So where's
our GSU
Starbucks?*School moving ahead, company still tenuous on details

By Casey Altman & Adam Crisp • The George-Anne Daily

Last fall, Georgia Southern students were asked which coffee shop they would prefer on campus. Students voted on WINGS and Starbucks was selected.

Though the decision made caffeine-craving students and faculty all jittery with excitement, they may have to wait just a little bit longer for the coffee giant to come to Eagle country. A school official said last week that delays in the intense planning process have pushed the opening date well past the end of spring semester.

Tom Palfy, the university's food service director, said the school was negotiating contracts in February. Back then, he predicted the shop could open as soon as April or May. That date has passed, and the sign that announced that Starbucks would soon be arriving has been taken down.

"Right now, the blueprints are in the process of being revised and once we are satisfied with the blueprints, a bid process takes place to find a contractor for the job. Also, I am in the process of hiring a unit manager," Palfy said.

According to Palfy, the school signed a license agreement on April 11 and released a requisition for the purchase of equipment. Though the school said the wheels are definitely turning, Starbucks is more tentative.

"Starbucks is always looking for the perfect location to serve our customers, but we cannot confirm a location at GSU at this time," said Alan Richardson, southeast regional marketing manager for Starbucks. "We look forward to announcing our plans in the coming months."

Students have said the delays are frustrating.

"I'm sad it's not open yet," said Tiffany Heid, a freshman nursing major.

"They are taking too long to put it in," said Kalin Pennington, a sophomore industrial engineering major.

Palfy said students don't realize how complicated the process is.

New doctoral degree to be offered fall '07Classification as research intensive a big step, say administrators*By Luke Hearn
Executive editor

Soon, Georgia Southern will be offering two doctoral-level degrees, a distinction school officials are heralding as a massive step for GSU.

Last Tuesday, April 18, the University System of Georgia Board of Regents approved the Doctor of Psychology (Psy.D.) degree to be offered at GSU.

"This means a lot," said John Murray, chair of the psychology department. "For GSU, it's the first doctorate outside of the College of Education, and it's the first doctorate in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences."

Murray said he expects the Psy.D. program to be up and running by fall of 2007, but said the number of students admitted will be very small at first, with class sizes between six and eight students.

"I think it's going to be a very popular program," Murray said. "We're very excited about it. It's a big change for the psychology program, as well as for GSU."

"The new Carnegie designation is as important to GSU as the move from college to university status."Dr. Bruce Grube
GSU president

GSU President Bruce Grube said he was pleased that the Board of Regents approved the new program for the university.

"It's been a long haul to get the Psy.D. program here," he said. "It was on my desk when I arrived here seven years ago, and it was nice to see it approved by the Regents."

Murray said the psychology program has been working for nine years to make the Psy.D. a reality at GSU.

"We've been working and putting this program together for a long time now," he said. "It's been a long journey to this point, and we're excited to have it here."

The approval of the Psy.D. program comes just weeks after the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching elevated GSU's status from a Masters I to a Doctoral/Research University status.

"The new Carnegie designation is as important to GSU as the move from college to university status," Grube said.

Grube attributes, in part, the number of Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) degrees awarded in the past few years to the change by the Carnegie Foundation.

"The Ed.D. has been really successful and what made the Carnegie Foundation make the change was the number of doctoral graduates we've produced," Grube said.

see DOCTOR, back pageHip to be roundFrom Demi and Angelina to you and me: pregnancy gets glamorous*By Jocelyn Noveck
Associated Press

NEW YORK - Like any expectant mother, Kai Walter, six months pregnant, has lots to get done before the big day. One of her most important errands: an upcoming trip to the West Coast, where she has an appointment to take off her clothes and be photographed.

Not for some magazine cover, a la Demi Moore, but for her own personal collection of pregnancy memories. The idea is to artistically capture her blossoming belly in all its glory, something more and more women are doing these days. Or they might be making a plaster "belly cast" of their changing form. Or even consulting a "pregnancy stylist" to map out a cool, midriff-baring maternity wardrobe.

Pregnancy, in short, has become hipper, more glamorous — sexy even. It sure feels odd to think that way about something as basic as, well, the propagation of the human race. And yet, fueled by an ever-spiraling interest in the lives of our celebrities (one word: Brangelina) and a consumer culture always coming up with new luxuries, the very act of reproduction appears to have reinvented itself.

"It's hip now to be pregnant," says Jill Siefert, a fashion stylist in San Francisco who recently added pregnancy styling to her business. "Everybody's doing it."

