Analysts: Dole's victory prepares him for Georgia

By A.J. Hostettler
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Sen. Bob Dole's large victory in the South Carolina GOP presidential primary Saturday should translate into strong momentum as the focus turns South, while Lamar Alexander's poor showing marks the beginning of the end for his campaign, political analysts in Georgia said.

"For Dole, this is a huge victory," said Emory political scientist Merle Black. "Dole has an advantage from this win," one that should carry into Georgia's primary today, where 42 delegates are up for grabs.

"South Carolina will have the effect of giving Dole a kickoff, some momentum as he goes into Super Tuesday," said Charles Bullock, a political scientist at the University of Georgia.

Alexander's poor showing Saturday will hurt the former Tennessee governor in Georgia, Bullock said. "Georgia may be Alexander's last stand. ... People got all excited about him after Iowa, but if he can't do anything better than that, this is the beginning of his swan song."

Dole's victory demonstrated his strength among both conservative and moderate voters in South Carolina, which was considered Pat Buchanan's stronghold, Black said.

"His broad range of appeal will help him here in Georgia," Black said. "Those Republicans who want to stop Pat Buchanan and are looking for someone to stop him will go to Dole," he predicted.

Publisher Steve Forbes, who was in a fight with Alexander for third in South Carolina, has had little presence in Georgia and is expected to do poorly, Black said. "He's largely invisible here."

Boosters serve liquor at some home games

By Ronnie Swinford
Sports Editor

GSU's Southern Boosters and athletic department have been serving liquor at home basketball games to boosters and alumni, sometimes when minors have been present, officials said.

Southern Boosters served liquor at the first men's and women's double-header Jan. 15. "The Roost," a hospitality room located under the home stands, was stocked with food, non-alcoholic and alcoholic drinks.

"The former athletic director, Bucky Wagner, instructed us to have it in the Roost for that game," said Don Coleman, a spokesman for Southern Boosters.

Former athletic director David "Bucky" Wagner said the athletic department has been serving alcoholic drinks for 15 years.

"We serve food and drinks before the games to the alumni and boosters," he said. "But I didn't instruct anything for this year since I am no longer athletic director."

Coleman said that he was only doing as told when he was asked about this discrepancy.

In an interview earlier this month,

"The Roost," the hospitality room under the stands at Hanner, is the place where Boosters and alumni are entertained during games.

Athletic Director Sam Baker said the practice of serving alcohol at games this year has been stopped and that there has been no alcohol served since he took office in January of this year.

Associate Athletic Director Frank Ellwood said the decision not to serve alcohol was necessitated by the lack of supervision in the hospitality room.

"The original idea was to make the area restricted," Ellwood said. "It ended up never being restricted; there is no way to control it. We are not in the business of promoting alcohol. A couple of times this year there were kids in there; I don't think that is the image we need to put forth."

GSU President Nicholas Henry said he was not aware that Baker had stopped the serving of alcohol.

"If there was a risk of serving alcohol to minors, then it was the right decision," he said.

The Southern Boosters provide food and drinks to spectators at football and basketball games. These services have drawn some negative light over the years since Bulloch County is a liquor-free county.

"If they are giving the stuff away, then they don't need a license," City Clerk Judy McCorkle said. "It is no different than you coming to my house and me giving you some alcohol."

Both Ellwood and Baker said the room was "licensed" to serve alcohol.

"It [alcohol] has to come from a boosters group," Ellwood said. "We asked for permission and received it to use that room. You can't separate the two departments. The boosters are a part of the athletic department."

Frank Hook, head of alumni activities, said that he could not comment because that was an athletic department activity. Hook was present at the Jan. 15 game to recognize some alumni at half-time.

"The whole issue is up for review," Ellwood said. "I seriously doubt if there will be a complimentary room next year. I'm not sure it is accomplishing what it was supposed to."

Parking lot to close for building construction

By Kevin Bonsor
Staff Writer

GSU officials are closing the parking lot across from the Technology building beginning spring quarter due to the construction of the new College of Education Building.

The closing of the parking lot will result in 300 fewer spaces for commuters who will have to park in the west commuter lot by the Southern Center as an alternative until the parking lot is re-opened at the end of June.

The new building is being constructed directly on the "Snake Drive" portion of Forest Drive. This will close Forest Drive in front of the Engineering Technology building. Later it will close Forest Drive all the way to Register Road, including the faculty/staff parking lot.

Bob Chambers, director of parking and transportation, said one benefit of closing Forest Drive in that area is that traffic will be taken away from the pedestrian flow that comes out of the Forest Drive parking lots on to campus.

GSU is required to maintain traffic through that area of the campus. Therefore a new road, already under construction, will connect Forest Drive with the by-pass.

"When this is established, people who live out there in Park Place and some of these other places, I think, will come down the bypass and come in the new boulevard," he said. "That will reduce the traffic on Chandler."

The new road is being built through the parking lot and the lot will have to be closed to do so.

Once the new road is completed and a new traffic pattern established, the parking lot across from the Engineering Technology building will be combined with the parking lot across from the Forest Drive building to create one big parking lot.

The new lot will create between 1,500 and 1,800 new parking spaces for commuters, which Chambers cited as the "biggest benefit" of the project.

On-line program simplifies job search

By Rusty McGulre
Staff writer

An on-line program is underway at GSU that will enable students to send their resumes to thousands of employers nationwide. The program is also intended to encourage students to use the Career Services resource center.

The program, created by TenKey Incorporated, a company based in Orlando, Fla., is called Career Shop.

"Career Shop levels the playing field," said Jack Law, vice president of Career Services at TenKey. "We're enabling college grads' skills to speak for themselves, and making it easy for employers to be objective in their search process."

Patricia Bergmaier, director of Career Services at GSU, said that Career Shop is "still underway."

"It's not as developed as some of the other career-oriented programs," she said.

Bergmaier also said this program, along with others, is often overlooked by many students in their search for employment.

In order to alleviate the difficulty which many students associate with using the web, Bergmaier has put in a proposal which would let students, click into Career Services and then click into these various Internet addresses."

"My goal is to set up a program for every single major being offered here at Georgia Southern," she said.

She also said that students can access Internet jobs through Galileo in the library.

Davina Robinson, staff member of the LRC, said she agreed with Bergmaier that not many people know about the different career service programs on the web.

Robinson also said students often use the computers for reasons other than the ones for which they were originally intended by the university.

"We try to encourage students to use the computers for academic purposes, but a lot of them just use them to chat on-line," she said. "Sometimes they just get into one area and forget about all of the other uses of the web."

She also said these services are passed over by many because they fail to learn how to use them.

"The LRC staff was teaching classes about how to use the Internet, but people weren't showing enough interest so the classes were discontinued," she said.

Students can learn about computer services on Tuesdays at 7 p.m., Wednesdays at 11 a.m. and Thursdays at 4 p.m.

"There are different ways of finding employment through Career Services like on-campus interviews, resume referrals, job listings, and career counseling," Bergmaier said.

TeleFile eliminates the hassles of tax returns

By Kim Wagner
Staff Writer

Filing taxes could be made easier this year for an estimated 23 million people who might be eligible to file their taxes through a free nationwide filing program called TeleFile.

Through a free telephone call lasting six to 10 minutes, people can now file federal income tax returns on a touch-tone telephone in either Spanish or English, 24 hours a day.

TeleFile, which also computes the caller's taxes, is one of the programs the government is initiating in an effort to make the government more streamlined and efficient, said Chris DeSimone, account executive of August, Lang & Husak, Inc.

The TeleFile packets, consisting of TeleFile instructions, a Personal Identification Number (PIN) and a regular tax book were distributed to taxpayers who filed a 1040-EZ in the past. An additional work sheet is also included in the packet so the tax payer can gather all necessary information and work out his or her taxes prior to calling the 800 number.

The person filing enters the requested information from their W-2 form, and TeleFile calculates if a refund or a tax is due. If a refund is due, it will be received within 21 days, according to a press release from the IRS.

"Filing taxes doesn't get any easier than this," IRS Commissioner Margaret Milner Richardson said in a statement. "TeleFile will not only save taxpayers time and trouble, but will also make the IRS more efficient."

In addition to previously filing a 1040-EZ form and receiving the TeleFile packet, to be eligible one must be single with no dependents, have a taxable income of less than $50,000 and live at the same address as last year.

The program was test marketed on a more limited basis over the last four to five years.

Last year, about 700,000 taxpayers filed their taxes using the program, DeSimone said.

Dole forging ahead in Georgia

The Associated Press

ATLANTA—One poll showed Sen. Bob Dole holding a slight lead while another had him virtually even with Pat Buchanan as Georgia voters prepared to have their say in choosing a Republican challenger to President Clinton.

Buchanan, saying he was encouraged by polls released Thursday, planned to campaign again in Georgia before the Tuesday primary and take part in a debate Sunday night in Atlanta with GOP candidates Lamar Alexander and Steve Forbes. The debate will be televised on WSB-TV in Atlanta, Georgia Public Television and CNN.

