BRIEFLY...*Massey inaugurated as ninth Morehouse president

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Walter E. Massey, former director of the National Science Foundation, was inaugurated on Friday as the ninth president of his alma mater, Morehouse College.

Massey, 57, arrived on campus in August and took over with a hands-on management style that included working in the cafeteria serving line. That way he met many of the historically black men's college students face-to-face.

He left his job as provost of the University of California to replace Leroy Keith, who left under fire for the hefty compensation package he received. It included a $700,000 home in the plush Buckhead neighborhood of Atlanta.

Massey plans to build a president's house on the campus, which is in one of the city's black neighborhoods.

Born in Hattiesburg, Miss., Massey arrived at Morehouse without a complete high school education.

His "profound intellectual development" at Morehouse, he said, is symbolic of the college's "ability to recognize a young man's potential, rather than classify him by his background."

He graduated in 1958 and went on to receive his master's and doctoral degrees in physics from Washington University in St. Louis. His research has involved the study of quantum liquids and solids. His written work has addressed science and math education.

CLEC violates by-laws

By Joshua Edmonson
Staff Writer

and Christopher Cole
Editor

A campus committee in charge of more than $60,000 in GSU funds has violated student membership regulations under Faculty Senate by-laws for at least three SGA administrations.

The Campus Life Enrichment Committee, under the control of director Maria Racine-Cahill, has failed to include its mandated share of SGA-appointed members since the fall of 1994.

However, Cahill has refused to meet with student reporters and has also failed to return numerous telephone calls this quarter asking for comment.

All the student members of CLEC during the 1994-1995 academic year served in violation of a Jan. 27, 1994 amendment to the Faculty Senate by-laws.

The amendment, which altered Section 1D of Article IV of the by-laws, mandated that "the students are recommended by the executive director in consultation with the faculty members on the committee and appointed by the Student Government Association."

However, documents and correspondence since that time indicate that Cahill appointed the student members, and allowed them to serve, without consulting with student government.

These students, who served on CLEC during the administration of SGA President Ryan Traylor, were the only voting students on the committee. A list of SGA-appointed members was included as "alternate student members" with non-voting privileges.

Ruth Ann Rogers, executive assistant to the president, sent a memo to Cahill on Nov. 8, 1994, indicating the student members of CLEC who had been appointed by SGA. Racine responded to the memo on Dec. 1:

"Thank you for your memo concerning SGA appointed students on the CLEC committee. I appreciate the effort made; however, it was a surprise since I had already acquired an active committee this fall."

In the memo, Cahill said she would include the SGA members as alternates only "because additional help is appreciated."

"In the future, I will adhere to the by-laws and select the committee as Leslie [former CLEC director] did for the past eight years," Cahill wrote in the memo.

Cahill's violation of Faculty Senate by-laws continued into the administration of former SGA president Lee Hyer.

"At no time during spring quarter had we heard anything from CLEC," Hyer said last week. "We also heard during spring and fall quarter the students she had appointed to that committee had been subjected to no accountability to the student government."

Cahill wrote in a memo to the president's office on October 8, 1995, asking if SGA knew of any students who might be interested in joining CLEC and to contact her if so.

According to Faculty Senate by-laws, CLEC is required to operate in conjunction with the student government.

"Mrs. Cahill had total rein and full control over who sat on her committee, and with $60,000 at stake, that's not the way to handle it," SGA President John Walraven said.

A meeting took place in November of 1995 between former president Hyer, Racine-Cahill, Ruth Ann Rogers, executive

Police search for suspects in fire at Kappa Alpha house

By Erika Anderson and Lara Schermock
Staff Writers

GSU police are still investigating a suspected arson attempt that started a blaze in the laundry room of the Kappa Alpha fraternity house early Thursday morning, Captain Buddy Peaster said.

The 16 residents of the fraternity house were awakened by fire alarms at 2:51 a.m. and were able to extinguish the blaze, which began when an unknown object was tossed into the laundry room, igniting a basket of clothes.

"We're not sure exactly what it was," Peaster said. "It was actually a little larger than a flare, so it may have been a stink bomb or something similar to it."

Peaster also said he believes that the fire was a result of a prank, possibly by another fraternity or someone who "was just upset or had been drinking."

"Right now we're talking to the different fraternities and sororities, trying to find possible suspects," he said. "The state fire marshal's office has offered a reward for information regarding the person responsible."

The person or persons responsible, Peaster said, will more than likely get more than a "simple charge of fireworks," and will have to pay for the damage after going through judicial affairs.

The fire caused smoke and heat damage in one room. The cost of the damage is still undetermined.

"As of yet, there is not a firm estimate of the damage," Peaster said.

KA has been a subject of controversy in the past because of its Old South reputation. Hal Fulmer, faculty advisor to the fraternity since 1989, said the fraternity's controversial traditions, such as flying the Confederate flag at the football games and the Old South march, in which KA members dressed as Confederate soldiers, have ceased.

He also said the idea that the arson attempt was racially motivated does not hold much weight.

"I would be greatly surprised if it had racial tones," Fulmer said.

Peaster also said he didn't think the blaze had any racial undertones.

"I really think it was derived from a prank and there is

Henry nominated for position in Idaho

Although the president is considering the Idaho position, he said that leaving GSU would be "very difficult."

By Meredith Whitt
Staff Writer

GSU President Nicholas Henry is considering the invitation he received in late January to interview for a job at the University of Idaho in Moscow.

Henry was notified by letter that he had been nominated for the position of president of the university and the interviewing process will begin hopefully by mid-March, said Sharon Fell, GSU public relations director.

"This is very common in higher education circles. He's been here for nine years and he has outstanding academic credentials that make him attractive to other schools," Fell said.

The position at the University of Idaho has been open since Elisabeth Zinser left to become chancellor of the University of Kentucky at Lexington last summer.

In April 1994, Henry was nominated to head the Connecticut State University System, but withdrew his candidacy less than two weeks before officials were to make their decision.

Henry said Monday he is considering the job in Idaho, but that it would "be very difficult for me to leave GSU."

Some of the candidates for the job include:

• A. Larry Brannen, a professor in the department of food science and toxicology at the University of Idaho, and a former College of Agriculture dean at the school.

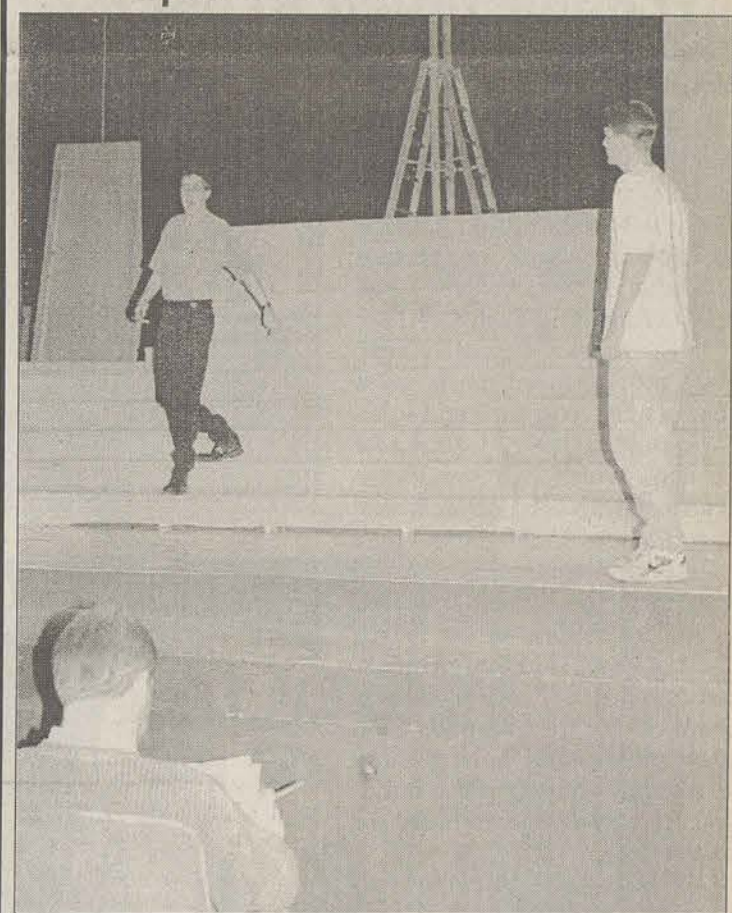

• J. Kirk Sullivan, vice president for governmental and environmental affairs at Boise Cascade Corp.

