Miller's plan to lift food tax getting little support

The Associated Press

ATLANTA—Key lawmakers refused to budge Wednesday from their position that the governor's plan to eliminate the sales tax from groceries won't help poor Georgians.

"I think we really would be relieving richer folks of more taxes than anybody else," House Speaker Tom Murphy said in agreeing with a subcommittee of his tax commission to leave the food tax intact.

The House-Senate Revenue Structure Commission took no vote on that recommendation or several others, but members reiterated their wish to generate more income — not less — from the sales tax so they can in turn give tax relief to Georgia property owners.

"I think there is a big move underfoot for that ... here in Atlanta as well as in the boondocks," Murphy said.

Under one scenario presented Wednesday, the state could generate an extra $1.2 billion from the sales tax by raising it from 4 cents on the dollar to 5 cents and by applying it to about 25 services that are now exempt, such as haircuts, cable TV, dry cleaning and pet grooming.

"You pay taxes on the coffin to bury yourself in, but you don't pay (taxes) to have your poodle groomed. Where's the equity?" said Sen. Terrell Starr, D-Forrest Park, who co-chairs the commission with Murphy.

Extra sales tax revenue would let the General Assembly heed what Sen. Sonny Perdue, D-Bonaire, called the "hue and cry across the state for property tax reduction" through a property tax credit program, a state-funded homestead exemption and a school tax relief program in which the state would foot more of the bill for education.

But the commission is headed for a battle with Gov. Zell Miller, who promised during his re-election bid this year to remove the 4-cent sales tax from food within four years.

Coaches resign in face of allegations

By Chris Sherwood
News Editor

GSU President Nicholas Henry announced the resignation of GSU's Head Men's Basketball Coach Frank Kerns, Associate Head Coach Mike Backus and Assistant Coach Mark White before a packed room of reporters at the Southern Center for Continuing Education yesterday.

"On Tuesday, Nov. 22, Athletic Director Dr. David Wagner and I learned that a possible major violation of NCAA regulations had occurred in the men's basketball program," Henry said. "Outside assistance allegedly was given to a prospective student athlete who was completing some lessons and the final examination for a correspondence course. I have accepted [their] resignations."

Henry formed an investigative committee composed of Wagner, the Chair of the Faculty Senate Athletics Committee George Shriver and GSU NCAA Faculty Representative Lane Van Tassell last Tuesday.

"We informed the Southern Conference on Wednesday and the NCAA on Friday morning of our internal investigation which is continuing, when our internal investigation is completed we will turn over our findings to the NCAA and to the Southern Conference," Henry said. "The prospective student athlete was awarded a basketball scholarship, but played in no intercollegiate competition."

Assistant Coach Doug Durham will serve as the interim head coach. His first game was last night against the University of Georgia, a team which is coached by his father, Hugh Durham.

"Coach Kerns came forward, we did not request a resignation, he came forward for the good of the university so that we could have a full disclosure as to what happened," Wagner said. "Because he was the head of the program, he felt he would take this action, it was unsolicited. Subsequent to that, the other two coaches tendered their resignations also."

Henry said GSU takes pride in keeping athletics within academics, which is why the faculty representative to the NCAA is chairing the internal investigation.

"The message I would like to emphasize to you is, first, that this kind of sad episode can happen anywhere, even Georgia Southern," Henry said. "Second, every appropriate officer in the University moved immediately, intensively, and aggressively in rooting out this apparent violation. When it comes to institutional integrity, Georgia Southern does not

Baltimore falls 26-23 despite former GSU player's efforts

By Chris Sherwood
News Editor

Former GSU quarterback Tracy Ham led the Canadian Football League (CFL) Baltimore Football Club team to their first ever trip to the Grey Cup championship game, but came up short as the B.C. Lions kicked the game winning field goal with no time on the clock to win 26-23.

With the appearance by Baltimore in the final, it marked the first ever Grey Cup final with an American team.

The Baltimore team, which has no official nickname yet, almost won the championship. Leading 20-10 and then 23-20, the Baltimore team couldn't hold off the Lions. Ham had the ball inside the Lions five yard line, but fumbled on the one. The turnover would be costly as it later set up the game winner.

Ironically, Ham led the CFL this year in fumbles with 13.

Entering the championship game against the Doug Flutie led Lions, Ham finished second in the regular season with 4,348 yards passing and 30 touchdowns. Incidentally, Ham finished behind his opponent from Sunday, Doug Flutie, in those statistics.

Ham is the only player to have his number retired at GSU. He is now in his eighth season in the CFL.

Tracy Ham in 1986

During that time, he has had five seasons with 30 or more touchdowns, including this season.