Alexander also was returning to Georgia, with stops scheduled Saturday in Macon and Atlanta, but Dole was headed for New York.

Buchanan was expected to arrive in Georgia Saturday night and was to attend church in Atlanta Sunday morning. The rest of his schedule had not been announced Friday afternoon.

An Atlanta Journal-Constitution and WSB-TV poll showed Dole with 31 percent support, Buchanan 23 percent, Alexander 16 percent and Forbes 10 percent. The margin for error was plus or minus 4 percentage points, and 10 percent of those frontrunner," said Emory University political scientist Merle Black. "But the outcome in Georgia is going to be strongly affected by what happens in South Carolina Saturday."

A Dole victory in South Carolina's primary, coupled with a weak showing by Alexander, would go a long way toward helping Dole win Georgia, Black said. On the other hand, a Buchanan victory in South Carolina and strong showing by Alexander there would create problems for Dole.

The secretary of state's office has predicted that 20 to 25 percent of Georgia's 3.3 million registered voters will vote Tuesday.

Seven other states hold primaries the same day: Colorado, Connecticut, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Maine.

Georgia has 42 delegates at stake, more than any of the other states holding a primary the same day.

A candidate needs 996 of the nation's 1,990 delegates to win the GOP nomination.

ALBANY Ga. — Albany State College President Billy C. Black will take medical leave until his retirement in June after 16 years as head of the college.

Retired Paine College President Julius S. Scott Jr. was named interim chief by University System Chancellor Stephen Portch.

Scott will serve until a new president takes over July 1, system spokeswoman Arlethia Perry-Johnson said Tuesday. A search for the new president is under way.

Black, 59, is recovering from a stroke he suffered Nov. 16. His leave begins Friday.

"I hear good things about Dr. Scott and I am sure he will do what is in the best interest of Albany State and the southwest Georgia community," said Elsie Hand of Pelham, a member of the Board of Regents.

The 3,100-student, historically black college is still recovering from the 1994 flood and a year of controversy over finances and administrative matters.

Scott, a resident of Hilton Head Island, S.C., was twice president of Paine College in Augusta.

He also has been a faculty member, chaplain, foundation administrator and denomina-

He was executive director of the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change in Atlanta from 1970 to 1972.

SGA working to adopt attendance policy plan

By Justin Miller
Assistant News Editor

SGA, in conjunction with a panel of professors, is currently working on a plan to adopt a grievance committee for students who are dissatisfied with their grade because they feel it is a result of their professor's attendance policy.

SGA President John Walraven and Vice President of Academic Affairs Gavin Shook are working with a panel of professors, chaired by professor David Alley of the foreign languages department, to draft a proposal that will be sent to the school senate sometime next quarter.

If the senate passes it, the proposal will become an amendment to the SGA Constitution.

SGA has no official attendance policy.

Attendance policies are set up at each respective department's discretion or, barring that, left up to the teacher. The committee hopes to offer students "protection from teachers with tyrannical attendance policies," Walraven said.

SGA was originally hoping to set up a campus-wide attendance policy, but "a teacher who has spent so many years in the classroom deserves autonomy in their classroom," he said. Instead, a grievance board will listen to student complaints on a case-by-case basis.

In the current system, a student can appeal his grade by going to his professor and then to the respective department head.

"Professors shouldn't have attendance policies that are unfair or are the final word on a student's grade," he said.

The committee would be set up in a way for students who feel that their grade was negatively affected by their teacher's attendance policy.

The committee's goal is not to do away with attendance policies, but rather "to protect students from professors who are unfair," Walraven said. The committee will meet sometime before the end of this quarter to vote on their final proposal.

Escapée's getaway car runs out of gas

The Associated Press

IONIA — A man facing arraignment on a charge of property damage escaped from District Court, stole a car and was caught three hours later when the vehicle ran out of gas, authorities said.

Wearing handcuffs, Joshua Snell, 19, of Lansing walked out of an unlocked holding room and down a fire escape.

St. Johns police officers spotted him driving a stolen car on Michigan 27. The car was involved in an accident, then continued south on the same road, the Ionia County sheriff's department said.

Finally, the car ran out of gas in Holt, south of Lansing, and Snell was arrested by state police.

Judge David Hoort said he would like to avoid any opportunity for escape by arraigning defendants over closed-circuit television. He didn't know why the holding room was unlocked.

"You're at a disadvantage if you take off after him. Then you leave the others in District Court," Hoort said.

Mother of 14 celebrates her 20th birthday

ASHFORD — Don't let her gray hair fool you. Lilly Hargis turned 20 last Thursday.

Mrs. Hargis was born on Feb. 29, 1916. Her actual birth date arrives only once every four years.

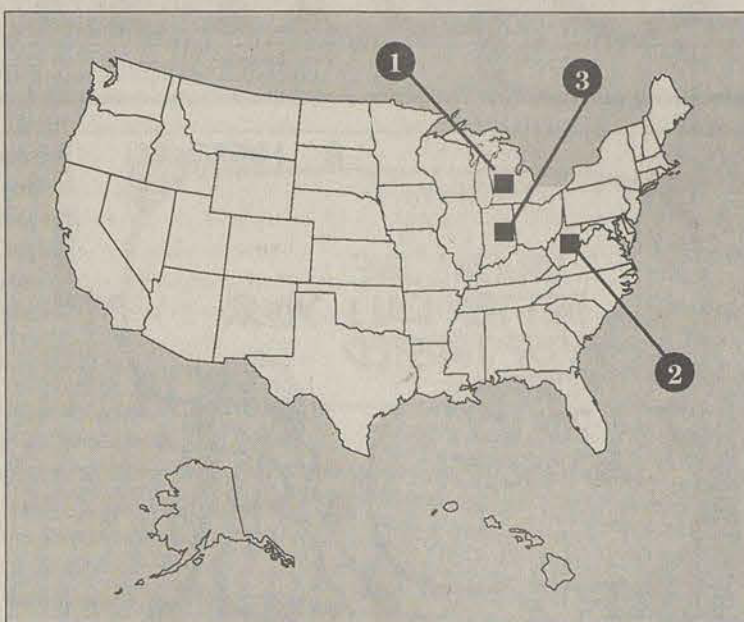

"She won't be a teen-ager any more," said her daughter, Della Hemphill of Dallas. "She's hitting 20 now."

Actually, Mrs. Hargis' birthday has been celebrated on March 1 in non-Leap Years.

"We always thought that was special having a mom with a Leap birthday," Mrs. Hemphill said.

At the end of each February, birthday or not, an avalanche of cards and greetings arrives from Mrs. Hargis' 14 children, 50 grandchildren, 27 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. Their photos fill the walls of her Boone County home.

"This will be the first time in ages all the kids have been home," Mrs. Hargis said. "This one is going to be really fun. I think they're having a blast-off with a lot of surprises for me."

Woman uses shotgun to remove callus

The Associated Press

MUNCIE, Ind. — A woman used a shotgun to try to remove a callus from her foot after a bout of heavy drinking.

Bonnie Booth, 38, was listed in good condition last Tuesday, just a day after firing a .410-gauge shotgun, the smallest shotgun, at her foot callus in her back yard.

She was taken to Ball Hospital.

No immediate charges were filed.

The extent of her injuries was not disclosed.

"She told investigators she drank a gallon of vodka and two or three beers and tried to shoot the callus off her foot," police Capt. Baird Davis said.

"She told officers she had already tried to cut off the callus with a razor and it didn't work."

"She was afraid it was getting infected because it hurt real bad," he said.

Three thieves steal money from Girl Scouts

The Associated Press

AURORA, Colo. — Three thieves stole $80 in Girl Scout cookie proceeds from a booth in front of a supermarket, police said.

Four 7- to 9-year-old Girl Scouts were selling cookies from their table in front of the King Soopers on east Mississippi Avenue when the money was stolen.

"That's one of the best stores for sales," said Lori Denman, Troop 545's cookie coordinator and the mother of one of the girls. "They had worked so hard for that money."

In a short time, they had sold more than 25 boxes.

Denman said she stepped away from the table for a moment.

That's when the thieves, described as three males in their late teens, struck.

One moved behind a girl standing at the cookie table, Denman said, shoved her, grabbed a shoe box containing the cash and fled.

Witnesses helped out. One family wrote the girls a check for $52.

A King Soopers employee dropped off a check for $100.

Sheri Clark, a spokesman for the Girl Scouts Mile High Council, said it was the first robbery of a cookie booth that she could recall in her eight years with the council.

Naked teenagers get stuck in the mud

The Associated Press

BROWNSTOWN TOWNSHIP, Mich. — Four teen-agers who went joyriding in the buff got more excitement than they bargained for when their vehicle got stuck in mud along the highway.

"It was just one of those teenage things, they decided let's do something foolish," said state police Sgt. Duane Avery of the Flat Rock post.

