U.S. has terrorists 'on the run'; FBI warns of future attacks

KRT Campus

WASHINGTON - Warplanes relentlessly pounded Afghanistan, the FBI sounded a high alert about possible new terror attacks and President Bush stood before the world Thursday night and said this about America's enemies: "We've got them on the run."

In his first formal White House press conference during prime television time, the president said he didn't know if Osama bin Laden, whom he called "the evil one," was "dead or alive." But he vowed once again that the suspected terrorist leader and his al-Qaida network would be brought to justice - even though "it may take a year or two."

"I am confident that the al-Qaida organization is moving around Afghanistan," Bush said. "It is our time to act and I am proud to lead a country that understands that."

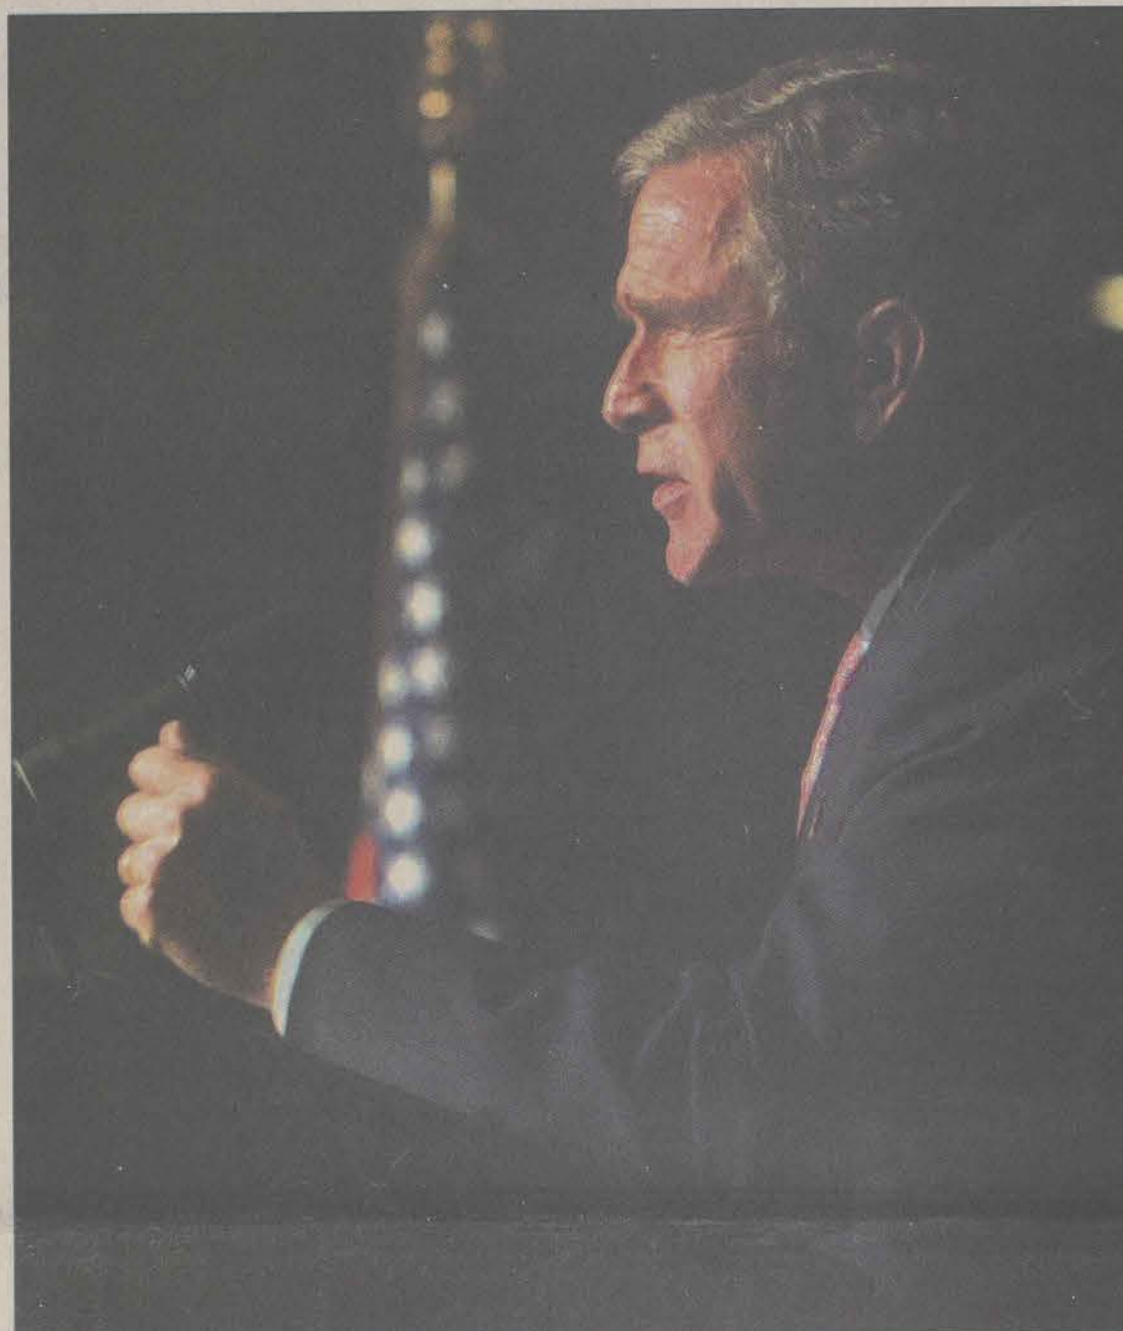

The president's remarks came one month to the day after the most ruthless and lethal terrorist assault on the United States in history, a blitz that killed more than 5,400 people and is believed to have been orchestrated by bin Laden.

During the 44-minute session, Bush called on the United Nations to help form a new government in Afghanistan after the Taliban regime is ousted.

He offered the Taliban, bin Laden's protectors, one more chance to "cough him up" and save their people and their country more destruction and death. "You still have a second chance," the president said. "Just bring him in."

Bush said Americans have sacrificed much already, and might be MIXED MESSAGES: While President Bush reassured the nation that Americans are safe Thursday night, the FBI warned of likely future attacks on the United States. Bush's speech was mostly in response to the press' questions and was followed by a concert of historical American songs.

FBI tests postal workers for possible anthrax exposure

KRT Campus

MIAMI - U.S. Postal workers who handled mail for delivery to American Media Inc. are being interviewed by the FBI and tested for possible exposure to anthrax, following disclosures that a second AMI mailroom employee was exposed to the bacteria.

The interviews began on the same day that a top FBI official in Washington, D.C., announced that anthrax spores were found inside the company's first-floor mailroom. Previously, anthrax had only been found on the computer keyboard of Robert Stevens, the photo editor who died one week ago.

Investigators cautioned that they have no specific evidence indicating the anthrax attacks at the supermarket tabloid publishing company involved mail or packages. But they said such a line of inquiry was only "natural" given where the employees worked.