• Robert A. Hoover, vice president for academic affairs and political science professor at the University of Nevada, Reno.

• Scott G. McNall, provost and vice president for academic affairs at California State University, Chico.

• M. Roy Schwarz, group vice president for professional standards for the American Medical Association in Chicago.

Thompson crowned Miss GSU, to compete in Miss Georgia

By Meredith Whitt
Staff Writer

Jana Thompson was crowned Miss GSU Saturday night in the Union Ballroom.

Thompson has been performing in pageants since she was 11 years old, beginning with the Jr. Miss Sweet Onion pageant in her native Glennville, Ga.

Thompson's pageant coach, Natalie Hendrix, was the one who first got her into the Miss America pageant system with the Miss Southeast competition in 1993, Thompson said.

"One of greatest advantages that the Miss America pageant offers is the chance to go around and promote nutritional awareness and physical fitness for youth at various civic organizations," Thompson said.

Thompson, a health and fitness promotion major, said she started the Health Matters program, which is aimed mostly to fourth through sixth graders. She said she hopes the program will get them excited about health and exercise.

In June, Thompson will represent GSU in the Miss Georgia

Pageant in Columbus. The winner from that contest will go on to compete in the Miss America Pageant.

Thompson received a $1000 grant-in-aid as well as a one-month membership to South Georgia Fitness and a gift certificate to Buffalo's and Western Sizzlin'.

Members of the queen's court are fourth runner-up Hazel Smith, who won the preliminary talent competition, third runner-up LeighAnne Collins, who won the preliminary bathing suit competition, second runner-up Christy Clark and first runner-up Meredith Moser.

The Miss Congeniality award, which is voted upon by all of the 13 contestants, went to Laura Kinney.

In addition to being judged on talent, evening wear and bathing suit, the contestants were required to have personal interviews with the judges prior to the show.

Art department to get new ceramic and sculpture studios

By Kim Wagner
Staff Writer

After 14 years of working to remove the sculpture and ceramic studios from the fourth floor of the Foy Building, plans are now underway for the construction of new studios by the ROTC Rapelling Tower.

The studios currently have heavy equipment such as a foundry for sculpture and kilns for ceramics that cause the roof to leak, which can sometimes lead to the cancellation of classes.

"Richard Tichich, the chair of the art department, started working to get the ceramic and sculpture studios off the fourth floor of Foy," said Jane Hudak, acting chair of the art department. "Over the years it's been very problematic having these two studios on top of the building, and we are so cramped for space."

The art department was allocated $1.6 million by the Board of Regents, but presently it will be funded $900,000.

Since the whole allocation will not be funded at this time the project will be divided into two phases.

"It's a bit of a missed blessing. We're very happy but we wish the Board of Regents would have funded the whole project," Hudak said. "However, we do have enough money for phase one."

This past January, the preliminary designs by a contracted architectural firm in Atlanta were approved, and initial construction is expected to begin this summer, Hudak said.

"This will take about two months and then the design documents will be put out for bids," said Philip Hodge, director of facilities planning. "If everything goes smoothly we're hoping to have the construction completed by next spring '97."

During the construction of the studios, a conscious effort will be made to try to save as many trees as possible in order to maintain the area, Hudak said.

The construction of the facility serves a double purpose, Hodge said.

"With the removal of the studios we can reroof the Foy Building, preventing any leaks."

"The new facility will be nice, but after phase one is completed I know we'll be anxious to get the funding and begin phase two," he said.

Rescue party finds two men waving

The Associated Press

DEMING — Call it the rescue mission that wasn't.

A pilot reported last Tuesday that two men appeared to be stranded in an isolated canyon in the Florida Mountains, said Capt. Don Daniels of the Luna County Sheriff's Department.

The department, with help from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Border Patrol, launched a mission into the area that is accessible only with four-wheel-drive vehicles, he said.

The search party found the two men several hours later, only to discover that what the pilot had thought were distress signals were waves of greeting, Daniels said.

Wal-Mart settles suit with snake-bitten man

The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — A man bitten by a rattlesnake in a Wal-

Mart store was awarded $6,000 by a jury following a two-day civil trial.

Frank Agee was bitten on his right hand March 15, 1994, as he was reaching for an automotive air filter to buy at a Wal-Mart store in Pleasanton, about 30 miles south of San Antonio.

Agee, 40, was treated overnight at a hospital.

The snake was about 18 to 24 inches long, police said.

Agee's lawsuit, which jurors decided on last Wednesday in U.S. District Court, contended that Wal-Mart was negligent in not keeping the store free of snakes.

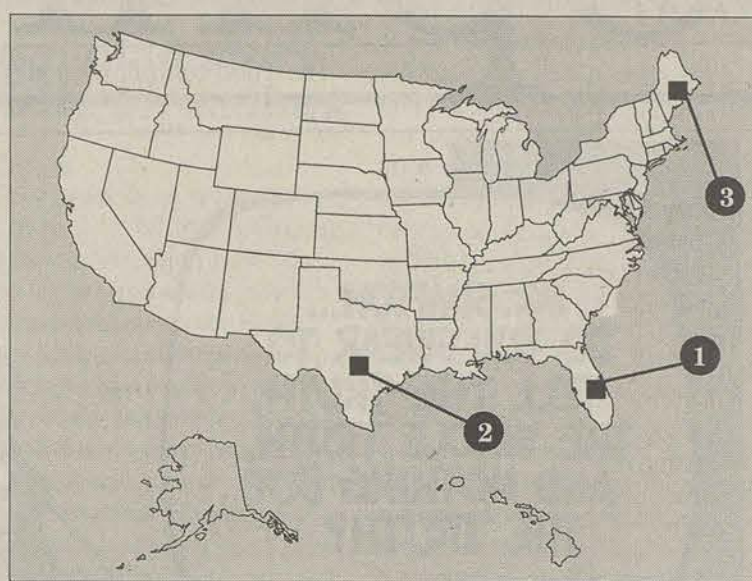

Testimony showed that a rattlesnake also struck at an employee, who avoided getting bitten.

Agee's lawyer, Beth Janicek, had sought $25,000 for him.

Wal-Mart attorney Robert Neblett said testimony about other "very minor" snake problems at the store was just "hearsay."

Wal-Mart maintains it was not negligent.

"We certainly think it's important to keep our premises safe for our customers, and we think that we do keep them safe," he said.

3 Maine
University sets record for mass smooch

The Associated Press

ORONO — More than 2,000 people crowded into the University of Maine's Alford Arena for a 10-second smooch that set a world record Valentine's Day.

In all, 2,840 people puckered up — exceeding the old record of 2,000 people kissing at Oregon State University in 1990, said Joe Carr, a UMaine spokesman.

The mood was festive as the band played and kissers did the "wave." At 10 p.m., the music stopped and participants began smooching as the clock counted down 10 seconds.

When the buzzer sounded, the 1,420 couples had kissed their way into the Guinness Book of World Records.

Participants included President Frederick Hutchinson and his wife, Dione. The 2,001st person to enter was an 11-year-old boy who kissed his mom on the cheek, Carr said.

Labeled "A Kiss to Remember," the event raised money for the Eastern Maine AIDS Network and The American Heart Association.

TV reporter receives proposal on the air

By Angie Bluethman
The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — An Oklahoma City television reporter known for her strong personality and composure was caught a bit off guard this Valentine's Day when her boyfriend proposed to her on camera.

