A Day for Southern exceeds fund-raising goal

By Gin Starling
Staff Writer

The annual A Day for Southern, held last Tuesday, raised over $670,000 to support university programs.

The drive, sponsored by the Georgia Southern Foundation and Southern Boosters, far surpassed this year's goal of $600,000.

Volunteers received donations totaling over $673,447, and the amount donated is expected to exceed $700,000 once the follow-up calls to the businesses which were closed or unable to donate on Tuesday are contacted.

The money raised during this drive will be used to provide for scholarships, research and services which not only benefit GSU but also the surrounding area.

"A Day for Southern makes it possible for us to provide academic scholarships and to assist in supporting the museum, Botanical Gardens, Wildlife Education Center, and the symphony," Bryan Ginn, director of annual giving for the foundation, said.

Community involvement with the university is of great importance, David Thompson, director of public relations, said.

"This fund drive serves the region and the greater public beyond just the students at GSU," he said.

A Day for Southern allows businesses to donate funds toward athletics as well as scholastics.

Most of the athletic funds go toward student-athlete scholarships.

Volunteers who donated their time to make phone calls and visit businesses in the area were treated to a dinner Tuesday evening at the Lupton Building.

Student recovering from apartment fire

By Justin Miller
Senior Staff Writer

A GSU student is recovering after receiving serious injuries in a fire that occurred near campus during the break between summer and fall quarters.

Lisa Meyers, 22, is recovering at home in Goose Creek, S.C., from burns to her hands, feet and legs received during the fire that swept through St. Charles Place apartment complex on Lanier Drive.

The blaze started around 4:30 a.m. on Aug. 12 in the mostly student-occupied complex.

The fire started on the bottom floor of the complex and grew upward until most of the building was engulfed in flames.

The Statesboro Fire Department had the blaze contained within fifteen minutes of their arrival.

The building, which contained 12 apartments, was mostly empty due to the break between summer and fall quarters.

Only four of the apartments were occupied. Meyers was the only resident injured in the fire.

The cause of the fire is yet unknown and officials are still investigating the matter.

"We know the apartment and general area it started in, but [we] don't know the cause of ignition," said Joe Beasley, chief of the Statesboro Fire Department.

The Aug. 12 fire began in this building containing 12 apartments at St. Charles Place.

When firefighters arrived on the scene, the only two sets of stairs in the complex were engulfed in flames, forcing them to use rescue ladders to assist in getting two residents down from their second-floor apartments.

Meyers, a senior pre-law major at GSU, received her burns as a result of sliding down a support beam in her attempt to escape the inferno prior to the arrival of the fire department.

She was initially taken to Bulloch Memorial, but due to the severity of her burns, was transported to the burn treatment unit at Columbia-Augusta Medical Center.

The complex, which is located near Allen E. Paulson Stadium, was nearly empty due to the break between classes, but had it occurred when school was in session the outcome could have been more tragic, officials said.

"The more apartments occupied, the greater the risk," Beasley said.

"There is always a great potential for loss of life, but we were fortunate we got the call when we did and we are fortunate it occurred when there were fewer occupants."

Southern Realty Company has placed all the residents of the burned units in other apartments.

Renter's insurance may benefit students

By Justin Miller
Senior Staff Writer

In the wake of the fire at the St. Charles Place apartment complex, some experts are advising students of the benefits of renter's insurance.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, theft is the number-one crime on college campuses. The III suggests that renter's insurance can "lessen the blow" experienced from tragedies such as theft, fire and other natural disasters that befall students and their residences.

Not all students' personal belongings are insured by their parents' insurance policies, and the III suggests consulting your parents' insurance agent first to see if you are covered.

According to Jayna Nagle at the III, students should shop around for a company that provides adequate and affordable insurance.

"You should shop around for prices, but look for someone you feel comfortable working with because you're going to need them when a tragedy strikes," Nagle said.

The III also suggests locking your doors, leaving expensive jewelry at home with your parents and engraving electronic items.

State of the University address

Henry: GSU making progress

By Amanda Crews
Editor

Using progress as his theme, GSU President Nicholas Henry assured the faculty Friday that overall we are doing "pretty well."

In his annual State of the University address, Henry pointed to tougher admissions policies, budget redirection and increasing construction as just some of the signs of progress around campus.

Beginning in the fall of 1997, GSU will begin increasing the minimal SAT scores and GPA's required by the Board of Regents for admission, he said.

Henry said the enforcement of these tougher admissions guidelines "will eventually amount to a 'zero-tolerance' policy for those applicants who lack a full complement of college preparatory courses taken in high school."

Henry identified the "record amount" of building as a sign of progress Friday. Above, Henry addresses the crowd at the groundbreaking ceremonies for the new ceramics and sculpture studio, one of the ongoing campus construction projects.

However, Henry noted the guidelines could also result in fewer developmental studies students in universities.

"Perhaps the most problematic policy from our standpoint will be the reduction of developmental studies students,

Williams sentenced to ten years for Greek thefts

By Justin Miller
Senior Staff Writer

A former GSU secretary who stole more than $100,000 from Greek accounts was sentenced Aug. 26 to 10 years in prison after pleading guilty to four counts of theft.

Beverly Williams, who served as secretary to former Associate Dean of Student Affairs James Orr, was indicted May 7 on four counts of theft of fraternity and sorority rush accounts, Panhellenic Council accounts and Intrafraternity Council accounts.

In addition to the ten-year sentence, Williams was ordered to pay $103,809.34 in restitution. She is scheduled to report to the sheriff's office at the end of the month to be transported to a prison under terminated as of yet by the State Department of Corrections.

Lee Davis, assistant to the vice president for legal business and finance, said that all funds were returned to the university.

The funds were bonded by an insurance company and were paid to the university in two lump sums, the first payment was made on Aug. 5 and the second on Sept. 4.

"We're glad to get the students compensated what they lost," Davis said.

The investigation was conducted by the GSU Division of Public Safety and involved Director Ken Brown, Capt. Buddy Peaster and Lt. Guy Sharp. The three-week long investigation into the missing sorority and fraternity funds turned up discrepancies in Panhellenic Council, Intrafraternity Council and rush accounts totaling

Employees' ailments lead to air quality testing in Rosenwald

By Joshua Edmonson
News Editor

Respiratory illnesses among six admissions office employees have prompted university officials to conduct air quality tests in the Rosenwald Building.

"The first indication that there may be a problem there was that several staff members began having difficulty breathing and sinus problems," Richard Armstrong, vice president of business and finance, said.

"Some of the physicians to whom these employees sought services suggested that there may be a problem in their work environment that was irritating their problems," Armstrong said. "They began to talk to each other and a group of six people was identified."

The administrators in admissions called in a professor from the biology department to observe the environment and to assess the situation.

Gene Anderson, public safety engineer, suggests that there may be a problem with the air quality.

"Some of the mildew and mold on the air conditioning vents were taken to see if they could identify them," Anderson said.

Ken Brown, director of public safety, said that there were some mold, spores, and pollen found in the preliminary testing, but nothing "that was bad."

"From a layman's point of view, some people are a lot more sensitive to pollens and dust than other people," Brown said.

The university police issued a contract to bring in an independent air quality expert. The contractor conducted his tests on Sept. 12. Test results were not complete as of press time.

"If there is a threat there, then we will take every step to eliminate the threat," Brown said.

Safety report shows decrease in DUIs

By Joshua Edmonson
News Editor

The public safety report for fiscal year 1996, published by public relations and the university police, shows dramatic decreases in alcohol-related arrests but a slight increase in controlled substance violations.

"The report looks real good," said Ken Brown, director of public safety.

The number of DUI arrests fell from 86 to 16 from July 1, 1995 to June 30, 1996. Brown said that the university police have not decreased their enforcement efforts toward DUIs and crimes involving alcohol but have increased their efforts toward educating the public about the dangers of drinking and driving.

"That, along with all the student organizations becoming more aware of the problem of drinking and driving and the notable cases of students being involved in accidents and death from drinking and driving has had an affect on our students," Brown said. "Efforts here and nationwide have cut back the number of DUIs. The number of DUIs has fallen

"EFFORTS HERE AND NATIONWIDE HAVE CUT BACK THE NUMBER OF DUIs."

— KEN BROWN, PUBLIC SAFETY DIRECTOR

throughout most jurisdictions in Georgia."

Brown attributes their success to the two-fold effort of enforcement and education.

"We have a captive audience here," Brown said. "We can reach out and touch our students through student organizations and GSU 120 classes."

Brown said they will be taking every opportunity to inform the students about the dangers of drinking and driving.

Twelve people were arrested last year due to violations of Georgia's Controlled Substance Act. In fiscal year 1995, five arrests had been made.

"I don't feel that is a dramatic increase," Brown said. "There were situations where multiple people were arrested at one time. Drugs are a problem in our society, not just at GSU. We will do everything we can to combat that problem."

The report shows there was 143 reported incidents of criminal trespass and 19 cases of criminal damage. No murders, forcible rapes, and non-forcible rapes were reported during fiscal year 1996.

There were 271 reported cases of theft last fiscal year. The university police are planning on being more proactive in an attempt to deter thieves.

"These cases involve anything from the stealing of a book bag in the library or an employee $113,000," Brown

Computer reported missing from Forest Drive Building

By Joshua Edmonson
News Editor

A computer valued at $1213 was allegedly stolen from the Forest Building on Aug. 16.

The stolen Macintosh LCG has not yet been recovered.

Several instructors from the math department were moved from the Forest Drive Building to Building 806. The computer was allegedly taken during the process of the move.

"An instructor for the math department in the Forest Drive Building was cleaning out her office and she took out everything except the math department computer," said Buddy Peaster, public safety captain.

"When they went back a couple of days later, Dr. Sparks realized the computer wasn't there."

The instructor, who was not identified, had locked the office door when she had vacated the office.

When Arthur Sparks, department chair of the math and computer science department, returned to the office, the door was locked.

Peaster said that there was no sign of forcible entry or a picked lock.

"The thing we are trying to do now is go through a couple of different departments to look for the computer," Peaster said. "We checked with the people in the math department and they don't think that they have it. We also checked with the history department and the instructors don't have it. We are also working with people at Surplus to make sure they don't have a list of taking the equipment out and providing it for another department's use."

Peaster said that the university police will also check with Equipment Transport.

On occasion, computers that have been reported stolen were moved due to people being away for breaks or were moved to another department.

"On the other side of the coin, the computer could really be stolen," Peaster said. "We aren't turning a deaf ear to the possibility that the computer may be stolen. There are just a lot of possibilities."

Several cases over the past year have been reported that are similar to this case, Peaster said.

Most of stolen computers reported have either no forced entry or there was multiple access to the computer.

It was reported that five or six people had direct access to the office as well as custodians and other departments.

CONSTRUCTION

Waste disposal delays parking lot

By Joshua Edmonson
News Editor

The construction of a 300-space parking lot on the corner of Akins Boulevard and Forest Drive has been delayed due to the discovery of buried waste.

"The project is in suspense as a result of finding in the ground what has been landfill," said Richard Armstrong, vice president of business and finance.

An environmental testing agency was called in to determine the type and extent of solid waste in the area.

Ken Brown, director of public safety, said that some of the trash had been improperly removed from the site before the university police were notified.

"We notified the proper Environmental Protection Division officials," Brown said. "The situation was properly investigated by the EPD as well as us."

Larry Rogers, an EPD official, said that had the parking lot been built over the waste, potentially explosive methane gas could have risen from under the lot.

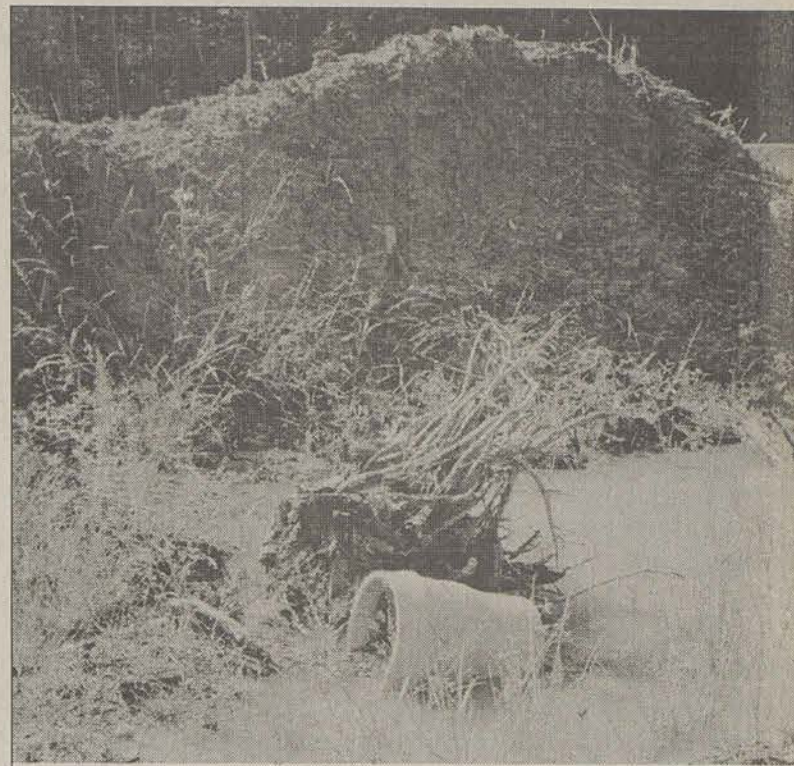

Under EPD regulations, the university will be required to remove the garbage and send it to an EPD-approved landfill before construction can resume. Officials estimate it will require three to four weeks to completely remove the waste.

The garbage had been buried as early as the 1930s.

"I found some newspapers in there dated from the 1930s," Brown said.

Elevated lead levels were found in the lower sections of the garbage. The elevated level of lead is common with landfills and were deemed to be non-toxic.

To alleviate some of the strain on parking, GSU is currently working on a plan to construct a temporary parking lot on the lower playground area of the Marvin Pittman Laboratory School. The temporary lot will provide an additional 120 parking spaces.

