Decision on message boards remains unclear

Board of Regents pass down ruling, but GSU still needs clarification about legal matters

By Chris Sherwood
News Editor

Approval of the Board of Regents message board decision was announced to GSU officials last week. After the decision, GSU administrators requested clarification on sections of the report, which, in turn, has left no formal ruling explanation.

The proposed message boards were to be placed around campus and on Highway 301 and 67.

"The President consulted with the Athletic Director (David "Bucky" Wagner), Vice President Perk Robins and I, and we discussed it (the report)," Vice President for Business and Finance Richard Armstrong said. "We looked at the report and we identified more questions."

Armstrong said GSU has set up an appointment with the assistant attorney general for next week.

"We want them (the Board of Regents) to be very specific with what we can do," Armstrong said. "We've got to get more clarification on it, hopefully next Tuesday or Wednesday."

According to Armstrong, GSU is hoping they will be able to put the boards in place before the end of this quarter.

Other schools in the state like Georgia Tech and Armstrong State have had message boards already in place and operating for the last few years, but the Board of Regents is now looking into their boards too.

"We've learned this is a larger issue and that is larger than just Georgia Southern," Armstrong said. "The reason why this decision (in the GSU case) has taken so long is because this is now comprehensive (to include Georgia Tech and Armstrong State)."

The decision on the GSU message boards will impact what the next step is for the GSU administration.

"If approved, the signs will be put in the original location with the original sponsors on them," Armstrong said. "If the boards don't comply with the existing laws, then it will be critical that we know the interpretation (from the Board of Regents)."

Bridges crowned Ms. African-American

G-A Staff Reports

The NAACP crowned Shenica Bridges Ms. African-American 1995-96 on Friday at the sixth annual pageant on Friday at the Russell Union Ballroom.

Bridges said that she felt she won the contest in the question and answer session, where she answered the question: "What do you feel should be the number one priority for African Americans to move forward in a positive way for the future?"

She said, "I feel the number one priority for African Americans to move forward is to unite. We have the potential to be great in this country and in the world. We are a great people and when we come together there, there is an endless amount to what we can do."

After the contest was over, Bridges said that she wants to be a role model for African American women.

"I feel that African American women need to be a strong force in the school, and I plan to uplift my sisters and bring everyone together by doing community things for the benefit of the school."

Contestants competed in talent, evening wear, and question and answer events.

Other contestants included Valarie Brown, Tamara Collins, Latosha Davenport, Jackie Hull, Sharon Ross and Tracy Watson.

Drop in attendance at Union movies may force changes

By Chris Sherwood
News Editor

Because of a severe drop in attendance over the last four years at the $1 movies in the Russell Union Theater, Union administrators are looking into possible alternatives to the current movie schedule.

Union Director Earl Cashon said the contract is set for this quarter's movies, so there would not be any change with those.

When the union started showing movies in the fall of 1990, the average attendance was 300. This past fall, that average dropped to 73.

"We're struggling to find out what the student's want," Cashon said. "The students who are on the committees (that choose the movies) work hard to bring in really good acts."

Last year the Union lost money on the movies showed totaling $12,000 to $13,000. Cashon defined the term lost as the fact the university theater received seed money and then they were supposed to generate money on top of that. The theater brought in $12,000 to $13,000 less than expected.

According to Cashon, there has been a current trend among college campuses in the last four years, not just GSU, of lower movie attendance. He also said one of the main reasons for this drop was the growing popularity of renting movies, which has increased over that same time period.

"Last year we started looking at what we can do," Cashon said. "We can't get the better movies, like 'Forrest Gump' because it is hard to get the return on those (they cost roughly $800-$900)."

The Russell Union Theater can only get the second run movies, which means they can only get the movies when they are also released on video. Another problem in attempting to get the students back to campus to see the movies has been the College Cinemas movie theater which is located near campus.

"They're (College Cinemas) a professional movie theater and that allows them to get a head start on us because they can get the movies before us," Cashon said.

The Union has been able to have some sneak preview movies which they show for free, but that number has even dropped.

"We aren't in a big market like Athens (which is considered to be in the Atlanta metro market), and schools like Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia are able to show two or three sneak previews a quarter. We showed 'King George' and we only had 18 people show up for it, and it was free."

Movies shown in the Russell Union have declined in popularity over the past year.

James Hill

Alternatives

"As a union, when the students need a change, we need to do that," Cashon said. "Our job is to meet their needs."

Cashon goes to conferences every year in an attempt to communicate with other university union directors and get possible ideas which might work at GSU.

"I go, with my staff, to professional conferences where I'll take two or three questions and talk to other school union directors and see what they're doing at their campuses," Cashon said.

According to Cashon, on college campuses there is a cycle every three to five years.

"You have to be willing to try things different because students need change," Cashon said. "Something you tried four years ago might not have worked then, but it might work now. You have to be a lot more creative in trying to find new things until you get a good response."

The Union will conduct a student poll this spring in hopes of pinpointing what exactly students want to be offered.

"We're not appealing to off-campus students and we have to find a way to get the information to them (about upcoming movies) and we have to find a way to get them back to campus."

In the past, general surveys have been used to try to get input as to what kind of movies students want to be shown, and even though those movies have been brought in, attendance still has dropped.

Landlord accused

By Chris Sherwood
News Editor

A Statesboro man who rents houses and furniture to GSU students had his probation suspended until he completes a four to six week sex offender treatment program. He pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to charges of allegedly fondling a GSU student in his office.

Buford W. Knight was ordered by Bulloch County State Court Judge Robert Turner to enter the treatment program immediately or be incarcerated.

"He will go to the Behavioral Medicine Institute of Atlanta, which is known as the forerunner of sex offender programs in the country," Probation Officer Clyde Little said. "Hopefully this will help, it will be a five to six week program."

Nolo contendere by definition is a plea by the defendant in a criminal action that is substantially but not technically an admission of guilt and subjects the defendant to punishment but permits denial of the alleged facts in other proceedings.

The latest alleged incident involved a GSU student who claimed Knight fondled her in his office. He has been charged in similar incidents in the past including a plea of nolo contendere in November of 1993 to two counts of battery and one count of sexual battery in three separate cases.

Knight was sentenced to three years probation.

In that case, he was fined $1809, told to stay away from the victims in the case and that he must comply with the special conditions of the sex offender program of the Georgia Department of Corrections on Dec. 6 of last year.

"He will pay for the treatment program out of his own pocket," Little said. "The program is run by Dr. Gene Able and Associates."

MADD recognizes GSU officer's work

By Kim Wagner
Senior Staff Writer

Each year the Bulloch County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving recognizes three officers who have displayed dedication toward the fight against drunk drivers. This year an officer from GSU Public Safety, Genous "Gator" Hodges, was one of the recipients of the award.

"All of the officers fight against drunk drivers, but some officers take the fight a step further," said Jolene Forehand, president of the local chapter of MADD.

Officer Hodges is the first GSU officer to receive this award.

"This is the best thing to ever happen to me in my entire life," Hodges said.

"I stop accidents from happening and you don't get any thanks for what you do on the roads," he said. "It's nice to see that an organization like MADD has made us feel like the community and the people appreciate what we do."

Hodges attributes his relentless efforts for winning this award to 27 of his friends who were killed in a bus crash in Kentucky due to a driving under the influence accident.

"Since then I've had a real strong commitment to getting DUIs off the road," Hodges said. The award ceremony along with a candlelight vigil was held in Atlanta on Jan. 28.

"Hodges received this award because of the lengths he was willing to take to prove his cases," Forehand said. "He really views DUI as a serious crime."

Hodges was awarded with a certificate, a MADD jacket and the opportunity to be an honor guard in the state candlelight vigil.

"The candlelight vigil is a tear-jerking experience because people light a candle for someone they know who has died in a DUI accident," Hodges said.

High school model UN coming to GSU

By Jana Mobley
Staff Writer

Over 400 students from Georgia and South Carolina high schools act as delegates to the 24th annual High School Model United Nations Conference, held in the Union Feb. 9-11.

The students from each group will represent a country and address issues facing the UN, the General Assembly, and the Security Council for it, such as the global threat of nuclear weapons, human rights, international economic growth and global environment issues.

The students will be expected to participate in debating and writing resolutions for the issues concerning their country.