While at GSU, Ham directed the Eagles to two Division I-AA national championships, and that winning way hasn't changed. He owns almost every passing record at GSU.

Ham was named to the Kodak All-America team in 1986 (first team), the Associated Press in 1986 (first team), the Football News in 1986 (first team), the Football News in 1986 (Offensive Player-of-the-year), and the Atlanta Journal-Constitution College Division Player-of-the-year for 1984-1986.

He was the first player in college football, any division, to rush for 3,000 yards and pass for 5,000 yards in a career. Along with holding almost every GSU record, Ham also held a total of five NCAA records, one of which was broken this season by Steve McNair from Alcorn State. He was inducted into the GSU Hall of Fame in 1992.

After his stellar career at GSU, Ham went North to play in the CFL. In Edmonton, his first team, he led the Eskimos to Western Division titles in 1988, 1989 and 1991. During the 1990 season, his team made it to the Grey Cup finals before losing to Winnipeg. In those years, Ham was able to play with Raghbi "The Rocket" Ismail.

Prior to this season, Ham had headlined a 16 person trade between the Argos and Edmonton. Last year proved to be a disaster though as Ham only threw for 2,147 yards and ran for 605 yards. He was benched at times through the season, and later be-

Campus-wide excellence forum set for tomorrow

GSU News Service

A campus-wide forum will be held to offer ideas about new ways GSU can achieve excellence as a university tomorrow at the Russell Union from 3-5 p.m. in room 247. It is open to students, faculty and staff.

This meeting will be the second quarterly forum sponsored by the Strategic Planning Council, a group of faculty and staff appointed from all areas of GSU to look at information and issues that affect the school's strategic direction and decisions.

The series of forums opened last spring quarter and dealt with what actions GSU should be taking to ensure its success. Comments from the first forum were summarized in a report to the Executive Planning Council.

This forum follows up with a discussion on "Finding New Ways to Achieve Excellence," a theme proposed through the University's suggestion system.

SPC Chair Linda Bleicken, assistant professor of management, will moderate the discussion.

New drop boxes ease mail delivery

Three boxes will all deliver intracampus, department and U.S. mail

By Sharon Grier
Staff Writer

The GSU Postal Service installed three new mail drop boxes on campus. They will be used for intracampus, departmental and U.S. mail. The three locations include a box near the main entrance to the Carroll Building, one near the radio tower by the Williams Center, and also one next to the drive-way entrance to the Alumni House.

"They were set up mostly for faculty and staff," GSU Postal Services Director Sam Owens said.

Students can also benefit because fee payments can be dropped off at one of these three locations. Some students have expressed a concern their payment would be lost in the mail before it got to Deal Hall, but according to Owens, there won't be any problems.

"Full-time employees pick [this mail] up. From that location [all of the mail] comes right back here to the Landrum Center," Owens said. "Fee payments have a special Landrum Box on them, so there is really no reason [payments] should get lost."

He said all of this mail will be handled and sorted by one person.

"We do fee payments the same way we do traffic fines. We have never had any complaints on the traffic fines," Owens said.

Fee payments are not the only student mail that can be dropped off at these drop boxes. All correspondence except bulk third-class mail can be deposited.

The Postal Service does recommend Express Mail be brought directly to Landrum main office. If someone is mailing numerous pieces of correspondence, they should separate the intracampus and United States mail with rubber bands.

Because these boxes are on the last pick-up route, they will be emptied at 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday except on campus holidays.

Georgia Tech may revive honor system

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Supporters of an honor code at Georgia Tech say it could clarify the blurred line between cheating and cutting corners but probably would fall short of expelling offenders.

The school already has an academic honesty policy, similar to one used at UGA, which refers cheating violations to the academic affairs office.

"We are looking for something more, for a way to create a community that is totally responsive to honesty," said Carole Moore, an assistant vice president for student services.

"It's a part of a larger mission we are undertaking to infuse ethics and integrity and civility into the full fabric of Georgia Tech."

Moore said the most severe penalties (expulsion) probably would not be invoked.

"We are looking for flexibility. I don't think you (should) ruin students' lives forever because of a spontaneous lack of judgment," Moore said.

Georgia Tech Student government president Greg Foster hopes to hold a student referendum on the honor code in the spring and to have it in place by fall.

"We want the grade point average at Georgia Tech to reflect a student's academic ability and work, and we want it to be earned in an environment that stresses ethical behavior," Foster said.

Georgia Tech once had an honor code, adopted in 1905 and followed until the 1930s.

Only 25 percent of all colleges and universities now follow honor codes, but many schools are bringing them back.

Honor codes are traditional and the strictest at military academies, where students must follow the code plus turn in fellow students who break it.

