Stephanie Ray recovering from accident on Herty Drive

By Justin Miller
Assistant News Editor

Director of Multicultural Affairs Stephanie Ray is at home and still recovering from the injury she incurred last week.

Officials said Ray was released from the hospital this weekend, and is at home resting her leg and hip, which were injured when she was struck by a car last week.

According to a University accident report, Ray was hit on the side, spun around, and thrown to the curb while attempting to cross Herty Drive at the crosswalk.

Ray suffered injuries to her hip and leg, and was unable to move at the time of the wreck, but is doing much better now.

The driver, David Sauters Jr., of Savannah, was charged with failure to yield to a pedestrian in a crosswalk.

Ray was unavailable for comment.

CORRECTION

In the article "SGA finishes faculty guide" in the April 11 issue of the G-A, it was stated that Gavin Shook said he would not release a copy of the proposal for fear that if he did the Faculty Senate might not want to accept it. SGA brought a proposal before the Faculty Attendance Policy Committee. SGA and the committee were able to compromise on a revised policy that will contain a reasons-acceptable clause. This policy does not insure an excused absence from a professor. This policy also requires professors to state their attendance policies on the first day of class. Also, as stated in the story, there will be no appeals board for students who have grievances.

CLEC under investigation

By Joshua Edmonson
Senior Staff Writer

The Student Activities Budget Committee decided Thursday not to increase the Campus Life Enrichment Committee budget, and to appoint a committee to investigate the operations of CLEC.

A unanimous decision was reached to investigate CLEC until mid-May with no increase in its budget. A meeting will be held at that time to further discuss the budget of CLEC and to determine if the budget committee should grant an increase in funding.

CLEC came under scrutiny last quarter after violating student membership regulations under Faculty Senate by-laws. CLEC Director Maria Cahill also failed to include its mandated share of SGA appointed members since 1994.

Cahill has refused to meet with reporters. However, in a statement released Monday, she said, "CLEC is operating under the same budget it had during fiscal year 1991-92. Since costs have increased, a budget increase was requested. CLEC's goal is to continue providing quality programming for the GSU community."

At the Thursday meeting, SGA representative Tim Young expressed concerns about student involvement.

"I have a lot of concerns about student participation and how much students get from it, but also about Mrs.

Cahill's business ethics," Young said. "I met with her for about an hour and I had a lot of questions that she answered thoroughly. As far as what all this money is going towards, she really couldn't pin-point certain areas."

"I HAVE A LOT OF CONCERNS ... ABOUT MRS. CAHILL'S BUSINESS ETHICS."

— SGA REPRESENTATIVE
TIM YOUNG

Young said the budget committee should clear up certain discrepancies from the past before it funds CLEC any more money in the future.

SGA President John Walraven said he believed that Cahill needed to redirect some of the money in her budget.

Statesboro District Four Councilman Cory Andrews said that he believes that CLEC doesn't have enough student involvement.

"I think that CLEC, conceptually, is an excellent idea, but it has been poorly managed," Andrews said. "I can say, honestly, that I don't think this organization has the confidence of this student body at this time. Basically, what you are seeing is a lot of student funds going, but very little student input in terms of who is brought on campus."

Andrews expressed a concern that the consensus is that CLEC is funding "pet projects" for the Faculty Senate.

"This is the perception; it may not be the reality," Andrews said.

Jack Nolen, vice president of student affairs, responded by stating that the operations of CLEC may be the pet project of a faculty member, but the Faculty Senate has never discussed CLEC's schedule and therefore could not control it.

Walraven said the way Cahill runs CLEC is not healthy on a college campus.

"It seems to me that for someone who is the overseer of a committee in charge of almost $70,000 in student money, she is not answering to the very people who support the job she has," Walraven said.

Nolen said the budget committee shouldn't paralyze an organization without having more information about it.

"There are obviously a number of questions about CLEC," Nolen said. "One of our options is to fund CLEC at its current level then have this committee go and take a look at CLEC. There are a lot of questions we don't have the answers to yet."

CLEC has a current working budget of $70,147. For the coming year, Maria Cahill has requested a 12 percent increase to come to $78,557.

But with the proposed budget of $59,015 to pay speakers and an average cost of $7,875 per speaker, CLEC could only fund seven speakers for the entire 1997 academic year.

There is no statute limiting the amount of money CLEC can spend on a single speaker, Nolen said.

The fees requested for the proposed speakers does not include travel expenses.

An increase was proposed for the 1997 academic year in the category of office supplies.

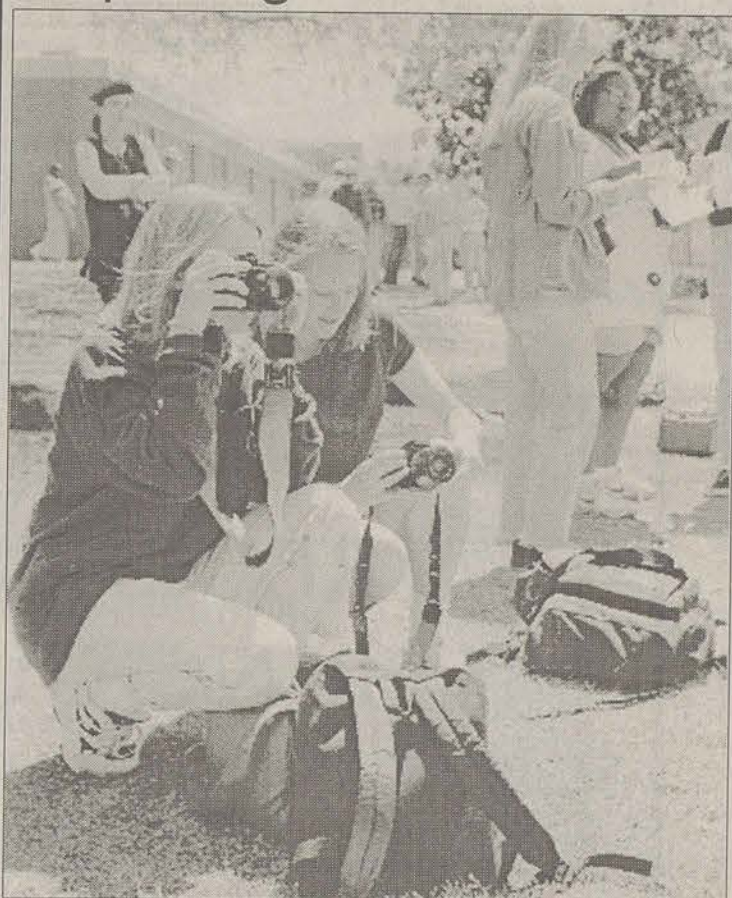

Cahill requested a 200 percent increase from $500 to $1,000 to cover increased office supplies, and a request has been made to increase the postage fund 50 percent to $300 in order to cover increased postage rates.

With the installation of a FAX machine, CLEC has requested its communications budget be increased to $1,088, a 123 percent increase from 1996 budget of $488.

The subscription and dues category of the CLEC budget has a proposed increase of 110 percent for 1997. This cost covers the membership fee for the Association of Performing Arts Presenters, the

No sanctions against Sigma Nu in KA house fire

By Erika Anderson
Staff Writer

There will be no implications for Sigma Nu fraternity after two of its members were suspended from GSU this quarter for charges in the Feb. 15 fire at the Kappa Alpha house, said Edward Bayens, director of judicial affairs.