Of course, everybody's always done it. It's just that we're hearing about it so much more now — especially RIGHT now. Take the latest cover of People (perhaps they should rename it Parents). Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes, new parents of Suri, are flanked by Gwyneth Paltrow and newborn Moses, and Donald and Melania Trump with newborn Barron. Inside, Liv Tyler and Jon Stewart cavort with their respective offspring, Matt Damon awaits his, Brooke Shields talks about hers.

And this is only April. The coming months promise the birth of the Brad Pitt-Angelina Jolie baby, still in utero but already presumed unprecedently gorgeous. "Not since Jesus has a baby been so eagerly anticipated," New York magazine wrote.

Relay beats goal, raises $240,000

Compiled by staff

According to organizer Kay Nay, this year's Relay for Life raised over $240,000. She said over 90 teams took part in the event and made it a successful event even through the rain.

"We announced the total was at $240,000, but we still have money coming in," said Nay. "Our goal was $218,000, so we are way over the goal and still going. We had a fantastic relay. We had over 90 teams and the spirit was just great, even with the rain."

Nay said the Relay Reverse Beauty Pageant was a highlight of the events. "Ms. Poodle from Pets and People won," said Nay. "He really looked good in his black slinky evening dress. It shows you can have fun and raise money for a good cause."

"With the whole community pulling together it's just amazing what Bulloch County has done," said Nay. "It's about the community that takes up the fight and with more counties like us we'll win the fight."

Campus to observe Holocaust Remembrance events

By Casey Altman

Assistant news editor

Georgia Southern will observe Holocaust Remembrance Monday, April 24, through Wednesday, April 26. The annual event, also known as Yom Hashoah, is an international day of remembering those who perished during the Holocaust.

According to the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum web site, nearly 6 million Jews were murdered during the Holocaust.

"Yom Hashoah is not only a time to remember the people and what happened, but also to remind us to not let something like that happen again," said Cathy Skidmore-Hess, assistant professor of history.

There are several events planned over the next couple days.

According to Consuela Ward-Pender, director of the Multi Cultural Student Center, there are two goals of this week's events.

"One is remembrance. We have to remember," she said. For people that have lost family members in the Holocaust, this is a day to honor them, she said.

She said the second goal is to raise awareness. "If we don't know our history it could repeat itself," she said. This is meant to prevent future genocides, she said.

On Tuesday, April 25, Abdulahi Osman, assistant professor of International Affairs at the University of Georgia, and Saba Jallow, associate professor in the Center for Africa Studies at Georgia Southern, will present on the crisis of genocide in Darfur, Sudan, at 7 p.m. in Russell Union Room 2080.

They will discuss the thousands of displaced refugees and those that have been killed due to the violence in the region.

Wednesday, April 26, will feature John Steinberg, associate professor of history, speaking on "Sites of Jewish Civilization, Sites of Mass Destruction" at 4 p.m. in Russell Union Room 2080.

Refreshments will be served. At 7 p.m. in the Foy Fine Arts Building Auditorium, the "Program of Remembrance: Music and Drama of the Holocaust" will take place.

All events are free and open to the public.

"Yom Hashoah is an international holiday thousands of universities are involved. We are just doing our part," said Ward-Pender.

Gordon awarded student employee of the year

By Katie McCabe

Staff writer

There are hundreds of students employed all over campus. According to Kimberly Payne of the financial aid department, each department nominates one student they feel has gone above and beyond the duties of their job. Then a selection committee made up of several faculty members evaluates the nominees in five different categories: reliability, work quality, uniqueness, initiative and creativity. The committee analyzes each nominee individually and picks one student that has been particularly outstanding in the workplace. This year, that student was Callie Gordon, said Payne.

Gordon is a junior from Albany, who was nominated for Student Employee of the Year by the Honors Program. In their nomination letter to the selection committee, Gordon was honored for her work.

"She has been invaluable to the program and is incredibly good with the students. We will be able to function in the office this summer because of what she has done to organize our records," Gordon was instrumental in setting up a computerized system of keeping records for the department.

department is to keep up with each honors student, including their classes and other activities involving the students. She also processes new applicants to the program. When asked why she likes her job, she said, "I like it because I have a leading role in the development and changes of the program, and the people I work with are great, too."

Gordon is an accounting major and wants to be a CPA. This summer she has been awarded an internship at Price Waterhouse Coopers, a nationally known accounting firm.