Some ideas for the Georgia Tech code include requiring all students to sign a statement at the end of each paper and exam declaring the work is their own.

Also requiring professors to place old tests on file in the library.

Summary of allegations against the GSU basketball program

The facts according to Lane Van Tassell, GSU's faculty representative to the NCAA:

GSU recruited a basketball player who was scheduled to enroll in fall 1994 and be a student athlete during this term.

He thought he had graduated from a junior college in another state when he arrived here in early to mid-September and was informed by the institution of which he had recently attended, and thought he had attained a degree, that he was short a math course.

He had to have completed those requirements in order to graduate, and he had to have graduated from that junior college institution in order to have been enrolled at GSU and be eligible to play. He was initially advised by the junior college that he had satisfied those requirements.

He was advised of the deficiency while he was in Statesboro, and that information became known to the coaches. The coaches began to review the possibilities to make up that deficiency.

They became aware of the possibility of satisfying the requirements of the correspondence course from another institution in another state and they proceeded to do that.

The course had to be satisfied before classes began for fall quarter in order for him to be eligible. The materials were obtained, and it became evident early on that the student athlete was having difficulties with those materials, it was suggested that he turn to help to one other student athlete.

He proceeded to do that. That process then went on for several days in efforts to try and complete that correspondence course, at which time the final exam was scheduled.

"There are a number of alleged irregularities and improprieties surrounding that final exam, and the legitimacy of it as it was returned to the institution in which the correspondence course came," Van Tassell said. "GSU dispatched two university officials to that institution to bring back any materials which are pertinent to our investigation which is still ongoing."

Turkey strangled after alleged attack

The Associated Press

BELMONT, W.Va. — Authorities are unsure how to treat the death of a wild turkey strangled after it allegedly attacked a Pleasants County man.

"If the person was attacked, then does he have a right to protect himself?" Sheriff David Kelly asked.

"That's the question that needs to be answered. That's what we're trying to determine now," he said Wednesday.

Brenda Williams, who raised the wild turkey with her husband and two children at their Belmont home, said the attack on 5-month-old Jake was unwarranted. They found the motherless chick in June and planned to return to the woods this weekend.

"A grown man stood there and strangled a 10-pound turkey. That's sick," Williams said. "I think he did it just to get his jollies. There were two women sitting in the car, and I think he was just trying to be macho."

Kelly is working with the county prosecutor to decide whether charges should be brought against neighbor, Nolan Parsons, who stopped in front of Williams' house as he walked home Saturday from the post office.

"The gentleman was on the street talking to two ladies who were in a vehicle, and he bent down to talk to the driver and the turkey came at him and attacked him according to statements we received," Kelly said.

Woman fondles men, then takes the cash

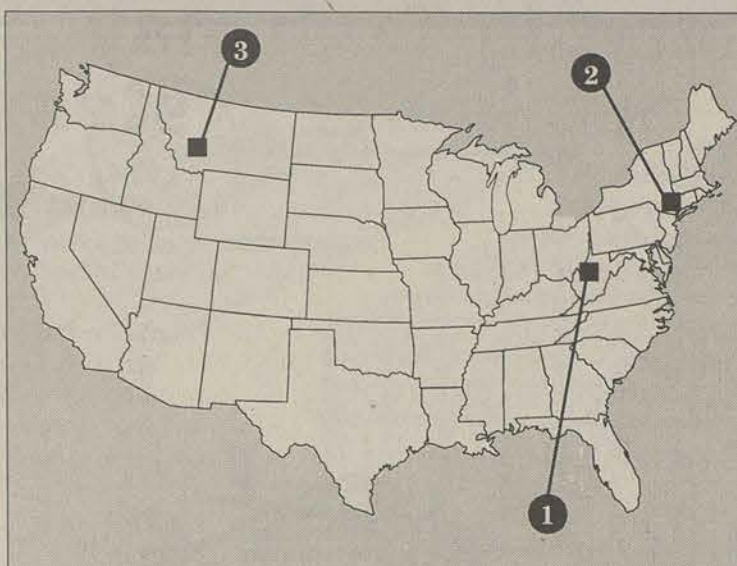

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Older men on Long Island should beware if an attractive woman in a nurse's uniform says she has car trouble, police said. She's out to steal their money.

A woman about 30 years old has approached numerous older men driving late model cars and asked them to drive her to her car, Nassau County police said. During the ride to a nearby side street, she fondles the men sexually, distracting them long enough to steal their wallets, police said.

Incidents have been reported throughout Nassau County since early 1991, usually at traffic lights near shopping centers.

Police have issued a grand-larceny wanted poster for a 5-foot 5-inch black woman with an oval face and stocky build.

