal purposes, he said. "You can use whiskey and not be a drunkard."

Rather than condemn alcohol, his painting promotes moderation. His thinking is contained in his sprawled messages in the painting.

One reads, "...Whiskey can't kill nobody. ... It has no brain. Untempered humans is the killers...."

Cindy Schumann crowned Miss Greek GSU

By Kim St. Hilaire
Staff Writer

Last Thursday night, members of GSU sororities crowded into the Union Ballroom, fixed their eyes on the stage, and watched as Cindy Schumann, a Kappa Kappa Gamma sister, was crowned Miss Greek GSU.

The pageant was sponsored by Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity as part of Greek Week. The proceeds went to their outreach project, PUSH (People Understanding the Severely Handicapped).

Schumann, a 21-year-old Biology major, played a piano composition entitled, My Tribute in the talent portion of the competition. Schumann has played piano since the age of five.

Schumann said, "I am very surprised," at winning the pageant. She added, "I had a great time and everyone was very friendly and supportive."

Second runner up went to Vicki Morton of Kappa Delta. First runner up was Tammy Hendrix of Alpha Delta Pi.

The contestants were: Mandy Barbee, Zeta Tau Alpha; Shannon Britton, Kappa Alpha; Susie Culpepper, Alpha Omicron Pi; Carmen Hall, Zeta Tau Alpha; and

Cindy Schumann

Jennifer Hughes, Chi Omega.

Brandi Johnson, Phi Mu; Kelly Mackler, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Laura Price, Alpha Delta Pi; and Sharon Thomas, Kappa Delta were also contestants.

While votes were being tallied, the 1991 Miss Greek GSU, Vanamey Roberts, had an opportunity to say farewell. "If it weren't for these girls, [her Kappa Kappa Gamma sisters], I wouldn't have been able to make it through a lot of hard times," she said.

"The sorority support was excellent," said Chris Drazba, the keynote speaker from Pi Kappa Phi. "About 500 people were there and we raised somewhere between $1500 and $1700 for PUSH."

PUSH, which was started by Pi Kappa Phi Fraternities nationwide in 1977, aims to raise funds and public awareness to benefit severely handicapped people in America. Since then, PUSH has raised approximately $2 billion.

"One way PUSH reaches out to the severely handicapped is by building adaptive playgrounds," Drazba explained in his speech. PUSH also sponsors a team of collegiates on a coast-to-coast bicycle trek each summer.

Senatorial candidate Tanksley speaks to College Republicans

By Dennis Smith
Staff writer

U.S. Senate candidate Charles Tanksley outlined his campaign for the GSU College Republicans and appealed for support from the group last Wednesday night in the Student Union.

Tanksley, an attorney from Cobb County, told the group the only way to beat Sen. Wyche Fowler is with a strong media campaign. The GOP hopeful has already started airing television ads.

Calling himself the only man that can defeat the incumbent senator, Tanksley referred to Fowler as a "typical tax and spend professional politician."

"Whoever runs needs to completely contrast with Wyche Fowler philosophically," Tanksley told the group of students.

He showed them a number of his television spots that are currently running in the metro-Atlanta area.

One ad, which shows Fowler standing next to a donkey, seemed to be especially popular with the group. According to Tanksley, the clip originally came from a 1986 Fowler ad.

The Tanksley ad, however, calls Fowler a "liberal senator" while saying the donkey is "not a liberal senator."

While focusing most of his campaigning on Fowler, Tanksley didn't forget to mention other GOP candidates Paul Coverdell and Bob Barr.

Tanksley said the three most important issues in the current campaign are the economy, crime and education.

State official wants flag changed

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia's attorney general wants a Confederate emblem removed from the state flag.

"The state flag is highly offensive to many black Georgians, for whom the Confederacy symbolizes slavery," Attorney General Michael Bowers said in a letter published in Friday's editions of The Atlanta Constitution.

The blue and white crossed bars with stars on a red field, representing the Confederate battle flag, was added to the state flag in 1956. Black legislators have called for its removal in recent years. "Most likely, defiance toward the Brown desegregation decision of the U.S. Supreme Court played a key role in the flag's creation."

—Georgia Attorney General Michael Bowers

lators have called for its removal in recent years.

"Most likely, defiance toward the Brown desegregation decision of the U.S. Supreme Court played a key role in the flag's creation," Bowers wrote.

"The state flag is an issue worthy of concern because race relations are as strained as they have been for a long time," he added.

"Change the state flag. The need is obvious."

Atlanta has most tuberculosis cases

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta's tuberculosis rate has soared nearly 50 percent in one year to rank highest in the United States, federal TB experts said Tuesday.

Atlanta reported 301 active tuberculosis cases in 1991, for a rate of 76.4 cases per 100,000 residents — worst in the nation, compared with third in 1990. Newark, which had the worst TB rate in 1990, was second.