She recommends working on campus to other students because employers will work around your class schedule and because it's convenient to get to and from class. As Student Employee of the Year, Gordon received a goody bag and a $100 gift certificate to the University Store.

THE BIG STORY

Phil Walden, a founder of Capricorn Records who launched the careers of artists including Otis Redding and the Allman Brothers Band, died Sunday after a long battle with cancer.

Phil Walden dies at 66

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Phil Walden, the Capricorn Records founder who launched the careers of Otis Redding and the Allman Brothers Band while helping pioneer the Southern rock sound of the 1970s, has died after a long battle with cancer, a family spokesman said Monday. He was 66.

Walden died at his home Sunday, said Leon Jones, law partner of Walden's son, Philip Walden Jr.

The Macon-based record label, founded in 1969, was influential in bringing together rock, country and blues artists who crafted a new style exemplified by groups like the Allmans, the Charlie Daniels Band and Wet Willie — other Capricorn acts discovered by Walden.

"Phil was a visionary," said Chuck Leavell, who joined the Allman Brothers on keyboards in 1972 and now plays with the Rolling Stones. "He just had a great vision and a true, deep passion for the music."

Walden's long career began when he was a college student at Mercer University in Macon, where he helped break down racial barriers in the Deep South by booking predominantly black bands for white college and high school parties. He went on to manage rhythm and blues artists including Redding, Al Green, Percy Sledge and Sam and Dave.

He saw Capricorn through financial ups and downs into the early 2000s, recording and promoting alternative rock acts like Cake, Widespread Panic and 311, who signed to Capricorn after he revived the label.

"Phil always knew how to recognize trends and he knew how to recognize talent within those trends," Leavell said.

Over the years, Walden endured and overcame some rocky times at Capricorn, including bankruptcy proceedings and a late '70s lawsuit by the Allmans, in which the courts ruled the band had been underpaid for album sales.

After selling the rights to Capricorn's contracts and music catalogue, Walden recently had been working with Velocette Records, a small, Atlanta-based independent label run largely by his children. Leavell said Walden spoke to him as recently as this year about wanting to again return to Macon and revive Capricorn as an outlet for young artists.

During the 1970s, Walden was an early backer of then-Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter's upstart run for the White House. He helped Carter financially, as did the Allmans and other Capricorn groups, who played benefit shows.

Carter said Monday in a statement that he and wife Rosalynn were sad to hear of Walden's death.

"Phil was one of the pre-eminent producers of great music in America," Carter said. "His many performing partners, including Otis Redding and the Allman Brothers, helped to put Macon and Georgia on the musical map of the world."

In recent years, Walden talked openly about his past struggles with drug and alcohol abuse. Friends and family say he had been sober since the 1990s.

In 1997, Walden said, "I'm a big Episcopalian. After I get my cup of coffee in the morning, the first 40 minutes to an hour this is what I do: prayer. I'm searching my soul, trying to find out who the hell I am. Why am I here? What am I supposed to do?"

Jury takes up Moussaoui's fate

By Matthew Barakat

Associated Press

Prosecutors showed the most gruesome and heart-rending photos of Sept. 11 again on Monday and told jurors that only Zacarias Moussaoui's death could give the victims justice. The defense asked his jury to spurn retribution and not let a delusional and inept terrorist bait them into making him a martyr.

With those final arguments, the life of the 37-year-old Frenchman was placed in the hands of the same nine men and three women who early this month found him responsible for at least one death on 9/11 even though he was in jail at the time.

Now they must weigh the suffering and the glee the confessed al-Qaida conspirator took in it on the witness stand against his role, his mental health and background to decide whether he deserves the death penalty or life in prison without possibility of release.

The jurors deliberated three hours and went home for the day. They will resume Tuesday morning.

Prosecutor David Novak showed photos of a charred body in a Pentagon office, of body parts at the base of the World Trade Center, and of young children who lost a parent.

"No one can give them justice but you," Novak said. "You are the voice of this nation."

He told jurors a death penalty would say: "We are the United States of America, and we are not going to put up with a bunch of thugs who invoke God's name to kill nearly 3,000 Americans."

Man swallowed by ground under his home

① ALTA, Calif. — It was like a scene from a horror film: A 27-year-old man plummeted into a gaping hole that suddenly opened beneath a house in rural Placer County, trapping him beneath foundation rubble and killing him.

Authorities say the home, built in the 1980s, may have been sitting atop a decades-old underground mine. Recent rains could have softened the ground under the home, in an isolated area near Lake Alta.