But a little before 6 a.m. Wednesday, the teens' sport utility vehicle got stuck in deep mud on the side of Interstate 75 in Wayne County's Brownstown Township, just north of Monroe

tures at the time were around freezing.

When a trooper arrived, he found two girls and two boys, all buck naked, Avery said.

"I don't know which one came up with the idea of going for a ride with no clothes on. So when this happened they had no clothes. They hadn't planned on getting stuck," the sergeant said.

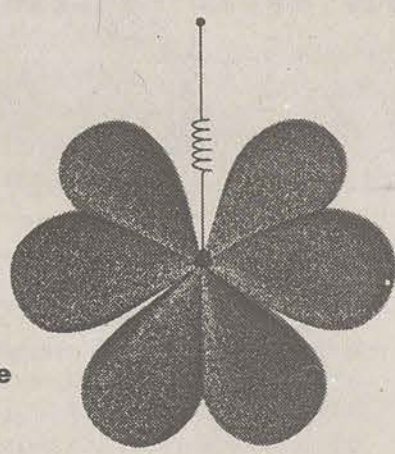

The teens were given blankets and brought to the station, while a wrecker was called to get the vehicle out. Once back at the station, troopers bought outfits at a thrift shop for the teens and sent them home with two misdemeanor tickets apiece.

Our Opinion

Serving alcohol at home games raises eyebrows

While Athletic Director Sam Baker claims the practice of serving alcoholic beverages at home basketball games has been curtailed since he took office in January, the fact that the free flow of alcohol, perhaps even to minors, was ever sponsored by this school is shocking enough in and of itself.

Former Athletic Director "Bucky" Wagner admitted that the Southern Boosters and athletic department have been serving alcohol for the last 15 years.

Apparently, then, the boosters and alumni need alcohol as an added incentive in supporting GSU sports, instead of a simple love of the game and their alma mater.

There is nothing inherently wrong with adults having a few drinks, though, even if it happens to be during the football and basketball games.

The problem lies in the fact that the alcohol flowed freely with no supervision or restrictions in "The Roost," the Boosters' hospitality room.

Associate Athletic Director Frank Ellwood admitted there were children in the room "a couple of times."

Since there was an apparent danger of serving alcohol to minors, Baker said they stopped the practice and no alcohol has been served this year. Baker should be commended for recognizing the danger and attempting to prevent it.

However, the problem hasn't been solved. Liquor was served in "The Roost" at the first men's and women's doubleheader on Jan. 15.

Granted, the liquor technically comes from the Boosters, but the Boosters are a part of the athletic department. The serving of the alcohol, then, is sanctioned and approved by the athletic department, and therefore, GSU.

If "The Roost" is accessible to children, as it has already been established to be, then GSU could be responsible for serving liquor to minors.

Is this the image GSU wants to promote? Ellwood said that it was not.

GSU, then, must take stronger steps to either restrict the room or completely eliminate all the alcohol, instead of simply paying lip-service to the need to do something about it.

Ellwood suggested that the complimentary room may be eliminated entirely next year. Perhaps this idea might be the best solution of all.

In this way, there would be no danger of possibly serving liquor to minors, and the alumni might actually come simply to watch the Eagles play a good game.

If we could only bring some attention to practices at the Lupton Building, we might be all right.

Vote in today's primary

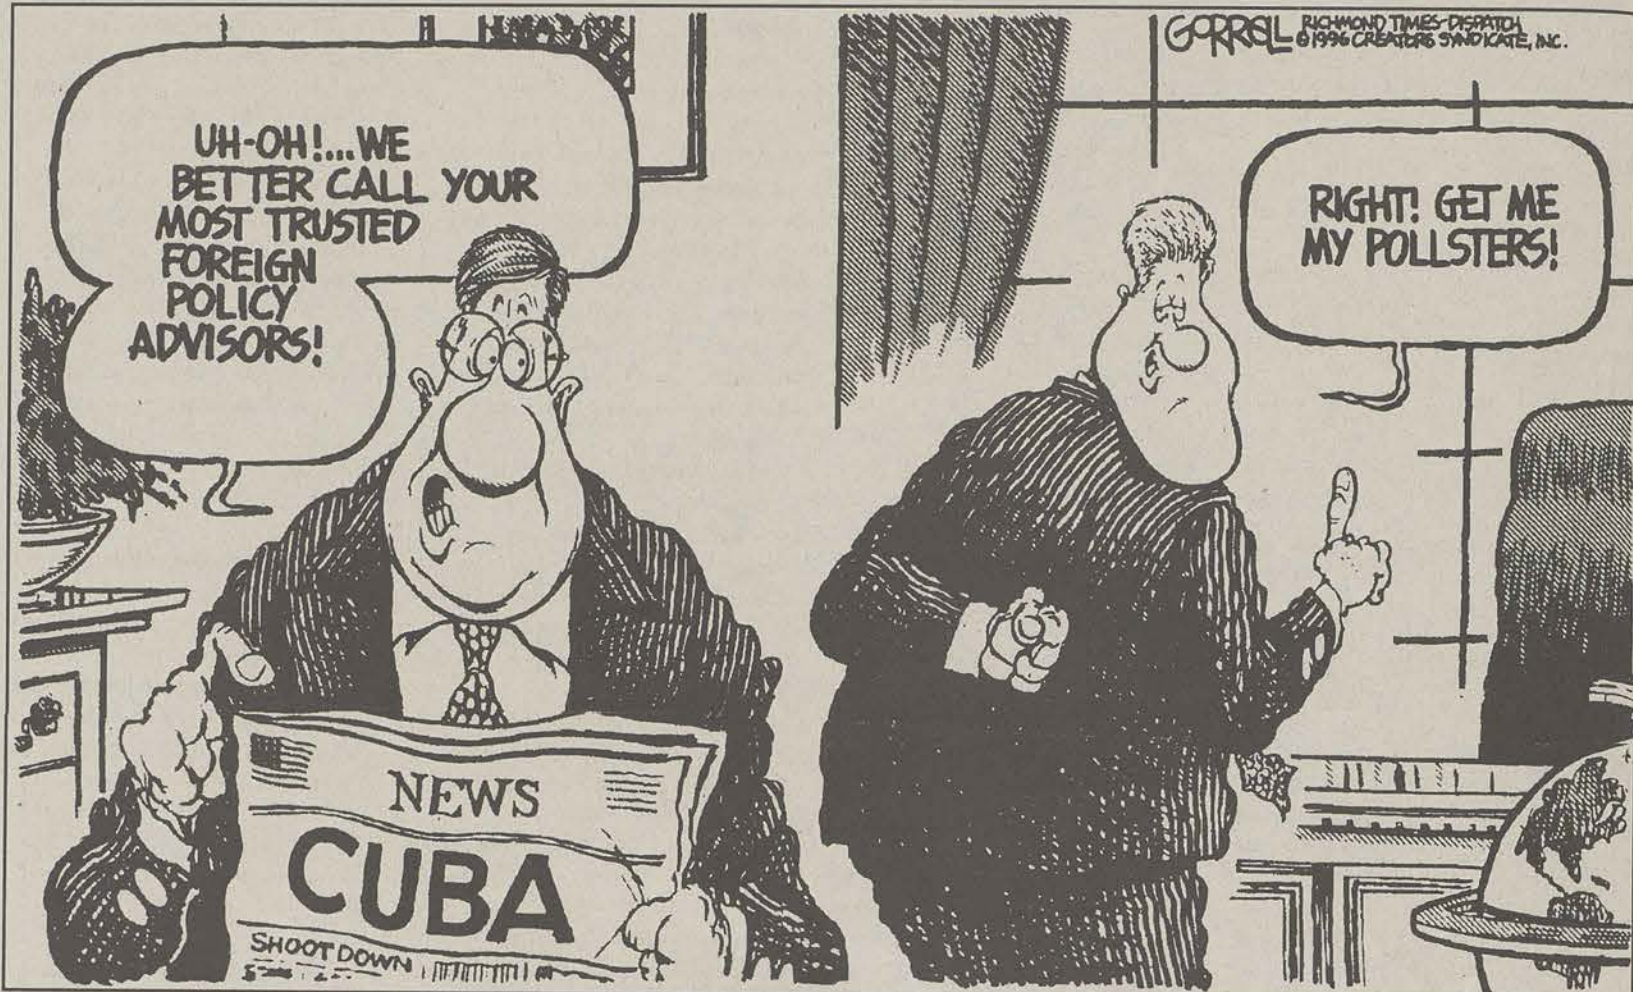

In a democratic society, the government should be comprised of the people's choices, but if the people do not vote, then the government cannot be a reflection of the democratic process.

Georgia will have its chance today to cast its vote in the Republican presidential primary.

All American citizens, including GSU students, have a responsibility and a right to make their voices heard.

Many, particularly students, take this right for granted and fail to exercise it.