The entrance to the temporary lot will be located on Old Register Road. Armstrong said that the lot will not be available for use until late fall quarter or the beginning of winter quarter.

Our Opinion

Safety precautions are still needed on campus

While the recent figures released by Division of Public Safety provide promising news about the decline of alcohol-related arrests, students cannot ignore the increase in other serious crimes.

The report shows increases over the past year in the incidents of criminal damage, criminal trespass and theft.

Students are particularly vulnerable to these types of crimes because of the extended breaks between quarters. Some thieves travel from one college town to the next, capitalizing on the empty apartments filled with expensive merchandise.

In situations such as these, simply locking one's doors may not prevent the possibility of crime. In addition to taking the normal safety precautions, students should not leave valuables in their apartments during the breaks. Also, students might consider investing in renter's insurance to help defray the cost in the event of fire or theft.

The fact that no rapes were reported last year does not necessarily mean none occurred. Students would do well to take advantage of the safety measures in place at GSU, such as the escort service, to help prevent the possibility of such a violent act.

While students can take comfort in the fact that GSU has been a relatively crime-free campus, the safe person would not be lulled into a false sense of security.

Students should take action, help others

Everyone has heard the old adage "actions speak louder than words." For once, I would like to see the GSU community take this saying to heart and truly help people who are in need.

In the wake of the destruction on the eastern seaboard by Hurricane Fran, it would be wonderful to see students and faculty on this campus collecting donations of money, food and other necessities for the innocent victims of this tragedy. I wonder, however, if attempts to begin a donation drive would be successful.

For example, in April, 1995, the staff of The George-Anne advertised in the newspaper a fund-raising drive for the families that were affected by the bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City.

Although this tragedy killed 168 people, students and faculty failed to yield the plea for help. In grand total, only one faculty member and one student responded with a donation. In the most horrific terrorist act in our nation's history, the GSU community failed to make our actions louder than our words.

ALETHA YOH0

Over the summer, one of the apartment complexes, St. Charles Place, burned. Fortunately, many of the students had already gone home for the summer break and only one student was seriously injured. Lisa Myers, 22, was burned on her hands, legs, and feet and was taken to Columbia-Augusta Medical Center for treatment in the burn trauma unit. Although Myers' condition was upgraded fairly quickly, her family still faces medical bills.

This fire could have been worse. If all of the students had been at home during the blaze, GSU could have suffered a great loss. According to the Statesboro Fire Department, six of the twelve apartments were heavily damaged.

Even though only one student was injured, the fire still took away a great deal. Students living in these apartments lost some of their clothes, furniture, and irreplaceable memories. It is my hope that the students of GSU will respond by helping the fire victims.

Please do not misunderstand my point in this column. I realize and fully recognize that many organizations on this campus do valuable charity work for our community. Their work does not go unnoticed.

Organizations such as Habitat for Humanity, the entire Greek system, and many of the religious orders on campus all donate valuable time and energy to charitable causes.

I fully admit that I am just as guilty as many of the rest of you. My apathy sometimes clouds my ability to help others.

Besides participating in the annual toy drive for needy children during the Christmas season, my actions rarely overshadow what I say that I am going to accomplish.

Lately, however, I have realized that if we don't start doing something in our country, we might not have one left to care about.

When a horrific tragedy such as the Oklahoma City bombing fails to motivate students to sacrifice for the sake of others, I am beginning to wonder if the motivation will ever come.

I wonder if the GSU community can unify under any attempt to help people? Can all of us make our actions speak louder than our words for the sake of others?

Although I am reluctant to admit it, I think the answer to those questions is no.

I hope, however, that the GSU community will attempt to prove me wrong.

Friendly advice: do not blow up Anderson Hall

Welcome to the 'Boro and another exciting year at GSU.

I don't really need to address any of you old-timers who are now returning for your second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth or even seventh year at this sprawling rural campus. You already know the ropes around here.

For some of you, though, this will be your first time away from home and as a college student. And as such, I thought you might could use some friendly advice in helping you get oriented to your somewhat intimidating surroundings.

First of all, don't have a massive coronary on Thursday when your third professor of the day greets you with a syllabus as thick as "Gone With the Wind." Before you hyperventilate or run off to drop-add at the end of the class, remember that time management is the key.

Second, don't go hog-wild over the booze that may or may not become readily available to you. It would be very naive of me to believe that all of you underage freshmen are going to obey the law and refuse to even taste alcohol until you turn 21. Seriously, though, you will be much less likely to land yourself on academic probation at the end of the first quarter if you don't get sloshed every night, especially if you have a class at 8:00 a.m.

The most important advice I can give you is to remain calm when dealing with several of our infamously bureaucratic offices on campus. For instance, financial aid, financial aid, financial aid and financial aid.

AMANDA CREWS

EDITOR

Now, I'm known for telling it straight, and truth be known, each of you will want to blow up Anderson Hall at some point during your college career. Some of you may have this fantasy more than once before all is said and done.

Without a doubt, each of you will have your own financial aid bill from the financial accounting office demanding that I pay the full tuition amount or my classes would be canceled.

When I asked them why I was being billed when in fact I should be receiving a refund at the beginning of the quarter, the woman typed my social security number into the computer (by horror stories in the near future. In fact, many of you may have already sent a forest's worth of paperwork back and forth to Landrum Box 8065. (The fact that I have that address memorized should tell you something.)

For those of you who have yet to encounter the notorious red tape, I'll fill you in on a few horror stories I have heard.

A friend told me that just the other day he spent an hour in a financial aid counselor's office, all the while adding, subtracting and figuring in the hopes of getting his money for fall quarter.

On a more personal note, I almost had a heart attack at the end of August when I received a the way, you'll need to be sure you can rattle that number off in your sleep because that will be your name for the next four years). Anyway, after checking the computer, the woman looked at me like I had lost my mind.

"You don't owe any money," she said. "In fact, you'll get a refund."

Well, duh, tell me something I don't already know.

Apparently, the office that sent me the bill had trouble downloading information from the office that knew I had money coming.

Trust me when I say I could go on for days about financial aid snafus, but the purpose of this column is to help you empathize with this office we all love to hate.

In a conversation with Jack Nolen, the vice president of student affairs, members of The George-Anne staff discovered that employees in the financial aid office are trying to do the best with what they have. Sometimes, we students don't realize just how stressful their jobs can be.

First, the financial aid office has adopted a completely new computer system, which eventually will be used by all offices on campus. In the meantime, though, this office alone is struggling to learn the intricacies of the system.

Second, there are only twenty financial aid counselors and more than 14,000 students at GSU. You do the math. Working in that office must be somewhat similar to working for the postal service.

And finally, if you have not already discovered this fact of human nature, I'll let you in on it now. People are funny about their money. When money is involved, we tend to become easily frustrated and even irate. Of the hundreds of calls the financial aid office receives each day, none of them are probably pleasant.

The next time you run smack into a financial aid disaster, try to put yourselves in their shoes. I know it will be difficult. As I said, people, myself included, are funny about their money. Getting upset would be natural. Just try not to blow the building up.

On that cheery note, have a good year.

GSU awards honorary degrees

By Farrah Senn
Staff Writer

Former Georgia Gov. Carl Sanders and former first lady Betty Foy Sanders were awarded GSU's first honorary doctorates on Aug. 11.

A committee chaired by the dean of graduates recommended the awarding of the degrees.

"We were so honored and thrilled to receive the honorary degrees," Mrs. Sanders said.

Sanders was awarded an honorary doctorate of law for his leadership and devotion in the field of education, and the former first lady was awarded an honorary doctorate of fine arts for her support and devotion to fine art at GSU and throughout the state.

During his term from 1963-1967, Sanders made many advancements in education in Georgia.

He formed the Commission to Improve Education and persuaded the General Assembly to appropriate $900 million for the construction of 6,000 new classrooms and the hiring of 10,000 more teachers around the state.

He also played a major role in establishing a network of two-year colleges and got the General Assembly to appropriate $176 million for construction across the system.

Mrs. Sanders, a native of Bulloch County, began college at GSU and later graduated from the University of Georgia.

Her works include a tribute to the Cherokee Indians entitled "Trail of Tears," and an interpretation of the state's floral palette entitled "Wildflowers of Georgia."

Special Photo

Former Georgia Gov. Carl Sanders and former first lady Betty Foy Sanders received GSU's first honorary doctorates Aug. 11.

During her husband's term, she was co-chairman for the building of the new mansion and the selecting of property.

She was the first governor's wife to entertain a president's wife, to be responsible for building a governor's mansion, and to conduct a televised walk-through tour of the old governor's mansion.

She attended John F. Kennedy's funeral, Lyndon B. Johnson's inauguration, and later Johnson's funeral in Texas.

In 1967, she started the Betty Foy Sanders Art Collection at GSU, the largest private collection of works by Georgia artists on a state campus.

She also endowed the Betty

Foy Sanders Art Scholarship, a $63,000 annual award for outstanding art students.

To commemorate GSU's elevation to university status in 1990, she commissioned an environmental sculpture entitled "Reunion" for the front lawn of the Foy Fine Arts Building, which was built during her husband's administration and was named for her father, James Pointa Foy.

Her latest contribution to the art department is a copy of an American Indian eagle sculpture entitled "Winged Fortress."

She has also hired a bus for students and teachers who wish to see the final showing of the Olympic Five-Ring exhibition on Sept. 28.

Two UGA athletes involved in alleged hazing

The Associated Press

ATHENS, Ga. — An alleged fraternity hazing incident at the University of Georgia occurred at the apartment of two star football players, running back Robert Edwards and free safety Corey Johnson, police said.

Rod Perrymond, a reserve running back, told Athens-Clarke County police that he was paddled approximately 70 times about midnight last Sunday by members of Phi Beta Sigma fraternity. Police and the university are investigating.

Perrymond, 20, a fraternity pledge and former Dunwoody High School football star, told police he knew the paddlers only by their first names.

Several reporters descended on the Bulldogs' practice field after practice last Wednesday. A group of players escorted Perrymond off the field.

Edwards said he was told not to comment on the matter. Asked if he was at home at the time of the incident, Johnson declined to answer but said, "All everybody's concerned about is Rod's well-being."

Head coach Jim Donnan issued a statement saying he has looked into the matter and is convinced "there is no evidence of wrongdoing on the part of any football player."

Johnson is a Phi Beta Sigma member, while Edwards is a pledge.

Police Lt. Hill Steed said it is Perrymond's decision whether he wants to pursue criminal charges against the paddlers. Police said Perrymond had not returned an investigator's phone call.

GSU graduates Tim Willis and Dwight Van Tassell competed in the 1996 Paralympic Games in Atlanta this summer.

Willis, a 1994 graduate and world record holder among visually-impaired athletes in the 10,000-meter race, came away with three bronze medals and one silver medal.

Van Tassell, a 1992 GSU graduate from Alpharetta, Ga., was a member of the standing volleyball team, which placed fourth in the event, losing the bronze to Poland.

Willis won a bronze in the 1500-meter, the 5000-meter and the four-by-four 100-meter relay, and a silver in the 10,000-meter.

He was also the torch bearer and ran the torch into the stadium, which was "a once-in-a-lifetime experience," he said.

He trains full-time in his hometown of Tucker, Ga., with the aid of a sighted guide, often running up to 100 miles in a week.

"Training is a year-round process," he said.

— TIM WILLIS,
PARALYMPIAN

He was a political science major at GSU and ran on the cross-country team for four years.

He competed in the 1992 Paralympics in Barcelona and served as a torch bearer in the 1994 games in Norway.

He holds a dozen American blind records, including a gold medal at the 1994 World Championships for the Disabled in Berlin.

"Competing in the Paralympics in my hometown was a thrill of a lifetime," he said.

The games were a 10-day event, and "the whole ten days was full of things to do. It was so exciting," he said.

Van Tassell, a first-time Paralympian, was born without one of his hands.

He trained with the volleyball team by competing against able-bodied teams one weekend of each month in USA volleyball tournaments.

Van Tassell began playing volleyball at GSU with a club team in 1986.

He earned a bachelor's in recreation and now works for the Roswell Parks and Recreation Department.

Festivities will be held to honor the Paralympians at GSU on Oct. 4 and 5.

New associate vice president named

By Farrah Senn
Staff Writer

Melanie McClellan was named associate vice president of student affairs by a search committee chaired by John Nolen, vice president of student affairs, on Sept. 3.

The position was advertised nationally and more than 100 applicants responded.

Five applicants were invited to a day-and-a-half interview on campus.

"We chose Dr. McClellan based on her credentials, based on her outstanding references, and her outstanding interviews," Nolen said.

As associate vice president of student affairs, McClellan will supervise Career Services, Health Services, International Student Programs, Multi-Cultural Programs, Judicial Affairs, and Outreach Services.

McClellan graduated from high school in Bremen, Ga. She earned a Bachelor of Communications at the University of Alabama, a Masters in Counseling and Student Personnel from Mis-issippi State University, and a Ph.D. in Higher Education from the Ohio State University.

She held the position of Director of Housing and Residence Life at Mississippi State.

McClellan served as Student Personnel Associate for the Association of College and University Housing Office-International, Career Counselor, Admissions Counselor at Georgia Southwestern.

She was also Community Education Director at Bremen.

She was awarded the Charles Beene Award for Outstanding Service to the South East Association of Housing offices.

McClellan was on the Executive Board for the same organization and for the Association of College and University Housing. She also served as editor for both.

McClellan is involved in several professional organizations, including the Southern Association for College Student Affairs, the American College Personnel Association, and the national Association of Student Personnel Administration.

GSU switches from Landrum boxes to post office boxes

By Farrah Senn
Staff Writer

Editor's Note: The following story ran in the July 30 issue of The George-Anne. Since a large number of students were not in Statesboro this summer, we decided to catch everyone up on the summer news.