The model UN provides "a unique opportunity" for high school students to understand the "strengths and weaknesses" and "achievements and failures" of the organization, according to Zia Hashmi, who also directs the GSU Center for International Studies Program.

"I think that it is impressive to see how high school students use diplomatic skills to get their resolutions passed by different organs of the UN," Hashmi said.

Students will attend different sessions for the Security Council, Organization of American States, Organization of African Unity and the General Assembly to present their certain resolutions.

"Those who participate in our conference have always impressed me by the depth of their knowledge of International Affairs," Hashmi said.

The student's resolutions in each session will be screened by the GSU model UN students.

One student is picked out of each of the four groups for the accuracy and knowledge in his resolution, and will receive $100, compliments of the Statesboro Kwanis Club.

Out of the four students awarded, one will be picked to go with the GSU Model UN delegation to New York in April.

The High School Model UN, which is sponsored annually by the GSU political Science Department and by the GSU Model UN students is a very important learning experience for students interested in the UN, Hashmi said.

"I am more than ever convinced that the future of mankind depends very much on the United Nations. True, the UN institutions are imperfect, incomplete, and experimental, but we should not forget that they are necessary and indispensable steps along the road to the new international order which we need to save mankind from its total destruction."

Job fair to be held Thursday

By Melanie Weinberg
Staff Writer

For students looking for a job this summer, the 1995 Summer Job Fair is the place to be. The fair will be held from 10:30 a.m. - 2:00 pm at the Williams Center Dining Hall on Thursday.

The fair is sponsored by the GSU Department of Recreation and Leisure Services. Students will be able to talk with a recruiter about possible employment.

Over 30 companies will be available for students to obtain information and applications from, including summer camps, beach resorts and outdoor recreation centers.

According to Bill Becker, a professor in the department of recreation and leisure services, the job fair represents an excellent opportunity to get a summer job.

Employers are looking for skilled people to work in all types of areas.

For students interested in working at the beach, representatives from such places as Myrtle Beach and Hilton Head will be on hand.

For the outdoor lovers, the Georgia Department of Natural Resources, U.S. Forest Service in New York and other outdoor organizations will also be represented at the fair.

Internship opportunities are to be offered in the Cobb County Convention and Business Bureau, and the Greenleaf Rehabilitation Center in Valdosta.

The turnout of the fair is predicted to be good.

"Last year, between 400 and 500 students participated in the fair because of the interesting mix of organizations," Becker said.

In order for students to catch the employer of their choice, everyone is encouraged to arrive as early as possible.

Snowball becomes a family heirloom

The Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A souvenir from a rare snowfall 19 years ago has become a family's frozen asset.

When half an inch fell in San Jose in February 1976, 14-year-old Jeffrey Shamus thought it would be cool to save a snowball in the family freezer.

"I thought, 'Save it until tomorrow' or 'Save it until next week and throw it at somebody,'" said Shamus, now 33. "I certainly didn't think, 'Save it in a time capsule and open it in 20 years.'"

But that's what his mother Betty did, preserving the snowball in a peanut butter jar in the garage freezer.

"I kind of save things," Mrs. Shamus said.

She's also saved a snapshot taken that winter of a small snowman and Jeffrey's snowball. It's tucked in the freezer, too, among frozen fruit and cookie dough. The snowman is long gone.

Jeffrey now has children of his own. He takes more than cold comfort from his mother's plan to bequeath the jar to the next generation.

"I would probably take it and put it in my freezer," he said, "and then give it to my kids."

Pigeon droppings? Sure, you can sue

The Associated Press

MEDFORD, Ore. — An associate professor is suing Southern Oregon State College, claiming pigeon droppings on the building where she worked have made her sick.

The lawsuit seeks $100,000 and a new office for Jacqueline Switzer, chairwoman of the Political Science Department at the college in Ashland.

The lawsuit is the only one filed by any of the 25 people working in Taylor Hall since the pigeon droppings became a problem, said college spokesman Tony Boom.

Last year, the college started a cleanup effort after an industrial hygienist for SAIF Corp., the state's largest workers compensation insurer, reported the droppings could contaminate the air with bacteria.

The inspection was prompted by complaints that an unusual number of people working in Taylor Hall were getting sick.

Jerry Casby of the attorney general's office said he anticipated opposing the lawsuit.

Originally filed in Portland, the lawsuit will be transferred to Jackson County Circuit Court, Switzer's lawyer said.

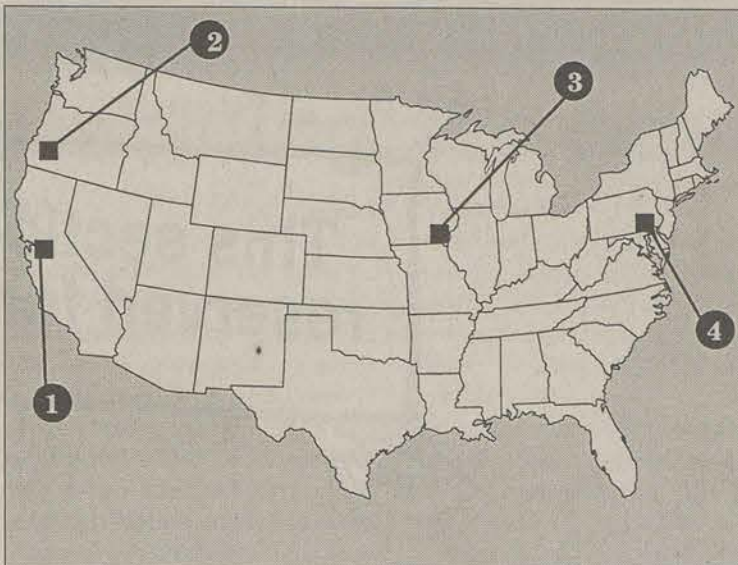

Switzer would not comment on her specific health problems. In 1993, the lawsuit said, the droppings caused her to develop a physical disability that compromised her ability to perform major life activities.

Man finds cremated woman in his U-Haul

The Associated Press

WEST BURLINGTON, Iowa — When Darren Woods hit a bump while driving a rented U-Haul, he was surprised when a box that didn't belong to him slid out from under the seat.

He was even more surprised at what was inside. The brown plastic box contained the ashes of a woman who died seven years ago.

"It had this shaking, gravelly sound to it, and so I turned it over and found out what it was," Woods said. "It's the last thing you'd expect to find in a U-Haul. A sweater, a sock, a tape maybe, but not this. It blew me away."

A certificate on the box showed 84-year-old Martha Northrop died of heart disease Dec. 21, 1987, and was cremated two days later in Chicago.

It wasn't clear how the box got into the U-Haul or how long it had been there.

Now it's sitting on a bookshelf in the West Burlington police chief's office, waiting for relatives to come pick it up.

Police Chief Gary Walters called Northrop's grandson, Leis Northrop of Macomb, Ill., on Jan. 16. He said he would pick up the remains in a few days but had not shown up as of Thursday.

The West Burlington U-Haul dealer had contacted the family but refused to mail the ashes to them.

Money stolen from a dead man's pockets

The Associated Press

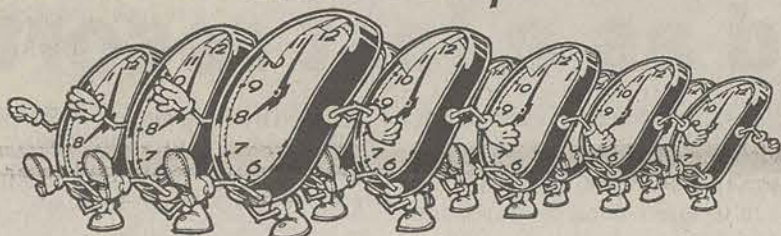

PHILADELPHIA — In the City of Brotherly Love, even dead men can get ripped off.

Robert Catson, 28, and Justin Flowers, 36, were arrested late Wednesday after rifling through the pockets of a man who had just committed suicide, police said.

At about 8:30 p.m., police responded to a call about a person screaming and discovered the body of Richard Montoro, 46, in the street. Montoro had jumped to his death from a second-floor fire escape, according to Officer Stephanie McNeil.

Officers saw the two men leaning over Montoro and removing credit cards and other items from his pockets, McNeil said. They were charged with theft, receiving stolen property and conspiracy.

