GSU gets back in win column with 34-17 victory over The Citadel

By Doug Kidd
Assistant Sports Editor

GSU came home to Paulson Stadium looking to get on track after last week's loss to Appalachian State, but failed to look sharp as they went on to the 34-17 victory over The Citadel before a season-high Homecoming crowd of 18,536.

The Eagles looked indifferent at times, especially in the first half, which saw The Citadel play ball-controlling offense and an aggressive attacking defense which held Adrian Peterson to his lowest one-half output of his career. The sophomore fullback gained just 11 yards on five carries during the first 30 minutes of play.

"We'll take any win we can get," said senior quarterback Greg Hill, who left the game in the fourth quarter with a minor injury. "It was sluggish and sloppy at times, but we'll take it."

GSU jumped on The Citadel first, with a 40-yard touchdown strike from Hill to Andre Weathers on the Eagles' opening possession. The Bulldogs countered with a quick scoring strike of their own, going 61 yards in four plays, culminating with a Bradley Hall two-yard touchdown run. Both teams swapped field goals over the next quarter and a half, with GSU's Chris Chambers missing a 40 yard field goal as time expired in the half that would have put GSU on top.

The Citadel's determination did not surprise any of the GSU players, especially the seniors who have played against the Bulldogs their entire career like Mark Williams and Voncellies Allen.

"[The Citadel] came out today aggressive like they always do," Williams said. "They come out to play four quarters no matter if they're in the game or down 49-0. It's tough to play against The Citadel."

"We knew they were never going to give up," Allen said. "Those guys came out to fight to the end, and our hats are off to them," said Allen, who finished with three tackles, all for losses.

Overall GSU gained just 149 total yards in the first half, 79 rushing, and scored just 10 points. The Bulldogs came out determined, planning to stop the explosive GSU offense the best way possible: by keeping them off the field. The Citadel controlled the ball for nearly 19 minutes in the first half, on their way to matching GSU's ten point first half output.

GSU woke up midway through the third quarter after The Citadel took the lead 17-10 on quarterback Drew Johnson's one-yard run. The Eagles responded with 24 unanswered points, as Adrian Peterson scored on touchdown runs of 2 and 17 yards between a Chambers' 36-yard field goal to give GSU the lead for good. J.R. Revere added a late touchdown run of eight yards to seal the game.

It was a concern to GSU how the players would react to last week's loss to SoCon rival Appalachian State that put the Eagles right in the middle of the fight for the Southern Conference championship. In the first half, it appeared that The Citadel was the team that had something to prove.

"Early on, we didn't respond well [to last week's loss]," Allen said. "In the second half we did better."

"We weren't playing as physical as they were [in the first half]," said senior offensive lineman Rich McGrath. "[The Citadel] was more aggressive. We came out in the second half and tried to play their level [of intensity]."

The offensive line and Peterson got going in the second half, with

GSU names Homecoming King and Queen

By Marlow Lemons and Sam Siegel
Staff Writer and A&E Editor

Two minutes before half-time, the homecoming candidates assembled on the side line. Brooke Aertker and Michael Hoffman nervously and anxiously waited to walk onto the football field.

Finally, the 1999 Homecoming King and Queen were announced. Brooke, nervous at first, heard her name called and hugged her escort with excitement. She gently bowed to receive the crown that once belonged to Tykier Jackson, but is now in her possession until the Homecoming of 2000. As Hoffman took a step forward, he humbly bowed his head.

Even though Hoffman doesn't know what this means for the future, he is elated for the moment. He said that this honor gives him "a sense of pride."

Hoffman is the president of the Sigma Chi fraternity, but a great deal of his support came from the entirety of Greek Life at GSU. His greatest support came from the Inter-Fraternity Council. According to Hoffman, they spread flyers and gave him a tremendous amount of backing.

Even with their help, Hoffman said that he was very surprised by the outcome.

"I was enthused, honored and excited just to be on the homecoming court," he said. "It makes me feel great to be a part of such an elite group of students."