Since July 1, 1996 the United States Postal Service has no longer recognized Landrum Box as a valid address and has asked GSU to change all mailing addresses to post office boxes in order to improve speed and accuracy of postal service, according to post office officials.

This change will be made because the national database has been changed to discontinue the use of Landrum Box or L.B. If students continue to use Landrum Box in their addresses, the optical carrier (the automated sorter) will reject the mail and it will have to be processed manually which slows down delivery.

"THIS IS NOT GOING TO BE AN OVERNIGHT PROCESS."

— KEITH DANIELS,
DIRECTOR OF POSTAL SERVICES

While the national directory is showing the change as of July 1, the state directory will recognize Landrum Box until it is updated. When the directory is reprinted, Landrum Box will be deleted as an option and will no longer be valid.

An announcement was made Monday, July 29, to the administration at the president's cabinet meeting and plans will be made shortly after that to make the transition as easy as possible.

"This is not going to be an overnight process," Keith Daniels, GSU's director of postal services, said.

New students are informed of the change when they receive their post office box addresses.

However, it will take time to notify all of the students about the change and even more time for the students to notify people of their address correction, he said.

"Students should begin using the standard as soon as possible," Daniels said.

GSU stationary, letterheads, and any other pre-addressed items will have to be changed as well.

NEWS FROM SUMMER QUARTER

Price of Cokes increase by a nickel

By Ronnie Swinford
Senior Staff Writer

Editor's Note: The following story ran in the July 2 issue of The George-Anne. Since a large number of students were not in Statesboro this summer, we decided to catch everyone up on the summer news.

The price of aluminum has forced GSU Auxiliary Services to raise the price of Cokes in vending machines on campus from 50 to 55 cents.

The nickel price hike is in response to a request from Coca-Cola.

"Coke came to us over a year ago and told us that we needed to raise the price of our vending machines," Larry Davis, head of Auxiliary Services, said. "They [Coca-Cola] had to raise their prices to us because of the cost of aluminum."

Auxiliary Services agreed to raise the price on campus after being assured that GSU would continue to receive the same amount of profit, Davis said.

"Coke is doing a tremendous amount of business on this campus," he said.

The increase in price may have an effect on which product is used on campus.

"We really don't have a bid-type contract on retail goods,"

Davis said. "We simply buy them and sell them in great quantity. But if you compare the prices of Coke and Pepsi in Snackers, the Pepsi products are more expensive because they cost us more to get."

Davis said that no one has complained about the price increase to him, but he said there have been complaints voiced to the Coca-Cola employees who fill the machines.

"We are trying to do some different things with vending machines this year," Davis said. "We have also added some 20-ounce bottle vending machines this year."

IN GEORGIA

Enrollment limits may be in store soon

By Dick Pettys
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — The Board of Regents launched a yearlong study that may result in enrollment limits for the state's public colleges and universities.

With overall college enrollment expected to grow steadily in Georgia for at least the next five years, "part of our research effort is, what is an optimal size for different types of institutions?" said Chancellor Stephen Portch.

Under a plan outlined by Portch and accepted by the board, the regents will spend the coming months absorbing demographic data and developing goals that will allow the university system "to manage growth, not be managed by it," the chancellor said.

Eventually, that is likely to result in enrollment targets for each of Georgia's public colleges and universities for each of the next five years.

"Probably it will include some growth for everybody ... but we will try to grow some institutions faster than others," Portch said in an interview after the board's meeting.

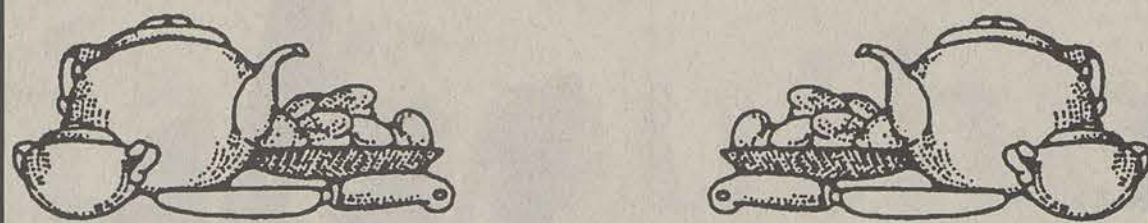

"We have a number of baccalaureate institutions with a couple of thousand students. Those probably we can grow at a faster rate than some (institutions) of a much bigger size."

University system policy makers already are attempting to steer larger numbers of students to the state's smaller schools.

Mail truck takes a

The Associated Press

EDMOND — Try this one on the bill collector: "The check's in the mail in the truck in the pool."

That line would be the truth for people whose letters were in a mail truck that rolled through a fence into a swimming pool. The Postal Service pulled at least 1,800 pieces of mail from the truck and spread the items out to dry under fans.

"It was very wet," said Tim Caillouette, customer service supervisor for the post office in Edmond.

Postmaster Ted Tyler said the unidentified carrier was at a doorstep delivering a certified letter when he heard a click and turned to see the vehicle headed down the hill.

"I'm trying real hard to find something humorous about it," said homeowner Pam Green, whose new 9-foot-deep pool had a coating of gasoline, antifreeze and oil on it.

2 California
Catholic university
rids itself of "666"

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — A Catholic university has finally banished the devil from its campus — and its telephone lines.

The Jesuit-run University of San Francisco suffered through bad jokes for years because of its telephone prefix "666." But now the school's prefix is changing to the less sinister "422."

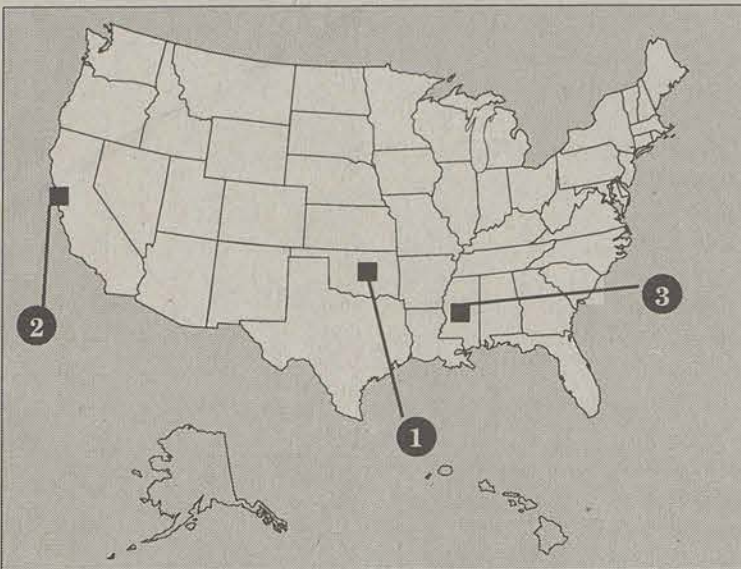

Until the end of the year, callers can use either prefix when calling the school.

The "666" number, known as the mark of the beast in the Book of Revelation, won't work next year.

University spokesman Marlon Villa said the change is for practical reasons, not superstition. The new prefix will allow for twice as many extensions.

"Nothing horrible has befallen us," because of the number, he said.

"Perhaps our Christian spirit deflected any spiritual assault by the forces of 666."

Police catch suspect with drug-filled tire

The Associated Press

MOUND BAYOU — A man's attempt to elude police while rolling a tire weighted down with 6 pounds of marijuana fell flat, but authorities say they were impressed with the effort.

Robert L. Johnson, 42, was captured following a three-hour manhunt. He was being held in the Bolivar County Jail on drug charges.

The police chief said Johnson's troubles began when he stopped at a service station to inflate the tire. An employee noticed the drugs inside and called the police.

Crowe said as he approached Johnson, the man grabbed the tire and took off.

Apparently noticing that the tire left a trail through the weeds, the man tossed it aside and continued on.

Transsexual, wife legally married?

The Associated Press

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa. — The story of John and Mary Lou Flecher is a little more complicated than your average boy-meets-girl tale.

For one, John is now Jan Elizabeth Flecher, following a sex-change operation on April 1.

Jan remains married to Mary Lou, making them a same-sex couple in a state where lawmakers may forbid any marriages between men and men or women and women.

On April 12, Jan had her birth certificate changed to reflect her new name and gender.

"According to the state of Pennsylvania, this body is a female body," she said. "That's it. That's the way I'm treated."

The Lawrence County couple

"UP TO THAT POINT, I THOUGHT I WAS MARRIED TO A REGULAR MAN."

— MARY LOU, WIFE

married in 1976, when Jan was John, a crane operator in a steel mill. Eighteen months into the marriage, John began wearing women's clothing.

"Up to that point, I thought I was married to a regular man," said Mary Lou, 42.

Jan said she had imagined being a girl since she was a boy.

"I thought it was something I could hide from the world forever," said Jan, now 44. "I was scared to death anyone would find out."

Mary Lou said she was repulsed at first, but found that John became so despondent and irritable she eventually ordered him to put on women's clothing.

Jan said she expected Mary Lou to demand a divorce after the operation. Instead, she was supportive.

"Our staying together as a legally married couple hurts nobody," she said.

HENRY

who account for about five percent of our student body."

He said GSU and East Georgia College are currently discussing a pilot program slated for next fall, in which East Georgia College would teach developmental studies students at GSU.

"The Chancellor has assured me that any developmental studies students lost to Georgia Southern ... will not adversely affect our budget," he said.

A healthier budget is another sign of progress at GSU, the president said.

At the governor's directive, the university will be involved in a five percent budget redirection. Henry stressed that a budget redirection is not a budget cut but simply a redistribution of monies within the budget.

"I have asked specialized task forces to pursue selected portions of the committee's analysis, and they will be reporting to me toward the end of this academic year," he said.

Another sign of progress, Henry said, is the "record amount" of building at GSU.

Construction projects completed last year include the renovated Hollis Building, the new Allen E. Paulson Science and Technology building and the new Business Administration building.

Most recently, the Michael Wiggins Baseball Complex and the new entry boulevard, which Henry predicts might become known as the "magnificent mile," have been completed.

Projects currently under construction include the new counseling center, sculpture and ceramics studio, recreation and activity center, the wildlife education center and "the largest residence hall ever built on the Georgia Southern campus."

The "Builders of the University" project, a garden dedicated to retired faculty and staff, is also underway.

"No other campus in the country has anything like it, and it will represent the best of Georgia Southern," Henry said.

Henry noted the implementation of 46 of the 55 goals for

"...THE EXPERIENCE

OF THE TYPICAL
UNDERGRADUATE AT GEORGIA SOUTHERN WILL BE A HAPPIER
AND MORE
INTELLECTUAL ONE."

— NICHOLAS HENRY,
GSU PRESIDENT

improving the undergraduate experience as gathered from recommendations from faculty and staff groups as another sign of progress. The remaining nine goals will be implemented next year.

"As a result, the experience of the typical undergraduate at Georgia Southern will be a happier and more intellectual one," Henry said.

Also, Henry said 123 of the 131 proposed enhancements recommended during the reaccreditation review have been or are being implemented.

One of these improvements involves strengthening the academic advisement process by including advisement centers in those colleges that want them and initiating a computer-based system that allows advisors to register students for their classes as they are advised.

Other improvements in the works include a twenty-four hour help-line for students, a new center for excellence in teaching and a more readable general catalog.

Henry said these implementations "prove that professors play a pivotal role in how things are done at Georgia Southern University."

He noted the increasing competitive edge at GSU as another sign of progress. He said the average SAT scores of entering freshmen increased 19 points over the last ten years. Also, he said GSU has the second highest number of HOPE scholars with more than 4,000 this year.

The final sign of progress noted by the president involved strides in faculty salaries.

"We have moved from thirteenth among our peers in the 15 southern states to seventh overall in just three years," Henry said.

"No other institution in Georgia has made such dramatic advances and, to be frank, no other institution has been more deserving of such dramatic advances."

Henry's address followed a General Faculty meeting which included the presentation of Awards for Excellence to several professors, introductions of new deans and faculty, brief remarks from SGA President Derek Burns and several announcements.

Faculty members Luther T. Denton, Marcia Jones, James Randall, Craig Roell, Debra Sabia and Jing-yuan Zhang were presented the awards.

"To my recollection [the university] has never had that much stolen from it at one time," Peaster said.

The case broke during spring quarter when Orr noticed discrepancies in the accounts.

Williams, who had total access to the accounts, was writing checks from each account to herself and placing them in her bank account, authorities said.

There were three accounts in which money was found missing.

Williams was found guilty on a count of theft by taking of $52,053.14 from the Panhellenic Council account.

A second charge of theft by taking was placed on Williams for removing $48,656.60 from the Panhellenic rush account.

The third charge of theft by taking involved $9,887.53 stolen from the Intrafraternity Council account.

A final guilty charge was levied for the $3,100 taken from the Greek Week account.

said. "We will be beefing up our stake-out squad. We'll also be putting out some things that if you steal them, we will reach out and touch you."

Brown said that they will be expanding the types of incidents reported on the brochure next year. The university police are required to report the incidents on the brochure under the Student's Right To Know Act.

"All of these arrests aren't all the ones that we made," Brown said. "There are arrests that weren't listed on here. It doesn't give you a complete picture of the arrests made. I think we are going to make some changes to it next year to make sure all the information they need is contained in the report."

Public Safety suggests that you always lock your door when you leave your room or apartment and never hesitate to call the university police to report any suspicious activity. The university police also offer an escort service for anyone looking for protection when walking at night.

Public Safety also suggests that if you do walk home alone at night, be sure to walk in well-lit areas. To avoid strangers entering into your living area, the university police suggest that you never prop open any doors for any reason.

BEYOND THE ARC

Remember...

It is essential for newcomers to know a few things about GSU and how we survive in the buzzing metropolis of Statesboro.

Here are a few pointers, suggestions, and ideas that will make your year a comforting one:

First, it is important to know who Erskine Russell is.

He is our version of Bear Bryant, and though some people would tell you he won four I-AA national championships, he only won three. Tim Stowers won the fourth a year after Russell retired.