Computer shot, neighbor hit

The Associated Press

OXFORD, Mich. — A self-described computer expert who wounded a neighbor after shooting his computer in frustration has waived his right to a preliminary examination.

James P. Tourville will be arraigned Feb. 17 in circuit court on a charge of reckless discharge of a firearm. He faces up to four years in prison.

Gordon McIntosh, the neighbor, is still being treated at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital after doctors removed a bullet from his brain.

On New Year's Eve, Tourville was upset because of rumors the auto plant where he worked would shut down, his van then broke down and a bathroom towel rack snapped off in his hands. Police say Tourville had been drinking beer and tequila when he shot his computer.

McIntosh and his wife had been at the Tourville's home earlier, and returned when Tourville's wife called and said Tourville was acting strangely. Oxford Police Chief Ronald Crichton said McIntosh was on the porch of Tourville's home when the shooting occurred.

Police said bullets ripped through the wall of the computer room, a wooden front door and a glass storm door six feet away.

"It's proof-positive gunpowder and alcohol don't mix," said

Crichton.

Our Opinion

Wake up GSU ... sports are still on our campus

The attendance at the GSU Lady Eagles-UTC Lady Mocs basketball game Saturday in Hanner Fieldhouse was 385. Hanner has the capacity to hold 5,224, which led 4,839 open seats. Our student enrollment is 14,138. It does not take a math major to realize the significant variance between these numbers.

One of the prominent reasons Georgia Southern College became Georgia Southern University is because of sports. College life should revolve around our educational courseload, but, if you look back to when our enrollment started making huge advancements, football was prominent.

In the 1989 Division I-AA championship game against Stephen F. Austin, Paulson Stadium sandwiched 25,725 people into its confines as Southern captured its third title with a 37-34 triumph. Yes, 25,725 was the largest count ever, but only an 43 percent average of that total attended home football games last season.

Does anyone really care about the lackluster attendance? The answer is a blatant no. There may be some, and it would be tiny, extremely tiny, who actually show interest in campus-oriented athletics. It could not be proven nor would we ever believe the entire student body spends their "free time" studying for classes instead of attending going to a GSU athletic contest.

Sports, let our publication remind you, entail more than the "big three" of football, basketball and baseball. Others do include softball, swimming, cross country, golf, tennis, soccer and volleyball and a host of club sports. Does any of these activities interest you? Apparently not.

It may be a foregone conclusion for The George-Anne to believe students will take heed to our urging, but maybe we can reach at least one person on this campus. If one student attends just one game due to these words, then we believe our provoking served some purpose.

Abortion: only used as a last resort

Dear Editor,

This letter is a response to the two "Pro-life" letters that appeared in the Jan. 31 edition of The George-Anne, mainly in response to the letter written by Jeremy Hazel.

Much of the logic used in his argument against abortion was faulty, uninformed and, in many ways, naive. First of all, it is extremely naive to believe that abortion is most women's preferred form of birth control. Granted abortion is defined as a form of birth control but a last resort would be a more accurate description.

Second, it is naive to believe that bringing yet another unwanted child into the world is always a positive alternative to abortion. To give birth to a child requires nine months of the mother's time and vast amounts of her energy, both physical and emotional. It is naive to assume all women have the mental, physical and financial capabilities that are required during the gestation period. If the mother keeps the child, there is the question of whether she is able and is qualified to take care of the child. If the father is unwilling to help with the care of the child, the child can become yet another statistic of a dysfunctional home.

Adoption is not always a solution either. There is still no guarantee that the adoptive parents will take proper care of the child or that there will even be adoptive parents. Again, there are psychological ramifications for the child that cannot be foreseen. Stating that all children should be brought into this world, wanted or not, whether or not they can be provided for, is irresponsible and selfish.

Hazel illustrates his ignorance of our founding fathers in his rallying cry of returning to "the fundamentals and morals" on which our nation was founded. Our country was not founded on "in God we trust," that line is merely a phrase on the nickel, not an integral part of the Constitution. The principles on which this country was founded are the principles of freedom of the individual. Nowhere in the Constitution is the fetus recognized as an individual.

Within the Constitution, we are guaranteed separation of church and state. What Hazel seems to want is a theocracy, not a democracy, which is what our country is. Our founding fathers were trying to create a country that encouraged individual freedoms, including freedom of religion and speech. All these freedoms mean we all have the freedom to make choices, a freedom Hazel seems to want to eliminate.

In addition, Hazel seems to be ignorant of the fact that many of our founding fathers were Deists. Deists believed in a "clock-work universe" and that the creator did not control every tiny aspect of life; this religion was highly intellectual and relied heavily upon the believers' logic and reason, unlike several of today's religions which rely on pat, black and white situations and solutions and on the emotional fervor of members. A return to Deist fundamentals would result in a far more liberal and rational atmosphere about the issue of abortion; certainly, this result is a positive one, but it would not be the one Hazel would hope for, since he seems to want to cloud the issue with religion and histrionics.

Finally, if Hazel wants to use the Bible as support for his argument, he must take a few things into consideration. Nowhere in the Bible does it state that the fetus is a separate, sentient being. If he follows the Bible so closely, then I suppose he believes in owning slaves, since the Bible protects the rights of slave owners. Also, he needs to consider that not everyone believes in his god or in his Bible. There are many more gods in this universe than his — Buddha, Vishnu, Allah, Jehovah and many, many more. There are even people who not believe in a higher being. Yet their views are just as viable in this country as are Hazel's views, since they have that choice of religion or non-religion. Each of us must deal with our actions and our conscience in our own way.

I support Hazel's right to believe that abortion is not an option for him (which is obvious since does not have a uterus), but when he starts trying to impose his ethics, his morals and his religion upon others, my support ceases.

As a side note, it is disconcerting to see that someone so close-minded and so ill-informed as Hazel is an education major, a potential teacher of our youth. I think that those traits will provide more of an insight as to why America is in decay than the issue of abortion will.

Abortion is still seen as a woman's issue

Dear Editor,

I would like to respond to the letter by Jeremy Hazel, published in your Jan. 31 edition. I suppose most of all, it is the highly controversial and emotional nature of abortion that causes people like Mr. Hazel to write such an article. And I respect the individual's right to express his opinion, to have an opinion different from mine. However, I would like to ask Mr. Hazel how well he has considered his arguments against abortion.

Without addressing the ludicrousness of the death sentence to abortion doctors and women who have had abortions (after all, if we are killing these people because they "kill" a "fully functionally, sentient human being," then are we not as guilty as they; when does the killing end — xenocide?), Mr. Hazel promotes that same, tired ideology that says our "founding fathers" were somehow the epitome of moral value. If we were to realign our moral character with that our founding fathers, where would we be exactly? I suppose we would be upholding the "superior morality" of enslaving an entire race (that is extra-marital sex, by the way), and having "illegitimate" children, who were not reared in a "traditional" family, roaming the countryside without a home.

We mythologize our past by giving the colonists names like "founding fathers" and bestowing on them some type of supremely altruistic, grand morality. We have turned them into national biblical heroes with examining what really happened. I wonder if he would like the country to move back to the deistic view of the cosmos, where God created but is now utterly removed from the working of human lives. Well, that's the superior morality to which he admonishes our return.

I also wonder if Mr. Hazel, as he sits upon his high throne of self-righteous morality, has ever encountered someone who has had an abortion, if he has seen the myriad numbers of children who were born to a mother unable to care for them. He encourages carrying the baby term, without a solution for the financing of the child before the hospital, during the delivery, and after. He proposes adoption, but has he ever witnessed the countless numbers who are in orphanages, the ones people do not want, the wants society seems not to want. Has he thought about how these children feel, ostracized in a nation that wants to value only the "tradition" family, the Cosbys, the Cleavers?

Aside from the fact that I personally do not like the idea of abortion, either as a means of birth control or for most any other reason, I still see this issue as a woman's issue, one she should decide on both personally and legislatively and one away from which men should keep their power hungry claws. I know it pains most men not to be able to be in control of everything, but we should try to exercise a little caution. After all, men, the supremely moral ones like Thomas Jefferson, reduced a nation to slavery. I would like to think that our morality has improved a good bit in the last two hundred years.