Stevens, 63, who died last Friday, worked on the third floor of American Media for The Sun tabloid. Two employees who were exposed to anthrax, Ernesto Blanco, 73, and Stephanie Dailey, 36, worked in a first-floor mailroom that services all of the company's tabloids, including The National Enquirer, Globe and Star.

Experts say it would be difficult but not impossible for pulmonary anthrax, which killed Stevens, to be spread through the mail.

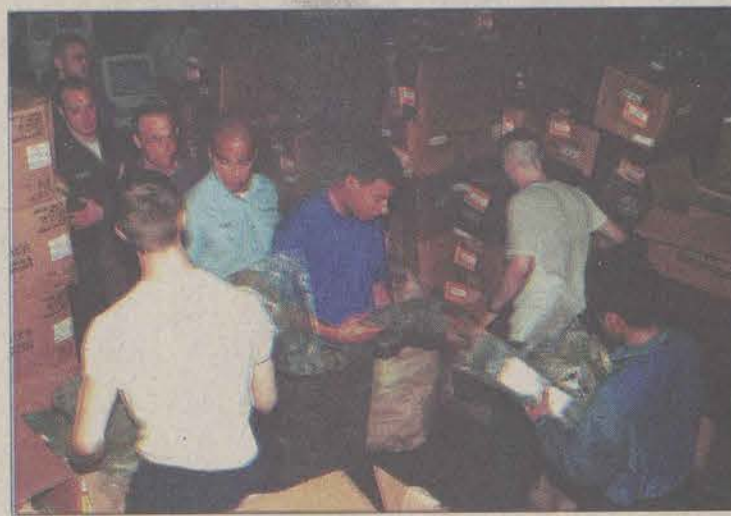

Nevertheless, investigators from the Centers for Disease Control took swab cultures from the postal workers to check them for possible anthrax exposure, law enforcement sources said.

At the same time, FBI agents on Thursday afternoon began interviewing Postal employees who bundle mail to be picked up by AMI employees, who haul it back to the company building on Broken Sound Boulevard Northwest in Boca Raton, Fla.

Also on the interview list are United Parcel Service, FedEx and any other service workers who delivered packages to the company.

The FBI is methodically interviewing the hundreds of employees at the American Media Inc. building.

library for three days last week, said the most striking question agents asked was whether he had any relatives who were scientists.

The question suggests the FBI may be exploring the theory of a disgruntled person being behind a possible anthrax attack at the Boca Raton building - beyond the potential link to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

"They asked where I worked in the building and background information and whether I had any relatives in the scientific field," Sherman said, adding that he got the impression agents were posing the same question to all employees.

"I think they are exploring all potential theories," Sherman said.

Judy Orihuela, an FBI spokeswoman in Miami, said she could not comment on the investigation.

Thursday's medical tests did little to allay the fears of some South Florida postal workers.

Concerned about the safety of mail sorters, a Miami postal union this week served White House officials with notices threatening to sue if they don't take steps to safeguard workers handling potentially sensitive packages.

The union is calling for the extreme step of halting international mailings, at least temporarily.

"We have the greatest exposure of any company in the country and we can't get the Postal Service to do anything about it. So we're taking it to the president and the White House," said Judy A. Johnson, general president of the American Postal Workers Union, Miami local, which has an international hub at Miami International Airport.

The union represents mail sorters and distribution workers in South Florida, but not carriers. It says its clerks have not been given the necessary hazardous materials training.

"There is no reason to panic. The Postal Service is safe," said Enola Rice, spokesperson for Postal Service's South Florida District. "We have procedures in place to handle hazardous materials, and those procedures have been in place for many, many years."

Rice added: "The Postal Service is here to deliver mail. The American public depends on mail delivery. We've never had an incident in the

Refunds granted to students called to military duty

By Mathew R. Palmer
mathewpalmer@hotmail.com

The Georgia Board of Regents has announced plans to give full refunds of tuition and fees for students called away for military duty and revised its policies to allow family members of those called for duty to receive refunds as well.

All units of the University System of Georgia will comply with the new rule, including GSU, Registrar Mike Deal said.

"In this time of national need, the Board of Regents wishes to affirm its strong support for United States military and National Guard personnel," Hilton H. Howell, Jr., Board of Regents chair, said.

"Many of our students are active-duty personnel or reservists who will be activated, called up or deployed during the coming months. We want to do all that we can to assist these young women and men in serving their country."

Military reservists, National Guardsmen and active-duty military personnel are eligible for refunds should they receive emergency orders that prevent them from attending classes after they have registered at a university system institution.

The revised policy authorizes full refunds of tuition and mandatory fees and prorated refunds of elective fees (meal plans, etc.) for students who are:

- Military reservists (including members of the National Guard) and who receive emergency orders to active duty after having enrolled in a University System institution and paid tuition and fees;

- Active duty-duty military personnel and who receive an emergency reassignment after having enrolled in a University system and

Residence halls participate in Homecoming

By Shana Bridges
shana99@yahoo.com

Homecoming week is always an exciting week for students here at GSU. The residence halls have been preparing many ways to show their spirit during this fun-filled week.

Be sure to visit the banner exhibit outside of the Williams Center on your way to and from class. There will be banners from many different student organizations, and from Brannen, Cone, Dorman, Hendricks, Kennedy, Johnson, Oliff, Stratford, Veazy, Watson, and Winburn halls.

Students should keep an eye out around town for the festive displays in store windows. Cone, Dorman, Hendricks, Samford, Veazy, and Winburn halls will have displays in the windows, along with some of the student organizations on campus.

Hendricks, Veazy, and Winburn will participate in a contest called "Sculpture for the Hungry." Students in these residence halls will donate food and that food will be used to make a sculpture that will be judged. After the contest is over, the food will be donated to the local Statesboro Food Bank.

Also, when you are watching the Homecoming parade, be sure to look out for some wacky cars that will be loose on the road. Brannen, Oliff, Dorman, and Stratford Halls sponsor these cars.

In addition, Kennedy hall has the privilege of sponsoring two Homecoming representatives this year.

Bomb makers just wanted entertainment, authorities say

DULARGE — Three men charged with building a bomb at a Dularge home weren't trying to blow up anything, police said.

Authorities said they believe the homemade device was made for entertainment purposes.

"It was more like a giant fire-cracker," said a Terrebonne Parish Sheriff's Office spokesman. "I think they were experimenting to see if they could do it."

Whatever the purpose, the bomb caused quite a mess Tuesday night in a house owned by one of the three and sent eight people to a local hospital. There were no serious injuries reported.

Arrested were Paul Joseph Billiot Jr., 24; Chance Michael Lovell, 22; and Manny Saul Tanner, 17.

All were charged with manufacture or possession of a bomb. If convicted, they each face up to 20 years in prison.

Billiot was additionally charged with simple battery for allegedly shoving his wife following the explosion, according to jail records.

Billiot, Tanner and Lovell received minor burns when the bomb exploded. A woman and four children in the house, who ranged in age from 2 months to 3 years old, were examined at a local hospital but appeared unharmed, police said.