Atlanta's rate was up nearly 50 percent from a year earlier, when the rate was 51.5 cases per 100,000.

"Atlanta is a heck of an increase," said Donald Kopanoff, associate director at the Division of Tuberculosis Elimination for the national Centers for Disease Control.

Kopanoff said one factor may be Atlanta's increasing incidence of AIDS; the AIDS virus, HIV, weakens the immune system, which can allow illness from tuberculosis infections which, in most people, might stay dormant for many years.

"It's no surprise to anyone anymore than HIV has had a significant impact on tuberculosis in this country," Kopanoff said.

The AIDS rate in metro Atlanta ranks 10th nationwide and is growing, according to CDC data. The area has reported 4,481 of the nation's 213,641 AIDS cases.

"A second main reason for the resurgence of tuberculosis in this country is immigration," Kopanoff said, adding that states with significant TB problems tend to have large numbers of immigrants from nations where TB is widespread, such as Mexico.

Rounding out the 10 worst TB rates were Miami, fourth at 48.5 cases per 100,000 (down from 66.1 in 1990); San Francisco, 46.0 (46.1); Oakland, 40.9 (49.2); Houston, 34.5 (32.0); Tampa, 31.1 (38.2); Los Angeles, 30.6 (unranked in 1990); and Santa Ana, Calif., 30.0 (29.3).

Among the states, New York had the highest rate at 24.5 cases per 100,000, followed by Hawaii, 17.7; California, 17.4; Texas, 14.6; Georgia, 13.7; Florida, 12.8; New Jersey, 12.7; Alaska, 12.3; Arkansas, 11.9; and Tennessee and Mississippi, 11.6 each.

The national TB rate last year was 10.4 cases per 100,000. The United States had 26,283 cases last year, up 2.3 percent from 1990.

The nation also has seen an increase in tuberculosis among children. Rates are not yet available, but there were 1,664 TB cases among children under 15 last year, up from 1,261 a year earlier. Nearly two-thirds were in children under 5.

"The disconcerting thing about TB in children is that ... it implies that there is proba-

Art student expresses himself in work

By Tiffany Roberts
Guest Writer

Salvador Dali posters drape his wall, interspersed by some of his own art work. On a paint-splattered floor, his desk spills over with graphic art design homework due the next day. This artist/student is Tom Thielemann.

Thielemann, a junior here at GSU, has quickly made the Foy Building his second home. He spends his days in Foy attending classes and working on his own art designs. Lately, his time has been spent preparing the gallery for the upcoming art show.

Art is a way of life for Thielemann. He became interested in high school and has grown to love his creative field. Finding out that this work keeps him from the nine-to-five norm, he welcomes a world of no set hours and no boundaries.

"As I grew up, I could do it [art] and I liked it. I wanted to major in something where I wouldn't be caught up in the nine-to-five world," said Thielemann.

He said that he sees art as "the ability to put into motion or thought something that is inside, and to put it on paper or in a sculpture in a way that will make another person feel it without even knowing it."

Not quite satisfied with his answer, he sits back and thinks for a minute. He says, "Art is very personal and very real; this is a way of expressing yourself without saying a word." He smiles and nods, his description complete.

Thielemann's desire to work in all aspects of the art industry led him to an internship with the High Museum of Art in Atlanta last winter quarter. He worked in the education department and helped put together an art program for which he researched 19th century France and its art.

Thielemann's favorite parts of the intern were the people and the atmosphere. "Everyone hung out together. It was a very laid-back environment, even more than a class — an art class, not a regular class," he said.

Thielemann said the internship showed him what he did not want to do when he grows up. "I wasn't involved enough in art, but it showed me real-world politics. I know that I have to look out for myself and do what makes me look good."

His desire for hands-on work has paid off. During his college career, Thielemann has sold eight works. Three of these were art pieces and the others were commercial art that he did for advertising.

His favorite piece of art that he designed himself is a piece called "Fly." It is a combination of paint, ripped paper and a feather that symbolizes his feelings about personal freedom and transformation.

White paint-splattered hands push his hair from his eyes as he described the messages that can be found in art. "In most pieces, people try to visualize their ideas about something. It could be drugs, politics or racism. The possibilities are endless, there are no boundaries or limitations, except the limits of your paper." And smiling, Thielemann added that you can always buy more paper.

In the next ten years, Thielemann hopes to become an established artist. "Well, reality-wise, I hope to be teaching college studio art. Otherwise, I guess I'll be selling gasoline, cigarettes and beer," he said.

For now, Thielemann has been doing some of the behind-the-scenes work for the upcoming art show in Foy Gallery. Painting fixtures and arranging exhibits are just a few of the things that take up Thielemann's days and nights; but this, along with his talent will help pave the way for his career as an established artist.

SGA President bows out gracefully

By Blair Burke
Guest Writer

In the words of outgoing Student Government Association President, Chris Clarke, "I encourage the students to get involved and I challenge the new senators and officers to do as good a job as last year's senate and office."