Don't waste time squabbling

Dear Editor,

During the last couple of years at Georgia Southern, I have observed an off-on debate among Christians about the topic of homosexuals. I write this letter in hopes to ending this debate, although I fear it is in vain. Both groups honestly think they are doing some good, but what they are actually doing is bringing down Christianity. This topic shouldn't be debated in the public, for any non-Christian will read it and decide that the Christians don't even know what they believe. Therefore, I will try to end this debate both with logic and the Bible.

To the Gay-bashers, I must say what you are doing is neither Christian nor Biblical. It is not your place, nor anyone's for that matter, to tell someone they are going to Hell. That position is reserved for God, and it is both foolish and wasteful for you to consider yourself worthy of doing His job for Him. If you want to convert someone and they don't want to hear what you have to say, do as Christ instructed the Disciples in Matthew 10:5-16. If they claim to be Christian, you should condemn them to Hell. We should be more worried about those who have not heard, but reject it. This is not to say they who reject God are lost to hell and aren't worth our trouble, but to say that they know how to find God if they want him once again.

To those who support the homosexuals, why do you write these letters? Do you need the acceptance of those who you don't agree with so much that you aren't trying to follow God's will. All of us, myself included, have much better things to do than write these letters that show us a Christians to be divided and uncertain of what we believe. As a Christian, you should know what the Bible has to say about homosexuals and sin. If you do not accept these words, fine. That is a decision between you and god. The rest of the Christian community can only point out that it is wrong to only select those versus of the Bible you like, and disregard the rest. At least most of you believe Christ's commandment to love your neighbor as yourself. It is good to love your neighbor, and there is nothing wrong with loving a sinner, for even God loves the sinner. What you and I must do is recognize the sin, and try to avoid it with all our strength. This does not mean condemn it, but merely to not accept it.

I can only hope by addressing you with both logic and scripture that you will let the matter rest. You and I as Christians have many great and wonderful things to accomplish before we enter the kingdom of Heaven. Let us not waste our limited time on earth squabbling over what we perceive as right, but do what we know is to follow the example of Christ. All else is, as Solomon said in Ecclesiastes, is futile.

Gays make the writer angry

Dear Editor,

As a student at Georgia Southern University, I was recently asked to write about an issue that makes me angry. I chose to write about how I believe being gay is wrong.

God put male and female on this earth; if he wanted us to be gay he would have put only male or only female. In today's society I do not understand why someone would want to be gay. First, gay couples do not have many rights, and they are not recognized by the government. Another reason is in today's society there is such a scare of getting the AIDS virus among gays.

The reasons gays make me angry are endless. I do not like all the rallies the gays put on to gain more rights. For example, in the Atlanta Journal there was an article about how not just in Cobb County have gays taken over the courthouse square, but also in the state of Colorado (July 29, 1994). There is also a conflict in Boston with the Veteran Group not letting gays march in their St. Patrick's Day Parade. The gays have taken the group to court and the ruling will be decided in April (USA Today, Jan. 18, 1995). I believe the gays have caused more problems for citizens who have done nothing to them.

Another reason gays make me angry is the public affection a gay couple shows for each other is absolutely uncalled for. Most straight couples do not show as much affection for each other like a gay couple does. I believe gay couples attract more attention than most things in Atlanta.

The solutions I see to fixing the gay problem is simple; no one should be gay. But in reality that would never come true. One realistic solution could be not to allow gays to show public affection for each other. Another would be not to allow gays to take over the towns' courthouses, and not allow the gays to destroy a city through a rally. One last solution could be to educate myself about gays and learn to respect them.

I have expressed my feelings on a recent issue in today's world that make me angry. I have explained the problems I have with gays and some solutions to those problems.

Johnson seemed to be confused

Dear Editor,

As a Christian, I was so offended by the article entitled "The clergy has created a smokescreen against homosexuality" by Weston Johnson. Johnson seems to be confused.

Johnson accused Pastor Kunkel of "placing conditions on the unconditional love guaranteed by Christ." The reverend did no such thing. He simply stated that "God hates adultery and fornication as much as homosexuality. However God does not hate the person." This means that God hates the sins that people commit, but he doesn't hate the people. God loves all of us, sinners as well as non-sinners; God loves the prostitute just as much as He loves the preacher. Is not this unconditional love?

But, he doesn't love our sins. Sin is the act of disobeying the will of God.

We all know the all-too-familiar sins such as lying, stealing, killing, adultery and fornication. We need not be reluctant to add homosexuality to the list because the Bible clearly states in the example of Sodom and Gomorrah that God doesn't approve of homosexuality; God destroyed the city because of the homosexuality of the men who lived there (Genesis 18:16-19:29). He was displeased with their lifestyle. Also, the Bible says that a man would "leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh." It is in God's will for man and woman to be together. Furthermore, Romans 1:24-28 describes homosexuality as being a "vile affection."

My advice to all homosexuals is to get with the program. There is only one way to pleasing God and that is the Bible. We must not distort the Word or change it to fit our lives, but we must alter our lifestyles so that we will measure up to God's standards.

We have no privacy at GSU

Dear Editor,

On Jan. 20, I received a very obscene letter from a student here at GSU. The four-page letter contained many obscene gestures, threats, and extremely terrible language.

I understand that sometimes in an ignorant person's life they have to do something like write nasty letters to justify their ignorance. However, I didn't mind the little letter as much as something else — what I did mind was what was printed at the top of the letter by my name. It was my social security number in big bold print.

Now I'm wondering when did it become so easy for any student to obtain another student's social security number and play with it as this person did with mine. Just because you work for the school and you're around computers all day with other students' information on it, does that give you the right to display and abuse a person's social security number?

So now, if you dislike someone and you want to know all of their personal business, you can just do a little work-study for the school, sit down at a computer, punch up a person's last name and "BAM" there's their whole life story. Well, I don't think it's fair and something will be done to this ignorant person who displayed mine. It was also odd to see the manner in which I received the letter. No envelope, no return address, just my name, Landrum box and social security number. The post office now has a new policy, no return address — no delivered mail. How was it that this letter got mailed? There were several slip ups like my social security number given out so freely and this obscene letter being put in my box.

My only purpose for writing to The George-Anne was to let everyone know that you have no privacy here at GSU, no set rules or policies that are followed. If we did I would not be writing this letter. To the individual that felt the need to sit down and type me a four-page letter and not leave your name, my advice to you is grow up, get a life and spend more time trying to find out how to get out of school and less time worrying about my SS# and how to send obscene letters. In less than two weeks, I will be 21-years-old and childish pranks are something I do not have time for.

Success in U is beneficial to GSU

Dear Editor,

I am a past participant of the Success in U Program. I believe everyone is entitled to their own opinions, but I am here to set the record straight.

To all of the Shannon Robinson's in the SIU program, I feel that you are seeing more of the faults than the benefits of the program.

Robinson mentioned that not all of the students in her SIU class were participants. This is true, but keep in mind that if enough SIU students don't register for the class, then it is opened to other GSU students. This is no one's fault, just a way of life.

Yes, computers were promised to be in every SIU residence hall. Unfortunately, this process took a while. But I want you to think about where this money would be coming from? This program does not have an entrance fee and it is not funded in any way by Georgia Southern University. So I think that you should be grateful for what you received. If you are holding the coordinator or the program accountable for this, are you going to hold Zach Henderson responsible for the technical problems that the library's computers have?

I miss my GSU 120 class. And I am sorry that you had a professor that babbled about something irrelevant. But don't you think that the professor should be held responsible for his actions, not the program. Yes, I know that I was not in your class, but all professors cannot be perfect. And I know that you learned something else besides how to successfully complete homework in that class.

The Success in U program helps freshman bridge the gap from high school to college. Ms. Robinson failed to mention that this program provides numerous educational/social hall programming and there are qualified math/English/history tutors that are frequently available. Another plus is that it provides fun field trips for its participants.

I am glad that Ms. Robinson is still in the program. I just wish that participants like her would stop complaining and THINK. Maybe next year you will see its benefits.

The real world is full of unfulfilled promises. Despite this, one should realize that it is about experiences that will prepare you for the future. And this is the essence of the program, not a "WASTE OF TIME."

Space for rent

I have a good idea for all those empty ballparks standing dormant for maybe another year; let's put them to use. Of course, I have some suggestions and here are a few.

I will start with our favorite "chop shop." Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium will make a lovely place to land helicopters. The South's largest heliport should be in the same city as its largest airport.