Woman facing lewdness charge after mooning incident

LAMBERTVILLE — A Pennsylvania woman decided to moon passing motorists earlier this month because a relative said it would keep her out of debt, police said.

Theresa M. Masinos, 48, of Carversville, Pa., was charged with lewdness Oct. 2 after she allegedly bared her buttocks near Bridge Street in Lambertville.

Authorities said Masinos claimed her grandmother told her to "bare your posterior and yell 'fill 'er up' three times" if she wanted to avoid debts.

The alleged incident occurred after Masinos and a friend were seen cursing at drivers who would not stop and offer them a ride, police said.

When the officers told the women that hitchhiking was illegal, Masinos allegedly swore at them but then left with her friend. A short time later, police were called about the mooning incident.

Police say Boone County woman used stolen dynamite to get ride to divorce court

CHARLESTON — An explosive proposition for a car ride to divorce court has landed a Boone County woman in jail and two men in legal trouble.

Police say Samantha Perdue, 22, of Bloomingrose needed a ride to the Boone County Courthouse to file divorce papers. So she offered to pay James Alexander Bowe, 34, of Whitesville for a ride with nine sticks of dynamite that her husband allegedly stole from his employer, Boone County Chief Deputy Rodney Miller said.

She was headed to the courthouse to divorce Corey Perdue, 24, who allegedly stole the dynamite from Independence Coal Co.'s Justice mine near Madison, Miller said. Policethink Corey Perdue planned to sell the dynamite.

Police recovered the stolen dynamite in a vacant house in Whitesville, where they believe Bowe stored the explosives in order to sell them later.

"We got word that there may have been some stolen and with the heightened sense of awareness around everyone, we had to find it," Miller said.

Police arrested Samantha Perdue Thursday on charges of transporting and possessing explosives. She was held at Southwestern Regional Jail on $5,000 bond.

Police have arrest warrants out for Bowe and Corey Perdue.

Woman survives 250-foot plunge

ESPAÑOLA — A 36-year-old Espanola woman suffered severe injuries when her truck plunged 250 feet down the side of a cliff in Santa Clara Canyon near Espanola.

Police said Michele Hill-Webb, a mother of three, apparently lost control of her pickup truck as she was driving down a steep and winding forest road Wednesday afternoon.

She was transported to University of New Mexico Hospital after she was discovered by a passer-by. She was listed in serious condition late Wednesday.

Gene Perez, an off-duty officer with the Tesuque Tribal Police, said he was driving down the heavily rutted, washboard road after cutting firewood when he saw clothing strewn among pine trees.

Perez stopped his truck to look over the ridge for game and saw the wreckage. He found the woman unconscious and lying in a fetal position on a rocky slope where she had landed after being thrown from the truck.

The truck came to rest another 400 feet below Hill-Webb, at the bottom of the heavily wooded canyon.

"I thought she was gone," Perez said. "I couldn't find a pulse. She was bleeding from the head."

Hill-Webb had several broken bones and many internal injuries, said Espanola Valley Emergency Medical Service paramedic Marissa Salgado.

Police said Hill-Webb probably wasn't wearing a seat belt and was thrown from the truck after it skidded 64 feet. The truck then plunged off, said State Police Sgt. Randy Trujillo. The truck rolled at least five times, he said. Police said they were not sure why Hill-Webb was in the area.

Firefighters brave reptile shop fire

ROCK SPRINGS — Firefighters braved a pet shop full of snakes, alligators, tarantulas, snapping turtles and other critters as they battled an electrical fire.

The Reptile House was damaged but none of the animals died in the blaze early Thursday, according to the city fire department.

A passer-by reported the fire around 5 a.m. Fire Chief Brad Sarff recalled an eerie scene: A layer of smoke hovered at eye level and it was difficult to see what was inside the shop's many cages. Sarff made his way to a locked back room. "I couldn't see what was in there. I didn't go in."

The room was home to a 19-foot reticulated python worth around $4,000, according to Reptile House owner Louis Prince.

Prince said all the animals, including 60 turtles, survived after firefighters moved them to safer areas. The python was put in a plastic box and moved to a safer area.

The store inventory was worth $30,000. Assistant fire chief Paul Easter said wiring in the ceiling apparently started the fire. Prince said the building had been rewired recently.

Prince was asking people to provide homes for many of the pets.

27-18, A bittersweet victory

LaVene Bell/STAFF

GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE WIN: The Eagles united in Boone this weekend as they beat a threatening Appalachian State Mountaineer program 27-18. The victory was a first for GSU at App. St. since 1993.

By Doug Kidd
doug_kidd@hotmail.com

Georgia Southern knew there would be a day when Adrian Peterson would be shut down and held for less than 100 yards.

What they didn't know was J.R.. Revere would step in and be as dominating. Revere's 124 yards and four touchdowns were enough to give the Eagles a 27-18 win over Appalachian State.

"Every week the goal is to get a win," said Peterson, who was held under the century mark in rushing for the first time in 49 career games. "I'm not disappointed and I'm not going to hang my head."

"I just came out to win and today we did."

GSU jumped out to a quick 14-0 lead thanks to two Revere scoring runs of 23 and one yard, respectively. The apparent blowout would be short lived as the Mountaineers climbed back.

ASU quarterback Joe Burchette hit tight end Jason LeMay on a four-yard touchdown pass to pull within 14-7. The 17-play, 80-yard drive consumed 7:22 off the clock.

"We were tired, that drive wore us down," said defensive tackle Freddy Pesqueira. "The defensive line was exhausted. They brought it to us."

A safety on a bad punt snap just before the half and solid defense by the Mountaineers, shrunk GSU's lead to 14-9 at the half.

ASU took the second half kickoff and marched down the field and scored on a Jerry Beard seven-yard run. Burchette's two-point conversion pass failed, but the Mountaineers took a 15-14 lead.

"We all expected that at 14-0, it be nowhere near over," Revere said. "They are a championship team and they always play hard."

GSU head coach Paul Johnson said when two good teams get together, no lead is safe.

"To their credit, they came back and got the lead," said Johnson, who led GSU to their first win at ASU since 1993. "But to our credit, we came back."

Two drives after ASU jumped in front, Revere scored on a two-yard run that gave the Eagles a 20-15 lead. Revere's two-point pass was incomplete.

The Mountaineers would climb within two at 20-18 after a 20-yard field goal by Erik Rockhold.

But Revere would strike again with possibly the biggest play of his career.

Revere took the snap from center and ran around right end, reading the option perfectly before hitting the sideline for the 72-yard score.

"I got the snap and everything went black—I was in the end zone before I kind of came back," Revere said. "I put on blinders and ran as fast as I could. I almost ran out of gas."

The GSU defense would hold the ASU offense in check and make the 27-18 lead stand up.

Despite Peterson's first game collegiate game less than 100 yards, his presence was enough to open up other holes.

"The way Appalachian State played defensively—they played hard inside—it opened up the outside," Johnson said.

Slotback Mark Myers ran for 97 yards on seven carries to compliment Revere's 124 yards. Peterson finished with 71 yards on 19 attempts.

"We spread the wealth, that's what I'm about," Peterson said.