Make sure you get to the polls at Grady Street or the fairgrounds today between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Black Awareness Month misses the point

What did we gain from Black Awareness Month 1996?

Now that March is here we can take a retrospective glance at last month to see what, if anything, we learned from this program. It is something I and others are inclined to do when so many people have questioned the value of ethnocentric activities.

On the surface it appears that Black Awareness Month is beneficial to the extent that it teaches us something new about our culture. However, like so many other divisive programs on this campus, it does so at the expense of bringing people together.

In other words, the glorification of one ethnicity in the search for its universal acceptance has only alienated it, rather than defeating the social ills that have traditionally stood in its way.

I am all for doing whatever it takes to bring blacks and other minorities onto an even playing field with the white majority. But that does not, and never should, include "feel-good" programs just for the sake of emphasizing just one group's contribution to society.

That is not the same thing as saying blacks haven't made honorable contributions in history. But many ethnic groups have brought their own unique experience to American society, and an entire focus on just one group is simply beyond what our goals should be.

CHRISTOPHER COLE

What I saw throughout Black Awareness Month was a quasi-racist "superiority complex," if you will — an attitude that favors racial separation in response anti-Semitic, anti-white leader who is bent on tearing down the foundations of American society.

These people are brilliant, engaging speakers — no doubt about it — but their ideas don't bring us any closer to a peaceful multiracial society.

OBSESSED WITH THE PAST AND UNABLE TO COPE WITH THE PRESENT, THESE LEADERS HAVE MADE RACE THE ONLY PREVAILING ISSUE OF OUR TIME.

to the evils of the past. After years of fighting for integration for their people, black leaders have chosen voluntary segregation as part of their revenge syndrome.

That was the prevailing attitude of Black Awareness Month. Is that what we bargained for?

GSU chose such exceptional speakers as a co-founder of the Black Panthers (perhaps the most violent group of radicals to come out of the 1960s) and a young man who spoke in Washington at the request of a rabidly

Instead, having become obsessed with the past and unable to cope with the present, these and other leaders have made race the only prevailing issue of our time.

It pervades everything and not one aspect of society can avoid it. The result is an environment of racial paranoia never preceded in history.

It's an understatement to say this is not the way we want to overcome our past.

Our common enemy is not oppression of blacks; it is racism is general. That is the notion most often lost on people who support Black Awareness Month or minority programs in general.

And when we speak of racism, the common perception is that we mean white racism. There is an abundance of that, but there's plenty of black racism to go along for the ride. Many black leaders have had a tough time owning up to this harsh reality, but there it is.

Our intellectual growth is bought and paid for when the university sponsors programs of this nature. It's all done in the spirit of expanding our minds but it has instead boxed us in and made us into intellectual pinheads. The common collegiate mind belongs to "yes men" for the racist agenda of minority separatists.

I seriously doubt whether GSU should continue sponsoring Black Awareness Month in any form. It has cost us a great deal of money for very little yield.

We should consider either drastically trimming or eliminating entirely the budget for this program. If independent groups on campus want to preach racial division, their freedom of speech allows it.

But let's not endorse it, tolerate it or keep quiet about it.

Friendships can cross the gender barrier

MARNITE ZACHERY

COLUMNIST

All of us had met at least one or two new friends while at GSU. Some of them were good. Others did not turn out as well. When the question of whether or not males and females could be good friends or not came about, a very heated discussion began.

One half of the group felt that male/female friendships could male, I know firsthand that guys can make good friends. Some of the benefits are the absence of competition, and a male perspective that is usually quite straightforward and honest. My friend is extremely understanding and we have yet to have any communication problems. We share everything and can make each take time to develop, mature, and grow. It is also quite possible that your girl or guy friend will turn out to be a complete and total waste of time. However, if you limit yourself to friends who are the same sex as you, couldn't you be missing out on someone that would possibly be a great friend for life?

As I spoke to students on campus, I found a variety of different attitudes toward "intergender" relationships. Some of the most memorable were the female who only had males as friends, the male who only had older women as friends, the female that vowed to never have a male friend ever again, and the classic guy who was going to see how many female friends he was going to have to "kick to the curb" for whatever reason this year.

Whatever your opinion on "intergender" relationships is, it is important to keep an open mind. If you have not been treated well by a female or male in the past, it is important to learn from it and not let him or her keep you from moving on and possibly developing a truly enlightening friendship.

This spring break while your lying on the beach, walking through the mall, climbing the mountain, or just lying in your bed, look around at that guy or girl, smile and say hello — you might make a new friend!

THIS SPRING BREAK LOOK AROUND AT THAT GUY OR GIRL, SMILE AND SAY HELLO — YOU MIGHT MAKE A NEW FRIEND!

not be worthwhile, meaningful, long or prosperous. The other half believed that these relationships were especially beneficial, long lasting, nurturing and of course fun.

Those who disapproved believed these "intergender" friendships created tension between the sexes. Their list of reasons included a lack of understanding, an inability to be honest and a difficulty in communication.

As a person who has three best friends, one of which is a other laugh at the drop of a dime. Besides my dad, he is one of the few males that I can always get an open ear, honest answers, and good advice from.

I am not saying that all "intergender" relationships will turn out as delightful as the one that I have just described here for you. Some of them will be just the opposite because there are always some people who simply do not make good friends. Like any and all relationships that are worth anything, friendships

Dorms not safe places to live

Editor,
Imagine walking down the hall of the dorm on the way to your room. A young man is wandering through Johnson Hall unescorted. One wonders what he is doing, how he got in, and why he is in an all-girl dorm after curfew. The privacy of the residence hall has been invaded. What do you do?

At GSU, the college has set specific guidelines that must be followed in the residence halls. In Johnson Hall, guests must be escorted from the time they enter the building until the time they leave. Sundays through Thursdays, all male guests are to be out of the dorm by 1 a.m. and may not visit again until 10 a.m. the following morning. But from 10 a.m. Friday morning until 1 a.m. Monday, there is no specific curfew for friends or guests.

The problem that most people run into is that their privacy has been violated by strangers roaming the halls. This controversy comes up every year — the dorms are not safe places.

A few problems occurred in Johnson Hall throughout fall quarter of last year. For instance, there have been two assaults. Students have been haunting the halls, aggravating the ladies. Most of these strangers are usually companions of Johnson residents or GSU non-residents.

According to "Campuses Respond to Violent Tragedy" by Seigel, "A woman complained that a student was following her around campus. She describes the man who was following her as the assailant who had held her in her dorm room in handcuffs and raped her at knife-point." Although this incident did not occur at GSU, the potential does exist.

Another reason for concern is theft. Some residents that their valuables have been taken. One resident reported that someone stole her purse from her room in the few minutes she left to walk down the hall. The only way to prevent this is to lock up the room every time one leaves. This can become a hassle after awhile. Imagine deadbolting the room every time you need to go to the restroom, check your clothes in the dryer, or even walk next door to visit a friend.

A third problem that has become an issue is residents propping the outside doors to the building. When leaving or returning on the weekends, they keep the doors open to commute from their car to their room. Most unnecessary prowlers of residence halls have entered through propped doors. Other stragglers were never properly escorted out of the building. If propping the outside door of the residence hall doesn't invite the whole campus inside, then what does?

These issues are concerns of many other residents of GSU dorms. The safety of the dorms is in the palm of our hands. No one wants to live in fear at college.

Upset about lack of Triangle Club coverage

Editor,
I am very upset that you did not cover "Outweek" and the masquerade ball, as well as World AIDS day in December. These events were firsts at GSU, and should have been covered by your staff.

There is no excuse why they were not covered. All events were widely publicized ... including a 1/4 page ad in The George-Anne about "Outweek."

You seem to have a reputation for covering past news from other campuses and states and not covering news from your own campus.

It makes me angry that you could not even take the time to write even a short article about "Outweek," not to mention cover all the events that took place. "Outweek" went rather well, not to mention the masquerade ball.

I would hope that if the people on the staff of The George-Anne ever did something meaningful with other organizations that they would like to have coverage by someone ... perhaps in a larger newspaper ... but the participants in "Outweek" did not even get a small article about their efforts and good intentions in a newspaper written on this campus.

I am telling you how angry you have made not only me, but a lot of people, not only in the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community here on campus, but also some of the straight.

I hope that in the future you will think more heavily about news covering events that affect GSU, no matter who those people are putting on an event.

Drinking is a problem at GSU

Editor,
I am writing in regards to the amount of alcohol drinking on this campus. There have been so many problems that have occurred because the students drink entirely too much.

I have been disturbed with people's drinking habits. The students on campus drink constantly. I like to party, but I do not want to fear for my life because someone thinks it is "no big deal" to drive after they have been drinking.

Alcohol is the primary drug on this campus. Many of the students usually drink when they are at parties. But from time to time, some of the people drink in their residence halls. I've seen a few of the girls in my residence hall become heavily intoxicated. Many of them consider drinking cute, but I don't see the point.