Even after this honor, though, Hoffman is still humble.

"I feel great, but I'm humbled also by the other Homecoming Court members," he said.

Even though he couldn't be more happy at present, the future is uncertain.

"I don't know what it will do for me in the future," Hoffman said.

Hoffman said that he realizes that this is a great responsibility. This is a shining endorsement for him, and he isn't going to forget just what this means, he said.

"I have the opportunity to represent a wonderful university."

Overall, he said he is just excited. "To win was just a great feeling."

Aertker was also surprised when she was named the 1999 Homecoming Queen.

CROWNS

"I feel good," Aertker said. "I am so excited."

Aertker said that while waiting for her name to be called, she was "just happy, excited and a little bit nervous."

What does being named Homecoming Queen mean to Aertker? "I think of it as such an honor," she said.

Aertker was sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi, but represented the entire Greek community.

Other court members said that they too had the same feeling as they marched onto the field, and are very proud to even be selected as a candidate.

"I am just proud to represent the Black Student Alliance of Georgia Southern University and GSU in general. I am proud to be a part of this great tradition," Francys Johnson, said.

"As my second year here at Georgia Southern University, I feel it was a tremendous, glorious honor just to be on a homecoming court out of fourteen thousand students. I am truly honored to be out here," Monty Edwards, Veazey/Hendricks Hall representative said.

Most of the candidates said they felt honored to be on the field Saturday, and even though not everyone won, no one truly lost.

Nettles performs at Homecoming '99

By Bryant Smalley
Features Editor

With barbecue-chicken plates in hand, GSU students joined Jennifer Nettles for an emotionally provocative performance as part of the homecoming festivities on last Thursday. This was Nettles' first appearance at GSU since the breakup of Soul Miner's Daughter, even though she has played in the 'Boro since then.

At the beginning of the show, the crowd was fairly sparse. But by the second song, people began to fill the tables and to sit on the lawn—gathering to enjoy the acoustic-based band.

The crowd was filled with both Jennifer Nettles longtime fans and newcomers.

"I've never seen a performance of Jennifer Nettles before," Sandra Hicks, a GSU student, said. "But if she comes to town again, I wouldn't miss it."

Nettles performed many songs from her days as the lead singer of Soul Miner's Daughter, some songs remaining the same and some with new twists. She also performed two new songs, "Round N' Round" and "The Story of Your Bones."

Nettles surprised the audience with a rendition of "Thriller" by Michael Jackson that certainly pumped the crowd.

"We decided to play 'Thriller' just for fun and in honor of Halloween," Nettles said. "However, it is definitely a song I never thought I'd be playing." The band also performed covers by Aretha Franklin, Pat Benetar and Emmylou Harris.

Nettles was joined on stage by former Soul Miner's Daughter band members Brad Sikes, Wesley Luphold and Scott Nicholson.

Midway through the show, the band took a break to allow the GSU cheerleaders to show their homecoming spirit. Nettles joined the audience, and showed her support for GSU by cheering their energetic performance.

One of the most memorable segments of the show had to be when GUS joined the band on stage. GUS danced with Nettles, tapped the drums and even had a chance to give a keyboard solo. The rise in the crowd's energy level was apparent as they began to cheer.

Nettles seems to always enjoy performing on campuses.

"We love campus concerts," Nettles said. "The bars are great and a key part of what we do, but it's great when the students ask for us to do a private show just for their school. Plus, campus shows tend to be a little more laid back, so it's nice to have a change of pace."

Jennifer Nettles will have a great deal in store for fans in the near future.

"Some great things are coming for the new year. Jennifer and the gang will be in the studio in February recording a new album to be released in April," Tom Wages, manager of Jennifer Nettles, said.

The GSU students seemed pleased with Eagle Entertainment's band choice.

"It was great," Raziya Credell, a GSU student said. "She was great. From afar I thought I heard a recording of Ani Defranco."

