NEWS BRIEFS

ATO GARNERS MERIT AWARD

Every year Alpha Tau Omega men's fraternity evaluates over 170 chapters nationwide.

This year eight awards were given nationally in recognition of true merit and the Eta Zeta chapter at GSU was one of them.

Southern's ATO does a program each year working with High Hope in a big brother little brother program.

Congratulations ATO on your true merit award for extraordinary achievement in scholarship, social service, public relations, alumni relations and campus and community involvement.

ON-CAMPUS ESCORT SERVICE AVAILABLE

Uniformed radio equipped service officers are available 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. Sunday through Friday to accompany students across campus.

They will walk students anywhere within the non-commuter zone [which includes some off-campus apartments].

Service officers are non-certified, but maintain constant contact with the University Police.

This service is offered as a preventative measure to crime.

Instead of walking alone at night, call the GSU Escort Service at 681-5234.

FALL SEMESTER OPENS AT TROUBLED SAVANNAH ART SCHOOL

SAVANNAH (AP) - Enrollment is up at embattled Savannah College of Art and Design, where officials are preparing for an accreditation review.

The fall semester opened Wednesday with 2,500 students enrolled, up 200 from last spring when the nation's largest art school was rocked by controversy as students and faculty pressed for a stronger voice.

"We are going on as usual," said school spokeswoman Beth Eckard Wednesday. "SCAD continues to get better and better and we will continue to provide students with the best quality education."

"The students are extremely positive," said Bob Merrihew, director of the school's student organizations. "People realize that the thing in the spring was a lack of communication."

The school's Student Leadership Council has been expanded and its first meeting is Friday. Merrihew said a retreat for council members is planned for this fall.

"We are going to put some closure to the events of the spring. EVCery issue that was brought up in the spring has an answer," Merrihew said.

In addition, a faculty senate was organized last spring to give professors an avenue to voice concerns and communicate with the administration.

Bylaws for the senate were being drawn up, Ms. Eckard said.

"QUILT DAYS" TO BE HELD

As part of the Georgia Quilt Project, "Quilt History Days" will be held on October 2 & 3 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 at the Statesboro Regional Library.

Participants are urged to bring their quilts, old and new, to be registered and photographed at no charge. Free quilt care information and Heritage quilt labels will be given to each participant.

For more information contact Charlotte Bates at 489-4568.

Financial woes hit Humane Society

By Kim St. Hilaire
News Editor

Cats and dogs at the Bulloch County Humane Society are not receiving vaccinations and are not being spayed or neutered due to inadequate funding.

The humane society surveyed 23 cities and counties to find out how they operate their shelters and what they are funded on a per capita basis.

Results revealed an average per capita expenditure of $2.25 for the 23 areas.

Steve Hein, Vice President of the Bulloch County Humane Society, explained, "We then looked at the situation in our service area which we determined to be the city of Statesboro [population 15,854] and GSU [population estimated at 14,000]."

By dividing the total funding and the population in this area, the humane society arrived at a per capita expenditure of 27 cents.

"So therein lies the problem," said Hein. "Twenty-seven cents per capita expended by city and county government to deal with what the state has on the books for laws."

The lack of funding has also forced Bulloch County Humane Society to neglect other problems beyond the health of animals. The shelter suffers from massive roach infestation, overcrowdedness, lack of shade externally and heating and cooling problems.

"All we are asking for is the mean or average of our study group which would give us $2.25 per our population base," said Hein.

The figure Hein cited as necessary in addition to the funds the shelter is already receiving was $47,000.

Members of the humane society's board hope they will be able to work together with the city and county to get proper funding.

According to Hein, "The first thing the students [at GSU] could do is simply be responsible pet owners."

This includes having pets spayed and neutered at the appropriate age and not letting the animals run loose.

"Aside from that, simply support and be willing to volunteer," said Hein. "If in fact we get funding to improve conditions out here we would welcome some concerned students who could help us [Bulloch County Humane Society] improve and do menial labor."

If the Bulloch County Humane Society does have to shut down, efforts would be made to give the healthy animals away.

GSU redefines substance abuse policies

By David Hillis
Staff Writer

This year GSU students caught abusing the university's drug and alcohol policies will face a strict and more uniform judicial board. However, GSU's current policy on the usage of drugs and alcohol will remain unchanged.

"The penalties involving GSU students were not uniform," said Dr. Edward Bayens, director of judicial affairs at GSU. "The penalties regarding the policy have been redefined."

Whereas last year, the penalties handed by the RHJB (Residential Hall Judicial Board), the University Judicial Board, the hearing officers, and the judicial officer at GSU varied according to the circumstances involved, this year the penalties will be defined the same for all students, regardless of where the student is residing or where caught.

siding or where caught.

According to Bayens, in most cases the first violation will involve being placed on disciplinary probation for 3 months, completing 10 hours of community service on the GSU campus, and taking a one-hour alcoholic educational seminar on the effects of alcohol on the human body.

After the second violation, students will also be required to complete a substance abuse evaluation at Vista out-patient services.

In most cases, Vista will not only involve asking questions and doing tests to determine if the student has a problem with substance abuse; the program may include in-patient and out-patient treatment, participation in on-campus Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) groups, individual or group counseling, or the taking of the drug Antabuse, which causes the taker to become extremely nauseated after drinking any alcoholic beverage.

According to Bayens, no students at GSU were convicted of any violations beyond the second one during the 1991-92 school year.

"This does not mean that we will be reluctant to carry out the third violation, if necessary," he said.

GSU students should also keep in mind that, while the university's policy will be implemented to students caught on campus, in some circumstances the penalties may be implemented to student violators off-campus, according to the circumstances involved.

"The excessive usage of alcohol concerning GSU students is a major concern," said Bayens. "But this problem at GSU is no worse than that being faced by any other universities of our size. The problem is typical, as in most all universities in Georgia."

University Policy on Alcohol and Drugs:

First violation - If a student is not currently on disciplinary probation, he/she will be placed on disciplinary probation for a specific period of time, will be required to complete a specific number of community service hours by a specific date, and will be required to attend an alcohol education seminar.

Second violation - If a student is not currently on disciplinary probation, he/she will be placed on disciplinary probation for a specific period of time and will be required to complete a specific number of community service hours by a specific date. In addition, the student will be required to complete a substance abuse evaluation at Vista Out-patient Services (or a comparable facility). His/her continued enrollment at Georgia Southern University will be contingent upon him/her following the recommendations from Vista. The cost of the evaluation will be the responsibility of the student.

Third violation - Any student found in violation of the University's alcohol/drug policy for a third time (regardless of the time elapsed between violations) will be suspended from Georgia Southern University for a minimum of one quarter. Additional requirements pertaining to substance abuse issues may also be a condition for readmission.

WVGS expands to twenty-four hour format

By Doug Gross
Editor

Campus radio station WVGS, located at 91.9 on the F.M. dial, will make an unprecedented move to a 24-hour a day format this quarter.