Revere didn't complete a pass, going 0-5, but it would be his feet that carried the day for GSU. His four touchdowns were a career high and the most for an Eagle quarterback since Greg Hill ran for four in a '98 playoff contest against Western Illinois.

"We've talked about [Peterson not reaching 100 yards] for a long time," Revere said. "Sooner or later it was going to happen. I'm just glad we were all able to come together and win."

Lady Eagles Rout the Citadel 9-0

By BJ Corbitt
bjc5jd@hotmail.com

The Georgia Southern women's soccer team ran their unbeaten streak to 8 games and remained the only unbeaten team in the Southern Conference Sunday afternoon, as they destroyed The Citadel 9-0 at Eagle Field.

All of Georgia Southern's scoring came in the first half, as freshman Katy Znosko led the way with 3 goals and an assist, while sophomore Genevieve Ward tallied two scores and two helpers. Also figuring in the scoring were Jackie Kinsey (1 assist), Christie Grisaffe (1 assist), Vikki Corbitt (1 goal), Becky Rice (1 goal, 2 assists), Jennifer Myers (1 goal, 1 assist), Nadine Guediri (1 goal), and Jessie Fream (1 assist).

The Lady Eagles improved to 8-3-1 overall and 4-0-1 in the league, while The Bulldogs dropped to 3-10 on the year and 0-6 in the Southern Conference. This is the first year of women's soccer for The Citadel; the former all-male military school began accepting female recruits in the '90s.

Georgia Southern outshot The Citadel 16-2, with all of the Eagles' shots coming in the first half. Tanya Woehr and Kari Gast split time in net for GSU; Jessica Walters played goalie for The Citadel, making 3 saves on the day. Only 2 fouls were called in the game, both on the Eagles.

Next up for the Lady Eagles are a pair of road games this weekend: They play at UNC Greensboro on Friday and visit Davidson on Sunday.

Bears rally past Eagles in overtime

G-A News Service

The Mercer soccer team captured a dramatic, 1-0 overtime victory against the Eagles from Georgia Southern on Saturday night. Both teams battled through a scoreless 90 minutes in an extremely physical match.

It wasn't until the 103rd minute when Mercer's Ramiro Canovas went from one side of the pitch to the other before setting up Ben Arhin with a perfect cross. Arhin headed it into an empty net for the winner.

The Bears improved to 7-5 overall while GSU dropped to 4-8. Mercer outshot Georgia Southern 18-14. Andrew Castrichini made five saves and posted the shutout for the hosts while Garret Lazenby also made five saves for the Eagles.

The Eagles return to action on Wednesday when they host Wofford at 4:00 at Eagle Field.

Lady Eagles defeat ETSU, fall to College of Charleston

By Eli Boorstein

The Georgia Southern Volleyball team was able to pull even in a pair of key matches on the way to determining the Southern Conference's top teams. While suffering a 3-2 defeat at the hands of the College of Charleston at home Thursday night, the Eagles were able to top East Tennessee State 3-0 on the road Saturday. After the weekend's action, GSU narrowly trailed Charleston and ETSU in third place in the SoCon standings.

Thursday's match against Charleston started on a positive note as the Eagles (11-7, 8-2 SoCon) recorded 16 kills on their way to a 30-25 victory in game one.

Games two and three went in favor of the Cougars (18-2, 9-1 SoCon) as they won 30-14 and 30-20, respectively. The second game was a one-sided affair, as Charleston played flawless volleyball on their way to a match-high .600 hitting percentage. On the other side of the net, the Eagles were only able to amass eight kills and a -.026 percentage, both match-lows.

The tide turned GSU's way in game four as they evened up the match with a 30-23 victory. The Eagles and Cougars were equal with 16 kills each, but Charleston committed more errors than the Georgia Southern attack.

In the decisive fifth game, the Cougars were able to overcome a 12-8 deficit to score seven out of the next eight points for a 15-13 win.

Sophomore Martina Veiglova led the Eagle offense with 14 kills and 17 digs, enough for her eleventh double-double of the season. Two other Eagle players recorded double-doubles as Camilla Schmitz-Rower totaled 13 kills and 13 digs while Susan Bindshedler added 10 kills and 11 digs. Sophomore Megan Lippi added 15 digs. Senior setter Amanda Brooks pitched in with 28 assists while freshman Kim Foytich trailed nearby with 27.

For Charleston, it was an even spread of the offense as four Cougar players recorded double-doubles. Sara Davis led the attack with 17 kills, followed by 16 from Alyson VanCleave and 14 from Stephanie Ballard. Tara Greene and Anna Rawl led the digs column with 23 and 21, respectively. Mary Sabatino commanded the assist duty, with 52 on the night.

Despite the negative results, there was no lack of support from the record crowd of 367. At some points throughout the match, it was hard to distinguish whether or not it was at Hanner Fieldhouse or Paulson Stadium on a game day. The crowd, which topped the previous record [set September 5 against The Citadel] by 120 people, also included members from each of the other GSU athletic programs.

On Saturday evening, the Eagles handed the Bucs (13-2, 9-2 SoCon) their first home loss in eight matches. The victory also evened out the season series as ETSU beat Georgia Southern September 1 in the Winthrop Invitational. The final meeting between the two foes will take place Sunday, October 21 in Statesboro.

Sophomore Martina Veiglova further displayed why she is a two-time Southern Conference Player of the Week as she posted a match-high 17 kills with a .382 percentage against the Bucs. Camilla Schmitz-Rower added 12 kills. Megan Lippi led all players with 15 digs while also collecting eight kills. Amanda Brooks and Kim Foytich showed their unselfishness with 24 and 20 assists, respectively.

East Tennessee State's offense was led by Karen Freedburg's 12 kills and .417 hitting percentage.

Kate Steidle had 11 digs while Carey Cavanaugh's 31 assists paced the Bucs' attack.

Georgia Southern will next make the trek down I-95 to battle Stetson in DeLand, Florida on Tuesday. The Eagles will then return home for a stretch of three matches in as many days as they face Appalachian State on Friday and Saturday followed by a rematch with East Tennessee State on Sunday. The first two matches start at 7:00 p.m. while Sunday's action starts at 2:00 p.m. Charleston will host cross-town rival Charleston Southern on Tuesday.

Dr. Willie Burden: A football legend and hall of famer

By Bo Fulginiti
Bodawg38@hotmail.com

Over the past two decades Georgia Southern has been a college campus where students have brushed elbows with football greatness. In a stadium where six I-AA National Championship flags have been raised, we have had the opportunity to watch former stars like QB sensation Tracy Ham, current NFL players Kiwaukee Thomas and Earthwind Moreland, and of course the one and only "A-Train" Mr. Adrian Peterson.

But possibly the greatest football player to ever roam our beautiful Statesboro campus is someone who never played a single game in Paulson Stadium. And, after his recent induction into the Canadian Football Hall of Fame, this living legend is no longer one of our university's best-kept secrets.