Janet St. James was in northeast Oklahoma City reporting on last minute flower sales Wednesday during KOCO-TV's 5 p.m. newscast. She was told by the station that a limousine would pull up in the parking lot of New Leaf Floral and she was to open the door. The man inside was supposed to be buying flowers, making a perfect source for her story.

But instead, her boyfriend, Jack Bradshaw, emerged from the limousine.

Ms. St. James was speechless. And KOCO's executive producer said that was a first.

"This is probably the one time in her life Janet has literally been speechless. It was unbelievable," Barry Brawley said.

He said Bradshaw told Ms. St. James to let him do the talking this time and told her how special she was to him. Bradshaw, a publisher from Dallas, then bent down on one knee, presented an engagement ring and asked Ms. St. James to be his wife.

She accepted and the engaged couple left in the limousine as employees of the floral shop and onlookers watched.

Brawley said Bradshaw had called the station several weeks ago and told reporters about his idea.

The entire staff was told Wednesday and Ms. St. James' colleagues worked on the arrangements.

Brawley said it was lucky that everyone was able to keep a secret.

"She had absolutely no idea at all. We had the entire newsroom in on the deal. Everybody knew," he said.

He said Ms. St. James returned to the station Wednesday night, but still could not explain or give an idea of what she was feeling.

Doll mistaken for mutilated fetus

The Associated Press

STAMFORD, Conn. — An apparent tragedy became a comedy of errors when a tiny mutilated body sent to a medical lab for an autopsy turned out to be a baby doll.

The doll was discovered on a catch basin grate along the side of the road. Police found it covered with sand and gravel and with a severed arm.

Assistant Medical Examiner Henry Minot was called to the scene, where he pronounced the doll dead and sent it to the state Office of the Chief Medical Examiner for an autopsy.

"This was obviously something that had been at the side of the road through a snowstorm ... and it looked enough like a fetus so that we thought it was —

"THIS THING IS NOT
LIKE A CABBAGE PATCH DOLL."

— DR. WAYNE CARVER

both (the police) and I did," Minot said.

Deputy Police Chief John Perrotta said the doll was about 10 or 11 inches long and in a fetal position.

"It wasn't like it had yellow hair ... and a belly button that squeaks when he saw it. It looked like a fetus," Perrotta said.

The state's chief medical examiner, Dr. Wayne Carver, said the doll is made out of silicon rubber and was made to resemble an anatomically correct fetus.

"This thing is not like a Cabbage Patch Doll," he said. "It's not a doll you would buy for kids. This is for teaching about pregnancy."

Carver said he does not consider Minot's action a mistake.

"I'd much rather he did this than call it a mannequin and be wrong," Carver said.

Nebraska cow delivers rare triplets

By Colleen O'Neill
The Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Neb. — At first Rod Meyer thought his 7-year-old black white-face cow might be giving birth to twins.

"(But) they checked again and then there were three," he said.

It was at Meyer's farm north of St. Paul, where his cow recently gave birth to a set of triplets.

"We were very surprised. I joked that after the first one, I'll bet there's a second one," said Dr. Dan Nielsen, a veterinarian with the St. Paul Veterinary clinic who supervised the births of one male and two females.

And after the third?

"It was very much of a surprise, very much," Nielsen said.

Nielsen has never seen triplets in his 13 years as a veterinarian. Neither has Dr. Lyle Rasmussen, who has doctored animals for more than 30 years. They, along with associate veterinarian Dr. Kris Fogarty-Fairbanks, witnessed the births at the St. Paul clinic. So did Meyer and his 15-year-old son, Jeremy.

Labor went smoothly, Nielsen said.

He explained that sometimes when a cow gives birth to twins, one comes out front legs first and the other with its back legs first, both at the same time.

"If there's one calf coming at a time, it's not a problem any more than anything else," he said. "It appeared like they were all in their own little sack."

Although no statistics are kept, the feat is extremely rare in the cattle industry said Tom Drudik, a Hall County Extension agent.

At the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Meat Animal Research Center located in Clay Center, a study was done in cattle herds selected specifically for multiple births. Out of 4,377 cattle bearing calves, only 0.6 percent had triplets, Drudik said.

Even with the frigid weather, there appears to be no complications with the three calves, which weighed about 50 pounds each at birth.

Nielsen said one newborn calf normally tips the scale at about 80 pounds.

"It hurts them or any newborn calf, of course," Nielsen said. "It's pretty tough on them."

Our Opinion

Use police escorts on campus

Many students at GSU neglect to utilize a service provided through their campus police force. The University Police offer an escort service for students so they don't have to walk home alone at night. These officers are at key locations every night making themselves available for students to use so they won't have to walk home alone.

But not enough students use them.

Instead many students, especially young women, walk home alone on campus in the middle of the night. Yet some complain that they feel unsafe on campus. These officers can provide a valuable service, but not enough people seem to use it. Why?

Is this service just a waste of money? If not enough people will use the service, the University Police will do away with it. They will not continue to provide money for a service that no one will use. They aren't going to waste money.

Maybe people don't use it because they feel they can defend themselves if they were attacked.

Some people might feel uncomfortable walking home with someone they don't know. But this seems better than being attacked by someone while walking home from the library at 1 a.m.

Most of the people that utilize this service are women. Many guys believe they will be safe walking and don't need an escort.

Last month, a man was assaulted and robbed while walking on campus with his friends. The man and his friends were attacked from behind and one of the men had a large amount of money stolen.

This might have been prevented if they had utilized this service.

The service is there for the students to offer them protection and to prevent incidents like this from happening. But people don't realize what a valuable resource this can be. It seems that it would be safer to have a police officer walk you back to your dorm than to constantly be worried about someone coming up behind you and attacking you.

It makes sense — so protect yourself next time.

V-chip helps parents protect their children

JUSTIN MILLER

COLUMNIST

Congress just passed a bill making it mandatory for all television manufacturers to start installing the "V-chip" in all new television sets. Many are applauding this regulatory action while others claim it is a form of censorship. You decide.

Freedom of speech. This phrase has caused more problems than our founding fathers ever could've imagined. We, the people, use it and abuse it all the time (especially those of us in the press). Well, as we move into the twenty-first century it is fighting yet another battle.

The biggest gray area, and the source of many debates and problems, is the concept of censorship. From flag-burning to prayer in school, it has come up, and, depending on who is sitting on our Supreme Court, different decisions on what is acceptable and what is not have been made, often times overturning precedents set by previous Supreme Court rulings.

Unfortunately for us, this obviously indicates that the idea of truth is too limiting for a democratic society.

The age of computers is in full tilt. AT&T promises that in the future our driving, banking, and medical records will be kept in a hand held card, our board room meetings will take place on the beach, and that we'll be able to renew our licenses (complete with a new picture) from our ATM machine. The Internet and World Wide Web is growing exponentially daily and we now have direct TV. It's no wonder that sooner or later regulations would come up, and then soon after, the idea of censorship.

The television has been a source of joy for some, worry for others, and a scapegoat to our country's poor level of competitive education on a global scale. For many, sadly, it is the center of their life. Soaps, talk-shows, sports, movies, news, it's all what is considered to be the moral decay of our society. When it comes to our youth, the only solution I've heard that is decent is to get parents involved in parenting. It is the parents' job to raise their kids, this includes teaching them right from wrong and coming up with ways to deter their behavior (can we say, have all the power they can to help raise their children, and it's about time our government, including the courts, gave them some backing. What person truly believes that a child (someone under the age of eighteen) should have the same rights as an adult (someone over the age of eighteen)?

No rational person would. Our courts have made this extremely clear in case after case. Only in extreme cases of physical abuse (having your mouth washed out with soap or getting spanked does NOT count) or mental abuse (this does not include being grounded for not cleaning up your room) should a parent's right to discipline their child be taken away. The "V-chip" is not an extreme case of either.

I'm not a fundamentalist nor am I a liberal. What I am is an American citizen who believes in "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." The "V-chip" helps parents teach and train their children. There are precious few parents who take this job seriously so why not give them all the help we legally can?