Dynamite sticks found in used lamp

The Associated Press

HELENA — That was a dynamite bargain of a lamp a Helena-area woman picked up at a yard sale. Literally.

She gave it to her daughter, who was dusting it Tuesday when a package slipped out of its hollow base. She was opening the plastic wrapping and duct tape until she saw the word "EXPLOSIVE."

"The package contained five sticks of dynamite," Lewis and Clark County Sheriff Chuck O'Reilly said Wednesday. "There weren't any detonating caps with it — you need those to set it off."

But even without the caps, the dynamite is considered a hazard because it had started to "sweat," which means the nitroglycerin in the dynamite had started oozing out. The dynamite sticks were dated 1979.

Detective Richard Hammerback, the county's explosives expert, removed the dynamite and took it to the county's bomb bunker, where it will be stored until it's destroyed.

Deputies now are trying to trace the lamp's history. The woman's mother bought it at a yard sale Aug. 27 at a home in the Helena Valley.

Van Tassell will chair the internal investigation.

"I want to say up front that as the faculty rep to the NCAA I can say with great confidence that this institution confronted a serious allegation with fundamental integrity and moved expeditiously to deal with that issue and are continuing to do so," Van Tassell said. "Approximately Tuesday of last week I received a telephone call from a senior athletic administrator on this campus, who had in turn been informed by a staff member that student athletes had stepped forward with serious allegations about academic improprieties."

Following the conversation, Van Tassell said he met within minutes with Henry, and the president "put into place a formal process that we've had in place here to confront such possibilities. That process was fully adopted and reviewed by the normal by the normal review processes on this campus as part of our procedures."

According to Van Tassell, they then moved quickly to obtain as much information as possible about the specifics of this case.

"At this time, our concern is for the student athletes that are in the program that we normalize their conditions as quickly as possible," Wagner said. "It's been a tremendous shock and strain to them, they have finals coming up, we want to make sure that they are properly taken care of. I have not had an opportunity to talk to Doug other than on the telephone, so we will discuss that future when he returns to campus."

During Coach Kern's 20 years as head basketball coach, 13 at GSU, he never had a losing season. He compiled an overall record of 381-210 which ranked him as the 35th winningest coach overall. He was 243-132 at the helm of GSU. Three times, he led his Eagle teams to the NCAA post-season tournament, the last coming in 1992 in a loss to Oklahoma State in the opening round game.

Coach Backus was in his 15th season at GSU. He was named to the staff prior to the 1979-80 season. He has been the top assistant since Kern's was named head coach in 1981.

Mark White joined the Eagle staff during the 1993 summer. He had been coaching at Wabash Valley College.

Interim Head Coach Durham is a 1993 graduate of GSU. During the 1990-91 season, he worked under his father at UGA, and the Bulldogs played in the NCAA tournament.

came a free agent. He only started and finished two games during that year.

The kind of success he was accustomed to, like he was named the CFL's outstanding player in 1989 for rushing for over 1,000 yards, had disappeared.

It wasn't soon before Baltimore came calling, and Ham signed with them. The Baltimore head coach, Don Matthews, was an assistant at Edmonton during that 1989 season.

Ham worked with a standard four-receiver offense which had a balance between the run and the pass, which allowed him to excel at what he does best. Although Ham didn't run the ball as much as the 1989 season, this year he didn't have to because the Baltimore team had Mike Pringle who rushed for a league record 1,972 yards.

Canadian football is a little different than the football Americans are used to watching.

The offense only has three downs to get a first down as opposed to the traditional four in American football. Twelve men are allowed for each team compared to 11 in American.

Our Opinion

The correct choice was made

Before a host of media personnel, President Nicholas Henry announced Monday, three top ranking men's basketball coaches resigned amid NCAA recruiting infractions.

Upon the arrival of NCAA representatives to the campus two weeks ago, the group came across vital implications against the program. These implications were brought forth by two players that sincerely wanted to make a change, the right change.

We, The George-Anne, want to applaud those two individuals. Several things about GSU need improvements. Some of which are easily seen by the naked eye, while others need to be unearthed.

To make this regional university of 14,100 a more highly credible institution, the problems must be alleviated. With the assistance of people like the two players, this campus can remove the troublesome areas that cast a gray haze over the good qualities of our school.

Profs must take responsibility

Every quarter students fight a never-ending battle to secure courses that will eventually lead to a diploma for those extremely hard-working, and rather lucky collegians.

For 10 solid weeks, students are recommended to attend five classes through the weekdays. Then the students can take a breather over the weekend. Some students even have the luxury of receiving a three-day weekend each and every week. This extra time away from class is a "gift" from their professors.

Students pay an enormous amount of money to this school each quarter to receive an education, not a vacation. When Friday classes are cancelled students lose 20 percent of their learning experience.