Our Opinion

Homecoming tainted by bad feelings, division

Homecoming is supposed to be fun. The campus is supposed to pull together and take pride in being the student body at GSU. When the king and queen are announced, the students are supposed to be excited and surprised.

But not this year. Sure, the football team won, but Homecoming was tarnished by the election process.

First of all, students had to vote twice for the king and queen. And that revoting caused serious problems on campus. Maybe not everyone felt it, but those who were sponsoring Homecoming candidates knew something was off.

People wondered how there were more ballots than voters, which led some to think that something dishonest went on. Accusations were flying and groups were pointing fingers. That was not the purpose.

We were supposed to be electing someone to represent GSU, and that means all of GSU.

Organizations were discussing the problem during their meetings and Eagle Entertainment thought it would be best to announce the results from the first voting before the king and queen were crowned to avoid problems at halftime.

That just takes something from the whole event. It is not supposed to be a point of contention or a dividing factor on campus. But this year, it would appear that it was. That is disappointing.

It makes people wonder if we even need a Homecoming King and Queen. We certainly don't if it is going to split the campus like this. Brooke Aertker and Michael Hoffman don't deserve the tarnished crowns they got.

Blowing Smoke...

There is big news in the War on Smoking. The U.S. Justice Department has filed a lawsuit against the cigarette industry, boldly charging that the industry was lying - and KNEW it was lying - when it claimed that it never had sexual relations with Monica Lewinsky.

Whoops! Wrong lie! The Justice Department is charging that for many years, the tobacco industry, on purpose, did not tell people that cigarettes were bad for them. To cite just one blatant example, on numerous documented occasions during the 1950s and 1960s, R.J. Reynolds deliberately failed to run an advertising campaign using the slogan: "Winston Tastes Good, AND Gives You Lung Cancer!"

As a result of this type of clever deception, the Justice Department contends, smokers did not realize that cigarettes were hazardous. This is undoubtedly true of a certain type of smoker; namely, the type of smoker whose brain has been removed with a melon scoop.

Everybody else has known for decades that cigarettes are unhealthy. I have known many smokers, and I have never heard one say: "You know why I stick these unnatural wads of chemically processed tobacco into my mouth, set them on fire and suck hot gases deep into my lungs? Because I sincerely believe it poses no health risk!"

When I first experimented with cigarettes, as a young teen-ager in the early '60s, I knew they were unhealthy, because my dad, a heavy smoker, warned me of the dangers.

DAVE BARRY

TMS COLUMNIST

"Son," he told me many times, "Hack hack haarrwwwGGGHHHHKK (spit)." But I tried cigarettes anyway, because, like all teen-agers, I expected to live a minimum of 50,000 years, and I figured it was no big deal if I

"cold turkey" method, which gets its name from the fact that it is no more difficult than inserting a frozen 20-pound Butterball completely into your left nostril.

My point is that, when I smoked, I knew it was unhealthy, and so did

MY POINT IS THAT, WHEN I SMOKED, I KNEW IT WAS UNHEALTHY, AND SO DID EVERY SMOKER I EVER KNEW.

knocked a few centuries off the end. I thought that smoking would make me look older and more attractive to women - that I'd fire up an unfiltered Camel and, boom, I'd sprout muscles and vast quantities of body hair. Unfortunately, this did not happen, although I did manage, through persistence and hard work, to develop a cigarette habit that enabled me to spend the next 15 years smelling like a low-grade dump fire.

Eventually, I realized I had to kick my habit. This was before the development of nicotine patches, so I had to devise some other way get my nicotine "fix" while I was quitting. The method I came up with was: cheating. So I continued to smoke cigarettes for several years after I quit. Then I finally got desperate and really did quit, using the every smoker I ever knew. Nevertheless, the Justice Department believes that we smokers were victimized by the tobacco industry, and so, on behalf of the federal government, it has filed a huge lawsuit against the federal government for spending gazillions of taxpayer dollars to support the tobacco industry.

Whoops! Wrong again! In fact, the Justice Department is suing the tobacco industry for $20 billion. Needless to say, the tobacco industry would obtain this money by selling more cigarettes.