In the Union on Wednesday, at the annual SGA banquet held for incoming and outgoing senators and officers, Clarke addressed faculty and SGA senators and officers. President Nicholas Henry and Vice President of Academic Affairs Jack Nolen were honored guests.

Clarke awarded outgoing SGA senators and officers with certificates of appreciation for an example-setting year and handed the gavel over to SGA president-elect Jonathan Brown.

"Despite some bad publicity, I think this year's senate and officers did a great job," said Clarke.

He listed the administration's accomplishments of co-sponsorship with fraternities, clubs, the college and the community to support blood drives for the Red Cross, to raise funds for the United Way, to establish Condom Week, and to speed the building of the Student Recreation Center.

He also gave plaques of appreciation to Dr. Baynes, SGA advisor; Dr. Van Tassell, faculty advisor; Mrs. Bettye Reaves, secretary; Dr. Henry and Dr. Nolen for their involvement in SGA.

Nolen praised outgoing SGA President Chris Clarke in a year-in-review speech at the banquet.

Nolen began his speech by recalling Clark's first duties representing the student body by welcoming freshman for orientation in late summer and speaking to an estimated 500 faculty members for the first faculty/administration meeting of the year.

Nolen also reminded the audience of the president's work on continuing the rental of residence hall refrigerators that fund $1500 SGA scholarships given to deserving students.

"He represented you [students] very well. He did not let you down once," said Nolen.

Nolen informed the crowd that Clark's work in the fall of 1991 was vital in having the Student Recreation Center built in two years instead of five years, as originally planned by most state legislators prior to the vote on budget.

"Toward the end things looked grim, then Chris wrote a letter and put together a packet with assistance from SGA advisor Dr. Baynes and sent it to the local legislators," said Nolen.

It was later learned this influenced the legislators in giving the go-ahead for the center's construction by 1995.

In commenting about this achievement, Nolen said, "He left a legacy."

GSU's SGA ranks third in the state in best student governments above the University of Georgia, Georgia State, and Georgia Tech.

Nolen encouraged the new administration to continue and improve upon the records of the 1991-92 administration and said that he looked forward to the coming year in SGA.

Colon cancer is closely related to meat, fat and fiber

Because higher colon cancer rates have been observed in countries with a greater meat consumption, dietary factors have been considered to be closely related to colon cancer. However, it is difficult to claim that the cause of colon cancer is any particular dietary product since populations that consume a minimal amount of meat also are likely to consume more grain products.

Research has to be carried out to observe individual differences in diet and colon cancer among individuals of similar lifestyles and environment.

According to The New England Journal of Medicine, this was the approach taken in an investigation involving data from the Nurse's Health Study Cohort, a group of 121,700 female registered nurses who first filled out a health questionnaire in 1976. Additional questionnaires were mailed out every two years, and in 1980 the questionnaire was revised to include dietary information.

A total of 88,751 women without a history of bowel disease (in themselves or their family) were followed-up until 1986; a total of 512,488 person-years of follow-up were achieved. During this time, 150 cases of colon cancer were recorded. Tabulation of the data showed that the consumption of red meat was significantly associated with the risk of colon cancer, and that the relative risk of women who consumed beef, lamb, or pork every day was 2.49 times that of the general population.

HEALTH AND FITNESS

The daily consumption of skinless fish and chicken reduced the risk of colon cancer. Low intake of fiber from fruit was statistically associated with increased colon cancer. However, this association was not independent from consuming red meats.

The daily consumption of dietary fiber is essential to reduce the risk of bowel disease — particularly colon cancer. An intake of 25 to 50 grams a day of dietary fiber should be adequate. Some good sources of fiber are bananas, whole wheat bread, nuts, and legumes (such as beans and peas).

Nevertheless, carefully check the label of any product to determine the amount of fiber.

In the men's room

Picture this. You are on the campus of GSU and you need to visit a restroom. Moments after entering a nearby restroom, you hear moans and a rough scuffle echoing from one of the stalls. Hastily you decide to look in the stall where, to your amazement, you witness two males engaging in barbaric sex. What do you do?

First of all, I'm not writing this article to condemn homosexuality; nevertheless, I am writing it to denounce where certain GSU homosexual males are engaging in their sexual activity.

For the past few years, a large number of homosexual males have been engaging in a diverse assortment of unusual sexual escapades in the men's restroom of GSU's Administration building. Lately, however, this problem has been getting worse.

In order to fully understand the magnitude of this situation, I interviewed several employees who work in this building.

According to these frustrated employees, this is a growing problem for them and they feel it must be stopped. Several of the male employees actually fear going to the restroom alone, because they never know what type of predicament they will be faced with upon entering the restroom.

One employee, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "Once, I walked in the restroom and there was a fellow masturbating all over the lid of one of the toilets. Another time, a guy slipped a note to me under the stall that said 'I like your body.' This activity is ridiculous and we are sick and tired of it."