The Skydome in Toronto will be transformed into the world's largest retractable-roof food court, able to accommodate 75,000 hungry Canadians at a time.

The Astrodome in Houston will get rid of that silly astroturf and put new glass in the roof as it becomes an indoor tropical rain forest. Those who have been to Houston know it is the most humid city in the world.

The Kingdome will be sold to the GSU engineering department for training purposes. Since everyone else has tried to fix it we might as well give them a try.

The outfield fountains in Kaufman Stadium in Kansas City will be rented out to the U.S. Olympic kayak team. The steep angle will help the kayakers build arm strength.

Milwaukee-County Stadium will actually fill that beer mug with beer and then tap it. For GSU students who wish to attend the world's largest keg party, the buses leave at 10 a.m. on opening day. The buzz will last a lifetime.

Because Fenway Park in Boston needed a new paint job, it will house the Boston chapter of the painters and plasterers union.

Beloved Wrigley Field will replace the ivy on the walls with kudzu. My prediction is that the north side of Chicago will disappear within three weeks.

Angels' Stadium in Anaheim will be converted into a huge outdoor movie theater, which will show Gene Autry films 24-hours-a-day.

And while I'm on California, Dodger Stadium will be turned into the world largest illegal alien deportation center.

Shea Stadium in New York will be torn down and replaced with concourse F, LaGuardia airport.

Tiger Stadium will be converted into the world's largest outdoor pizzeria.

The owners of Busch Stadium will rip up the astroturf and turn the stadium into a circus by the river. The main attraction will be big horses with furry feet, normally seen pulling a beer wagon and Ed McMahon.

Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati will be the new home for the Marge Schott memorial petting zoo and smoking theater. Shows will consist of her dog "Schottzie" relieving herself on Bip Roberts.

Camden Yards in Baltimore and the new Park at Arlington will be left intact as symbols of the good things that baseball has provided.

When you are in one of these parks, or when you watch a game on TV, you get a sense of what baseball should be. Like the quote in Field of Dreams, "Baseball is a social institution, it is a game that has endured everything imaginable." Except maybe a strike by unfaithful players and money grubbing owners.

Lady Eagles hold off UTC

By Ronnie Swinford
Senior Staff Writer

With 16:46 left in the game, GSU led by over 30 points against UTC and all seemed good in the Lady Eagles' world. But the Lady Mocs went on a furious second half tear that fell just short as GSU held on for a 77-71 win.

The second half looked like a horror movie for the Lady Eagles. After leading by 17 at halftime, they quickly ran that up to 33 points. But from that point on GSU was outscored 46-22.

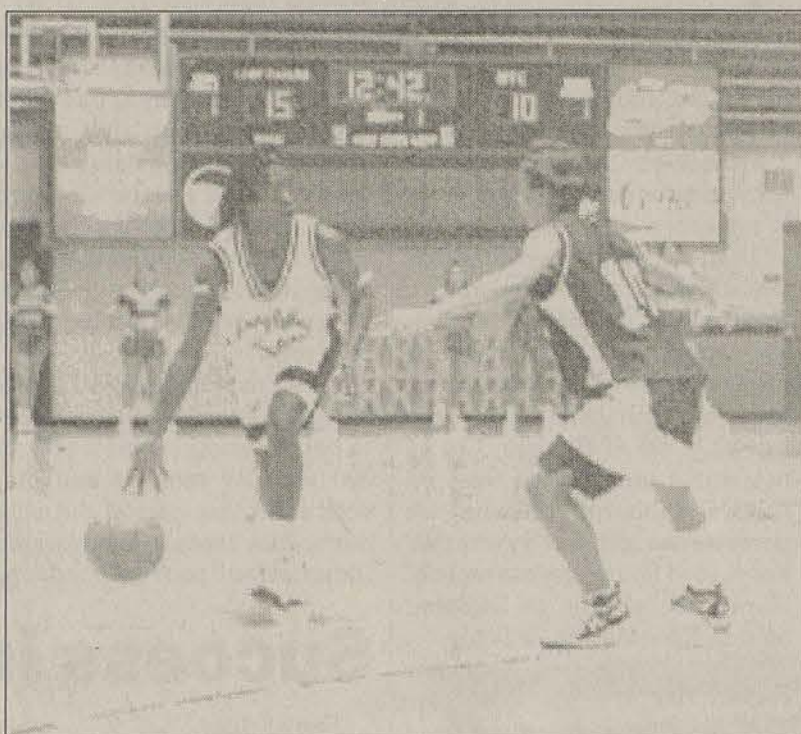

"It was a total lack of intensity," said head coach Drema Greer. "We just quit playing defense and no one stepped up to stop their run. When we play like that it is scary to watch."

The Eagles looked like they had ambushed the Mocs in the first half, as they played tough defense and controlled the game.

The Lady Eagles were also running the ball on the break well. "We played as well in the first half as we are able to play," said Greer. "That is what makes this game so disappointing."

The Mocs were led in scoring by Marnitta Ballard, who had 18 points. She also had six steals, five of which came in the second half.

GSU was led by Janice Johnson, who had 21 points and

Elizabeth Hayes

Janice Johnson, with ball, looks to drive to the basket against UTC Saturday afternoon. Johnson and teammates won 77-71.

four rebounds. Andrea Autrey had 15 points and five rebounds.

"We got outplayed in the second half, and if we had not had such a big lead at the half we would have lost the game," said Johnson.

"We only played half of a game today, and proved that we are pretty good for a half, but we have to do it for 40 minutes instead of just 20," Greer said.

•GSU's record is now 10-9 (6-2 in the Southern Conference).

•The Lady Eagles host nonconference opponent Mercer in Hanner Fieldhouse tonight. Gametime is 7:30 p.m.

Johnson, Autrey scoring big for GSU

By Jeff Whitten
Sports Editor

Seniors Janice Johnson and Andrea Autrey have become the 10th and 11th players in GSU history to score 1,000 career points for the Lady Eagles.

Johnson got her 1,000th point on Dec. 13, against Georgia State, while Autrey's came against the University of South Carolina Lady Gamecocks on Jan. 10.

Johnson now has 1,221 points in 102 games, which puts her eighth on GSU's all-time points list. Autrey has 1,127 points in 98 games, good enough for ninth place on the career list.

In addition to being eighth in career scoring, Johnson is also eighth in career free throw percentage (.720), ninth in career steals (130), and 13th in career rebounds (413).

Autrey is fourth in career field goal percentage (.576), 8th in career rebounds (590), and 10th in career steals (124).

Johnson set a season high scoring mark against the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga earlier this season, when she scored 26 points. Autrey's hit 28 twice, against Georgia State and Furman.

Johnson missed two games this season due to injuries, while Autrey did not play in five games for academic reasons.

Autrey has several individual highs for 1994-95:

- 12 free throw attempts
- eight offensive rebounds (twice)
- 12 defensive rebounds
- 17 total rebounds (twice)
- six steals

Johnson has the highest field goal percentage of the year. She went 10 for 14 for a .714 percentage in a Jan. 6 game against the Liberty Lady Flames.

Senior guard Tara Anderson is closest to Johnson and Autrey on the all-time scoring list. Anderson had 795 points prior to the Feb. 4 game against UTC.

She is second in GSU history in career 3-point field goals. The Austell native has made 105 three-pointers during her career as a Lady Eagle.

In the first 18 games of the season, Anderson hit 3-pointers at a .368 clip (35-95). She also has an opportunity to break the Lady Eagle single-season record for 3-point field goals. The old record is 47, and is held by Jill Dunn (1992-93), now a coach with South Carolina.

BASEBALL

Talented Eagles look to make 1995 a very good year

By D.A. Jones
Staff Writer

Discipline, hard-work and talent are three key components that make a winner. GSU has them all for the 1995 season.

Head Coach Jack Stallings returns for his 20th season, while 11 players, including seven starters, return from last year. While only two seniors return the team is stacked, with 21 underclassmen whose talent makes up for what they lack in experience.

But the Eagles have lost a lot of quality players from last year's team, including pitchers Clint Fair, who finished last year with eight wins, Tim Roth, who had nine wins and eight complete games, and Dave Masi, who had four saves. Also missing from last year's team are All-Southern Conference Selections second baseman Matt Wilson and third baseman Kevin Hallman. Hallman and Wilson combined for 33 extra base hits, 19 stolen bases and 60 RBI.