Stephen Ira Leeb, 20, of Metter, and Gordon Ross Mims, 20, of Statesboro, both residents of the Sigma Nu house, were charged with second-degree criminal damage for the fire at the KA house and have been suspended from GSU during spring quarter.

"They will be eligible to apply for re-admission for summer quarter, but that doesn't mean they'll be accepted," Bayens said.

The fire started when Mims allegedly pushed a lighted smoke bomb through an open laundry room window, igniting a basket of clothing.

The second-degree criminal damage to property charges came in mid-February, based on what GSU Police Captain Buddy Peaster called "recklessness of their actions which led to a fire." Police said at that time also that the two men acted alone without any Sigma Nu involvement.

"The president of Sigma Nu, when he found out who was responsible for the fire, called us and then talked [Leeb and Mims] into turning themselves in," Bayens said.

"As far as violations go, they were charged with violations of the Student Conduct Code," Bayens said. "We felt that warranted a quarter suspension."

Running on Shook's ticket is Heather Karlson for executive vice president, Tom Wilson for vice president of academic affairs, Ashlie Holland for vice president of finance and Austin Hardy for vice president of auxiliary affairs.

Shook, a junior, said he would like to continue the progress he said that SGA has made.

"We are more in touch with the students," he wants to restart the political action committee, Students for Statesboro, started last year under Lee Hyer.

Other projects Shook and his committee said they would like to accomplish next year include the establishment of call boxes on campus where students can call for an escort or a police officer.

Burns, a junior, served as a senator under former SGA president Rylan Traylor.

GSU may expand recycling program

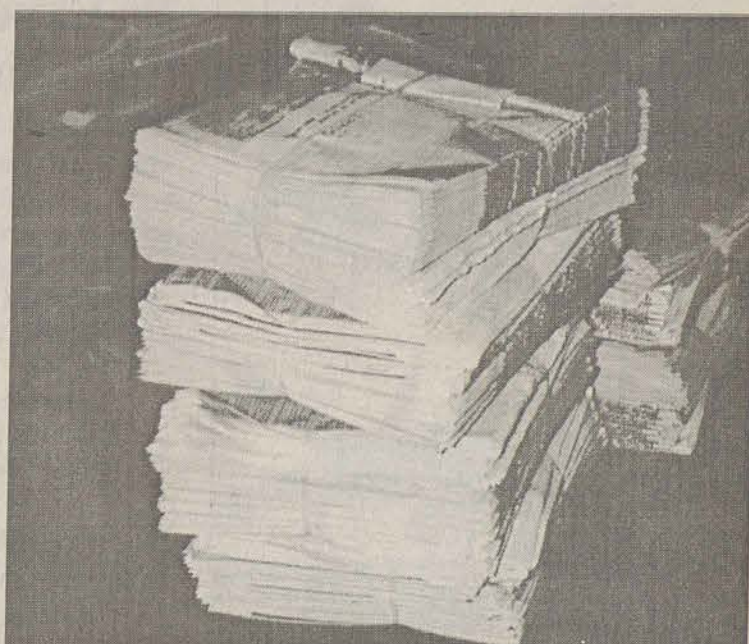

By Alex Boney
Staff Writer

The Physical Plant is planning to incorporate a wider variety of paper products into its recycling program by the end of spring quarter.

Recycling Coordinator Suzanne Venerable said the current paper recycling program accepts only white paper, which consists primarily of notebook and computer paper.

"We want to expand our program to include newspaper, magazines and brown paper," she said. "There's a good chance of that happening this quarter."

Venerable said the Physical Plant does not currently recycle more types of paper because the recycling contract that GSU has with Fort Howard calls for office and white paper only.

With the changes in the recycling program, students may be able to recycle newspapers, magazines and brown paper.

"The value of paper fluctuates a lot, and [Fort Howard] brings in the most money," Venerable said.

SPARTA — A man has paid the bond of one of his employees charged with stealing items from him.

Jim Roy Haley paid the $1,000 bond Tuesday shortly after Don Lee Holder was charged with theft in the disappearance of $6,500 in plumbing and electrical supplies.

"It was just $1,000. Anybody could make that bail," said Haley, who owns a farm and small market. "I figured I'd get him out of jail, and then he could help me find the rest of the stuff he stole from me."

White County Sheriff Charles Anderson said Holder is suspected of selling the items.

Holder is due to appear in court April 19.

Preservationist tries

The Associated Press

SAGINAW — The red neon outline of the bean bunny will glow again if Thomas B. Mudd has his way.

The 50-foot leaping rabbit and the word "beans" atop the Klein-Berger Co. building comprise a sign that promoted Michigan Bean Co. products from 1947 to 1985.

Mudd has gotten the Saginaw Community Foundation to try to raise $25,000 to $30,000 for repairs and to set up an account to cover annual operating costs of about $1,200.

Money raised by the foundation would be transferred to another organization, which would accept ownership of the sign from Klein-Berger. But that's where Mudd has become stuck; one possible sponsor, the Saginaw Hall of Fame, says it can't afford the risk.

"The Hall of Fame is not what you'd call an organization that keeps cash on hand, and therefore, individuals would be liable if the sign ever fell, even though it's such a distant possibility," secretary Evelyn Shields said. "That has about as much chance of happening as the pope turning Protestant," said Mudd, a member of the Hall of Fame.

"One way or another, it will get done," he said of the red rabbit's restoration. "Fate has ordained that this will be lit up."

BELOIT — A Beloit man punched his girlfriend in the mouth, causing her to swallow his $3,000 one-carat diamond earring, according to a criminal complaint.

Melvin Zinn, 29, charged in Rock County Circuit Court with substantial battery, disorderly conduct and resisting an officer, was released on a signature bond. His next court appearance is April 29.

His girlfriend, Laquita Walker, 23, of Janesville, was arrested on suspicion of disorderly conduct and criminal damage to property, both misdemeanors, for allegedly kicking Zinn's door and ripping carpet off his front porch. She was ordered to appear in court May 14.

According to the complaint and police reports, the two fought over who would pay for the earring. She put it in her mouth and he punched her in the face, breaking her nose and causing her to swallow the earring, authorities said.

Pedophile agrees to let

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Convicted child molester Larry Don McQuay agreed to allow a victims rights group pay for his castration.

The 32-year-old pedophile, transferred from prison to the Wackenhut Corrections facility in San Antonio, has insisted that he probably will molest again unless he is castrated.

"We believe that to the best of our ability, not being psychologists or psychiatrists, that Larry Don McQuay is sincere in his beliefs and he is sincere with his intentions to go on with the castration," said Pam Lychner, a spokeswoman for Justice For All.

Attorney Paul Looney, who represented McQuay last year in a lawsuit against Harris County, said money for the castration has never been an issue.

"If Justice For All wants to step up and pay, we'll let them," Looney said. "There has not been a funding problem from the get-go. But we'll let them and keep our money."

NAPA, Calif. — David Lammon won't soon forget his wife's and children's birthdays.

In an amazing defiance of odds, Starr Lammon gave birth to a third daughter, the same day she and both her previous daughters were born.

Weatherman arrested between newscasts

The Associated Press

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A television weatherman was arrested between his station's evening newscasts after asking an undercover police officer for sex, police said.

Steve Martone, the lead weatherman at KTHV in Little Rock, was arrested in Burns Park and charged with one count of public sexual indecency.

An undercover narcotics officer said he encountered Martone on the Boy Scout trail in the park.