According to station manager Jayson Luber, the increase from a 7 a.m. to 3 a.m. schedule was intended to increase the station's visibility on campus and provide a greater service to listeners.

"In order to get noticed and for us to go forward, we needed to go 24-hours," Luber said. "There are a lot of people out there who think we're just some ... crappy college radio station, and that's just not true."

Many of the station's listeners had also mentioned a desire for WVGS to continue broadcasting throughout the night, said Luber.

Station management had originally planned on using pre-recorded six-hour long high-fidelity V.C.R. tapes for overnight programming, but according to F.C.C. (Federal Communication Commission) rules there must be someone manning the station during broadcasting hours.

Dave Williams will be one of the d.j.s keeping WVGS going non-stop this year. (Photo by Jesse Stribling)

"We can't be on without someone in the station," Luber said. "We figured if someone going to be there anyway, they might as well be playing music."

The result was the creation of a new 3 to 7 shift, which is double the length of the usual 2-hour time slots. Luber said response to the move by disk jockeys at the fall quarter meeting was positive, with all seven late-night slots being filled immediately.

"It's mostly the new d.j.s [filling the late shifts]," Luber said. "We haven't had any problems yet, and I'm hoping we won't. Hopefully the kids won't get burned out."

"People should definitely be thankful and appreciative of these guys who are staying up for them."

Another innovation at WVGS this quarter is what Luber describes as "Information Wednesday," an afternoon of programming which varies from the station's typical all-music format.

At 3 p.m. every Wednesday will be a Black Awareness/Reggae show, followed at 4 p.m. by news, sports and music programming from a GSU radio production class.

From 6-7 p.m. is the return of "The Controversial Mike Bailey Talk Show," which deals with a wide variety of topics concerning college students.

"It gets people talking and brings out the issues that need to get out," Luber said.

Also underway at WVGS this quarter is preparation for the station's first-ever entry in the Homecoming parade, in which they plan to enter a float featuring a live performance by former Statesboro band MeAn Mills.

GSU opens new Fitness Extension

By Kim St. Hilaire
News Editor

"Participate, don't spectate" is the new logo of GSU's Campus Recreation and Intramural program [CRI].

These words of advice were developed by student employees of CRI. This year more than ever, students will be able to do this because GSU has expanded its fitness facilities.

The latest addition is the Fitness Extension, located behind College Cinemas, within easy walking distance of Stratford and Warwick residence halls.

The Fitness Extension, which opened Monday, offers 4,500 square feet of aerobic space as well as conditioning machines such as exercise bikes, step machines, rowers and Nordictacs.

Academic physical education classes will be held in the Fitness Extension weekdays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. the facility will then be open to all students from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. or 10 p.m. This should help alleviate the shortage of space in Hanner.

According to William Ehling, director of Campus Recreation and Intramurals [CRI], "In the winter quarter especially, we turned away 200 to 300 students a day. this should help us with that."

The additional space also allows GSU to offer a wider variety of sports conditioning classes.

In the past only high impact aerobics, low impact aerobics and toning were offered. In addition to these, the new program also includes advanced high impact aerobics, bench stepping, bench plus, body conditioning/sculpting, abdominal, circuit training and funk.

The advanced high impact session is aimed at individuals who are already physically fit. High impact aerobics is combined with interval and circuit segments [for toning] in a 1 hour and 15 minute workout.

Bench stepping is a 1 hour session of low impact exercise aimed at increasing flexibility.

For individuals who are more physically fit, bench plus offers a 40 minute hi/lo bench segment as well as a segment aimed at strength and toning.

Body conditioning/sculpting is a 1 hour class directed towards muscular strength and toning. Individuals in this session will exercise with bands and weights.

To help "tighten that tummy" a half hour extended abdominal workout is offered.

Even the very fit should be challenged by the circuit training class. a combination of high and low impact is included in this session, as well as strength training stations.

Finally, funk, aerobic routines combined with street dance and jazz, is offered for all fitness levels.

Anyone who is interested in physical fitness is also invited to join CRI and CLEC in a workshop they are cosponsoring.

On the first weekend of October [Saturday, Sunday and Monday] Mark Brunetz, Jane Fonda's fitness consultant, will teach mass classes at GSU for students. Brunetz will also meet with instructors to show them new moves.

SCAD student attacked

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — An 18-year-old Savannah College of Art and Design student said she reported a sexual attack to school officials who advised her to put off informing police until their investigation was completed.

She waited five days before reporting the attack to Savannah police.

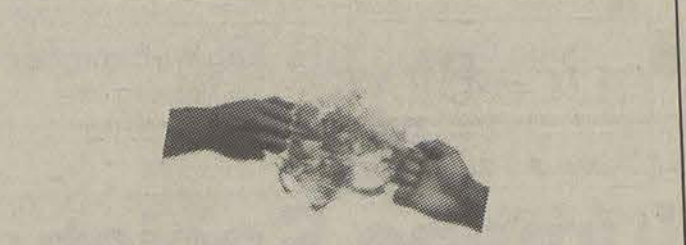

The woman told police Friday that college administrators advised her not to tell them a man attempted to sexually assault her in her dormitory room.

Police said the woman told them a young man she had just met forced his way into her room on Sept. 6 and pushed her to her bed. She was able to push him off and get him to leave, police said.

"This should have been reported to the Savannah police

Humane Society needs your help

The Bulloch County Humane Society is in dire need of assistance from the population of GSU.

Employees recently revealed that animals in their care were not receiving proper medical attention and that facilities were overcrowded and roach-infested due to lack of funding.

In comparison to the average of $2.25 per person donated every year by city and county government to the 23 shelters represented in a recent study, the 27 cents per capita received by the Bulloch County Humane Society can hardly be considered adequate.

Greek organizations and other campus organizations are strongly encouraged to help out. Volunteering a few hours a week to helping out at the shelter could be an enormous aid to a staff who can barely pay to keep the operation afloat.

Other students can play a more passive but equally important role in alleviating the problem.

If you are a pet owner, be a good one. Don't let animals run unattended, and have them spayed or neutered at the proper age. Help solve the problem by not becoming a part of it.

'Letter to the editor' policies explained

This week, the George-Anne received a letter in response to editor Doug Gross' column "Campaign '92? George Bush vs. Old Yeller," which appeared in last Tuesday's paper.

The letter, which refutes the column's somewhat anti-Bush stance and allegations that Disney star Old Yeller would make a better president, is both well written and entertaining. Here's an example:

"Old Yeller's domestic policies would surely include making sure every family owns a pooper-scooper, emblazoned with the Presidential Seal, to help keep our nation and cities clean. It might also come in handy cleaning up all the other B.S. created by a Democratic administration."

Unfortunately, we couldn't run the letter this week.

The writer, who brought the letter to our office, was obviously unaware of the George-Anne's "Letter to the Editor" policy.