We, the staff of The George-Anne, believe the professors at this university should fulfill their duties as instructors by attending class all five days a week, not just four.

We as students deserve to gain knowledge, especially when we must shell out of our own pockets for that knowledge.

It is the last one of the quarter

This is the last issue of the quarter and the year. Our next publication date is Jan. 5, so anything that is turned into our office as of today through that date will not appear until next year.

Good luck to one and all on the upcoming finals and have a safe and enjoyable holiday season.

A funeral home is not a place to drink

The party scene is dead.

No, not the Statesboro/GSU/Bulloch County/Southeast Georgia scene. Well, sometimes it does border on comatose, but that is definitely another story.

The missing lampshade-wearing, stumbling around in inebriated obliviousness, frolic-till-you-drop party atmosphere is actually in a conservative Northwest Georgia town that has been listed in the nation's top 10 for places to retire — West Palm Beach won the "competition."

The town does have its pluses. It is a town of elegant artistry in how the colors are sprayed to and fro across the leaves. It is a town that ranks in the top 10 in the nation for tennis opportunities. It is a town that has two of practically every fast-food restaurant on the planet. But it is not a town in which to party.

It is Rome. Rome, a city of about 80,000, is encased in Floyd County, a county that ranks as the highest in the state for high school dropouts, and one of the highest in the number of teenage pregnancy.

One reason for these causalities of life is there is nothing to do, point blank — no party scene.

Please understand this is not just my opinion. Young and old

IN THE EDITOR'S OWN WORDS

know it is true, but for some reason this problem has yet to be corrected.

A symbol of the non-apparent party miraculously came into my vision while in my hometown — a term I would use rather lightly, but my birth certificate states I was born there.

Remember, I said Rome ranked high for retirees, so it obviously has a large number of funeral homes for well... you know. As a matter of fact, there are also a tremendous amount of doctors for all your ailments and three hospitals for a place to bed down.

One of the aforementioned funeral homes closed its doors a matter of months ago. The decision was then made to open a restaurant, an alcohol-serving restaurant called Churchill's. Does this sound a little strange to you or possibly is it just me?

I believe in symbols. I believe that I am the symbol of The George-Anne. I believe the President is the symbol of the United States. I believe Colonel Sanders, God rest his soul, was and still is the symbol of Kentucky Fried Chicken. I also believe a funeral home is the symbol of death.

What frame of mind does someone have to be in to make a building purchase like this? Does this person also sell ice cream cones to small children out of a hearse?

Please understand this would not be the first time an unusual location was used for other reasons. About three years ago, a vacated Seventh Day Adventist Church was transformed into a nudy bar. Sounds like this person had a lot of morals, huh?

I suppose having a funeral home as a place of alcohol consumption could work to the advantage of the law enforcement.

I can hear the bartender say, "If you continue to suck this tap dry and decide to drive, then you could end up in one of those caskets that was once here."

Drinking is presumably an additional boost to the party atmosphere, an enlightenment, an inspirational lift and a jubilant experience. I believe Romans, at least the younger crowd, have ulterior motives — they're just bored, plain and simple. Consuming a good drink, or a bad drink for that matter, is fine for those who wish to partake, but a funeral home is not the place.

Death and party should not run hand-in-hand. But seriously, how couldn't they in a structure that housed corpses for a time and is now a haven for blood alcohol content instead?

I still remember as a child going with my parents to the funeral home to pay respects to the deceased. I, on behalf of those who laid in peace and their families, am truly appalled and enraged by what has come to pass of this building.

The nightlife at Georgia Southern may be dry and within about three weeks it may even become stale, but it will never be dead.

Dead is a word that Rome has definitely given new meaning to.

Christmas is the season for remembering

It's almost that time of year again, my favorite time of year, Christmas. I start getting ready for Christmas right after Thanksgiving. The day after, in fact. Everyone knows that the day after Thanksgiving is the biggest, biggest shopping day of the year. It is also one of my favorites. I love Christmas. There are so many things to love about it.

I love to see all the decorations, especially the ones on people's houses. Lights are all over the houses, nativity scenes and Santa scenes are in front yards. Christmas trees are everywhere — in store windows, people's houses, even in the woods. The stores get so in to the decorations with fancy Christmas trees glittering with Christmas balls hanging on them, and angels on the top of trees. I love to see the nativity scenes in yards of homes and churches, this always brings a warm feeling to my heart.