And I applaud the Fox Television Network for stepping in line and coming up with a rating system for their TV shows. Hopefully the perennial TV giants ABC, CBS, and NBC will follow suit.

It's one more step down the right path, the path of democracy, instead of the path in which we have recently been headed—the path to anarchy.

THE "V-CHIP" HELPS PARENTS TEACH AND TRAIN THEIR CHILDREN. THERE ARE PRECIOUS FEW PARENTS WHO TAKE THIS JOB SERIOUSLY SO WHY NOT GIVE THEM ALL THE HELP WE LEGALLY CAN?

there. We can even shop through the TV, thanks to the Home Shopping Network, and, allegedly, within the next couple of years, be able to buy groceries and have them delivered (causing Americans to reach new heights of laziness and lethargy as we evolve into big piles of senseless, non-thinking, mush - perhaps evolution is coming full-circle and we are becoming amoebas).

With all this power to control tons of megabytes of information comes (drum roll please) responsibility.

We blame many things on "spanking" or "grounding"?). The problem with television and computers is that there is no formalized rating system, and no way for parents to control what their kids watch when they are not at home, until now.

The "V-chip" allows parents to block television shows that they would rather not have their children watch. Is this censorship? No, a parent can't be considered a censor. What it is, is good parenting. Parents are ultimately responsible for the welfare, and recently, the decisions of their children. They must

SGA needs money more than other campus groups

CHRISTOPHER COLE

decision-making.

You might reasonably ask, what is the point in paying tuition and fees if a sizeable portion of the money goes right back to the students? You could even liken the situation to the federal government's concept of taxing bureaucrats for the same money paid to them in salary.

But the situation on college campuses is a little different. What we have available is a large amount of money set aside for extracurricular use—not money to be returned to students in its pure green form, but to be spent on activities that enhance learning—continuing education, if you will.

Faculty are among the most qualified people to decide where that kind of money should be spent. But students should have a larger say than they do now, and staff should have a smaller say. Too often on this campus, people who control large sums of money spend it carelessly and without regard for the greater student interest, which should be the top priority.

I believe the school should give back to its students by investing more of its money in student government. This would allow elected leaders from the student body to have a stronger pull on the purse strings—a reform that makes sense, given the vast resources of our university.

When I was a freshman George-Anne reporter on the SGA beat, I was astonished at how little the organization had available for student fund requests. I was appalled that a university of our size and stature could offer only $6,000 to the SGA budget for fund requests.

By early October of that year—with fall quarter only just kicking off—the amount of fund requests from students exceeded SGA's budget by more than $1,400.

Granted, most of the organizations that ask for money from SGA pad their requests, making them bigger than necessary, anticipating that SGA will cut their request. And that year, SGA tended to spend money somewhat recklessly. Still, the obscene shortage of money was evident, and it was clear that SGA needed more—a lot more.

That same year, SGA ran its winter quarter funds down to only $9 by mid-February. This was mostly due to the inept spending habits of the student senate, but this sort of a budget problem was a real eye-opener when it came to SGA's lack of money.

I would recommend at least doubling or even tripling SGA's activities budget—maybe even more. Recent SGA leaders have shown that money can be spent responsibly.

If the money is spent carelessly, it is the duty of the student press to expose the problem and the duty of students in general to pressure their government into spending wisely.

We will then be closer to establishing a more equitable process for allotting money at GSU.

Arts magazine bashes Christ

Editor,
I'm writing in response to the recent release of the '96 Winter Supplement of the Miscellany. My letter won't be long. I just ask the question (directed to the ones in charge of this magazine), why is it that the only thing considered art (and I use this term very loosely) at this school is bashing Christianity?

The selections in this magazine were not an artist's impression of the world around them, but merely a stab at Jesus Christ and his followers.

Can the students find nothing else to vent their artistic frustrations on? Oh, yeah, I guess those rusted things outside Foy represent their environmental and political views!

Black Panther speaker is a follower of Marx

Editor,
The Black Panther Party, the organization for which Mr. Seale has become so famous, is of an extremely anti-democratic and otherwise anti-American nature. Organized by Huey Newton and Robert Seale in the mid-60s, the Black Panther Party was perhaps the most violent Marxist-oriented domestic revolutionary organization of its time.

While publicly claiming the role of freedom fighters for black America, the Panthers openly and unashamedly embraced ideas contrary to the very notion of freedom. The Black Panthers hailed, as their heroes, such despicable monsters as Stalin and Ho Chi Minh.

Nevertheless, the foundation of the Panthers' ideological guidance did not derive from such mainstream Marxist sources. The Panthers' primary weltanschauung was that of Mao Zedong and his "little red book," a unique polemic of Communist philosophical intrigue often found in the clenched and angry fists of the Panther Party faithful.

The unnerving presence of such diabolical literature in the hands of the politically sophomoric may lead one to wonder why Chairman Mao endeared so much youthful adoration from his Black Panther comrades. With this in mind, it is worthy of noting that official records estimate 60-80 million Chinese to have been exterminated under the enlightened leadership of Chairman Mao.

Meal plan story partly erroneous

Editor,
This letter is in response to Ms. Meredith Whitt's article in The George-Anne on Feb. 15 titled "Meal plans may cost students meals or money."

My intent of this letter is to enlighten your readers of how the meal equivalency value is set, point out errors that both Ms. Whitt and I made in determining the meal equivalency, and what I intend to do to rectify the situation.

First, let's define what meal equivalency means. In simpler times when students of GSU had but only one food operation choice, i.e. Landrum Cafeteria and before that, the Williams Center cafeteria, there was no such thing as a meal equivalency. That is because the cafeteria was and is an all-you-can-eat style operation.

As Georgia Southern grew and broadened its food service offerings to a la carte style operations, a contract meal equivalency had to be determined to allow for the usage of contract meals in such operations.

The meal equivalency is derived by dividing the total price of a meal plan by the total number of meals allowed in a given quarter. Additionally, the meal equivalency allowance is always based on the highest average daily priced meal, i.e., 5/1, 5/2.

The meal equivalency has always been set for the entire year based on fall quarter's average cost per meal. My past experience with GSU's school calendar has been that there is one less day scheduled in winter and one more day in spring, compared to fall. Over the course of the year the meal equivalency averaged out to the set fall quarter allowance.

This year, the fall quarter meal equivalency worked out to $3.60 for the 5/1 and 5/2 plans. Where I failed to do my homework was to check on the number of school days in winter and spring quarters. This year there are three less days in each, compared to fall quarter, which significantly impacts the average cost per meal. This was an oversight on my part and I take full responsibility for this error.

Additionally, Ms. Whitt erred in calculations made in her article as well. It would appear that she based her calculations on a nine-week quarter when, in fact, each quarter consists of 11 weeks. Based on a nine-week quarter the average cost per meal computes to over $4.60. If this were true, I would have to admit this is indeed a scandalous situation. Fortunately it is not true. I need and love my job too much to risk such a planned impropriety.

Now what can be done to rectify the situation? I have considered increasing the meal equivalency to the level it should be, $3.80, for winter and spring quarters.

However, this creates problems for the EagleExpress and cash-paying customers because a great majority of our combo meal prices are based around the $3.60 allowance. Since there are more EagleExpress and cash-paying customers than 5/1 and 5/2 meal plan holders, this is not a viable solution.

What I intend to investigate is maintaining the $3.60 value throughout the remainder of the year, drop the spring quarter pricing for a 5/1 and 5/2 to reflect the $3.60 average, and issue a refund for the difference owed to all 5/1 and 5/2 meal plan holders for winter quarter.

To conclude, I am appreciative of Ms. Whitt for bringing this situation to my attention, and apologize for the calculation oversight made on my part. I want to assure all 5/1 and 5/2 contract meal plan holders that this was not part of some grand scheme to rip them off. I made an error, I'm human, and I'll own up to it. More importantly, I intend to fix the situation.