Since some students, both old and new, may not be familiar with that policy, here it is.

All letters received must be signed and include a mailing address for verification. There is no word limit on submissions, but editors reserve the right to edit for space limitations or clarity.

If a writer wishes to remain anonymous, he may make that request with the letter, but name, address and phone number should still be included. The final decision whether the name will be omitted is the editor's.

Students, faculty and staff are strongly encouraged to make their opinions known through letters to the editor. Either drop one in the mail addressed to Landrum Box 8001 or deliver it in person to our office in the Williams Center, Room 111.

Hopefully last week's letter writer will get back in touch so the letter may be run in its entirety.

Fall football compromise is underway

At my summer internship at a weekly newspaper in Effingham County, one of my many vastly underpaid for duties was to put together an entire section on the local high school football team.

After writing ten or eleven stories on a bunch of 14 to 18 year-old sports stars, I was heard around the office swearing (often and loudly) to anyone who would listen that I would be just as happy if I never heard another football fact again.

This, of course, was a lie.

Like most sports fans, I had spent the past few months in a sort of rabid anticipation of the opening kickoff of all my favorite teams. Driving through town late in the evening, the sight of practicing squads, from the youngest of the Pee-Wee leaguers to our own Eagles, made me nearly salivate at the thought of the Falcons, Bulldogs, Eagles and Savannah Christian Raiders (my alma mater) gearing up for action.

So a few weeks ago, as my significant other and I settled down for another "I-have-no-social-life" evening of television watching, you can imagine my delight when I discovered the Atlanta Falcons' last pre-season game was just beginning.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

The Falcons had proven, in previous years, to be one of the nation's most entertaining teams, and even though this was one of the B.D. (Before Deion) weeks, I figured I was in for a few testosterone-soaked hours of primo sports viewing.

Unfortunately, I was wrong.

While there are certainly some women who enjoy sports just as much as their male counterparts, there seems to be an equal number who would be just as happy hog-tied to a recliner, forced to watch an evening's worth of C-SPAN congressional hearings.

My girlfriend, I found out, falls solidly into the latter category.

On this particular evening she had her heart set on watching a t.v. movie starring Tom Selleck, in which he plays a novelist who falls in love with a Rumanian ax-murderer or some such nonsense. I tried to explain to her how crucial it was I watched the game.

"This pre-season game is important," I said. "Because, uh, well ... okay, its not important at all, I just want to watch it."

Needless to say, my poor arguing skills coupled with the fact that it was her t.v. landed me in the back room trying to watch my Falcons on a fuzzy 13-inch black and white set.

After watching a quarter of Atlanta battling Buffalo in a steady snowstorm, a rather bizarre event considering (a) the game was played in Georgia in August and (b) it was indoors, I gave up on my t.v.'s inferior reception and decided to rejoin the adventures of the man who hasn't had a good role since Magnum.

I suffered gallantly through another hour or so of inane dialogue and predictable action sequences, waiting for the moment the credits rolled so I could enjoy the remainder of the game.

When the plot finally limped to a close, I made a mad dash for the tube to catch the contest's conclusion.

Which is exactly what I got. I flipped to the desired channel with exactly twenty-seven seconds left in the game, just enough time to watch the Falcon's third-string quarterback drop back and fall on one knee to end it.

Dejected and defeated, I clicked the power button on the set, forgoing the rest of the evening's televised offerings.

The battle of the sexes concerning viewing rights had been won handily and decidedly by the fairer of genders. The warnings signs all seemed to indicate that this frustrated football fan was in for a long, bleak season.

For the record, Selleck gets his butt kicked by a K.G.B. guy but still gets the girl.

Lessons learned from Hurricane Andrew

FOR ALERT READERS ONLY

Dave Barry

As you are probably aware, especially if you are one of those people whose major appliances are still up in trees, South Florida recently experienced a bad hurricane. So today, as a South Florida homeowner, I want to review some of the lessons I learned from this experience - lessons that I believe can be useful not only in hurricanes, but in other natural disasters such as floods, earthquakes and children's birthday parties.

The most important precaution, for a homeowner facing a natural disaster, is:

1. SELL YOUR HOUSE BEFORE THE NATURAL DISASTER OCCURS.

Trust me, this simple step will save you a LOT of trouble. My wife, Beth, and I are still kicking ourselves for not doing it. When we heard that Hurricane Andrew was headed directly at us, we rushed around doing things like putting patio furniture inside, securing doors, etc. What a pair of morons. We should have used that time to sell the house to somebody, and let HIM worry about the patio furniture.

Granted, at that point there probably was not a large pool of qualified buyers available, so we might not have gotten absolute top dollar:

Us: So, do we have a deal here?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Coach may have saved her life

Dear Editor,

Fall quarter of 1991 I took personal health promotion from coach Larry Bryant. In this class he stressed how important it was for women to give self breast examinations.

Although I am only 19 years old, I did as coach Bryant instructed. I found a lump in my breast.

With early treatment I should come out fine. I called and thanked him for going beyond and above the duties of an instructor.

However, I feel as though my thanks was not enough. I would like for the school to join in praising him because after all he may have saved my life.

Great people like coach Larry Bryant should be admired and rewarded with gratitude.

If there is a plaque that is rewarded to instructors for excellence, he should win hands down.

Don't grade students on athletic talent

KIM
ST. HILAIRE

News Editor

I would like commend GSU for promoting physical fitness by requiring students to take four physical education activity courses in order to graduate. Many universities across the country do not hold such policies.

Nevertheless, while I have always enjoyed such activities and understand their possible health benefits, I must criticize the grading policy for these one-credit courses.

Currently, the activities are graded on the typical A through F scale based on a combination of skills tests and written examinations. If you don't think about it then this probably sounds fair because all other classes are run in this manner.

However, I feel strongly that assigning letter grades to physical activity only makes it less enjoyable, but also discriminates against those who are not already physically fit or are unskilled at these activities. Why not implement a pass/fail grading system?

I completely agree that this type of system would not be appropriate for other academic classes, yet in this instance wouldn't it be more fair to reward students for their effort and improvement?

The way I see it, students who already enjoy physical activities will find ways to participate outside of school anyway. Therefore, these courses should be aimed more towards those people who avoid exercise.

Take for instance a person who is overweight due to inactivity. Wouldn't exercise be very beneficial to that student's cardiovascular system? Why not encourage this then? If a student goes to physical education class everyday, tries his hardest, and is rewarded for this, I bet they enjoy it more than someone who tries just as hard but receives a below average grade for their effort.

Why not teach those who are not physically fit that you don't need to be highly skilled at such activities to enjoy them?

Physical education activities should be enjoyable and should promote positive attitudes toward physical fitness. I do not believe that the current grading system satisfies this criterion. In this one particular case a pass/fail grading system sounds more reasonable.