"It's unbelievable," Placer County Sheriff's Department spokeswoman Dena Erwin said. "From the front of the house, it's absolutely normal."

Then, in the middle of the house, is this enormous hole." The victim was awake and on the ground floor about 9:30 p.m. Friday when the concrete foundation near the kitchen gave way, sending him plunging into to the ground, Erwin said.

Rescuers had trouble reaching him because the ground began to shift, creating an unsafe situation for work crews. Authorities returned to the home Sunday to try and remove the man's body, though geologists were still testing the house's soundness.

House blasted by 3,000 gallons of sewage

② CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Utility workers trying to blast out a grease clog from a sewer line forced 3,000 gallons of raw sewage into a couple's home, forcing them to abandon their house while hoping that the city makes good on a promise to clean up and repair the damage.

Mac and Meg McCormick say city leaders have also promised to pay for their stay in a hotel until the repairs are complete. The couple doesn't have any of the agreement in writing, and city officials have declined to discuss the case because it's ongoing.

Scott Denham, the risk manager for Charlotte and Mecklenburg County, declined to discuss the details of the sewage backup, but did say, "There's no question of the severity of this event."

Police discover mummified baby in closet

③ CONCORD, N.H. — A mummified baby that's belonged to a local family for decades is being investigated by the state attorney general's office.

Charles Peavey, 41, said the tiny preserved corpse has been passed down in his family since it was discovered among his great-great uncle's possessions in a Manchester attic.

Investigators got word of the remains after Peavey's 4-year-old niece was overheard telling another child that her uncle was a killer and had a dead baby.

Peavey said the mummy belonged to his great-great uncle John Peavey, who was born in Ashland in 1850. The family estimates the mummy is 80 to 90 years old.

Mystic Arts Horoscope

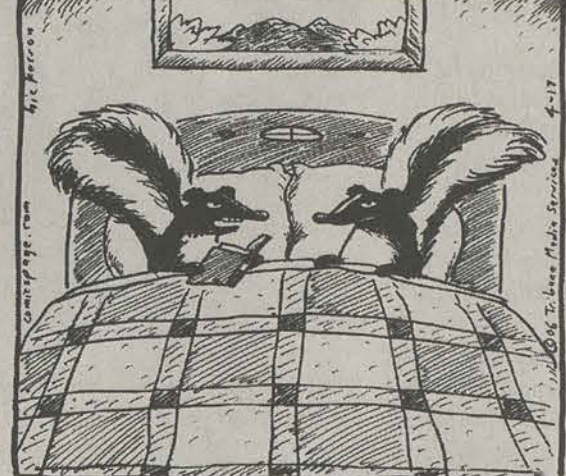

Today's Birthday (04-25-06). You can spend on charity this year, and also take care of others. Do it in a way that's to your benefit as well.
To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.
Aries (March 21-April 19) - Today is a 7 - Postpone extensive travel until tomorrow, for best results. Well, maybe late tonight. Wait until the confusion has passed.
Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Today is a 6 - You're up against a deadline. The pressure's on to perform. Can you do it again, even better, and win the biggest prize? You can.
Gemini (May 21-June 21) - Today is a 6 - You can't have everything you want, and that's a terrible thing. Instead of pitching a fit, however, just wait for a better time. Get your friends to help.
Cancer (June 22-July 22) - Today is a 9 - You could be called upon to explain what you've been doing lately. This is why you were advised to stick to the straight and narrow. Hopefully, you'll have nothing but good and proper things to report.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Today is a 7 - Conditions for romance are getting better, lucky for you. Speaking of luck, that's pretty good, too. Make your move now, before it changes.
Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Today is a 6 - Discuss the family shopping list before you go to the store. It's better to work these things out before you get in front of strangers.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) - Today is a 6 - Don't hurry; take your time. Drag your feet and stall. Later today and tomorrow, your odds for success improve.
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) - Today is a 9 - You don't need to ask the world to give you anything for free. You're fully able and willing to take care of yourself, and others, at a profit.
Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) - Today is a 5 - Keep your temper under pressure at work. Don't lose your sense of humor. Somebody you admire is watching, and thinks you are very cool.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Today is a 7 - After initial frustration, you should be able to tell what works and what doesn't. Try not to lose your temper.
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) - Today is a 6 - Others are trying to block your efforts, but they won't succeed. You need to gather more information, though. Get at it.
Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) - Today is a 7 - You don't have to ask for favors. Your kindness will be repaid. It may take a while, but eventually what goes around, comes around.