Dr. Willie James Burden has been an assistant professor in the Department of Recreation and Sports Management here at GSU since the fall of 1998. Over the past four years we have come to know him as "the Sports Doctor," but in a spectacular collegiate and professional football career where he ran his way right into the record books, this man was known simply as "Willie B."

Originally from North Carolina, Dr. Burden began his amazing career in Raleigh where he signed to play football under legendary coach Lou Holtz at N.C. State University in 1970. From '71-'73 he rushed for 2,524 yards and 22 touchdowns as a Tailback for the Wolf Pack. But throughout his three record-breaking seasons, the one college game that stands out to him the most is the first one he ever played.

"Even though I had a lot of great memories at N.C. State, the first game is what sticks out. For a guy that had always been seen as the second back in high school, I was standing in Carter Finley Stadium as a sophomore in front of all those fans, and I was the starting tailback" he said. "And I had 198 yards rushing, so I came out of it pretty good."

In his three years at N.C. State, he enjoyed his finest college season as a senior in 1973. He rushed for 1,014 yards, while winning ACC Player of the Year honors and leading his team to a league championship.

In the spring of 1974 he was chosen in the sixth round of the NFL draft by the Detroit Lions. But in a year where he was forced to deal with cartilage damage to his right knee, an NFL strike, and the death of his Lions head coach, is how he put it as "divine intervention" that he meet a former Calgary Stampeders General Manager in the Lions organization that sent him north of the border to take a crack at the Canadian Football League.

Once he put on a Stampeders uniform just six days after leaving the Lions camp, he would begin a career that would span eight seasons and 103 games as he shattered records and made an indelible mark as a Canadian football legend. From 1974-81 he rushed for a total of 6,234 yards and 48 touchdowns setting individual Canadian Football League records in 1975 for yards in a season with 1,896 and carries with 332 (records that both stood for over twenty years). That magical season he ran for over 100 yards 10 times, and on the final game of the season rushed for 238 yards on 34 carries to set the new record. And of all the 103 games that he played, Burden says that the final one in '75 is one that he will never forget.

"The Stampeders decided to secretly fly in my mom and brother to the game to surprise me. I went on the field ready for kickoff, and they brought out this limousine. Out popped the two of them and my feet were about three feet off the ground and I was floating," he said.

He also stated that breaking the record was also special because of the fans and his teammates who got caught up in all the emotions along with him.

"Everyone showed up wearing #10, and they all rallied around me" he said. "It was also a team record, and that is why it remains the greatest memory that I have in sports."

In his dream season in 1975 he also won the Schenley Award (for most outstanding player), the Eddie James Memorial Trophy (as the leading rusher in the Western Division), the Jeff Nicklin Memorial Award (for MVP in the West) and a selection to the CFL and Western Division All-Star teams.

Looking back on an outstanding career, Dr. Burden also took time to reflect on the individuals that helped him achieve such high goals and aspirations as a football player.

"In high school my head coach senior year, Mr. George Thompson, had a huge impact on me. He made playing football fun and he had the right perspective," he said. "He was an encourager and a good man."

In Canada he met a player by the name of John Helton who would become his mentor and help show him the kind of person he wanted to become off the field as well.

"John was a great athlete, but he didn't mind modeling off the field as well. He was a gentleman, and good citizen, and someone who did it the right way, and I learned a lot from him."

On September 21 Dr. Burden was given an honor in Hamilton, Ontario as an inductee to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame that would overshadow all the tremendous awards and individual accolades he received throughout his career. When asked how the ceremony and honor made him feel, he was at a loss for words it trying to describe it.

"I don't think that they have invented any words to describe how special it truly is. During my stay in Hamilton the people were so gracious and accommodating," he said. "There were no egos in the entire place, and everyone treated my whole family like Hall of Famers as well."

But what Dr. Burden found most special was the permanent place that was now made for him in a building where Canadian football legends live forever.

"Being inducted into the Hall of Fame is as close as you can come to immortality."

Now with his glory days as a gridiron great behind him, Dr. Burden is now focusing on his new career as a professor and a new life in Statesboro with his wife and children. He has two boys, Willie Jr. (10) and Freddy (7) as well as a twenty-three year old daughter named Courtney who lives in North Carolina. And he loves his job here at Georgia Southern, having the unique opportunity to teach students about the sports industry that was so very good to him.

"I can't wait to get to the classroom each day and talk sports with my students. I hope to influence some lives here and help them be the best sports managers that they can be," he said. "I think they will find a very richly rewarding career if they stay in this business because it's so much fun."

In an industry such as sports where jobs are so hard to come by, Dr. Burden continues to give all his students the same words of encouragement. He challenges them to go out and make it happen for themselves, and leaves them with the same words that show why he has been so successful in everything that he has done both on the field and off:

"There is always room for the best in anything that you want to do in life."

Dissecting the 'party school' stigma at GSU

By Lee McLeod
gsi22569@gsaix2.cc.gasou.edu

Parties are part of the landscape of higher education. Many people enjoy drinking in excess and attending large gatherings. This is an established ritual for most college students. Throughout the state and even the southeast, GSU is given the title "party school".

Yearly, the Princeton Review, an organization that ranks schools under different categories, releases a list of the top 20 party schools. The criteria, according to Tufts University web sight (www.tufts.edu), is based upon "use of alcohol and drugs, hours of study each day and population of participants in the Greek system." The Princeton Review sends out large surveys to almost every campus in the nation. Based upon the results they calculate the top 20 party schools in the nation.

While Southern receives these surveys, GSU has never been placed on this "prestigious" list. In fact, GSU is barely mentioned on Princeton Reviews website (www.review.com). On this list, though, is GSU's in-state rival, the University of Georgia. It appears at number 12 on the ranking.

A persistent rumor at GSU is that the school once appeared at number 2 on the Playboy Top fifty party schools list. However popular this rumor, it is not true. This list was only published once in 1987, and the highest Georgia school on the list was Mercer. Georgia Southern, again, was not even mentioned. Of course, if you asked a resident of the state which is the bigger party school, GSU or UGA, one would likely find the answer Georgia Southern. Why this discrepancy?

"They are the flagship station," says Dr. Edward Bayans, the GSU Judicial Affairs Officer. UGA has a larger and more celebrated tradition, this prevents them from receiving the same stigma attached to Georgia Southern.

Binge drinking is present on every campus. Dr. Bayans says that alcohol is "woven into the very fabric, [alcohol] is a rite of passage. It's been that way since 1635 when Harvard opened."

The fact that students participate in binge drinking is well known. Even religious schools have prob-

"Animal House was a travesty, it completely destroyed the image of the Greek system," Bayans said.

Capt. Buddy Peaster of the GSU Public Safety Crime Prevention unit presented another theory. Recently Clarke County Sheriffs Department and Athens City Police began coordinating efforts with the University of Georgia. The goal was to minimize underage drinking. He not what the reputation says. If it was such a party school, why would everyone go home on the weekends? The fact is, most students you talk to enjoy drinking and going to parties, but that is not their primary reason for coming to Georgia Southern."

According to Capt. Peaster, most students seem to have found a good mix.

"I've encountered many students who come down here with the mindset to do well."

Dr. Bayans has noticed a similar trend.

