ASC Professor Dies At 57

Doctor Ross L. Clark, Jr. a professor of Political Science here at A.S.C. for over 10 years, died on Tuesday morning, October 2nd at Memorial Medical Center.

Doctor Henry L. Ashmore, President of Armstrong, said of Doctor Clark's death, "We have suffered a tremendous loss at Armstrong because of Dr. Clark's death. He was a distinguished teacher who'll be missed by both students and faculty alike."

Doctor Clark served on the faculties of the college of Charleston, Western Carolina University, and West Georgia College before joining the faculty at Armstrong in 1967. While a member of the college's faculty he served on the library and graduate committees, as well as an advisor to both the student government and honor council. In 1977, the Board of Directors of Armstrong's Alumni Association presented Doctor Clark with the Outstanding Faculty Member Award for his outstanding contributions to both campus and community activities.

Doctor Clark was active in political organizations throughout the area as well as organizing Armstrong's college chapter of the Young Democrats.

He was a member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church at Isle of Hope where he was actively involved in church functions.

Remembrances are being sent to Armstrong State College for a scholarship fund in Doctor Clark's memory.

Sororities Welcome Rushees To ASC

The ASC campus challenge "Go Greek" was answered by 22 girls as Alpha Gamma Delta, Phi Mu, and Sigma Kappa sororities joined together in Formal Rush.

Formal Rush, held Friday, October 5th through Monday, October 8th, consisted of parties given by each sorority during which the rushees could meet the sorority sisters and learn of the various activities in which each sorority participates.

To qualify for formal rush, those interested girls must have been full-time students with a grade point average of at least 2.0. The Panhellenic Council had tables set up in the old student center during the first week of school so that the girls could acquaint themselves with the idea of sorority life and possibly go through Formal Rush.

On Friday evening at 6:00 P.m., Lynn Benson, along with three alumna members of the sororities, welcomed the girls to rush before turning the program over to the three sororities. A weekend of informative, as well as fun parties followed as each girl decided on her favorite sorority.

On Monday afternoon, the rushees accepted their bids and by Monday night many rushees were already being initiated as pledges. Mary Gene Murphy, president of the Panhellenic Council as well as Vice President of Sigma Kappa, commented on rush: "The girls who pledge this fall will have the advantage of seeing, in their four year membership, the largest growth of the Greek system here at ASC in years."

Jennifer Roberson, President of Alpha Gamma Delta summarized her feelings by saying: "We think that all the girls who came through rush were excited and willing to work towards bettering their sorority."

Mary Ellen Whelan, President of Phi Mu added: "Phi Mu is extremely pleased with all of her pledges. We're off to a good start. . ."

As pledges, the sisters will undergo pledge classes, as well as participate in various pledge projects, before being initiated sometime in December.

In recent years, Formal Rush has been under attack because of the strict rules involved. However, Brenda Williams, of Alpha Gamma Delta said: "Probably the single most important purpose for formal rush is that it gives the three sororities an opportunity to work together as a unit. . ."

Ann Pierce, of Sigma Kappa, added: "Changes could be made in the program, yet it's the element of suspense which makes formal rush so special."

Mary Gene Murphy concluded by saying: "The overall rapport between the Greeks is the best that it has been in years. This is due, to an extent, to the formality of fall rush. Through such a structured form of rush, the sororities now realize that they must rush for the entire Greek system as well as their own chapters."

Murphy Selected As Editor

On Thursday, October 4th, Josie Murphy was appointed as Editor of the Inkwell for the academic year 1979-80. Josie, a Freshman at Armstrong, is a graduate of Saint Vincent's Academy where she worked on the publication of both a newspaper and a literary magazine.

Before being appointed as editor, Josie, along with two other students, was interviewed by the Publications' Board as to her plans for the newspaper.

On Friday, October 5th, an Inkwell staff meeting was held and all interested students attended. Presently, the Editor is reviewing applications for the available positions. Any student who is interested in writing for the Inkwell, stop by the Inkwell office and speak to Josie or leave an application with Al Harris in the Student Activities Office.

Have You Hugged Your Jug Today?

by Glen E. Gibbons

Tomorrow afternoon on the patio, the Dance-Concert committee will present the wildest, and zaniest type of musical entertainment in the South, the world famous Jugernaut Jug Band.