Martone said he was looking for a good time but was scared because of all the people in the area, the officer said.

Martone suggested that, for privacy, the pair go to the park's visitor center, where Martone asked for oral sex, police said.

The officer and Martone went back to the Scout trail, where the officer saw Martone rubbing his groin. Martone again told the officer he wanted him to perform oral sex, police said.

Martone, 42, of Little Rock, was taken to the Sherwood jail and transferred to a county prison, where he made bond, police said.

KTHV News Director John Rehauer said the station was reviewing the case.

Broader recycling program is a smart move for GSU

With Earth Day just around the corner, GSU has taken an appropriate step in contributing to the waste reduction efforts taking place across the country.

The Physical Plant has announced a new plan to install another set of recycling bins on campus that will accept newspapers, magazines and brown paper. Our recycling program is currently a restrictive one, as white paper is the only recyclable product for the paper bins now on campus.

Since several racks for commercial newspapers and freely-distributed publications are scattered throughout campus, the consumption of newsprint is heavy in all areas. Without a reasonable means to recycle these products, GSU was letting a valuable opportunity go to the wayside.

The appearance of new bins for newspapers, magazines and other products will allow students, faculty and staff to take full advantage of the chance to recycle what they use. We will therefore have a more environmentally-conscious university.

At the same time, we must urge students to deposit the correct products into their appropriate bins. Too many people are throwing garbage into bins intended for white paper or cans, and this is irresponsible. It costs time and money to separate the products, an activity that no reasonable person should expect others to do.

We encourage students not only to begin putting their trash where it belongs, but also to do some recycling of their own. The catch phrase "Reduce, Reuse, Recycle" is a valid one.

There are nearby recycling centers available for students to use, and all it takes is a little extra effort. Not everyone has time to make these efforts, but at least on campus we may now begin recycling practically everything except garbage.

Be Earth-friendly and take part in this program.

Give GSU tennis more coverage

Editor,

It is unfortunate that you have given so little attention to the tennis teams this season, which closes next week with the Southern Conference Championships.

Both teams have a strong chance of winning these championships. The women's team accomplishments have been especially outstanding. They have beaten two ACC teams — Georgia Tech and UVA — and have already won the regular season crown in the Southern Conference and will definitely repeat as winners of the Southern Conference tournament.

The team boasts a nationally-ranked singles player as well as a doubles team. This women's tennis team is the strongest in the history of GSU.

Hopefully in the next few weeks there will be a few commendatory articles in The George-Anne.

Doling out a mediocre campaign is useless

In a matter of weeks the presidential race has gone from a high-stakes drama to a petty footnote in the world's major events.

This is a far cry from 1968, or even 1972, when the most talked-about event of the year was the upcoming election and people were being shot over their candidacy for the office. This is not to say that I want a race so heated that people turn to violence, but a little more than lukewarm interest would be in order.

In six months we will be ready to choose the group of people who will carry our nation into the new millennium, yet we find ourselves more fascinated with a small group of outlaws hiding out on some podunk Montana ranch.

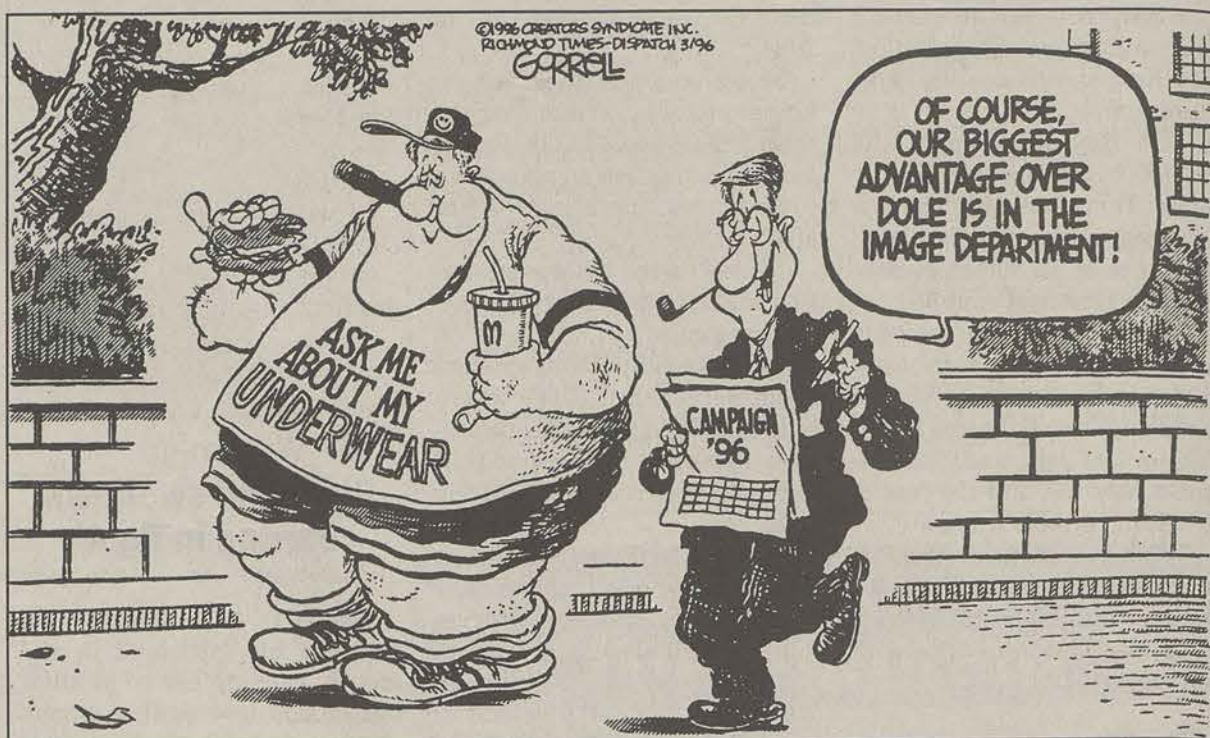

That shows you something. Every year the politicians get louder and louder, yet we care less and less.

Popular wisdom tells us that 1992 was a watershed year for getting the young voter engaged in the selection process. We saw the advent of MTV politics, where anything goes when it comes to candidate questions. It was the year of the potatoe, plastic Gore, that drawling Texan and his babbling running mate, Bush campaigning for the Braves, and Clinton carrying shades and a sax.

We had a little fun back then, didn't we?

This year, on the other hand, has been less than inspiring. We are faced with choosing between a backpedaling, flip-flopping liar and his scandal-ridden wife, and a man who has dwelled in the stuffy Senate chamber most of his years on this planet and doesn't know how to form an impressive identity.

I'm no Clinton freak, but I'm willing to say out loud what most frustrated Dole-leaning people are muttering angrily under their breath: While the senator would make a fine president, his campaign so far is a gray mass of trite ideas that offer nothing outstanding to the voters. Not to mention, his speech writers and image handlers need some mafor caffeine.

What we've heard from Dole is the familiar Reagan rip-off without a new spin. That's fine if Dole shares the former president's ideology, but people just aren't buying it. His potential supporters don't see the but Dole has to hit the ground running.

George Bush made the mistake of waiting too long to get serious. The more successful candidates in recent history have spent at least a year hammering their ideas into the voters' skulls.

Reagan doctrine as a failure, but they want something new added to it.

"Cut taxes. Cut spending. Cut regulation. Pass welfare and political reform." That's the gist of Dole's message. Fine with me — I'd vote for that.