There are so many consequences that come along with drinking. I don't understand why people would risk endangering themselves or others just to get a high.

I believe people need to start taking more precautions about drinking. I wish that many of the students would stop drinking altogether, but that would be a miracle. Since I am dreaming the impossible, I hope that people will become more responsible.

Can you believe it? The time we've been waiting for is just around the corner.

No, not spring break. MARCH MADNESS!

All the hype, all the polls, and all the predictions mean nothing - for this is March madness and anything can happen.

For those who don't know, this is crunch time for college basketball. Every team is trying to get into the NCAA tournament bracket that holds only 64 teams.

If 64 teams seems like a lot, then realize that there are 305 teams trying to get into this tournament. Well, actually there's only 304 because GSU is ineligible.

I love this tournament because this is what brings out the basketball stars of the future. This is where boys are made into men. And this is where every team but one ends its season with a loss.

That is what I don't like about the tournament. Not so much as this one in particular, but any post-season tournament.

It's not like bowl games in which a lot of teams end their seasons with wins. The tournaments end with just one winner and 63 losers.

Nobody wants to end their season with a loss. What is there to build on if you end with a loss?

The senior basketball players enter these games not knowing if they will play another.

But that's what brings out the best of the players. They give everything they've got because if they don't, it will be their last. There is no sense in arguing about it.

This year's tournament has a lot of talented teams. One is Western Carolina, who won the Southern Conference with a win over Davidson.

Don't kid yourself. They shouldn't be considered a Final Four contender, but they have proven themselves to be the best in the conference, so they get to go.

But what about the teams that should be considered for the Final Four, such as the Kentucky Wildcats?

Being the pride of the Southeastern Conference, Coach Rick Pitino's Wildcats have talent that reaches beyond the starting five.

Their bench is loaded, and they never wear down physically because Pitino has players moving in and out at every dead-ball.

That is why they are my pick to win it all. Although they've been picked to win previous tournaments but have failed to do so, it's like I said, anything can happen.

Kansas, UMass, UConn, Georgetown, Utah and a lot of other teams have a chance to win the tournament and claim themselves as champions for a year.

And whoever wins will be considered the target next year because every team in America will be aiming to shoot them down. Just ask UCLA, the defending champions.

So when the NCAA tournament starts, sit back and enjoy the it. After all, what is there better to do during the week of final exams?

Eagles destroy Keydets, 44-17 in series

By Ronnie Swinford
Sports Editor

This year at J.I. Clements stadium, pennants of every school in the Southern Conference fly in the outfield. The pennants are in the order that the teams stand in the conference. First place is in left field corner and last place is in the right field corner.

At the start of the series, GSU's flag flew next to last in right field because they had yet to play a SoCon game.

By Sunday afternoon, GSU had retaken the first spot by pounding the Keydets into submission with 44 runs to just 17 for VMI in the three-game series.

In fact the real hero for GSU this weekend was the scoreboard operator who had to post the 61 combined runs.

Sunday's game

GSU fell behind early in the game, but used five runs in the sixth inning and four more in the eighth to slam the Keydets 14-5.

VMI took an early two-run lead in the second inning. Two singles and a double to lead off the inning gave VMI their first run; a Julio Ayala wild pitch gave them the other.

GSU answered with a run in the second inning. Donnie Coe reached base on a fielder's choice that erased Sy Jones. Coe then scored on a double by Jason Andrews, but that would be the end for GSU in the second inning.

The third inning proved more fruitful for the Eagles. The inning started with a walk to Tyson Whitley. Tommy Peterman then doubled his second of the day, and hit second of five hits for the day.

Heather Lyall

GSU first baseman Tommy Peterman stretches to nip a VMI runner.

Steve Wilson then singled to score Whitley and Peterman. Wilson would then score when Mark Hamlin hit into a double play, but GSU had retaken the lead 4-2.

The fifth inning would be the last rally for VMI of the day. They scored three runs to regain the lead. The rally consisted of a three-run double by Scott Thompkins. The 5-4 lead would last until the Eagles' half of the fifth.

GSU tied the game in the fifth inning with a Peterman solo homerun.

The sixth inning was the turning point for the Eagles. They sent 11 players to the plate and scored five runs; all unearned and all with two outs. Peterman and Wilson again shined as they split four RBIs in the inning. The other run scored on an error by the first baseman.

The Eagles' last inning told the story of the weekend series as GSU forced four more runs across. Sy Jones was the big hero of this inning with his second homerun of the year. The three-run blast ended the Eagles' bat explosion at 14 runs for the game.

The final score was 14-5. GSU starter Julio Ayala got the win. He had a career high in strikeouts with 11 for the game.

In his seven innings pitched he gave up six hits, five runs, four were earned, and had three wild pitches. Danny Washburn pitched the eighth inning and Tod Lee came into the game for the last frame to shut down the Keydets.

Saturday doubleheader

GSU batted around in the first inning of both games of the doubleheader. The result of this was a 14-6 win in the first game and a 16-6 win in the nightcap.

In the first inning of the first game, GSU slapped a four-spot on the scoreboard to welcome VMI to Statesboro.

The inning started with a Tyson Whitley single. He then stole second, and was joined on the bases by Tommy Peterman who walked.

After a flyout, designated hitter Steve Walson homered to right centerfield to give GSU a three-run lead.

Mark Hamlin then tripled to give GSU another base runner. Sy Jones was then hit by a pitch, and Donnie Coe walked to load the bases. Jason Andrews then singled to score Hamlin, but Jones was thrown out at the plate to end the GSU inning.

The second inning proved just as important for the Eagles. Nine hitters went to the plate, and four scored to give GSU an 8-0 lead after two innings.

The Eagles went on to add three more runs in the fifth inning, and three more in the eighth.

The special point of the game came when Kyle Aldridge, who was 0-15 to start the season, got his first career hit at GSU. It was a two run homer in the eighth to give GSU its 14 runs.

VMI managed to scratch six runs, three of which came on two homeruns by right fielder David Dixon. The final score was 14-6 GSU.

Ryan Cummings got the win in the first game. He pitched five innings then Jon Phillips came in to mop up the game.

In the second game, GSU sent 14 players to the plate in the first inning.

Everyone in the lineup scored a run in the first inning except Tommy Peterman.

However, he did knock in a run in the inning with a sacrifice fly. The Eagles' nine-spot ended the game before it began.

VMI actually scored first in the game with two runs in the first inning. But the two runs looked paltry to GSU's nine.

VMI would score three more in the second inning to chase GSU starter Kelvin Davis after only 1 1/3 innings pitched, but it would not matter as GSU would hammer out seven more runs for the game.

The massacre would end with a 16-6 routing of the Keydets.

GSU set season records for most hits (21) and most runs (16) in a game this year. The 21 hits came in the first game and the runs came in the second.

"I am pleased with our effort," head coach Jack Stallings said. "We played well, but we still made mistakes. We will take the wins."

GSU's record goes to 10-3 for the year. VMI's record drops to 0-10 for the year. GSU will next play Wednesday at 4 p.m. against James Madison at home.

Lady Eagles split doubleheader at home

By Mike Davis
Senior Staff Writer

Not letting the cool weather bother them, the GSU softball team split a series with UNC-Greensboro at the GSU Sports Complex Friday night to up their record to 8-10.

After falling to an early deficit, the Lady Eagles came back to win the first game 4-3 behind the seventh-inning heroics of Tara Anderson and McCaine Lowder.

But Coach Kelly Kirkland's team came up short in the second battle 6-4, despite giving UNC-Greensboro a scare with three runs in the last inning.

"Overall, I'm pleased with the performance because we won the first game and fought back in the second," Kirkland said.

"We'll be able to grow from this."

Trailing the Lady Spartans 1-0 in the third inning of the first game, senior Missy Boyd belted a two-out triple giving the Lady Eagles their first scoring threat of the game.

Tara Anderson then tied the score 1-1 when she reached first base off a Lady Spartan error, which scored Boyd.

UNC-Greensboro answered in the fourth with a lead-off double followed by a homerun giving the Lady Spartans the 3-1 lead.

But behind the pitching of Vanessa Fawcett, who finished the game striking out three, UNC-Greensboro was shut out in the final three innings.

All at the same time, the Lady Eagles were getting more offensive production than they had seen all game.

With Ashley Flemming on second, Tonya Whitted singled to center field, scoring Flemming and cutting the lead to one.

Then, with only one out and Whitted on third, after a UNC-G error, Amy Cook hit a sacrifice fly to center to tie the game 3-3.

The score stayed that way until the bottom of the seventh, when Boyd walked with one out. Anderson then stepped up and belted a double, advancing Boyd to third.

Then Lowder, with the game now in her hands, hit a slow grounder down the first-base line.

The throw home to prevent the game-winning run was dropped, and GSU captured the first game.

homer by Karyn Thompson in the fifth.