Louisville, Kentucky, home and base of the group has much the same relationship to Jug Band music the New Orleans had to Dixieland Jazz. Music experts say the band has provided "a bridge between rural blues and urban jazz." Basically the jug band mainly provides a "hell-of-a-good-time."

The six-man group plays the predictable instrumentation (bass, guitars, drums) along with wash tub bass, washboard, kazoos, nose flute and, of course, the patient-pending huggable jug. The music of the jug band is a wide ranging mix of original and contemporary material and updated treatments of Old Blues and jug tunes in a style that show off the blues, jazz, and even rock influences of the band.

The group will play at 12:30, outside the patio. This is a free concert so let's make it good having a large turnout. It's the first noontime show of the year and could possibly be the best. This event is sponsored by the Union Board and a CUB event is an event worth attending.

Mrs. Black Dies After 13 Years Service

Mrs. Mary Black, both a friend and relative to several students at ASC, died late last Tuesday night, October 9th, after a long illness.

Mrs. Black, who worked in the cafeteria as a cashir since October of 1966, left Armstrong for a leave of absence due to her declining health approximately six months ago. At the time of her death, however, Mrs. Black was still officially a member of the administration.

A flower fund was set up in the M.C.C. cafeteria and that students and faculty were urged to donate money in memory of Mrs. Black. Flowers were sent to Fox and Weeks Funeral Home from the proceeds of this fund. Meanwhile, a library fund was organized in Mrs. Black's memory.

Mrs. Black, a widow, is survived by three children: Nora Kaye Miller, Clyde W. Black, and Roy H. Black.

Where Have All The Geechees Gone?

by Josie Murphy

The mysterious case of the missing Geechee annuals has been solved! No longer is the puzzled student body forced to ponder over its lengthy absence. Recently, a "leak" in the administration revealed that Al Harris and his staff of resident wizards, magically turned the annuals into a set of pool tables stationed in a newly designed wreck room. One wonders what they will pull out of their hats next. . .

The conflict over the annuals has become a regular tradition at Armstrong as the college concludes its third year without a yearbook. The blame cannot be placed on one person, however. In fact, there are very few people left around to put any blame on at all. Due to photographic difficulties, coupled with the "staff epidemic" that "killed off" nearly all of the Geechee workers, Sandra Turnquist, editor of the yearbook, was left with only a few people to help her complete the publication of a major, as well as time-consuming, project. It adds a whole new dimension to the cliché, "It's lonely at the top."

Presently, Sandra is struggling to complete the Geechee in an effort to publish it by December. The yearbook, late as it will be, will be coming out, yet the lasting effects of this conflict has already been made clear. The possibility of an annual for this academic year does not even exist, as the Student Government Association has already used the suspended funds for the new wreck room. As for the fate of Geechees of the future, one can only hope that there are students who wish to remember Armstrong in more ways than merely reminiscing over an eight ball.

Letter From The Editor

by Josie Murphy

Buckingham Palace has her changing of the guards while Armstrong's Inkwell has her own passing of the swords as John Opper resigns as Acting Editor and I try to fill his shoes.

Publishing a bi-monthly paper entails much work, and I was hardly in my "throne" when I realized the huge task which lay before me. Thankfully, I was heartily welcomed by a number of enthusiastic supporters such as David Dorondo, John Opper, and Danny Brown. In fact, I was even forgiven for cleaning the office and removing the infamous "Swanky Franky" Alumna poster, as well as the "sacred cooler." Now that's staff support! Through all these initiation rituals, we managed to publish this issue.

There have been several changes and additions to the Inkwell, and we feel sure you won't hesitate to inform us on how you feel about them. We know you're out there! We heard you breathing! Yet, with every criticism it seems fair (in this democratic system we live in) to ask that you also submit a suggestion or two as well as exercise some patience as we work on publishing a campus paper that you will both enjoy and be informed by.

Our office is located on the second floor of the M.C.C. building. (It's the one with the door always open.) Our phone number is 927-5351. You're hearing from us, now it's your turn to let us hear from you!