"Students are more aware and are showing better judgment. But," he adds, "most college students still live for the moment."

Most students know that finding a party is not necessarily a hard thing to do. Parties are available on most nights. The difference between GSU's parties and other large schools' parties are the size, according to Peaster. His department rarely gets called or notified about large parties. When called to parties, the University Police rarely have any trouble ending these gatherings.

The reputation, fortunately, is changing quickly. The advent of the Hope Scholarship is forcing many schools to raise admission standards. These raised standards allow for more selective acceptance to GSU. Students who are more academically serious have increased in number. GSU has been gradually raising the S.A.T and grade point average requirement.

Dr. Bruce Grube has implemented his Strategic Plan, an attempt to make Georgia Southern one of the nation's top public universities. When asked if the university's reputation would change, Dr. Bayans was optimistic.

"Dr. Grube's raising of academic standards should begin to attract many students with a different focus. I believe the school's reputation will improve dramatically."

"THE FACT IS, MOST STUDENTS YOU TALK TO ENJOY DRINKING AND GOING TO PARTIES, BUT THAT IS NOT THEIR PRIMARY REASON FOR COMING TO GEORGIA SOUTHERN."

--VETTE DIXON, SENIOR AND FORMER RESIDENT ADVISOR

lems with alcohol. So how did Georgia Southern receive its specific title in the state?

"It's all a matter of perceptions," says Dr. Bayans. "The students are more visible at a smaller campus."

When alumni and visitors come to football games, the students are easier to pick out due to smaller number of alumni and older adults. The students can easily be seen consuming alcohol in the parking lot, or at local bars. At larger schools, such as UGA, there are many more non-students visible. The presence of large amounts of visitors from other schools also make local students harder to spot.

Another problem is Georgia Southern's large Greek Society participation. Social fraternities and sororities have a reputation for being hard drinking and heavy partying. Dr. Bayans attributes this reputation to movies such as Animal House.

believes that the new focus on alcohol in Athens has led to larger numbers of high schools students visiting Georgia Southern instead of UGA.

"Metro students come to Statesboro, where alcohol enforcement is not as strict and get there first taste of freedom," Peaster said. "They return to the metro area and talk about [their experiences]." Peaster, a former public safety officer at UGA, says there is no comparison between the two schools. "Students [at GSU] rank at the top of the list as far as [attitude] is concerned," he said. In addition he says that "fans and students [at GSU] are better than any I've ever been around."

Even the students attending GSU don't buy the party school image.

Vette Dixon, a senior and former resident advisor, says "Every school is a party school, [GSU] is definitely

World Traditions of Music and Healing: A Multicultural Perspective

By Shana Bridges
Shanabee99@yahoo.com

Joseph Moreno, who is an expert on world traditions and methods of healing, came to speak on music therapy to an attentive audience at the College of Education auditorium On Thursday, October 11. The lecture, which was sponsored by the Campus Life Enrichment Committee, examined the representative music and healing traditions from many cultures.

Moreno is the director of music therapy at Maryville University in St. Louis, Missouri. He received his Masters of Music Education from the University of Kansas and his Masters of Arts in special education from New York University. He has traversed the world researching world traditions of music and healing, and has also pioneered work in musical psychodrama. He is the author of the recent book "Acting your Inner Music: Music Therapy and Psychodrama."

Moreno defined music therapy as the use of music towards the goal of mental health. This type of therapy has only been in existence in the American culture since 1950, and is not a prominent form of therapy among mental physicians.

According to Moreno, music therapy has been in existence in traditional cultures for about 50,000 years. 80% of the countries in the world are still under development and those cultures practice music therapy, making it the medical model for most of the world's people.

Old 'Beatles' recording found by BBC

Associated Press

LONDON — The voices are familiar, and so is the sound of screaming fans.

The British Broadcasting Corp. has retrieved an audio tape of the Beatles' 1963 live appearance on the BBC TV music show, "Juke Box Jury," in which they give their opinions on the music of Elvis Presley and the Swinging Blue Jeans, a spokeswoman said Wednesday.

"The program was not recorded by the BBC, so we are thrilled to have it in the archive," spokeswoman Helen Martin said. "But it's a copy of another recording and it's rather poor quality, so it's unlikely to be broadcast."

Martin said a viewer of the show, beamed from the Empire Theater in the Beatles' home city of Liverpool on Dec. 7, 1963, recorded the performance on a reel-to-reel tape recorder.

He handed it to the BBC after the corporation made a public appeal for old recordings, she said.

In keeping with the show's format, the band formed a celebrity panel that was asked whether it thought new singles by Elvis Presley, the Swinging Blue Jeans and The Chances would be chart hits. Screaming fans can be heard in the background.

Of Elvis's recently released number, "Kiss Me Quick," Paul McCartney said, "I love his voice and I love all the records like Blue Suede Shoes, but I don't like the songs now. 'Kiss Me Quick' - it sounds like Blackpool (a British coastal resort) on a sunny day."

They also correctly predicted that "Hippy Hippy Shake" by the Swinging Blue Jeans would do well.

"I think it could possibly be a hit - I know for a fact it's a popular song round here," Harrison said.

The 30-minute show was broadcast two days after the Beatles scored their third British No. 1 hit with "I Want to Hold Your Hand."

Attacks increase shortwave radio sales

Associated Press

CENTERVILLE — A police scanner has joined the television and aquarium as fixtures in Brad Smith's living room, taking a prominent spot on an end table.

Smith, 37, bought the scanner after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on the United States.

"I do think we'll have more terrorist attacks. And I'll be the first to know where it is. I'll hear it on that scanner before the TV and radio stations come on," he said.

Amateur radio operators on Sept. 11 were able to pick up radio transmissions between New York police, fire officials and dispatchers, providing a chilling perspective on the disaster as calls for help were made.

Now, sales of scanners and shortwave radios have increased. For Smith, he sees his scanner as a way to get first word of an attack anywhere near his home 10 miles south of Dayton. He said the scanner will enable him to react quickly.

"I would just like to have a heads-up," he said.

Businesses nationwide say they have had an increase in sales since the attacks.

Sales of police scanners are up 10 percent at Fort Worth, Texas-based Uniden America Corp., said spokeswoman Jennifer Ainsworth.

Radio Shack, also based in Fort Worth, has had increased sales of its communications products, including scanners and radios, according to spokeswoman Jill Lain.

Dayton-based Hobby Radio Stop, which is among the top 20 independent scanner dealers in the country, said its September scanner sales were nearly 10 percent above the same period in 2000.

Universal Radio Inc., a Columbus-based retailer of communications equipment, said sales of short-wave radios have increased up to 30 percent.

Robert Lyons, president of the Albany, N.Y.-based Scanner World USA, a mail-order business, said he also has seen an increase in scanner orders.

Norm Schrein, president of monitor events that might affect her husband, Schrein said.

Schrein said he went to a trade show in Peoria, Ill., four days after the attack and was all but cleaned out of scanners and frequency magazines.

"They were buying the scanners and not the cheap ones. The high-end ones that you can listen to military aircraft and all the other wide coverage," he said.