But how about some specific tax code reform, with real simplification? How about more details on what programs and entitlements should be cut, and by how much? Should we restrict the regulating power of agencies like OSHA?

People want to know specifics, and they want to hear them with gusto. I realize the more frenzied campaign season this fall will bring out more details, Success also comes from charisma. When you sweep the primaries across an entire region, you don't get before the TV cameras and read your remarks off of index cards. The obvious impression is that of a stale, poorly managed, lackluster campaign.

This current failure is most damaging to Dole's attempted appeal to the younger generation. It simply won't work if we think he's a push-button robot. Young voters reflect the sentiments of stereotypical California voters in general: They aren't so much interested in philosophy as they are in excitement.

Dole's dependence on the respect factor is turning into his greatest weakness. We are all grateful for his WW2 service and his many years of work in the Senate. But that respect only translates into votes from one or two age groups, and certainly doesn't cut across demographic lines.

Bob Dole did not win the nomination because he is a legendary campaigner. He won it because of his support from the Republican elite and widespread concerns about his opponents. He didn't get the grassroots "fire in the belly" that a presidential challenger needs.

Bill Clinton, it is often said, has the great advantage of getting to act "presidential" during the campaign while other politicians just talk. Never mind that Bob Dole's character and stature make him, in reality, more of a presidential figure.

To overcome the incumbent advantage, it will take some quick, loud talking on Dole's part. So far he has not seemed up to the task, but he must face it if he every wants to be president.

The bottom line is that Bob Dole has to become somebody — and fast. Win or lose, whether the people like that somebody or not, he has to mount some kind of appeal... if only for the sake of making this a memorable year for the voters.

We never mention the forgotten oppressed

The second group of people who settled here took full advantage of the great wilderness God created. I guess they thought it was created just so good God-fearing people like them could reap its rewards and destroy its fertile soil, to make it suitable for civilized living.

They were very holy people comers' countries had even been formed.

I guess you know who I'm talking about by now — the American Indian tribes that lived in what Ponce de Leon called La Florida. They were enslaved by the Spanish to mine gold beginning in October of 1492. A man by the name of Christopher Co-tacked the next spring when the newcomers didn't need them anymore. How grateful they must have been.

And how grateful they are today now that we give them no credit.

Just for the record, blacks get a whole month to learn about their pain and suffering and how to grow as individuals.

After being enslaved since 1619, when the first African slaves arrived in Jamestown, Va., I think it's only fair they have a holiday as a reminder of how they've progressed and overcome a lot of hardships that ignorant white men deemed commonplace to press upon blacks in that time.

But what they suffered is incomparable to the American Indian hardship that took place in America.

Everything that ignorant white men did to blacks, he also did to Indians, for a longer span of time, and he never gave the Indians any food or shelter.

Please don't take this as if I were saying that blacks had it easy — no way, the only people that have ever had it easy are the male, white, landowning Protestants (of which I am not, as well as many other white people around here).

Not all white people were slaveowners back then; in fact, some whites worked along slaves as indentured servants to pay off their debt. It upsets me when some blacks speak of slavery as if the whole white race is guilty of it.

The only people who had slaves back then are the same people who still own everything, and the ones who run everything. We are not each others' enemies. The system is our enemy.

EVERYTHING THAT IGNORANT WHITE MEN DID TO BLACKS, HE ALSO DID TO INDIANS, FOR A LONGER SPAN OF TIME, AND HE NEVER GAVE THE INDIANS ANY FOOD OR SHELTER.

who lived decent, religiously sound lives. Except for one thing: They were absolutely ass-backwards.

The people they were trampling over to get to their promised land were looked upon by the newcomers as barbarians. They were wrong. Dead wrong.

So wrong that they attacked the rightful owners and took the land for themselves.

While the newcomers were celebrating God's protection of them in the battle, and praising God's strength in securing the land with few casualties, the rightful owners were mourning the massive loss of lives in the battle, and the loss of the land they loved and their ancestors had loved since before the newlumbus arrived and found gold, and immediately began his quest for money.

When Columbus arrived there were anywhere from 50-100 million people living in the Western Hemisphere, and about 12 million in what we call America. It was an invasion, not a colonization. God's noble servants from Europe cared nothing about the land except for the monetary value of it, and much less about the people who really owned it.

The owners had no guns, yet they were fired upon by newcomers. When the newcomers ran out of food in the winter, the Indians would bring them food, asking nothing in return.

They sure got something in return, though. They got at-

Panel bans 1995 legislative map

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — A judicial panel has barred Georgia from using its 1995 legislative map for this year's elections unless the plan receives federal approval.

In an order, the federal judges said the state may not sidestep the provisions of the federal Voting Rights Act. Georgia is one of several Southern states that must win Justice Department approval of any changes that affect elections to ensure that the strength of minority voters is not diluted.

The same panel will study maps and listen to arguments in seeking to quickly decide district boundaries for this year's races.

Qualifying for elected offices begins April 22.

The state and attorney Lee Parks, who sued successfully over Georgia's congressional districts, contend that recent court rulings make Georgia's current state House and Senate seats unconstitutional.

The Justice Department and the American Civil Liberties Union will argue that the current seats are legally sound.

However, the proposed new districts drawn last year are unconstitutional because 11 majority black seats were dismantled unnecessarily.

Cookie millionaire seeks Gingrich's seat

The Associated Press

KENNESAW — Michael Coles, the multimillionaire founder and owner of the Great American Cookie Co., is seeking the Democratic nomination to oppose House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

"I will not stand by and let Newt Gingrich ... continue to misrepresent the people of this district," Coles, 52, said.

He pledged to spend at least $250,000 of his own money on the campaign in Georgia's 6th District.

Coles, whose company is a chain of cookie stores, faces computer software business owner Cliff Oxford and lawyer Tony Center, Gingrich's 1992 challenger, in the July 9 Democratic primary. Gingrich has no announced opposition on the Republican side.

Gingrich had a scare in 1990, when he won the race by fewer than 1,000 votes, and again in 1992, when another Republican challenged him in the primary.

But this year, Coles has "an awfully steep hill to climb" if he wants to knock Gingrich out of his new district, said Charles Bullock, a University of Georgia political scientist. It was redrawn in 1992 and is considered a safe Republican district, he said.

Tricia Primrose, a spokeswoman for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said the committee likely will give whomever is nominated to run against Gingrich as much as the law allows.

"We want to keep (Gingrich) in that district, taking that race seriously," she said.

Ben Jones quits politics

The Associated Press

DECATUR, Ga. — Former Rep. Ben Jones says he's calling it quits in politics.

Jones wanted one last hurrah, a race for Georgia's 4th District seat, but the former television actor said a third knee replacement surgery this week has changed his mind.

"I've done my public service. I had a ball doing politics, but it's over," said Jones, a Democrat who formerly represented the 4th District.

Instead of running in a crowded field that includes Rep. Cynthia McKinney, D-Ga., for the newly redrawn district, Jones is supporting attorney Comer Yates.

Jones has been incapacitated after two unsuccessful knee replacement surgeries and spent his time writing a satirical novel. He plans to return to the entertainment industry in Los Angeles and hopefully to a reunion movie this summer based on "The Dukes of Hazzard" sitcom, which he starred in during the late 1970s.

More changes in the athletic department

While interviewing former student athlete Michael Curry, who currently plays for the Detroit Pistons, I was surprised by his warm nature and impressed by the determination it took for him to make it into the NBA.