Movie Review

Reynolds Starts Over

"Starting Over" is Burt Reynolds' best movie to date. Reynolds plays Phil Potter, a newly divorced magazine writer. His ex-wife, Jessica, who is trying to find herself, is played by Candice Bergen. This very funny film concentrates on Phil's attempt to start over after his divorce. He attends group therapy for divorced men. This group provides some of the films funniest moments, especially for divorced men. This group provides some of the films funniest moments, especially the seventy-two year old man complaining about the old women "lusting after his body". Just as Phil puts it all back together, he starts a wonderful relationship with Marilyn (Jill Clayburgh), his ex-wife decided she wants him back. In a seduction scene, funny enough to rival "The Graduates", Phil deadpans an enthusiastic Jessica as she sings her new hit single, "Better than Ever".

Jill Clayburgh portrays Marilyn as earthy, funny and very human. Candice Bergen has proved herself a fine com-edianne in this film. She butchers her songs to perfection and really makes you believe that she knows she sings well when screechingly it is obvious that she does not. Burt Reynolds steals the movie in the final scenes when he declares his love by telling the woman that he wants to grow old with her so that they can keep their false teeth in the same jar. Burt has convinced this moviegoer that he does not need a fast car, a stunt man, or a mustache to make a good film.

Friend To The College

Mysterious Redhead Seen Again

by John Oppen

Almost everyone at Armstrong has eaten at Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers at one time or another. Since this time last year, the Armstrong Student Body has paid more attention to the little red haired girl that has become the symbol of Wendy's. And when one considers the amount of help the college has received thanks to the Wendy's organization, its no wonder everytime I turn around I see the little girl in pigtaails smiling sweetly and offering me another discounted meal.

During registration last fall quarter, Jim Saba, the owner of our local Wendy's, came to campus and offered Student Activities thousands of coupon books to give out to students. The idea paid off for both Armstrong and Mr. Saba. Students got a cheap lunch and Mr. Saba's business flourished.

When Homecoming approached, Mr. Saba was back on campus. This time he wanted to give a Sony Color TV to the winner of the float competition. Mr. Saba's donation helped spark a little friendly competition among the greeks and was, to say the least, generous.

During Spring Quarter, the Support Our Scholars Fund Drive was ready to go with all kinds of donations and fund raising activities. The steering committee needed a co-sponsor for the Fun Run so T-shirts could be given away to the participants. When Mr. Saba was contacted he not only offered to donate the need capital but also got Wendy's Organization to print and supply the shirts at a considerable savings to the college.

It's not very often that a college finds such a generous and consistent supporter as Mr. Saba and Wendy's. A college is often only given what it needs to operate and not what it wants. Through contributions and help such as that given us by Wendy's many extras are added. Programs are fleshed out by a new piece of equipment or slightly larger budget. Outside support is something a college must have to survive and we are no exception.

Because of all the generous contributions and help, the Inkwell tips its hat to Mr. Jim Saba and the entire Wendy's Organization.

Incidentally, Mr. Saba has already begun his "antics" again this quarter. The Student Activities Office has been deluged with coupons and the Basketball Office has a big sign ready to proclaim the Wendy's Most Valuable Defensive Player of the Week. Let us hope that our luck holds out!

Any student who is in good physical condition and weighs at least 110 pounds is eligible to donate blood any time between 10:00 am and 3:00 pm.

The goal is 100 units of blood, although the S.G.A. hopes for much more. So, come give blood and bring a friend.

Lud's Ladies

Over the past year, President Henry Ludlow Ashmore has touched the lives of many Armstrong State students. He is a friend as well as an advisor. To prove their loyalty last year the College Union Board offered the world famous "King Lud Fan Club" t-shirts to any student who wished to purchase one. The Union Board still has about 10 shirts left and these are the last Lud shirts to be made.

This year a group of students are showing their support to King Lud by naming their football team "Lud's Ladies." The Lud team is made up of both greek and independant girls and looks to be an outstanding team. Coach David Fennell has an unorthodox style of playing and plans to clean up this year. The Lud team will be wearing blue Lud t-shirts which have a picture of King Lud on front of them.

Lud's Ladies are planning to have a good season and are hoping to see King Lud himself at the games to cheer on his ladies.

Information about joining this team can be obtained from Doris Hatch or from Al Harris at the Student Activities Office in the M.C.C. Lobby.

Grady Memorial Hospital Offers Training

Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta anticipates that many students approaching graduation with a B.S. in the natural sciences--chemistry, biology, physics--are undecided about a career. They would like to reach these students to inform them of rewarding careers in nuclear medicine or radiation oncology technology.