His nickname is "Erk," and you'll hear this name so many times this year, you'll be uttering the name in your sleep. But that's good.

Remember that the ditch you saw on your way in is called "Beautiful Eagle Creek" and it was given the name by, who else, Erk Russell. So therefore, you like it.

Remember that here at GSU, we do have a fight song, even though nobody has ever heard it.

Remember that we do have pep rallies here at GSU, but if you're not in a sorority, then you'll probably never go. For some reason, sororities get together to "pep" up the football team. Only, the football team isn't there. Go figure.

Remember that there are other sports this fall besides football that need your support.

GSU soccer, volleyball and cross-country teams are all in the midst of their seasons right now.

Remember the Game Day and keep it holy.

Remember that no matter what they tell you, it is not a tradition to arrive at football games during the middle of the first quarter and leave before the fourth.

Remember that sometime this spring, Brother Jim will come back to the corner that he's seen on every year to preach the word with his Brother Jim Version Bible.

According to him, members of our men's basketball team are "men of evil" because they wear shorts and tank-tops.

I mention him because for some students, he will do his best to convince you that you're wrong and he's right. And while you blow your top to convince him otherwise, he's recording the whole thing. You'll see when he gets here.

Remember that when GSU travels to Chattanooga, Tn., to play the Mocs on September 28th, Chatt-town's favorite radio station is WUSY. Fitting for a team that is 0-9 versus the Eagles.

Remember that the only good thing about Oxford Hall is its brisk walk to Paulson Stadium, in case of rain. Everything else... Well, I wouldn't want to ruin it for those who don't know.

And finally, remember that students have no excuse not to support the GSU athletic program this year. It is an inexpensive way to get away from the "student's life" for a couple of hours and have a good time. The 1996-97 Eagle teams are very competitive this year, and they all need student support. Check 'em out.

Eagles 'swamped' by Gators, 62-14

Yet, GSU rushes for record-setting 311 yards, the most ever by I-AA team

By Mike Davis
Sports Editor

GAINSVILLE, Fla. - The highly-anticipated game with the University of Florida came and went a week ago Saturday, with the Florida Gators doing much of what was expected by the 84,963 who packed the Swamp as they put away the Eagles, 62-14, the third-highest point total allowed in GSU history.

Danny Wuerffel continued his Heisman campaign by leading the Gators' offensive arsenal before exiting halfway through the third quarter. He completed 15 of 16 passes for 267 yards and two touchdowns, with the longest being a 32-yard strike on Florida's third play from scrimmage.

Eric McCaslin led the rushing attack with 116 yards from the ground, with Eric Williams adding 75 more.

But much to the delight of the "Swamp rats", Gator receivers Ike Hilliard and Reidel Anthony blew away the GSU defense. Hilliard caught four passes for 72 yards and Anthony two for 62 yards and one touchdown. Wuerffel's second touchdown pass was to Jacques Green, who caught three passes for 61 yards.

"It was great to be on the field with them," senior free safety Eric Thigpen said. "We were going up against the best quarterbacks, the best receivers, and the best offense in the nation."

Mike Spilker

GIVE THEM SIX: Offensive tackle Rich McGrath celebrates with Benny Cunningham after the Eagles scored off Florida in the third quarter.

And they did have their way with us, especially at first. But we never quit fighting, and we ended up having some good things happen for us."

Florida didn't completely steal the offensive show, as the Eagles managed 311 yards, the most ever allowed by a Steve Spurrier-coached team in the regular season.

The rushing attack was led by Roderick Russell's 84 yards, that coming after his 124-yard performance against South Carolina State a week earlier.

"This game just gave us some great experience," Russell said after the game. "We're picking up a lot of confidence from this game, and that's big because we're going to be playing tough games every week."

"Hey, we just ran for over 300 yards against Florida."

It took Florida just three plays to put the first points on the board as Wuerffel connected with Anthony on a 32-yard pass-play.

But GSU, who went four and out on their first possession, shocked the home crowd by answering with a 14-play, 80-yard drive, capped off by a five-yard touchdown run by Russell to tie the game at seven.

"We just drove it straight down their throats," Russell said of the drive that featured all running plays. "It was kind of funny looking over at them after we scored and seeing them fussing at each other. But they got it together."

Florida answered with 35 points, stretching an uncontested scoring streak that lasted to the seven-minute mark of the third quarter, when GSU finally put their second touchdown on the board.

Brian Cunningham put the finishing touches on a 12-play, 62-yard drive after Florida gift-wrapped a roughing-the-kicker penalty on fourth down. Cunningham ran in from six yards out to make the score 42-14.

Florida would score 20 more points before the clock reached zeros, and GSU walked off Florida Field dropping its tenth game in ten tries to I-A opponents.

"I was real pleased with the effort," said Coach Frank Ellwood, who stood on the GSU sidelines for only the second time. "The kids laid everything on the line out there, and we came away without any injuries. In fact, I saw them take more Florida players off the field."

"We knew what we were in for. We're realists, and I've played enough poker in my time to know the odds," Ellwood said jokingly.

Florida finished the game by racking up a whopping 658 total yards off 61 offensive plays, averaging 10.8 yards per play.

But it was the 311 total rushing yards, the three sacks for losses totaling 24 yards, and in fact, the two touchdowns that left a smile of sorts on the Eagles as they exited Gainesville to concentrate on their next opponent, Southern Conference rival Marshall.

"We came here to win," said quarterback Kenny Robinson, who finished his night completing a perfect 7-for-7 passes for 60 yards and also 20 yards rushing. "We lost the game and that feels kind of bad, but we were playing a great team. Some good things happened in this game that we'll take with us."

"I've always said that we'll hit you and play enthusiastically, no matter who we're playing," Ellwood said. "We did that all the way to the end. My only disappointment was that we gave up long plays, and that's the second week in a row we've done that."

"We're I-AA Georgia Southern from Statesboro, Ga. And we just came into a big school who has a great team and got an idea of what football is all about. This was nothing but a positive experience."

ROBINSON

Eagles win season opener

GSU News Service

Roderick Russell rushed for a career-high 124 yards on 18 carries and Kenny Robinson added 111 yards and three touchdowns on the ground as the Eagles defeated South Carolina State, 28-14, on August 31. The victory marked the sixth straight over the Bulldogs and the 10th in 15 tries in the season opener.

The Eagles struck on their first possession, driving 79 yards on 10 plays. Robinson and Russell combined for nine carries and 68 yards during the march, which culminated in a one-yard plunge off left tackle by Robinson.

South Carolina State tied the contest in the second quarter when Kenny Bynum raced 82 yards, the longest run ever by a GSU opponent. The Eagles answered immediately. Corey Joyner returned the kickoff 50 yards to the Bulldog 36, setting up a seven-play drive. Robinson then scored from 19 yards out.

GSU pushed its lead to 21-7 five minutes into the third quarter. Bennie Cunningham, on his first collegiate carry, scampered from six yards out to cap a five-play, 62-yard drive. However,

IN THE LINE OF FIRE: Eagle cornerback Travis Taylor hits a Bulldog wide receiver in GSU's season-opening win in Orangeburg, S.C.

SCSU cut the margin to a touchdown on its next possession, going 64 yards on eight plays.

After recovering a fumble, GSU was forced to punt from its 48 yard line with just over four minutes to play, but Bynum muffed the return and Chris Wilson recovered at the SCSU 14 yard line. On the ensuing play, Robinson found the endzone for the third time.

New faces in coaching staff

GSU News Service

GSU filled several coaching positions over the summer, and some of the replacements are already in the midst of regular seasons.

Eddie Matthews has been appointed to coach the GSU volleyball team after Coach Dee Nichols left to become an assistant women's basketball coach.

Matthews enters his fourth year of coaching after a three-year stay at NAIA Division II affiliate Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash.

"GSU has given me a great opportunity," Matthews said. "Coaching at a Division I university is a dream come true for me."

Matthews was a two-year starter on the UNC men's volleyball squad. As a senior captain, he led the team in kills and hitting percentage and was voted MVP.

South Carolina swimming standout Anne Marie Wozniak has been appointed as the new director of swimming, replacing Scott Farmer, who was promoted to Assistant Director for Student-Athlete Services.

Wozniak broke 11 school records and was a two-time All-American from the University of South Carolina. She also earned academic all-America honors three times. In 1992, she qualified for the U.S. Olympic Trials and was ranked Top 50 in the world in the 50-meter freestyle.

"I'm really excited about coming to Georgia Southern," Wozniak said. "GSU is the right place for me right now. I'll be working with some great people and a great administration. I'm really looking forward to it."

As director of swimming, Wozniak's main responsibilities include coaching the women's team and overseeing the administration of the men's program.

Cathy Beene, associate athletics director and women's tennis coach at Texas-Arlington, has been named director of tennis at GSU.

Beene will run the Lady Eagle program on a daily basis while holding oversight responsibilities for the men's squad.

Beene replaces Joe Blankenbaker, who retired April 22.

This season will also mark a new era for GSU soccer, as three-year GSU assistant coach Kevin Chambers will take charge of the men's team, and Tom Norton, who controlled both squads last year, will focus strictly on the women's team.

Friends meet on Florida gridiron

By Mike Davis
Sports Editor

It was in 1991 when GSU free safety Eric Thigpen and Florida quarterback Danny Wuerffel last played on the same field.

Then, the two Fort Walton Beach High School football standouts were leading their team to a 14-0 State AAAA title and a number five ranking in USA Today.

But on Saturday, they were on opposite sides of the ball, as GSU traveled to Gainesville to battle with the number-four team in the nation.

A long awaited time had finally come, as the two friends squared off against each other for the first time.

"From the first day we found out, we have been talking trash to each other," Thigpen said. "We have been very excited. We had always hoped this opportunity would come some day."

Thigpen, who grew up as a Gator fan, found himself Saturday on the same field he and Emmitt Smith played on in the 1991 state championship. Only this time, he was looking into the eyes of players wearing the famed orange and blue, with one of those players being his good friend Wuerffel.

"He winked at me before the game started which made me think he was coming my way," Thigpen said after the game. "He also looked my way a couple times when he was at the line, but he never did. He's not going to try to embarrass me. He's one of the best quarterbacks in the country."

"After the game, we just hugged and prayed together with both teams. And we talked about getting together sometime next week because we both have the weekends off."

RUNNING AWAY WITH RECORDS: GSU rushed for a total of 311 yards, the most ever by a Florida opponent in the regular season in the Steve Spurrier era (Nebraska ran for 524 in the 1996 Fiesta Bowl), and the most ever by a Division I-AA opponent.

Roderick Russell led the Eagles with only 84 yards rushing, but five more players ran for 30 yards or more.

RACKING UP POINTS: Florida's 62 points scored against GSU was the highest total since the Eagle football program restarted in 1982. It was the third-highest point total in GSU history, with Mercer's 77-0 win in the 1937 season opener and Southern Miss' 67-0 thrashing in 1941 the top two.

SECOND-LARGEST CROWD EVER: Saturday's attendance at Ben Hill Griffen Stadium in Gainesville was 84,963, the second-largest crowd to ever witness a GSU game.

The highest number was on October 10, 1992, in Athens, Ga., where the Eagles fell to the Bulldogs 34-7 in front of 85,434 fans. The third-largest crowd was on August 31, 1991, when the Eagles took to the plains to face Auburn and 79,124 screaming Tiggers, in which the Eagles only lost 32-17.

GAME OF IMPORTANCE: No doubt, GSU's encounter with the Gators could be touted as one of the bigger regular season games in GSU history. But how important was this game for Florida?

Considering Florida head coach Steve Spurrier referred to the Eagles as "Southern Georgia" and a local radio station labeled GSU as the "Screaming Eagles," it's pretty obvious that it wasn't a game they were deeply concerned about.

Especially with Tennessee next on the chart for the Gators.

NOISE FACTOR: As any team that has played in Ben Hill Griffen Stadium would say, it is quite difficult to play through the crowd noise, especially down near the goal line.

So how did GSU handle the noise? "When the ball moved, we moved," said Russell. "We couldn't hear anything."

BLOCKED: Future opponents might have to think twice before attempting a field goal. Maurice Bing has blocked the only two field-goal attempts this year, with the latest against Florida in the fourth quarter.

AGAINST DIVISION I-A FOES: The Florida game marked the 10th time GSU has played a Division I-A opponent in the last 13 seasons (since 1984), with GSU dropping all ten. The Eagles have been outscored by the I-A opponents 375-134. The closest GSU has ever come to beating a I-A opponent was in 1986, when the Eagles were barely clipped by East Carolina 35-33.

FOOTBALL

Marshall next foe for GSU

By Carolyn Wynn
Staff Writer

The GSU football team enters the third game of the season with a 1-1 record, featuring a convincing win over South Carolina State and a tough loss to the University of Florida.

But the Eagles now gear up to face long-time Southern Conference rival Marshall University, who once again, finds itself the top-ranked I-AA team in the nation as they sit in the number-one spot, a familiar position for the Thundering Herd.