ASSESSING YOUR STUDY SKILLS

Before you can begin improving your study skills and habits, you need to assess where they stand NOW. The following inventory is designed to get you thinking about your habits. Answer the following questions with "YES" or "NO". Be sure to answer the questions honestly and not the way you think they should be answered. The IDEAL answers are given at the end of the inventory. Check your answers against the ideal answers and see where you can begin improving.

- Do you have a definite schedule as to when you will study each subject?
- Do you make sure the lighting is good before you start studying?
- Is the place where you study noisy?
- Do you attempt to study in bed?
- Do you study at a desk?
- Is your study desk near a magazine rack, radio or TV?
- Do you study with a radio on?
- Do you share a textbook with other students?
- Do you have a clear notion of what is to be done before beginning an assignment?
- Do you read the assignment rapidly to get an overview before studying in detail?
- Do you consciously attempt to relate points you have learned in other courses to those you are learning in a new course?
- After finishing the detailed reading of a chapter, do you outline the main points in your own language?
- Do you attempt to classify and organize facts that you are studying?
- If you don't understand something, do you go to the teacher after class in preference to asking a fellow student?
- In studying for a test, do you try to spot the likely questions?
- When you find a word in your reading that you don't know, do you look it up in the dictionary?
- Do you keep your notes for each subject separately?
- Do you study harder on subjects that are more difficult for you?
- Do you work extra math or science problems to clarify points that have given you particular trouble?
- Do you finish the assignment for one course before you start the next one?
- Do you usually study the most interesting subjects first?
- Do you frequently get help from family and friends on homework?
- Do you spend considerable time reciting to yourself material you have read or studied?
- Do you skip over footnotes which you come across in your reading?
- Do you skip tables and graphs?
- Do you ask help from other students?
- Do you usually take notes in class?

ATTENTION TRANSFER STUDENTS Problems that may hinder your Graduation

Please review your Evaluation of Transfer Credit for the completion of the History and Constitution requirements. Georgia law requires each candidate for a degree or certificate to demonstrate a knowledge of the history and constitution of the United States and Georgia. These requirements may be met by passing examinations offered each quarter or by receiving a passing grade in certain courses. Equivalent courses at other institutions may not satisfy the requirement at Georgia Southern University.

If you are deficient in any of the four areas, (U.S. History, U.S. Constitution, Georgia History or Georgia Constitution) it will be indicated on your copy of the Evaluation of Transfer Credit. FROM THE FAIRWAY

RONNIE SWINFORD

Sports' effect on society

The world of sports is too often looked upon as one that is separate from the "real world."

This is why when things happen to celebrities from this realm of the entertainment industry people react so quickly.

The biggest uproar in sports now is the HIV/AIDS scare.

Tommy Morrison and "Magic" Johnson have both come out and said they have the virus, but their lives will continue.

Some have praised Johnson for his efforts to educate people about this disease.

But to praise him and not the many other people who work to dispel the myths of this disease is unfair.

There are many people who do the same thing day in and day out, but because of who they are, get little attention.

Another part of the "real world" has entered the sports world lately; domestic violence. There have been numerous incidents in the last few years of athletes abusing their wives.

The Warren Moon case has probably drawn as much attention as any other, but just about every week another case is reported.

This past week it was Cortez Kennedy, but next week it could be anyone.

Domestic violence has for years been a private matter.

It was covered up and hidden, but over the last few years has been getting more attention by the media, partially because of the well-known figures who have been charged with this crime.

This subject is one that needs even more attention.

Violence against anyone is abhorrent but when it is a 300-pound defensive lineman hitting his pregnant wife, it is especially disturbing.

Also the problem of stalking gained world wide attention after Monica Seles was stabbed in the back at a tennis tournament in Munich, Germany.

From this time on, security around athletes has increased and no other incidents like that have happened again.

Many other people have benefited from this incident.

Few of them may realize the effect of this on their lives, but the use of group security has changed since the Seles incident.

People in the Million Man March to people at a GSU football game have unknowingly been effected.

Few people know the complexity of planning security for a small group, much less for a football game with 12,000 people.

These are just a few ways that sports affect even non-sports fans' lives.

They may all seem bad, and the incidents themselves are, but if they gain attention, then they can help the situation of the problem.

Also, many people who only watch Sportscenter on ESPN will see these incidents.

The most important aspect of this problem is simple recognition.

Eagles drop two against Bulldogs

By Ronnie Swinford
Sports Editor

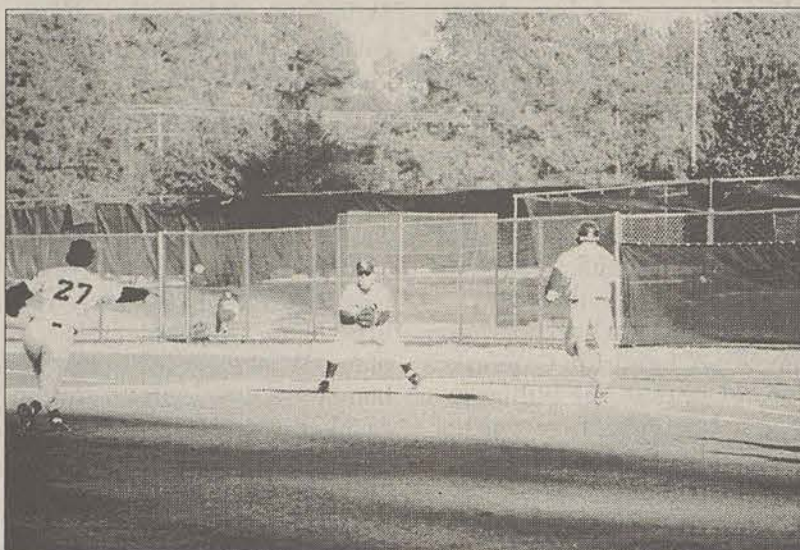

GSU lost all the momentum gained by the mid-week sweep of Georgia Tech by dropping two to the University of Georgia Bulldogs this weekend.

The Sunday game was one in which GSU led 8-0 after five innings and found a way to lose 9-8.

GSU scored first when Antoine Moran reached base on an error. Moran then moved to second on a single by Tyson Whitley. After a Tommy Peterman walk to load the bases, Steve Wilson hit into a 4-6-3 double-play that scored Moran.

GSU would add two more runs in the third inning when Moran singled and then stole second and third, the latter being in a double steal with Whitley, who had walked. After a Peterman strikeout, Wilson scored Moran on a single and Jamie Olvey singled to score Whitley to give GSU a 3-0 lead.

The Eagles would strike big in the fifth inning with five runs on four hits and three walks. The inning began and ended with Wilson at the plate. He started the inning with a single. Olvey then walked, as did Mark Hamlin, to load the bases. Sy Jones knocked in two with a double down the right field line.

Sarah Brinkley

Ryan Cummings tries to throw out a Georgia baserunner.

Donnie Coe then reached on a grounder to second that the second baseman came home to cut Hamlin down at the plate. Kyle Aldridge then walked to load the bases again with only one out. Moran then singled to score Olvey. Whitley then popped out to short right field, but Peterman singled to score the last of the GSU runs. At the end of the fifth inning GSU led 8-0.

UGA would come back to answer in the sixth inning when they put up six runs. Their big inning came when GSU pitcher Julio Ayala walked Pete Arenas and Chris Stowers with one out.

Chris Crawford then singled to load the bases. Shane Hopper then singled to score two Bulldogs, and Brian Bobier singled to reload the bases.

GSU then brought in Grady Blanchad to replace Ayala. Blanchad walked Matt Hanson to score Crawford. Chip Wade doubled to score two more Bulldogs. The last Georgia run came when Billy Gasparino hit a sacrifice fly to score Hanson.

"We gave up two walks with an eight-run lead. Teams that do that are supposed to lose, and we did," head coach Jack Stallings said.