If you're foolish enough to keep your home, you should definitely:

2. SEARCH THE HOME FOR WORKING DRUM SETS AND DESTROY THEM WITH AN AX.

We weathered the hurricane in the home of some friends who are normally sane people, but who had allowed their 11-year-old son, Trey, to purchase a used drum set THE DAY BEFORE THE HURRICANE. Here's the thing about drums: They don't need electricity. They are designed to function perfectly during a natural disaster. This meant that at 2 a.m., when the power went out and the night was black and the wind was shrieking and the eye was approaching and we were sitting in the darkness, rigid with tension, terrified about what was about to happen, fearful that the house might BANG BANG BANG BANG WHAMMA WHAMMA WHAMMA OHMIGOD WHAT'S HAPPENING!!!?

Ha ha! It was only young Trey, sensing somehow that this was a superb time to practice. So we all had a good laugh, and there is a strong chance that some of our hearts will eventually resume beating.

3. DESTROY YOUR GARDEN HOSE.

Few people realize how dangerous a garden hose can be. I found out while attempting to siphon gasoline into a chain saw so I could locate our house, which was somewhere inside a mass of fallen trees approximately the size of Cambodia.

We had obtained the chain saw from these men who sprang up all over the place, mushroom-like, immediately after the storm. They were selling truckloads of powerful, potentially lethal chain saws to South Florida homeowners whose experience with dangerous tools was pretty much limited to corkscrews. I watched a TV reporter ask one of the chain-saw sellers if he had any Safety Tips for the viewing audience. The man thought for a second, then said, quote: "Chain saw don't know the difference between a LAIG and a LAWG."

Bearing that Safety Tip in mind, I unpacked my new chain saw and determined, using mechanical aptitude, that you had to put gasoline in it. I decided to siphon some out of my wife's car. My wife's car is her pride and joy, and it spent the hurricane inside the garage; a tree landed on the garage, but the car was undamaged. So I cut off a length of garden hose, and I stuck it down the car's gas pipe, and — I bet this NEVER happens to criminals — it got stuck in there. When I tried to pull it back out, it broke. Which meant there was four feet of alien garden hose somewhere deep inside my wife's car. And you just KNOW the mechanic is going to tell me that the only way to fix it is to replace the engine, perhaps several times.

This is why you need National Guard troops in disaster areas. I needed a National Guard troop to come into my garage right then and shoot me in the head. That would have spared me from having to go into the house to tell my wife that on this day — a day when our trees had been knocked down and our roof damaged and our other car bashed up by roof tiles and our entire neighborhood strewn with debris and our roads blocked and our power knocked out for what looked like several weeks — that on this day, the first thing I had done, the first step on the long road to recovery, was to screw up her car.

When I explain this to the mechanic, he'd better not laugh at me.

I'm going to have the chain saw running by then.

I want to stress that my family and I are fine. But a lot of people in South Florida aren't. If you want to do something, please send a check to the National Disaster Relief Fund. You can mail it to your local Red Cross Chapter, or P.O. Box 37243, Washington, D.C. 20013. Or call (800) 842-2200 and put it on your credit card. People down here really need your help. I'm not making this up.

Companies that produce energy will need yours.

Your opportunity for a career in the vital energy industry will be greater if you are trained in one or more of these fields: Engineering, Accounting, Geology, Marketing, Management, Computer Science, Business Administration.

Earn your degree. Then you may qualify for a rewarding future in the energy industry.

Chena's Cantina comes through with good food and service

Pleasant atmosphere, food, and service make for an enjoyable dining experience with reasonable prices

By Carlton Dickerson
Staff Writer

Well, the school year has just begun and I have been given the best job of all. I get to go and eat, relax, and observe at some of Staesboro's finest eating establishments.

This weeks restaurant is Chena's Cantina.

The atmosphere is quite relaxed and extremely artistic. If you are really into the art scene, this is the place for you.

The music here is a perfect mixture from jazz to progressive and if you ask nicely the will probably accept your suggestions. The restaurant is tastefully decorated with a variety of wonderful paintings and sculpture.

The service at Chena's is terrific. The food is prepared after you order, but the meal is delivered hot and in a hurry. The best thing about the service is that those who serve really seem to appreciate your business.

Now for the most important part: the food. After eating as much I could and coming just short of popping, I decided what entree was my favorite. The selection was unquestionably the beef quesadillas. This is by far the most reasonable and best tasting dish that Chena's has to offer.

A few of the dishes were not quite to my liking, but I suppose it's a matter of taste. For example, the burritos are good, filling, and inexpensive, but they contain one bean too many for me. It is a great dish, but when eating it you take the risk of becoming dangerously explosive with numerous gases.

Regardless of any of the flaws of the burritos, Chena's food is still one of the best buys for college students, and the service was commendable. So when you want good Mexican food and good service, consider Chena's Cantina.

Prevention and exercise may keep colds away

Summer is officially over now, and autumn is here. The cold and flu season is just around the corner, but although it is not yet cold outside, some people have already fallen victim to a cold.

Colds are caused by any one of the 200 varieties of viruses, and there is no one way to catch a cold virus. You can pick up a virus by inhaling droplets dispersed when someone else coughs or sneezes. You can also catch a cold by touching your nostrils or eyes after contaminating your fingers with a virus (while shaking hands, for example) or, indirectly, by sharing contaminated objects, such as drinking glasses or hand towels.

In this respect, you should

HEALTH AND FITNESS

avoid crowds as much as possible (which is difficult to do here on campus), wash your hands frequently, keep your fingers away from your face, and avoid sharing soiled unclean towels or tableware.

Since there is no cure for the common cold, the most you can do is to try to alleviate the symptoms. According to your cold symptoms, you can use antihistamines (effective in treating allergies), decongestants (to relieve congestion), expectorants (to loosen respiratory secretions), or cough suppressant (to reduce coughing).

As far as physical fitness is concerned, staying healthy in the cold months is easier if you practice good health habits year-round. Many individuals tend to stay inside more, exercise less, and put on weight during the cold season. Getting outside in the fresh air, even for a brisk walk a few times a week, can keep your body in shape and your spirits up during the cold months.

"A consistent regimen of exercise and a good diet all year contribute greatly to well-being," says Joseph Valdez, M.D., a physician with the preventive medicine division of the University of Arizona, in Tucson (in an interview with Parents' Magazine). To make it through the cooler months in good shape, you must work at keeping yourself in good shape.

In addition, you need to eat a well-balanced diet, practice good hygiene, get adequate rest, and exercise regularly. There is no reason to stay indoors all through the cold months, so wrap up in adequate, but not too much, clothing and get out and exercise.

Forum to discuss Ice-T's 'Cop Killer'

NEW YORK (AP) — Time-Warner Inc. said Friday it has commissioned a TV forum on police and artistic freedom to explore the issues raised by its release of Ice-T's rap song, "Cop Killer."

The forum, which will be titled "Popular Culture: Rage, Rights and Responsibility," will be produced by Socratic Seminars and will air nationally on PBS Dec. 15, said Ed Adler, spokesman for Time-Warner.