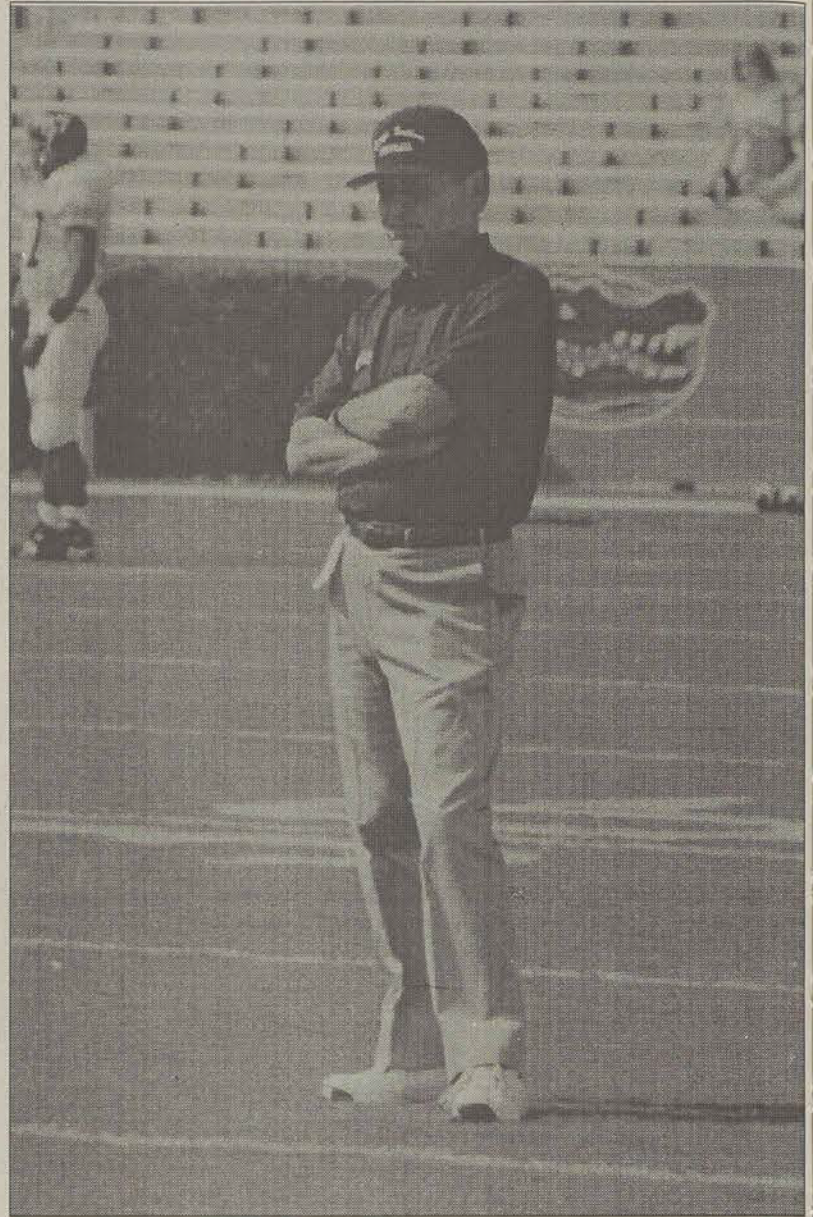

Marshall, like GSU, underwent some major changes in their football program last year.

The man at the helm of the Thundering Herd this year is Bob Pruett, who replaces departed coach Jim Donnan, who optioned for greener pastures at the University of Georgia.

Also, this season will mark Marshall's final one in the Southern Conference, as they announced last year that they would move to I-A competition in the Mid-Atlantic Conference.

Saturday's game with the Herd will showcase Frank Ellwood's first game on the Paulson Stadium sidelines since coming on as interim head coach after Tim Stowers was released from his duties.

Ellwood's last coaching duties saw him heading up the Thundering Herd from 1975-1978. He worked in private business for 12 years before coming to GSU in 1990 as senior associate athletics director.

Mike Spilker

THE NEW AGAINST THE OLD: GSU head football coach Frank Ellwood will step back in history a bit when he faces his former team, the Marshall Thundering Herd, in what has been touted as one of the biggest games of the year for the Eagles. Ellwood will be on the sidelines in his first home game as head coach in Saturday's contest.

Eagles expecting contributions from Thigpen, Reeves

By Carolyn Wynn
Staff Writer

Despite coaching changes, player losses, and a tough loss to the University of Florida, the GSU football team are hoping to turn things around to make this season a good one.

Two players the Eagles are depending on greatly to a successful year are junior defensive tackle Derrick Reeves and senior free safety Eric Thigpen.

The 6-0, 195-pound Thigpen, who started 12 games last year, broke up four passes while intercepting two.

He finished the season strong with a career-best 14 tackles in the playoff win over Troy State.

While Thigpen's determination makes him a strong member of the Eagle squad, his merits off the field have endeared him to many.

Thigpen, a native of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., is the son of a Baptist minister and he credits his success to growing up in the church "with his great love for the Lord."

Thigpen says his biggest influence is his father.

"He has been an incredible role model to me. The sacrifices he has made for me in the past have helped me become the person that I am now."

As most youth growing up, Thigpen admits that not all of his father's decisions were popular ones with him.

"Now looking back, I can understand and appreciate his decisions. I hope some day I can be the man that my father is."

Thigpen, a middle-grade education major with an emphasis in mathematics, also speaks French and a little Spanish.

After graduation, he is interested in possibly teaching in a third world country where he would have an opportunity to work as a teacher and a missionary.

If he decides to stay here in the United States he would also like to coach.

This year, Thigpen said he feels good about the changes this year but is not concerned whether it is positive or negative.

"We as a team have to gel together, and as coaches and players we have to have a mutual respect for each other. I think within that are the elements of a team. Georgia Southern has had great teams in the past, and I don't think it will be any different this year."

Personally, Thigpen feels he has grown as a player.

"With every year comes growth as a player. I have grown into a player that loves Georgia Southern. I have grown into a guy that is responsible," he said.

"I have grown into someone that looks beyond this game of football that everybody sees on the field and looks to how it effects the community at large. I think it is important to realize and accept the impact that you have on your surroundings."

Another Eagle hoping to make his own impact is the 6'2 255-pound Reeves from Augusta, Ga.

Like teammate Thigpen, Reeves played in all 13 games and started in 12 of the contests last year.

Reeves, who was ranked sixth last season with 81 tackles and eight sacks, was credited with one fumble recovery, tying former cornerback Francis Williams for the squad lead in forced fumbles.

During winter-testing, Reeves ran the 40 meters in 4.97 seconds and squatted 500 pounds.

Reeves, who is the middle child with an older brother and younger sister, is a business student who aspires to one day run his own business.

"My father runs a contracting business, and I would like to do something similar. I am a very independent, determined person and feel as if running my own business would be more satisfying to me than working for someone else," he said.

Reeves credits his brother with being his biggest influence.

"He is the one that helped

develop my initial interest and talent in football. I always wanted to do what big brother was doing."

And with a smile, he admitted that it was a simple case of "monkey see, monkey do."

His goals on the gridiron are simple: To help "bring another championship to Georgia Southern."

"When I was recruited, all I can remember was seeing the trophies and the rings that accompanied our National Championships, and Southern Conference Championship."

"I would really like to leave Georgia Southern with a ring of my own."

Individually, he said he is not concerned with getting titles or awards. He admits those are things that every player dreams about, but right now, he said he is focused on the success of the team.

Despite being a modest person, Reeves is still proud of being awarded with defensive player of the week last year for his performance against Western Carolina, in which the Eagles pounded the Catamounts 42-0 in front at Paulson Stadium.

Lady Eagle soccer wins third behind likes of Tolliver

By Mike Davis
Sports Editor

Despite a sluggish performance in Coach Tom Norton's terms, the Lady Eagles still managed to outlast Wofford College, 2-1, last Wednesday night in Spartanburg, S.C., to run their record to 3-2.

In the win, it was senior midfielder Rachel Tolliver setting the pace for the Lady Eagles by scoring two goals on three shots. The goals marked her first of the season.

Tolliver collected her first goal at the 8:17 mark, knocking in the unassisted shot to put the Lady Eagles up 1-0.

At the 40:54 mark, Tolliver answered for the Eagles again, scoring the unassisted goal to put GSU up by two.

Wofford put its first goal on the board at the 75:00 mark, but the Lady Eagles held off any attempts to tie the score as goalkeeper Mary Perry fought off 14

Lady Terrier shots to preserve the win.

So far this season, freshman striker Tara Chaisson, from Kitchener, Ontario, is the sole leader in goals scored with four. She has also contributed one assist.

Tolliver adds her two goals against Wofford to five assists collected in the first four games. Ally Hood, Sandy Bonfim, Brooke Satterwhite, Shannon Todd, Vanessa Vickrey and Carol Furness join Tolliver and Chaisson as the only goal-scorers so far this season.

Other Lady Eagle wins this season include a 2-0 win over South Florida in the season opener and a 5-4 overtime victory over Furman in a Southern Conference dual.

The Lady Eagles' next match will come today, beginning at 4 p.m. at the GSU soccer complex versus the University of Alabama.

Lady Eagle volleyball team, along with new coach, drop seventh

By Mike Davis
Sports Editor

It hasn't exactly been a dream vacation for new GSU volleyball coach Eddie Matthews since his arrival in Statesboro.

The Lady Eagles have dropped their seventh consecutive game, with the latest coming at the hands of Bethune-Cookman, 15-8, 8-15, 15-12, 9-15, 15-12, at Old Hanner Gym Saturday afternoon.

After splitting the first two games, the Lady Eagles gave up a 6-4 lead in the fifth, leaving them winless on the season.

"We knew coming in that Bethune-Cookman would be a scrappy team," Matthews said after the match. "But honestly, our effort in this match was the best all season. We're still making mental mistakes, and we haven't been consistent. But if we keep playing these matches well, then we'll get better."

Kimberly Boaz hammered down 12 kills for the Lady Wildcats, while Octavia Jones collected 10 of her own to coincide 12 digs.

GSU's Jenn Lett and Stacey Lewis both collected 14 kills, with Megan Pfeiffer adding ten in the losing cause.

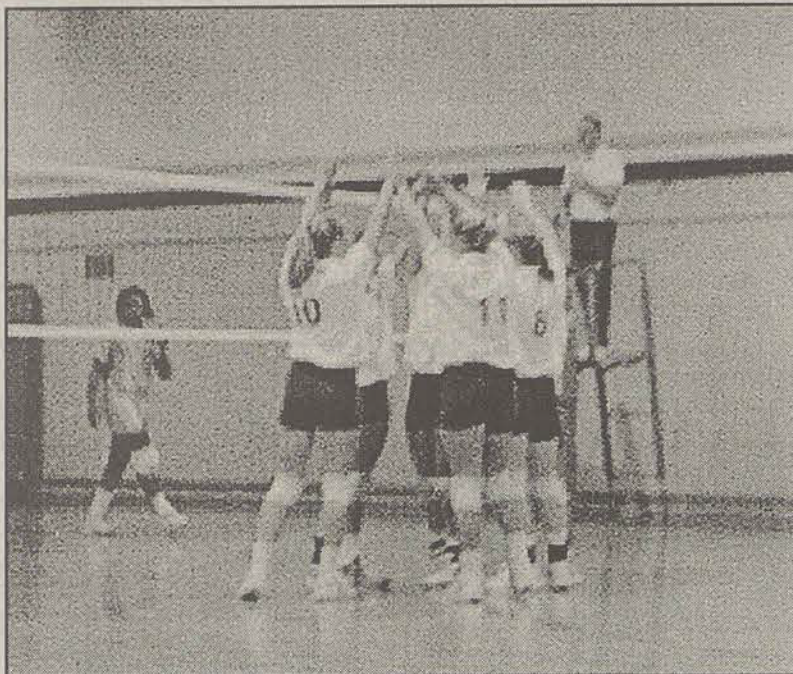

But it wasn't on the court where the Lady Wildcats really had GSU beaten.

It was on the bench, as Bethune carried a full roster of 12 players, while Matthews and the Lady Eagles were limited with only one player on the baseline.

"Depth plays an important role for every team" Matthews said. "You can have the best six players in the world and only one sub, and you'll still be a middle of the road team."

"I'm not saying that's what kind of team we are, but we are having to rebuild this volleyball team, and we're fighting injuries at the same time."

The Lady Eagles will next play College of Charleston at the UNC Greensboro Tournament in Greensboro, N.C.

Mike Davis

NOT-SO BEGINNER'S LUCK: Despite some hard luck this season, the GSU volleyball team is continuing to stick together. The Lady Eagles have already been hit with injuries, academic problems and even homesickness, and they're only seven matches into the season with a tough Southern Conference schedule ahead.

Volleyball Notes—

• Coach Eddie Matthews is holding a walk-on tryout for anyone who is interested in playing volleyball for GSU this year. Though a specific time and date has not been announced, information can be obtained by calling the volleyball offices.

• Senior outside hitter Stacey Lewis earned Southern Conference player-of-the-week honors last week for her performance over five matches (16 games).

She crushed 36 kills and booked 36 digs to earn the honor. She leads the Eagles with 64 digs.

• Senior Megan Pfeiffer, a dominant force at the middle blocker position, added to her career record of block assists in a career by collecting three against Bethune-Cookman for a total now of 274. Last year, Pfeiffer tallied 14 blocks vs. Charleston Southern to re-write the school record, which she established a year before.

Rugby back for more

GSU News Service

The GSU rugby team is starting the 1996-97 season with the same powerful vigor that took them to the national playoffs last year.

But this time, they want more.

Gaining immense popularity last season due to their success, the team proved to be the best in the Georgia/Alabama Collegiate League.

But this year's club looks to improve to bigger and better things for the rapidly growing sport, mainly because of the few number of players lost to graduation. GSU will bring experience to the field this season.

Team captains Rob Barrett and Denny Godwin, along with Chairman Sean Pruitt, are very enthusiastic about what lies ahead this year.

Especially now since Graeme Kelly, who played rugby for various teams in England, will coach the Eagles.

With only one week of preparation, the men will start their season Sept. 19 at the Kick-Off Classic against the Savannah

Shamrocks, whose team is a senior mens club with a good reputation around the tri-state area.

And the Eagles won't come into this game strangers to the Shamrocks. The two teams have met before and are even in games won.

Holding the game under the floodlights at the club sports field, this will mark the first night game for the GSU squad. There will be no charge for admission.

This year's players will offer considerable amounts of experience that will hopefully carry the team to another national playoff.

Returning to the team will be Barrett, Godwin, Pruitt, Jason Camp, Scott Worth, Alfredo Rowlands, Jim Ivey and Billy Dougherty.

The Eagle rugby team is consistently recruiting in order to build a strong "B" side. The intent is to build a platform for upcoming seasons or unsuspected injuries.