Now is time for solutions

To date, the George-Anne has received 24 letters about the Rodney King verdict, including responses to the "King verdict was the correct one" letter in the May 8 edition.

We feel these topics have been thoroughly discussed and due to the volume of the submissions, the George-Anne will cease to accept any further letters on these topics. Every attempt will be made to publish — in brief — those letters already received.

Whether you agree with the Rodney King decision or not is no longer the point. It is time to stop calling names and start discussing how we can get down to solving the very real, and ever-present, problem of racism.

One of the keys to this solution is the understanding of other people's point of view, and not just the preaching of your own.

It starts — or ends — with you.

Your choice.

COUNTERPOINT

Kennedy Ward

Along with a great deal of help from Campus Security, the employees of the Administration building have been able to apprehend many of these crude males. Several of those apprehended have been GSU alumni, but most are students.

After being caught, some of these individuals have confessed that they were in the restroom waiting for one thing: to meet a guy and have sex.

Like the frustrated employees of the Administration building, I think this activity is repulsive. This type of indecent behavior is also very nauseating; who wants to use a toilet that some deviant individual has masturbated on?

I truly feel sorry for the individuals that work in the Administration building. There is absolutely no reason why these hard-working GSU employees should have to come to work each day and deal with this sort of foolishness. Something has got to be done.

If you are a homosexual and do engage in this "public restroom sex," I encourage you to stop this perverse and irritating activity. No person should have to meet individuals in a public restroom for sex. Sex should be done in private, not in a public. Remember, restrooms are for defecating not fornicating.

Please, stop this bothersome and abnormal activity. If you need to have sex, do it at home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

King verdict showed that justice is not colorblind

Dear Editor,

I would like to respond to the "Name Withheld by Request" letter editorial on May 8. His "opinion" of blacks and other minorities bore the same mentality of KKK members.

In addition, he believed the jury made the correct decision in Rodney King case. I would like to ask Mr. "Name Withheld," would you like if the police beat you 56 times and used a Taser on you?

I would like to agree with you on a couple of points. Maybe Mr. King should have testified on his behalf and that people did not hear the presentation of arguments by the attorneys to judge the rightness or wrongness of the verdict. These are the only areas of agreement that I have with you in the entire letter.

Further, you said that the rioting in L.A. was "...truly the dumbest thing I have ever seen." I assume Mr. "Name" that you are not a minority person and therefore you might not have the ability to picture what fighting for equality is all about in the "land of the free."

Dear Editor,

I am a newly elected senator. I was appalled with what I read in the George-Anne about the Student Government Association election.

The comments on the election were written without there being any proof of anyone scrutinizing over the voters' choice candidates.

The accusations were false. I know one of the accused personally, and I know with some degree of confidence that this person would not show any

When a person puts his or her faith in the legal system, no one feels that justice will be blind. However, the verdict proved that minorities need to find a way to vent their frustration over the decision.

However, death and destruction is not a good way to handle this situation. Furthermore, these individuals may not have another outlet to "vent," because of financial or social situations.

In the last half-dozen or so paragraphs of your letter, you mention that "I think it [is] about time blacks get off welfare and stood on their own." You implied that blacks are the only one that used public assistance in this country.

However, your logic is totally inaccurate and biased because of your beliefs. The federal government has not done nearly as much for blacks as it has for people in foreign countries.

The U.S. gave away billions of dollars in humanitarian and domestic aid, and you are complaining about blacks getting money for college.

Speaking of money for college, you said "...how cum [sic] only minorities get [Pell Grants]?" I know personally of several whites who are the recipient of Pell funds. Pell was set up as a foundation for need-based financial aid.

I cannot help the fact that many whites have more money than blacks. However, that does not mean that whites should not receive the funds, because I believe that everyone — regardless of race or nationality — should have the opportunity to further educate himself or herself.

About the UNCF, the only way to receive those funds is by attending a historically black college or university. Some of these institutions are out of state and even with the funds, it would be financially impossible to attend. If you did some research before expressing your opinion then maybe you would have known some of this.

I do not like name-calling unless the situation calls for it. To Mr. "Name," the next time you decide to write insulting and totally racist remarks, remember who started racism in the first place. Whites have started the battle and the end is not in sight.

The Rodney King case was supposed to illustrate that justice is not blind for people of color, however, the decision did the opposite.

So, please for the sake of future generations, try to understand that racism is only counterproductive to peace and harmony that will put this country back on top! (Name Not Withheld by Request)

Paper needs to focus on more substantial issues

Dear Editor,

I am a newly elected senator. I was appalled with what I read in the George-Anne about the Student Government Association election.

The comments on the election were written without there being any proof of anyone scrutinizing over the voters' choice candidates.

The accusations were false. I know one of the accused personally, and I know with some degree of confidence that this person would not show any form of undemocratic practices. I am also confident that the other members of SGA wouldn't misuse their positions of power.