Christmas songs are one of the best parts of Christmas. My favorite Christmas song is from Reba McEntire's Christmas CD. It's really a story, not a song. An old man named Conrad is preparing his cottage for a guest — the Lord. He gets everything ready for the Lord because he is so happy that he will get to see the Lord this Christmas. He hears a knock on his door and he runs to open the door. But it is only an old beggar with no shoes. So Conrad gives the man some shoes and he goes on his way. Conrad hears another knock and throws open the door, but it is only an old woman who wants something to eat. So he gives her something to eat and she goes on her way. Conrad then hears a child calling out who is lost. He opens the door and tells the child where he is and helps him find his way home. Well, the day has almost ended and Conrad realizes that the Lord is not coming. So he goes in to his room to pray and he asks the Lord why he did not come. But he did come, he told Conrad. He was the beggar, the woman and the lost child. The Lord knocked and Conrad let him in and each time he found the warmth of a friend. The Lord said to him that of all the gifts at Christmas time, love is the best and he was honored to be Conrad's guest.

Christmas is about love. It is a time to be with loved ones, to share with them. It is also a time of joy, sharing and happiness. It seems like Christmas is the only time where people can actually be nice to each other. It's sad when you think about it because we should always be nice to each other and love each other. We should not have to have a few weeks or days out of the year for this.

But these things are not the real meaning of Christmas. Christmas is about the birth of a tiny baby thousands of years ago. We celebrate that baby's, Jesus, birthday every year. This is the real meaning of Christmas. Sure everything else is nice, but this is the real reason we celebrate Christmas. This is what Christmas means to me—I know it means something different to everybody.

I often think back to that first Christmas and what it would have been like to be there when that wonderful birth happened. What it would have been like to see the King. Since that day, every Dec. 25, we celebrate this time, this miracle. Just as the Three Wise Men brought baby Jesus gifts, we give gifts to those we love. Love is one of the greatest gifts of Christmas. God sent us his son Jesus because he loved us, and though we did not know it, that birth was in a sense our Christmas present from God. Love is a part of Christmas just as gifts and everything else are.

This is the best thing of Christmas, not the material things, although these things are nice and still good to have. But the real reason of Christmas is Jesus and the love that he has for us. It is because of that birth that we celebrate Christmas. When you open your presents Christmas morning, think about that tiny baby born many those years ago and remember the love that he has for you, and try to pass that love on to someone else.

A Note to SEC Commissioner Roy Kramer and associates:

Get out of the Georgia Dome, while you still can. Make this weekend's SEC championship the only one played indoors.

Say thanks but no thanks to Atlanta. And if they ask you back, pull a Nancy Reagan and just say no.

And please stop using the NFL as an example of how to run a football game.

High school games have more excitement than the professional version, these days.

What I'm referring to is the SEC's attempt to make their conference championship game into some sort of southern-fried Super Bowl, right down to the domed stadium and a 200,000 square foot "interactive" theme park in the World Congress Center.

The park is called "SEC FanFare," and is basically a knockoff of the "NFL Experience," an attraction that preceded last January's Superbowl.

Only in this theme park, for $5, fans can "interact" with former SEC players and eat "real" southern food, among other things.

Fans of Alabama and Florida will probably appreciate an opportunity to sample some genuine southern cooking in the self-proclaimed capital of the south.

Imagine some 'Bama fan, back in Tuscaloosa next Monday morning, wondering why his wife can't fix grits the way they did it at that theme park up there in Atlanta.

But forget that a theme park dedicated to a football conference is strange enough and consider the Georgia Dome, that antiseptic, astroturfed monstrosity that the state of Georgia absolutely had to have because the weather is so bad.

Football wasn't meant to be played in the Georgia Dome (and football isn't played there, considering the team who calls it home) or anywhere else indoors.

That the pros have been getting away with it for years is exactly my point: sterile, domed stadiums are perfect for a sterile, dull game.

But college football wasn't meant to happen in a dome.

College football is an outdoor sport, which means playing the game outdoors. In the elements. On real grass.

There should be blood and mud and grass stained slobber. And if the wind blows hard and the rain falls in sheets, so much the better.

Heck, let it snow.

And it's sad and somewhat disconcerting that the SEC seems bent on turning a big game, a game that is of itself important and should prove to be exciting, into what the media is fond of calling an "event."

An "event" is something that usually isn't.

See tapes of Super Bowls I through XXVII or whatever if you need proof that over-hyped football games can literally bore you to sleep.

Also, "events" tend to cost more per ticket than does a football game.

This is because celebrities and other wealthy scum tend to pop up at "events."

By trying to turn the SEC championship into more than a game, the SEC risks having the game itself mean less than glitz and glamour that will inevitably surround it.

Dankulic overlooked for SoCon honor

By John Munford
Sports Editor

More than anything else she does, GSU volleyball's Alexis Dankulic leads by example. Arguably, she meant more to the Lady Eagles than any other player meant for any other team in the Southern Conference.