Mocs bite Eagles in last home game of year

By Mike Davis
Senior Staff Writer

Being on the top end of one of the most lopsided series in the Southern Conference, UT-Chattanooga came into Hanner Fieldhouse Saturday night looking to win its 13th straight over the Eagles, in what was the last home game for GSU this season.

And with the contributions from UTC's 6-9 forward Johnny Taylor and point-guard Wes Moore, the Mocs soundly defeated the Eagles 71-52, to continue the winning streak and deny Eagle seniors Brian Wallace and Dave Coradini any hopes of winning their last game in an Eagle uniform.

"It's frustrating because we didn't play to our potential," Coach Gregg Polinsky said. "Not only did we lose, but we wasted a valuable opportunity to get better."

"UTC is a good basketball team. They have a lot of talent on and off the bench who have a chance to win the conference tournament."

Although holding a 10-point lead at the break, UTC didn't unleash its shooting threat until the second half, in which the Mocs began the session by going on a 26-6 run.

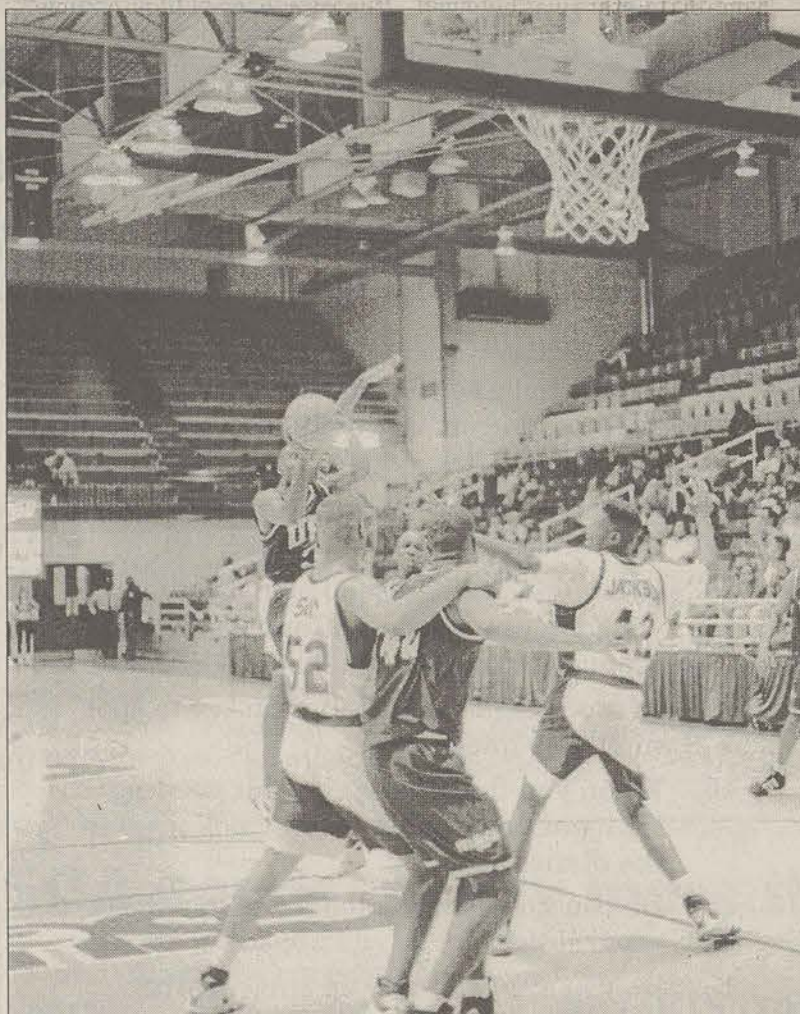

They shot 61 percent (14-23) from the field and 67 percent (6-9) from beyond the arch, pulling away from the Eagles by as much as 32 points.

That UTC charge was led by Taylor, who shot 6 for 10 from the field for 20 points, and John Oliver, who shot 3 for 5 from the three-point line, finishing with 11 points, all coming in the second half.

"Nobody can stop him [Taylor]," Polinsky said. "Not in our conference, anyway. The question is not if he can shoot, but rather will he make it. He did tonight."

Johna Seay led GSU with 10 points and six rebounds, while Fernando Daniel finished with nine points, all from three-pointers.

The Eagles never held an advantage throughout the game. After being down by seven late in the first half, Daniel hit a trey to cut the lead to three in midst of a GSU 6-2 run.

But UTC's Moore answered Daniel's three-pointer with one of his own and gave the Mocs a double-digit lead to end the half.

While GSU came out of the locker room for the second half sluggish, the Mocs were the contrary, as they scored 40 of their 71 points in the second half.

Oliver's consecutive three-pointers built the Moc lead to 16, and after an Andre Wilkes jumper, UTC scored another 10 straight points.

When the Moc lead reached 32, the Eagles began to slowly cut down the advantage and, in fact, chipped it to 18, but too little too late as the Mocs gave Coach Mack McCarthy his 12th win of the season.

"We played well defensively even though we missed some occasional assignments," McCarthy said.

"GSU didn't get many uncontested shots."

"Offensively, it wasn't pretty, but we ended up shooting 50 percent. We were also able to rest our starters, so I was pretty pleased with the effort."

"They came out ready to play," Wallace said.

"And we came out very flat. They had a lot of open looks that we let them have."

Wallace finished his last game with eight points and three rebounds, while Coradini's last home appearance ended with four points and three boards.

"It's like I said in the locker room," Polinsky said of his two seniors. "These two guys have been good, loyal leaders. They were expected to make sacrifices with basically a new team, and they did. They have a lot of maturity, and for the most part, I'm very pleased."

Wallace has played in every game this year for Polinsky, while Coradini missed two games, one for ineligibility and one after suffering a late-season injury.

Eagles sting Jackets

By Ronnie Swinford
Sports Editor

GSU had to use all of their at-bats but they finally blasted their way past Georgia Tech on a ninth-inning grand slam by Steve Wilson.

Georgia Tech scored first with two runs in the second inning. The inning started when right fielder Mark Fisher slapped a pitch into left field for a single.

The rally ended when first baseman J.J. Thomas hit the next pitch over the center field wall. Tech led 2-0.

The Eagles answered in the bottom of the third with a run of their own. Antoine Moran singled to start the inning.

Then on the second pitch to Tyson Whitley, Moran stole second and advanced to third on a throwing error by Tech catcher Tucker Barr.

After a strikeout by Whitley, Tommy Peterman singled into right field to score Moran, but Peterman was thrown out by the right fielder trying to stretch the single into a double.

GSU would add another run in the fourth inning to tie the game at two. Mark Hamlin, with one out, singled to start the rally. He advanced to second on a groundout by Sy Jones.

Hamlin would score on a single by Donnie Coe.

But Tech, not to be outdone, would scratch a run in the fifth inning to reclaim the lead 3-2. Tech got things started with a single by Adam Leggett.

He then advanced to second on a pass ball by GSU catcher Steve Wilson.

Leggett then scored when Michael Sorrow singled to right field.

GSU tied the game in the of the fifth.

Kyle Aldridge walked to open the inning. Antoine Moran then doubled. Aldridge then scored on a balk by Georgia pitcher Josh Gandy. An error allowed Tyson Whitley to get on first and it also allowed Moran to score GSU's second run.

Georgia would answer with two more runs in the sixth.

They would get the runs on two singles, a groundout to first and a double.

The Eagles would again tie up the game in the sixth.

They scored on a single by Jamie Olvey and a homerun by Mark Hamlin.

But this would end GSU's scoring for the night.

Georgia would score four runs in the seventh inning to ice the game away. The Georgia rally began with a single by Brian Bobier. He advanced to second on a pass ball and to third on a groundout by Chip Wade. Gasparino then singled in Bobier. Then Cranford walked to put three on base. The inning ended on a three-run homer by Stowers, which gave Georgia a four-run lead.

"Our pitchers and hitters are getting in good situations, but they are not getting good results," Stallings said.

eighth inning when Peterman hit a solo homer.