When the company released "Cop Killer" earlier this year, it provoked outrage among police groups and other officials, who said it glorified violence against police officers. The song includes the words: "Die, die, die pig, die."

Ice-T defended the song as an expression of black rage. But he asked Time-Warner to withdraw it from his album "Body Count" in the summer.

Scheduled participants in the television show are the actor Richard Dreyfuss; Terry Rakolta, head of Americans for Responsible Television; Nadine Strossen, president of the American Civil Liberties Union; Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., and Chuck D, of the rap group Public Enemy.

The moderator will be Professor Charles J. Ogletree of the Harvard Law School.

The format of the broadcast, like others produced by Socratic Seminars, calls for panelists to describe how they would respond to hypothetical situations.

It also plans to fund a series of meetings at urban universities to discuss the issues.

Clinton says he wants to be 'culturally elite'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democrat Bill Clinton, toasted and serenaded by Barbra Streisand and a host of other Hollywood stars at a $1.1 million fund-raiser, is leaving California with a confession: he's always yearned to be "in the cultural elite."

Clinton was wrapping up his three-day West Coast campaign swing today after a musical sendoff at one of the largest Democratic fund-raisers ever.

"There is a shift in the political wind and I feel that it's blowing our way," Streisand told Clinton.

In her first live performance in six years, Streisand sang to the Democratic presidential nominee: "It has to be you, just has to be you. You just happen to be the candidate who is long overdue."

For his part, Clinton told the array of Hollywood stars he had been "an inveterate movie goer" since childhood and called his audience "some of the most gifted, creative and caring Americans" assembled anywhere.

"I have always aspired to be in the cultural elite that others condemn," he told the audience, a reference to the attacks on the entertainment industry by Vice President Dan Quayle and other Republicans.

"I have seen your movies and sung your songs," Clinton said.

Opening the fund-raiser with a rendition of "America the Beautiful" was country singer Tammy Wynette, who earlier this year voiced public irritation over a remark by Hillary Clinton about her hit "Stand by Your Man."

Mrs. Clinton, in a broadcast interview, had intimated the lyrics were an expression of blind loyalty.

Clinton today was heading to Colorado, where he was to appear at a rally and meet with Western governors.

Wednesday's fund-raiser was sponsored by the Hollywood Women's Political Committee and held at the 16-acre Beverly Hills estate of movie and music figure Ted Field, the Marshall Field department store heir. The money was to be divided among the Clinton campaign, the Democratic National Committee and California Democratic candidates.

Actress Whoopi Goldberg told Clinton: "Bill, babe ... You're a pretty neat cat. I like you." Retorted Clinton: "I was especially glad to see Whoopi Goldberg up here so I wouldn't be only redneck on stage tonight."

And actor Warren Beatty told those who paid up to $2,500 a ticket: "This group of people makes a lot of money. I don't think that anybody really thinks that the people in this crowd — if we win the election — expect our taxes to go down. We know they're going up."

"I want you to do more than write a check. I want you to be part of the future of the United States of America," Clinton told the audience.

"For the next 48 days you will see a great contest," he said. "It's likely to be closer than it is today."

A new poll showed him to be leading Bush by 15 points nationally.

Clinton led the president 53 percent to 38 percent in the Sept. 10-13 poll of 1,175 registered voters by the Times Mirror Center for the People and the Press.

The guest list at the fund-raiser included show business figures Chevy Chase, Candice Bergen, Richard Gere, Goldie Hawn, Bette Midler, Bonnie Raitt, Kathleen Turner, Christopher Reeves, Quincy Jones and Dustin Hoffman.

"George Bush cannot possibly be re-elected," said actress Geena Davis, claiming Bush had bashed women and other minorities throughout his term. "You don't bash the citizens of the country that you're running in."

At one point, Streisand sang: "George Bush and Dan Quayle, they golf and they sail. One doesn't look well, the other can't spell. Those fellows won't do. November the third, when shove comes to push. ... It better be you and Albert Gore too. It has to be you."

Earlier Wednesday, Clinton campaigned deep in the area of last spring's riots Wednesday, promoting a $1.5 billion program he said would nurture small business and help rebuild poor communities.

"Don't you know we would diminish the racial tensions of this community; don't you know we would diminish the tensions between rich and poor in this community if everybody thought that if they worked hard and played by the rules they could get ahead," he said at a vocational training center in south central Los Angeles.

Another Elvis lives theory...

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. (AP) Was Elvis Presley working as an agent for the Drug Enforcement Administration? Were FBI agents working in his traveling entourage, busting drug dealers along the way?

That's the theory espoused by the owner of the new Elvis is Alive Museum in Wright City, about 50 miles west of St. Louis.

Bill Beeny believes Presley is alive and well and probably in a federal witness protection program somewhere. His new museum is intended to fuel the debate over whether the king of rock 'n' roll did, in fact, die Aug. 16, 1977, as it says on his tombstone.

Visitors to Beeny's Fifties Cafe, across the street from the museum, agree with him, Beeny said. A poll is running 2-to-1 for a live Elvis.

"His work with the FBI in busting drug dealers is well documented," Beeny said. "We have files coming from the FBI that deal with the more than 300 death threats he received that final year. He was becoming very paranoid, feeling there was someone out to get him each time he went on stage."

The museum, which opened Friday, is one part research library and two parts bizarre.

There is the Tomb Room, which recreates Presley's grave site at Graceland in Memphis, Tenn.; an Elvis Wedding Chapel, where Elvis fans can be married, for a price; and an Elvis Tape Room, where visitors can hear what is purported to be a conversation between Presley and a relative taped seven years after Presley's death.

Then, there is the Elvis Funeral Room, which Beeny calls the museum's focal point.

There's the open casket, with a fresh coat of copper paint. There's the funeral arrangement of artificial blue carnations shaped like a guitar.

And there's that smell — appropriate "funeral parlor odor," Beeny said — steaming from an electric potpourri pot. Music plays over an unseen speaker.

"We've got the sound, the smell and the sights," said Beeny, a real estate developer.

Almost missing for Friday's opening, however, was Elvis' head.

"We had problems with the original one," Beeny said. "But I picked up one from a mannequin shop in St. Louis. We've even got a professional Elvis wig imported from France."

Todd Morgan, a Graceland spokesman, said the estate would probably try to learn more about the museum.

"Any commercial venture using the name, image or likeness of Mr. Presley has to be licensed through Elvis Presley Enterprises," Morgan said. "Little museums tend to spring up and we tend to write a few cease-and-desist orders from time to time."

"This could be an interesting and worthwhile museum, but we'd certainly want to discuss finding a better name for it."

Beeny said he didn't expect any problems.

"I talked to my legal firm and they felt it wasn't necessary to go through Graceland," he said. "We did get our souvenirs from there and did discuss what we were going to do and they didn't seem to have any problem. As long as we continue to show Elvis in a positive light there shouldn't be any problem."