With one additional year of training following college graduation, a student can look forward to a satisfying profession in the field of nuclear medicine or radiation therapy.

A brochure concerning the School of Nuclear Medicine and School of Radiation Oncology Technology at Grady Memorial Hospital has been placed in the Counseling and Placement Office. Those students interested may discuss admission requirements, the facilities and job opportunities upon completion of training with Ms. Lorraine Hallock, Assistant Registrar and Field Representative in Savannah October 22 at the Savannah Civic Center 6:00-9:00 p.m., or write or call:

Alfred Hitchcock once again proves himself the master of suspense as he exploits the trickle of fear that lies in every man's soul. "It's hold your breath, fun and games time again for Alfred Hitchcock has come up with one of his best," William Wol, CUE MAGAZINE. This tidy little tidbit of organized perversion yields a villain who picks his teeth with a diamond stickpin at one glance and strangles lovely ladies with his necktie at the next; all the while building a trap of implication for an old friend. "Hitchcock is in dazzling form. A passionately entertaining film," Vincent Canby, New York Times.

A faithful adaptation of Richard Matheson's classic sci-fi-horror concoction, I am Legend. A plague has wiped human life, and animated the bodies of the dead into "vampires" who must have the blood of the undead to survive. # Canoe Trip Travel the wilds of the Canoochee River with your friends! Navigate the unknown! Be Daring!

On October 20, a party of brave Armstrong students will venture into an adventure. The adventure will consist of canoeing down the Canoochee River (with a courageous leader Al Harris), stopping for lunch, and finishing the long hard journey.

The trip begins Saturday morning October 20, at 9 a.m. at King's Ferry (where U.S. 17 crosses the Ogeechee River). From there you will travel by truck to landing number two. Then the fun and adventure begins. You will travel down the river (in a canoe, of course) to the picnic area, which is approximately three-fifths of the way down the river route. After a picnic lunch, you will continue your journey back to King's Ferry.

Students interested in joining the courageous Mr. Harris, should come by the Student Activities office. Only 28 lucky people will be able to take this wonderful voyage. The price is $7.50 per couple. The $7.50 is for the rent of the canoe. It must be paid in cash when you sign up to go on the trip. It is non-refundable. If it should rain, the trip will be made the following day. You will also need to bring a picnic lunch, a cooler for your drinks, and your own life jacket, if you have one. Please do not bring cameras, etc. We will not be liable if your canoe turns over and these items are lost.

For one of the best times of your life, join the Special Events sponsored journey. Remember: A CUB event is worth attending!

No Small Sack Of Potatoes

At least once a day, somewhere on this campus, the phrase "Abercorn High" or "Armpit U" is used to sarcastically refer to the college. Perhaps many students find it hard to believe that an excellent college lies in their own backyard. Just because the school doesn't have dorms or an enrollment over 20,000 doesn't mean the college is not a good one.

Ever since Armstrong State College was founded, its name has been linked with high standards of academic excellence. Indeed, all aspects of the college are performing at levels far above many of their counterparts in other institutions.

In talking with friends and some of the administration, it became apparent that Armstrong State College has been leading the way in many areas. The college has been responsible for several "firsts" in the state. Below is a partial list of some of the concepts in which the college led the way.

First college in the state to offer a two year Associate Degree in nursing.

First college in the state to develop a Criminal Justice Department.

Pioneered the use of the Exit Exam which is now mandated by the Board of Regents as a qualification of graduation.

First college in the state to use a formal computerized plan for teacher evaluation.

First college in the state to develop a Dental Hygiene program.

First college in the state to turn control of Student Activity Fee Revenue completely over to the Student Government.

First college in the state to develop a program in Museum and Preservation Studies.

As one can see, the faculty and administration are continually working to make Armstrong a college to be reckoned with. The list of interesting accomplishments does not stop with the above. To name a few other "notable trivia."

The concepts of the Special Studies Program and Designated Regional Health Centers was born here. Both these concepts were later adopted by the Board of Regents.

For the third year in a row, Armstrong State College Teacher Education Graduates have scored highest in the state on the National Teacher Examinations. The Armstrong Graduates scored significantly higher than the national average.

Once again, credit must go to the fine faculty and administration for a job well done. Over the years the efforts have resulted in students winning and placing in all types of competitions with such a rich heritage to draw on and be proud of, there is no reason for the sarcasm that can occasionally be heard.