However, I should not have been surprised GSU has produced more than a few high-caliber athletes who have gone on to success after leaving college.

The list of successes stand as shining examples of the real success of respected coaches such as Jack Stallings, and former coaches Drema Greer, Jim Vargo, and Erk Russell. Because of them, these athletes were challenged not only on their respective playing fields but in the classroom.

The success of many of the current student athletes was supported by former athletic academic advisor Kenneth Macmillan.

Macmillan served not only as an academic advisor, but as surrogate parent and an advocate for the athletes. His presence literally became a determining factor in many student athletes decision to remain student athletes.

Macmillan stressed the importance of being more than an athlete.

His philosophy was to become a multi-dimensional person.

He tied this in with making sure student athletes understood the responsibility of representing of our institution.

He stood as an advocate and effective liaison between players and coaches.

During his time, programs such as the 3.0 Club highlighted the accomplishment of the student athlete, while giving others the incentive to continue to strive for academic excellence.

Macmillan has been key to the success of many former student athletes such as former quarterback Joe Dupree, now head coach at Elon Academy in Macon; former quarterback and MBA student Charles Bostick, who was just selected for a prestigious management position for J.B. Hunt; and former defensive lineman Hughie Hunt, who will be attending law school this fall.

Unfortunately Macmillan's position has been eliminated and added to the duties of another former coach, Scott Farmer, because of "budget cuts."

This situation has left many athletes feeling believing opinions are not important to the decisions made by the institution they represent.

One current athlete summarized the situation "before Macmillan we were alone, with him we at least had a voice."

Everything cannot be measure by numbers. There are certain intangible elements that are even more critical to success than the sale of season tickets, and win-loss percentages.

On behalf of all the student athletes: Mr. Macmillan, your work has not been in vain. You have made a difference.

Thank You.

Eagles clinch regular season crown

By Ronnie Swinford
Sports Editor

GSU used a sweep of third-place Furman to clinch the Southern Conference regular season championship and number one seed in the conference tournament in two weeks.

But the real story of the games was Eagle first baseman Tommy Peterman. He slammed four homeruns and collected eight RBIs for the weekend. Peterman is also getting closer to the GSU single season record of Ben Abner for homeruns which stands at 27. Peterman has 19 with several games left in the season.

Sunday's game

GSU, buoyed by their 10th game of the year in double figure scoring, trounced the Furman Paladins in the last game of the home set 10-4.

GSU put the first run up in the bottom of the third. The inning started with Donnie Coe singling. He then stole second, and advanced to third on a fielders choice. Antoine Moran then slashed a ball to the third baseman.

He came home with the ball to cut down Coe at the plate. Moran had reached base though, and wasted little time in stealing both second and third.

Moran was driven in by Tyson Whitley on a single. GSU led 1-0.

In the bottom of the fourth inning GSU would push across four more runs.

The inning started with two walks, one to Steve Walson, and one to Mark Hamlin. Sy Jones then lined the second pitch that he saw out of the yard for a three-run homer.

Later in the inning, Coe walked. He then stole second, and advanced to third on an error by the third baseman. Moran then flew to short left. The throw would have gotten Coe at the plate, but it was cut-off by the third baseman who then tried to get Coe at the plate. His throw was low and allowed Jason Andrews to reach second on the throw. GSU led 5-0.

Furman finally got the bats working in the top of the fifth inning. They scored four runs on five singles and a hit batter.

In fact, they loaded the bases on a dribbler into the hole, a bunt single, and a hit batter.

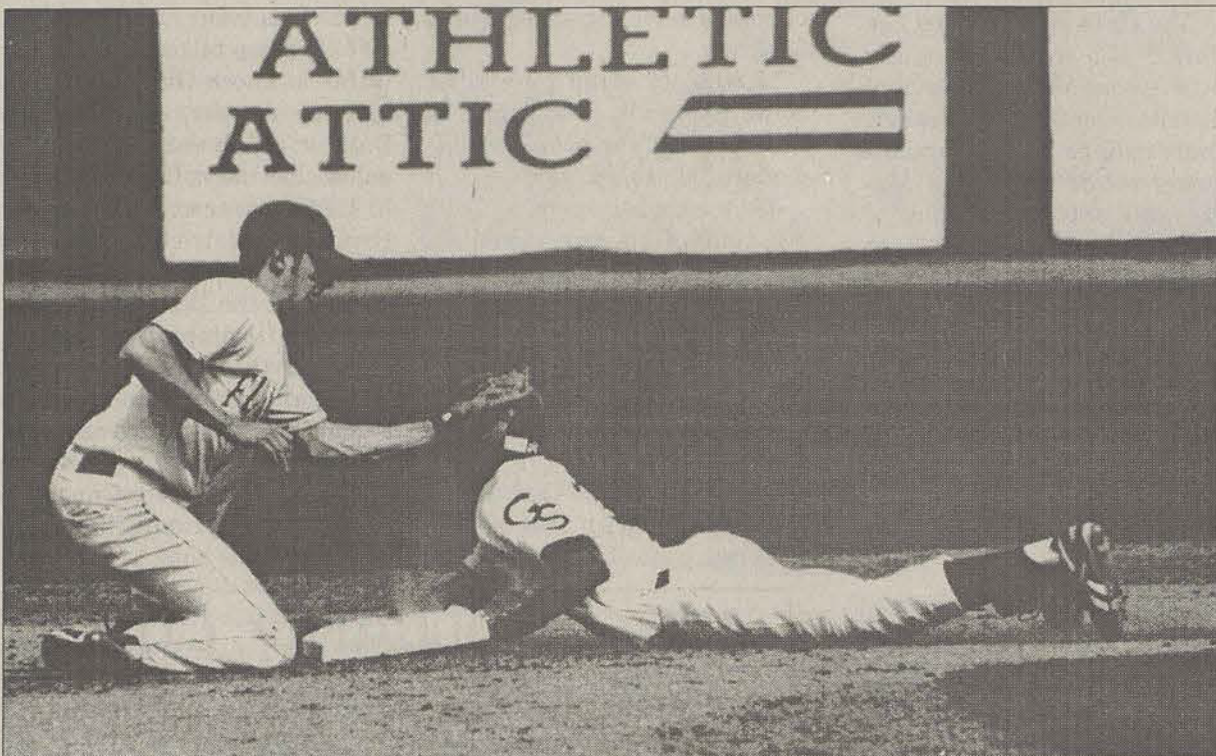

Then three straight singles scored the four for Furman. GSU still led, but it was now 5-4.

GSU answered in typical GSU style - a Peterman solo homer that landed halfway to Fair Road. GSU led by two, but the offense was just warming up. They would go on to score one in the sixth, and four more in the seventh to get the 11-4 win.

Saturday's first game

GSU, needing a win to clinch the regular season title in the conference, would have to battle and claw to a 4-2 win in the first game of the Saturday doubleheader against Furman.

GSU put the first run of the game up in the second inning

GSU's Antoine Moran steals second against Furman. GSU stole seven bases in Sunday's game.

Bob Schwindler

GSU would add its last three runs of the game in the bottom of the fourth inning. A single by Walson started the inning. Then Mark Hamlin singled into right field to give GSU two runners on base.

Sy Jones quickly ended that situation by hitting a ball over the left field wall. GSU led 4-0 and that would be all they would need.

GSU starting pitcher Julio Ayala went seven and two-thirds innings.

He gave up eight hits and two runs, but struckout five.