Atlanta Braves fans-prepare yourself for another playoff berth.

Statesboro and campus police-prepare yourselves for another "riot".

Yes, indeed. The Braves are going to make another run at the elusive World Series ring. Let's take a look at a few of the key players:

Lonnie Smith. Until recently, the forgotten one. The only thing that people remember about Lonnie was the baserunning blunder that "cost the Braves the World Series".

Everyone forgot about the fact that Lonnie clubbed three World Series home runs. And as far as "costing the Braves the World Series".

Bobby Cox. Cox, to his credit, put most of the Braves together, including four of the five starters in Avery, Smoltz, Glavine and Pete Smith.

However, it was his bone head move to use Charlie Leibrandt in a relief role in the final inning that allowed Kirby Puckett to defeat the Braves.

My feeling is that when you bring in a reliever, at least bring in one that is used to relieving, instead of a starter who has not relieved since Reagan was president.

Terry Pendleton. The czar of the comeback kids. TP is the player the Braves could least afford to lose. He is a consistent clutch hitter and has contributed as much with his glove as with his bat.

Also, his leadership solidifies a group who were more than once mistaken as a band of traveling ragamuffins.

Pendleton's health is a question, his knees in particular. He flat-out refuses to rest for a single game.

His knees look a lot like Mr. Cripple himself.

Sid Bream. Sid has been through five knee operations and runs like it. He and Brian Hunter have proven to be a great platoon tandem at first base. It is a coin toss as to whom will be in a wheelchair first, Bream or Pendleton.

My money is on Bream. He will be rounding first and with no warning, his kneecaps will explode with the fury of a patriot missile.

Otis Nixon. Although his role has been lessened, his theft of Andy Van Slyke's would-be game-winning home run earlier this year against the Bucs at home. Enough about Otis, let's talk about:

Deion Sanders. Prime Time, or whatever you wish to call him. He has proven that speed helps a team. Total speed, which Deion has, totally disrupts. You see free balls on pitchouts, the loss of the pitcher's timing and let's not forget the catchers' throws that go into centerfield on his steal attempts.

Now let's put a little humility into all those Johnny-come-lately Braves fans. If you've heard this joke, you're a true blue fan.

1988. Atlanta, Georgia. Frank Sanacore calls the Braves ticket office. Here's the conversation:

Frank: "Do you have tickets for today's game?"

Ticket Manager: "Where do you want to sit? Is the bullpen close enough?"

Frank: "When does the game start?"

TM: "When can you get here?"

Eagles win first ever JV game over Citadel: North Greenville next

By John Munford
Sports Editor

GSU sophomore fullback Tyrone Stephens led the junior Eagle football team to a 20-7 victory over the Citadel in GSU's inaugural junior varsity football game.

Stephens carried 141 yards on only eight carries, scampering for a pair of touchdowns against the Bulldogs.

Stephens' first score came on a 66-yard run with 7:16 left in the second quarter to give the Eagles a quick 7-0 lead.

Stephens' 11-yard touchdown run in the third quarter with 11:17 remaining put GSU up 14-7.

As a team, the Eagle mites ran for 291 yards on 35 carries while the defense held the Citadel to 171 yards on 43 carries.

True freshman quarterback Ryran Traylor rushed for 45 yards on five carries and hit on two of three pass attempts for 50 yards and a touchdown.

Traylor's touchdown pass to sophomore wideout Ronald Elzy covered 45 yards, sealing the Eagle victory.

On the defensive front, the Eagles held Citadel to only 51 passing yards.

GSU cornerback Travis Taylor stripped Citadel fullback Jason Pryor of the ball to set up Stephens' second score of the game.

The improvement of the team will be looked for in the penalty department, where they recieved six penalties for a loss of 55 total yards.

The next JV game for the Eagles will be Monday, September 28th at home against North Greenville Junior College.

Lady Eagle netters sink Pirates 3-1, improve season record to 4-0

By Aaron Solomon
Sports Writer

Last Wednesday the Georgia Southern Eagles women's volleyball team competed against the Pirates of Armstrong State College in a best of five match-up.

The Eagles were looking to improve upon their already impressive 3-0 record. They did exactly that behind the service aces of number nine Julie Ciekowski and the net play of number six Kimberly Woods.

The first match was a demonstration of conservative play by both GSU and ASC. The Eagles were able to control the ball and they defeated ASC in the first game 15-8.

The second game was a different story, the Pirates came out swinging, and established a 7-3 lead forcing Eagle's coach J.B. Claiborne to call a time out. It paid off. The Eagles took command, only to loose the ball a point later.

With the score 9-4 in favor of ASC, control waivered back and forth between the Pirates and the Eagles. The Eagles managed to put a couple of points on the board closing the score to 9-6, in favor of ASC.

The Pirates had control of the ball, but number 6 Kimberly Woods put an end to that with an impressive spike. It was the turning point of the match, the Eagles tied up the game and eventually took the lead 10-9 with a service ace by number 5 Jennifer McNally.

The Pirates proved that they were not dead and they took the lead again, 12-11 behind the serving of number 10 Koreena Kaminski.

With the score 13-11 ASC, the Eagles regained control on another impressive kill by Woods. The Eagles then followed up with three straight points. But the Pirates made it a nail biter, tying up the game at 14 a piece.

The Pirates lost control of the ball, and with number Woods serving the Eagles won the second game 16-14.

The Eagles went into the third game with a 2-0 lead, and they were fired up. Behind but not out, ASC came out swinging. The Pirates drew first blood, taking the lead 2-0 before losing control of the ball.

With number 9 Julie

Ciekowski serving the Eagles tied the game at two a piece. The game turned out to be a back and forth battle with an exiting performance by ASC's number 7 Sherrene Benedict and GSU's number 12 Nicci Borisek. The Pirates hung in there and won the third game, Making the overall score 2-1 in favor of GSU.

The fourth game was all Eagles, with Woods leading the charge they overpowered the Pirates at the net. With the outstanding play at the net and the service aces by Ciekowski, the Eagles destroyed the Pirates 15-1 won, winning the match 3-1.

The Eagles are now off to one of their best starts with a record of 4-0. What does this recent success mean to Eagles coach J.B. Claiborne? "It is nice to be at 4-0," said Claiborne, "the third game was a good lesson for them, because they learned that they cannot fall asleep, and they came back and had a good fourth game."

The next Eagles home match will be today against South Carolina State, at 7 P.M. at Hanner Fieldhouse.

Montreal still in hunt, much to the surprise of unsuspecting manager

NEW YORK (AP) - Even manager Felipe Alou is sometimes surprised in the unexpected season of his Montreal Expos.

"This would have been an easy night to fold up and, instead, we put 16 hits and 10 runs up," said Alou, after the Expos pounded the New York Mets 10-4 Friday night to stay within four games of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Montreal came off a heart-breaking 13-inning loss Thursday night in Pittsburgh, but still continued its remarkable record on the road.