After the Kick-Off Classic, the team will take on Central Florida on Sept. 28.

Two groups examine Lions' proposed move

The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — Leaders of 18 communities in western Wayne County and a regional planning commission both want to take a closer look at the Detroit Lions' proposed move to downtown Detroit.

Members of the Conference of Western Wayne decided to wait until next month to decide whether to endorse a one-cent tax increase on hotel rooms in the county and a two-cent tax increase on vehicle rentals to pay for the proposed stadium, which would be built next to a new stadium for the Detroit Tigers.

The suburban mayors and supervisors said they would seek community help before deciding whether to support the proposal.

"I sense an inherent reluctance to go along with any tax, unless you can prove the benefit," said Northville Mayor Christopher Johnson.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments said it will conduct a regional impact review of the proposed move.

"This review will look at the transportation, environmental and economic development impacts of the move of the Lions from the Silverdome to Detroit," said Paul Tait, deputy executive director of SEMCOG.

SEMCOG is a regional planning agency for Oakland, Macomb, Wayne, St. Clair, Livingston, Washtenaw and Monroe counties.

The review was requested by Oakland County Deputy Executive Kenneth Rogers and Pontiac Mayor Walter Moore.

"It is our position that the Silverdome is a fine structure which has been easily and economically refurbished to meet the requirements of the Lions," Moore wrote in a Sept. 10 letter seeking the review.

Rogers used similar arguments when he appeared before the SEMCOG Regional Clearinghouse Review Committee, which voted unanimously to authorize the review.

Eric Walker, executive director of the Silverdome, said he supports the review because the public has the right to know what effect the loss of the Lions will be to Pontiac and Oakland County.

SPORTS INFORMATION

Rogers steps down as SID, McClellan takes over

By Mike Davis
Sports Editor

Matt Rogers, sports information director at GSU since 1989, resigned his position August 30 due to family reasons.

Rogers coordinated publicity efforts from all 15 intercollegiate sports while working with the football and baseball programs on a daily basis. During his time, the football program won two Division I-AA national championships (1989, 1990) and a Southern Conference title (1993), while the baseball team won the 1993 and 1996 league crowns, appeared in two NCAA Regionals (1990, 1996) and advanced to the College World Series (1990).

Tom McClellan, a four-year member of the GSU athletic media relations division before moving to Stetson as sports information director in 1992, has been named the new director of athletic media relations.

McClellan will coordinate publicity functions for all 15 Eagle and Lady Eagle squads while covering football and baseball on a daily basis.

"He came very highly recommended by a number of individuals," GSU athletics director Sam Baker said. "It's obvious to me that Tom did an outstanding job here for four years and then went to Stetson, where he gained valuable administrative experience."

"Tom knows the market and I am certain he will carry on the tradition of providing first-rate service to student-athletes, coaches and the media."

Eagles drop fourth match of season to Bulldogs

GSU dropped their fourth game of the season to UNC-Asheville, 3-2, in Asheville, N.C., on Sunday.

Playing with a man down most of the game, the Eagles scored both their goals off indirect kicks.

Kevin Hanfman scored the first goal for the Eagles (2-4-1) with Chris Sklar supplying the assist.

Jason Russell put the second marker on the board when he was assisted by Bobby McDaniel.

The Eagles were outshot 13-7 by the Bulldogs in the match.

But despite the loss, things are indeed appearing to be a bit smoother for new soccer coach Kevin Chambers.

Especially now after the Eagles have racked up their second win of the season last Friday when they embarked on a trip to the mountains to battle with Appalachian State University, a Southern Conference foe and third-place finisher in the conference standings last year, two spots ahead of GSU.

But even with Appy's impressive finish last year, the Mountaineers still suffered two defeats to the Eagles, breaking a four-win skid the Mountaineers had built up over three years. One of the Eagle wins came in an overtime 6-4 loss at the Southern Conference tournament.

And that was by an Eagle team who started out 1-9 on the season. Chambers took his GSU squad, who sports only three seniors, to Boone, N.C., and pulled off yet another victory over the snake-bitten Mountaineers.

With the score tied 1-1 at half-time, Jeremy McClure, a freshman midfielder from Dublin, Ga., scored two goals in the second half to give the Eagles the lead and the eventual 4-1 win.

The win broke a two-game losing streak suffered at the hands of Central Florida and Florida Atlantic, in which the Eagles were outscored in the two contests 7-1.

The Eagles began the season with a 3-2 loss to South Florida on Aug. 31, and then came back the next day to tie with Stetson, 1-1. Chris Sklar scored the only goal for GSU.

GSU's first win came over USC-Aiken by a score of 6-0 on Sept. 4.

In that game, sophomore Jason Russell ignited the scoring frenzy with three goals scored, while junior Pat Parris, senior Johan Soderstrom and sophomore Mike Povenz all added one each.

Maddux content with four Cy Youngs

By Paul Newberry
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — It began to seem a routine event to mark on the off-season calendar. Greg Maddux would have a brilliant year, then go pick up another Cy Young Award.

What Maddux accomplished over the past four years was one of the most remarkable feats in baseball history, right up there with Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak, Hank Aaron's 755 homers and Johnny Vander Meer's back-to-back no-hitters.

Four straight Cy Young awards. But The Streak is over. "It's a nice award," said Maddux. "You really don't think about it much during the season. But in the wintertime, I would look up on the wall at my plaques and, yeah, it would feel good."

For the first time since 1991, Maddux won't be voted the best pitcher in the National League. He'll probably have to settle for being the third- or fourth-best.

It took a 20-win season—the first in the majors since 1993—to knock Maddux from his throne. He's happy that one of his teammates, John Smoltz, is the likely heir.

In fact, it looks like the Braves will have the three pitchers who've combined to win the last six NL Cy Youngs.

"To win four in a row, I don't know if people realize how hard that is to do," said Tom Glavine, who won it in 1991. "I don't know if it will ever be done again. I certainly don't think it will be done in my lifetime."

Certainly, The Streak doesn't have the drama of Pete Rose chasing Ty Cobb for base-hit immordifferential that's the best in baseball history. And what's No. 2 on the list? That came last year when Maddux went 19-2 with a 1.65 ERA — 2.55 below the league average of 4.18.

"People don't really appreciate it as much right now as they will when Greg is all done playing," Glavine said.

"BUT IN THE WINTERTIME, I WOULD LOOK UP ON THE WALL AT MY PLAQUES AND, YEAH, IT WOULD FEEL GOOD."

— GREG MADDUX,
FOUR-TIME CY YOUNG AWARD WINNER

tality. Maddux's accomplishment was methodical, without a lot of fanfare, just like the man himself.

It was simply a matter of the best pitcher in baseball maintaining a consistent level of brilliance year after year— after year after year.

During Maddux's first two Cy Young seasons, he was simply great, winning 20 games both times with ERAs in the low 2s. It was in the last two years that Maddux took his domination further.

In 1994, he had a 1.56 ERA while the cumulative NL average was 4.21—a staggering 2.65

"Then, somewhere down the road, people will realize, 'Gosh, no one has come close to doing that again. That was such a great feat.'"

Indeed, Maddux stands alone. Ol' Cy may have been the winningest pitcher in baseball history, but he never had a four-year stretch like Maddux. Few do.

Walter Johnson led the American League in wins four straight years between 1913-16, so there's a chance he could have won such a Cy Young Award every year, but the award didn't begin until 1956.

Lefty Grove had an amazing six-year stretch from 1928-33 when he led the AL in wins four times and also had four ERA titles.

In the past 30 years, the only pitcher who has come close to Maddux's domination is Sandy Koufax, who won the award in 1963, '65 and '66.

WELCOME WEEK NEWS

Computer classes teach the basics

By Erika Anderson
Features Editor

For many GSU students, Zach S. Henderson Library is a second home. Whether typing a paper, doing research, or e-mailing a friend, most students have spent at least one or two late nights in the library.

There are some students who are not as knowledgeable as others, especially when it comes to computers. Library classes scheduled for today and tomorrow are guaranteed to help even the most helpless student with computer know-how.

The sessions will kick off both days with a basic WordPerfect class at 10 a.m. and will continue with a different class every hour, with the last class beginning at 4 p.m.

The classes will cover e-mail, surfing the Internet, WordPerfect basics and using GALILEO for research.

Laura Davidson, head of information services for the library, is confident that they will have a good turnout for these classes.

"We had a good response last year for these classes, so we'll probably have a good number of students this year," Davidson said.

The classes offered today and tomorrow are in accordance with the Welcome Week activities, but Davidson said classes will be offered throughout the quarter at night that will teach students the computer basics as well.

"These classes will be experimental," Davidson said. "But we have gotten pretty good responses from faculty and staff."

The classes will be taught by various information services staff and will have room for up to 25 people.

To attend the classes today and tomorrow, students need nothing but their typing fingers, except for the e-mail sessions. Students must first get an e-mail account, available in the basement of the Administration Building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and only a GSU ID is needed.

Davidson said that she hopes students get two things out of these classes.

"I want students to have a very basic understanding of these programs and I want them to know where to get help with them also," Davidson said.

CRI sponsors canoeing

By Erika Anderson
Features Editor

Students who stare down at our campus lake and desperately wish for a closer look get their chance to canoe among the turtles and fish this week with Campus Recreation/Intramurals' second annual Canoe on the Lake.

Christie Harrison, outdoor recreation program director, said they hope a lot of people take part in this activity.

"We expect tons of people," Harrison said. "We want to get our name known and give people a chance to canoe around the lake."

The canoeing began Monday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will also take place tomorrow and Thursday during those same times.

Students who want to canoe should plan on being at the lake between those times.

Harrison said that whether or not there is a limit to the amount of time each canoe can spend on the lake depends on the attendance.

"It all depends. We might even do a few races," Harrison said.

"We're flexible."

Get involved in campus activities

The signs of fall are everywhere. The Student Information booths are in place and ready to be filled with veteran students eager to give directions and information to lost newcomers. The carpet merchants are strategically placed on each corner of campus with their discount rolls of carpet for sale. And flyers urging students to attend the Welcome Week festivities are on every wall, bulletin board and door throughout campus.

Each year, the Welcome Week committee works hard to plan activities for freshman, transfer students, and returning students that will help ease the transition from summer to fall. This year, the Welcome Week committee has done an excellent job planning sessions that are relevant to almost every GSU student.

Whether a student is com-

TAKE IT FROM ME ERIKA ANDERSON

puter illiterate, hopeless with dating, or a bad example of time management, Welcome Week has a session or class to help. Students can even canoe around the campus lake, get hypnotized, or meet the merchants of Statesboro.

I urge students to get involved right away. Take part in Welcome Week. Chances are, older students will tell you there is a lot they wish they had learned when they first got here, and Welcome Week probably has the class to teach it.

Students are too quick to disregard activities and function offered by the campus. I'll even admit that I don't make it to as many events as I should, but I do know that Union Productions and other organizations on campus work hard to offer special events of high quality. These functions should have a higher student participation. After all, we are the ones who pay for them with our student activity fees.

Would you purchase tickets for a concert and then not go?

As a senior, I have learned a lot. But I think the two most important words to know about college life are Get Involved! That's right. Get involved in any way you can, whether it is through the campus or the Statesboro community. I guarantee that your years at GSU will be the best they can be, so plan to get involved right away. You'll regret it if you don't.

MUSIC

Newsboys to play Hanner tonight

G-A Staff Reports

Contemporary Christian music comes to Statesboro tonight with the three-pronged concert at Hanner Fieldhouse featuring the popular band, Newsboys, in the Take Me To Your Leader tour.

New Life Ministry, the campus ministry group from New Covenant Church, is sponsoring the concert, which will begin at 7 p.m.

Newsboys is one of the most popular Christian bands, with various awards, including several Dove Awards to prove it. They are well-known for their elaborate stage performance and outlandish clothing.

Their latest release, a 60-minute mini-movie entitled Down Under the Big Top, was just released Sept. 8, in accordance with this tour.

Don Williams, campus minister for New Life Ministries, said they expect a great turnout.

"We've already sold a lot of tickets," Williams said. "We've just about sold out of floor seating, but we still have bleacher seating left."

Williams said that this concert has been in the works for about six months.

"WE'VE ALREADY SOLD A LOT OF TICKETS. WE'VE JUST ABOUT SOLD OUT OF FLOOR SEATING, BUT WE STILL HAVE BLEACHER SEATING LEFT."

— DON WILLIAMS,
CAMPUS MINISTER FOR NEW LIFE MINISTRIES

In addition to Newsboys, Geoff Moore and the Distance along with Plankeye, a Christian punk band, will be playing.

Moore, who is a former corporate executive, began playing Christian music in 1983 and is now a well-known and respected artist in contemporary Christian music.

Plankeye is an example of the alternative side of Christian music.

They have been compared to such bands as Green Day.

For ticket information, call 681-6777. Tickets, which are $10 for GSU students, can be purchased from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at New Covenant Church on Gentilly Road.

"We expect a sell-out crowd," Williams said.

What It Is and Where It Came From

The University System of Georgia, through the Office of Information and Instructional Technology (OIIT), has purchased the BANNER® Student System and the BANNER® Financial Aid System at a significant discount for the two- and four-year colleges and the regional universities of the University system.

BANNER® will provide the technology for one of Chancellor Stephen Portch's technology initiatives, Connecting Students and Services, which has been funded by the Georgia Legislature. The BANNER® systems use the Oracle RDBMS (Relational Database Management System). Under the purchase plan, the Oracle database will be provided to the thirty institutions at no charge. Institutions, however, are responsible for the required hardware. As a result, Georgia Southern has purchased an IBM RS6000.

The student modules include Course Catalog, Schedule, General Person, Location Management, Housing, Recruiting, Admission, General Student, Registration, Accounts Receivable, Academic History, and Degree Audit. The Financial Aid modules consist of Record Creation, Need Analysis, Tracking, Budgeting, Verification, Packaging, Fund Management, Disbursements, Loan Processing and Check Tracking, Student Employment, Pell EDE, Award History, and Transcripts.