Peterman had five hits in seven at bats against Tech in the two-game series. He also had two intentional walks in the games.

Peterman has hit over .500 in his career against Tech.

He also has seven dingers in 10 career games versus Tech.

Tech appeared to be destined to win this game when in the ninth inning they scored another run to put the Eagles down by one with only one at bat left.

GSU answered Tech in a big way in the ninth.

The rally started innocently enough when Jones was hit with a pitch by Tech pitcher Chuck Crowder. Jones then moved to second on a wild pitch by Crowder.

Coe walked to give GSU two runners on base with no one out. Kyle Aldridge then laid down a sacrifice bunt to move the runners over.

Antoine Moran then reached base, on of all things, catcher's interference. Moran swung at the first pitch, but his swing caught part of the catcher's glove, so he reached. Tyson Whitley then tied the game when he grounded out to second to score Jones from third and move the runners up.

Peterman then strode to the plate to get an intentional walk from Tech.

Steve Wilson had struck out three times in the game, and was zero for four.

But he got a first-pitch fastball and drove it over the centerfield wall to end the game 8-4. Tod Lee got the win for GSU by mopping up in the ninth inning after Tech had scored.

Organizations volunteer time on Valentine's Day

Sigma Nu, Kappa Delta visit Southern Manor residents

By Stacy Clemons
Features Editor

Many organizations at GSU have continued spreading acts of kindness by visiting several senior citizens homes in the Statesboro community.

The fraternity of Sigma Nu invited Kappa Delta along with them as they spent the day with the residents of Southern Manor Nursing Home on Valentine's Day.

"We decided to visit the ladies of Southern Manor to make them feel loved on this special day," said Brian Jarrard, philanthropy chair of Sigma Nu.

He said the ladies seemed to enjoy the organization's company and that they were very cooperative.

"We gave each lady a flower and something to eat and spent the rest of the time making conversation," Jarrard said.

This is the group's second year being involved in the event and they are hoping it will become an annual event.

"Programs like this give the ladies something to look forward to," Jarrard said. "We'll probably visit the ladies again on Mother's Day."

Sigma Nu believes this was a good way for them to give something back to the Statesboro community.

"We want everyone to know that we are not just doing this for notice, but that we actually care about the ladies that we spent time with," Jarrard said.

GSU Freshman Council spends day at Statesboro Nursing Home

By Stacy Clemons

GSU's Freshman Council spent Valentine's Day with the residents of the Statesboro Nursing Home.

"We felt it was our duty to help spread a little love throughout the community, and what better way than starting with the people who have been here longer than we have," said Marnite Zachery, public relations chair of Freshman Council.

The 16-member group is involved in activities that benefit the freshman population at GSU as well as the community.

"Although this is the first project that we have done of this nature, we feel that in the future we will be doing more awareness programs," Zachery said.

Freshman Council has been involved in such events as organizing GSU's big Super Bowl XXX party.

"A lot of people came out and it proved to be a huge success," Zachery said. "We are in the process of presenting a talent show, which we are hoping to do in May."

The group plans to visit Statesboro Nursing Home on Mother's Day and Father's Day as well.

"We all really enjoyed doing this and since the residents have invited us to come back, we are going to take them up on their offer," said Zachery.

Community leaders awarded at GSU

By Kristi Kendrick

The 5th annual Black Image Awards, which are presented to outstanding people in the surrounding communities who have proven leadership and have been a positive role model in their community, will be held Saturday, Feb. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Curtis Woody, organizer of the ceremonies, began the Black Image Awards five years ago.

"Too often we look to media stars, or big-time athletes, performers... for our role models, when they are right down the street," Woody said.

Black Image Awards are given in seven categories: education, community service, business, spiritual outreach, cultural development, athletics and political action. An eighth award, the Person of the Year, is chosen from the winners of the seven categories.

Woody said, "self-concept and self-esteem begins internally... however, it is built up as a result tudes."

He said he hopes the awards program will help recognize these people that have made major contributions to the community.

Movie crew saves child

By Marlene Aig
The Associated Press

YONKERS, N.Y. — The hilly nighttime streets were filled with the bright lights of Hollywood when suddenly the action moved away from the cameras and to a nearby apartment building.

The three-story building was consumed with deadly flames. The film crew — working on a Whitney Houston movie — took center stage, throwing a ladder up so one member could grab 4-year-old Issa Ejelat from a second-floor window.

Tragically, the boy's younger brother and sister couldn't be saved.

When the fire erupted on Thursday night, the crew was wrapping up a day's work on "The Preacher's Wife," a film starring Houston, Denzel Washington, Gregory Hines and Courtney B. Vance.

None of the stars was believed to be in the vicinity when the real-life drama unfolded.

Larry Kaplan, spokesman for the movie company, Merriweather Productions, said he had no information on Friday afternoon about the hero or heroes. The studio issued a statement that simply expressed sympathy to the neighborhood.

Gannett Suburban Newspapers identified the crew members as Brian Dolan, Ken Fundus, Sean Malone, Ed Kerwick and Ed Egan, but the studio would not confirm the names or say where those men were on Friday.

Fire Commissioner Thomas Lorio said he didn't know the name of the crew member who rescued the child, nor did city officials.

"Anyone willing to take a risk like that deserves some credit," Lorio said. "Anyone involved in the rescue, we'd like to know."

GSU hosts Black Rose rugby tournament

By Stacy Clemons
Features Editor

Since arriving at GSU in 1976, the sport of rugby has gained a tremendous amount of popularity.

One of this year's goals is to make the GSU's rugby team a respected name.

"Right now, we've probably got one of the strongest teams that we've ever had at GSU if not the strongest," said rugby coach, Graeme Kelly.

The team represents GSU in the Southeast Region and to date has an 8-2 record.

"By the end of the season we will see where we fit when the final national rankings are out," Kelly said.

GSU hosted the seventh annual Black Rose Rugby Tournament Feb. 16-18.

The team placed second in the tournament by defeating two-time defending champion Tennessee, but lost to Hilton Head in the finals.

Kelly said the tournament's main purpose was to give the team more experience in the game and to give the players a chance to have a good time.

"We are proud of our accomplishments in the tournament," Kelly said. "But of course, we wish we had gotten first place instead."

This year's event included the first international team ever to participate in this local competition.

Canada was represented by its best rugby team in many years.

record to GSU and planned on remaining flawless.

Mike White, Carlton team captain, heard about the tournament and thought it would be a great idea for the team's spring break.

"We just finished the fall season 7-0," White said. "Our team came down here to win this tournament and we didn't, but we will bounce back."

GSU's team prepared a lot for the tournament and was very proud of the successful outcome.

"We had beaten all of the teams that participated in the tournament except for those that we had not played, of course, but our plan was to win our own event," Kelly said.

The event was held at the club sports fields across from Legend's Bar and Grill.

"There was a game Feb. 16 between two men's clubs, the Renegades (from Atlanta) and a team from Hilton Head that actually started this year's tournament," Kelly said.

Now the team will start preparing for the upcoming national tryout March 9.

"One team will automatically qualify for the nationals, and that will be Clemson, and then you have wildcard games to decide what other teams will go on," Kelly said.

The tournament will also be held here at GSU giving Kelly and his team home field advantage.

"We will have home field advantage, but we would love to have more support at the games, especially this one," Kelly said. "This will be a big day for the team as well as GSU."

Kelly said after this year, GSU will be ready for next season because of the experience the team will have.

"Next year should be our biggest season because everyone will have played together and we know how each other performs," Kelly said.

"The guys are really proud of their season so far and the Black Rose tournament," Kelly said.

"We just would like to have the sport get a little more recognition."

Some black women outraged at 'gangsta' rap

By Christopher McDougall
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — There's at least one school of thought that this is the best way to meet women: grab the crotch of your droopy jeans while treating your intended to an earful of insults and promises of sexual assault.

That school, critics say, is packed with young black men tutored in brutal language and dangerous ethics by "gangsta" rap music.