"There was a preoccupation among the players about how they lost last night, and then getting to bed a 5:00 a.m.," said Alou.

But the Expos improved their road record to 43-30, best in the NL, and beat the Mets for the sixth time in seven games in New York.

"We are used to seeing them win on the scoreboard, and they probably say the same thing about us," said Alou of the front-running Pirates.

Even though starter Bill Kruegger didn't survive the fifth inning and Alou had to use four pitchers, he was pleased with the night's work.

"It's not that we're going to give it to them easily," said Alou.

Montreal got help from some unexpected sources, including a two-run single by catcher Tim Laker, and a three-run homer by shortstop Wil Cordero in a six-run eighth that put the game away.

"I knew I hit it good," said Cordero of his first major-league homer that came off reliever Mark Dewey.

"I faced him once in Montreal and I hit a ground out to shortstop, but I was looking for something inside," said Cordero.

Mark Gardiner (12-9), the second Expos pitcher, got the win, while Dwight Gooden (8-13) took the loss for the Mets, ensuring him of the first losing season in his major-league career.

"It had to happen sooner or later. It's frustrating, but I'm glad it's over," said Gooden, who allowed nine hits and four runs, while striking out five and walking none in seven innings.

Once again, the Mets were done in by their bullpen, as Barry Jones was charged with five runs in just 2-3 of an inning, and Dewey finished the job by giving up Cordero's homer.

When Gooden left, the Mets were trailing only 4-3, thanks to a three-run fifth that finished Kruegger.

Montreal built a 4-0 lead by scoring on Greg Colbrunn's first inning RBI single, adding two more in the fourth on Larry Walker's RBI double and Darrin Fletcher's RBI single, and another in the fifth on Marquis Grissom's double.

New York struck back in the fifth on Chico Walker's sacrifice fly and RBI singles by Eddie Murray and Kevin Bass.

Cross Country runs away at Winthrop Invitational

By Chris Sherwood
Staff Writer

The Georgia Southern Cross Country teams traveled to Rock Hill, South Carolina to compete in the Winthrop University Invitational.

Twenty four teams competed in the men's race. The Eagles men team had a chance to run against VMI, Furman, Davidson, and The Citadel which are all members of the Southern Conference.

When all of the dust settled, the GSU men finished fourth overall. Southern beat Furman, VMI, and Davidson. The Citadel edged the eagles by twenty nine points. Coach Vargo was pleased with the finish. "It was the first time in school history that our guys have ever beaten Furman or The Citadel."

Individually for the men, Mike King finished fourth overall. "Mike ran well but not up to his expectations," mentioned Vargo. Southern's next finisher was Chris Smith who placed eighth overall.

The rest of the Eagles top seven were Don Daniels (23rd overall), Jay Knight (34), Dejohn Drinks (54), Chris Sherwood (73), and Gene Sapino (79).

Turning to the womens race, GSU finished seventh overall out of a twenty team field. Coach Vargo was happy with the way the girls ran: "The addition of Heather Gordon strengthened the team on the front end, but the loss of Alicia Hewes and Beth Thomas (#1 and #2 from last years team) will take some time to replace."

Heather Gordon was GSU's top finisher (18th overall). The lady Eagles top seven included Angie Stewart (29), Jessica Lloyd (56), Gail Mcleeroy (61), Melanie Jarvis (67), Gina Elliano (80), and Jody Lloyd (82).

Coach Vargo said, "I expect Gina, Jess, Gail, Melanie, and Jody to run much stronger as the season progresses... We ran well the first mile, but we will need to run a more complete race to run up to our potential."

The teams will travel to the West Georgia Invitational this weekend.

Piniella and Dibble slug it out over being stiffed

CINCINNATI (AP) - Rob Dibble reluctantly apologized. Lou Piniella didn't say he was sorry.

That's where it stood Friday after the Cincinnati Reds reliever and manager publicly patched up the differences that led to a clubhouse wrestling match.

Piniella charged Dibble Thursday night following a 3-2 victory over Atlanta. Dibble told reporters that Piniella had misled them about tightness in his pitching shoulder, prompting Piniella to erupt.

They met Friday with controlling partner Marge Schott and general manager Bob Quinn to talk it out. Dibble won't be suspended, and the two said in separate news conferences that the matter was closed.

They ended up hugging after Dibble saved a 4-2 victory over San Diego on Friday, but there were indications the rift wasn't entirely gone. They held separate pre-game news conferences that were more cold than conciliatory.

Dibble was combative towards reporters, accusing them of inciting the incident. He said the fight was a case of two quick-tempered people clashing.

"The problem is that we're too alike," he said. "We both hate to lose and have fiery personalities."

After answering a few questions, he abruptly ended the interview by walking through the crowd of reporters.

Piniella met the media a few minutes later and had a different explanation for the scuffle: He was defending his integrity. Piniella chose his words carefully and didn't apologize for charging Dibble.

"I sort of lost my cool," he said. "It's just that simple. It happened. When my integrity gets questioned, it's not that easy of a situation to deal with."

There was only one public apology Friday - Dibble reluctantly admitted he shouldn't have ripped Piniella to reporters, setting up the confrontation.

Piniella had informed reporters after the game Thursday that Dibble had tightness in his pitching shoulder. Dibble denied it, using an expletive.

"I might have said that," Dibble said Friday. "It was wrong on my part. I'm apologizing for that and I apologized to Lou."

Piniella said there will be no repercussions for the temperamental reliever, who's been suspended by the National League three times in the past two years for on-field outbursts. This was his first run-in with a member of his own team.

"I don't hold any grudges. I never have," Piniella said. "When you're with a team, a player for seven months, sometimes things can go awry. I've never had a dog-house since I've managed. When something happens, it's over with. Forget it."

Their scuffle in front of reporters and television cameras won't be soon forgotten. It immediately became a defining moment in a season of frustration.

The Reds' victory over Atlanta completed their season series with the NL West leaders. The two teams were expected to fight for the title down the stretch, but the Reds fell out of contention weeks ago with shoddy play.

Dibble was conspicuously absent in the late innings Thursday. He didn't even warm up as the Reds tried to protect the slim lead.

It was puzzling when Piniella chose Steve Foster - who had never saved a major league game - to close the game. Foster came through, striking out Damon Berryhill and Otis Nixon with two runners in scoring position to end it.

GSU men dribble their way out of four game slide with shutout of Berry

By Aaron Solomon
Staff Writer

The GSU soccer team ended a four game losing streak by tying with Berry College Sunday at Eagle Field. Although the Eagles did not win, Eagles head coach Tom Norton felt it was one of the best performances by the Eagles this season.

"We were looking for a good performance from the guys, and I felt that they put forth a good effort," said Norton on the Eagle's performance against Berry College.