Blue defeats White 27-24 to end spring practice

By Mike Anthony

Staff writer

Before a crowd of over 5,800 fans, the Georgia Southern football team played the annual Blue-White game Saturday. The Blue team, which consisted mostly of starters, won 27-24.

The White team, consisting of the backups, was spotted a 21-0 lead at the start of the game.

The offense has changed drastically, switching from an option attack that had been a staple of GSU football for 20 years, to a wide open, multiple receiver look that saw Eagle quarterbacks unleashing downfield passes on every possession.

For all the changes that have been implemented, the offense showed that it is still incredibly potent and full of outstanding athletes waiting for their chance to make the big play.

The wait was not too long. On the first play from scrimmage, redshirt freshman Chris Griffin dropped back in the pocket and found senior wide receiver Teddy Craft streaking over the middle for a 38 yard completion.

Four plays later, Griffin rolled right and found his other starting receiver, senior Reggie McCutchen, for a 15 yard touchdown strike.

After the quick score, Griffin saw no need to slow down. He completed his first six pass attempts of the game and ended up 14 of 26 for 268 yards and two touchdowns.

Griffin's completions consistently ate up large amounts of yardage. Eight of his 14 completions went for 15 or more yards, and all but two of his completions went for over 10 yards.

"They just ran good routes all day and pulled down everything that I threw at them," Griffin said. "I think that we still need to improve some, but we're all getting on the same page now and it's really helping us out."

The running game, which has always been the Eagles' main threat, found itself taking a back seat to the new focus on the passing game.

Running was also very effective, however. Sophomore Chris Covington was the leading rusher on the day, carrying the ball 21 times for 100 yards.

"I felt really comfortable out there today," said Covington. "I was impressed with the defense. They were putting some hits on me out there, but I just kept running and it worked out well."

"I need to work a little on catching the ball when we run the swing passes, but other than that, it felt real good today and I can't wait for the season."

Backup running back Melvin finished with 22 carries for 73 yards for the White team, including a few instances where he was able to get to the corner and do some damage with his speed and open field moves.

The defense started out a little slow, but was able to get up to speed and make some big plays.

Criticized by Head Coach Brian VanGorder earlier in the spring for having a tendency to allow the big play, they gave their head coach reason to be more optimistic following Saturday's performance.

"The starting defense did a good job today. I thought Charrod Taylor really came up big. They came out a little bit jittery, but they settled down a little bit. The White team's defense made some bad decisions, but they settled down and played much better after the first quarter," said VanGorder.

After an opening drive by the White team, which spanned 50 yards and was capped by a 42 yard Bo Galvin field goal, the starters clamped down and didn't allow another point the rest of the day.

Taylor managed just three tackles on the day, but all were big plays. Each of them resulted in a loss of yardage, including one sack for a loss of seven.

The other defensive star on Saturday was sophomore cornerback Brandon Jackson. Jackson, who came to Statesboro earlier in the year as a transfer, has quickly established himself as a key component of the secondary. He locked down every receiver that lined up over him and made the biggest defensive play of the day.

On the White team's first possession of the second half, quarterback Zach Stanford looked to his left and rifled a pass towards the sideline.

The pass looked as though it would be completed, but Jackson stepped in front of the receiver and made the interception.

Catching it in stride, Jackson was off to the races and returned it 53 yards for the touchdown. His score put the Blue team ahead, and they were able to run out the clock from there.

How did we do?

The conclusion of spring practices and the annual Blue and White scrimmage at Paulson this past weekend allowed almost 6,000 fans a preview of Head Coach Brian VanGorder's new and improved Georgia Southern Eagle Football Team. Here's how we think the team graded out.

Quarterbacks — Chris Griffin passed the ball more times than most GSU fans are used to, but looked very poised and comfortable doing so. He hit receivers Teddy Craft, Jayson Foster and Reggie McCutchen for 268 yards and 2 TDs. B+

Running Backs — Chris Covington is penciled in as the starter and showed promise in the process of taking over for Jermaine Austin, totaling over 100 yards and a score. White team starter Melvin Greer showed flashes of brilliance with a 22 yard run, but only averaged just three yards a carry for the game. B

Wide Receivers — Teddy Craft is the game breaker of this group, catching five balls for 118 yards and a score. Jayson Foster has seemed to adjust nicely to receiver because of his speed and ability to do just about anything. The only point of question on Saturday was the hands of a few receivers. A