After decades of fighting a white-dominated society, black women complain they're now being betrayed by an enemy within: gangsta rap and its phallic-centric, gun-loving, beat-your-woman ethic.

"If a brother looks at me with those eyes, I cringe at what he's about to say," said 26-year-old Esha Thornton. "I can look like holy hell, and still hear 'bitch this' and 'ho that,' and all they want to do to you."

By now, rappers thought they had seen attacks from all sides.

They've weathered salvos from the religious right, from the liberal left — led by black activist C. DeLores Tucker, and from Tipper Gore's middle-of-the-road campaign to post albums with adult advisory stickers.

But a new front has emerged as Thornton and many other young black women team with conservatives like Bob Dole and former education secretary William Bennett in an effort to put a lid on music performed by their peers.

Tucker organized a protest Saturday outside Philadelphia's Tower records, which she condemns for not only selling rap music with adults-only lyrics, but also for promoting Tha Dogg Pound, a group which she finds especially vile, in its advertisements.

Students take a 'Leap of Fate'

By Kristi Kendrick
Staff Writer

In commemoration of leap year, the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) and a public relations special event management class are coordinating a unique event, the "Leap of Fate" Mystery Date Extravaganza.

Local and Savannah television stations are expected to cover the event which is being held Feb. 28 in the Union Ballroom.

Students who are involved in various campus majors, activities and organizations have volunteered to be "leapers."

The leapers, with date packages attached to them, are up for bids. The participant who submits the highest pledge will win the date excursion. The date packages range from dinner and a movie in the Boro to an elegant Savannah carriage ride and lunch on River Street.

There will also be a silent auction where participants can bid on an array of items and packages including restaurant certificates, artwork, gift baskets and accommodations in Myrtle Beach, Hilton Head and Savannah.

Heather Turner, the publicity coordinator, said the event will be an interesting way for people to meet new people.

"It's a great social event and a time to come out, meet new people, and maybe even come home with a date," Turner said.

"We are also encouraging faculty and staff to participate in the silent auction," Turner said.

This event is completely organized and coordinated by students in the public relations special event management class and volunteers from PRSSA.

"They are learning how to plan special events and fundraisers, but they are taking theories and principle one-step further than traditional test-taking and lectures," said Lisa Fall, class instructor of the communications arts department.

"Rather than tell the students how to plan an event, I thought I'd go ahead and let them coordinate one themselves," Fall said. "They're learning much more than I could ever teach them from a book."

The class (CAP 399) was developed as a direct result of research conducted by Fall's colleagues, who learned interns were being asked to perform special activities.

Tickets can be purchased in advance for $2 at the rotunda and Lakeside beginning this Thursday, or for $3 the night of the event. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

assistant to the president, Walraven, and Charlene Black, associate vice president of academic affairs, to discuss the violation of by-laws on the part of CLEC.

"SGA rightly felt that we really weren't involved in the selection process," Rogers said.

Hyer said that he believed that CLEC was operating in violation of its charter.

"If you look at the by-laws, SGA appoints the student members," he said.

"The committee was operating with a budget and no approval from anyone fall quarter. Cahill gave no plausible explanation for skipping the appointment process."

Walraven also said the way CLEC was choosing its committee members was against its by-laws.

no evidence that it involved any racial issues," he said.

Most likely, Peaster said, the person or persons who started the blaze did not want to burn the house down. "It's hard to imagine someone wanting to burn the entire house

An agreement was reached during the meeting that SGA would have two representatives from SGA in the student members of CLEC to oversee operations and to report the opera-never again after that," Hyer said.

Walraven said that SGA didn't have adequate representation and that SGA representatives were told in the past that they tions of CLEC to SGA. Also, Cahill would submit a list of her choices to SGA for interview and appointment.

"My first appointments were called for the first meeting and could not vote.

"Maria (Cahill) asked for everybody's schedules on the committee and scheduled the meeting times at 9:00 in the morning. It just so happened to be that both SGA reps had a class at 9:00. They were the only two on the committee that had a class at 9:00," Walraven said.

Hyer said that Cahill "has been playing fast and loose from the beginning."

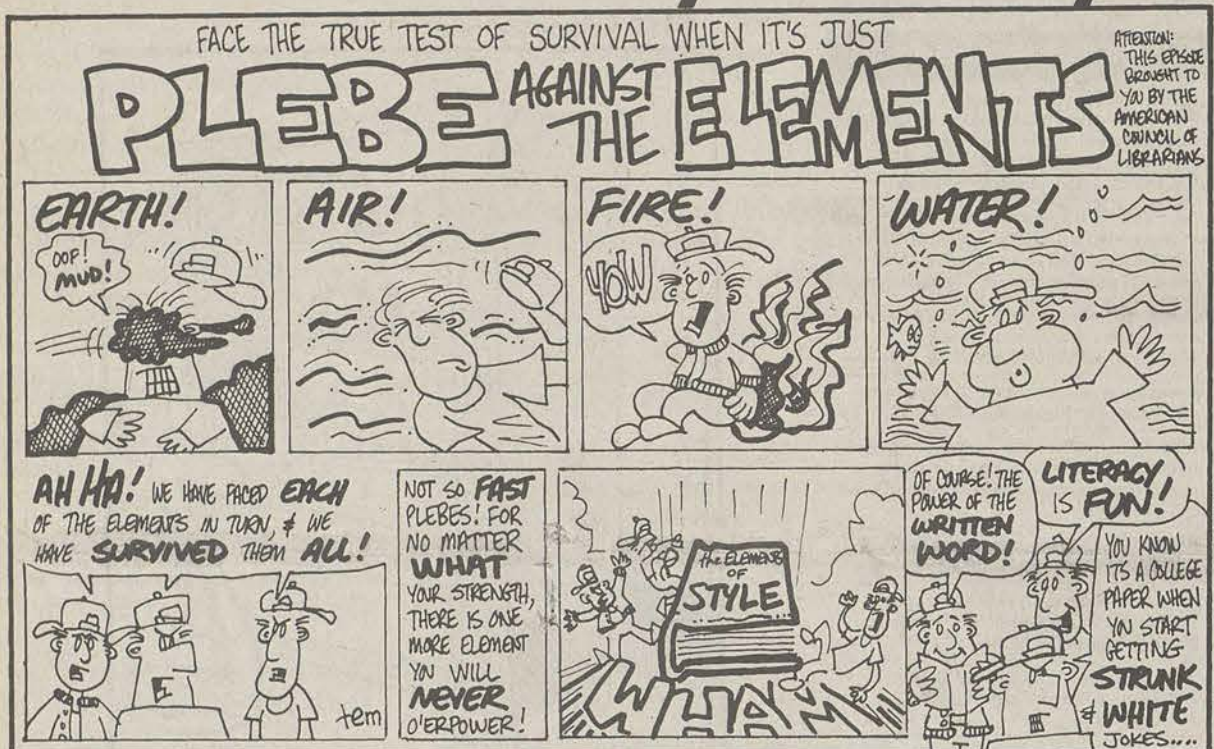

"She has not been willing to put herself under the eyes of student scrutiny," he said.

Walraven said he thinks it is unfortunate this situation happened.

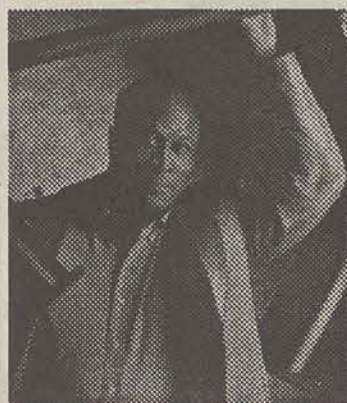

"The Faculty Senate by-laws are there for a reason," he said. "They debate very long and very hard and they debate line by line. These are faculty members, teachers, vice presidents, and deans who have a genuine concern about the student needs and, I think, it was a poor decision on CLEC's part to appoint members without going through the proper procedures."