Tod Lee replaced Ayala, and with an inning and a third of work he allowed no hits and struck out three.

"We are happy to be the number one seed," GSU head coach Jack Stallings said. "But that only counts for when you play. We need to just play one game at a time."

Saturday's second game

GSU pounded the Paladins early, often and hard in the nightcap, scoring 14 runs and scorching the Paladin pitching staff for 14 hits and seven walks.

GSU had another story in this game. Eagle pitcher Ryan Cummings gave up a check swing single to the first batter he faced from Furman.

He didn't give up another hit until Danny Leibach launched a pitch out of the yard for the only Furman run of the game.

Offensively, GSU started hot. Back-to-back triples by Antoine Moran and Tyson Whitley gave GSU a run and a runner at third.

A single by Tommy Peterman then scored Whitley.

After a flyout by Steve Walson, Mark Hamlin and Sy Jones walked, and Michael Holder hit his first homerun of his career, a grand slam. GSU led 6-0, and the game was just starting.

GSU touched Furman for another run in the second inning complements of Peterman.

He nailed a pitch to right center field.

The score was now GSU 7-0.

GSU would get three more runs in the fourth inning, three more in the fifth inning, and one more in the sixth inning.

Peterman was the main Paladin killer, hitting a two-run shot in the fourth and a three-run shot in the fifth inning.

In fact, had Whitley been able to get on base in the sixth inning, Peterman would have had a shot at the cycle, the homerun cycle. Peterman contributed seven RBIs in the game.

Another happy Eagle after the game was Michael Holder.

"It felt great to hit the slam," Holder said. "I only need one more to pass Buddy."

Buddy Holder is the Eagles' first base coach, and a former GSU catcher. He hit one homerun in his career at GSU.

Peterman had a little extra pressure on him in the game.

His parents and grand-parents were at the game.

"It felt great to have a game like this in front of all my family," Peterman said. "We are conditioned to play every game as hard as we can."

Jack Stallings, was pleased with the home stand, but cautioned about being too confident.

"We have to play every game hard," Stallings said. "I am glad they played hard in the second game (of the doubleheader); it would have been easy to let down in the second game after clinching the first seed, but they played very well tonight."

The Eagles' next four games are on the road: Two at Charleston Southern starting Tuesday, and two at Clemson next weekend.

Clemson is ranked ninth in the country and GSU is ranked 24, so that weekend series should be a barn-burner.

SOFTBALL

Lady Eagles take three of four from UTC

By Mike Davis
Senior Staff Writer

Sunday afternoon at the GSU softball complex, the Lady Eagles proved to everyone who doubted them before the season started, that they too could win the Southern Conference regular season.

A day after the GSU baseball team secured first place in its conference, the Lady Eagles won three games out of four against UT-Chattanooga to give them the top spot of their league standings.

"This is exciting," Coach Kelly Kirkland said after the 4-2 win. "I'm very pleased with this team. They set out to do one thing. That was to win the conference, and they did it. This is pretty emotional."

Sunday's second game became much more crucial after they lost the first 8-4.

With only one chance to secure the top spot, this would be their last conference game before the tournament.

In the second game, GSU jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

Senior Missy Boyd scored off a Lady Moc throwing error, followed by a RBI single off the bat of Danelle Toole to score Missy Dunn. UTC committed six errors in the second game for a total of 11 on the day.

The Lady Mocs then tied the game with two runs in their half of the fourth inning, highlighted by a solo homerun from Allison DeVries.

With UTC threatening to continue to add more runs in the fourth, Lady Eagle pitcher Dunn managed to escape the inning with UTC runners stranded on second and third.

In the bottom of the fourth inning, the Lady Eagles broke the game open once again.

This time it was from Sherry Russo, who connected on her first homerun of the season with a solo shot over the left field fence.

With Beth Dance on second and two outs, Renee Johnson grabbed her fifth hit and fifth RBI of the season with a single to right field, adding assurance which finally captured the win.

Russo, who went 2-for-3 from the plate, led the team with her homer and first inning double.

"I'm happy with what I'm seeing right now," Kirkland said.

"We're not going to change anything from here on out. If we can continue to hit and play defense, then we'll be all right."

The Lady Eagles were put into position to clinch first place after sweeping UTC 3-1 in the first game and 7-1 in the second of Saturday's games.

In Saturday's first game, pitcher Vanessa Fawcett cruised to the two-run win with the help of more UTC errors.

Dunn scored to give GSU a two-run lead after reaching first base from a Lady Moc fielding error.

After UTC scored in the fifth to cut the lead to one, Lowder belted a double and later scored from Russo's sacrifice fly, giving them the two-run win.

In Saturday's second game, the GSU offense showed no mercy after winning the first contest. They belted UTC for seven runs of nine hits.

Getting plenty of support from the plate, Dunn pitched a second-game gem, allowing only one run off three hits.

Already up by five runs,

GSU ace Vanessa Fawcett pitching against UTC.

Bob Schwindler

Danelle Toole connected on her first homerun of the season with a solo shot in the seventh to put the game out of reach.

The Lady Eagles hit four doubles in the game to add to their record-setting total of 66 two-baggers. They smashed the previous mark of 37 earlier in the season.

Russo finished with two doubles in her 2-for-4 performance with two runs scored.

GSU never trailed in either of Saturday's games.

Securing the top spot in the regular season on Sunday wasn't the only cause for celebration. Seniors Fawcett and Boyd were honored in between games for their contributions to the GSU softball program.

Fawcett, a three-time Southern Conference "Pitcher of the Week" winner this season, led the league with a 0.93 earned run average before Sunday's contests. Her record after Sunday was 16-11 with 103 strikeouts.

Boyd leads the team in at-bats and runs scored.

As the Lady Eagles' lead-off hitter for the whole season, Boyd is ranked third in the conference with 0.21 stolen base average.

Their next home appearance will be when they host the Southern Conference tournament on April 27-28, in which they will hold down the top seed.

"I hope people will continue to support us," Kirkland said.

"We've earned respect this year from the teams and the fans. The kids are playing to win."

GSU softball getting a bit 'Lowder'

By Mike Davis
Senior Staff Writer

Whatever influenced McCaine Lowder to venture from the sunny domain of California to play softball for GSU, Head Coach Kelly Kirkland is glad she did.

Lowder is certainly not the typical freshman athlete, for she has done more on the field than what was expected, in her coach's terms and her own.

Yes, Lowder has definitely impacted the GSU softball team this year, and the 28-18 record that clinched the top spot in the Southern Conference regular season standings is a result of it.

But why did she come to GSU? "Everybody asks me that," Lowder said. "When my dad moved to Georgia, I came to visit the campus and really liked it. GSU is a beautiful place. When I finally got to meet Coach Kirkland, she was really great and I liked what she had to say. My mom also loved this school. It was as much her decision for me to come here as it was mine."

Whether it was her mom's choice or her own, Lowder's presence here at GSU leaves only one word that can give an honest description of Kirkland: "lucky." "McCaine is a great player," Kirkland said. "She handles the plate exceptionally well and she generates offense with her bat. Her vocalness on and off the field is also valuable. I do consider myself lucky to have her on the team."

So far this year, Lowder has posted a .333 batting average, third highest on the team. She leads the team with 45 hits and has scored 22 runs while knocking in 17 RBIs as well.

"She's been an outstanding kid to coach," Kirkland said. "What I look for are players that are coachable, and McCaine is that and more. That makes my job easier and more fun."