The team does, however, return four starting sophomores who are among the best in the conference. First baseman Tommy Peterman is back after slamming 12 homeruns and leading the '94 team in 12 offensive categories. Peterman was named 1994 Southern Conference Freshman-of-the-Year as well as Freshman All-America by "Baseball America".

According to Stallings, Peterman has a "good swing and is a hard worker but is coming off knee surgery." Stallings said the knee surgery hampered Peterman slightly in the fall, but shouldn't be a concern this spring.

Sophomore outfielders Brooks McFarland and Antoine Moran will return to right and center field, respectively. McFarland returns after starting 54 of 56 games during a freshman campaign in which he hit seven home runs. Moran returns after a freshman year in which injuries kept him out of action for almost half the season. He will add his exceptional speed to the offensive attack.

Shortstop Tyson Whitley is also coming off a good freshman season that saw him drive in 22 runs while hitting .267. Whitley should also add consistency at shortstop after playing 54 games there last season.

At second base, Jason Andrews has made the switch from the outfield and should be starting on opening day. Andrews hit .260 last season and drove in 20 runs.

Two question marks for the Eagles are third base and catcher. Senior Garth Spendiff, a reserve catcher on last year's squad, will see time at third base, as will junior college transfer John Howard. Behind the plate, junior Sy Jones is in a battle with junior college transfer Steve Wilson. Two freshman catchers, Michael Holder and Shane Marquis, are also in the hunt for the catching position.

In left field, last season's designated hitter Mark Hamlin will see most of the action after hitting .309 with seven home runs and 45 RBI, but freshman Kevin Killmet may also see action in the outfield.

Perhaps the most dynamic part of the 1995 Eagles is pitching. Led by senior William Rushing, 9-2 a year ago, and highly touted Clemson transfer Jeff Keppen, the Eagles have a solid one-two punch. Rushing was a 1994 All-Southern Conference selection after posting an earned run average of 3.04. Both Keppen and Rushing are among the players listed by "Baseball America" as players to watch in the Southern Conference.

A pair of sophomores, Julio Ayala and Jon Phillips, will add depth to the pitching staff. Rushing, Keppen, Ayala and Phillips, as well as freshman Ryan Cummings, have been drafted by major league teams but opted for college ball instead.

This kind of pitching prowess should make GSU a contender for the Southern Conference Championship.

"Pitching is an important part of the game. We have two sophomores and freshmen with a lot of talent," Coach Stallings said.

As for the competition for the Southern Conference title, Stallings believes that Western Carolina and The Citadel will give GSU a strong push. Stallings added that it only takes one good recruiting year to put a team back in contention.

In addition to the Eagles' Southern Conference rivals, they play non-conference games against some of the nation's best baseball schools, including Georgia Tech, Georgia, 17th-ranked Tennessee, and fourth-ranked Clemson.

The players appear upbeat about the start of the season and are looking forward to giving Coach Stallings his 11th consecutive winning season and 19th in 20 years. This is Stallings' 35th year as a collegiate head coach.

SOFTBALL

Softball is a sure sign of spring

By Ronnie Swinford
Senior Staff Writer

Next weekend GSU will crank up the softball season against perennial top-20 softball power Florida State in Statesboro.

This year's team does not have the familiar names of Heather Olejak, Melissa Williams, Carrie Collins, Julie Ciezkowski and Bill Spieth on it, like the past four teams have.

The new head coach is Kelley Kirkland, only the second coach the softball program has ever had. She replaces Spieth, who coached the team for 17 years. This is her first head coaching job, which seems appropriate since there are only six Lady Eagles returning from last year.

But the team has a few key starters returning. Second baseman Karen Petit, who led the team in hitting with a .324 average and also chipped in 15 RBIs and nine stolen bases, is back. Two-sport star Debbie Hensley will return in rightfield for her senior season. She had a .254 average with nine RBIs and 10 stolen bases. And outfielder

One returnee who will be relied on heavily is pitcher Vanessa Fawcett, who was second on the team last year with a 2.64 earned run average. She pitched 132.67 innings and had

"WE THINK THAT WITH THE GAMES BEING CLOSER TO CAMPUS WE WILL GET MORE STUDENT SUPPORT."

— KELLY KIRKLAND
HEAD SOFTBALL COACH

71 strikeouts.

Other returnees are outfielder Cara Taylor (.222), and third baseman/outfielder Robin McLaughlin (.167).

"We are going to rely on our defense this year, so our goal is to not allow more than four runs a game," Kirkland said. "Furman is usually the top team from our conference but this year they are young, so I see Marshall as the top conference team."

Petit said, "I see us being good on defense this year."

"I want to be the best hitter in the conference, and to stay strong for the whole season instead of falling off in the second half of the season," she said.

GSU will seek to improve on their second place finish in the conference. GSU was third in batting and second in pitching. They had four of the top-five base stealers in the Socon.

One improvement already in place this year is the home field. The Lady Eagles will play at the softball complex, which has been equipped with a temporary fence that will bring the field to NCAA regulation size.

"I like the new field, and there is a chance that we may get a chainlink fence during the season so that it will feel like a real field," Kirkland said. "We think that with the games being closer to campus we will get more student support."

The FSU doubleheader starts at noon on Feb. 11. Admission is free to students.

SWIMMING

GSU cruises to big win

By Jeff Whitten
Sports Editor

The GSU men's and women's swim teams whipped the College of Charleston handsly Saturday afternoon in a dual meet in Hanner Natatorium. The meet was the last of the regular season for the Eagles, who now prepare for the Southern States swimming championships, which begin Feb. 10th.

Head Swimming Coach Scott Farmer said the wins were big confidence builders for GSU swimmers.

"The College of Charleston beat our women earlier this year, so we were embarrassed and felt like we had a debt to pay," Farmer said. "We talked about it earlier this week and decided it was time for the girls to send a message."

The GSU women have won six consecutive Southern States championships, which Farmer said makes them the team to beat.

"Someone has to beat us, and the girls went out to erase any doubts about who they are," he said.

College of Charleston 159-82. The Lady Eagles got a winning performance from the 800-yard freestyle relay team, which set a GSU pool record with a time of 8:08.93 on Saturday.

The team consists of Kim Doughty, Christa Vandrie, Sherlonda Pitts and Karen Hurley.

Nicole Goodwyn won the women's 100- and 200-yard freestyle races.

The men's 131-84 win was their second against the Cougars this year.

And like their female counterparts, the men's 800-yard freestyle relay team posted a record-setting time against the College of Charleston. Team members Brian Selph, Crandall Ryles, Matt Duchette and Jason Baumstark swam the event in 7:22.03.

Jonas Bronk set a pool record in the men's 400-yard individual medley. Bronk swam a 4:20.36.

"The men's win was tremendous," Farmer said. "No one but this team can understand how big it is, beating College of Charleston twice in one year."

Stowers 'pleased' with class

By Ronnie Swinford
Senior Staff Writer

GSU signed 17 players and may sign another as the rush from national signing day ended. "Our main goal was to try and get skilled position players that had good speed," said Head Coach Tim Stowers.

The Eagles signed five running backs, four of which have 10.6 speed in the 100 meters. They were also able to get a 6-5 receiver.

GSU beefed up the offensive line with three signings, including a 300-pounder.

The Eagles added three defensive linemen. One was a "steal" from a SEC school, according to Stowers. GSU signed two linebackers, one of whom is a three-time junior weight lifting champion. GSU also picked up a defensive back who played quarterback in high school and passed for over 4,500 yards and 32 touchdowns in his career.

"I am pleased with our class," said Stowers. "We have room for one more player, and we are looking for a big defensive lineman, but so is everyone else."

1995 GSU Football Signees

Dedric Parham, wide receiver, 6'5", 195 lbs., Fairburn (Creekside): Team MVP, caught 44 passes for 844 yards. Returned two kickoffs for touchdowns. Runs 40-yard dash in 4.55 seconds.

Eugene Phillips, defensive lineman, 6'3", 220 lbs., Columbus (Columbus High): Led team to 9-3 record and AAA playoffs in 1994. An All-Region 3-AAA pick. Has earned letters in wrestling and track.

Zach Powell, running back, 5'9", 180 lbs., Tampa, Fla. (Jesuit): Team was 28-8 in Powell's career and won two district titles. Two-time honorable mention All-State. Rushed for over 1,200 yards and scored 16 touchdowns in 1994. Intercepted five passes as a junior.