I believe that if you and your staff have some kind of problem with the SGA, then you and your staff should get off your cans and run for an office in the next election. Don't keep trying to talk the candidates into contesting this election just because you're not satisfied with the chosen senators and executives.

Why don't you and your staff start writing about more substantial problems such as world hunger, poverty, the homeless, and the political problems of the United States?

I am disappointed with the way this newspaper avoids taking advantage of its power to help address these types of problems.

We the students need a more politically active newspaper. We need the information that this newspaper is capable of producing. This way we can address these problems that are upon us now and the ones that we may face in the future.

Not all people take the time to read a national newspaper, but they do take the time to pick up a free George-Anne.

Christopher Brown
SGA Senator

[Editor's Note: Both SGA president Chris Clark and VP of Academic Affairs Amber Cornelius have clearly stated in their letters to the editor that the ballot were examined by poll workers.]

Newspaper defamed SGA with destructive criticism

Dear Editor,

I am the outgoing Vice President of Academic Affairs for the Student Government Association, and I am writing this letter in response to the numerous editorials which have appeared about SGA.

This applies not only to those opinions expressed by your staff during the past two weeks but also to those which have appeared throughout this past year. Before I elaborate any further, let me say that I realize that whatever reply I offer can always be challenged by your opinions and that you can always have the last word in your newspaper.

Hopefully, though, this will be my only letter, and it is my wish for problems between SGA and the George-Anne to be resolved for this next year.

I would like to say that, quite frankly, I am fed up with the destructive — not constructive — criticism we have received in most of the editorials which have appeared about SGA since I took office last spring. I certainly don't mind constructive criticism and have welcomed that during my office term so that I could better serve the students of GSU.

However, the image of SGA that you have chosen to create for the student body by your press alone has been one of a very negative, less-than-helpful, always-questionable, and arrogant organization. When my fellow officers, senators, and I took office, we did not have, nor at any time ever chose to endorse, such intentions.

Nonetheless, it appears that very little of the projects SGA has undertaken has ever been mentioned in a positive manner by your paper, and I find this very ironic in light of the fact of how we have facilitated beneficial relations between students and various faculty, administrative, and community organizations.

Instead, most press we have received from you has been in an editorial where you could easily paint a negative view of SGA, not in article which, as I understand, should display no bias. How convenient.

It is also interesting to note what kind of editorial discretion you display by putting only your editorial on the front page of the paper and not one of an opposing nature. But I realize I know very little about newspaper production and would certainly not try to tell you how to run your newspaper. My question, though, is why have you continuously not focused on anything positive in an editorial? I am not saying we only deserve praise, but we surely do not deserve only negative, destructive publicity.

The issue of the election process has been well defended — and rightfully so — by Chris Clark. In your editorial, you assumed that SGA was trying to somehow influence votes by scrutinizing the scantrons. As if this would really work... This, of course, although your opinion, was certainly not the case, but the actual facts were not printed for several days. Thank you for taking the time to do so.

With the conditions we operated under, we did the best we could have done. In the end, though, students were able to exercise their right to a private vote, and the numbers for the elected members speak for themselves. To contest the election, when the difference between the total votes was so high, would serve no purpose, and those who were elected have not indicated any problem they had with the process.

However, if you still question our ethics, then I must wholeheartedly question yours: If you were so outraged by our glancing over the few students' scantrons that we did in order to ensure their correct completion (as was requested by many of those students), then why did you not speak out about this immediately?

Indeed, this "impropriety" as you saw it could have been easily and quickly addressed and resolved. The fact you waited so long is very concerning. Is it your own policy, then, to let any alleged improprieties which can be immediately remedied and which seemingly concern you so greatly go unaddressed until much later?

The next issue I want to address is that, even though I had very little need to actually deal with the George-Anne, the two times that I did request services were met by opposition and uncooperativeness. I mean, how hard can it be for someone to snap a picture and then show it once developed? On these occasions, I followed procedure as instructed, but the services I received, when someone actually appeared as agreed upon, were less than professional.

I mentioned these incidents, not to be petty, simply to prove a point, which is more or less obvious when dealing with your staff or reading your newspaper: no one is perfect. This certainly is not meant to be used as an excuse for anything, but simply to say that before you dare question our professionalism and the projects we undertake, take a close look at your own weaknesses.

In a recent conversation with Mr. Witte, he questioned our professionalism (or lack as he indicated) but degraded the Eagle because it is mostly run by a professional business. It also ironic that I have seen very little of Mr. Witte's or his staff's professionalism in these editorials and paper.

The personal affronts against Chris Clark he has displayed are prime examples, but such attacks are uncalled-for and demonstrate immaturity and should be dealt with outside the office. But "slamming" someone else has always been a defense mechanism used to di-

Letter misinterpreted column, misrepresented columnist's views

Dear Name Withheld,
On May 15 the George-Anne printed your letter, "Columnist guilty of reverse racism; verdict should unite all races" in response to my May 5 column called the "Crime of being black."