Down 6-1 in the bottom of the seventh, the Lady Eagles mounted a rally which was started with Beth Dance scoring off a single by Lowder.

GSU followed that up with another run with Flemming's sacrifice fly.

Anderson, who had been previously hit by a pitch, scored off Sheri Russo's single, cutting what was a monstrous Lady Spartan lead down to just two.

But Whitted's grounder to second resulted in the third out of the inning, sending the Lady Eagles the loss and a split in the two-game series.

"We were plagued with defensive errors," Kirkland said. "But I'm pleased because we generated some offense and tried to come back at the end."

GSU had three errors in the second game, all coming in run-scoring innings for the Lady Spartans.

Jessie Marsh's 3-4 performance from the plate led UNC-Greensboro, while both Lowder and Russo hit 2-4 to lead the Lady Eagles.

In Saturday's action in Macon, GSU split games with Troy State by losing the first game 3-2 in extra innings and winning the second also by a score of 3-2.

Sunday's double-header resulted in a Lady Eagle sweep of Mercer.

In the first game, the "mercy rule" was called as GSU mounted a 12-0 win in only five innings.

In that game, Sheri Russo tied a record of most RBIs in a game with five, and set a record for most doubles in a game with three.

With a 5-0 win over the Bears in the second game, GSU captured four of the six games played over the weekend, leaving their record at an even 11-11.

Lady Eagles run to NCAA tourney is over

James Hill

The GSU Lady Eagles advanced to Greensboro by whipping the Western Carolina Catamounts 91-68 in a game played at Hanner Fieldhouse last Wednesday.

The Lady Eagles faced Marshall in the semifinals game Saturday in Greensboro, N.C. Despite a tournament record seven blocked shots from Marysue James, GSU fell 108-82. The loss ends the Lady Eagles season. Their final record was 15-13 for the year. The good news is that they only lose one player to graduation this year. So next year's team looks like an early favorite to contend in the conference.

Cuba loses another one

BY Rob Gloster
The Associated Press

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The journey has been long and lonely for Cuban defector Osvaldo Fernandez.

His wife and 18-month-old daughter are in Cuba.

He speaks to most San Francisco Giants teammates through a translator.

His three-year contract, worth up to $3.9 million, has been ridiculed by some general managers.

All of that temporarily will be forgotten Friday when he faces major-league hitters for the first time as the Giants open their exhibition season against the San Diego Padres.

"I'm not too anxious," he told a small circle of reporters gathered around his locker Thursday, with teammate Marvin Benard doing the translating. "But I want to pitch even more than you guys want me to."

Batters such as Tony Gwynn were just fleeting images on a TV screen when Fernandez was establishing himself as one of Cuba's top pitchers.

The right-hander had a 22-0 record in international play and was the ace of a Cuban team that won the gold medal at the 1992 Barcelona Olympics.

Fernandez, 27, defected last July in Millington, Tenn., during a tour by the Cuban national team.

He did not tell his wife or parents of his plans.

His only contact with them since has been by phone.

"I felt I was leaving so much behind," he said. "By the same token, I was seeing in front of me the future that I was going to carve out for my family. I felt strange, but I also saw what was ahead."

The Giants beat out several other teams in the bidding for Fernandez, who went 4-3 with a 2.30 ERA in 11 games this winter for the Lincey Tigers in the Dominican Republic.

San Francisco offered the 6-foot-2, 190-pound Fernandez a $1.3 million signing bonus and a three-year contract guaranteeing an additional $1.9 million.

He could make $700,000 more in incentives based on appearances. The Giants will have the option of a fourth year for $1.4 million or a $400,000 buyout.

Other teams immediately charged the Giants had vastly overpaid an unproven pitcher and claimed he was no better than a fourth or fifth starter. They also said he was far inferior to another Cuban defector, Livan Hernandez, who signed with the Florida Marlins.

Hernandez, 21, made his debut Wednesday for the Marlins, pitching two innings against the University of Miami.

He likely will start the season in the minors.

San Francisco general manager Bob Quinn, who called Fernandez' signing "one of the most significant days in the history of the Giants franchise," dismisses the jibes as professional jealousy.

When he arrived at the Giants' spring camp, Fernandez was anointed the No. 4 starter by manager Dusty Baker.

That means his first regular-season start could come April 5 at Florida, with Miami's huge Cuban population as a backdrop.

Fernandez has impressed the Giants with his control and has even showed off a knuckleball. And Baker says an even more encouraging sign is how well Fernandez is fitting in with his teammates.

So Baker is not concerned about how Fernandez will handle his first outing Friday against major leaguers.

"I'm not worrying about him handling situations and being poised," Baker said. "When you play in Latin America, the energy is a lot more intense than it is here. The fans are much kinder or harsher than here. And he's not a kid."

'Great One' now in St. Louis

By R B Fallstrom
The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Repeat after me, this is a great day for sports fans in St. Louis, this is a great day for sports fans in St. Louis, this is ...

Last spring, the Rams said see you later to Los Angeles and hello to the Midwest. Last fall, the Cardinals hired arguably the most highly-regarded manager in baseball, Tony La Russa, and new ownership promptly surrounded him with high-priced talent. Just a few days ago the Blues boldly landed Wayne Gretzky, the man who has rewritten the NHL record book, for a run at the Stanley Cup.

The Rams are playing in the new $280 million Trans World Dome, the Blues are playing in the year-old $135 million Kiel Center, and the Cardinals are putting the finishing touches on a $10 million-plus renovation of 30-year-old Busch Stadium that they are confident will break it out of the cookie-cutter mold.

The PGA Senior Tour is adding a regular event this year. The PGA is hosting the 1998 Midwest Regional and the dome is hosting the 1999 Midwest Regional, and officials expect to get a Final Four in 2003 or 2004, the first available dates.

In December, St. Louis hosts the first Big 12 football championship game. What is going on here? Not long ago the city was a virtual sports wasteland, home to wishful-thinking .500 championship wannabes. Not long ago at all it was thought to be a baseball town first, foremost, and only. When the baseball strike and hockey lockout intersected in the fall of 1994, the city had absolutely nothing going on.

Frank Viverito, chairman of the St. Louis Sports Commission, recalls the Chicago Tribune doing a story that year on what it must be like to live in a major city without a lot of sports to choose from.

Now, St. Louis is in the midst of a stunning sports renaissance.

"Now, we're like the all-sports town, which is great," Viverito said. "Look at what we've absorbed in the last three years, the last 15 months. It's a lot."

Gretzky, pried loose from the Los Angeles Kings Tuesday for three prospects and a few draft picks, is just the latest prize. Within hours of his announced arrival the Blues had nearly sold out all of their remaining nine regular-season games.

"It was incredible," Blues spokesman Tom Maurer said.

To think, some observers thought the Rams had stretched the St. Louis sports dollar to the limit when they held up fans for personal seat licenses — purchasing the right to buy a season ticket — for $250-$4,500 — only a year ago.

Next stop, NBA? The Kiel Center was built with that possibility in mind, with empty locker space just waiting for a tenant.

Now that the city is packed with sports, competition is keeping them thriving.

The Rams came to town as conquering heroes and started out 4-0 in their first season as replacements for the sad-sack football Cardinals, now in Phoenix.

The baseball Cardinals responded with their renovation plan for Busch, highlighted by the installation of a natural grass field, and for the team, which was 62-81 last year. They seized the public eye by lavishing $25 million over five years on outfielder Ron Gant, spent $8 million over two years on pitcher Andy Benes, and $2 million for one year on third baseman Gary Gaetti.

They also acquired shortstop Royce Clayton as the eventual successor to Ozzie Smith, pitcher Todd Stottlemyre and closer Dennis Eckersley.

"I think right now it's pretty clear the direction we're going in," general manager Walt Jocketty said. "There's a lot of positive things and we're getting some quality players."

Now the Blues are on top, ready and eager to sign Gretzky to a deal that could be worth as much as $21 million over three years to consummate their quest for the Stanley Cup. No guts, no glory.

"We don't think in negative terms," said general manager and coach Mike Keenan, himself a heralded and expensive 1994 addition only a month after leading the New York Rangers to the Stanley Cup, the day after the trade. "If it doesn't come to pass,

I don't have any reservations whatsoever.

"We felt this was the best possible decision we could make."

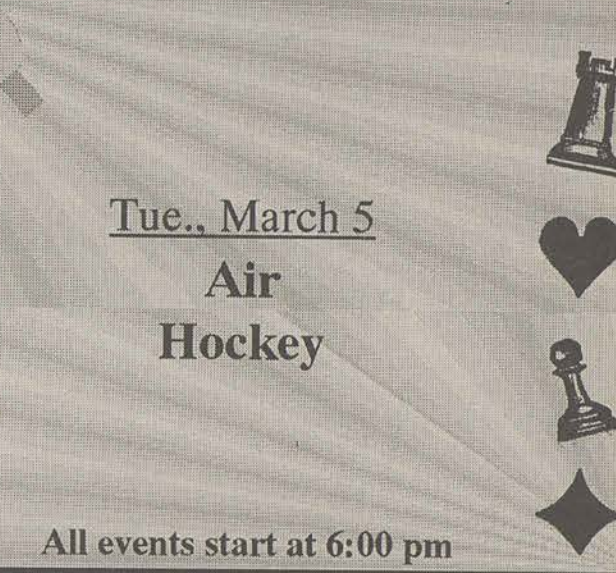

So who's next? Well, the Rams are probably due to make a splash in the free agent market any day now.