Cody Robinson, linebacker, 6'1", 230 lbs., Concord, N.C. (Concord High): Led team to 10-2 record in 1994. Gained 530 yards and scored seven touchdowns on 125 carries as starting fullback. Had 102 tackles, two interceptions and four fumble recoveries as junior. Younger brother of GSU quarterback Kenny Robinson.

Josh Smithers, linebacker, 6'0", 210 lbs., Sarasota, Fla. (Cardinal Mooney): An All-Area and All-State selection in 1994. Credited with 137 tackles as senior, and rushed for 900 yards as fullback. Three-time Junior Olympic weightlifting champion. Mother held three national swimming records and competed in 1974 Pan American Games.

Jevon Sullivan, running back, 6'1", 180 lbs., Conyers (Heritage): Led team in rushing with 935 yards and 14 touchdowns in 1994. Voted team captain. Defending Region 8-AAAA champion in the 100- and 200-meter dashes—posted best times of 10.6 and 21.8 seconds.

Anthony Williams, defensive lineman, 6'1", 240 lbs., Camilla (Mitchell-Baker)/Itawamba CC: Two-time All-America at Itawamba CC. Second-team All-America in 1993, first-team in 1994. Played with GSU wide receiver Dexter Dawson in high school.

Mark Williams, offensive lineman, 6'1", 310 lbs., Albany (Westover): Three-time All-Region 1-AAA pick. Associated Press all-state and team MVP in 1994. Team captain. Helped school track team to 1994 state championship (shot put).

Kenneth Worob, punter, 5'11", 180 lbs., Gainesville, Fla. (Gainesville High): Honorable mention all-state in 1994. Two-time first-team all-district 7-AAAAA. Averaged 40.4 yards on 50 punts last season. Ninety percent of kickoffs went for touchbacks. A three-year varsity baseball and soccer letterman. Voted school's top athlete. GSU's first-ever special teams signee.

No finger-pointing at Duke, yet

The Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — There have been rare sightings lately of Mike Krzyzewski around the Duke University campus. For the rest of the basketball season, however, no one will be more visible than the man who is taking his place.

Pete Gaudet has gone from trusted and anonymous assistant to the man who has to answer question after question about his boss and the struggling Blue Devils.

To say Duke is struggling is as unfair as it is to say Gaudet faces a daunting challenge in replacing Krzyzewski even if it is only for the rest of the 1994-95 season.

Since Krzyzewski left the team on Jan. 6 to recuperate from September back surgery, the Blue Devils have managed to win just one of eight games and that victory was the only non-Atlantic Coast Conference game, at Notre Dame. The last two losses were by two points to top-five teams — 76-74 at Maryland and 102-100 in double overtime to North Carolina.

There have been four straight losses at Cameron Indoor Stadium, something that hasn't happened since 1976-77, the ancient days of Duke history before Krzyzewski arrived and turned the program into a Final Four regular and repeat national champion.

"Your Small Change Can Make A Big Change"

GSU's "Have A Heart" Day
Tuesday, February 14
10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.

GSU's "Have A Heart" Day will be held next Tuesday in downtown Statesboro.

The goal is to clean up, pick up, sweep up the downtown Statesboro area. This event is an opportunity for GSU students to show the citizens of Statesboro how much their support is appreciated.

Students may sign up to work in teams or individually.

One hour time slots will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. (People may sign up for more than one hour and/or more than one time slot during the day.)

Hot dogs and soft drinks will be provided by the City of Statesboro and Sea Island Bank for participating students.

This event is being sponsored by GSU along with the Main Street Development Office at Statesboro.

Keep in mind...
"Your small change can make a big change."

ADA helps disabled GSU students learn

By Maggee S. Bedient
Staff Writer

Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act states that "no otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States shall, solely by reason of handicap be excluded from the participation in, denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance. This was but a small step in achieving equality for Americans with disabilities.

It wasn't until July 26, 1990, that a bill was passed giving rights to disabled Americans that paralleled those given to minorities and women by the federal government. The bill is called the ADA or Americans with Disabilities Act. It is a combination of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and title V of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

According to John L. Wodatch in his article "ADA: What It Says," "the ADA generally uses the framework of titles II and VII of the Civil Rights act for coverage and enforcement of the terms, and the concepts of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act for what constitutes discrimination.

In 1990, when ADA became a law, places of employment, means of public transportation, state and local services, and universities were required to begin a transition process to make their facility 100 percent accessible to disabled people.

In order to do this each institution receiving financial assistance was required to appoint an disabilities and that all programs and activities be physically accessible in their entirety."

GSU's ADA center is run by Sue Williams, and is located in Hampton Hall. GSU offers a Voluntary Declaration of Disability form in admission packets. This form provides the staff at the ADA with information about disabled individuals and their advance registration for taped-textbook users, educational, career, and personal counseling. There is also referral for diagnostic testing, assistance in obtaining readers and taped text books, academic tutoring referral, financial aid and scholarship information, information and referral of off-campus resources, and equipment loan for academic use.

The special equipment is located in the Learning Resources center at Henderson Library as well as room 220 in the Southern Center for Continuing Education, room 114D Hollis Laboratory, English lab A at Newton, the ADA office, McCroan Auditorium, Foy Recital Hall, Russell Union Ballroom, and Biology Lecture Hall. Although the equipment is stored at various locations, all faculty may have access to it if it is needed in the classroom.

On May 2, GSU will sponsor the 2nd Annual Disability Awareness Day. There will be a demonstration of the canine companion program, and wheelchair basketball tournament, along with other events.

For more information contact Sue Williams at the ADA office.

WHEN ADA BECAME A LAW, PLACES OF EMPLOYMENT, STATE AND LOCAL SERVICES, AND UNIVERSITIES WERE REQUIRED TO BEGIN A TRANSITION PROCESS TO MAKE THEIR FACILITY 100 PERCENT ACCESSIBLE TO DISABLED PEOPLE.

ADA coordinator, to adopt a grievance procedure for handling discrimination complaints, to complete an institutional self-evaluation and transition plan, to provide for notification of the ADA law, and to submit an assurance of compliance form to the Office for Civil Rights.

In light of universities and colleges, these institutions were obligated to assure that "reasonable accommodation be made for students, faculty and staff with personal needs while attending GSU.

Students who later discover a disability (i.e. a learning or medical disability) are encouraged to come to the ADA office and find out about the services GSU can provide for them.

Services of the Office for Disabled Student Services include such things as admissions information and assistance, course registration information and assistance including guaranteed

OFF CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

Wesley House unveils new center for GSU community

By Tijuana Thomas
Staff Writer

The Wesley Foundation began building on its newly finished activity center during the summer of 1994.

The Wesley Foundation is a Methodist organization for college students.

"The Wesley House is a non-denominational center, but it is primarily Methodist," said Don Warren, the campus minister for the Wesley House.

The activity center, which seats 250 people, will be consecrated on Feb. 10.

"The consecration will begin at 7:30 p.m.," Warren said. "It will be a regular worship service and Bishop Looney from Macon will be speaking. All students and community are invited."

The Wesley House will also be celebrating its 20th anniversary. "Former campus ministers will be attending the consecration and anniversary festivities.

On Feb. 11, some of the alumni from The Wesley House's former singing ministries will be performing in the new activity center. This meeting will start at 5:30 p.m.

"THE WESLEY HOUSE IS A NON-DENOMINATIONAL CENTER, BUT IT IS PRIMARILY METHODIST."

— DON WARREN
CAMPUS MINISTER

On Feb. 12, the Wesley House will be presenting the last event of their weekend of celebration.

"Sunday at 7 p.m. we will be having 'Wesley Night'. Our singing ministries as well as our Youth Advance Team will be performing. This event as well as all of our weekend activities are for the whole community," he said.

The singing ministries will now be practicing in the activity center, and will also hold their "Faith Hour" in the activity center. These meetings take place every Wednesday night at 7:30.

"We will hold banquets, weddings and concerts as well as our singing ministries practices in the activity center," Warren said. "It will be open during the week and periodically on weekend or by appointment."

The activity center is also open to faculty and staff, and others members of the community.