Lowder's personality and attitude on and off the field has jelled what was just a regular softball team into a family.

"I think if we were losing, we would probably all hate each other," Lowder said with a laugh. "But we all get along great. We are all close and I don't think we have just one person that is considered a leader. We are all leaders, because we help each other out. If any of us see something wrong, then we'll speak up. Everyone out here feels free to say what they want."

Not exactly knowing what to expect when pre-season practice started, Lowder came in with the goal to contribute the best way she could. And her best contributions, in her mind, would come with playing time.

"Before we started practicing, I didn't expect to do as much, simply because I am a freshman," Lowder said. "But I still wanted to come in and play so I could help the team in every way possible."

Lowder, who is one of three freshman on the team, has started in all 46 games played this year, something that only three other Lady Eagles can boast. She was also named Southern Conference "Player of the Week" earlier in the season.

With her first season at GSU almost in the books, Lowder has yet to feel any pressure of being a contributing freshman. To her, this is all just fun and games.

"I don't feel any pressure when I'm playing," Lowder said. "Playing softball has always been fun, and this is no different. It's just a game. There will always be a winner and there will always be a loser. That's the way I've always looked at it."

FORMER PLAYER

Former Eagle motors in the NBA

By Carolyn Wynn
Staff Writer

For many, Michael Curry might be a name unfamiliar to current students, but to many true GSU basketball fans Curry is a name remembered for his great athletic ability and friendly personality.

Curry now has become a member of the Detroit Pistons. Curry signed a contract on Feb. 22 that is good for the remainder of the season. This signing comes after previously signing two 10-day contracts.

After leaving GSU in 1990, Curry played in the United States Basketball League and the Global Basketball League. He played in such countries as Germany, Belgium, Italy, and Spain.

In 1993, Curry played with the Philadelphia 76's for ten games, after which he started and played for the Omaha CBA team where he averaged 21 points, 4 assists and 3.4 rebounds while he was shooting 55 percent from the field.

Earlier this year Curry played with the Washington Bullets on a 10-day contract before being signed with Pistons.

Curry was not originally going to be recruited by GSU. However, after a recruitment trip Curry was noticed by former assistant coach Mike Backus.

"Here was this lanky young man with what had to be the largest feet I have ever seen working the court," Backus said. "There was something about this young man. Something that made him special."

And special he was. During his time at GSU Curry played in 119 games, totaling 1,121 points.

In 1990 alone he was the seasonal leader in rebounds (196), free-throw percentage (80.6) and scoring with 465 points.

During the 1990 season Curry was named to the Trans Atlantic Athletic Conference All-Conference first team.

Determination and talent have proven to be one of his biggest assets.

However, he said his mother and father are his biggest inspiration.

After playing in front of a Pistons home crowd of 16,150 against the Nets, Curry critiqued his performance so far this season.

"I feel pretty good so far. I have been doing what has been asked of me. Some nights I have been called on to do a little scoring but most nights my job has been to give a lift defensively," Curry said. "I have been able to do that."

In his quest to making it to the NBA he admits that his biggest challenge was gaining notoriety for his talents.

"Getting noticed was one of the biggest barriers," Curry said. "Once I was able to change my game and become a perimeter player, I had to show everyone that had seen me before that I had become a different player."

"I have been successful in Europe playing ball and now that I have established myself in the NBA, I am hoping to have a pretty long career pending the avoidance of any serious injury," Curry said.

Curry.

"The weather took a little getting used to. It's pretty cold here; however, the people are not," Curry said. "I have enjoyed being here. I have enjoyed the city and all the people that I have come across. Everyone has been very nice."

Curry, a former finance major, said he has not been to the campus in a couple of years, but is looking forward to visiting many that have known him as a hardworking, determined, down-to-earth young man.

Backus remembers Curry's ambition.

"I remember Curry telling me that he would be the next Georgia Southern basketball player to play in the NBA," Backus said. "So you can imagine my surprise to turn on the TV and to see Curry guarding Michael Jordan. I should have believed him."

Curry is only the second GSU basketball player to play basketball professionally.

The first was Jeff Sanders, who was drafted by the Chicago Bulls and played for both the Miami Heat and the Atlanta Hawks.

"THERE WAS SOMETHING ABOUT THIS YOUNG MAN. SOMETHING THAT MADE HIM SPECIAL."

— FORMER GSU ASSISTANT COACH MIKE BACKUS

During this match-up with the New Jersey Nets, Curry played 21 minutes and scored 6 points.

Curry has impressed both the fans and the press of Detroit. Greg Russell of WDFN Sports in Detroit reflects this.

"Curry has quite an impressive story," Russell said. "It is one of those stories of hard work and determination that makes basketball such a terrific sport."

The admiration for the city of Detroit is a two-way street for sometime during the summer.

"I been busy with ball every summer playing basketball mostly in Europe, usually coming home in May, and training again in the summer to get another job for the next season," Curry said.

However, he is excited to see the new business building, as well as getting a chance to catch up with many of the people he met during his time here.

DISCUSSION CORNER

STACY CLEMONS

We need better officials

Imagine this scenario: This is your third year playing intramural softball at GSU and for the third season in a row, you are being forced to play in a game with officials who have no idea what they are doing.

This scenario is becoming more and more of a reality as CRI hires less than average people to referee or umpire intramural games.

On April 10, as I stepped up to the plate for the third year in a row as a softball player, I came face-to-face with this problem and it has been on my mind ever since.

I was at the plate when I decided with a one-and-one count to take a pitch. Strike was the call and I stepped away to compose myself for the next pitch. An outside ball was called and once again I stepped away to compose myself. As I stepped up to the plate for what was to be the last pitch of this inning, the opposing pitcher threw a pitch that landed on home plate.

Can you guess what was called?

Unfortunately in the GSU sports world, problems such as this are not uncommon.

I would like to know why the people in the CRI office don't look for potential referees and umpires at least a couple months prior to the following quarters' intramural activity.

It is a known fact that during the intramural basketball season, the lack of experience of the officials is noticeable.

Some are standing around like they have no idea what is going on and others seem to just be happy refereeing a game that they call absolutely anything.

All the blame cannot be put on the CRI office. The people it decides to hire are part of the blame as well. It's evident that they don't pay much attention to what is going on in the officials meeting, or these inconsistencies would cease.

With the intramural softball season just getting underway, more of these problems will continue.

I just hope the players don't respond to a bad call in the manner that Los Angeles Lakers point guard, Nick Van Exel, has been known to do! We are all human, but some of these mistakes need to be fixed now!

STUDENT PROFILE

GSU tennis player shines on and off court

By Kelly Blake
Staff Writer

Markus Magnusson's hands were sweating as he walked on the tennis court for the beginning of the 1995 Southern Conference season.

He tried to concentrate as he gripped his racket, but the excitement of the first match was intensifying.

Things have changed for Magnusson since coming to the U.S. and attending school at GSU.

Originally from Sweden, Magnusson is considered to be one of the top players from GSU and is presently ranked no. 5.

"He is a very quiet, hardworking, and very nice person," said Melanie St. Pierre, assistant women's tennis coach.

Magnusson remembers last year's championship well. He ended up winning his division and hopes to continue last year's success.

His love for tennis began at a young age and has been part of his life ever since.

"When I was seven, my next-door neighbor took me to my first tennis lesson and that began my love for tennis," Magnusson said.