Offensive Line — The loss of First Team All American Chad Motte hurts, but three returning juniors and senior center Lance Wayne look to pick up the slack. They showed a lot of promise on Saturday. The starting line had holes waiting for Covington all day, and consistently gave Griffin time to step back and survey the field. B-

Defensive Line — The return of senior defensive end Charrod Taylor will help anchor a relatively young unit that ranked next to last in rushing defense last season, giving up over 182 yards a game. The starting D-Line may have had the most impressive performance of the day. They consistently moved the line of scrimmage off the snap and contributed to four sacks. B+

Linebackers — The potential is there, but it didn't really show on Saturday. John Mohring was held out of all spring practices and contact drills this spring, but should be fully healed by training camp and should be able to start come fall. B-

Secondary — GSU was second to last in the SoCon in pass defense last season. The loss of senior A.J. Bryant helped sophomore cornerback Brandon Jackson prove his worth by scoring on a 53 yard interception return off of backup quarterback Zach Stanford. B-

Kicking — GSU attempted only eight field goals last season and made only half of them. Bo Galvin, who kicked a 42 yard field goal in the scrimmage, looks to compete with Jonathan Dudley for a starting position. C

Punting — Dan Jordan tied for third in the SoCon with an average of about 40 yards, but backup Patrick Bolen also showed promise with a 73 yard punt in the scrimmage on Saturday. A

Return Game — Teddy Craft was sixth in the SoCon with an average return of 18 yards on kickoffs. This season, Jason Foster is getting the starting nod at kickoffs and punt returns. A

Eagle outfielder Phillip Porter slides into home during the Eagles' victory against UNC-Greensboro Saturday. The Eagles swept the series.

Eagles sweep UNC-G

By Will Adams
Staff writer

Georgia Southern completed the sweep of UNC-Greensboro over the weekend after defeating the Spartans 9-8 at J.I. Clements Stadium on Sunday afternoon.

During Sunday's matchup, freshman third baseman Chris Shehan singled up the middle in the eighth inning to score Chris Hollis for the game winning RBI, in the come from behind win.

It didn't come easy for the Eagles as they got off to a rough start in the third inning, as starting pitcher Josh Lairsey gave up four runs on six hits in only 3.2 innings.

UNC-G starter Patrick Currin was tagged for four runs on seven hits, but the bullpen couldn't hold the lead as the Eagles battled back with Matt Miller's two RBI and Mike Economos' fourth homerun of the season.

David Cogswell and Matt Shirley pitched two innings giving up only one run in relief of Lairsey and forced the Spartans into an inning ending double play in the eighth with runners on and then pitched a scoreless ninth for the win.

The Eagles had to wait to make Saturday's 12-5 rout of the Spartans official because heavy rains forced the end of the ninth to be postponed.

Junior right hander Dustin Evans scattered seven hits over 7.2 innings while giving up only three earned runs and striking out six.

Miller and Hollis continued their offensive onslaught by going a combined nine for eleven with three RBI and four runs scored.

UNC-G starter Ryan Falcon barely lasted four innings before he was taken out after giving up five runs on ten hits.

On Friday night, SoCon Pitcher of the Week Everett Teaford and reliever Cogswell combined to pitch a three hit shutout.

UNC-G starter Nick Starnes gave up only three runs on three hits in

Teaford named Pitcher of the Week

Georgia Southern junior Everett Teaford was named Southern Conference Pitcher of the Week, announced by the league office on Monday. The junior left-hander received his first-ever weekly SoCon award.

Everett Teaford

Teaford's complete game bid last Friday against UNC Greensboro was broken up in the top of the ninth when the game was postponed 45 minutes due to lightning. He had scattered three hits through eight innings as the Eagles went on to blank the Spartans 4-0.

Following a two-out triple in the first, Teaford did not allow a batter past second base. He struck out 10 Spartans, the sixth time in his career recording double-digit Ks. While improving to 6-3 on the season, Teaford retired 11-of-12 during one stretch. He increased his Southern Conference-leading strikeout total to 84.

five innings, but early scoring efforts from Griffin Benedict and Shehan, along with some help from Greg Dowling's record three walks were all that GSU needed to get the win.

The Eagles travel to Atlanta to take on Georgia State Tuesday to start an eight-game road trip.

Softball takes two from Elon

GSU News Service

Georgia Southern softball took on Elon last weekend in a three-game series, of which the Eagles took one.

A three-run fifth inning by GSU, aided by three Elon errors, proved to be the difference, overcoming five miscues of its own in a 5-4 softball victory Sunday afternoon at Eagle Field.