In fact, the sale of cigarettes is the financial heart and soul of the War On Smoking. Cigarette companies are already selling cigarettes like crazy to pay for the $206 billion anti-tobacco settlement won by the states, which are distributing the money as follows: (1) Legal fees; (2) Money for attorneys; (3) A whole bunch of new programs that have absolutely nothing to do with helping smokers stop smoking; and (4) Payments to law firms.

Of course, not all the anti-tobacco settlement is being spent this way. A lot of it also goes to lawyers.

And some money is actually being spent on educational campaigns that nag teen-agers about smoking. As you would imagine if you have ever nagged a teen-ager, these campaigns are highly effective, provided that we define "effective" as "not effective." In fact, according to a University of Michigan study that I am not making up, the percentage of high-school seniors who smoke cigarettes has actually INCREASED in the past five years.

This is heartening news, because it means that as older smokers die off, there will be fresh blood to support the War On Smoking.

The only danger I see looming ahead is that the tobacco industry will get tired of serving as the bag person for the anti-smoking effort and actually quit selling cigarettes. In that case, the only way to keep the anti-tobacco money flowing in would be for the various governments to join forces with the legal community and sell cigarettes directly to the public out of post offices.

This would be similar to the way we've tackled the gambling problem in this country, which is to have the states run massive lottery operations. It makes perfect sense to me! Of course, I have a turkey up my nose.

HIST 1989 - Death of a World and Applications

Within a couple of weeks, on November 9, the world will acknowledge (celebrate?) a decade since the fall of the Berlin Wall.

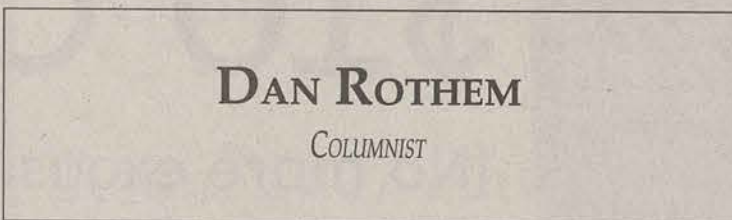

As Europe experienced radical changes during the years that followed first hand, it is important that here - in the land of the free - we will stop hating everything that has to do with the forgone communism, and start to objectively examine this wonderful and tragic phenomenon.

A brief history overview: in 1848 communism was born to two fathers, Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, in "the Communist Manifesto." In 1917 the Bolsheviks overthrew the government in a military rebellion, and formed the USSR under Lenin.

In 1924, Yossef Stalin started to enforce his terror ruling: a severe dictatorship that claimed 21 million deaths in Europe and the USSR. After WWII and the defeat of Hitler, the two forces divided the world.

Eastern Europe remained under Soviet supervision and in 1949 the "Iron Curtain" fell on Eastern Europe. History will forgive me for excluding important chapters of communist expansion and turmoil.

In 1989, Mikhail Gorbachev surprised everyone with pro-democratic remarks and caused tough demon-

Let us go back to that November night in '89, when without any orders or authority the soldiers at the accompanied my grandfather to a reunion of his elementary school in Germany. Without any sense of what was about to happen only three months away, we took the "advanced" organized tour to the east-

Berlin Wall allowed thousands of Eastern German citizens to cross what for years has resembled to westerners around the world the evilness of the "Reds." With the wall came down Eastern European Communism, freeing millions of poor, desperate humans, who have stood for years in endless lines starving for a weekly dose equivalent of a single meal plan worth of food.

What I found in the Communist side of Berlin was unbelievable poverty and grayness. Old cars, old buildings, old people. A world light-years apart from the modern West Germany several yards away.

Communism came down, to the surprise of many experts, without serious bloodshed. It crushed because it could not catch up with the globalization movements and successfully compete in the open lifestyle of the late 20th Century.

The communist governments in Eastern Europe fell in a quick domino effect, leaving the countries to the mercy of the people's will.