ON CAMPUS

Professor hopes to bring foreign films to GSU

By Stacy Clemons
Staff Writer

The Cinema Arts Program began this quarter with the showing of "Harold and Maude."

Now, many people might be wondering what kind of movie this is?

John Humma calls this movie and others of this type, "classics".

"The Cinema Arts Program has been on the campus for about 12 years and it gives the students a chance to see films not showing at local theaters in 35mm format," Humma said.

Humma, who is the program's director, hopes that this year he and Assistant Director Tomasz Warchol, will be able to show three or four foreign films.

Humma, a Southern Illinois graduate, has been teaching at GSU for 25 years.

"Over the years, I've grown very interested in films such as these," Humma said.

Humma said the film that will get the most attention is "Jesus of Montreal," which will be shown later this month.

"This particular film has been shown twice before on campus and the students really liked it," Humma said. "It gained a lot of attendance probably because students had to view it for a class."

Cinema Arts are Tuesday nights in the Union at 7 p.m. the price is $2.

IN COMMUNITY

Community program wants to get college students involved

By Celeste Youmans
Staff Writer

The New Beginning for Children Incorporated is a community based program for child development. Many students at GSU are volunteering to help shape these young children's minds.

In spite of the frivolous, beer consuming reputation that some college students hold, Ada Cooper, founder and director of the program believes that college students want to get involved in their community.

"The college students today are more community service minded than I've ever seen in my life," Cooper said.

The New Beginning for Children Incorporated was formally called the Blitch Street Center. The program is open to any child from the ages of five to 15 years old.

Every day from 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., the center is open to children where they can receive assistance with their homework, and even special tutoring in troubled areas of academics.

The center is not considered a daycare center, but rather a place that gives academic enhancement and constructive activities to the children.

The program offers academic subjects each day ranging from math to language arts along with many other exciting activities.

Nearly 95 percent of the volunteers at the center are GSU students.

All one needs to become a volunteer is to have a love for children, and forty minutes a week.

"Everyone is so concerned about their own life, we have got to extend ourselves to others," she said. "Most of the students who volunteer are education majors with many creative ideas. It has not been long since the college students were at that age themselves, the students relate to the children very well."

In the past, Blitch Street had become a bad area.

Cooper saw this area fall down hill.

"It broke my heart," she said. "In this day and age we need community service more than ever because the schools and the churches can't do it all."

IN CLUBS

Scuba club now on GSU campus

By Stacy Clemons
Staff Writer

Did you know that GSU has a scuba diving club on campus? The Campus Recreation/Intramurals introduced the club sport last fall and it has gained little attention.

Mike Skibicki, the club's vice president, has been scuba diving for almost three years.

"I became interested in scuba diving when I was younger and growing up in Florida, made this a lot easier," Skibicki said.

One of the club's goals is to let the students of GSU know that scuba diving has made it on campus.

"A lot of our members are beginner scuba divers," said Oskar Lund, the club's secretary/treasurer.

"Members must be in good physical shape, as in other club sports, to participate," Lund said.

"We take all precautions to protect the divers, that is why the club promotes good diving habits along with protecting the environment," Skibicki said.

The new club sport was started by a couple of guys that thought this would be a good way to meet people that have diving in common.

"Students who are interested in water sports and simply having fun are welcomed to join, even if they have no experience in scuba diving," Skibicki said.

The club is planning several trips for the remaining of the year. Club members are close to confirming a trip to the Florida Keys.

"Our enrollment is approximately 10-12 members, but by the end of spring quarter, I hope the club's size will have doubled," Lund said.

"This club is open to anyone males, females, advanced divers and beginners," Lund said. "We hope the students of GSU will gain interest in the club and come out to see what it is all about."

For anyone interested in joining the club, meetings are scheduled for the first and third Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union.

Fraternity suspended following stabbing

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Georgia Tech's chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity is on suspension pending investigation of a hazing prank that marooned two pledges in Alabama, where one was stabbed during a confrontation with local teen-agers.

The 65-member chapter will be barred from recruiting pledges, participating in intramural athletics or using university facilities while the Inter-Fraternity Council investigates the incident, said Roger Wehrle, Tech's vice president for student services.

He called the suspension temporary but said it was in effect Monday.

Pledges Martin Dozier, 20, of Macon, and Matthew McClure, 19, of Columbus, told Heflin, Ala., police that they were taken from campus last Tuesday by SAE members and driven to rural Alabama where they were left to find their way back.

Heflin Police Chief Billy Hugh Lambert said four teen-agers in a car chased the pair to a gas station where one stabbed Dozier in the back with a filleting knife.

The teens, along with the adult who was driving the car, were arrested a short time later near Oxford. Joseph Craven, 35, was charged with complicity with first degree assault and released on $7,500 bond. The three 15-year-olds were being held in the Coosa Valley Juvenile Detention Center in Anniston, Ala., on Monday.

Dozier, admitted to the intensive care unit of an Anniston hospital last week, was released from the hospital Monday. He has refused to comment on what happened.

UNION

"Those surveys just haven't worked because they are too general," Cashon said. "We're going to ask the Marketing Department to help create a survey."

"We might bring in a Science-Fiction week where we would make it a happening as opposed to just a regular movie," Cashon said.

The Union will also offer special happenings for other programs other than the movies.

According to Cashon, when the Fettucini Brothers perform, there will be a pasta meal served along the event. He also said the interactive events, like the comedians, tend to get more attendance.

Other programs for students

Another area of interest which is trying to be improved is the concerts which come to campus through Union Productions.

"Our problem is with the venues because during the last three or four years the promoters have lost money," Cashon said. "Hanner Fieldhouse only seats 3,000 for a concert and that isn't a big attraction."

The use of Paulson Stadium for concerts has been approved according to Cashon.

"If we can pull it off (bringing in a concert) it may usher in a new era at GSU," Cashon said. "The thing about the concert business is you don't want to say anything (about the possibility of the tour) because they can cancel the tour at any time."

Carter again nominated for Nobel Prize

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Former President Jimmy Carter has been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize for at least the sixth time.

Carter was nominated by Irwin Abrams, a retired history professor at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio. Abrams, a Nobel Peace Prize scholar, has now nominated Carter four times for the Norwegian award.

Abrams said Wednesday that his nomination, which he faxed to the Nobel committee a week ago, highlighted Carter's peacemaking efforts last year in North Korea, Haiti and Bosnia.

The nominating deadline for the prize was Tuesday, and the winner will be announced in October.

cord.

In a New York Times Magazine article published Sunday,

"What if that's what really mattered most and it never came about? Well, what sort of dried up, shriveled up, frustrated old prune of a man would I be then?" he said.

Abrams said criticism of Carter as a seeker of glory "completely misses the religious conviction of the man, which drives him to this." He said he would put Carter in the category of Nobel winners including Albert Schweitzer, Mother Theresa and Martin Luther King Jr., whose message of peace was based in their spirituality, rather than politics.

Christian Coalition divided over flag issue

By Joan Kirchner
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — The Christian Coalition is steering clear of the volatile flag debate even though state lawmakers want the support of the powerful voice of the religious right.

"That is not one to get in a battle over right now," said Pat Gartland, state director for the Christian Coalition. "We just feel there are other more important issues right now with educating our young people and taxes and other issues."

In a news conference Friday to tout a white Republican minister's proposal to change the flag, Rep. Tyrone Brooks, D-Atlanta, called for the Christian Coalition to help goad lawmakers into supporting a flag change, even though tempers and racial tensions flare whenever the issue is raised.

"They are a powerful force," said Brooks, president of the Georgia Association of Black Elected Officials. "They certainly had an impact on the election positions and took issues out of context.

This session, the Christian Coalition is lobbying at the Capitol on many issues. But its membership is divided on the flag question, Gartland said.

because it divided lawmakers and angered voters.

Rep. Ron Crews, R-Tucker, the minister who offered a surprise bill this week to change the design of the flag, said churches must take the lead in the flag fight.

"I ask for pastors across our state to preach that it's time for racial division to cease," he said. "It is time for whites, for blacks, for Native Americans to repent of the bigotry that is in our hearts, of the tension that is in our hearts."

Rep. Eugene Tillman, D-Brunswick, a black minister, is a cosponsor of Crews' bill.

"These are clergy standing out and speaking out for changing the flag," Brooks said. "One black, one white. One from south Georgia, one from north Georgia."