You went to great length to distort my article and the messages behind my personal viewpoint of racial biases in this country. As an individual, I have every right to think and feel the way I want to. Whether you like it or not.

First of all, I did not appreciate you misquoting me in your letter. If you are going to contradict my views, you must be factual. For instance, I did not say that the video used in the testimony of Rodney King's trial was not enough evidence.

I specifically wrote "Some people, especially whites fail to realize that the video was enough evidence to convict those men [the policemen involved in the beating of Rodney King] to life in prison."

Yes, I said especially whites because that's the way I view the situation. Notice, I carefully stated some people. Therefore, I am not grouping all whites into this category.

Next, blacks have been chastised in this country for years. Slavery, racism, segregation, hangings, denied the right to learn — the list continues. This is a part of African-American history in this country. I refuse to pretend that it never existed because the negative connotations established about blacks in society still exist.

Are you asking me as an African-American to forget or try to pretend like racism does not exist in this country? Or do you want me to conform or to think like the majority, who are mostly white?

That is not the way I think or feel.

Also, as far as reverse racism is concerned, you don't know me. I am not advocating reverse discrimination, but I am advocating a different viewpoint about discrimination against the minorities.

As much as I hate to use statistics, the Census Bureau states that there are 80.1 percent whites in this country as opposed to blacks which make up only 12.1 percent of the population. So, there is no equal balance between blacks and whites in this naive country.

It really bothers me for some white people, such as yourself, to mention reverse discrimination or to try to equate this unequal balance of the population. How can blacks, as well as other minorities, discrimi-

MAXI'S WORLD

nate against a majority?

Granted, I don't condone the violence that occurred against the white truck driver, as well as I don't condone the violence that occurred against Rodney King.

I just wanted to add that the one isolated incident of the white trucker cannot be comparable to the beatings that blacks have been received and are still receiving in America.

I also want to add that abuse comes in many different ways, such as psychological, physical, emotional, and mental. The best example that I can think of are the lynchings that were used by some whites in order to keep blacks under control.

Blacks are not looking for sympathy, but blacks are looking for respect as humans and not animals. So please don't ignore the fact that slavery was — to me — the most dehumanizing thing to ever occur to anyone.

As a matter of fact, this country was built on racism. For instance, every nationality that came to this country during the first and second wave of immigration experienced some form of racism. As I state again — it is not just a black thing, it is a people thing.

People in modern society must learn to adjust to one another, and adjusting should start with focusing on the problems of the inner city. No, I was not brought up in that environment, so I'm just as naive as anybody about the incidents that occur in the inner cities. It is no secret that a large majority of people who live within inner cities are black. So I agree with you that it was not only black people within the community protesting against the unjust judicial system.

As for you calling me ignorant, I know who I am. So your words do not, and will not, affect the way I feel about racial biases in this country. I am glad that you expressed your opinions about what I wrote, because at least I know that you're reading and interpreting the message that I'm trying to focus on in my articles.

I think the media is the blame for this continuous negative ideologies about certain groups and nationalities in this country.

For instance, how can I be judged of labeling? Society is constantly pointing fingers at certain groups for convenience, especially blacks. Yes, everyday, the media points the finger at some blacks for being criminals, rapists, murderers, and also, thieves. Solutions to the problem lies within the media because they keep us touch with our environment and the world around us.

Equality begins with judging a person on their individual merit, and not for what we think or want to believe about that individual or group of people. Reinforcing stereotypes will only increase the problem rather than solving the problem.

rect attention away from one's own shortcomings and faults. And is it not generally easier to heap criticism rather than offer any praise or to complain about something but not get involved in a constructive manner?

In closing, I want to reiterate a point previously expressed by Chris Clark — bad publicity is better than none at all — and it is true to a certain degree. However, when that is what is consistently displayed by the George-Anne about more organizations than just SGA, students will only take so much. It is no wonder student apathy on this campus is so high. After a while, who would want to get involved with anything after the George-Anne had maligned it so?

But even with all of this, I would still like to thank you the students of GSU for having elected me and allowed me to serve you during my final year at GSU. It has been my pleasure to have worked with and for you and to have become better acquainted, with many of you.

He knows better than most that moderation is the key

GSU student has dealt with alcohol addiction and now helps others overcome their problems by his experience

By Jeff Merritt
Guest Writer

Kirby Schaffer casually sits down with his barbecue sandwich, fries, and drink. Without hesitation, he unconsciously moves them around so that his fries are on his right and his sandwich to his left. He'll be ready to eat as soon as he drinks up all the Coke that has escaped through the straw hole. He bows his head; eyes closed and lips barely moving, he thanks his Creator for his dinner. Now, he's ready to eat.

He had to get everything in order first.