Saint Louis University also is due for a rebound. The Billikens went to the NCAA tournament in consecutive seasons in 1994 and 1995 for the first time in school history, although they're likely NIT-bound this year.

"I don't know that there's a competitive aspect, but I think all the teams recognize very much that they've got to be able to in their own way create dramatic increases in interest," Viverito said.

Maddux sees room for improvement

The Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Greg Maddux said he "left a lot of room for improvement" Saturday in his first start of the spring for the world champion Atlanta Braves.

"I threw a couple of bad pitches and there were some I would have like to be able to save for when they counted," the four-time National League Cy Young Award winner said.

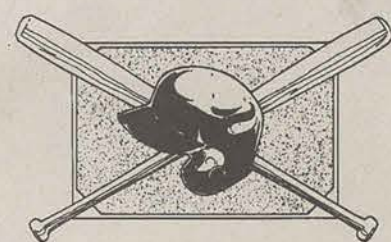

The 29-year-old right-hander faced 10 batters, giving up a run and three hits in two innings against the Montreal Expos. He threw 31 pitches, nine of which were balls, one a hit batsman. He had eight called strikes, two on third strikes.

"It was probably a pretty typical first start of spring training," Maddux added. "My stuff was good but my location wasn't. But I can't worry about it. There's plenty of time.

"It's just good to get out there again, see the catcher, pitch against batters who don't know what's coming."

"He said he felt good," pitcher

ing coach Leo Mazzone said later. "That's all any of us are concerned about."

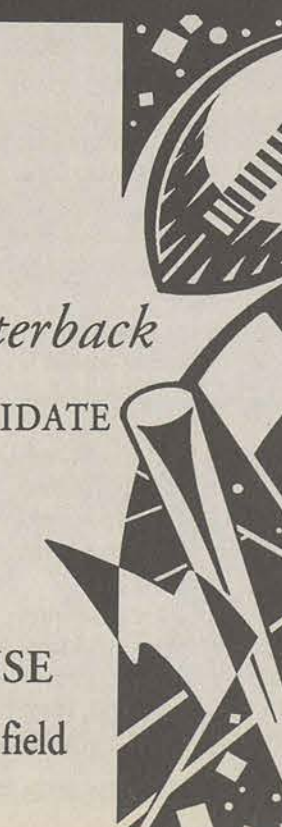

Catcher Javier Lopez showed good early spring hustle during the Braves' three-run second inning. After Ryan Klesko, who had opened with a single, beat the throw to third on Lopez's single to left, Javier went to second, sliding under the relay, then to third when Klesko scored on a sacrifice fly to center by Ed Giovanola. Lopez scored on Mike Mordecai's double to left-center.

With attendance listed at 3,235, fans seemed to cheer louder for the Braves than the Expos during pre-game introductions and throughout the afternoon. Many of the Expos are familiar to local fans as they played for Class A West Palm Beach on their way up through the Montreal farm system.

The two teams meet again here Sunday at 1:05 with Tom Glavine, the World Series MVP, the scheduled starter for Atlanta, followed by Rod Nichols, Darrell May, Greg McMichael and Mark Wohlers. Montreal will counter with Jeff Fassero, Tavo Alvarez.

PAIN KILLER.

For fast relief from the nagging ache of taxes, we recommend TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs are tax-deferred annuities designed to help build additional assets—money that can help make the difference between living and living well after your working years are over.

Contributions to your SRAs are deducted from your salary on a pretax basis. That lowers your current taxable income, so you start saving on federal and, in most cases, state and local income taxes right away. What's more, any earnings on your SRAs are also tax deferred until you receive them as income. That can make a big difference in how painful your tax bill is every year.

As the nation's largest retirement system, based on assets under management, we offer a wide range of allocation choices—from TIAA's traditional annuity, which guarantees principal and interest (backed by the company's claims-paying ability), to the seven diversified investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity. What's more, our expenses are very low,* which means more of your money goes toward improving your future financial health.

To find out more, call 1 800 842-2888. We'll send you a complete SRA information kit, plus a free slide calculator that shows you how much SRAs can lower your taxes.

Student receives free education

HARTFORD, Conn. — Speaking up has its rewards. Just ask Weaver High School sophomore Earl Brown.

Brown interrupted actor John Amos as he gave a speech, and ended up with a promise of a free year of tuition, room and board at Colorado State University — if he can get in.

Amos, who has starred in TV roles in "Roots" and "Good Times" and in the movies "Die Hard 2" and "Coming to America," called Brown up to the front of a school assembly.

When asked what he wanted to do with his life, Brown, 17, said he wanted to be a veterinarian. The audience laughed, but Amos quieted them down.

"If you are serious about becoming an veterinarian, and you have the grades, I'll pay for your first year of college. I said that, and I mean that. If you get the grades to get into Colorado State University, I'll make sure that your room, board, books and tuition are taken care of," Amos said.

Leno cancels Loyola speech

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Jay Leno will not be present to offer his touch of humor when Loyola University celebrates its 125th anniversary later this year.

Leno, star of NBC's "Tonight Show" canceled plans to be keynote speaker at the September celebration, citing the protests of some students.

"If the students are unhappy with my selection, there is no problem," Leno said. "I'll take a pass with no hard feelings."

Loyola spokesman Craig May said he did not know if it was monetary reasons or tastes in entertainers that caused the students, whom he described as a "vocal minority," to oppose Leno's appearance.

He refused to disclose what Leno was to have been paid. But Leno told the Chicago Sun-Times the fee was far from the $150,000 that had been reported. "The figure was a time percentage of that amount," he said.

LOS ANGELES — The wife of paralyzed actor Christopher Reeve says the couple are planning another child.

"We plan to, we do. It (conceiving a child) is not exactly the same, but it can be done. We just want to pick the right time," Dana Reeve told TV's "Extra" in an interview for broadcast Tuesday.

The couple already has a 3-year-old son, Will, and Christopher Reeve has two children — Matthew, 16, and Alexander, 12 — from a previous relationship.

Mrs. Reeve also said her husband has turned down various acting roles since the "Superman" star broke his neck after being thrown during a horse-riding competition in Virginia last May.

"The problem with roles as they're written now, and a couple of offers have come through, are that they're often villains or very weak and sickly," she said.

Carvey's comedy show invents new characters

9:30 p.m. on March 12.

NEW YORK — Don't look for the Church Lady or her famous catch phrase "Who could it be? Saaaaaaatan?" on Dana Carvey's new sketch comedy show, but keep an eye out for one of her family members.

Carvey, who starred on "Saturday Night Live" from 1986-1992, can legally only use characters he created independent of the NBC series.

"I can play the relatives, but not the characters," Carvey says in the Mar. 9 issue of TV Guide. In that vein, Carvey will replace the Church Lady with her gay nephew — who bears a striking resemblance to his prim-faced aunt.

In addition, Carvey says characters called "Germans Who Say Nice Things" and the 1996 Presidential campaign will be a key part of "The Dana Carvey Show."

"Steve Forbes alone could provide a whole season," he says.

The ABC show premieres at

NEW YORK — "Baywatch" star Yasmine Bleeth is looking forward to filming a new season of the series, but says one of the worst parts of the job is one of the most important — for someone portraying a lifeguard, at least.

Bleeth tells the Mar. 9 issue she's not too excited about diving into the chilly Pacific again.

"I hate it. I despise it. I dread it," she says. "But hey, there are ups and downs to every job."

Bleeth says she enjoys working with co-star Pamela Lee, but thinks they have vastly different career paths.

"I think she's made some interesting career decisions," she says. "She uses what she has and she's going to make the most of it. More power to her. My career path is going to be different because that's not how I see myself. I'm not this big, vampy, sexy thing."

Brooks may call it quits

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Second only to the Beatles in record sales, country music's Garth Brooks still isn't a happy cowpoke. In fact, he's even considering hanging up his hat.

The 34-year-old Oklahoma native, who hasn't been on tour for 18 months, is counting on his new concert tour beginning March 13 in Atlanta to jumpstart sales of his 1995 "Fresh Horses" album — and his enthusiasm.

"Fresh Horses" has sold 2.6 million copies, a tepid response for an album by Brooks, who is second behind the Beatles in U.S. album sales. He has $725 million in sales in less than seven years.

"I'm hoping the tour will make a difference, but if it doesn't we'll have to take a serious look at where we are in our career," Brooks told the Los Angeles Times in an interview published Sunday.