Consider her statistics on the season. She was first in the conference in both kills per game with 3.99 and digs per game with 4.15. She was also fifth in the conference in service aces and sixth in hitting percentage — not to mention that she now owns the conference career kill record and is tied for 19th on the NCAA career kills list with 2,029.

All this was not enough for the Southern Conference coaches who voted Appalachian State's Heidi McElhaney the conference player-of-the-year as announced at Saturday's volleyball awards banquet.

McElhaney, a senior outside hitter for ASU, finished second to Dankulic with 3.94 kills per game with and she edged Dankulic with a .302 hitting percentage, also good for second place in the conference. Defensively, McElhaney was ranked third on her team with 2.42 digs per game.

It also helped McElhaney that ASU finished the regular season with a perfect 14-0 conference record.

"I'm not disappointed because I won last year due to my offensive statistics alone," Dankulic said. "Her hitting percentage was better and that kind of award is given for a team's effort; a team that goes 14-0 like they did deserves a lot of credit."

GSU Head Volleyball Coach Dee Nichols said that although the conference overlooked Dankulic for the player-of-the-year honors, it still does not take away from her contributions to the Lady Eagles.

"Alexis is one of our biggest weapons both offensively and defensively," Nichols said. "She was one of our primary serve receivers and was tops in the conference in defense while still carrying quite a bit of our offensive load."

"Heidi, however, doesn't serve receive and she is practically hidden in their offense. Appalachian State is a great team and Heidi is a great player."

"We don't want to take away from her because everybody deserves a chance to be recognized."

In addition to leading the Southern Conference with 3.99 kills per game, Alexis Dankulic also led the circuit with 4.15 digs per game.

Senior offensive lineman looks to the future, stays positive

By Carolyn Wynn
Staff Writer

The season may be over but not without its memories: memories that this year's seniors will keep with them for a lifetime. However, all too often there are some who go without praise that deserve acknowledgment just as much as this season's stars.

One name that comes to mind is Jermaine Howard — referred to as "Maine Fresh" by his teammates. Howard is a Senior offensive lineman from Athens, Georgia. He transferred here in 1993 from Northeast Oklahoma A&M, a Junior College.

Unfortunately, GSU fans did not have much of an opportunity to get to know Howard as a player. Before the 1993 season Jermaine was involved in an auto accident that prevented him from playing majority of the season.

Then during the 1994 spring practice, Howard was struck by a car.

Although Howard has had less than an easy time in his time here at GSU, he has never given up. A fellow teammate describes Howard as "a man that has been through a lot, yet still finds some way to keep giving of himself."

This season Howard was moved to scout team, meaning that Jermaine may not get to play as much in the game, if at all.

"My game days were Tuesdays and Thursdays during scrimmages," Howard said with

That smile gives you the indication of both his spirit and his drive. Howard attributes his motivation to his strong upbringing with his mother and father.

"I don't believe in quitting," he said. "You have to deal with what you are dealt."

Howard has mixed emotions about the end of his collegiate football career.

Razorbacks complete disappointing season

The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK — Last year, Arkansas' football team ended the season headed in the right direction. The 1994 version finished up going the other way.

The Razorbacks were 5-5-1 in Danny Ford's first year, including 2-0-1 in November.

A 30-12 loss to Louisiana State University on Saturday ended a disappointing 4-7 season.

Ford called the loss to LSU a very poor performance.

"You only play 11, 12 football games a year if you're good enough," Ford said. "It looks like if football is important to you, you can play hard that many times in a year."

"We've gone downhill in the last three games and that was very disappointing," he said. "We have to re-evaluate some things."

"We have people who are trying but can't play in the SEC right now. As coaches, we can't coach in the SEC right now."

He said the coaches did a poor job of preparing the players for the season finale.

"We made enough mistakes in the first half to get beat," he said. "then LSU took it to us in the second half."

He mentioned Barry Lunney

Jr.'s underthrown pass when J.J. Meadors was open deep and the fact that an offensive lineman moved on fourth-and-one at the LSU 16. After the penalty, Lance Ellison's field goal attempt was blocked and the Tigers remained in front 9-6.

"If LSU was that much better than we are, we can accept being defeated like this," Ford said.

There were a couple of soap opera twists to Saturday's game.

There has been speculation that Joe Kines, Ford's assistant head coach and defensive coordinator, will be named Oklahoma State University head coach in the next week or so.

The speculation continued that Ford might hire Curley Hallman, fired two weeks ago as LSU coach, to replace Kines.

Pat Jones resigned as OSU head coach last week and Terry Don Phillips, a close friend of Kines, is the new athletic director at OSU.