The (frightening?) sight of the United Germany moving its Reichstag back to Berlin forces us all to pray that Germany will truly strive for a European Germany, not a German Europe.

As the leading power of the European Union, Germany is in a great starting point for economically, and maybe politically, influencing a large part of Europe. This time there will be no Soviet power to stop it from the east.

Last American Anecdote. As Clinton ends his eight-year presidency, we can reexamine his attempts, in several areas, to create what is close to being a social democracy.

The frightening side of a forgone red hammer causes Republicans - and many southerners with them - to reject his reform efforts. It is time that we stop fighting a dead ghost. Socialism has some benefits, at least to the lower levels of society. Are we ready to mature and examine it responsibly? History did not end; it is

Pokémon takes America by storm

By Joe Ben Deal
Staff writer

Pokémon is the newest craze in America. Children everywhere are obsessing over the sensation, and Americans are spending amazing amounts of money on Pokémon toys, games, books and trading cards. This is a $5 billion industry worldwide, and it has shot Nintendo to the top and flooded the market with merchandise from a hundred U.S. licensed companies, according to the Nintendo web page.

Four of the books are on last week's USA Today Top 50 Bestseller list (usatoday.com), and people everywhere are talking about it.

A single card listed on earth.collecting.nation.com has a price of $150, and there are hundreds of cards being sold on amazon.com auctions; some sets cost more than $100.

According to "All Things Considered," a show on National Public Radio, there have been allegations and even lawsuits alleging that the trading cards are forms of gambling. Children buy the card packs not knowing what they are getting in hopes of finding cards of high value, like the ones listed on the various web auction sites.

NPR also claims that there have been counterfeit productions of the cards and toys; in fact, more than a million illegal items had entered the country as of October 1 of this year.

So what exactly is Pokémon?

The word itself means "Pocket Monster," and it was first introduced in September of 1998 to America by Nintendo of America.

The cartoon series currently airs nationally on the WB network and is in syndication. It is rated number one for both. Some episodes of the cartoon series are available on home video.

On November 12, "Pokémon the First Movie: Mewtwo Strikes Back" will open in theaters around America, and it is expected to be a great success.

On September 4, Nintendo of America Inc. celebrated the one year anniversary of Pokémon in the U.S. with thousands of fans and an eight foot cake decorated with all 150 Pokémon.

"American children have embraced Pokémon because of the collecting aspect and social interactivity the characters induce—it's something they can relate to, discuss, and most importantly, share, with their friends," Joe Spiegel, principal of Spinner Asset Management said. "With the colorful characters, 'family-friendly situations' as well as surprisingly deep strategy and game play involved to catch all 150 characters, Pokémon has all the right elements that make it a cultural icon in a way no video game has been in years."

The goal of the game is to catch all the 150 Pokémon, but to do this, the player must buy the different versions of the game or share with another Gameboy player by connecting two Gameboys.

Thanks in part to the Pokémon craze, Nintendo has reclaimed the number one spot in U.S. video game market by selling more than 6 million Pokémon related video games. The newest Gameboy version, "Pokémon Yellow Version: Special Pikachu Edition," was released on October 18.

The cartoon series follows Ash Ketchum as he quests to become the world's greatest Pokémon trainer. He collects different Pokémon who join him and help catch more Pokémon. The forthcoming movie will introduce the "Super-Pokémon."

Eagle spirit shines at Eagle Olympics

By Marlow Lemons
Staff Writer

We have the spirit, yes we do. We have the spirit, how about you? Twelve organizations across campus combined last Thursday to compete in the second annual Eagle Olympics sponsored by Eagle Entertainment on the lawn adjacent to the Russell Union Rotunda.

Greek, residential, and campus organizations, each composed with 10 students, competed in six categories such as the "Dizzy Bat," "Egg Relay," and "People On A String." Points were given for the top four teams, awarding first place with four points, second place with three, and so forth. The prize... the Spirit award given at the Homecoming ceremonies.

Publicity coordinator James Baker says that this year's attendance nearly doubled from last year. Six teams competed last year; eleven teams this year.