"If the record and ticket sales don't tell me that I'm stirring things up or changing people's lives, then I think it's time for me to hang it up."

Brooks said he doesn't "want to ride that downside of the bell curve."

"You want to be remembered at your best. You don't want to be a trivia question on some cheesy game show in 20 years and see the (contestant) get it wrong," Brooks said.

Brooks attributes his success to fate.

"I think most people realize that I'm just a bum who got lucky," Brooks said. "I believe that the one gift I have been granted is that I am a common dude."

By Stacy Clemons
Features Editor

Spring break is just around the corner and students are beginning to gear up for that long-awaited vacation from college.

While there are many options for a spring break vacation, it seems this year that both Panama City and Daytona Beach are not this year's number one choice.

The most popular spring break destination for many GSU students this year is simply going home.

Ty Hubbard, a sophomore at GSU, said going home was his second choice for spring break.

"I wanted to go on a cruise for the break, but I changed my mind because of money troubles," Hubbard said. "Although I won't be going on the cruise, I will make spending time at home fun over the vacation."

Panama City Beach seems to be the next choice for spring break and it remains the best vacation spot for GSU students that do not want to go home.

"We are expecting 550,000 students to start the seven weeks of spring break," said Tom Cason, director of Panama City Beach convention and visitors bureau.

He said the reason for its popularity is because of its fun, affordability and natural beauty.

In fact, Panama City Beach was nominated America's Most Beautiful Beach by Conde Nast Traveler Magazine.

"Most students come here basically because they are looking for a beach destination that offers them lots of fun at a reasonable cost," Cason said.

The cost for a student to spend a week at Panama City Beach is about $120 per student per day.

"This figure is an estimation of the average spring break cost," said Cason. "It includes fees for the hotel stay and the cost of food for a seven day stay."

Spring Break '96 would not be complete without is array of musical guests.

"MTV will be shooting one of their beach shows during the week of March 13-20," Cason said. "With MTV coming here, that will mean some of the artists that perform on their show will probably make an appearance."

Of all the problems that could possibly happen at an event of this magnitude, spring breakers are worried mostly about crime associated with the gathering.

"This has been one of our main concerns since starting this event," Cason said. "We want everyone to know that there is a minimal amount of problems that they should be concerned about and we are working on measures to eliminate these as well."

Cason said Hurricane Opal's destruction in October will not affect local businesses.

"Businesses are up and running as usual. No one is going to notice the minimal construction that will be going on around them to the beach front area," said Cason.

He said Hurricane Opal might have even helped the beach.

"It damaged a lot of the sand dunes in the area and that has made the beach a lot wider, which gives those that swim more area to have fun in," said Cason.

Rickey Weston, a senior at GSU, will be spending his vacation participating in activities associated with school.

"I'm trying to get a job as a resident director in Oxford Hall and if I achieve this goal, then I will be spending my break preparing for the job," Weston said.

He said that he does have a back-up plan just in case he doesn't get the job.

"I really want to be the resident director of Oxford, but if something should happen and I don't receive the job, then I will be going to Las Vegas for the break," Weston said.

No matter what your choice for Spring Break '96 might be, it seems that many students will simply be spending their break chillin' and relaxin'.

Many students just want to have some time to relax and get their minds off of school for awhile.

Augusta youth centers show R-rated movies

The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. --Five employees at two Augusta-area youth detention centers have been disciplined for showing certain types of movies to detained youths in violation of internal policy.

"We have verified that some R-rated movies have been shown," said Jaci Vickers, spokes woman for the Georgia Department of Children and Youth Services. "There were clear violations of policy and people were disciplined."

The Regional Youth Detention Center and the Youth Development Campus rented movies recently including R-rated Die Hard with a Vengeance, she said. Among the other R-movies shown was Shawshank Redemption, a movie about breaking out of prison.

Department guidelines established last fall say movies rated R, NC-17 or X are prohibited at DCYS institutions, as are those that are "sexually explicit, pornographic or which show excessive gore, pain or physical suffering."

The relatively few R-rated movies shown do not represent the majority of movies shown at the centers, Vickers said.

"The preponderance of the movies shown were PG movies."

She declined to identify the employees disciplined, but said three are employed at the Youth Development Campus and two are at the Regional Youth Detention Center.

She also declined to elaborate on the nature of their punishment.

Southerner Lamar Alexander finds little support in the South

By Russ Bynum
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Lamar Alexander found no Southern comfort in the South Carolina primary Saturday but vowed to press on, saying "I've got the money, I've got the message and I've got the background."

The former Tennessee governor and publishing heir Steve Forbes both finished far behind the winner Bob Dole and second-place Pat Buchanan in the first-in-the-South Republican presidential primary.

Alexander, the only Southerner in the race, betrayed no disappointment in being denied a stronger showing, but he said he was still hoping to emerge because he believes Buchanan's fiery campaign is about to fizzle.

He campaigned earlier in the day in Florida and in several sites in Georgia in preparation for upcoming Southern primaries.

"What this represents is the beginning of the decline of Buchananism," said Alexander. "One of the things this vote said is that it's not going to go for Pat Buchanan's brand of the future."

Alexander noted that 90 percent of the delegates to the GOP national convention in August are still up for grabs in the coming primaries, including during a multi-state blitz this week. He's concentrating on Georgia's Tuesday contest and on Florida's March 12 primary.

"This is a World Series with about 50 games," Alexander said. "If the Braves lose the first couple, they don't just go home. They keep playing ... and sometimes they win."

Alexander has had trouble breaking into the top three places in early primaries and is under pressure to quit the race and free up votes for fellow moderate Dole. But Saturday he was resolute: "Dole is up tonight. ... I'll be up sooner or later."

In a day of campaigning in Florida and Georgia, Alexander offered himself to voters as the only candidate who can carry out House Speaker Newt Gingrich's balanced budget agenda.

"Newt tried to be the speaker and the president both. Now, he's gifted, but nobody's that gifted. He's a great speaker, but he needs a president out there helping him," Alexander told supporters outside the Ocmulgee River Gun Club in Georgia as sport shooters practiced on a target range behind him.

"We need someone from outside Washington who knows what being a chief executive is," he said. "I believe in Newt's agenda and I've demonstrated that. I've actually balanced budgets. I don't remember when Senator Dole ever did."

He needed at least 10 percent of the votes to avoid the risk of losing federal matching funds for his campaign. But he said if he lost them, he'd pick them up again in coming primaries.

"I've got about 10 primaries on Tuesday, and that all kicks back in as long as you get 10 percent somewhere," Alexander said. "We're raising more than $100,000 a day and have been for about 14 of the last 15 days."

Alexander used the gun club, setting to briefly voice his opposition to the federal ban on assault weapons, but he did not pick up a weapon.

"He's more of a fisherman than he is a hunter," said Bryan Flood, Alexander's spokesman.

Candidate complains of media censorship

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Alan Keyes, accompanied by a handful of supporters carrying signs supporting his presidential candidacy, began a vigil last Saturday outside a television station and complained that the news media were censoring his campaign.

Keyes sat in a lawn chair outside WSB-TV, where a debate involving candidates Pat Buchanan, Steve Forbes and Lamar Alexander was scheduled to be held Sunday night and complained about his exclusion. Bob Dole declined an invitation to take part in the debate, which is being carried by CNN as well as local television.

"Since I've satisfied all the legal requirements, what right does the media have to censor me," said Keyes, who wore a khaki parka on a cool, windy day.

He said he had begun a fast, and he planned to continue until justice is done "by allowing me full participation in this debate as befits the political process."

Keyes spokesman Brant Frost said WSB had ordered Keyes to leave or face arrest. WSB officials declined comment.

Keyes said the other candidates are afraid of him because he did well in previous debates, and said his message is the only one reaching the American people — that the number one priority should be to restore the moral and material foundations of the family.

"Government is basically expanding at the expense of the family and we need to do something about it," he said.

THE IMPACT OF OLYMPIC GAMES Spring Quarter 1996 Course Announcement

The Department of Kinesiology, in conjunction with the Center for International Studies, under the title of SM 599 Special Problems, is offering a course titled, "The Impact of Olympic Games" Spring Quarter. This course is open to all Georgia Southern University students with no pre-requisites.

The course will examine the background of the Centennial Olympic Games in Atlanta, the history of the Olympic Games, the cultural impact of the games nationally and internationally, problems associated with the games (e.g. amateurism, commercialism, performance enhancement), the Olympic legacy as well as the economic impact of the games. A high level of class content will come from a special GPTV telecast

Dr. Larry McCarthy, Olympic Envoy to the Irish Olympic Team, (681-5137 or larry_mc@gsaix) and Dr. Darin Van Tassell, Center for International Studies, (871-1588 or dvantass@gasou.edu) will teach this course. Please feel free to contact them by phone or E-mail should you have additional questions.