Now 22, he said he feels as strong as ever, both mentally and physically. When he is not on the tennis court, Magnusson spends his time studying or with his teammates and girlfriend, Jill Walker.

friend, Jill Walker.

"If it weren't for tennis, Markus and I would have probably never met," Walker said.

He attributes his success to "determination and hard work ethics."

Head Coach, Joe Blankenbaker said Magnusson is a good player and can be very hard to beat.

"Markus is difficult to beat, especially at his position and when he is at the top of his game," Blankenbaker.

When GSU offered him a scholarship to play tennis, Magnusson seized the opportunity.

"I did not know where I was going or what to expect because I had never been to the U.S. before," Magnusson said. "So this was a great opportunity to come to school in Georgia."

Magnusson said he plans to get an engineering degree and continue to reside in the U.S. for a few years.

Despite his long hours on the court, Magnusson has a 3.2 GPA.

He does not know how long he'll stay at GSU, but said he really likes the school and its tennis atmosphere which gives him a chance to play against some good schools.

"I am looking forward to playing against Georgia Tech because I may transfer there someday," Magnusson said.

Equestrian Club places first in recent showing

By Lynn Thielemann
Staff Writer

The GSU Equestrian Club placed first in an overall competition recently held in Statesboro.

The club beat equestrian clubs from Wesleyan, University of Florida, Florida State and the College of Charleston, who is ranked number one in the region, winning the best horse showing organization title.

"It's a big step for our club," Betsy Fajen, team captain said. "Very seldom does anyone beat the College of Charleston."

With this win, the club is now placing high enough to qualify for zone (region) competitions, which is the stepping stone to the national competitions.

Jerri Thomas, a team member who placed second in advanced Western riding and intermediate stock seat, is on her way to compete in the zones. If successful, Thomas will go on to the nationals in Los Angeles.

Other team members bringing wins back to GSU were Fajen, winner of the novice flat riding; Erin Williams, first in western riding; Jodi Reichert, tied for high point rider for jumping and flat riding; and Diana Blount, who competed with the GSU team for the first time, second place.

The season is ending for the Equestrian Club, which is now ranked fifth for English riding and second in stock seat.

"We've improved dramatically," Fajen said. "Last year, we were ranked sixth in stock seat and now we're second."

The club will continue to perform at Wolf Pen Farms until the season ends in June and will begin again in September.

Best-selling crime author cheated in school

The Associated Press

OXFORD, Miss. -- John Grisham got some early practice writing fiction in law school — while taking a test.

Speaking in honor of new University of Mississippi chancellor Robert Khayat, the best-selling crime author recalled faking his answer to a tough essay question on the final exam in Khayat's class.

"I got clever and I got witty, and I hoped Khayat might appreciate my creativity and give me a break on that one question," Grisham said.

"My creativity had found its mark. He appreciated my ability to fill six pages with very little legal analysis." Khayat's note at the bottom of the page read: "Though you missed most of the legal issues, you have a real talent for fiction."

Grisham went on to write such legal thrillers as "The Firm," "The Client" and "The Pelican Brief."

RECYCLE

No plans have been made for campus-wide recycling of cardboard products, but Venerable said the Physical Plant may look into recycling cardboard in the dorms at the beginning of fall quarter.

Cardboard products from the library and bookstore, as well as magazines and newspapers, are currently taken to a warehouse on campus and kept there until the county takes them away to be recycled.

The new paper receptacles will be placed in the main lobby of each building on campus, beside the aluminum can and paper receptacles which are already in place.

"The bins will be a different color, so the separation of waste won't get too confusing," Venerable said. "We plan on going with gold."

She also said that unwanted trash has been a considerable problem since the recycling program was started.

"We definitely have a problem with trash being thrown into the paper bins," Venerable said. "People think we can recycle things like Doritos bags and candy wrappers, but we can't. Hopefully, having the new bins will eliminate some of the trash."

CANDIDATES

Michael Hunter for vice president of finance, and DeeDee Williams for vice president of academic affairs.

Burns said one of his big concerns is campus safety. He said he would like to have more lighting on campus as well as more police officers available. He said many students feel unsafe, especially girls, when they have to walk a long distance from their dorm.

He also said he would like "to take a look at food services."

"A lot of students miss out on meals over the weekend (if they have a meal plan) and I think they should be able to benefit from it (unused meals)," he said.

Burns said he would also like to improve registration and implement a track program at GSU.

"If we had one [track program] at GSU, we could increase the recruits for the basketball and football teams," he said.

He said he would also like to increase participation at many of the athletic events and is meeting with Athletic Director Sam Baker to discuss some of his ideas.

"I want to be a medium between students and faculty; I want to give to the students. After all, if I get elected it's because of them," Burns said.

Ford, a junior, is the only candidate who has not previously been involved in SGA.

Running with Ford are Ryan Bradley for executive vice president and Jonathan Fazio for vice president of academic affairs.

Ford said one of his main concerns is race relations on campus. He said he would like to see people communicate better with each other.

"I don't see people talking or getting together," he said. "People need to understand each other."

Like Burns, Ford said he is also concerned with campus safety and would like to help prevent future problems.

There are also 52 students running for 27 senate seats.

Executive Vice President Carlton "Slick" Dickerson had considered running for president, but said he has now decided not to run. However, he said that he would like to apply for a senate position next fall.

BUDGET

National Assembly of Local Arts Agencies, the Georgia Assembly of Community Arts Agencies and other performing arts memberships.

Cahill has requested a 100 percent increase in the advertising/promotion budget to $1,500 to purchase ads.

A projected fee of $560 has been requested for the registration fee for the annual APAP showcase and conference. This is a 22 percent increase from the 1996 budget of $460.

The printing/publications category of CLEC's budget covers the printing of the special events calendar, as well as additional printing expenses including announcements, publicity flyers and concert programs.

The proposed increase will raise the printing/publication budget 34 percent from $4,400 to $5,900.

The repairs and maintenance budget request includes for an increase of 43 percent, from $140 to $200, to cover additional costs of piano tuning before performances.

Piano tuning is a required item in all performance contracts.

The rentals category of CLEC's budget has no requested increase and remains at $1,250.

Student labor fees are $2,944, while casual labor fees are $2,000.

CLEC estimates that travel expenses will equal $1,725 for the 1997 academic year.

In total, CLEC requests an increase in its entire budget from $70,147 in 1996 to $78,557 in 1997.

E-MAIL CENTRAL

The Henderson Library has recently created an "E-Mail Central" area on the first floor for quick student access to electronic mail, the campus information system, the Library's on-line catalogs, and other text-based resources on the Internet. The 48 recycled computers in this area use older processors and have monochrome screens, but they can connect to the electronic mail and other information servers very well and thus make the newer 486- and Pentium-class computers available for more intensive computer applications and information retrieval tasks. This new area, along with all of the other resources on the Library's first floor, is open 24 hours a day from Sunday noon through Friday midnight, and from 8:00 a.m. to midnight on Saturday.

CORE TEXTBOOKS ON RESERVE IN LIBRARY:

In continued response to requests from SGA, Dr. Harry Carter, Vice President for Academic Affairs has placed copies of textbooks for primary core curriculum courses on one-hour reserve in the Henderson Library. These textbooks have been placed in the library to be available to students in an emergency, including instances where a textbook has been lost at a critical time, or left inadvertently at an off-campus location. Students are encouraged to purchase their own copies of the textbooks, and use these only in an emergency basis. The following texts are available at the Reserve Desk on the second floor of the Library for one-hour use inside the building.