From throwing eggs, doing jumping jacks, running in circles, and even... yes, finding pennies in a pile of flour, these activities brought back those field day memories from elementary school. The pictures say it all!

This year's Eagle Olympic Champi-

Women win final home game 4-2

By Luke Martin

Senior Tara Chaisson scored in the final regular season home game of her career and Amanda Bernard added two goals as the GSU women's soccer team defeated UNC-Greensboro Sunday afternoon 4-2. With the win, the Eagles improve to 8-8 (5-4 in SoCon).

The Eagles wasted little time scoring as 7:41 into the game Bernard took a pass from Jaclyn Flock and put the

FOOLED YOU!: This Eagle player completely faked out the defender from UNGC as GSU won 4-2.

Seniors on GSU women's soccer team honored in final home game

By Luke Martin
Staff Writer

Four years ago, Stephanie Todd, Jaclyn Flock, Jodi Barnes and Tara Chaisson were incoming freshman to the three-year-old GSU women's soccer program. The Eagles won their first game that season, thus officially beginning their careers at GSU. Sunday afternoon at Eagle Field, these four players played their last regular season game at GSU, defeating UNC-Greensboro 4-2, improving their four year record to 43-33-2.

"They were probably the most challenging group of freshmen I had and ended up being the most satisfying group of seniors," Eagle head coach Tom Norton said. "They've probably been through more than any other group I've had and accomplished more than any other group. I can't say enough about them."

Todd, a midfielder from Stone Mountain, Ga, played in 55 games during her time at GSU, starting 30 of those matches, including every game this year. She has tallied five goals and six assists during her days as an Eagle, including one goal and two assists this season. Her best statistical season was 1997 when she recorded three goals and three assists.

Flock, a defender hailing from Lilburn, Ga, has played in 60 games while here at GSU, starting 55 of those games. She scored her first career goal this season against South Carolina State and also has four assists so far this season. For her career, she has 12 assists and one goal. She was named to the All-tournament team at the Powertel/UAB Soccer Classic last year.

ball into the back of the net.

"I can't (score) without the rest of the team," Bernard said. "It's all from good passes and I just finish them."

At 22:52 into the game, Chaisson took a pass from fellow senior Flock in the middle of the field and put a shot just inside the right corner, giving GSU a 2-0 lead.

Melissa Cox scored her first goal of the season with just under 10 minutes to go in the first half by following a rebound and blasting a shot over the scrambling Lady Spartan goalkeeper.

"The first goal by Amanda really got us going," Eagle head coach Tom Norton said. "Finishing off some chances early really sparked us if we were lacking any confidence coming in."

UNC Greensboro finally managed to break onto the scoreboard at the 64:33 mark when Kate Dyiag was able to get open for a shot from the right side about 20 yards away and slid the ball past Eagle goalkeeper Vanessa Bales just inside the left post.

GSU answered minutes later as Janis Milne took a free kick from midfield and passed to Bernard, who was wide open in the middle of the box, who rocketed the ball into the top of the net.

UNC-G scored late, but it was too little, too late, as the Eagles held on for the win.

"We played as well today as we've played all year," Norton said. "We were able to do things early that built our confidence."

