The Congressional Art Competition is a nationwide high school visual art contest to recognize and encourage artistic talent in the nation. In conjunction with the competition, the Georgia Southern University Armstrong Campus will host "An Artistic Discovery," showcasing competition entries from Georgia's 1st Congressional District. The event is free and open to the public.

"I hope many students will participate in the Congressional Art Competition this year," said U.S. Rep. for Georgia's 1st Congressional District Buddy Carter. "This is a wonderful opportunity to encourage and recognize the artistic talents of young constituents in the 1st District. I am always extremely impressed with the entries each year. I look forward to seeing the art this year."

Works submitted for the exhibition are eligible for a number of cash awards, as well as the prestigious U.S. District Congressional Award. The winning entries from each district are prominently displayed in the Cannon Tunnel in Washington, D.C., for one year. The Cannon Tunnel connects the Cannon House Office Building with the U.S. Capitol and is traveled on a daily basis by congressmen and women, as well as their staff members.

The Congressional Art Competition exhibition will run on weekdays from Feb. 18 to March 3 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Fine Arts Gallery, with a reception on March 3 at 2 p.m.