But he had better hurry, because he has a softball game in an hour.

In his last quarter at GSU, this senior economics major looks and acts no different than anyone else. His three-day-old beard matches will his three-year-old war-torn GSU hat. And like his peers, Kirby has his share of problems: He tires his best to manage what little money he has, balances his 25 hour per week job with his school work, and hopes that the five years that he has spent at college won't be wasted. In fact, on the surface, Kirby looks like a regular guy.

You'd never know he was a recovering alcoholic.

This shy and innocent looking 23-year-old Perry, GA native took his first drink ten years ago. Not because of peer pressure, but because he wanted to. But when Kirby left home to come to GSU, his love affair with alcohol followed him. And it's followed him ever since.

In his sophomore year of college, Kirby drank over $1000 worth of brew. He and his drinking buddies had figured out how to study Sunday through Wednesday and get plastered the rest of the week and keep their grades up. I asked him, if it wasn't the peer pressure that made him drink, then what was it?

"I was drinking because of problems," Kirby replied with a look of disgust on his face. You see, he told himself that when he first started drinking, he would not do it because of problems. But as a result of a bad relationship, coupled with doubts of what direction his life was headed in, Kirby began to head for the mountains.

"I began to drink heavily at all times."

And as the saying goes, "What goes up must come down." And he did. One night, alone in his room, Kirby decided to get his life back together again. Now "walking the Christian life," Kirby has found a hope to hope in. And as a result, he is changing the lives of fellow students by helping them deal with their alcoholism.

GSU is a typical college campus, says Kirby, in that students drink because "it's the thing to do to get drunk!"

And according to his speculations, about 85% of the student population does just that.

In spite of all the information that is available, Kirby believes that drinking is still the number one problem for today's youth as well as for college campuses around the nation. What advice would Kirby give to a campus like GSU?

"You have to learn when to say when," he insists, "You have to learn to drink moderately if you're going to drink at all." Kirby did. All he did was get everything in order.

'American Bandstand' is ... (gulp) ... 40!

NEW YORK (AP) — Pay attention, children. This is your chance to sit down with your parents, watch a TV program and ask them about the olden days.

The program, "American Bandstand 40th Anniversary Special," will open Wednesday night on ABC with a black screen and a tone.

"That should get your attention, because you're used to seeing pictures," said Dick Clark, its host and executive producer. "You'll turn and look at it and it will say to you something to the effect of, 'In a moment we're going to fill this screen with all the memories of your life.'"

"It's never, ever going to happen again. Call somebody. Tell them to join you in the experience," Clark said, and laughed. "Maybe we can double the audience!"

In truth, children, the special has less to do with the 40th anniversary of ABC's longest-running variety show than with the May sweeps, when ratings are closely tracked to help local stations set their advertising rates.

Wednesday's tribute is a two-hour blend of current pop music acts — Boyz II Men, Neil Diamond, Color Me Badd, and the like — with "archival" footage of show that proved your parents' sincerity in wanting to rock around the clock.

"It's been a remarkable passage of time," said Clark, who at age 62 looks a good deal older than his actual age, which is 19. A young 19. "What is so hard to rationalize is that all that time went away so quickly!"

"Especially when you go back and look at old films and tapes. It's like looking at a family album. I don't remember us being that that young," he said. And that haircut? "Did I really put that much grease on?"

In truth, kids, the ancestral "Bandstand" show began in September 1952 as filmed music performances — very well, children, "music videos," since you insist — on Philadelphia's Channel 6, WFIL-TV. It was enormously dull.

According to Michael Shore's "The History of American Bandstand," the next month WFIL brought on teen-agers to dance to the pop hits. Clark came aboard as regular host on Monday, July 9, 1956.

It wasn't until Aug. 5, 1957, that the fledgling ABC network — yes, children, ABC was the Fox Broadcasting Co. of its day — aired on 67 stations. Within a month, "American Bandstand" was the No. 1 daytime show.

"You've got to figure out the odds of that happening in less than four weeks, on 67 stations instead of 200 like the other guys. It was David and Goliath," Clark said.

"It proved once and for all that, yeah, people would watch kids dancing in Philadelphia to recorded music — which sounds like an illogical premise, but it worked."

It became television's longest-running variety show, as well as the cornerstone of businesses that have made Clark a wealthy man. But at the time "American Bandstand" was happening, he had no idea of how big it would be.

Springsteen starts tour July 23

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Springsteen will kick off a U.S. tour with five performances in his home state of New Jersey, his record company said.

The tour marks Springsteen's first band performances since 1988. He released two albums, "Lucky Town," and "Human Touch" in March.

Springsteen scheduled performances in East Rutherford, N.J., from July 23-30; in Worcester, Mass., Aug. 13-14; in Detroit Aug. 17-18; in Cleveland Aug. 21-22; in Landover, Md., Aug. 25-26; and in Philadelphia Aug. 28-29.

Dates for ticket sales have not been announced.