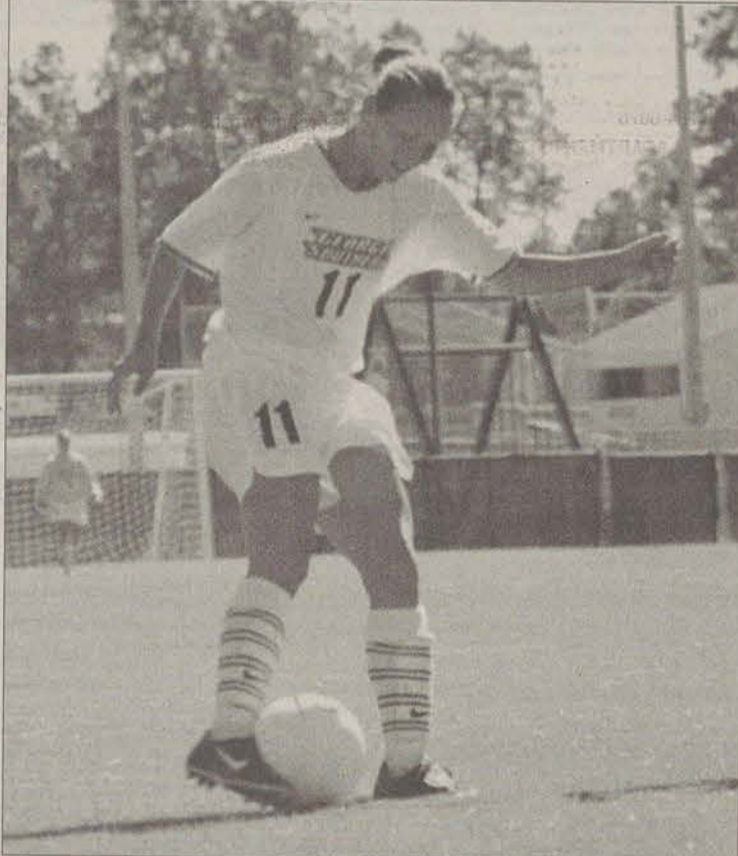

Barnes, a defender from Snellville, Ga, has played in 73 games here at GSU, missing only two over her four years. She has started every game over the past two years. Her only career goal came against Appalachian State last year in the Southern Conference Tournament last year. She has led the stingy GSU defense this season, limiting opponents to 150 shots and 31 goals for the season.

"It's kind of sad to leave this place," Barnes said about not playing at Eagle field anymore. "We've been playing here for four years now, and we're not going to be back here."

Chaisson, a forward from Kitchener, Ontario, will leave GSU as the record holder of every major offensive statistic, including career and season marks for points, goals, assists and shots. She has played 75 games at GSU, starting 68 of them.

"We've been through everything, on and off the field," Barnes said about her fellow seniors. "We had a good time together."

ONE LAST TIME: Tara Chaisson and her fellow seniors on the soccer team took the field at home for the last time on Sunday.

Eagles drop road game to UNC-Greensboro, 4-1

G-A News Service

Four different players scored to lift UNC-Greensboro to a 4-1 home victory over Southern Conference rival GSU Saturday to keep the Spartans in the hunt for the conference title.

Chris Goos scored the game-winner on his third goal of the season at the 30:07 mark when he took a pass from Alejandro Moreno, slipped around Eagles goalie John Miglarese and netted a shot to the far post.

Mike Dunaway took a pass from Justin Wisdo and fired the ball into the lower left corner at the 55:37 mark and Moreno finished the scoring for the Spartans with a low shot from the right side off a pass from Goos.

UNCG outshot GSU 21-11. Kipp made no saves in the first half and gave way to Greg Raber, who made five stops. Miglarese had seven saves for the Eagles and was replaced by Garret Lazenby with 11 minutes remaining. Lazenby stopped one shot.

The win virtually assured UNGC of no lower than a second-place finish in the league with only one game remaining in conference play. The Spartans improved to 9-6, 6-1 in the SoCon. They play at Appalachian State Oct. 26 at 7:30 p.m.

GSU fell to 5-9-1, 3-4 in the conference.

Volleyball hopes for tourney berth dashed by two losses

By Matthew Gerlinger
Staff Writer

The Eagles volleyball team dropped two more matches this weekend and lost the opportunity to compete in the Southern Conference tournament.

East Tennessee State (13-8, 8-4) met the Eagles and won 15-6, 15-8, 15-9.

GSU (3-19, 2-12) did get good play from Jamie Burrell and Amanda Brooks, who recorded 13 kills and 19 assists, respectively.

Carey Cavanaugh led the Buccaneers with 31 assists.

After the match, junior captain Kristen Griggs blamed the loss on lack of communication.