The Eagles improve to 24-28 and 8-7 in the Southern Conference, and win the weekend series 2-1.

"We talked this morning about whether or not they wanted to be a part of what we saw yesterday in game one or game two," said GSU head coach Natalie Poole, whose team shut out Elon 6-0 in the nightcap of Saturday's doubleheader.

Four of GSU's errors came in the final two innings, yet starter Logan Free gave up just one run to barely hang on to the lead.

With the score even at 2-2 after four innings, Elon retook the lead with back-to-back two-out hits from junior Laurin Smith and freshman Brandi Jones.

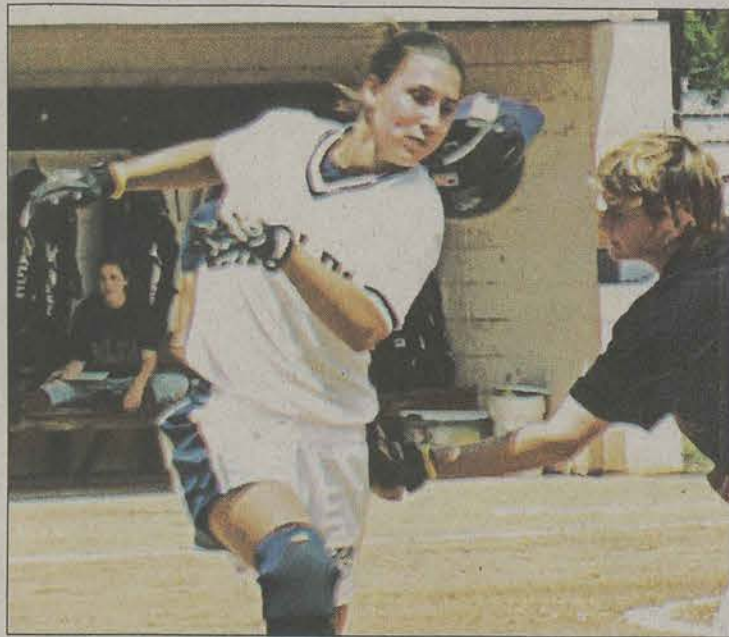

In the wild GSU half of the fifth, senior Sam Steiner and freshman Carrie Mixon each had RBI singles, but the Eagles failed to capitalize any further, leaving the bases loaded.

In Elon's half of the seventh, Smith led off with a walk, but was standing on second with two outs after a strikeout and a groundout. Consecutive errors cut the lead in half and the Phoenix had the tying run on second. But the rally was squashed as Free ended the game with a groundout.

Free, who threw a three-hit shutout Saturday in game two, walked four and gave up six hits, while striking out five. The win gives her an 11-9 record.

"She struggled a little bit more than yesterday but she didn't give up a lot of big hits. I was just hoping I could keep her out there."

Sophomore Samantha Schroeder took the loss in relief. In two innings of work she allowed three earned runs and two hits.

A complete-game three-hitter by Free helped the Eagles split a Southern Conference softball doubleheader with Elon Saturday afternoon at Eagle Field. Elon took the first game 5-1 and GSU won the second game 6-0.

The Phoenix's four-run rally with two outs in the fourth was the difference thanks to senior Nicole Ellis' bases-clearing double.

GSU took an early lead with a run in the first that lasted until the fourth. Sophomore Melissa Laliberte retired the first two batters of the inning before two singles and a walk loaded the bases. Freshman Patti Weber drove home the first run with a single and Ellis followed with a double to right to score all three runners.

Schroeder went the distance for Elon, allowing seven hits with one walk to improve to 6-7. Laliberte took the loss, falling to 9-10.

The Eagles pounded out 14 hits and six runs, and rode the arm of Free to split the twinbill.

GSU again struck quickly, scoring twice in the first inning. Senior Shanita Black started it off with a three-bagger, and in the process, set a new GSU single-season and career triple record. She now has seven triples on the season and 12 for her career.

Black came around on a single by junior Aurora Johnson and Johnson crossed the plate on a bases loaded walk to junior A.J. Street.

Both Black and junior Maria Laurato had perfect games at the plate, going 4-for-4 and 3-for-3, respectively.

Black's four-hit performance helped her set another record, breaking the school's single-season hit mark. She surpasses the record of 68 she tied in 2005. She has set eight school records this season.

Free struck out three and walked three to up her record to 10-9. Senior Whitney Meeks gave up 11 hits two earned runs to drop to 9-6.