The U.S. tour will follow a month of performances in Europe. There will be more touring in the fall and winter, according to Columbia Records and Springsteen's publicity company, Shore Fire.

The core of the touring band will be Roy Bittan, piano and keyboards; Zachary Alford, drums; Shane Fontayne, guitar; and Tommy Simms, bass.

Rip Us Off.

That's right — you heard right. Rip us off. Get something for nothing. Say hello to a friend. Find a roommate. Get a job. Find a home for a litter of kittens. Buy a wombat. Or sell your Beamer (right, like you expect us to believe you — and not your folks — actually have the title to that BMW). Regardless of your purpose (or even if you are a congenital liar like the Beamer owner), Georgia's liveliest classified ad section is for you. Students, faculty and staff can have 25-word action ads published for nothing. Fill out the little rectangles at left, and send your ad to G-A Action Ads, LB 8001, GSU or drop it by the Williams Center, Room 111. You MUST include your name and Landrum Box number to qualify for a freebie. Remember, keep it short: students, faculty and staff will be billed at 10 cents a word for words in excess of the 25 word limit.

National League realignment proposed

NEW YORK (AP) — National League president Bill White said Monday that he was continuing to push for realignment for the 1993 season.

The Chicago Cubs vetoed realignment in February when it was proposed at the NL's quarterly meeting. Ten teams voted in favor of the plan with Chicago and the New York Mets voting no, but the Cubs' vote was necessary for approval because that would be one of the affected teams.

"You're always working for it," White said of realignment after a news conference to mark the start of balloting for the all-star teams. "I didn't stop attempting to try for it."

The American League's balanced schedule, in which teams play 13 games against each of their division rivals and 12 games against clubs in the other division, has been heavily criticized. The NL is considering anything from a 20-6 plan to the balanced schedule.

"No matter what you're going to do, you're going to get some people upset," White said. "You put all of them down and see the one that will have the least negative effect on the most people in the league."

Under the plan, the Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals would shift to the West Division and the Atlanta Braves and Cincinnati Reds would move to the East. Because it was vetoed by Chicago, the NL has still not determined how it will draw up its schedule for next season, the league's first with 14 teams.

The realignment issue has become more pressing because of the admission of the Colorado Rockies and the Florida Marlins, the two new expansion teams.

"No league is able to have 14 teams and schedule," White said. "It's almost impossible."

Chicago Cubs executive vice president Mark McGuire and general manager Larry Himes said in February that the team

Lyle Alzado dies of brain cancer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Lyle Alzado, once among the most feared players in professional football, died Thursday of brain cancer, a disease he blamed on his prolonged use of body-building steroids. He was 43.

Alzado learned a little over a year ago he had the disease, which reduced him from a 300-pound athlete known for bone-jarring tackles to a 190-pound shell of his former self.

Alzado said he began using steroids in 1969 and spent $20,000 to $30,000 a year on the drugs. He said he used a human growth hormone during his comeback attempt, which he believed helped destroy his immune system.

Even after he stopped playing football, he kept taking the drugs, which increase muscles bulk.

Alzado was the first player from South Dakota's Yankton College ever drafted by a

“My face was numb. It was maybe 25 degrees out, there was snow on the ground, and right in front of my apartment door was a bum wearing a Mets T-shirt freezing to death. I stepped around him and went in. I thought, 'great, just the ending I needed to an already lousy day.' Just then, this sick feeling came over me. Forget me, what about that guy? I went to my closet and pulled out a coat I haven't worn since college. I stood there, feeling dumb. Was he going to be mad if I give him a hand-out? He's freezing to death. I opened my door and handed him the clothes. He put them on and stared at me. Then he walked away. It was weird but it was good. I'm not the Salvation Army, but giving out a coat isn't all that hard.”

bly more ongoing transmission of TB in this country than we would like to think," Kopanoff said.

"When you talk about your kids, they haven't had a lot of opportunity to become infected; these are rather recent infections."

Tuberculosis, a devastating lung disease, is spread through the air from people with active illnesses. An estimated 10 million Americans are infected with the TB germ, but most people's healthy immune systems control the infection and they never become ill.

Solution to "Tom, Dick and Harry"

perception is everything...

You're probably thinking, "Everybody's got SuperValues on burgers, fries and soft drinks...not just Wendy's." Well, you're right! But contrary to what you might think, value isn't just price. Value means variety and quality, too! At Wendy's we've got 9 different items for only 99¢ each everyday: Jr. Bacon Cheeseburger, Jr. Cheeseburger Deluxe, Biggie Fries, Biggie Drink, Frosty Dairy Dessert, Chili, Sour Cream & Chive Potato, Side Salad, and Caesar Side Salad. And nobody can beat Wendy's quality! So the next time you go looking for value, remember the illusion above...and look a little closer at what you're really getting for your money. Statesboro's Genuine Value Leader just wanted you to know!