Freshman Survival Guide

- Get a phone card for calling home. It will save you a lot of money, and you won't have an excuse for not calling the parents.

- When you fill out your maintenance room report at the beginning of the year, mark every single detail, as well as a few extra. School fines can be outrageous for very small damages to your room.

- Buy an alarm clock that has a battery back-up. The power always seems to go out in the middle of the night.

- Get to know the professors in your major department. Letters of recommendation are very useful when you are looking for a job.

- Take care of money matters. Open a saving and checking account with a local bank, but shop around for the best fees. Some banks require students maintain minimum balances; others tack on charges for using automatic-teller machine cards at machines not owned by the bank.

- Have a "ground rules" chat with your roommate. You'll each be glad you took the time to work out a plan to accommodate each other's study, sleeping, eating and CD-blasting habits.

Source: College Press Service

- Find out where all of your classes are before the first day of school. When 14,000 college students are all looking for their classes, this campus can be pretty overwhelming.

- Seek out a campus organization that you are interested in and join it. There is something out there for everyone. And the best way to survive college, have fun, and meet a lot of interesting people is to get involved.

- Do not fall into the trap of fast-food eating. The "Freshman 15" is not a myth and late-night pizza binges are not uncommon in college. Avoid eating out every night. Seek out a good diet and balance it with a strong exercise program.

MONEY-SAVING TIPS

Buying textbooks the smart way

By Colleen DeBaise
College Press Service

University of Iowa freshman Sharon Monaghan had just trudged back to her dorm room with heavy sack of textbooks and mild case of sticker shock.

"This one book alone cost $40," said Monaghan, pointing to a text for a music appreciation class. "I couldn't believe it."

On average, college students spend about $600 each school they buy the right issue of a book."

But after two years on campus, Riche said she is more likely to check out other avenues. For example, at UC, there is an independent student organization and a local bookstore that sell some textbooks.

Love said there are two schools of thought when it comes to buying books for class.

Some students recommend books, pay less money and beat the long lines, Love said.

Riche said she recommends students buy their books early.

"First, the lines are absolutely amazing," she said. "If you buy books early, there's usually more used texts available. That saves money."

But make sure you find out first if your store will accept returns of used books without a drop/add card, Love said. That way you can return the book if you don't need it.

As far as whether to buy books early or wait until classes start, "it depends on the student. It's what you want to do," Love said. "You can save either way."

Other tips from the association:

- Be careful to distinguish between "required" and "optional" textbooks. Usually the information is on the shelf tag or book list. Don't buy optional books until you attend the first class. At that time, ask the instructor how much the text will used.

- Find out your store's refund policy. How long do you have to return a text? Are new and used books returnable? And don't take books out of the shrink wrap until you find out whether the school will take opened packages back.

- Many students prefer to keep their textbooks and build their own library. However, if you decide to sell a book, remember to do so at the end of the semester. Don't wait until the beginning of the next term.

The association recently began a project that traces the history of college bookstores, and some interesting discoveries have been made.

"Textbooks were overpriced back in 1915," Love said. "This is not new. There hasn't been a student who didn't think that textbooks were overpriced."

"TEXTBOOKS WERE OVERPRICED BACK IN 1915.

THIS IS NOT NEW. THERE HASN'T BEEN A STUDENT WHO DIDN'T THINK THAT TEXTBOOKS WERE OVERPRICED."

— MARTHA LOVE,
NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE STORES

year on books and supplies, according to Martha Love, information analyst for the National Association of College Stores.

The trick is getting the most for your money, and the association offers a number of tips for shopping wisely at the campus bookstore.

In particular, freshman might be startled by the costs of textbooks on their first bookbuying trip, Love said.

The association has conducted surveys and found that by senior year, many students have devised strategies to save money on books, Love said.

Freshman, on the other hand, "were much more compelled to buy anything the professor said," she said.

"Freshmen don't know the town and what other options they may have," Michelle Riche, a University of California-Santa Cruz junior, said.

"On my campus there is the mega-bookstore that charges top dollars for books. First-year students are more likely to go there because they want to make sure going to class first, before you buy your books. That way, you might discover that a roommate or friend is in the same class and could share a book with you, Love said.

Also, check with friends to see if they've taken the course. Ask if they'll lend you their textbook, or if the book was needed, she said.

Going to class first also gives the student a chance to question the professor about whether the textbook really will be used, she said.

A student should ask if an older—and usually cheaper—edition can be substituted, or if a copy has been placed on reserve at the library.

If a professor is using a newer edition in the classroom, Riche said she'll just ask a student what section they're on if the page numbers don't match up.

"Usually the material doesn't change that much," she added.

The other school of thought is that by hitting the bookstore early, before classes start, a student can get the least-worn used

DECORATING TIPS

Spice up that drab dorm room

By Colleen DeBaise
College Press Service

TROY, Mich.—Face it. Your dorm room—that pantry-sized, 12-foot by 18-foot space—is where you'll spend your life for the next eight or nine months.

But with a few creative touches, "college students strapped for cash can convert their dorm rooms into campus castles," says Jodi Anger, a 24-year-old interior design consultant. Anger was recently charged with the task of decorating a dorm room—deprived of everything except standard furniture—at Eastern Michigan University.

The challenge was that she could only use inexpensive products available from K-Mart or other low-price stores.

EMU liked the results so much it's now showcasing the room during campus tours as the epitome of dorm living.

Anger has put together a list of dorm room decorating tips, and for starters she suggests that students accept any old dishes or worn-out furniture offered from your parent's basement.

"Stash your cash for those just-got-to-have-it items that will make your fellow dorm rats envious," she said.

Some decorating tips based on Anger's work in the EMU dorm room:

- Purchase space-saving containers to conveniently store your most prized possessions. Examples are Rubbermaid snap-shut cases, stacking drawers and 10-gallon storage totes.

- Invest in a multi-purpose cart with storage bins. Anger chose a cart with wheels so that it could easily move around the room.

linens or bulky sweaters.

- Use the colors in your comforter as a starting point to color-coordinate your room. Decorative pillows, bed rests, area rugs, picture frames and framed art can all share the same color scheme.

- A dome-touch lamp with a 3-way lighting feature sheds just the right amount of light, especially when one student burns the midnight oil while the roomies sleep.

- Give the dorm room a finished look with an area rug and accent rugs. Anger chose a neutral 58-inch by 91-inch Berber-style natural rug and a jewel-tone 24-inch by 60-inch accent runner rug.

- Change the curtains supplied by the housing office, but be careful not to break housing codes. Anger used a black finishing decorative rod and hook-shaped finials as fixtures for the new curtains. She hung 82-inch by 63-inch Hampton style panel curtains in hunter green from the fixture.

When it comes to appliances and electronics, pool your resources. If you don't continue to live together, buy them from your roommate at the end of the year, Anger recommends.

Taking Care of Business

By
Melanie Weinberg

Welcome back to those of you returning, and I extend a warm welcome to the new students who are here to experience Statesboro and GSU for the first time.

Let's start with the basics, shall we?

Entertainment—anything that amuses or pleases, i.e. movies, plays, art, music, concerts, clubs, books, etc.

Statesboro—a small college town in south Georgia that offers little to nil entertainment.

Solution—stop complaining, turn off the television, and get out and support the local scene, and lastly, read The George Anne every Thursday to find out what's going on in the entertainment world, not only locally, but nationally as well.

My goal that I wish to achieve through the new Arts and Entertainment section is to keep the students and the community well-informed of what's happening on campus and off in the entertainment world.

The on-campus news will include Theatre and Performance, other student plays, student and staff recitals in the music department, student and staff art exhibits, Union Productions, and anything else on campus that serves as a means to entertain.

I will provide credible reviews of new or previously-released CD's, movies, and the occasional restaurant review.

I also intend to keep readers informed of what goes on nationally. By this I mean CD releases, Hollywood news, music news, etc.

But first things first, we have to cure the disease of boredom around here or my job will serve no purpose.

This is my third year at GSU and I always hear about how boring the town is, that no bands come through here, and that there is basically nothing to do. This isn't actually true, because some of us create this situation ourselves.

I can't begin to count the times I have sat in Blind Willies and listened to an awesome band play, yet the crowd attendance was terrible.

If you are not going to support the local music scene, then don't complain that there is no live music. Plenty of rockin' bands come through here, it's just a matter of going to see them.

So, instead of sitting around with your buddies drinking beer on the front porch, read this section to find out what else you can do to enhance your college days and make them as memorable as possible.

Well I guess that'll do it for me. Until next time—Rock on!

I gratefully accept comments and suggestions. Please E-Mail me at:

Disregard rumors: Legends will reopen

By Melanie J. Weinberg
Arts and Entertainment Editor

The widespread panic that occurred last spring when rumors spread that Legends was closing its doors for good was simply a premature action of those that love the famous night spot.

Owner and operator Trey Britt closed the night club at the end of spring quarter so that he could expand and remodel the building in an effort to look more like a big city club.

"We are going to try to model ourselves like a club in Atlanta or Orlando," Britt said, in an interview over the summer. "But there is just so much we can do because we are not allowed to sell anything other than beer."

Britt also said that he chose to close Legends over the summer because he didn't own the building at the time.

Mike Spilker

Construction workers worked all summer to expand and remodel Legends for fall.

"I have been renting the building for four years," he said. "When my last lease ran out, I was told that the bank was going to sell the building. So, along with my lawyer and a financial advisor, I decided that I would buy the building."

Britt said that he was deterred from making the changes he wanted to in the past because he was only leasing the building.

However, when Legends reopens in the fall, there will be a new sound system, a larger women's restroom, and the whole atmosphere will be more club-like, Britt said.

As far as music and live shows goes, Britt has plans for that as well.

He said that he is going to try to get two or three national acts per quarter and he is also going to try and have two outdoor shows this year.

Britt also owns the Wooden Nickel, and plans on making a few changes there as well.

"I really want to thank the students for their support during the summer," Britt said. "It was great to know that we were going to be missed if we [Legends] had closed."

'Where to go, what to do?'

A review and preview of entertainment options both off and on campus

Offerings off-campus

By Melanie J. Weinberg
Arts and Entertainment Editor

As the students, faculty and staff prepare for a new school year, the restaurants and clubs around Statesboro are gearing up to provide fun places to go and good food to eat.

Over at University Plaza, there is Boomers, Mellow Mushroom, Zaxby's, and the Woodin Nickel.

Boomers

Boomers will feature live jazz every other Friday night and acoustic music on Thursday, Friday or Saturday night the opposite week of the jazz.

Frank Sanders, the manager at Boomers, says that they have great salads, sandwiches and claims that their Bloomin Onion is the best.

Boomers has 20 televisions in which diners can participate in interactive trivia as well as Monday night football with the interactive TV game, QB1.

Mellow Mushroom

Yes, it is true that the 'Shroom lost their liquor license over the summer, but have no fear because they got it back a week ago.

You can expect to see live music every Thursday night from the band Taurus Wabo.

Besides their famous pizza that is "baked on the stone," the menu also includes salads, calzones and tasty hoagies.

Zaxby's

Chicken, chicken, and more chicken. Anyway you want it—on a salad, in a Texas toast sandwich, or just plain old chicken strips dipped in their famous secret sauce.

Live music is a favorite of GSU students and it can be found almost anywhere

Woodin Nickel

The Nickel features live music throughout the week as well as a full menu, and of course, beer.

Two of the most favorite night spots in the 'boro are Legends and Blind Willies, both located on Old Register Road just a few yards away from each other, and another favorite place is Bubba's located on Highway 301 south.

Legends

Currently undergoing construction to remodel and expand, Legends has the reputation as the place to go when you want to dance, drink, listen to live music, and/or pick up the opposite sex.

Blind Willies

Everything that makes up a good time is found inside this rustic shed sitting in a field.

With a bar, some pool tables and a live band, you're good to go.

Blind Willies will be offering free pool on Monday and Friday nights, with a $1 cover and Tuesday is Reggae night also with a $1 cover.

The atmosphere, which is very laid-back, is dim and smoky, and to top it off, the people are cool.

Bubba's

For the fighter in all of us, check out Bubba's tonight because they will be holding boxing matches, which they do frequently, and anyone can sign up to bring their aggressions into the ring.

Other places of interest include Archibald's, Dingus Magees', Franklin's, and much, much more.

Now that you have the rundown of some of the places to go and things to see, I urge each and every one of you to at least check these places out and realize that there is more to do down here than watch the grass grow.

Offerings on-campus

By Jason Miller
Staff Writer

With the '96-'97 school year about to start, various departments around campus have exciting plans for a full fall quarter. There are several activities planned for all types of interests.

The music department has an exciting quarter planned for the music lover.

All performances are held in the Foy Recital Hall at 8 p.m., unless otherwise noted.

September kicks off with the Georgia Southern Opera Theater on Thursday, Sept. 26.

On Friday, Sept. 27, "Memories from the Holocaust" will be performed, and on Saturday, Sept. 28 there will be "An Opera in One Act," by Michael Braz.

October features the Faculty Recital Series on Tuesday, Oct. 1.

The Jazz Ensemble will perform Wednesday, Oct. 9, followed by the Faculty Showcase Recital on Thursday.

The Junior Recital, featuring Jennifer Rivers on piano, will be on Sunday, Oct. 13 at 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25 is the Guest Artist Series with Sarah Blair Hancock, mezzo-soprano, and Michael Braz, on piano.

Stop in on Monday, Oct. 28 and listen to your peers perform in the General Student Recital at 1 p.m. ginning at 12:30 p.m.

Piano Competition, will perform for the Guest Recital on Thursday, Nov. 7.

Come back on Tuesday, Nov. 19, and listen to Woy and Steinberg perform in the Third Annual Unaccompanied Clarinet Festival.

On Wednesday, Nov. 20, Joan Taylor, mezzo-soprano, and Linda Li-Beuel, on piano, will lead the Senior Recital.