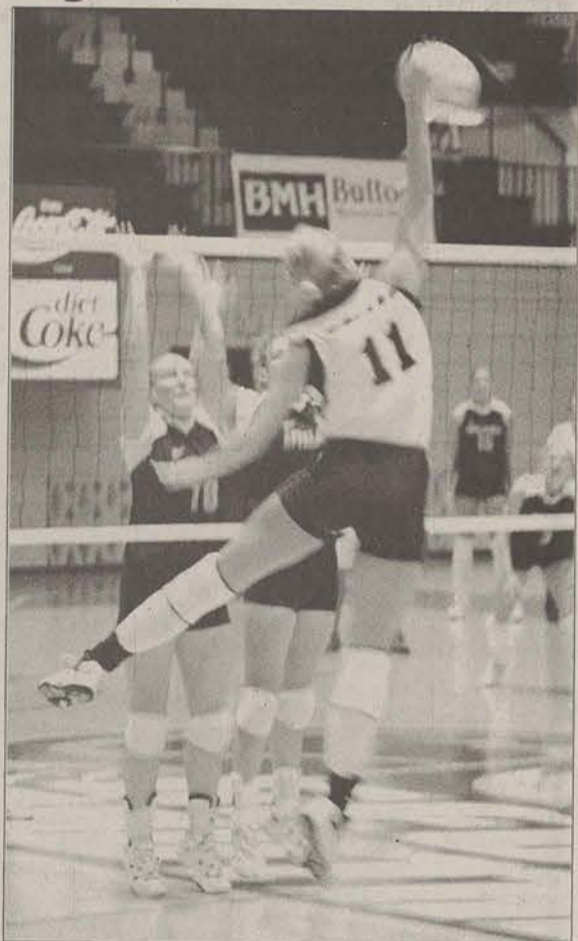

"We just aren't communicating," she said. "We need to play more as a team."

She also said the Eagles could have won the match. "We could have hung with them, but we don't talk and it gets away from us," she said. "We beat ourselves out there." Appalachian State (5-14, 4-10) came to Hanner Fieldhouse on Friday and walked away victorious in three straight games, 15-11, 15-10 and 15-3.

The Eagles (3-18, 2-11) looked to have massive confusion on the court, often missing the easy play.

GSU took on Appalachian earlier in the weekend. Appalachian State was brutal on the serve, and got incredible play from sophomore outside hitter Karen Neilson.

GSU got good performances from freshman Lauren McClain, who along with junior captain Jamie Burrell, scored 11 kills, as well as the three blocks collected on defense. Sophomore captain Amanda Brooks had 41 assists.

Chris Kohlhaugen

NOT A CHANCE: Even an acrobatic move like this one by Kristen Griggs can't get the Eagles into the conference tournament.

Head coach Eddie Matthews said he was disappointed with the match and even though the conference is full of good competition, "We tend to have a mental breakdown at key points in the match."

The team has eight matches remaining, including a November 2 home match against Mercer.

230 Roommates

Rip Us Off.

That's right — you heard right. Rip us off. Get something for nothing. Say hello to a friend. Find a roommate. Get a job. Find a home for a litter of kittens. Buy a wombat. Or sell your Beamer (right, like you expect us to believe that you — and not your folks — actually have the title to that BMW). Regardless of your purpose (or even if you are a congenital liar like the Beamer owner), Georgia's liveliest classified ad section is for you. Students, faculty and staff can have their 20-word action ads published for nothing (non-commercial listings only, please). Fill out the little rectangles below, and send your ad to G-A Action Ads, POB 8001, GSU or drop them by our offices in the Williams Center, Room 2023. You MUST include your name and P.O. Box number to qualify for a freebie. Remember, keep it short: students, faculty and staff must pay 20¢ per words for those which exceed the 20-word limit. And, please — no telephone calls... at this price we don't take dictation.

YOU MUST COMPLETE THIS PART TO QUALIFY FOR FREEBIE

Eagles Take Off For A "Flight To Victory"