Norton was especially pleased with the performance by the defense, who only allowed Berry College six shots on goal. All shots on goal were successfully blocked by Eagle's goalie, Tim Boarman.

"We did as well as a team defensively, so that most of the chances on goal were ours, but Tim held the goal well," said Norton about Boarman's first career shutout.

If there is any one player on who stands out, it is Jeff

Heidt. Heidt is tied for fourth in the South region in points with 10, and is tied for 21st in the nation. When asked about Heidt's capabilities, coach Norton said, "Jeff has been game in and game out, one of the best performers we have defensively as well as offensively."

Unfortunately, Heidt saw limited action on Sunday due to a stomach ailment.

The Eagles will travel to Charleston, South Carolina, on Friday to take on the Cougars of the College of Charleston at 7 P.M.

Braves must plan for expansion draft, will likely lose some top talent

By John Munford
Sports Editor

With expansion looming on the horizon, the Atlanta Braves must look ahead to the future to make choices on who they shall protect in the expansion draft.

They will get to protect 15 players originally, and after a player is chosen from the unprotected list, they may protect three more.

Each National League expansion team, the Colorado Rockies and the Florida Marlins, will choose three players from each existing N.L. team and two players from each existing American League team.

Once three players have been taken from the Braves, Colorado and Miami can take no more. Here is a position breakdown:

Starting Pitching: Steve Avery, Tom Glavine and John Smoltz are all locks to be protected. Charlie Leibrandt is a potential free agent, but Pete Smith has proven himself too valuable to be thrown onto the scrap heap. It becomes all the more important a decision if Mike Bielecki does not immediately recover from elbow surgery.

Relief Pitching: Mark Wohlers is almost certainly going to be protected, but the organization must be prepared for the possibility of his failure. Kent Mercker and Mike Stanton could also be protected to backup the young and inexperienced rookie reliever.

Infield: Terry Pendleton is hobbled, but has done his job well, both on and off the field. Ryan Klesko is a rookie who must be protected because he has more than three years experience in professional ball.

Brian Hunter has performed well in the power department and has proven himself to be a force to be reckoned with from the right side of the plate, and should be protected as well. Jeff Blauser, Mark Lemke and Vinny Castilla are all questionable to be protected just because of the depth of middle infielders throughout the organization such as Chipper Jones.

Outfield: Ron Gant, David Justice, Deion Sanders, Otis Nixon, and rookie Melvin Nieves are more than likely all going to be protected. Nieves lacks experience, but has shown flashes of brilliant power that the Braves cannot turn their back on. Tommy Gregg is likely to move on, barring a trade.

Catching: Javy Lopez, the rookie, will be protected as he is the organization's only hope for youth behind the plate. Greg Olson and Damon Berryhill both deserve to be protected, but are not in the Braves' long-range plans. No other team will take a chance on Olson, because he is injured and is thusly questionable.

Manager Bobby Cox and General manager John Schuerholz have a long list of figures and assumptions to go on, but until they make the final decision, there is no certainty whatsoever that the Braves will not suffer a huge loss to the new kids on the block.

IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START
SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

Can't afford to save for retirement? The truth is, you can't afford not to. Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning. By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax-deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $192,539* by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $227 each month to reach the same goal.

Even if you're not counting the years to retirement, you can count on TIAA-CREF to help you build the future you deserve—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years. Over a million people in education and research put TIAA-CREF at the top of their list for retirement planning. Why not join them? Call today and learn how simple it is to build a secure tomorrow when you have time and TIAA-CREF working on your side.

Start planning your future. Call our Enrollment Hotline 1 800 842-2888.

NEED EXTRA CASH?
The George-Anne, Georgia Southern's Official Student Newspaper, is looking for people interested in writing, copy editing, photography, paste-up, layout and design.
To fill out an application, stop by Room 111 in the Williams Center.

Rip Us Off.

That's right – you heard right. Rip us off. Get something for nothing. Say hello to a friend. Find a roommate. Get a job. Find a home for a litter of kittens. Buy a wombat. Or sell your Beamer (right, like you expect us to believe you – and not your folks – actually have the title to that BMW). Regardless of your purpose (or even if you are a congenital liar like the Beamer owner), Georgia's liveliest classified ad section is for you. Students, faculty and staff can have 25-word action ads published for nothing. Fill out the little rectangles at left, and send your ad to G-A Action Ads, LB 8001, GSU or drop it by the Williams Center, Room 111. You MUST include your name and Landrum Box number to qualify for a freebie. Remember, keep it short: students, faculty and staff will be billed at 10 cents a word for words in excess of the 25 word limit.

Have you heard....
The George-Anne has Free Classifieds for Students and Faculty!!

Deadline for Tuesday's Edition is Thursday, 5:00pm and for Thursday's Edition is Monday, 5:00pm. Mail your Action Ad to LB#8001 or drop it off at Williams Center Room 111.

Non-commercial ads are freebies only.

immediately," Police Chief David Gellatly said. "This incident is unusual in that the vast majority of such cases at the college have been reported immediately."

Police said the woman reported the attack to college administrators last Monday. She told police the school told her not to report the attack until school officials investigated and decided whether to discipline the man.

College spokeswoman Beth Eckard said she had not been able to contact any administrators involved in the incident, and declined comment.

Police said the head of security at the college gave officers the man's identity and told them he had already interviewed him.

The nation's largest art college has been in turmoil since last spring, when administrators resisted an attempt to establish a student government and barred student leaders from registering for classes.

Graduation ceremonies were canceled after several pipe bombs exploded in and around the campus. Two students not involved in the government movement were charged last month.

Student leaders have filed suit against the college and its president, contending they were defamed when the college publicly linked them to the bombings.

SCAD also refused to renew the contracts of 12 faculty members, most of whom either sympathized with the student government leaders or tried to establish a faculty senate. Three college trustees were ousted in July when they called for reforms.

Meanwhile, the dean of SCAD's school of building arts has resigned.

Dean Matthew Lowry said he and administrators have disagreed on how to resolve the program's probationary status. The National Architectural Accrediting Board placed the program on probation last month after several members of its faculty and staff were fired.

He wants to do his taxes but he finds it too difficult to hold a pencil.

Without your help, he may not be able to do them.

For this man it's arthritis. For someone else it might be poor eyesight or maybe they just can't cope. The fact is, last year 4 million Americans got the help they needed from IRS Volunteer Assistance Programs.

If you have the desire to help and a basic aptitude for math, you could become a part of the IRS Volunteer Assistance Programs. So volunteer and call 1 800 424-1040. Beginning October 1, 1990, please call 1 800 829-1040.

Volunteer and make someone's taxes less taxing.

"My Mom, she thinks all I ever do is go through 'phases.' 'You changed your major again? Now it's Ethnic Dance Forms? When are you going to come to your senses and pick something sensible? (Sigh) Well, I guess it's just another phase.' So I told her, 'Give me a break Ma. I mean I kept the same phone company all four years'... She was impressed."