The Jazz Ensemble returns on Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in the Russell Union Ballroom, followed by the Choral Concert on Nov. 22. The General Student Recital is on Nov. 25 at 1 p.m.

To close the quarter out, Monday, Dec. 9 is the Statesboro-Georgia Southern Symphony at 7 p.m. in the Russell Union Ballroom.

Admission to all events is free for students with an I.D. Look for flyers around campus, and don't forget classes start Thursday Sept. 19.

Union Productions has also planned several concerts for the fall.

First, on Oct. 9, The Nudes will play from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the University Ballroom, and on Oct. 27, The Riots Jam from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the ballroom.

GSU's 1996-1997 theater season starts with "A Fitting Confusion" written by Georges Feydeau and directed by James Harbour. The play opens Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. and runs through Nov. 2 in the McCroan Auditorium.

A 'Burden in Your Hand'? Think again

and maybe Soundgarden gaining "hit" status themselves.

Instead, Soundgarden delivers a wide assortment of songs that will please almost any true rock fan. The lyrics, reflective and full of angst, are the only aspect of the album that is redundantly Soundgarden.

"Down on the Upside" begins with the wah-pedaled guitar strains of "Pretty Noose," and is accented throughout by appropriate bass fills and strong drumming.

The riffing in the song "Rhinosaur" exhibits the influence of Black Sabbath and Led Zeppelin. A dark, Zeppelin-like feel is also prevalent in "Tighter and Tighter." If you like the bluesy-bent tunes, then try out "Burden in My Hand."

Soundgarden delivers a tasteful punk tune via "Ty Cobb." (The baseball hero's name is never mentioned; however, the song is littered with four letter words and beautified by mandolin accompaniment.)

There are dull spots on "Down on the Upside," but I do not think they were intentionally slid in as a way to lengthen the album. It is just that some songs rise triumphantly above others.

The work on the album is by far one of the most creative compilations of songs that I have heard from a veteran band signed to a major label.

The majority of the creativity is supplied, of course, by singer/guitarist Chris Cornell.

The surprise contributor from the band is none other than bassist, Ben Shepherd. He receives credit for more than just a few of the song's musical composition.

If you saw Soundgarden at Lollapalooza this summer (or if you have ever seen them) and were not stricken with delight, do not let that discourage you from at least giving this album a try.

The acoustics at a Lollapalooza show are usually lousy. So, while Soundgarden can surely perform nicely and with ample energy in concert, I believe their songs become true gems with studio mediation.

While many of the tunes on the album present a '70s hard-rock aura, the music is uniquely Soundgarden. From the distant guitar tone and chord changes to the throat-ripping vocals of Cornell, you can smell these guys 3000 miles away.

I think it is now safe to say that this band has moved to the top of the list of the bands bursting out of Seattle in the early '90s.

Lost in this collection of ear candy is the steadfast image of Soundgarden being strictly an overloud, sloppy grunge band.

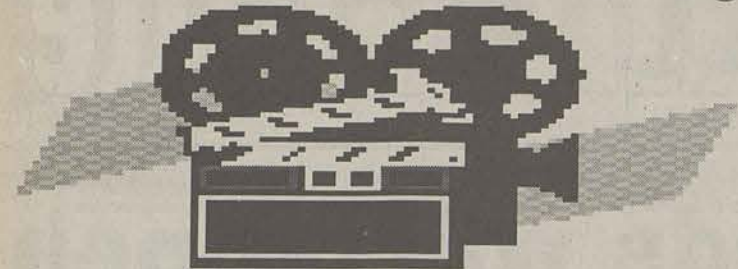

While traces of a garage past obviously linger, "Down on the Upside" gives the listener an overwhelming reason to shed completely this inaccurate image.

As I have said before, give it a listen. It rocks.

MOVIE REVIEW

'A Time to Kill': A time to rage, to laugh, to cry

By Melanie J. Weinberg
Arts and Entertainment Editor

As one of this summer's top movies, "A Time to Kill" will definitely go on my list as one of the best movies that I have ever seen.

Based on a novel written by John Grisham ("The Firm," "The Client") and directed by Joel Schumacher ("The Client," "Batman Forever"), this film takes you on a roller coaster ride through the many prevalent issues that our society faces today. From adultery and racism to politics and the American justice system, "A Time to Kill" portrays how life would be in a southern Mississippi town.

With a story line as riveting as this one, it took an outstanding cast that includes names such as Samuel L. Jackson ("Pulp Fiction"), Sandra Bullock ("Speed," "The Net"), Matthew McConaughey ("Dazed and Confused," "Boys on the Side"), and Oscar-winning Kevin Spacey ("The Usual Suspect") to make the movie as hard-hitting as it is.

The main plot follows the life of young, new lawyer Jake Brigance who just took over a law firm from his mentor played by Donald Sutherland ("Buffy the Vampire Slayer," "Ordinary People").

With no money and a wife (played by Ashley Judd) and daughter to support, Brigance chooses to take on a case defending Carl Lee Hailey (Samuel L. Jackson) who stands trial for murdering the two men who brutally raped and abused his little girl.

One sub-plot takes the audience on a rampage with Kiefer

Sutherland ("The Lost Boys"), who plays the brother of one of the murdered rapists.

His intent is to get the KKK involved in an effort to keep Hailey behind bars.

The prejudice that is depicted in the movie is so intense that the audience is caught choosing sides between the characters. Either you want Hailey found guilty or you want him set free—regardless if he's a murderer or not.

The movie wanders off the subject again to keep a close eye on Brigance and his volunteer secretary, Ellen Roark (played by Bullock). Although Brigance is married, there are several should be found guilty or not guilty.

So while the movie makes the audience hate the "bad" people, it also makes them sympathize with the "good" people.

When Brigance took on the case, he might as well have signed a deal with the devil.

His child was harassed at school, crosses were burned in his front yard, his wife left for a vacation because of the danger, his volunteer secretary was abducted and beaten, and his house was blown up. Sounds like a bad month to me.

Yet, he stuck through it.

And the reason why is enough to bring tears to anyone's eyes. Had it been his little girl who had been repeatedly raped and battered by two disgusting, low-life country boys, he would have killed them too.

But because Hailey is black, the jury is bombarded by the prosecution to find him guilty...and they almost do until scenes in the movie in which he is tempted to break his vows. I like the subliminal message that these scenes give off. The lesson that the audience learns...don't do it, it's wrong.

"A Time to Kill" also reveals a political side in which the good and the crooked battle it out in the court room.

The prosecutor in the case, (played by Kevin Spacey), is oh-so-nasty.

Along with his southern gentleman accent, his courtroom tactics are so pompous that once again the audience finds themselves choosing sides between the defense and the prosecution, which in turn leads back to the vote of whether or not Hailey

Brigance's tear-jerking closing statement.

He requests that the jury members close their eyes, and for 10 minutes, he describes in detail what happened to Hailey's daughter.

He then turns to the jury, looking each one of them in the eye with tears rolling down his own face, and asks the simple question, "What if she was white?" Hailey was found not guilty and was set free.

If you haven't yet seen the movie, do so. It will move you, it will anger you, it will depress you.

But after all, great movies are supposed to leave you with new emotions.

Pamela Lee Anderson sued by Private Movie Company

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A judge rejected a motion by attorneys to throw out a movie production company's breach of promise lawsuit against "Baywatch" star Pamela Anderson Lee.

Private Movie Company is seeking $5 million in damages, claiming it lost money after she refused to appear in a movie called, "Hello, She Lied."

The suit alleges breach of written contract, breach of oral contract and intentional misrepresentation. Each claim is disputed by Lee, but the judge left the case intact for trial.

The company contends that it began pre-production in November of 1994 after Lee promised to play the lead role and signed a contract for the job.

Lee asked for a delay to be with her family during Christmas and then withdrew from the production, the lawsuit claims.

Lee later starred in the movie "Barbed Wire."

Oasis cancels tour amid 'differences'

The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE — The final five American tour dates for the British pop group Oasis have evaporated after troubles surfaced within the quartet.

The group, known for its top-selling CD, "(What's the Story) Morning Glory?", cancelled its concert on Wednesday night at the Charlotte Hornets Training Facility in Fort Mill, S.C.

Then, Epic Records, the band's label, also announced the band had canceled the rest of its tour — in Atlanta and three stops in Florida.

"Oasis have hit internal differences on their ninth tour of the U.S., which has resulted in the tour being pulled two-thirds of the way through," the statement said.

Hornets Training Facility Manager Marc Farha said they were notified of the cancellation about 6 p.m. Wednesday and got the word out via radio. Approximately 3,500 advance tickets had been sold for the event at the facility, which seats 5,000 for concerts.

Ticket refunds for the canceled Charlotte show are available from where they were bought.

Daughter of Dave Matthews bassist dies

The Associated Press

WOODSTOCK, N.Y. — The Dave Matthews Band has canceled one concert date and may miss two others following the death of a band member's newborn child.

Asian Mozelle, the three-week old daughter of bassist Stefan Lessard and wife Josie Baucom, died Wednesday morning in Woodstock, N.Y. She was the couple's only child. The cause of the death is unknown, said spokeswoman Ambrosia Healy.

The quintet, led by singer and acoustic guitarist Dave Matthews, was promoting their hit album "Crash" on a 12-week tour. They were scheduled to perform in Nashville Wednesday night, but canceled in the wake of Asian's death.

Police looking for rap star Luther Campbell

The Associated Press

LAFAYETTE, La. — Miami rap star Luther Campbell is facing second-degree battery charges in Louisiana for throwing a female fan into the crowd at a July 14 concert, authorities said.

Lafayette Parish sheriff's officials have issued a warrant for the arrest of the former 2 Live Crew front man.

"Campbell has been charged with second-degree battery," Capt. Mike Savoie said Wednesday. "We had an address in Miami, but we haven't been able to locate him so we're trying to get the word out."

According to the warrant, Campbell was playing a July 14 concert at Club Strawberry in rural Lafayette Parish when, during a dance contest, a female patron in the contest was held down by Campbell and members of his dance troupe.

The warrant said Campbell picked the woman up and threw her into the crowd. She was unconscious as she hit the floor but her injuries were not stated in the warrant.

The victim filed the complaint in July and investigators said they have since gathered enough evidence to charge Campbell.

Downey pleads no contest to charges

The Associated Press

MALIBU, Calif. — Robert Downey Jr. was ordered back to a live-in rehabilitation program after pleading no contest to drug and weapons charges.

The Oscar-nominated actor was ordered to return to court on Nov. 6 for sentencing.

During his Wednesday court appearance, Downey entered a negotiated plea in which one count of felony heroin possession will be dismissed.

He still faces sentencing on one count of felony cocaine possession and one count each of misdemeanor driving under the influence, possession of a weapon and being under the influence of a controlled substance. He was arrested three times within a month this summer.

Downey was also booked for investigation of trespassing when he was arrested on July 16, but the family in that case chose not to press charges against the actor, who apparently mistook their home for his nearby house, broke in and fell asleep in a child's bed, said Deputy District Attorney Ellen Aragon.

After Wednesday's hearing Downey kissed his estranged wife, Deborah Falconer, and appeared relieved. He said little to reporters outside the courtroom. Asked how his drug treatment was going, he replied, "Real good. It's working."

Downey, 31, could be sentenced to a maximum of three years in prison for the felony and two years total on the three misdemeanors.

Prosecutors, however, won't ask for prison time but likely will seek a shorter county jail term and probation, Aragon said.

Downey's attorney, Charles English, said his client was concentrating on overcoming his drug problems.

Downey received an Oscar nomination for the 1992 film "Chaplin." Some of his other films include "Less Than Zero," "Restoration" and "Natural Born Killers."

Wal-Mart bans sale of Sheryl Crow album

By Jeff Wilson

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The decision by Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the nation's largest retailer, to ban a new Sheryl Crow album that suggests Wal-Mart sells guns to kids was condemned by the record company as censorship.

"In their decision not to carry Sheryl Crow's latest release, Wal-Mart is choosing guns over music," said A&M Records chairman Al Cafaro, who called the offending song "a cautionary tale."

"Shame on Wal-Mart to censor that message out of its own self-interest," said Hilary Rosen, president of the Recording Industry Association of America.

The lyrics in the single "Love is a Good Thing" includes: "Watch out sister. Watch out brother. Watch out children as they kill each other with a gun they bought at the Wal-Mart discount store."

"Wal-Mart believes this is an unfair, untrue and totally irresponsible comment and is particularly offensive to our associates who work hard each year helping their communities with the needs of our youth," the company said in a statement.

Wal-Mart doesn't sell handguns in its stores, but it does sell weapons through its catalog with strict policies against selling them to minors.

"Everyday in America, children are dying by guns bought legally. This is a fact," Cafaro said. "Sheryl's responsibility as an artist is to reveal the truth, and it is our responsibility as a record company to defend her ability to do so."

The Grammy-winner's album "Sheryl Crow" will be released Sept. 24.

Wal-Mart often refuses to sell albums with sexually explicit or violent language. Dale Ingram, spokesman for the Bentonville, Ark.-based retailer, characterized the lyrics as an unfair attack on Wal-Mart.

"Selling a record implying behavior that is against all we stand for is something we just could not profit from," Ingram said.

Wal-Mart, with 2,265 stores, could have sold 400,000 albums or more if "Sheryl Crow" turns out to be a hit.

Wal-Mart sold handguns in its stores until 1994, when the policy was changed after the retailer was sued by the family of a Texas man who allegedly killed his parents with a gun he bought at a Wal-Mart.

"Wal-Mart complies with all state and federal laws regarding the sale and purchase of firearms," Wal-Mart said in a statement Tuesday.

The album is a follow-up to Crow's "Tuesday Night Music Club" album, which included the runaway hit single "All I Wanna Do."

The song won top record and pop vocal performance Grammy's last year.

"At a time when the entire entertainment industry is criticized about lyrics being too violent, here we have a cautionary tale about the dangers of guns," said Cafaro.