Kines is 50 and his only experience as a head coach at the major college level was when he replaced Jack Crowe at Arkansas after the Razorbacks lost their season opener to The Citadel in 1992.

S.C. gets Bowl invitation

The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, S.C. — In their first bowl invitation since 1988, South Carolina's Gamecocks Saturday won a bid to the Carquest Bowl at Miami's Joe Robbie Stadium.

The Gamecocks (6-5, 4-4 in the SEC), with Brad Scott in his first year as head coach, had their first winning season since 1990.

"It was a little easier in the beginning than it was there towards the middle of the stretch but we finished it off in good fashion," said Scott, who as a coach at Florida State went to 11 bowl games.

"The real winners this night are our players, because they're the ones that got the job done," Scott said at a news conference at the South Carolina football stadium.

On Nov. 19, the Gamecocks beat Clemson 33-7 in the traditional statewide competition.

South Carolina is the fifth selection from the Southeastern Conference.

Carquest officials said the remaining selections had yet to be decided, but under consideration were West Virginia, Syracuse, Virginia Tech and Boston College.

The Gamecocks' opponent will be announced Monday.

The game will be played 1:30 p.m. on Jan. 2 at the 74,000-seat stadium. The Carquest Bowl, sponsored by Carquest Corp., with more than 2,900 stores nationwide, will be aired nationally on CBS.

Carquest spokesman Buddy Johnson said that besides the Gamecocks' record, the selection committee looked favorably on the active participation of fans and Scott's previous involvement with the bowl.

"Their football program is clearly on the rise," Johnson said.

Georgia native's poetry not outstanding

By Paige Haggard
Staff Writer

"How the Dead Bury the Dead" is a book of poetry by William Greenway, published by The University of Akron Press, Akron, Ohio.

Greenway, originally from Atlanta, is currently an English professor at Youngstown State University in Ohio. He was named Georgia Author of the Year for 1994.

The book is divided into three sections. The first is titled "Father Dreams." It is a section pre-occupied with his dead father, his mother, and other childhood memories. This section probably contains the best poems, but is somewhat inconsistent.

"The Place Names of Dreams" is the second section, and there is no apparent reason for this title or why certain poems are in this section. These poems deal more with the present than the poems of the first set, and are a little less erratic in quality, but more bland in exchange.

The last section, "How the Dead Bury the Dead," is the worst section. Not only did Greenway save the worst for last, he put the longest poems last as well. Most of these poems deal with his bad health and his senile mother.

Greenway has a very distinctive style. He uses very long, rambling sentences that are reminiscent of Faulkner. When Greenway is at his best, this style is wonderful; it swoops the reader up and carries him on a rush through the poem.

However, it's also very easy to get lost in his tangle of words. One line could go on for a whole stanza, and then the point of the sentence is lost.

Greenway draws inspiration from many literary sources, A.

E. Houseman, Faulkner, Whitman, and Shakespeare, to name a few. He apparently believes good poetry must refer to other great works because in most of his poems, he has at least one reference.

Sometimes, he takes a viewpoint similar to a character of another work. One poem from the "Father Dreams" series reads like Biff from "Death of a Salesman." Other times, Greenway rewrites an entire poem, a poetic equivalent of a cover-song. He does this trick with T. S. Eliot's "Magi" in "Magi."

Most of the poems are written in the confessional mode. This style makes the poems feel very personal, but the subjects sometimes get tedious.

Greenway does have a sense of humor, though it's often lost in his long sentences and large words. In "The Great Northern Possum," he laughs at the poetic process. When he's not caught up in being a poet, Greenway can be witty and even good. But this collection proves there's a thin line between poetry and pretentiousness.

JOSH BASS

Country characters Dean Dollar has Wednesday wrapped up at Legends. Not strangers to the area, they have a good sound and following.

Friday has two choices. The Labrea Stompers play Chena's and the Kinchofoonee Cowboys are at Legends.

The Stompers are more than fun. They should have some new material to add to their group of sure-things off the Funzo's Knuckle Room album. Hard-edged city red-neck jam is what these boys do.

It is rumored that this might be Kinchofoonee's last show even though their recording is doing pretty well. If Stetsons and rattle-snake skins get you hot, Legends is the place.

Chena's has a great band Saturday. The Ottoman Empire plays their own brand of charged pop. "One World, one love, one voice" is their motto and it seems clear in their Beatles revamping.

For those remaining for the break, the GSU Symphony is performing Dec. 12 at 8 p.m. in the ballroom.

Attention Students

The Food Service I.D. Office will be relocating to the Lakeside Cafe (in the Lakeside Copies area) over the break.

The office will be open for business in the new location beginning Tuesday, January 3, 1995.