Shortwave radios were hot items during the Persian Gulf War, said Larry Van Horn, assistant editor of Monitoring Times magazine.

The publication is owned by Grove Enterprises Inc., a Brasstown, N.C.-based company that sells shortwave radios, scanners and other communications equipment.

"After the invasion of Kuwait, you couldn't buy a shortwave radio. Here we go again," Van Horn said.

He said the attraction of shortwave radios — which cost from under $200 to more than $5,000 — is that people can listen to broadcasts from around the world, including communications by the military, airlines and ship captains.

"There's more intrigue pound for pound in those frequencies than anything else in the radio spectrum," Van Horn said. "You never know what you're going to hear on shortwave. It can be exciting if you know what you're listening to."

Listeners can also hear broadcasts in foreign nations.

"You're going to hear things that other people just don't hear. And you're not going to hear it from the American media," Van Horn said. "You're going to hear it from the countries themselves — Afghanistan, Iran, Iraq — and get their point of view."

the 5,000-member Bearcat Radio Club in Dayton, said the club has been receiving more calls from people nationwide.

"People are freaking out all over," Schrein said. "They want to be prepared in case of any kind of emergency."

Some of the calls are from people with new scanners who want to know which frequencies to monitor in their areas.

One call came from a New York City policeman who wanted scanner codes so his wife could

Hip-hop star 'Ludacris' to perform at Maguires

By V.A. Patrick Slade
gsi29489@gsaia2.cc.gasou.edu

"Believe it or not, Ludacris is coming to Statesboro!"

This statement coming from the owner of Maguire's, Jason Wilson, himself. Contrary to belief this is not just hype to get people to come to his club. On Thursday, October 18, 2001, Ludacris will be in concert at Maguire's, off Highway 301. A percentage of all proceeds from the concert will go to the families of firemen and police officers who lost their lives on September 11 at the World Trade Center.

Jason Wilson, like all Americans, was trying to find some kind of way to help in the wake of these tragic events. He was on campus to give blood and noticed the tremendous outpouring of people trying to give. He also noticed many being turned way and told to come back another day.

"That's when it hit me," he says. "I had to do something else. I hate needles and I needed another outlet to help."

He began thinking about the concerts he had planned for this year and how they would be the perfect venue in which to raise funds for the victims and their families. Wilson contacted many businesses in Statesboro and other corporations for their assistance. In a joint effort with these businesses, Wilson is hoping to raise over 100,000 dollars—25,000 of which is coming from a series of three concerts and the parking from each event at Maguire's.

Now that the event is scheduled, Wilson faces another problem. The ticket sales are slow. Wilson says this is due to much skepticism about Ludacris actually coming.

"I'm getting asked constantly: 'Is he really coming?' I tell them, 'yes he is.'"

Students at GSU have a right to be a little leery about buying tickets. They have been constantly disappointed over the years with the promises of a big name coming to Statesboro and they never do. Wilson emphasizes that Ludacris will indeed be coming, no ifs, ands or buts about it.

The concert is fast approaching and tickets sales are starting to pick up. There are under a thousand left. And if you think you are going to get tickets the night of, think again. Wilson says there will be no tickets on sale and parking will only be for those with tickets in hand. Purses or handbags will not be allowed for security purposes. And security will be tight.

"Don't be offended," he says. "The last thing I want is tickets being scalped or someone getting hurt."

And he promises many surprises the night of the concert. One of which is the identity of the next star coming to Statesboro in three weeks on November 8, 2001 at Maguire's. Wilson previews, "If you think Ludacris is big..."

'Friends' exceeds 'Survivor' in TV season premiere show ratings

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Rachel's pregnancy on "Friends" caused ratings queasiness for the debut episode of "Survivor: Africa."

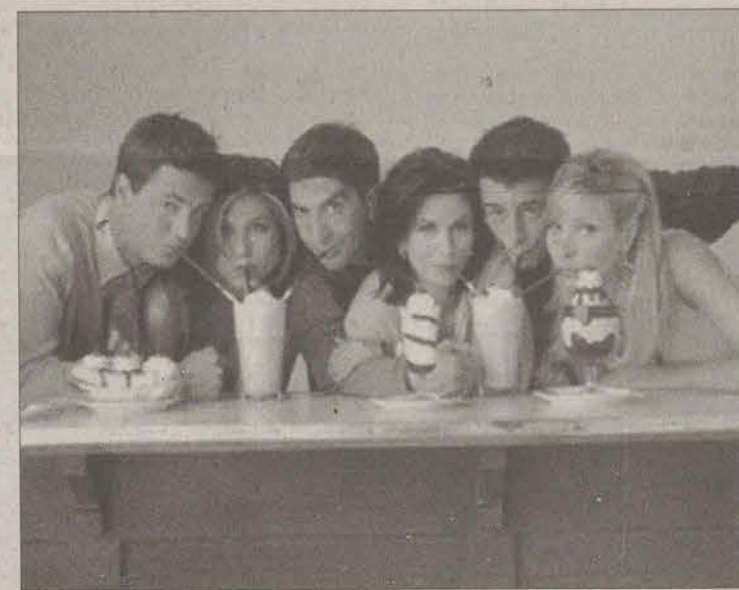

NBC's "Friends," in which Ross (David Schwimmer) found out that Rachel (Jennifer Aniston) was carrying his baby, averaged 29.2 million viewers Thursday, compared to 23.8 million for CBS' "Survivor."

That likely will make them the top two shows for the week.

CBS pronounced itself satisfied with "Survivor's" performance, noting that the audience built for each quarter hour, ending with 3.7 million more viewers than at the beginning of the hour.

"Friends" had a foothold in the time slot because of the pregnancy story line that began playing out in the previous two episodes, suggested David Poltrack, chief researcher for CBS.

Both the sitcom and "Survivor" had to cope with a delayed start on the East Coast because of President Bush's news conference.

Special Photo

DUELING NETWORKS: The season premiere of NBC's primetime favorite 'Friends' attained higher ratings than the popular CBS reality show 'Survivor' last Thursday night.

"We are very, pleased with the results," Poltrack said. "'Survivor' got off to a very strong start, despite a disruption in its normal starting time and tougher-than-normal competition."

In its second half-hour, "Survivor" outdrew NBC's "Will & Grace," which had 19.6 million viewers to the CBS show's 25.4 million.

A strong showing by "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," which drew 22.7 million viewers, helped CBS claim Thursday night.

Other reality series like ABC's "Mole II" have faltered in the early weeks of the new season, leading to speculation about audience appetite for such fare given the harsh, real-life reality of terrorism and war.

But Poltrack said CBS research indicated that viewers were eager for the third installment of "Survivor" and satisfied with the first episode.

Preliminary polling results from Thursday night found that the show met or exceeded viewer expectations, he said.

As in previous editions, the new "Survivor" stranded a diverse group of Americans in an isolated area — this time Kenya's dry, grassy Shaba National Reserve. They were divided into two competing tribes, Boran and Samburu.

Diane Ogden, a mail carrier from Lincoln, Neb., was the first to be voted out.