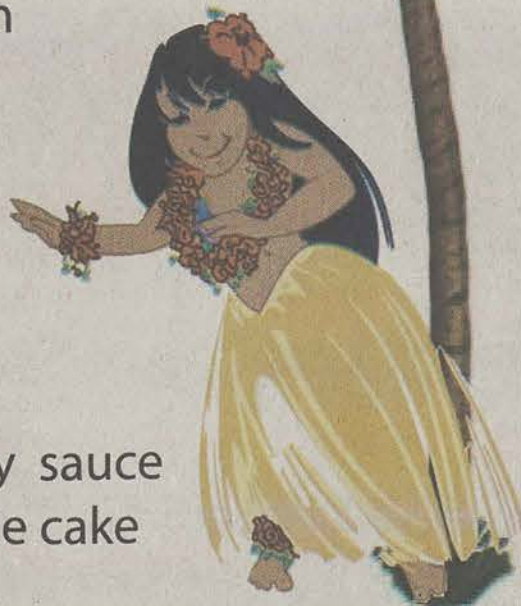

GSU entertains Georgia Tech Wednesday in a single game beginning at 2 p.m. Elon returns to action Thursday afternoon, traveling to North Carolina A&T.

A Madagascar hissing cockroach crawls across the shoulder of 4th grade teacher Linda Sanders as she purchases the brooch at the Black Chandelier, a retail store in Salt Lake City, April 7. The cockroach is decorated with jewels glued to the helmet of the roach and connected to a thin chain that pins to the clothing of the wearer, allowing the roach to move about yet stay nearby. Sanders purchased the roach brooch at a cost of $60.00. The sale of the roaches has brought protests from PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.)

from the front

The fascination seems to stem from our generation's desire to see celebrities as people just like us — almost part of the family, says University of Mississippi magazine analyst Samir Husni: "All of a sudden the whole country has become an aunt and uncle to these babies."

Sandra Leong, pregnant with her second child, has been affected by the closeup view of celebrity pregnancies. "They are showing that it's OK to be big and beautiful," says Leong. Now 34, she remembers the then-controversial 1991 Vanity Fair cover on which Demi Moore posed nude — at seven months pregnant. "She was the icon," says Leong. "People thought, if she can bare her breasts and belly to show her body changing, why can't I?"

So a year and a half ago, Leong hired photographer Jennifer Loomis to document her first pregnancy. Loomis recalls that a decade ago, when she told colleagues she wanted to make a business of such photo shoots, they laughed and said, "Nobody's going to pay you to do that!"

Loomis has now photographed over 1,000 pregnant women from her bases in Seattle, San Francisco and New York, using swaths of fabric and artful lighting to celebrate each woman's curves, beginning at $750 per session. Since 2002, she says, her business has quadrupled — and bookings in San Francisco have doubled in only the last four months.

"There has been a huge psychological shift in the last few years," Loomis says. "People are saying, this is such a special time — we want to capture this moment." A key factor, she says, is that women are having babies at an older age, meaning they often have more money to spend on their pregnancy — and are more reflective about it.

Doctor

from the front

Schools ranked along with GSU in the Research/Doctoral University category include American University and the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

The classification by Carnegie is separate from the University System of Georgia, which still classifies GSU as a regional university.

Murray said the Psy.D. is a degree that trains mental health clinicians at the doctoral level. He said while there are Ph.D. programs in clinical psychology in Georgia, GSU's Psy.D. program is unique in that it focuses more on training psychology students in the clinical setting versus intensive research.

"We are in an area with a lot of need to train mental health professionals," Murray said. "Mental health clinicians are sorely needed in this region of the country."

Starbucks

from the front

"The bid process lasts about three weeks, then from there the contractor should finish up in about a month. We are hopeful to have it up and running by the beginning of fall semester," said Palfy.

Until then, those who crave Starbucks can find it at two locations: the University Store and Daylight Donuts. Both are selling the coffee brand with varying degrees of success.

Daylight Donuts Manager Randy Linto said after a three-month trial he isn't likely to continue selling Starbucks coffee.

"Statesboro just isn't ready for a high-priced coffee like that," said Linto. "I think if they put it on campus it will do great, but my customers gripped and complained about paying $3 for 16 oz. of coffee."

Linto said he's found another coffee roaster he believes is a better quality that will allow him to continue to make a profit.

The bookstore has been selling Starbucks since November and, unlike Daylight's Linto, they are reporting a much warmer reception.

Patrick Sauers contributed to this story.