STUDENTS BEWARE

ATTENTION -- The George-Anne screens all advertisements prior to publication. The newspaper strives to accept ads for legitimate products and services only. Students are urged to exercise caution when replying to ads -- particularly those which require a credit card number, other personal information, or money in advance of the delivery of a product or service. Students are also urged to report to the newspaper any suspicious offers which they might see in an ad. Remember, if an offer seems too good to be true, it probably is.

STATEMENT OF OPERATIONS: The George-Anne is the official student newspaper of Georgia Southern University, owned and operated by GSU students and utilizing the facilities provided by GSU. The newspaper is the oldest continuously published in Bulloch County and Statesboro, Ga. The ideas expressed herein are those of the editor or the individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Student Media Committee, the administration, the faculty and staff of Georgia Southern University, or the University System of Georgia. The George-Anne is published three times weekly during the academic year and five times during summers. Any questions regarding content should be directed to the editor at by phone at 912/681-5246 or fax at 912/486-7113. Readers may also send electronic messages to the newspaper staff by visiting our web site at <http://www.stp.gasou.edu>.

OFFICES, MAIL, PHONES: Room 2023, F. I. Williams Center. The George-Anne, P.O. Box 8001, Georgia Southern University, Statesboro, Ga. 30460. 912/681-5246 (News) or 912/618-5418 (Advertising) or 912/486-7113 (Fax)

ADVERTISING INFORMATION

The George-Anne reserves the right to refuse any advertisement.

DISPLAY AD DEADLINE: The deadline for reserving space and submitting advertising copy is Noon, one week prior to the intended publication date.

For more information, rate cards, sample publications, contact: David Brenneman, Advertising Director, ADS, (912) 681-5418; or Bill Neville, Student Media Coordinator, (912) 381-0069.

PROOFING/ERRORS/OMISSIONS: The newspaper makes every reasonable effort to present correct and complete information in advertisements. However, the advertiser is responsible for proofing the ad upon publication and should notify the newspaper immediately in the event of an error. The newspaper is not responsible for any errors in advertisements and is liability for adjustments is limited to the amount of space the error occupied in the ad. Further, the newspaper is not responsible for any damages caused due to an ad's omission from a particular edition and its responsibility solely is to reschedule the ad in the next regular edition at the regular advertising rates.

CLASSIFIED ADS: Free classified ads from students, faculty and staff must be non-commercial in nature and submitted in writing, with the name of the sender, local address, and phone number. No free ads taken via telephone -- at this price we don't take dictation. One free ad per person per week. Commercial classified are 20 cents per word with a $4 minimum per insertion. Tear sheets are $2 extra per insertion. CIRCULATION INFORMATION: Mail subscriptions are not available at this time. However, readers may visit our web site for free access to current and past issues. Visit www.stp.gasou.edu. It is the goal of the newspaper to have its edition placed on-line within 24 hours of publication. Breaking news will be placed on-line as warranted. The George-Anne is distributed free of charge on the Georgia Southern University campus through delivery sites located in campus buildings, at off-campus sites, and in residence halls.

NOTICE: Readers may pick up one free copy, and a second for a roommate or acquaintance, at distribution sites. Additional copies are 35 cents each and are available at the Williams Center. However, unauthorized removal of additional copies from a distribution site constitutes theft under Georgia law, a misdemeanor offense punishable by a fine and/or jail time. Editors will seek to have any person(s) who removes more than the authorized number of copies from distribution sites prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

NOTE: We gratefully acknowledge the theft of our slogan -- "Liked by Many, Cussed by Some, Read by them All" -- from Robert Williams of the Blackshear Times. Call Bob and he can tell you who he stole it from originally.

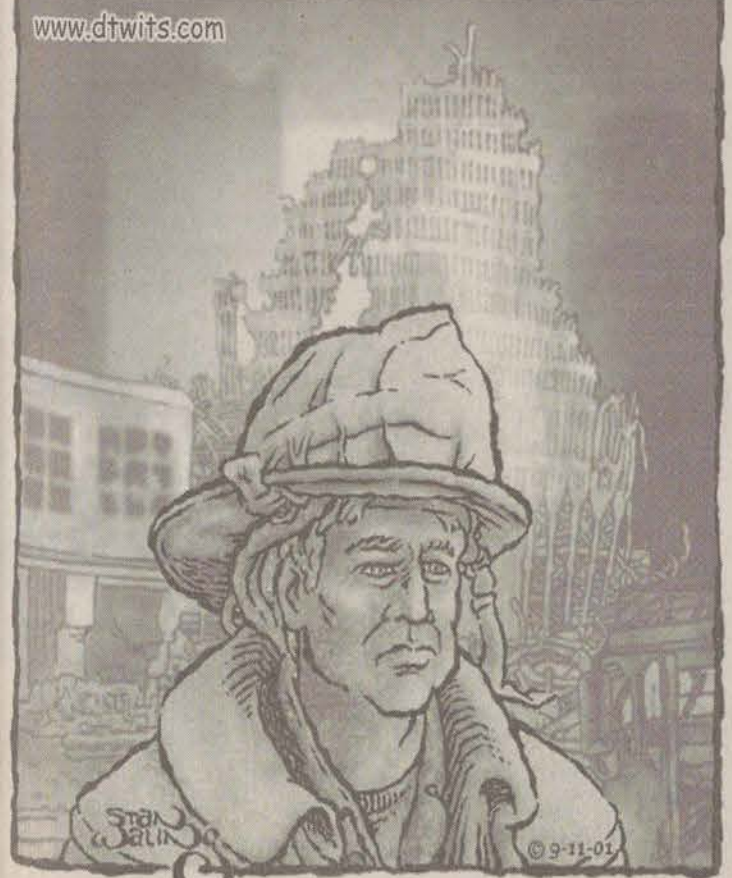

FREEBIE INFO ALL FREE student and faculty ads to be run in the George-Anne must have a NAME, P.O. BOX and PHONE NUMBER. Ads will be rejected if they do not have this information. NO EXCEPTIONS.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY BUCCI! Thank you for being a true friend and sister! All my love forever, your lil sis - Dawn.

DITHERED TWITS by Stan Waling

The strength of a nation lies within her people.

Rip Us Off.

That's right -- you heard right. Rip us off. Get something for nothing. Say hello to a friend. Find a roommate. Get a job. Find a home for a litter of kittens. Buy a wombat. Or sell your Beamer (right, like you expect us to believe that you -- and not your folks -- actually have the title to that BMW). Regardless of your purpose (or even if you are a congenital liar like the Beamer owner), Georgia's liveliest classified ad section is for you. Students, faculty and staff can have their 20-word action ads published for nothing (non-commercial listings only, please). Fill out the little rectangles below, and send your ad to G-A Action Ads, POB 8001, GSU or drop them by our offices in the Williams Center, Room 2023. You MUST include your name and P.O. Box number to qualify for a freebie. Remember, keep it short: students, faculty and staff must pay 20¢ per words for those which exceed the 20-word limit. And, please -- no telephone calls... at this price we don't take dictation.
